JOB—NOTE ON 36:22–37:24 Instead of complaining and questioning God, as Job had been doing, which was sin (as Job will later confess in 42:6), he needed to see God in his suffering and worship him (33:24).

JOB—NOTE ON 36:26 we know him not. Though one may have a personal knowledge of God in salvation, the fullness of his glory is beyond human comprehension.

JOB—NOTE ON 36:27–37:4 Elihu gave a picture of God's power in the rain storm.

JOB—NOTE ON 36:31 judges . . . gives food. The rainstorm can be a disaster of punishment from God or a source of abundant crops.

JOB—NOTE ON 37:5–13 He described God’s power expressed in the cold winter. The storms and the hard winters remind us of the world in which harsh things occur, but for God’s good purposes of either “correction” or “love” (37:13).

JOB—NOTE ON 37:14–18 These words picture the scene in the sky when the storms and winters have passed, the sunlight breaks through, the warm wind blows, and the sky clears.

JOB—NOTE ON 37:19–20 In this passage Elihu reminded Job that since man can’t explain the wonders of God’s power and purpose, he ought to be silent and not contend with God. What a man has to say against God’s plans is not worthy to utter and could bring judgment.

JOB—NOTE ON 37:21–23 Elihu illustrated the folly of telling God what to do by describing staring into the golden sun on a brilliant day (vv. 21–22). We can’t confront God in his great glory; we are not even able to look at the sun he created (v. 21).

JOB—NOTE ON 37:24 does not regard. God is the Righteous Judge who will not take a bribe or perform favors in judgment. Thus, in his concluding speech, Elihu had pointed both Job and the reader up to God, who was ready, at last, to speak (38:1).

JOB—NOTE ON 38:1–40:2 God appeared and engaged in his first interrogation of Job, who had raised some accusations against him. God had his day in court with Job.

JOB—NOTE ON 38:1 the Lord. Yahweh, the covenant Lord, was the name used for God in the book’s prologue, where the reader was introduced to Job and his relationship with God. However, in chs. 3–37, the name Yahweh is not used. God is called El Shaddai, God the Almighty. In this book that change becomes a way of illustrating that God has been detached and distant. The relationship is restored in rich terms as God reveals himself to Job using his covenant name. out of the whirlwind. Job had repeatedly called God to court in order to verify his innocence. God finally came to interrogate Job on some of the comments he had made to his own accusers.

God was about to be Job’s vindicator, but he first brought Job to a right understanding of himself.

JOB—NOTE ON 38:2 Job’s words had only further confused matters already confused by useless counselors.

JOB—NOTE ON 38:3 I will question you. God silenced Job’s presumption in constantly wanting to ask the questions of God, by becoming Job’s questioner. It must be noted that God never told Job about the reason for his pain, about the conflict between himself and Satan, which was the reason for Job’s suffering. He never gave Job any explanation at all about the circumstances of his trouble. He did one thing in all he said. He asked Job if he was as eternal, great, powerful, wise, and perfect as God. If not, Job would have been better off to be quiet and trust him.

JOB—NOTE ON 38:4–38 God asked Job if he participated in creation as he did. That was a crushing, humbling query with an obvious “no” answer.

JOB—NOTE ON 38:4–7 Creation is spoken of using the language of building construction.

JOB—NOTE ON 38:7 morning stars . . . sons of God. The angelic realm, God’s ministering spirits.

JOB—NOTE ON 38:8–11 God’s power over the sea by raising the continents is described, along with the thick clouds that draw up its water to carry rain to the land.

JOB—NOTE ON 38:12–13 The dawn rises, and as it spreads light over the earth, it exposes the wicked, as shaking the corners of a cloth exposes dirt.

JOB—NOTE ON 38:14 clay under the seal. Documents written on clay tablets were signed using personal engraved seals upon which was written the bearer’s name. The Hebrew for “changed” is “turned.” It conveys the idea that the earth is turned or rotated like a cylindrical seal rolled over the soft clay. Such rolling cylinder seals were found in Babylon. This speaks of the earth, rotating on its axis, an amazing statement that only God could reveal in ancient days. The dawn rolls across the earth as it rotates.

JOB—NOTE ON 38:15 their light. The light of the wicked is darkness, because that is when they do their works. The dawn takes away their opportunity to do their deeds and stops their arm lifted and ready to harm. Was Job around when God created light (v. 21)?

JOB—NOTE ON 38:22 storehouses. The storehouse of these elements is the clouds.

JOB—NOTE ON 38:31–32 Pleiades . . . Orion . . . Bear. Stellar constellations (cf. 9:9) are in view.

JOB—NOTE ON 38:33 ordinances of the heavens. The laws and powers that regulate all heavenly bodies.

JOB—NOTE ON 38:36 wisdom . . . understanding. This is at the heart of the real issue. The wisdom of God that created and sustains the universe is at work in Job's suffering also. See also 39:17.

JOB—NOTE ON 38:39–39:30 God asked Job the humiliating questions about whether he could take care of the animal kingdom. Job must have been feeling less and less significant under the crushing indictment of such comparisons with God.

JOB—NOTE ON 39:5 swift donkey. A species of donkey.

JOB—NOTE ON 39:13–18 wings of the ostrich. The silly ostrich that leaves her eggs on the ground lacks sense. God has not given her wisdom. She is almost a picture of Job, who is a mixture of foolishness and strength (v. 18).

JOB—NOTE ON 40:2 God challenged Job to answer all the questions he had posed. God didn't need to know the answer, but Job needed to admit his weakness, inferiority, and inability to even try to figure out God's infinite mind. God's wisdom was so superior, his sovereign control of everything so complete, that this was all Job needed to know.

JOB—NOTE ON 40:3–5 Job's first response to God was "I am guilty as charged. I will say no more." He knows he should not have found fault with the Almighty. He should not have insisted on his own understanding. He should not have thought God unjust. So he was reduced to silence at last.

JOB—NOTE ON 40:6–41:34 As if the first was not enough, God's second interrogation of Job commenced along the very same lines, only focusing on two unique animals in God's creation: Behemoth (40:15–24) and Leviathan (41:1–34), two creatures powerful and fearful who embodied all that is overwhelming, uncontrollable, and terrorizing in this world. Man can't control them, but God can.

JOB—NOTE ON 40:8–14 God unleashed another torrent of crushing rebukes to Job, in which he mocked Job's questionings of him by telling the sufferer that if he really thought he knew what was best for him rather than God (v. 8), then he should take over being God (vv. 9–14)!

JOB—NOTE ON 40:15–24 Behemoth. While this is a generic term used commonly in the OT for large cattle or land animals, the description in this passage suggests an extraordinary creature. The hippopotamus has been suggested by the details in the passage (vv. 19–24). However, the short tail of a hippo is hardly consistent with v. 17, where tail could be translated "trunk." It could refer to an elephant, who could be considered "first" or chief of God's creatures whom only he can control (v. 19). Some believe God is describing his most impressive creation of land animals, the dinosaur species, which fit all the characteristics.

JOB—NOTE ON 40:23 God was not saying this creature lived in the Jordan River, but rather, recognizing that the Jordan was familiar to Job, used it to illustrate how much water this beast could ingest. He could swallow the Jordan! It was a word used to refer to something of enormous size and threatening power.

JOB—NOTE ON 41:1 Leviathan. This term appears in four other OT texts (Job 3:8; Ps. 74:14; 104:26; Isa. 27:1). In each case Leviathan refers to some mighty creature who can overwhelm man but who is no match for God. Since this creature lives in the sea among ships (Ps. 104:26), some form of sea monster, possibly an ancient dinosaur, is in view. Some feel it was a crocodile, which had scaly hide (Job 41:15), terrible teeth (v. 14) and speed in the water (v. 32). But crocodiles are not sea creatures, and clearly this one was (v. 31). Some have thought it was a killer whale or a great white shark, because he is the ultimate killer beast over all other proud beasts (v. 34). It could also have been some sea-going dinosaur.

JOB—NOTE ON 41:4 Will he make a covenant with you . . . ? "Will this monstrous creature need, for any reason, to come to terms with you, Job? Are you able to control him?" God asked.

JOB—NOTE ON 41:10 Who then is he who can stand before me? This was the essential question being asked in both the Behemoth and Leviathan passages. God created these awesome creatures, and his might is far greater than theirs. If Job couldn't stand against them, what was he doing contending with God? He would be better off to fight a dinosaur or a killer shark.

JOB—NOTE ON 41:11 God did not need to buy anything; he already owned all things. Paul quoted this in Rom. 11:35.

JOB—NOTE ON 42:1–6 Job's confession and repentance took place finally. He still did not know why he suffered so profoundly, but he was done complaining, questioning, and challenging God's wisdom and justice. He was reduced to such utter humility, crushed beneath the weight of God's greatness, that all he could do was repent for his insolence. Without answers to all of his questions, Job quietly bowed in humble submission before his Creator and admitted that God was sovereign (cf. Isa. 14:24; 46:8–11). Most important for the message of the book, Job was still diseased and without his children and possessions, and God had not changed anything (except for the humbling of the heart of his servant). Satan had been proven completely wrong in the charges he brought against Job and in thinking he could destroy true saving faith; Job's companions were completely wrong in the charges they brought against him; but most critically, Job himself was completely wrong in the charges he had raised against God. He expressed his own sorrowful regret that he had not just accepted God's will without such ignorant complaints and questions.

JOB—NOTE ON 42:3–4 Job twice alluded to statements God had made in his interrogation of Job. The first allusion "Who is this that darkens counsel by words without knowledge?" (cf. 38:2) indicted Job's pride and presumption regarding God's counsel. The second, "I will question you, and you make it known to me" (38:3; 40:7) expressed God's judicial authority to demand answers from his own accuser, Job. The two quotes manifested that Job understood the divine rebuke.

JOB—NOTE ON 42:5 had heard . . . now my eye sees you. At last, Job said he understood God, whom he had seen with the eyes of faith. He had never so well grasped the greatness, majesty, sovereignty, and independence of God as he did at that moment.

JOB—NOTE ON 42:6 repent in dust and ashes. All that was left to do was repent! The ashes upon which the broken man sat had not changed, but the heart of God's suffering servant had. Job did not need to repent of some sins that Satan or his accusers had raised. But Job had exercised presumption and allegations of unfairness against his Lord and hated himself for this in a way that called for brokenness and contrition.

JOB—NOTE ON 42:7–17 The text goes back to prose, from the poetry begun in 3:1.

JOB—NOTE ON 42:7–8 you have not spoken of me what is right. God directly vindicated Job by saying that Job had spoken right about God in rejecting the error of his friends. They are then rebuked for those misrepresentations of insensitivity and arrogance. This does not mean that everything they said was incorrect, but they had made wrong statements about the character and works of God, and also had raised erroneous allegations against Job.

JOB—NOTE ON 42:8 seven bulls and seven rams. This was the number of sacrifices specified in Num. 23:1 by Balaam the prophet, so perhaps it was a traditional kind of burnt offering for sin.

JOB—NOTE ON 42:8–9 As God had been gracious to Job, so he was to Job's friends, by means of sacrifice and prayer. Here the book points to the need for a sacrifice for sin, fulfilled in the Lord Jesus Christ who gave himself as an offering for sins and ever lives to intercede (cf. 1 Tim. 2:5). Even before the Levitical priesthood, family heads acted as priests, offering sacrifices and mediating through prayer.

JOB—NOTE ON 42:13 seven sons . . . three daughters. While the animals are double the number of Job 1:3, why are not the children? It is obvious that Job still had seven sons and three daughters waiting for him in the presence of God (42:17).

JOB—NOTE ON 42:14 These names are representative of the joys of restoration. Jemimah means "day light," Keziah means "sweet smelling," and Keren-happuch describes a beautiful color ladies used to paint their eyelids.

JOB—NOTE ON 42:15 gave them an inheritance. This was unusual in the East. By Jewish law, daughters only received an inheritance when there were no sons (Num. 27:8). Job had plenty for all.

JOB—NOTE ON 42:17 And Job died, an old man, and full of days. These concluding words take the reader back to where the account began (1:1). Job died in prosperity and his days were counted as a blessing. In the words of James (James 5:11), we have seen the outcome of the Lord's dealings, that the Lord is "compassionate and merciful." But the "accuser of our brothers" (Rev. 12:10) is still "going to and fro on the earth" (Job 1:7) and God's servants are still learning to trust in the all-wise, all-powerful Judge of the universe for what they cannot understand.

Introduction to Psalms

Title

The entire collection of Psalms is entitled “Praises” in the Hebrew text. Later, rabbis often designated it “The Book of Praises.” The Septuagint (LXX), the Greek translation of the OT, labeled it “Psalms” (cf. “The Book of Psalms” in the NT: Luke 20:42; Acts 1:20). The Greek verb from which the noun “psalms” comes basically denotes the “plucking or twanging of strings,” so that an association with musical accompaniment is implied. The English title derives from the Greek term and its background. The Psalms constituted Israel’s ancient, God-breathed (2 Tim. 3:16) “hymnbook,” which defined the proper spirit and content of worship.

There are 116 psalms that have superscriptions or “titles.” The Hebrew text includes these titles with the verses themselves. When the titles are surveyed individually and studied as a general phenomenon, there are significant indications that they were appended to their respective psalms shortly after composition and that they contain reliable information (cf. Luke 20:42).

These titles convey various kinds of information such as authorship, dedication, historical occasion, liturgical assignment to a worship director, liturgical instructions (e.g., what kind of song it is, whether it is to have a musical accompaniment, and what tune to use), plus other technical instructions of uncertain meaning due to their great antiquity. One very tiny, attached Hebrew preposition shows up in the majority of the psalm titles. It may convey different relationships, e.g., “of,” “from,” “by,” “to,” “for,” “in reference to,” “about.” Sometimes it occurs more than once, even in short headings, usually supplying “of,” or “by,” person X . . . “to,” or “for,” person Y information. However, this little preposition most frequently indicates the authorship of a psalm, whether “of” David, the accomplished psalmist of Israel, or “by” Moses, Solomon, Asaph, or the sons of Korah.

Author and Date

From the divine perspective, the Psalter points to God as its author. Approaching authorship from the human side one can identify a collection of more than seven composers. King David wrote at least 73 of the 150 psalms; the sons of Korah accounted for 10 (Ps. 42; 44–49; 84; 85; 87); and Asaph contributed 12 (Ps. 50; 73–83). Other penmen included Solomon (Ps. 72; 127), Moses (Ps. 90), Heman (Ps. 88), and Ethan (Ps. 89). The remaining 50 psalms remain anonymous in their authorship, although Ezra is thought to be the author of some. The time range of the Psalms extends from Moses, c. 1410 B.C. (Ps. 90), to the late sixth or early fifth century B.C. postexilic period (Ps. 126), which spans about 900 years of Jewish history.

Background and Setting

The backdrop for Psalms is twofold: 1) the acts of God in creation and history, and 2) the history of Israel. Historically, the psalms range in time from the origin of life to the postexilic joys of the Jews liberated from Babylon. Thematically, the psalms cover a wide spectrum of topics, ranging from heavenly worship to earthly war. The collected psalms comprise the largest book in the Bible and the most frequently quoted OT book in the NT. Psalm 117 represents the middle chapter (out of 1,189) in the Bible. Psalm 119 is the largest chapter in the entire Bible. Through the ages, the psalms have retained their original primary purpose, i.e., to engender the proper praise and worship of God.

Historical and Theological Themes

The basic theme of Psalms is living real life in the real world, where two dimensions operate simultaneously: 1) a horizontal or temporal reality, and 2) a vertical or transcendent reality. Without denying the pain of the earthly dimension, the people of God are to live joyfully and dependently on the Person and promises standing behind the heavenly/eternal dimension. All cycles of human troubles and triumphs provide occasions for expressing human complaints, confidence, prayers, or praise to Israel’s sovereign Lord.

In view of this, Psalms presents a broad array of theology, practically couched in day-to-day reality. The sinfulness of man is documented concretely, not only through the behavioral patterns of the wicked, but also by the periodic stumblings of believers. The sovereignty of God is everywhere recognized, but not at the expense of genuine human responsibility. Life often seems to be out of control, and yet all events and situations are understood in the light of divine providence as being right on course according to God’s timetable. Assuring glimpses of a future “God’s day” bolsters the call for perseverance to the end. This book of praise manifests a very practical theology.

A commonly misunderstood phenomenon in Psalms is the association that often develops between the “one” (the psalmist) and the “many” (the theocratic people). Virtually all of the cases of this occur in the psalms of King David. There was an inseparable relationship between the mediatorial ruler and his people; as life went for the king, so it went for the people. Furthermore, at times this union accounted for the psalmist’s apparent connection with Christ in the messianic psalms (or messianic portions of certain psalms). The so-called imprecatory (curse pronouncing) psalms may be better understood with this perspective. As God’s mediatorial representative on earth, David prayed for judgment on his enemies, since these enemies were not only hurting him, but were primarily hurting God’s people. Ultimately, they challenged the King of kings, the God of Israel.

Interpretive Challenges

It is helpful to recognize certain recurring genres or literary types in the Psalter. Some of the most obvious are: 1) the wisdom type with instructions for right living; 2) lamentation patterns that deal with the pangs of life (usually arising from enemies without); 3) penitential psalms (mostly dealing with the "enemy" within, i.e., sin); 4) kingship emphases (universal or mediatorial; theocratic and/or messianic rule); and 5) thanksgiving psalms. A combination of style and subject matter help to identify such types when they appear.

The comprehensive literary characteristic of the psalms is that all of them are poetry par excellence. Unlike most English poetry, which is based on rhyme and meter, Hebrew poetry is essentially characterized by logical parallelisms. Some of the most important kinds of parallelisms are: 1) synonymous (the thought of the first line is restated with similar concepts in the second line, e.g., Ps. 2:1); 2) antithetic (the thought of the second line is contrasted with the first, e.g., Ps. 1:6); 3) climactic (the second and any subsequent lines pick up a crucial word, phrase, or concept and advance it in a stairstep fashion, e.g., Ps. 29:1–2); and 4) chiastic or introverted (the logical units are developed in an A . . . B . . . B' . . . A' pattern, e.g., Ps. 1:2).

On a larger scale, some psalms in their development from the first to the last verse employ an acrostic or alphabetical arrangement. Psalms 9; 10; 25; 34; 37; 111; 112; 119; and 145 are recognized as either complete or incomplete acrostics. In the Hebrew text, the first letter of the first word of every verse or section begins with a different Hebrew consonant, which advances in alphabetical order until the 22 consonants are exhausted. Such a literary vehicle undoubtedly aided in the memorization of the content and served to indicate that its particular subject matter had been covered from "A to Z." Psalm 119 stands out as the most complete example of this device, since the first letter of each of its 22, eight-verse stanzas moves completely through the Hebrew alphabet.

Outline

The 150 canonical psalms were organized quite early into five “books.” Each of these books ends with a doxology (Ps. 41:13; 72:18–20; 89:52; 106:48; 150:6). Jewish tradition appealed to the number five and alleged that these divisions echoed the Pentateuch, i.e., the five books of Moses. It is true that there are clusters of psalms, such as 1) those drawn together by an association with an individual or group (e.g., “The sons of Korah,” Ps. 42–49; Asaph, Ps. 73–83), 2) those dedicated to a particular function (e.g., “Songs of ascents,” Ps. 120–134), or 3) those devoted explicitly to praise worship (Ps. 146–150). But no one configuration key unlocks the “mystery” as to the organizing theme of this five-book arrangement. Thus, there is no identifiable thematic structure to the entire collection of psalms. A brief introduction and outline for each psalm will be provided with the study notes for individual psalms.

The Psalms

Book One

The Way of the Righteous and the Wicked

PSALM 1 ‡†Blessed is the man [1] who walks not in the counsel of the wicked, nor stands in the way of sinners,
nor sits in the seat of scoffers;
[2]†but his delight is in the law [2] of the LORD,
and on his law he meditates day and night.
[3]†He is like a tree planted by streams of water that yields its fruit in its season,
and its leaf does not wither.
In all that he does, he prospers.
[4]†The wicked are not so,
but are like chaff that the wind drives away.
[5]†Therefore the wicked will not stand in the judgment,
nor sinners in the congregation of the righteous;
[6]†for the LORD knows the way of the righteous,
but the way of the wicked will perish.

The Reign of the LORD's Anointed

PSALM 2 ‡†Why do the nations rage [1]
and the peoples plot in vain?
[2]†The kings of the earth set themselves,
and the rulers take counsel together,
against the LORD and against his Anointed, saying, [3]†“Let us burst their bonds apart and cast away their cords from us.”
[4]He who sits in the heavens laughs;
the Lord holds them in derision.
[5]†Then he will speak to them in his wrath,
and terrify them in his fury, saying, [6]†“As for me, I have set my King
on Zion, my holy hill.”
[7]†I will tell of the decree:
The LORD said to me, “You are my Son;
today I have begotten you.
[8]Ask of me, and I will make the nations your heritage,
and the ends of the earth your possession.
[9]†You shall break [2] them with a rod of iron and dash them in pieces like a potter's vessel.”
[10]‡Now therefore, O kings, be wise;
be warned, O rulers of the earth.
[11]Serve the LORD with fear, and rejoice with trembling.
[12]†Kiss the Son,
lest he be angry, and you perish in the way,
for his wrath is quickly kindled.
Blessed are all who take refuge in him.

Save Me, O My God

A Psalm of David, when he fled from Absalom his son.

PSALM 3 ‡‡O Lord, how many are my foes!
Many are rising against me;
[2]‡many are saying of my soul,
there is no salvation for him in God. Selah [1] [3]But you, O Lord, are a shield about me, my glory, and the lifter of my head.
[4]I cried aloud to the Lord,
and he answered me from his holy hill. Selah
[5]†I lay down and slept;
I woke again, for the Lord sustained me.
[6]I will not be afraid of many thousands of people who have set themselves against me all around.
[7]†Arise, O Lord!
Save me, O my God!
For you strike all my enemies on the cheek;
you break the teeth of the wicked.
[8]†Salvation belongs to the Lord;
your blessing be on your people! Selah

Answer Me When I Call

To the choirmaster: with stringed instruments. A Psalm of David.

PSALM 4 ‡†Answer me when I call, O God of my righteousness!
You have given me relief when I was in distress.
Be gracious to me and hear my prayer!
[2]‡O men, [1] how long shall my honor be turned into shame?
How long will you love vain words and seek after lies? Selah [3]But know that the LORD has set apart the godly for himself;
the LORD hears when I call to him.
[4]†Be angry, [2] and do not sin;
ponder in your own hearts on your beds, and be silent. Selah [5]†Offer right sacrifices, and put your trust in the LORD.
[6]‡There are many who say, “Who will show us some good?
Lift up the light of your face upon us, O LORD!”
[7]You have put more joy in my heart than they have when their grain and wine abound.
[8]†In peace I will both lie down and sleep;
for you alone, O LORD, make me dwell in safety.

Lead Me in Your Righteousness

To the choirmaster: for the flutes. A Psalm of David.

PSALM 5 ‡†Give ear to my words, O LORD;
    consider my groaning.
[2]†Give attention to the sound of my cry,
    my King and my God,
    for to you do I pray.
[3]†O LORD, in the morning you hear my voice;
    in the morning I prepare a sacrifice for you [1] and watch.
[4]‡For you are not a God who delights in wickedness;
    evil may not dwell with you.
[5]The boastful shall not stand before your eyes;
    you hate all evildoers.
[6]You destroy those who speak lies;
    the LORD abhors the bloodthirsty and deceitful man.
[7]†But I, through the abundance of your steadfast love,
    will enter your house.
I will bow down toward your holy temple
    in the fear of you.
[8]‡†Lead me, O LORD, in your righteousness
    because of my enemies;
    make your way straight before me.
[9]For there is no truth in their mouth;
    their inmost self is destruction;
their throat is an open grave;
    they flatter with their tongue.
[10]‡Make them bear their guilt, O God;
    let them fall by their own counsels;
because of the abundance of their transgressions cast them out,
    for they have rebelled against you.
[11]But let all who take refuge in you rejoice;
    let them ever sing for joy,
and spread your protection over them,
    that those who love your name may exult in you.
[12]For you bless the righteous, O LORD;
    you cover him with favor as with a shield.

O LORD, Deliver My Life

To the choirmaster: with stringed instruments; according to The Sheminith. [1] A Psalm of David.

PSALM 6 ‡†O LORD, rebuke me not in your anger,
nor discipline me in your wrath.
[2]‡Be gracious to me, O LORD, for I am languishing;
heal me, O LORD, for my bones are troubled.
[3]†My soul also is greatly troubled.
But you, O LORD—how long?
[4]†Turn, O LORD, deliver my life;
save me for the sake of your steadfast love.
[5]†For in death there is no remembrance of you;
in Sheol who will give you praise?
[6]‡I am weary with my moaning;
every night I flood my bed with tears;
I drench my couch with my weeping.
[7]My eye wastes away because of grief;
it grows weak because of all my foes.
[8]‡Depart from me, all you workers of evil,
for the LORD has heard the sound of my weeping.
[9]The LORD has heard my plea;
the LORD accepts my prayer.
[10]All my enemies shall be ashamed and greatly troubled;
they shall turn back and be put to shame in a moment.

In You Do I Take Refuge

A Shiggaion [1] of David, which he sang to the LORD concerning the words of Cush, a Benjaminite.

PSALM 7 ‡O LORD my God, in you do I take refuge;
save me from all my pursuers and deliver me,
[2]†lest like a lion they tear my soul apart, rending it in pieces, with none to deliver.
[3]‡O LORD my God, if I have done this,
if there is wrong in my hands,
[4]if I have repaid my friend [2] with evil
or plundered my enemy without cause, [5]let the enemy pursue my soul and overtake it,
and let him trample my life to the ground and lay my glory in the dust. Selah [6]†Arise, O LORD, in your anger;
lift yourself up against the fury of my enemies;
awake for me; you have appointed a judgment.
[7]Let the assembly of the peoples be gathered about you;
over it return on high.
[8]†The LORD judges the peoples;
judge me, O LORD, according to my righteousness and according to the integrity that is in me.
[9]†Oh, let the evil of the wicked come to an end,
and may you establish the righteous—
you who test the minds and hearts, [3]
O righteous God!
[10]My shield is with God,
who saves the upright in heart.
[11]‡God is a righteous judge,
and a God who feels indignation every day.
[12]If a man [4] does not repent, God [5] will whet his sword;
he has bent and readied his bow;
[13]he has prepared for him his deadly weapons, making his arrows fiery shafts.
[14]‡Behold, the wicked man conceives evil and is pregnant with mischief

and gives birth to lies.
[15]He makes a pit, digging it out,
and falls into the hole that he has made.
[16]His mischief returns upon his own head,
and on his own skull his violence descends.
[17]I will give to the LORD the thanks due to his righteousness, and I will sing praise to the name of the LORD, the Most High.

How Majestic Is Your Name

To the choirmaster: according to The Gittith. [1] A Psalm of David.

PSALM 8 ‡†O LORD, our Lord,
how majestic is your name in all the earth!
You have set your glory above the heavens.
[2]†Out of the mouth of babies and infants,
you have established strength because of your foes,
to still the enemy and the avenger.
[3]†When I look at your heavens, the work of your fingers,
the moon and the stars, which you have set in place, [4]‡†what is man that you are mindful of him,
and the son of man that you care for him?
[5]‡Yet you have made him a little lower than the heavenly beings [2] and crowned him with glory and honor.
[6]You have given him dominion over the works of your hands;
you have put all things under his feet, [7]all sheep and oxen,
and also the beasts of the field, [8]the birds of the heavens, and the fish of the sea, whatever passes along the paths of the seas.
[9]O LORD, our Lord,
how majestic is your name in all the earth!

I Will Recount Your Wonderful Deeds

[1] To the choirmaster: according to Muth-labben. [2] A Psalm of David.

PSALM 9 ‡‡†I will give thanks to the Lord with my whole heart;
I will recount all of your wonderful deeds.
[2]I will be glad and exult in you;
I will sing praise to your name, O Most High.
[3]When my enemies turn back,
they stumble and perish before [3] your presence.
[4]†For you have maintained my just cause;
you have sat on the throne, giving righteous judgment.
[5]‡You have rebuked the nations; you have made the wicked perish;
you have blotted out their name forever and ever.
[6]The enemy came to an end in everlasting ruins;
their cities you rooted out;
the very memory of them has perished.
[7]But the Lord sits enthroned forever;
he has established his throne for justice, [8]and he judges the world with righteousness;
he judges the peoples with uprightness.
[9]The Lord is a stronghold for the oppressed,
a stronghold in times of trouble.
[10]And those who know your name put their trust in you, for you, O Lord, have not forsaken those who seek you.
[11]†Sing praises to the Lord, who sits enthroned in Zion!
Tell among the peoples his deeds!
[12]‡For he who avenges blood is mindful of them;
he does not forget the cry of the afflicted.
[13]Be gracious to me, O Lord!
See my affliction from those who hate me,
O you who lift me up from the gates of death, [14]that I may recount all your praises, that in the gates of the daughter of Zion
I may rejoice in your salvation.
[15]‡The nations have sunk in the pit that they made;

in the net that they hid, their own foot has been caught.
[16]The Lord has made himself known; he has executed judgment;
the wicked are snared in the work of their own hands.
Higgaion. [4] Selah [17]‡The wicked shall return to Sheol, all the nations that forget God.
[18]For the needy shall not always be forgotten,
and the hope of the poor shall not perish forever.
[19]Arise, O Lord! Let not man prevail;
let the nations be judged before you!
[20]Put them in fear, O Lord!
Let the nations know that they are but men! Selah

Why Do You Hide Yourself?

PSALM 10 ‡†Why, O LORD, do you stand far away?
Why do you hide yourself in times of trouble?
[2]In arrogance the wicked hotly pursue the poor;
let them be caught in the schemes that they have devised.
[3]†For the wicked boasts of the desires of his soul, and the one greedy for gain curses [1] and renounces the LORD.
[4]In the pride of his face [2] the wicked does not seek him; [3]
all his thoughts are, “There is no God.”
[5]†His ways prosper at all times;
your judgments are on high, out of his sight;
as for all his foes, he puffs at them.
[6]He says in his heart, “I shall not be moved;
throughout all generations I shall not meet adversity.”
[7]‡His mouth is filled with cursing and deceit and oppression;
under his tongue are mischief and iniquity.
[8]He sits in ambush in the villages;
in hiding places he murders the innocent.
His eyes stealthily watch for the helpless;
[9]he lurks in ambush like a lion in his thicket;
he lurks that he may seize the poor;
he seizes the poor when he draws him into his net.
[10]The helpless are crushed, sink down,
and fall by his might.
[11]He says in his heart, “God has forgotten,
he has hidden his face, he will never see it.”
[12]†Arise, O LORD; O God, lift up your hand; forget not the afflicted.
[13]Why does the wicked renounce God and say in his heart, “You will not call to account”?
[14]†But you do see, for you note mischief and vexation, that you may take it into your hands;
to you the helpless commits himself;
you have been the helper of the fatherless.

[15]†Break the arm of the wicked and evildoer;
call his wickedness to account till you find none.
[16]‡The LORD is king forever and ever;
the nations perish from his land.
[17]O LORD, you hear the desire of the afflicted;
you will strengthen their heart; you will incline your ear [18]to do justice to the fatherless and the oppressed, so that man who is of the earth may strike terror no more.

The LORD Is in His Holy Temple

To the choirmaster. Of David.

PSALM 11 ‡†In the LORD I take refuge;
how can you say to my soul,
“Flee like a bird to your mountain,
[2]for behold, the wicked bend the bow;
they have fitted their arrow to the string to shoot in the dark at the upright in heart; [3]‡if the foundations are destroyed,
what can the righteous do?” [1]
[4]‡†The LORD is in his holy temple;
the LORD's throne is in heaven;
his eyes see, his eyelids test the children of man.
[5]‡The LORD tests the righteous, but his soul hates the wicked and the one who loves violence.
[6]Let him rain coals on the wicked;
fire and sulfur and a scorching wind shall be the portion of their cup.
[7]†For the LORD is righteous;
he loves righteous deeds;
the upright shall behold his face.

The Faithful Have Vanished

To the choirmaster: according to The Sheminith. [1] A Psalm of David.

PSALM 12 ‡‡Save, O LORD, for the godly one is gone;
for the faithful have vanished from among the children of man.
[2]‡Everyone utters lies to his neighbor;
with flattering lips and a double heart they speak.
[3]‡May the LORD cut off all flattering lips,
the tongue that makes great boasts,
[4]those who say, “With our tongue we will prevail,
our lips are with us; who is master over us?”
[5]“Because the poor are plundered, because the needy groan,
I will now arise,” says the LORD;
“I will place him in the safety for which he longs.”
[6]‡The words of the LORD are pure words, like silver refined in a furnace on the ground,
purified seven times.
[7]‡You, O LORD, will keep them;
you will guard us [2] from this generation forever.
[8]On every side the wicked prowl,
as vileness is exalted among the children of man.

How Long, O LORD?

To the choirmaster. A Psalm of David.

PSALM 13 ‡‡How long, O LORD? Will you forget me forever?
How long will you hide your face from me?
[2]How long must I take counsel in my soul
and have sorrow in my heart all the day?
How long shall my enemy be exalted over me?
[3]Consider and answer me, O LORD my God;
light up my eyes, lest I sleep the sleep of death,
[4]‡lest my enemy say, “I have prevailed over him,” lest my foes rejoice because I am shaken.
[5]But I have trusted in your steadfast love;
my heart shall rejoice in your salvation.
[6]I will sing to the LORD,
because he has dealt bountifully with me.

The Fool Says, There Is No God

To the choirmaster. Of David.

PSALM 14 ‡‡†The fool says in his heart, “There is no God.”
They are corrupt, they do abominable deeds,
there is none who does good.
[2]The LORD looks down from heaven on the children of man,
to see if there are any who understand, [1]
who seek after God.
[3]They have all turned aside; together they have become corrupt;
there is none who does good,
not even one.
[4]‡Have they no knowledge, all the evildoers who eat up my people as they eat bread
and do not call upon the LORD?
[5]There they are in great terror,
for God is with the generation of the righteous.
[6]You would shame the plans of the poor,
but [2] the LORD is his refuge.
[7]†Oh, that salvation for Israel would come out of Zion!
When the LORD restores the fortunes of his people,
let Jacob rejoice, let Israel be glad.

Who Shall Dwell on Your Holy Hill?

A Psalm of David.

PSALM 15 ‡†O LORD, who shall sojourn in your tent?
Who shall dwell on your holy hill?
[2]‡He who walks blamelessly and does what is right and speaks truth in his heart;
[3]who does not slander with his tongue and does no evil to his neighbor, nor takes up a reproach against his friend;
[4]†in whose eyes a vile person is despised,
but who honors those who fear the LORD;
who swears to his own hurt and does not change;
[5]†who does not put out his money at interest and does not take a bribe against the innocent.
He who does these things shall never be moved.

You Will Not Abandon My Soul

A Miktam [1] of David.

PSALM 16 ‡‡Preserve me, O God, for in you I take refuge.
[2]‡I say to the LORD, “You are my Lord;
I have no good apart from you.”
[3]As for the saints in the land, they are the excellent ones, in whom is all my delight. [2] [4]‡The sorrows of those who run after [3] another god shall multiply; their drink offerings of blood I will not pour out or take their names on my lips.
[5]‡The LORD is my chosen portion and my cup;
you hold my lot.
[6]The lines have fallen for me in pleasant places;
indeed, I have a beautiful inheritance.
[7]I bless the LORD who gives me counsel;
in the night also my heart instructs me. [4] [8]I have set the LORD always before me;
because he is at my right hand, I shall not be shaken.
[9]‡Therefore my heart is glad, and my whole being [5] rejoices;
my flesh also dwells secure.
[10]‡For you will not abandon my soul to Sheol, or let your holy one see corruption. [6] [11]You make known to me the path of life;
in your presence there is fullness of joy;
at your right hand are pleasures forevermore.

In the Shadow of Your Wings

A Prayer of David.

PSALM 17 ‡‡Hear a just cause, O LORD; attend to my cry!
Give ear to my prayer from lips free of deceit!
[2]From your presence let my vindication come!
Let your eyes behold the right!
[3]‡You have tried my heart, you have visited me by night,
you have tested me, and you will find nothing;
I have purposed that my mouth will not transgress.
[4]With regard to the works of man, by the word of your lips
I have avoided the ways of the violent.
[5]My steps have held fast to your paths;
my feet have not slipped.
[6]I call upon you, for you will answer me, O God;
incline your ear to me; hear my words.
[7]Wondrously show [1] your steadfast love,
O Savior of those who seek refuge
from their adversaries at your right hand.
[8]†Keep me as the apple of your eye;
hide me in the shadow of your wings, [9]from the wicked who do me violence,
my deadly enemies who surround me.
[10]†They close their hearts to pity;
with their mouths they speak arrogantly.
[11]They have now surrounded our steps;
they set their eyes to cast us to the ground.
[12]He is like a lion eager to tear,
as a young lion lurking in ambush.
[13]†Arise, O LORD! Confront him, subdue him!
Deliver my soul from the wicked by your sword, [14]‡from men by your hand, O LORD, from men of the world whose portion is in this life. [2]
You fill their womb with treasure; [3]
they are satisfied with children,
and they leave their abundance to their infants.
[15]As for me, I shall behold your face in righteousness;
when I awake, I shall be satisfied with your likeness.

The LORD Is My Rock and My Fortress

To the choirmaster. A Psalm of David, the servant of the L*ORD, who addressed the words of this song to the* L*ORD on the day when the* L*ORD rescued him from the hand of all his enemies, and from the hand of Saul. He said:*

PSALM 18 ††I love you, O LORD, my strength.
[2]†The LORD is my rock and my fortress and my deliverer, my God, my rock, in whom I take refuge,
my shield, and the horn of my salvation, my stronghold.
[3]I call upon the LORD, who is worthy to be praised,
and I am saved from my enemies.
[4]†The cords of death encompassed me;
the torrents of destruction assailed me; [1] [5]the cords of Sheol entangled me;
the snares of death confronted me.
[6]In my distress I called upon the LORD;
to my God I cried for help.
From his temple he heard my voice,
and my cry to him reached his ears.
[7]†Then the earth reeled and rocked;
the foundations also of the mountains trembled and quaked, because he was angry.
[8]Smoke went up from his nostrils, [2]
and devouring fire from his mouth;
glowing coals flamed forth from him.
[9]He bowed the heavens and came down;
thick darkness was under his feet.
[10]He rode on a cherub and flew;
he came swiftly on the wings of the wind.
[11]He made darkness his covering, his canopy around him, thick clouds dark with water.
[12]Out of the brightness before him
hailstones and coals of fire broke through his clouds.
[13]The LORD also thundered in the heavens, and the Most High uttered his voice,
hailstones and coals of fire.
[14]And he sent out his arrows and scattered them;
he flashed forth lightnings and routed them.
[15]Then the channels of the sea were seen,
and the foundations of the world were laid bare
at your rebuke, O LORD,
at the blast of the breath of your nostrils.

[16]‡He sent from on high, he took me;
he drew me out of many waters.
[17]He rescued me from my strong enemy and from those who hated me,
for they were too mighty for me.
[18]They confronted me in the day of my calamity,
but the LORD was my support.
[19]He brought me out into a broad place;
he rescued me, because he delighted in me.
[20]‡The LORD dealt with me according to my righteousness;
according to the cleanness of my hands he rewarded me.
[21]For I have kept the ways of the LORD,
and have not wickedly departed from my God.
[22]For all his rules [3] were before me,
and his statutes I did not put away from me.
[23]I was blameless before him,
and I kept myself from my guilt.
[24]So the LORD has rewarded me according to my righteousness,
according to the cleanness of my hands in his sight.
[25]With the merciful you show yourself merciful;
with the blameless man you show yourself blameless; [26]with the purified you show yourself pure;
and with the crooked you make yourself seem tortuous.
[27]For you save a humble people,
but the haughty eyes you bring down.
[28]For it is you who light my lamp;
the LORD my God lightens my darkness.
[29]For by you I can run against a troop,
and by my God I can leap over a wall.
[30]This God—his way is perfect; [4]
the word of the LORD proves true;
he is a shield for all those who take refuge in him.
[31]‡For who is God, but the LORD?
And who is a rock, except our God?—
[32]the God who equipped me with strength and made my way blameless.
[33]He made my feet like the feet of a deer and set me secure on the heights.

[34]He trains my hands for war,
so that my arms can bend a bow of bronze.
[35]You have given me the shield of your salvation,
and your right hand supported me,
and your gentleness made me great.
[36]You gave a wide place for my steps under me,
and my feet did not slip.
[37]I pursued my enemies and overtook them,
and did not turn back till they were consumed.
[38]I thrust them through, so that they were not able to rise;
they fell under my feet.
[39]For you equipped me with strength for the battle;
you made those who rise against me sink under me.
[40]You made my enemies turn their backs to me, [5]
and those who hated me I destroyed.
[41]They cried for help, but there was none to save;
they cried to the LORD, but he did not answer them.
[42]I beat them fine as dust before the wind;
I cast them out like the mire of the streets.
[43]You delivered me from strife with the people;
you made me the head of the nations;
people whom I had not known served me.
[44]As soon as they heard of me they obeyed me;
foreigners came cringing to me.
[45]Foreigners lost heart and came trembling out of their fortresses.
[46]The LORD lives, and blessed be my rock,
and exalted be the God of my salvation—[47]the God who gave me vengeance and subdued peoples under me, [48]who delivered me from my enemies;
yes, you exalted me above those who rose against me;
you rescued me from the man of violence.
[49]For this I will praise you, O LORD, among the nations, and sing to your name.
[50]†Great salvation he brings to his king,

and shows steadfast love to his anointed,
to David and his offspring forever.

The Law of the LORD Is Perfect

To the choirmaster. A Psalm of David.

PSALM 19 ‡‡†The heavens declare the glory of God,
and the sky above [1] proclaims his handiwork.
[2]‡Day to day pours out speech,
and night to night reveals knowledge.
[3]There is no speech, nor are there words,
whose voice is not heard.
[4]‡†Their voice [2] goes out through all the earth,
and their words to the end of the world.
In them he has set a tent for the sun,
[5]which comes out like a bridegroom leaving his chamber,
and, like a strong man, runs its course with joy.
[6]Its rising is from the end of the heavens,
and its circuit to the end of them,
and there is nothing hidden from its heat.
[7]‡‡†The law of the LORD is perfect, [3]
reviving the soul;
the testimony of the LORD is sure,
making wise the simple;
[8]†the precepts of the LORD are right, rejoicing the heart;
the commandment of the LORD is pure,
enlightening the eyes;
[9]†the fear of the LORD is clean, enduring forever;
the rules [4] of the LORD are true,
and righteous altogether.
[10]More to be desired are they than gold,
even much fine gold;
sweeter also than honey
and drippings of the honeycomb.
[11]Moreover, by them is your servant warned;
in keeping them there is great reward.
[12]‡Who can discern his errors?
Declare me innocent from hidden faults.
[13]Keep back your servant also from presumptuous sins;
let them not have dominion over me!
Then I shall be blameless,

and innocent of great transgression.
[14][†]Let the words of my mouth and the meditation of my heart be acceptable in your sight,
O LORD, my rock and my redeemer.

Trust in the Name of the LORD Our God

To the choirmaster. A Psalm of David.

PSALM 20 ‡†May the LORD answer you in the day of trouble!
May the name of the God of Jacob protect you!
[2]†May he send you help from the sanctuary and give you support from Zion!
[3]May he remember all your offerings and regard with favor your burnt sacrifices! Selah [4]May he grant you your heart's desire and fulfill all your plans!
[5]†May we shout for joy over your salvation,
and in the name of our God set up our banners!
May the LORD fulfill all your petitions!
[6]Now I know that the LORD saves his anointed;
he will answer him from his holy heaven
with the saving might of his right hand.
[7]†Some trust in chariots and some in horses,
but we trust in the name of the LORD our God.
[8]They collapse and fall,
but we rise and stand upright.
[9]†O LORD, save the king!
May he answer us when we call.

The King Rejoices in the LORD's Strength

To the choirmaster. A Psalm of David.

PSALM 21 ‡O LORD, in your strength the king rejoices, and in your salvation how greatly he exults!
[2]†You have given him his heart's desire and have not withheld the request of his lips. Selah [3]†For you meet him with rich blessings;
you set a crown of fine gold upon his head.
[4]†He asked life of you; you gave it to him,
length of days forever and ever.
[5]‡His glory is great through your salvation;
splendor and majesty you bestow on him.
[6]For you make him most blessed forever; [1]
you make him glad with the joy of your presence.
[7]†For the king trusts in the LORD, and through the steadfast love of the Most High he shall not be moved.
[8]†Your hand will find out all your enemies;
your right hand will find out those who hate you.
[9]You will make them as a blazing oven
when you appear.
The LORD will swallow them up in his wrath,
and fire will consume them.
[10]You will destroy their descendants from the earth,
and their offspring from among the children of man.
[11]Though they plan evil against you,
though they devise mischief, they will not succeed.
[12]For you will put them to flight;
you will aim at their faces with your bows.
[13]Be exalted, O LORD, in your strength!
We will sing and praise your power.

Why Have You Forsaken Me?

To the choirmaster: according to The Doe of the Dawn. A Psalm of David.

PSALM 22 ‡‡My God, my God, why have you forsaken me?
Why are you so far from saving me, from the words of my groaning?
[2]‡O my God, I cry by day, but you do not answer, and by night, but I find no rest.
[3]Yet you are holy,
enthroned on the praises [1] of Israel.
[4]In you our fathers trusted;
they trusted, and you delivered them.
[5]To you they cried and were rescued;
in you they trusted and were not put to shame.
[6]‡But I am a worm and not a man,
scorned by mankind and despised by the people.
[7]‡All who see me mock me;
they make mouths at me; they wag their heads;
[8]‡“He trusts in the Lord; let him deliver him;
let him rescue him, for he delights in him!”
[9]‡Yet you are he who took me from the womb;
you made me trust you at my mother's breasts.
[10]On you was I cast from my birth, and from my mother's womb you have been my God.
[11]Be not far from me,
for trouble is near,
and there is none to help.
[12]‡Many bulls encompass me;
strong bulls of Bashan surround me;
[13]they open wide their mouths at me,
like a ravening and roaring lion.
[14]‡I am poured out like water,
and all my bones are out of joint;
my heart is like wax;
it is melted within my breast; [15]my strength is dried up like a potsherd,
and my tongue sticks to my jaws;
you lay me in the dust of death.
[16]‡For dogs encompass me;
a company of evildoers encircles me;

they have pierced my hands and feet [2]— [17]†I can count all my bones—
they stare and gloat over me;
[18]†they divide my garments among them,
and for my clothing they cast lots.
[19]But you, O LORD, do not be far off!
O you my help, come quickly to my aid!
[20]Deliver my soul from the sword,
my precious life from the power of the dog!
[21]†Save me from the mouth of the lion!
You have rescued [3] me from the horns of the wild oxen!
[22]†I will tell of your name to my brothers;
in the midst of the congregation I will praise you:
[23]You who fear the LORD, praise him!
All you offspring of Jacob, glorify him,
and stand in awe of him, all you offspring of Israel!
[24]For he has not despised or abhorred
the affliction of the afflicted, and he has not hidden his face from him,
but has heard, when he cried to him.
[25]From you comes my praise in the great congregation;
my vows I will perform before those who fear him.
[26]The afflicted [4] shall eat and be satisfied;
those who seek him shall praise the LORD!
May your hearts live forever!
[27]†All the ends of the earth shall remember and turn to the LORD, and all the families of the nations shall worship before you.
[28]For kingship belongs to the LORD,
and he rules over the nations.
[29]All the prosperous of the earth eat and worship;
before him shall bow all who go down to the dust,
even the one who could not keep himself alive.
[30]Posterity shall serve him;
it shall be told of the Lord to the coming generation;

[31]they shall come and proclaim his righteousness to a people yet unborn, that he has done it.

The LORD Is My Shepherd

A Psalm of David.

PSALM 23 ‡†The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want.
[2]‡He makes me lie down in green pastures.
He leads me beside still waters. [1]
[3]He restores my soul.
He leads me in paths of righteousness [2]
for his name's sake.
[4]‡Even though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, [3]
I will fear no evil,
for you are with me;
your rod and your staff,
they comfort me.
[5]‡†You prepare a table before me in the presence of my enemies;
you anoint my head with oil;
my cup overflows.
[6]‡Surely [4] goodness and mercy [5] shall follow me
all the days of my life,
and I shall dwell [6] in the house of the Lord forever. [7]

The King of Glory

A Psalm of David.

PSALM 24 ‡†The earth is the LORD's and the fullness thereof, [1]
the world and those who dwell therein, [2]†for he has founded it upon the seas
and established it upon the rivers.
[3]†Who shall ascend the hill of the LORD?
And who shall stand in his holy place?
[4]†He who has clean hands and a pure heart, who does not lift up his soul to what is false
and does not swear deceitfully.
[5]He will receive blessing from the LORD and righteousness from the God of his salvation.
[6]Such is the generation of those who seek him, who seek the face of the God of Jacob. [2] Selah [7]‡Lift up your heads, O gates!
And be lifted up, O ancient doors,
that the King of glory may come in.
[8]Who is this King of glory?
The LORD, strong and mighty,
the LORD, mighty in battle!
[9]Lift up your heads, O gates!
And lift them up, O ancient doors,
that the King of glory may come in.
[10]†Who is this King of glory?
The LORD of hosts,
he is the King of glory! Selah

Teach Me Your Paths

[1] Of David.

PSALM 25 ‡‡To you, O LORD, I lift up my soul.
[2]‡O my God, in you I trust;
let me not be put to shame;
let not my enemies exult over me.
[3]Indeed, none who wait for you shall be put to shame;
they shall be ashamed who are wantonly treacherous.
[4]‡Make me to know your ways, O LORD;
teach me your paths.
[5]Lead me in your truth and teach me,
for you are the God of my salvation;
for you I wait all the day long.
[6]‡Remember your mercy, O LORD, and your steadfast love, for they have been from of old.
[7]Remember not the sins of my youth or my transgressions;
according to your steadfast love remember me,
for the sake of your goodness, O LORD!
[8]‡Good and upright is the LORD;
therefore he instructs sinners in the way.
[9]He leads the humble in what is right,
and teaches the humble his way.
[10]All the paths of the LORD are steadfast love and faithfulness, for those who keep his covenant and his testimonies.
[11]†For your name's sake, O LORD, pardon my guilt, for it is great.
[12]†Who is the man who fears the LORD?
Him will he instruct in the way that he should choose.
[13]His soul shall abide in well-being,
and his offspring shall inherit the land.
[14]†The friendship [2] of the LORD is for those who fear him,
and he makes known to them his covenant.
[15]†My eyes are ever toward the LORD,
for he will pluck my feet out of the net.

[16]‡†Turn to me and be gracious to me,
for I am lonely and afflicted.
[17]The troubles of my heart are enlarged;
bring me out of my distresses.
[18]Consider my affliction and my trouble,
and forgive all my sins.
[19]Consider how many are my foes,
and with what violent hatred they hate me.
[20]Oh, guard my soul, and deliver me!
Let me not be put to shame, for I take refuge in you.
[21]May integrity and uprightness preserve me,
for I wait for you.
[22]†Redeem Israel, O God, out of all his troubles.

I Will Bless the LORD

Of David.

PSALM 26 ‡†Vindicate me, O LORD,
for I have walked in my integrity,
and I have trusted in the LORD without wavering.
[2]†Prove me, O LORD, and try me;
test my heart and my mind. [1] [3]For your steadfast love is before my eyes, and I walk in your faithfulness.
[4]‡I do not sit with men of falsehood,
nor do I consort with hypocrites.
[5]I hate the assembly of evildoers,
and I will not sit with the wicked.
[6]†I wash my hands in innocence and go around your altar, O LORD, [7]†proclaiming thanksgiving aloud,
and telling all your wondrous deeds.
[8]†O LORD, I love the habitation of your house and the place where your glory dwells.
[9]‡Do not sweep my soul away with sinners,
nor my life with bloodthirsty men, [10]in whose hands are evil devices,
and whose right hands are full of bribes.
[11]But as for me, I shall walk in my integrity;
redeem me, and be gracious to me.
[12]†My foot stands on level ground;
in the great assembly I will bless the LORD.

The LORD Is My Light and My Salvation

Of David.

PSALM 27 ‡†The LORD is my light and my salvation;
whom shall I fear?
The LORD is the stronghold [1] of my life;
of whom shall I be afraid?
[2]†When evildoers assail me
to eat up my flesh,
my adversaries and foes,
it is they who stumble and fall.
[3]Though an army encamp against me,
my heart shall not fear;
though war arise against me,
yet [2] I will be confident.
[4]†One thing have I asked of the LORD,
that will I seek after:
that I may dwell in the house of the LORD
all the days of my life,
to gaze upon the beauty of the LORD
and to inquire [3] in his temple.
[5]†For he will hide me in his shelter
in the day of trouble;
he will conceal me under the cover of his tent;
he will lift me high upon a rock.
[6]And now my head shall be lifted up above my enemies all around me, and I will offer in his tent sacrifices with shouts of joy;
I will sing and make melody to the LORD.
[7]Hear, O LORD, when I cry aloud;
be gracious to me and answer me!
[8]‡You have said, “Seek [4] my face.”
My heart says to you,
“Your face, LORD, do I seek.” [5]
[9]Hide not your face from me.
Turn not your servant away in anger,
O you who have been my help.
Cast me not off; forsake me not,
O God of my salvation!

[10]†For my father and my mother have forsaken me, but the LORD will take me in.
[11]Teach me your way, O LORD,
and lead me on a level path
because of my enemies.
[12]Give me not up to the will of my adversaries;
for false witnesses have risen against me,
and they breathe out violence.
[13]I believe [6] that I shall look upon the goodness of the LORD
in the land of the living!
[14]†Wait for the LORD;
be strong, and let your heart take courage;
wait for the LORD!

The LORD Is My Strength and My Shield

Of David.

PSALM 28 ‡†To you, O LORD, I call;
my rock, be not deaf to me,
lest, if you be silent to me,
I become like those who go down to the pit.
[2]†Hear the voice of my pleas for mercy,
when I cry to you for help,
when I lift up my hands toward your most holy sanctuary. [1] [3]‡Do not drag me off with the wicked, with the workers of evil,
who speak peace with their neighbors
while evil is in their hearts.
[4]Give to them according to their work and according to the evil of their deeds;
give to them according to the work of their hands;
render them their due reward.
[5]Because they do not regard the works of the LORD
or the work of his hands,
he will tear them down and build them up no more.
[6]†Blessed be the LORD!
For he has heard the voice of my pleas for mercy.
[7]The LORD is my strength and my shield;
in him my heart trusts, and I am helped;
my heart exults,
and with my song I give thanks to him.
[8]†The LORD is the strength of his people; [2]
he is the saving refuge of his anointed.
[9]†Oh, save your people and bless your heritage!
Be their shepherd and carry them forever.

Ascribe to the LORD Glory

A Psalm of David.

PSALM 29 ‡†Ascribe to the LORD, O heavenly beings, [1]
ascribe to the LORD glory and strength.
[2]Ascribe to the LORD the glory due his name;
worship the LORD in the splendor of holiness. [2] [3]‡†The voice of the LORD is over the waters;
the God of glory thunders,
the LORD, over many waters.
[4]The voice of the LORD is powerful;
the voice of the LORD is full of majesty.
[5]†The voice of the LORD breaks the cedars;
the LORD breaks the cedars of Lebanon.
[6]†He makes Lebanon to skip like a calf,
and Sirion like a young wild ox.
[7]The voice of the LORD flashes forth flames of fire.
[8]†The voice of the LORD shakes the wilderness;
the LORD shakes the wilderness of Kadesh.
[9]The voice of the LORD makes the deer give birth [3]
and strips the forests bare,
and in his temple all cry, “Glory!”
[10]†The LORD sits enthroned over the flood;
the LORD sits enthroned as king forever.
[11]May the LORD give strength to his people!
May the LORD bless [4] his people with peace!

Joy Comes with the Morning

A Psalm of David. A song at the dedication of the temple.

PSALM 30 ‡I will extol you, O LORD, for you have drawn me up and have not let my foes rejoice over me.
[2]‡O LORD my God, I cried to you for help,
and you have healed me.
[3]O LORD, you have brought up my soul from Sheol;
you restored me to life from among those who go down to the pit. [1] [4]Sing praises to the LORD, O you his saints, and give thanks to his holy name. [2] [5]†For his anger is but for a moment, and his favor is for a lifetime. [3]
Weeping may tarry for the night,
but joy comes with the morning.
[6]†As for me, I said in my prosperity,
“I shall never be moved.”
[7]By your favor, O LORD,
you made my mountain stand strong;
you hid your face;
I was dismayed.
[8]‡To you, O LORD, I cry,
and to the Lord I plead for mercy:
[9]“What profit is there in my death, [4]
if I go down to the pit? [5]
Will the dust praise you?
Will it tell of your faithfulness?
[10]Hear, O LORD, and be merciful to me!
O LORD, be my helper!”
[11]You have turned for me my mourning into dancing;
you have loosed my sackcloth
and clothed me with gladness, [12]†that my glory may sing your praise and not be silent.
O LORD my God, I will give thanks to you forever!

Into Your Hand I Commit My Spirit

To the choirmaster. A Psalm of David.

PSALM 31 ‡In you, O LORD, do I take refuge;
let me never be put to shame;
in your righteousness deliver me!
[2]†Incline your ear to me;
rescue me speedily!
Be a rock of refuge for me,
a strong fortress to save me!
[3]†For you are my rock and my fortress;
and for your name's sake you lead me and guide me;
[4]you take me out of the net they have hidden for me,
for you are my refuge.
[5]†Into your hand I commit my spirit;
you have redeemed me, O LORD, faithful God.
[6]†I hate [1] those who pay regard to worthless idols,
but I trust in the LORD.
[7]I will rejoice and be glad in your steadfast love,
because you have seen my affliction;
you have known the distress of my soul,
[8]and you have not delivered me into the hand of the enemy;
you have set my feet in a broad place.
[9]‡Be gracious to me, O LORD, for I am in distress;
my eye is wasted from grief;
my soul and my body also.
[10]For my life is spent with sorrow,
and my years with sighing;
my strength fails because of my iniquity,
and my bones waste away.
[11]†Because of all my adversaries I have become a reproach, especially to my neighbors,
and an object of dread to my acquaintances;
those who see me in the street flee from me.
[12]I have been forgotten like one who is dead;
I have become like a broken vessel.
[13]†For I hear the whispering of many—terror on every side!—
as they scheme together against me,
as they plot to take my life.

[14]But I trust in you, O LORD;
I say, “You are my God.”
[15]My times are in your hand;
rescue me from the hand of my enemies and from my persecutors!
[16]†Make your face shine on your servant;
save me in your steadfast love!
[17]†O LORD, let me not be put to shame,
for I call upon you;
let the wicked be put to shame;
let them go silently to Sheol.
[18]†Let the lying lips be mute, which speak insolently against the righteous
in pride and contempt.
[19]†Oh, how abundant is your goodness, which you have stored up for those who fear you
and worked for those who take refuge in you,
in the sight of the children of mankind!
[20]In the cover of your presence you hide them
from the plots of men;
you store them in your shelter
from the strife of tongues.
[21]Blessed be the LORD,
for he has wondrously shown his steadfast love to me when I was in a besieged city.
[22]I had said in my alarm, [2]
“I am cut off from your sight.”
But you heard the voice of my pleas for mercy
when I cried to you for help.
[23]†Love the LORD, all you his saints!
The LORD preserves the faithful
but abundantly repays the one who acts in pride.
[24]†Be strong, and let your heart take courage, all you who wait for the LORD!

Blessed Are the Forgiven

A Maskil [1] of David.

PSALM 32 ‡‡Blessed is the one whose transgression is forgiven, whose sin is covered.
[2]Blessed is the man against whom the LORD counts no iniquity,
and in whose spirit there is no deceit.
[3]‡For when I kept silent, my bones wasted away through my groaning all day long.
[4]For day and night your hand was heavy upon me;
my strength was dried up [2] as by the heat of summer. Selah [5]†I acknowledged my sin to you, and I did not cover my iniquity;
I said, “I will confess my transgressions to the LORD,”
and you forgave the iniquity of my sin. Selah [6]†Therefore let everyone who is godly offer prayer to you at a time when you may be found;
surely in the rush of great waters,
they shall not reach him.
[7]You are a hiding place for me;
you preserve me from trouble;
you surround me with shouts of deliverance. Selah
[8]†I will instruct you and teach you in the way you should go;
I will counsel you with my eye upon you.
[9]†Be not like a horse or a mule, without understanding, which must be curbed with bit and bridle,
or it will not stay near you.
[10]Many are the sorrows of the wicked,
but steadfast love surrounds the one who trusts in the LORD.
[11]Be glad in the LORD, and rejoice, O righteous, and shout for joy, all you upright in heart!

The Steadfast Love of the LORD

PSALM 33 ‡†Shout for joy in the LORD, O you righteous!
Praise befits the upright.
[2]Give thanks to the LORD with the lyre;
make melody to him with the harp of ten strings!
[3]†Sing to him a new song;
play skillfully on the strings, with loud shouts.
[4]For the word of the LORD is upright,
and all his work is done in faithfulness.
[5]He loves righteousness and justice;
the earth is full of the steadfast love of the LORD.
[6]‡†By the word of the LORD the heavens were made,
and by the breath of his mouth all their host.
[7]†He gathers the waters of the sea as a heap;
he puts the deeps in storehouses.
[8]Let all the earth fear the LORD;
let all the inhabitants of the world stand in awe of him!
[9]For he spoke, and it came to be;
he commanded, and it stood firm.
[10]‡The LORD brings the counsel of the nations to nothing;
he frustrates the plans of the peoples.
[11]The counsel of the LORD stands forever,
the plans of his heart to all generations.
[12]Blessed is the nation whose God is the LORD,
the people whom he has chosen as his heritage!
[13]The LORD looks down from heaven;
he sees all the children of man;
[14]from where he sits enthroned he looks out on all the inhabitants of the earth, [15]†he who fashions the hearts of them all and observes all their deeds.
[16]‡The king is not saved by his great army;
a warrior is not delivered by his great strength.
[17]The war horse is a false hope for salvation,

and by its great might it cannot rescue.
18Behold, the eye of the LORD is on those who fear him,
on those who hope in his steadfast love, 19that he may deliver their soul from death and keep them alive in famine.
20Our soul waits for the LORD;
he is our help and our shield.
21For our heart is glad in him,
because we trust in his holy name.
22Let your steadfast love, O LORD, be upon us,
even as we hope in you.

Taste and See That the LORD Is Good

[1] Of David, when he changed his behavior before Abimelech, so that he drove him out, and he went away.

PSALM 34 ‡‡I will bless the LORD at all times;
his praise shall continually be in my mouth.
[2]†My soul makes its boast in the LORD;
let the humble hear and be glad.
[3]Oh, magnify the LORD with me,
and let us exalt his name together!
[4]I sought the LORD, and he answered me
and delivered me from all my fears.
[5]Those who look to him are radiant,
and their faces shall never be ashamed.
[6]This poor man cried, and the LORD heard him
and saved him out of all his troubles.
[7]†The angel of the LORD encamps around those who fear him, and delivers them.
[8]Oh, taste and see that the LORD is good!
Blessed is the man who takes refuge in him!
[9]Oh, fear the LORD, you his saints, for those who fear him have no lack!
[10]The young lions suffer want and hunger;
but those who seek the LORD lack no good thing.
[11]†Come, O children, listen to me;
I will teach you the fear of the LORD.
[12]‡What man is there who desires life and loves many days, that he may see good?
[13]Keep your tongue from evil and your lips from speaking deceit.
[14]†Turn away from evil and do good;
seek peace and pursue it.
[15]The eyes of the LORD are toward the righteous and his ears toward their cry.
[16]The face of the LORD is against those who do evil,

to cut off the memory of them from the earth.
[17]When the righteous cry for help, the LORD hears and delivers them out of all their troubles.
[18]†The LORD is near to the brokenhearted and saves the crushed in spirit.
[19]‡Many are the afflictions of the righteous,
but the LORD delivers him out of them all.
[20]He keeps all his bones;
not one of them is broken.
[21]Affliction will slay the wicked,
and those who hate the righteous will be condemned.
[22]The LORD redeems the life of his servants;
none of those who take refuge in him will be condemned.

Great Is the LORD

Of David.

PSALM 35 ‡†Contend, O LORD, with those who contend with me;
fight against those who fight against me!
[2]Take hold of shield and buckler and rise for my help!
[3]†Draw the spear and javelin [1]
against my pursuers!
Say to my soul,
“I am your salvation!”
[4]‡Let them be put to shame and dishonor who seek after my life!
Let them be turned back and disappointed who devise evil against me!
[5]Let them be like chaff before the wind,
with the angel of the LORD driving them away!
[6]Let their way be dark and slippery,
with the angel of the LORD pursuing them!
[7]†For without cause they hid their net for me;
without cause they dug a pit for my life. [2] [8]Let destruction come upon him when he does not know it!
And let the net that he hid ensnare him;
let him fall into it—to his destruction!
[9]Then my soul will rejoice in the LORD, exulting in his salvation.
[10]†All my bones shall say, “O LORD, who is like you, delivering the poor
from him who is too strong for him,
the poor and needy from him who robs him?”
[11]‡Malicious [3] witnesses rise up;
they ask me of things that I do not know.
[12]They repay me evil for good;
my soul is bereft. [4]
[13]But I, when they were sick—
I wore sackcloth;
I afflicted myself with fasting;
I prayed with head bowed [5] on my chest.
[14]I went about as though I grieved for my friend or my brother;

as one who laments his mother,
I bowed down in mourning.
[15]But at my stumbling they rejoiced and gathered;
they gathered together against me;
wretches whom I did not know
tore at me without ceasing; [16]†like profane mockers at a feast, [6]
they gnash at me with their teeth.
[17]†How long, O Lord, will you look on?
Rescue me from their destruction,
my precious life from the lions!
[18]I will thank you in the great congregation;
in the mighty throng I will praise you.
[19]†Let not those rejoice over me who are wrongfully my foes, and let not those wink the eye
who hate me without cause.
[20]For they do not speak peace,
but against those who are quiet in the land
they devise words of deceit.
[21]‡†They open wide their mouths against me;
they say, “Aha, Aha!
Our eyes have seen it!”
[22]You have seen, O LORD; be not silent!
O Lord, be not far from me!
[23]†Awake and rouse yourself for my vindication, for my cause, my God and my Lord!
[24]Vindicate me, O LORD, my God, according to your righteousness,
and let them not rejoice over me!
[25]Let them not say in their hearts,
“Aha, our heart's desire!”
Let them not say, “We have swallowed him up.”
[26]Let them be put to shame and disappointed altogether who rejoice at my calamity!
Let them be clothed with shame and dishonor who magnify themselves against me!

[27][†]Let those who delight in my righteousness shout for joy and be glad and say evermore, “Great is the LORD,
who delights in the welfare of his servant!”
[28]Then my tongue shall tell of your righteousness and of your praise all the day long.

How Precious Is Your Steadfast Love

To the choirmaster. Of David, the servant of the LORD.

PSALM 36 ‡†Transgression speaks to the wicked deep in his heart; [1]
there is no fear of God
before his eyes.
[2]†For he flatters himself in his own eyes that his iniquity cannot be found out and hated.
[3]‡The words of his mouth are trouble and deceit;
he has ceased to act wisely and do good.
[4]He plots trouble while on his bed;
he sets himself in a way that is not good;
he does not reject evil.
[5]‡Your steadfast love, O LORD, extends to the heavens,
your faithfulness to the clouds.
[6]Your righteousness is like the mountains of God;
your judgments are like the great deep;
man and beast you save, O LORD.
[7]†How precious is your steadfast love, O God!
The children of mankind take refuge in the shadow of your wings.
[8]They feast on the abundance of your house,
and you give them drink from the river of your delights.
[9]†For with you is the fountain of life;
in your light do we see light.
[10]Oh, continue your steadfast love to those who know you,
and your righteousness to the upright of heart!
[11]†Let not the foot of arrogance come upon me,
nor the hand of the wicked drive me away.
[12]†There the evildoers lie fallen;
they are thrust down, unable to rise.

He Will Not Forsake His Saints

[1] Of David.

PSALM 37 ‡Fret not yourself because of evildoers;
be not envious of wrongdoers!
[2]†For they will soon fade like the grass and wither like the green herb.
[3]Trust in the LORD, and do good;
dwell in the land and befriend faithfulness. [2] [4]Delight yourself in the LORD, and he will give you the desires of your heart.
[5]Commit your way to the LORD;
trust in him, and he will act.
[6]He will bring forth your righteousness as the light,
and your justice as the noonday.
[7]‡Be still before the LORD and wait patiently for him;
fret not yourself over the one who prospers in his way,
over the man who carries out evil devices!
[8]Refrain from anger, and forsake wrath!
Fret not yourself; it tends only to evil.
[9]For the evildoers shall be cut off,
but those who wait for the LORD shall inherit the land.
[10]†In just a little while, the wicked will be no more;
though you look carefully at his place, he will not be there.
[11]But the meek shall inherit the land and delight themselves in abundant peace.
[12]The wicked plots against the righteous and gnashes his teeth at him, [13]but the Lord laughs at the wicked,
for he sees that his day is coming.
[14]The wicked draw the sword and bend their bows to bring down the poor and needy,
to slay those whose way is upright;
[15]their sword shall enter their own heart,
and their bows shall be broken.

[16]Better is the little that the righteous has than the abundance of many wicked.
[17]‡For the arms of the wicked shall be broken,
but the LORD upholds the righteous.
[18]‡The LORD knows the days of the blameless, and their heritage will remain forever;
[19]they are not put to shame in evil times;
in the days of famine they have abundance.
[20]But the wicked will perish;
the enemies of the LORD are like the glory of the pastures;
they vanish—like smoke they vanish away.
[21]‡The wicked borrows but does not pay back,
but the righteous is generous and gives;
[22]for those blessed by the LORD [3] shall inherit the land,
but those cursed by him shall be cut off.
[23]The steps of a man are established by the LORD,
when he delights in his way;
[24]‡though he fall, he shall not be cast headlong,
for the LORD upholds his hand.
[25]I have been young, and now am old,
yet I have not seen the righteous forsaken or his children begging for bread.
[26]He is ever lending generously,
and his children become a blessing.
[27]Turn away from evil and do good;
so shall you dwell forever.
[28]For the LORD loves justice;
he will not forsake his saints.
They are preserved forever,
but the children of the wicked shall be cut off.
[29]The righteous shall inherit the land and dwell upon it forever.
[30]The mouth of the righteous utters wisdom,
and his tongue speaks justice.
[31]‡The law of his God is in his heart;
his steps do not slip.
[32]The wicked watches for the righteous and seeks to put him to death.

[33]The LORD will not abandon him to his power or let him be condemned when he is brought to trial.
[34]Wait for the LORD and keep his way,
and he will exalt you to inherit the land;
you will look on when the wicked are cut off.
[35]I have seen a wicked, ruthless man, spreading himself like a green laurel tree. [4] [36]But he passed away, [5] and behold, he was no more;
though I sought him, he could not be found.
[37]Mark the blameless and behold the upright,
for there is a future for the man of peace.
[38]†But transgressors shall be altogether destroyed;
the future of the wicked shall be cut off.
[39]†The salvation of the righteous is from the LORD;
he is their stronghold in the time of trouble.
[40]The LORD helps them and delivers them;
he delivers them from the wicked and saves them,
because they take refuge in him.

Do Not Forsake Me, O LORD

A Psalm of David, for the memorial offering.

PSALM 38 ‡†O LORD, rebuke me not in your anger,
nor discipline me in your wrath!
[2]†For your arrows have sunk into me,
and your hand has come down on me.
[3]There is no soundness in my flesh
because of your indignation;
there is no health in my bones
because of my sin.
[4]For my iniquities have gone over my head;
like a heavy burden, they are too heavy for me.
[5]†My wounds stink and fester
because of my foolishness, [6]I am utterly bowed down and prostrate;
all the day I go about mourning.
[7]For my sides are filled with burning,
and there is no soundness in my flesh.
[8]I am feeble and crushed;
I groan because of the tumult of my heart.
[9]O Lord, all my longing is before you;
my sighing is not hidden from you.
[10]My heart throbs; my strength fails me,
and the light of my eyes—it also has gone from me.
[11]†My friends and companions stand aloof from my plague,
and my nearest kin stand far off.
[12]Those who seek my life lay their snares;
those who seek my hurt speak of ruin
and meditate treachery all day long.
[13]‡But I am like a deaf man; I do not hear,
like a mute man who does not open his mouth.
[14]I have become like a man who does not hear,
and in whose mouth are no rebukes.
[15]But for you, O LORD, do I wait;
it is you, O Lord my God, who will answer.
[16]For I said, “Only let them not rejoice over me, who boast against me when my foot slips!”
[17]For I am ready to fall, and my pain is ever before me.

[18]I confess my iniquity;
I am sorry for my sin.
[19]‡But my foes are vigorous, they are mighty,
and many are those who hate me wrongfully.
[20]Those who render me evil for good accuse me because I follow after good.
[21]Do not forsake me, O LORD!
O my God, be not far from me!
[22]Make haste to help me,
O Lord, my salvation!

What Is the Measure of My Days?

To the choirmaster: to Jeduthun. A Psalm of David.

PSALM 39 ‡†I said, “I will guard my ways,
that I may not sin with my tongue;
I will guard my mouth with a muzzle,
so long as the wicked are in my presence.”
[2]†I was mute and silent;
I held my peace to no avail,
and my distress grew worse.
[3]†My heart became hot within me.
As I mused, the fire burned;
then I spoke with my tongue:
[4]†“O LORD, make me know my end and what is the measure of my days;
let me know how fleeting I am!
[5]†Behold, you have made my days a few handbreadths,
and my lifetime is as nothing before you.
Surely all mankind stands as a mere breath! Selah [6]†Surely a man goes about as a shadow!
Surely for nothing [1] they are in turmoil;
man heaps up wealth and does not know who will gather!
[7]“And now, O Lord, for what do I wait?
My hope is in you.
[8]Deliver me from all my transgressions.
Do not make me the scorn of the fool!
[9]†I am mute; I do not open my mouth,
for it is you who have done it.
[10]Remove your stroke from me;
I am spent by the hostility of your hand.
[11]†When you discipline a man with rebukes for sin,
you consume like a moth what is dear to him;
surely all mankind is a mere breath! Selah [12]†“Hear my prayer, O LORD, and give ear to my cry;
hold not your peace at my tears!
For I am a sojourner with you,
a guest, like all my fathers.
[13]†Look away from me, that I may smile again, before I depart and am no more!”

My Help and My Deliverer

To the choirmaster. A Psalm of David.

PSALM 40 ‡I waited patiently for the LORD;
he inclined to me and heard my cry.
[2]†He drew me up from the pit of destruction,
out of the miry bog,
and set my feet upon a rock,
making my steps secure.
[3]‡†He put a new song in my mouth,
a song of praise to our God.
Many will see and fear,
and put their trust in the LORD.
[4]Blessed is the man who makes the LORD his trust,
who does not turn to the proud,
to those who go astray after a lie!
[5]†You have multiplied, O LORD my God, your wondrous deeds and your thoughts toward us;
none can compare with you!
I will proclaim and tell of them,
yet they are more than can be told.
[6]‡†In sacrifice and offering you have not delighted,
but you have given me an open ear. [1]
Burnt offering and sin offering you have not required.
[7]†Then I said, “Behold, I have come;
in the scroll of the book it is written of me:
[8]I delight to do your will, O my God;
your law is within my heart.”
[9]†I have told the glad news of deliverance [2]
in the great congregation;
behold, I have not restrained my lips,
as you know, O LORD.
[10]†I have not hidden your deliverance within my heart;
I have spoken of your faithfulness and your salvation;
I have not concealed your steadfast love and your faithfulness from the great congregation.
[11]As for you, O LORD, you will not restrain your mercy from me;

your steadfast love and your faithfulness will ever preserve me!
[12]†For evils have encompassed me beyond number;
my iniquities have overtaken me,
and I cannot see;
they are more than the hairs of my head;
my heart fails me.
[13]†Be pleased, O LORD, to deliver me!
O LORD, make haste to help me!
[14]Let those be put to shame and disappointed altogether who seek to snatch away my life;
let those be turned back and brought to dishonor
who delight in my hurt!
[15]Let those be appalled because of their shame who say to me, “Aha, Aha!” [16]But may all who seek you rejoice and be glad in you;
may those who love your salvation
say continually, “Great is the LORD!” [17]As for me, I am poor and needy,
but the Lord takes thought for me.
You are my help and my deliverer;
do not delay, O my God!

O LORD, Be Gracious to Me

To the choirmaster. A Psalm of David.

PSALM 41 ‡†Blessed is the one who considers the poor! [1]
In the day of trouble the LORD delivers him;
[2]†the LORD protects him and keeps him alive;
he is called blessed in the land;
you do not give him up to the will of his enemies.
[3]†The LORD sustains him on his sickbed;
in his illness you restore him to full health. [2] [4]†As for me, I said, “O LORD, be gracious to me;
heal me, [3] for I have sinned against you!”
[5]My enemies say of me in malice,
“When will he die, and his name perish?”
[6]†And when one comes to see me, he utters empty words, while his heart gathers iniquity;
when he goes out, he tells it abroad.
[7]All who hate me whisper together about me;
they imagine the worst for me. [4] [8]They say, “A deadly thing is poured out [5] on him;
he will not rise again from where he lies.” [9]†Even my close friend in whom I trusted, who ate my bread, has lifted his heel against me.
[10]But you, O LORD, be gracious to me,
and raise me up, that I may repay them!
[11]By this I know that you delight in me:
my enemy will not shout in triumph over me.
[12]But you have upheld me because of my integrity,
and set me in your presence forever.
[13]†Blessed be the LORD, the God of Israel,
from everlasting to everlasting!
Amen and Amen.

Book Two

Why Are You Cast Down, O My Soul?

To the choirmaster. A Maskil [1] of the Sons of Korah.

PSALM 42 ‡†As a deer pants for flowing streams,
so pants my soul for you, O God.
[2]†My soul thirsts for God,
for the living God.
When shall I come and appear before God? [2] [3]My tears have been my food
day and night,
while they say to me all the day long,
“Where is your God?”
[4]†These things I remember,
as I pour out my soul:
how I would go with the throng and lead them in procession to the house of God with glad shouts and songs of praise,
a multitude keeping festival.
[5]†Why are you cast down, O my soul,
and why are you in turmoil within me?
Hope in God; for I shall again praise him,
my salvation [3] [6]†and my God.
My soul is cast down within me;
therefore I remember you from the land of Jordan and of Hermon, from Mount Mizar.
[7]†Deep calls to deep
at the roar of your waterfalls;
all your breakers and your waves
have gone over me.
[8]†By day the Lord commands his steadfast love,
and at night his song is with me,
a prayer to the God of my life.
[9]I say to God, my rock:
“Why have you forgotten me?

Why do I go mourning
        because of the oppression of the enemy?”
10As with a deadly wound in my bones,
        my adversaries taunt me,
while they say to me all the day long,
        “Where is your God?”
11Why are you cast down, O my soul,
        and why are you in turmoil within me?
Hope in God; for I shall again praise him,
        my salvation and my God.

Send Out Your Light and Your Truth

PSALM 43 ‡†Vindicate me, O God, and defend my cause against an ungodly people, from the deceitful and unjust man
deliver me!
[2]†For you are the God in whom I take refuge;
why have you rejected me?
Why do I go about mourning
because of the oppression of the enemy?
[3]†Send out your light and your truth;
let them lead me;
let them bring me to your holy hill
and to your dwelling!
[4]Then I will go to the altar of God,
to God my exceeding joy,
and I will praise you with the lyre,
O God, my God.
[5]†Why are you cast down, O my soul,
and why are you in turmoil within me?
Hope in God; for I shall again praise him,
my salvation and my God.

Come to Our Help

To the choirmaster. A Maskil [1] of the Sons of Korah.

PSALM 44 ‡†O God, we have heard with our ears,
our fathers have told us,
what deeds you performed in their days,
in the days of old:
[2]†you with your own hand drove out the nations,
but them you planted;
you afflicted the peoples,
but them you set free;
[3]†for not by their own sword did they win the land,
nor did their own arm save them,
but your right hand and your arm,
and the light of your face,
for you delighted in them.
[4]†You are my King, O God;
ordain salvation for Jacob!
[5]‡Through you we push down our foes;
through your name we tread down those who rise up against us.
[6]For not in my bow do I trust,
nor can my sword save me.
[7]But you have saved us from our foes
and have put to shame those who hate us.
[8]In God we have boasted continually, and we will give thanks to your name forever. Selah [9]†But you have rejected us and disgraced us and have not gone out with our armies.
[10]You have made us turn back from the foe,
and those who hate us have gotten spoil.
[11]‡You have made us like sheep for slaughter and have scattered us among the nations.
[12]You have sold your people for a trifle, demanding no high price for them.
[13]You have made us the taunt of our neighbors,

the derision and scorn of those around us.
[14]You have made us a byword among the nations,
a laughingstock [2] among the peoples.
[15]All day long my disgrace is before me,
and shame has covered my face [16]at the sound of the taunter and reviler, at the sight of the enemy and the avenger.
[17]‡All this has come upon us,
though we have not forgotten you,
and we have not been false to your covenant.
[18]Our heart has not turned back,
nor have our steps departed from your way;
[19]yet you have broken us in the place of jackals and covered us with the shadow of death.
[20]If we had forgotten the name of our God or spread out our hands to a foreign god, [21]would not God discover this?
For he knows the secrets of the heart.
[22]†Yet for your sake we are killed all the day long;
we are regarded as sheep to be slaughtered.
[23]†Awake! Why are you sleeping, O Lord?
Rouse yourself! Do not reject us forever!
[24]Why do you hide your face?
Why do you forget our affliction and oppression?
[25]For our soul is bowed down to the dust;
our belly clings to the ground.
[26]†Rise up; come to our help!
Redeem us for the sake of your steadfast love!

Your Throne, O God, Is Forever

To the choirmaster: according to Lilies. A Maskil [1] of the Sons of Korah; a love song.

PSALM 45 ‡†My heart overflows with a pleasing theme;
I address my verses to the king;
my tongue is like the pen of a ready scribe.
[2]†You are the most handsome of the sons of men;
grace is poured upon your lips;
therefore God has blessed you forever.
[3]‡Gird your sword on your thigh, O mighty one,
in your splendor and majesty!
[4]In your majesty ride out victoriously for the cause of truth and meekness and righteousness;
let your right hand teach you awesome deeds!
[5]Your arrows are sharp
in the heart of the king's enemies;
the peoples fall under you.
[6]‡Your throne, O God, is forever and ever.
The scepter of your kingdom is a scepter of uprightness;
[7]you have loved righteousness and hated wickedness.
Therefore God, your God, has anointed you with the oil of gladness beyond your companions;
[8]your robes are all fragrant with myrrh and aloes and cassia.
From ivory palaces stringed instruments make you glad;
[9]†daughters of kings are among your ladies of honor;
at your right hand stands the queen in gold of Ophir.
[10]‡Hear, O daughter, and consider, and incline your ear:
forget your people and your father's house, [11]and the king will desire your beauty.
Since he is your lord, bow to him.
[12]The people [2] of Tyre will seek your favor with gifts,
the richest of the people. [3]
[13]All glorious is the princess in her chamber, with robes interwoven with gold.

[14]In many-colored robes she is led to the king,
with her virgin companions following behind her.
[15]With joy and gladness they are led along
as they enter the palace of the king.
[16]†In place of your fathers shall be your sons;
you will make them princes in all the earth.
[17]I will cause your name to be remembered in all generations;
therefore nations will praise you forever and ever.

God Is Our Fortress

To the choirmaster. Of the Sons of Korah. According to Alamoth. [1] A Song.

PSALM 46 ‡God is our refuge and strength,
a very present [2] help in trouble.
[2]†Therefore we will not fear though the earth gives way, though the mountains be moved into the heart of the sea, [3]†though its waters roar and foam,
though the mountains tremble at its swelling. Selah [4]†There is a river whose streams make glad the city of God, the holy habitation of the Most High.
[5]‡God is in the midst of her; she shall not be moved;
God will help her when morning dawns.
[6]The nations rage, the kingdoms totter;
he utters his voice, the earth melts.
[7]†The LORD of hosts is with us;
the God of Jacob is our fortress. Selah [8]†Come, behold the works of the LORD,
how he has brought desolations on the earth.
[9]He makes wars cease to the end of the earth;
he breaks the bow and shatters the spear;
he burns the chariots with fire.
[10]†“Be still, and know that I am God.
I will be exalted among the nations,
I will be exalted in the earth!”
[11]The LORD of hosts is with us;
the God of Jacob is our fortress. Selah

God Is King over All the Earth

To the choirmaster. A Psalm of the Sons of Korah.

PSALM 47 ‡†Clap your hands, all peoples!
Shout to God with loud songs of joy!
[2]For the LORD, the Most High, is to be feared,
a great king over all the earth.
[3]†He subdued peoples under us,
and nations under our feet.
[4]†He chose our heritage for us,
the pride of Jacob whom he loves. Selah [5]†God has gone up with a shout,
the LORD with the sound of a trumpet.
[6]Sing praises to God, sing praises!
Sing praises to our King, sing praises!
[7]For God is the King of all the earth;
sing praises with a psalm! [1]
[8]God reigns over the nations;
God sits on his holy throne.
[9]†The princes of the peoples gather as the people of the God of Abraham.
For the shields of the earth belong to God;
he is highly exalted!

Zion, the City of Our God

A Song. A Psalm of the Sons of Korah.

PSALM 48 ‡Great is the LORD and greatly to be praised
in the city of our God!
His holy mountain, [2]†beautiful in elevation,
is the joy of all the earth,
Mount Zion, in the far north,
the city of the great King.
[3]†Within her citadels God has made himself known as a fortress.
[4]‡For behold, the kings assembled;
they came on together.
[5]As soon as they saw it, they were astounded;
they were in panic; they took to flight.
[6]Trembling took hold of them there, anguish as of a woman in labor.
[7]†By the east wind you shattered
the ships of Tarshish.
[8]†As we have heard, so have we seen in the city of the LORD of hosts,
in the city of our God,
which God will establish forever. Selah [9]We have thought on your steadfast love, O God, in the midst of your temple.
[10]As your name, O God,
so your praise reaches to the ends of the earth.
Your right hand is filled with righteousness.
[11]†Let Mount Zion be glad!
Let the daughters of Judah rejoice
because of your judgments!
[12]Walk about Zion, go around her,
number her towers,
[13]consider well her ramparts,
go through her citadels,
that you may tell the next generation [14]†that this is God,
our God forever and ever.
He will guide us forever. [1]

Why Should I Fear in Times of Trouble?

To the choirmaster. A Psalm of the Sons of Korah.

PSALM 49 ‡†Hear this, all peoples!
Give ear, all inhabitants of the world,
[2]†both low and high,
rich and poor together!
[3]‡My mouth shall speak wisdom;
the meditation of my heart shall be understanding.
[4]I will incline my ear to a proverb;
I will solve my riddle to the music of the lyre.
[5]†Why should I fear in times of trouble,
when the iniquity of those who cheat me surrounds me, [6]†those who trust in their wealth and boast of the abundance of their riches?
[7]‡Truly no man can ransom another,
or give to God the price of his life, [8]for the ransom of their life is costly
and can never suffice, [9]‡that he should live on forever
and never see the pit.
[10]For he sees that even the wise die;
the fool and the stupid alike must perish
and leave their wealth to others.
[11]Their graves are their homes forever, [1]
their dwelling places to all generations,
though they called lands by their own names.
[12]†Man in his pomp will not remain;
he is like the beasts that perish.
[13]This is the path of those who have foolish confidence;
yet after them people approve of their boasts. [2] Selah [14]†Like sheep they are appointed for Sheol;
death shall be their shepherd,
and the upright shall rule over them in the morning.
Their form shall be consumed in Sheol, with no place to dwell.
[15]†But God will ransom my soul from the power of Sheol, for he will receive me. Selah [16]Be not afraid when a man becomes rich,
when the glory of his house increases.
[17]†For when he dies he will carry nothing away;

his glory will not go down after him.
[18]For though, while he lives, he counts himself blessed —and though you get praise when you do well for yourself—[19]his soul will go to the generation of his fathers, who will never again see light.
[20]†Man in his pomp yet without understanding is like the beasts that perish.

God Himself Is Judge

A Psalm of Asaph.

PSALM 50 ‡†The Mighty One, God the LORD, speaks and summons the earth
from the rising of the sun to its setting.
[2]‡Out of Zion, the perfection of beauty,
God shines forth.
[3]Our God comes; he does not keep silence; [1]
before him is a devouring fire, around him a mighty tempest.
[4]‡He calls to the heavens above and to the earth, that he may judge his people:
[5]†“Gather to me my faithful ones,
who made a covenant with me by sacrifice!”
[6]The heavens declare his righteousness, for God himself is judge! Selah [7]“Hear, O my people, and I will speak;
O Israel, I will testify against you.
I am God, your God.
[8]†Not for your sacrifices do I rebuke you;
your burnt offerings are continually before me.
[9]‡I will not accept a bull from your house or goats from your folds.
[10]For every beast of the forest is mine,
the cattle on a thousand hills.
[11]I know all the birds of the hills,
and all that moves in the field is mine.
[12]“If I were hungry, I would not tell you,
for the world and its fullness are mine.
[13]Do I eat the flesh of bulls or drink the blood of goats?
[14]†Offer to God a sacrifice of thanksgiving, [2]
and perform your vows to the Most High, [15]and call upon me in the day of trouble;
I will deliver you, and you shall glorify me.”
[16]‡But to the wicked God says:
“What right have you to recite my statutes or take my covenant on your lips?
[17]For you hate discipline,

and you cast my words behind you.
[18]If you see a thief, you are pleased with him,
and you keep company with adulterers.
[19]“You give your mouth free rein for evil,
and your tongue frames deceit.
[20]You sit and speak against your brother;
you slander your own mother's son.
[21]†These things you have done, and I have been silent;
you thought that I [3] was one like yourself.
But now I rebuke you and lay the charge before you.
[22]†“Mark this, then, you who forget God, lest I tear you apart, and there be none to deliver!
[23]†The one who offers thanksgiving as his sacrifice glorifies me;
to one who orders his way rightly
I will show the salvation of God!”

Create in Me a Clean Heart, O God

To the choirmaster. A Psalm of David, when Nathan the prophet went to him, after he had gone in to Bathsheba.

PSALM 51 ‡†Have mercy on me, [1] O God,
according to your steadfast love;
according to your abundant mercy
blot out my transgressions.
[2]Wash me thoroughly from my iniquity,
and cleanse me from my sin!
[3]For I know my transgressions, and my sin is ever before me.
[4]†Against you, you only, have I sinned and done what is evil in your sight,
so that you may be justified in your words and blameless in your judgment.
[5]†Behold, I was brought forth in iniquity,
and in sin did my mother conceive me.
[6]Behold, you delight in truth in the inward being,
and you teach me wisdom in the secret heart.
[7]†Purge me with hyssop, and I shall be clean;
wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow.
[8]†Let me hear joy and gladness;
let the bones that you have broken rejoice.
[9]Hide your face from my sins,
and blot out all my iniquities.
[10]Create in me a clean heart, O God,
and renew a right [2] spirit within me.
[11]†Cast me not away from your presence,
and take not your Holy Spirit from me.
[12]†Restore to me the joy of your salvation,
and uphold me with a willing spirit.
[13]Then I will teach transgressors your ways,
and sinners will return to you.
[14]Deliver me from bloodguiltiness, O God,
O God of my salvation,
and my tongue will sing aloud of your righteousness.
[15]O Lord, open my lips,
and my mouth will declare your praise.
[16]†For you will not delight in sacrifice, or I would give it;
you will not be pleased with a burnt offering.

[17]The sacrifices of God are a broken spirit;
a broken and contrite heart, O God, you will not despise.
[18]Do good to Zion in your good pleasure;
build up the walls of Jerusalem;
[19]then will you delight in right sacrifices,
in burnt offerings and whole burnt offerings;
then bulls will be offered on your altar.

The Steadfast Love of God Endures

To the choirmaster. A Maskil [1] of David, when Doeg, the Edomite, came and told Saul, "David has come to the house of Ahimelech."

PSALM 52 ‡†Why do you boast of evil, O mighty man?
The steadfast love of God endures all the day.
[2]Your tongue plots destruction,
like a sharp razor, you worker of deceit.
[3]You love evil more than good,
and lying more than speaking what is right. Selah
[4]You love all words that devour,
O deceitful tongue.
[5]†But God will break you down forever;
he will snatch and tear you from your tent;
he will uproot you from the land of the living. Selah [6]†The righteous shall see and fear, and shall laugh at him, saying,
[7]"See the man who would not make God his refuge,
but trusted in the abundance of his riches
and sought refuge in his own destruction!" [2] [8]†But I am like a green olive tree in the house of God.
I trust in the steadfast love of God
forever and ever.
[9]I will thank you forever,
because you have done it.
I will wait for your name, for it is good,
in the presence of the godly.

There Is None Who Does Good

To the choirmaster: according to Mahalath. A Maskil [1] of David.

PSALM 53 ‡‡The fool says in his heart, “There is no God.”
They are corrupt, doing abominable iniquity;
there is none who does good.
[2]†God looks down from heaven on the children of man
to see if there are any who understand, [2]
who seek after God.
[3]They have all fallen away;
together they have become corrupt;
there is none who does good,
not even one.
[4]Have those who work evil no knowledge,
who eat up my people as they eat bread,
and do not call upon God?
[5]†There they are, in great terror,
where there is no terror!
For God scatters the bones of him who encamps against you;
you put them to shame, for God has rejected them.
[6]Oh, that salvation for Israel would come out of Zion!
When God restores the fortunes of his people,
let Jacob rejoice, let Israel be glad.

The Lord Upholds My Life

To the choirmaster: with stringed instruments. A Maskil [1] of David, when the Ziphites went and told Saul, “Is not David hiding among us?”

PSALM 54 ‡†O God, save me by your name, and vindicate me by your might.
[2]†O God, hear my prayer;
give ear to the words of my mouth.
[3]†For strangers [2] have risen against me;
ruthless men seek my life;
they do not set God before themselves. Selah [4]Behold, God is my helper;
the Lord is the upholder of my life.
[5]†He will return the evil to my enemies;
in your faithfulness put an end to them.
[6]With a freewill offering I will sacrifice to you;
I will give thanks to your name, O LORD, for it is good.
[7]†For he has delivered me from every trouble,
and my eye has looked in triumph on my enemies.

Cast Your Burden on the LORD

To the choirmaster: with stringed instruments. A Maskil [1] of David.

PSALM 55 ‡Give ear to my prayer, O God,
and hide not yourself from my plea for mercy!
[2]Attend to me, and answer me;
I am restless in my complaint and I moan, [3]†because of the noise of the enemy,
because of the oppression of the wicked.
For they drop trouble upon me,
and in anger they bear a grudge against me.
[4]My heart is in anguish within me;
the terrors of death have fallen upon me.
[5]Fear and trembling come upon me,
and horror overwhelms me.
[6]†And I say, “Oh, that I had wings like a dove!
I would fly away and be at rest;
[7]yes, I would wander far away;
I would lodge in the wilderness; Selah
[8]I would hurry to find a shelter from the raging wind and tempest.”
[9]†Destroy, O Lord, divide their tongues;
for I see violence and strife in the city.
[10]Day and night they go around it on its walls,
and iniquity and trouble are within it; [11]ruin is in its midst;
oppression and fraud
do not depart from its marketplace.
[12]For it is not an enemy who taunts me—
then I could bear it;
it is not an adversary who deals insolently with me—
then I could hide from him.
[13]But it is you, a man, my equal,
my companion, my familiar friend.

[14]We used to take sweet counsel together;
within God's house we walked in the throng.
[15]†Let death steal over them;
let them go down to Sheol alive;
for evil is in their dwelling place and in their heart.
[16]But I call to God,
and the LORD will save me.
[17]Evening and morning and at noon
I utter my complaint and moan,
and he hears my voice.
[18]He redeems my soul in safety
from the battle that I wage,
for many are arrayed against me.
[19]†God will give ear and humble them,
he who is enthroned from of old, Selah
because they do not change and do not fear God.
[20]†My companion [2] stretched out his hand against his friends;
he violated his covenant.
[21]†His speech was smooth as butter,
yet war was in his heart;
his words were softer than oil,
yet they were drawn swords.
[22]†Cast your burden on the LORD,
and he will sustain you;
he will never permit
the righteous to be moved.
[23]†But you, O God, will cast them down into the pit of destruction;
men of blood and treachery shall not live out half their days.
But I will trust in you.

In God I Trust

To the choirmaster: according to The Dove on Far-off Terebinths. A Miktam [1] of David, when the Philistines seized him in Gath.

PSALM 56 ‡Be gracious to me, O God, for man tramples on me;
all day long an attacker oppresses me;
[2]my enemies trample on me all day long,
for many attack me proudly.
[3]†When I am afraid,
I put my trust in you.
[4]In God, whose word I praise,
in God I trust; I shall not be afraid.
What can flesh do to me?
[5]†All day long they injure my cause; [2]
all their thoughts are against me for evil.
[6]They stir up strife, they lurk;
they watch my steps,
as they have waited for my life.
[7]†For their crime will they escape?
In wrath cast down the peoples, O God!
[8]†You have kept count of my tossings; [3]
put my tears in your bottle.
Are they not in your book?
[9]Then my enemies will turn back in the day when I call.
This I know, that [4] God is for me.
[10]In God, whose word I praise,
in the LORD, whose word I praise,
[11]†in God I trust; I shall not be afraid.
What can man do to me?
[12]†I must perform my vows to you, O God;
I will render thank offerings to you.
[13]For you have delivered my soul from death,
yes, my feet from falling,
that I may walk before God

in the light of life.

Let Your Glory Be over All the Earth

To the choirmaster: according to Do Not Destroy. A Miktam [1] of David, when he fled from Saul, in the cave.

PSALM 57 ‡†Be merciful to me, O God, be merciful to me, for in you my soul takes refuge;
in the shadow of your wings I will take refuge,
till the storms of destruction pass by.
[2]†I cry out to God Most High,
to God who fulfills his purpose for me.
[3]He will send from heaven and save me;
he will put to shame him who tramples on me. Selah
God will send out his steadfast love and his faithfulness!
[4]†My soul is in the midst of lions;
I lie down amid fiery beasts—
the children of man, whose teeth are spears and arrows, whose tongues are sharp swords.
[5]†Be exalted, O God, above the heavens!
Let your glory be over all the earth!
[6]†They set a net for my steps;
my soul was bowed down.
They dug a pit in my way,
but they have fallen into it themselves. Selah [7]‡My heart is steadfast, O God, my heart is steadfast!
I will sing and make melody!
[8]†Awake, my glory! [2]
Awake, O harp and lyre!
I will awake the dawn!
[9]†I will give thanks to you, O Lord, among the peoples;
I will sing praises to you among the nations.
[10]†For your steadfast love is great to the heavens,
your faithfulness to the clouds.
[11]Be exalted, O God, above the heavens!
Let your glory be over all the earth!

God Who Judges the Earth

To the choirmaster: according to Do Not Destroy. A Miktam [1] of David.

PSALM 58 ‡†Do you indeed decree what is right, you gods? [2]
Do you judge the children of man uprightly?
[2]†No, in your hearts you devise wrongs;
your hands deal out violence on earth.
[3]†The wicked are estranged from the womb;
they go astray from birth, speaking lies.
[4]†They have venom like the venom of a serpent,
like the deaf adder that stops its ear,
[5]so that it does not hear the voice of charmers or of the cunning enchanter.
[6]†O God, break the teeth in their mouths;
tear out the fangs of the young lions, O LORD!
[7]†Let them vanish like water that runs away;
when he aims his arrows, let them be blunted.
[8]†Let them be like the snail that dissolves into slime,
like the stillborn child who never sees the sun.
[9]†Sooner than your pots can feel the heat of thorns, whether green or ablaze, may he sweep them away! [3] [10]†The righteous will rejoice when he sees the vengeance;
he will bathe his feet in the blood of the wicked.
[11]†Mankind will say, “Surely there is a reward for the righteous;
surely there is a God who judges on earth.”

Deliver Me from My Enemies

To the choirmaster: according to Do Not Destroy. A Miktam [1] of David, when Saul sent men to watch his house in order to kill him.

PSALM 59 ‡Deliver me from my enemies, O my God;
protect me from those who rise up against me;
[2]deliver me from those who work evil,
and save me from bloodthirsty men.
[3]For behold, they lie in wait for my life;
fierce men stir up strife against me.
For no transgression or sin of mine, O LORD,
[4]for no fault of mine, they run and make ready.
Awake, come to meet me, and see!
[5]†You, LORD God of hosts, are God of Israel.
Rouse yourself to punish all the nations;
spare none of those who treacherously plot evil. Selah [6]†Each evening they come back,
howling like dogs
and prowling about the city.
[7]†There they are, bellowing with their mouths with swords in their lips—
for "Who," they think, [2] "will hear us?"
[8]†But you, O LORD, laugh at them;
you hold all the nations in derision.
[9]O my Strength, I will watch for you,
for you, O God, are my fortress.
[10]My God in his steadfast love [3] will meet me;
God will let me look in triumph on my enemies.
[11]†Kill them not, lest my people forget;
make them totter [4] by your power and bring them down,
O Lord, our shield!
[12]For the sin of their mouths, the words of their lips,
let them be trapped in their pride.
For the cursing and lies that they utter,
[13]consume them in wrath;

consume them till they are no more,
that they may know that God rules over Jacob to the ends of the earth. Selah [14]Each evening they come back,
howling like dogs
and prowling about the city.
[15]They wander about for food and growl if they do not get their fill.
[16]But I will sing of your strength;
I will sing aloud of your steadfast love in the morning.
For you have been to me a fortress and a refuge in the day of my distress.
[17]O my Strength, I will sing praises to you,
for you, O God, are my fortress,
the God who shows me steadfast love.

He Will Tread Down Our Foes

To the choirmaster: according to Shushan Eduth. A Miktam [1] of David; for instruction; when he strove with Aram-naharaim and with Aram-zobah, and when Joab on his return struck down twelve thousand of Edom in the Valley of Salt.

PSALM 60 ‡O God, you have rejected us, broken our defenses;
you have been angry; oh, restore us.
[2]†You have made the land to quake; you have torn it open;
repair its breaches, for it totters.
[3]†You have made your people see hard things;
you have given us wine to drink that made us stagger.
[4]†You have set up a banner for those who fear you, that they may flee to it from the bow. [2] Selah
[5]†That your beloved ones may be delivered,
give salvation by your right hand and answer us!
[6]†God has spoken in his holiness: [3]
“With exultation I will divide up Shechem and portion out the Vale of Succoth.
[7]†Gilead is mine; Manasseh is mine;
Ephraim is my helmet;
Judah is my scepter.
[8]†Moab is my washbasin;
upon Edom I cast my shoe;
over Philistia I shout in triumph.” [4]
[9]Who will bring me to the fortified city?
Who will lead me to Edom?
[10]Have you not rejected us, O God?
You do not go forth, O God, with our armies.
[11]Oh, grant us help against the foe,
for vain is the salvation of man!
[12]†With God we shall do valiantly;
it is he who will tread down our foes.

Lead Me to the Rock

To the choirmaster: with stringed instruments. Of David.

PSALM 61 ‡Hear my cry, O God,
listen to my prayer;
[2]†from the end of the earth I call to you
when my heart is faint.
Lead me to the rock
that is higher than I,
[3]†for you have been my refuge,
a strong tower against the enemy.
[4]Let me dwell in your tent forever!
Let me take refuge under the shelter of your wings! Selah
[5]†For you, O God, have heard my vows;
you have given me the heritage of those who fear your name.
[6]†Prolong the life of the king;
may his years endure to all generations!
[7]†May he be enthroned forever before God;
appoint steadfast love and faithfulness to watch over him!
[8]†So will I ever sing praises to your name,
as I perform my vows day after day.

My Soul Waits for God Alone

To the choirmaster: according to Jeduthun. A Psalm of David.

PSALM 62 ††For God alone my soul waits in silence;
from him comes my salvation.
[2]†He only is my rock and my salvation,
my fortress; I shall not be greatly shaken.
[3]†How long will all of you attack a man to batter him,
like a leaning wall, a tottering fence?
[4]They only plan to thrust him down from his high position.
They take pleasure in falsehood.
They bless with their mouths,
but inwardly they curse. Selah [5]For God alone, O my soul, wait in silence, for my hope is from him.
[6]†He only is my rock and my salvation,
my fortress; I shall not be shaken.
[7]On God rests my salvation and my glory;
my mighty rock, my refuge is God.
[8]Trust in him at all times, O people;
pour out your heart before him;
God is a refuge for us. Selah [9]†Those of low estate are but a breath;
those of high estate are a delusion;
in the balances they go up;
they are together lighter than a breath.
[10]Put no trust in extortion;
set no vain hopes on robbery;
if riches increase, set not your heart on them.
[11]Once God has spoken;
twice have I heard this:
that power belongs to God,
[12]and that to you, O Lord, belongs steadfast love.
For you will render to a man
according to his work.

My Soul Thirsts for You

A Psalm of David, when he was in the wilderness of Judah.

PSALM 63 ‡†O God, you are my God; earnestly I seek you;
my soul thirsts for you;
my flesh faints for you,
as in a dry and weary land where there is no water.
[2]So I have looked upon you in the sanctuary, beholding your power and glory.
[3]†Because your steadfast love is better than life,
my lips will praise you.
[4]†So I will bless you as long as I live;
in your name I will lift up my hands.
[5]†My soul will be satisfied as with fat and rich food,
and my mouth will praise you with joyful lips, [6]when I remember you upon my bed,
and meditate on you in the watches of the night;
[7]for you have been my help,
and in the shadow of your wings I will sing for joy.
[8]†My soul clings to you;
your right hand upholds me.
[9]†But those who seek to destroy my life shall go down into the depths of the earth; [10]†they shall be given over to the power of the sword;
they shall be a portion for jackals.
[11]†But the king shall rejoice in God;
all who swear by him shall exult,
for the mouths of liars will be stopped.

Hide Me from the Wicked

To the choirmaster. A Psalm of David.

PSALM 64 ††Hear my voice, O God, in my complaint; preserve my life from dread of the enemy.
[2]Hide me from the secret plots of the wicked,
from the throng of evildoers, [3]†who whet their tongues like swords,
who aim bitter words like arrows, [4]†shooting from ambush at the blameless, shooting at him suddenly and without fear.
[5]†They hold fast to their evil purpose;
they talk of laying snares secretly, thinking, “Who can see them?”
[6]†They search out injustice, saying, “We have accomplished a diligent search.”
For the inward mind and heart of a man are deep!
[7]†But God shoots his arrow at them;
they are wounded suddenly.
[8]†They are brought to ruin, with their own tongues turned against them;
all who see them will wag their heads.
[9]†Then all mankind fears;
they tell what God has brought about and ponder what he has done.
[10]Let the righteous one rejoice in the LORD and take refuge in him!
Let all the upright in heart exult!

O God of Our Salvation

To the choirmaster. A Psalm of David. A Song.

PSALM 65 ‡†Praise is due to you, [1] O God, in Zion, and to you shall vows be performed.
[2]†O you who hear prayer,
to you shall all flesh come.
[3]†When iniquities prevail against me,
you atone for our transgressions.
[4]Blessed is the one you choose and bring near,
to dwell in your courts!
We shall be satisfied with the goodness of your house,
the holiness of your temple!
[5]†By awesome deeds you answer us with righteousness,
O God of our salvation,
the hope of all the ends of the earth
and of the farthest seas;
[6]the one who by his strength established the mountains, being girded with might;
[7]who stills the roaring of the seas,
the roaring of their waves,
the tumult of the peoples,
[8]†so that those who dwell at the ends of the earth are in awe at your signs.
You make the going out of the morning and the evening to shout for joy.
[9]You visit the earth and water it; [2]
you greatly enrich it;
the river of God is full of water;
you provide their grain,
for so you have prepared it.
[10]You water its furrows abundantly, settling its ridges,
softening it with showers,
and blessing its growth.
[11]†You crown the year with your bounty;
your wagon tracks overflow with abundance.
[12]The pastures of the wilderness overflow,
the hills gird themselves with joy, [13]the meadows clothe themselves with flocks,

the valleys deck themselves with grain,
they shout and sing together for joy.

How Awesome Are Your Deeds

To the choirmaster. A Song. A Psalm.

PSALM 66 ‡†Shout for joy to God, all the earth;
[2]sing the glory of his name;
give to him glorious praise!
[3]Say to God, “How awesome are your deeds!
So great is your power that your enemies come cringing to you.
[4]†All the earth worships you
and sings praises to you;
they sing praises to your name.” Selah [5]Come and see what God has done:
he is awesome in his deeds toward the children of man.
[6]†He turned the sea into dry land;
they passed through the river on foot.
There did we rejoice in him,
[7]who rules by his might forever, whose eyes keep watch on the nations—
let not the rebellious exalt themselves. Selah [8]Bless our God, O peoples;
let the sound of his praise be heard, [9]†who has kept our soul among the living and has not let our feet slip.
[10]†For you, O God, have tested us;
you have tried us as silver is tried.
[11]†You brought us into the net;
you laid a crushing burden on our backs;
[12]†you let men ride over our heads;
we went through fire and through water;
yet you have brought us out to a place of abundance.
[13]†I will come into your house with burnt offerings;
I will perform my vows to you,
[14]that which my lips uttered and my mouth promised when I was in trouble.
[15]I will offer to you burnt offerings of fattened animals,
with the smoke of the sacrifice of rams;
I will make an offering of bulls and goats. Selah [16]Come and hear, all you who fear God, and I will tell what he has done for my soul.
[17]I cried to him with my mouth,

and high praise was on [1] my tongue. [2] [18]If I had cherished iniquity in my heart,
the Lord would not have listened.
[19]But truly God has listened;
he has attended to the voice of my prayer.
[20]Blessed be God,
because he has not rejected my prayer or removed his steadfast love from me!

Make Your Face Shine upon Us

To the choirmaster: with stringed instruments. A Psalm. A Song.

PSALM 67 ‡†May God be gracious to us and bless us and make his face to shine upon us, Selah [2]that your way may be known on earth,
your saving power among all nations.
[3]†Let the peoples praise you, O God;
let all the peoples praise you!
[4]Let the nations be glad and sing for joy,
for you judge the peoples with equity and guide the nations upon earth. Selah
[5]Let the peoples praise you, O God;
let all the peoples praise you!
[6]The earth has yielded its increase;
God, our God, shall bless us.
[7]God shall bless us;
let all the ends of the earth fear him!

God Shall Scatter His Enemies

To the choirmaster. A Psalm of David. A Song.

PSALM 68 ‡†God shall arise, his enemies shall be scattered;
and those who hate him shall flee before him!
[2]As smoke is driven away, so you shall drive them away;
as wax melts before fire,
so the wicked shall perish before God!
[3]But the righteous shall be glad;
they shall exult before God;
they shall be jubilant with joy!
[4]†Sing to God, sing praises to his name;
lift up a song to him who rides through the deserts;
his name is the LORD;
exult before him!
[5]Father of the fatherless and protector of widows is God in his holy habitation.
[6]†God settles the solitary in a home;
he leads out the prisoners to prosperity,
but the rebellious dwell in a parched land.
[7]O God, when you went out before your people,
when you marched through the wilderness, Selah [8]the earth quaked, the heavens poured down rain, before God, the One of Sinai,
before God, the God of Israel.
[9]†Rain in abundance, O God, you shed abroad;
you restored your inheritance as it languished;
[10]your flock [1] found a dwelling in it;
in your goodness, O God, you provided for the needy.
[11]The Lord gives the word;
the women who announce the news are a great host:
[12]"The kings of the armies—they flee, they flee!"
The women at home divide the spoil—[13]though you men lie among the sheepfolds—
the wings of a dove covered with silver, its pinions with shimmering gold.
[14]†When the Almighty scatters kings there,
let snow fall on Zalmon.
[15]†O mountain of God, mountain of Bashan;
O many-peaked [2] mountain, mountain of Bashan!

[16]Why do you look with hatred, O many-peaked mountain, at the mount that God desired for his abode,
yes, where the LORD will dwell forever?
[17]†The chariots of God are twice ten thousand,
thousands upon thousands;
the Lord is among them; Sinai is now in the sanctuary.
[18]†You ascended on high,
leading a host of captives in your train and receiving gifts among men, even among the rebellious, that the LORD God may dwell there.
[19]Blessed be the Lord,
who daily bears us up;
God is our salvation. Selah [20]Our God is a God of salvation, and to GOD, the Lord, belong deliverances from death.
[21]But God will strike the heads of his enemies,
the hairy crown of him who walks in his guilty ways.
[22]†The Lord said,
“I will bring them back from Bashan,
I will bring them back from the depths of the sea, [23]that you may strike your feet in their blood, that the tongues of your dogs may have their portion from the foe.”
[24]†Your procession is [3] seen, O God,
the procession of my God, my King, into the sanctuary—[25]the singers in front, the musicians last, between them virgins playing tambourines:
[26]“Bless God in the great congregation, the LORD, O you [4] who are of Israel's fountain!” [27]†There is Benjamin, the least of them, in the lead,
the princes of Judah in their throng,
the princes of Zebulun, the princes of Naphtali.
[28]Summon your power, O God, [5]
the power, O God, by which you have worked for us.
[29]†Because of your temple at Jerusalem kings shall bear gifts to you.
[30]†Rebuke the beasts that dwell among the reeds,

the herd of bulls with the calves of the peoples.
Trample underfoot those who lust after tribute;
scatter the peoples who delight in war. [6] [31]Nobles shall come from Egypt;
Cush shall hasten to stretch out her hands to God.
[32]O kingdoms of the earth, sing to God;
sing praises to the Lord, Selah [33]to him who rides in the heavens, the ancient heavens;
behold, he sends out his voice, his mighty voice.
[34]Ascribe power to God, whose majesty is over Israel,
and whose power is in the skies.
[35]Awesome is God from his [7] sanctuary;
the God of Israel—he is the one who gives power and strength to his people.
Blessed be God!

Save Me, O God

To the choirmaster: according to Lilies. Of David.

PSALM 69 ‡Save me, O God!
For the waters have come up to my neck. [1] [2]I sink in deep mire,
where there is no foothold;
I have come into deep waters,
and the flood sweeps over me.
[3]I am weary with my crying out;
my throat is parched.
My eyes grow dim
with waiting for my God.
[4]†More in number than the hairs of my head are those who hate me without cause;
mighty are those who would destroy me,
those who attack me with lies.
What I did not steal must I now restore?
[5]O God, you know my folly;
the wrongs I have done are not hidden from you.
[6]†Let not those who hope in you be put to shame through me,
O Lord GOD of hosts;
let not those who seek you be brought to dishonor through me,
O God of Israel.
[7]For it is for your sake that I have borne reproach,
that dishonor has covered my face.
[8]†I have become a stranger to my brothers,
an alien to my mother's sons.
[9]†For zeal for your house has consumed me,
and the reproaches of those who reproach you have fallen on me.
[10]When I wept and humbled [2] my soul with fasting,
it became my reproach.
[11]†When I made sackcloth my clothing,
I became a byword to them.
[12]†I am the talk of those who sit in the gate,
and the drunkards make songs about me.
[13]But as for me, my prayer is to you, O LORD.
At an acceptable time, O God,

in the abundance of your steadfast love answer me in your saving faithfulness.
[14]Deliver me
from sinking in the mire;
let me be delivered from my enemies
and from the deep waters.
[15]†Let not the flood sweep over me,
or the deep swallow me up,
or the pit close its mouth over me.
[16]Answer me, O LORD, for your steadfast love is good;
according to your abundant mercy, turn to me.
[17]Hide not your face from your servant;
for I am in distress; make haste to answer me.
[18]Draw near to my soul, redeem me;
ransom me because of my enemies!
[19]You know my reproach,
and my shame and my dishonor;
my foes are all known to you.
[20]Reproaches have broken my heart,
so that I am in despair.
I looked for pity, but there was none,
and for comforters, but I found none.
[21]†They gave me poison for food,
and for my thirst they gave me sour wine to drink.
[22]††Let their own table before them become a snare;
and when they are at peace, let it become a trap. [3] [23]Let their eyes be darkened, so that they cannot see,
and make their loins tremble continually.
[24]Pour out your indignation upon them,
and let your burning anger overtake them.
[25]†May their camp be a desolation;
let no one dwell in their tents.
[26]†For they persecute him whom you have struck down,
and they recount the pain of those you have wounded.
[27]Add to them punishment upon punishment;
may they have no acquittal from you. [4] [28]Let them be blotted out of the book of the living;

let them not be enrolled among the righteous.
[29]But I am afflicted and in pain;
let your salvation, O God, set me on high!
[30]I will praise the name of God with a song;
I will magnify him with thanksgiving.
[31]†This will please the LORD more than an ox or a bull with horns and hoofs.
[32]When the humble see it they will be glad;
you who seek God, let your hearts revive.
[33]For the LORD hears the needy and does not despise his own people who are prisoners.
[34]Let heaven and earth praise him,
the seas and everything that moves in them.
[35]For God will save Zion and build up the cities of Judah,
and people shall dwell there and possess it; [36]the offspring of his servants shall inherit it,
and those who love his name shall dwell in it.

O LORD, Do Not Delay

To the choirmaster. Of David, for the memorial offering.

PSALM 70 ‡Make haste, O God, to deliver me!
O LORD, make haste to help me!
[2]Let them be put to shame and confusion who seek my life!
Let them be turned back and brought to dishonor
who delight in my hurt!
[3]Let them turn back because of their shame who say, “Aha, Aha!”
[4]May all who seek you
rejoice and be glad in you!
May those who love your salvation
say evermore, “God is great!”
[5]But I am poor and needy;
hasten to me, O God!
You are my help and my deliverer;
O LORD, do not delay!

Forsake Me Not When My Strength Is Spent

PSALM 71 ‡In you, O LORD, do I take refuge;
let me never be put to shame!
[2]In your righteousness deliver me and rescue me;
incline your ear to me, and save me!
[3]†Be to me a rock of refuge, to which I may continually come;
you have given the command to save me,
for you are my rock and my fortress.
[4]Rescue me, O my God, from the hand of the wicked,
from the grasp of the unjust and cruel man.
[5]For you, O Lord, are my hope,
my trust, O LORD, from my youth.
[6]Upon you I have leaned from before my birth;
you are he who took me from my mother's womb.
My praise is continually of you.
[7]†I have been as a portent to many,
but you are my strong refuge.
[8]My mouth is filled with your praise,
and with your glory all the day.
[9]Do not cast me off in the time of old age;
forsake me not when my strength is spent.
[10]For my enemies speak concerning me;
those who watch for my life consult together [11]and say, "God has forsaken him;
pursue and seize him,
for there is none to deliver him."
[12]O God, be not far from me;
O my God, make haste to help me!
[13]May my accusers be put to shame and consumed;
with scorn and disgrace may they be covered who seek my hurt.
[14]But I will hope continually and will praise you yet more and more.

[15]†My mouth will tell of your righteous acts,
of your deeds of salvation all the day,
for their number is past my knowledge.
[16]With the mighty deeds of the Lord GOD I will come;
I will remind them of your righteousness, yours alone.
[17]O God, from my youth you have taught me,
and I still proclaim your wondrous deeds.
[18]So even to old age and gray hairs,
O God, do not forsake me,
until I proclaim your might to another generation,
your power to all those to come.
[19]Your righteousness, O God, reaches the high heavens.
You who have done great things,
O God, who is like you?
[20]†You who have made me see many troubles and calamities will revive me again;
from the depths of the earth
you will bring me up again.
[21]You will increase my greatness and comfort me again.
[22]I will also praise you with the harp
for your faithfulness, O my God;
I will sing praises to you with the lyre,
O Holy One of Israel.
[23]My lips will shout for joy,
when I sing praises to you;
my soul also, which you have redeemed.
[24]And my tongue will talk of your righteous help all the day long,
for they have been put to shame and disappointed who sought to do me hurt.

Give the King Your Justice

Of Solomon.

PSALM 72 ‡†Give the king your justice, O God,
and your righteousness to the royal son!
[2]May he judge your people with righteousness,
and your poor with justice!
[3]†Let the mountains bear prosperity for the people,
and the hills, in righteousness!
[4]May he defend the cause of the poor of the people,
give deliverance to the children of the needy,
and crush the oppressor!
[5]May they fear you [1] while the sun endures,
and as long as the moon, throughout all generations!
[6]May he be like rain that falls on the mown grass,
like showers that water the earth!
[7]†In his days may the righteous flourish,
and peace abound, till the moon be no more!
[8]†May he have dominion from sea to sea, and from the River [2] to the ends of the earth!
[9]May desert tribes bow down before him,
and his enemies lick the dust!
[10]†May the kings of Tarshish and of the coastlands render him tribute;
may the kings of Sheba and Seba
bring gifts!
[11]May all kings fall down before him,
all nations serve him!
[12]For he delivers the needy when he calls,
the poor and him who has no helper.
[13]He has pity on the weak and the needy,
and saves the lives of the needy.
[14]From oppression and violence he redeems their life,
and precious is their blood in his sight.
[15]Long may he live;
may gold of Sheba be given to him!
May prayer be made for him continually,
and blessings invoked for him all the day!
[16]May there be abundance of grain in the land;
on the tops of the mountains may it wave;

may its fruit be like Lebanon;
and may people blossom in the cities
like the grass of the field!
[17]May his name endure forever,
his fame continue as long as the sun!
May people be blessed in him,
all nations call him blessed!
[18]Blessed be the LORD, the God of Israel,
who alone does wondrous things.
[19]Blessed be his glorious name forever;
may the whole earth be filled with his glory!
Amen and Amen!
[20]†The prayers of David, the son of Jesse, are ended.

Book Three

God Is My Strength and Portion Forever

A Psalm of Asaph.

PSALM 73 ‡Truly God is good to Israel,
to those who are pure in heart.
[2]But as for me, my feet had almost stumbled,
my steps had nearly slipped.
[3]For I was envious of the arrogant
when I saw the prosperity of the wicked.
[4]†For they have no pangs until death;
their bodies are fat and sleek.
[5]They are not in trouble as others are;
they are not stricken like the rest of mankind.
[6]Therefore pride is their necklace;
violence covers them as a garment.
[7]Their eyes swell out through fatness;
their hearts overflow with follies.
[8]They scoff and speak with malice;
loftily they threaten oppression.
[9]†They set their mouths against the heavens,
and their tongue struts through the earth.
[10]†Therefore his people turn back to them,
and find no fault in them. [1] [11]†And they say, “How can God know?
Is there knowledge in the Most High?”
[12]Behold, these are the wicked;
always at ease, they increase in riches.
[13]All in vain have I kept my heart clean and washed my hands in innocence.
[14]For all the day long I have been stricken and rebuked every morning.
[15]If I had said, “I will speak thus,”
I would have betrayed the generation of your children.
[16]But when I thought how to understand this,
it seemed to me a wearisome task, [17]†until I went into the sanctuary of God;
then I discerned their end.
[18]Truly you set them in slippery places;
you make them fall to ruin.
[19]How they are destroyed in a moment, swept away utterly by terrors!

[20]†Like a dream when one awakes,
O Lord, when you rouse yourself, you despise them as phantoms.
[21]When my soul was embittered,
when I was pricked in heart,
[22]†I was brutish and ignorant;
I was like a beast toward you.
[23]Nevertheless, I am continually with you;
you hold my right hand.
[24]You guide me with your counsel,
and afterward you will receive me to glory.
[25]Whom have I in heaven but you?
And there is nothing on earth that I desire besides you.
[26]My flesh and my heart may fail,
but God is the strength [2] of my heart and my portion forever.
[27]†For behold, those who are far from you shall perish;
you put an end to everyone who is unfaithful to you.
[28]But for me it is good to be near God;
I have made the Lord GOD my refuge,
that I may tell of all your works.

Arise, O God, Defend Your Cause

A Maskil [1] of Asaph.

PSALM 74 ‡O God, why do you cast us off forever?
Why does your anger smoke against the sheep of your pasture?
[2]†Remember your congregation, which you have purchased of old,
which you have redeemed to be the tribe of your heritage!
Remember Mount Zion, where you have dwelt.
[3]†Direct your steps to the perpetual ruins;
the enemy has destroyed everything in the sanctuary!
[4]†Your foes have roared in the midst of your meeting place;
they set up their own signs for signs.
[5]†They were like those who swing axes
in a forest of trees. [2] [6]And all its carved wood they broke down with hatchets and hammers.
[7]They set your sanctuary on fire;
they profaned the dwelling place of your name,
bringing it down to the ground.
[8]†They said to themselves, "We will utterly subdue them";
they burned all the meeting places of God in the land.
[9]†We do not see our signs;
there is no longer any prophet,
and there is none among us who knows how long.
[10]How long, O God, is the foe to scoff?
Is the enemy to revile your name forever?
[11]Why do you hold back your hand, your right hand?
Take it from the fold of your garment [3] and destroy them!
[12]Yet God my King is from of old, working salvation in the midst of the earth.
[13]†You divided the sea by your might;
you broke the heads of the sea monsters [4] on the waters.
[14]†You crushed the heads of Leviathan;
you gave him as food for the creatures of the wilderness.
[15]†You split open springs and brooks;

you dried up ever-flowing streams.
[16]Yours is the day, yours also the night;
you have established the heavenly lights and the sun.
[17]†You have fixed all the boundaries of the earth;
you have made summer and winter.
[18]Remember this, O Lord, how the enemy scoffs,
and a foolish people reviles your name.
[19]Do not deliver the soul of your dove to the wild beasts;
do not forget the life of your poor forever.
[20]†Have regard for the covenant, for the dark places of the land are full of the habitations of violence.
[21]Let not the downtrodden turn back in shame;
let the poor and needy praise your name.
[22]Arise, O God, defend your cause;
remember how the foolish scoff at you all the day!
[23]Do not forget the clamor of your foes,
the uproar of those who rise against you, which goes up continually!

God Will Judge with Equity

To the choirmaster: according to Do Not Destroy. A Psalm of Asaph. A Song.

PSALM 75 ‡†We give thanks to you, O God;
we give thanks, for your name is near.
We [1] recount your wondrous deeds.
[2]“At the set time that I appoint
I will judge with equity.
[3]†When the earth totters, and all its inhabitants,
it is I who keep steady its pillars. Selah [4]†I say to the boastful, ‘Do not boast,’
and to the wicked, ‘Do not lift up your horn;
[5]do not lift up your horn on high,
or speak with haughty neck.’”
[6]For not from the east or from the west and not from the wilderness comes lifting up, [7]but it is God who executes judgment,
putting down one and lifting up another.
[8]†For in the hand of the LORD there is a cup with foaming wine, well mixed,
and he pours out from it,
and all the wicked of the earth
shall drain it down to the dregs.
[9]But I will declare it forever;
I will sing praises to the God of Jacob.
[10]†All the horns of the wicked I will cut off, but the horns of the righteous shall be lifted up.

Who Can Stand Before You?

To the choirmaster: with stringed instruments. A Psalm of Asaph. A Song.

PSALM 76 ‡In Judah God is known;
his name is great in Israel.
[2]His abode has been established in Salem,
his dwelling place in Zion.
[3]‡There he broke the flashing arrows,
the shield, the sword, and the weapons of war. Selah [4]‡Glorious are you, more majestic than the mountains of prey.
[5]‡The stouthearted were stripped of their spoil;
they sank into sleep;
all the men of war
were unable to use their hands.
[6]At your rebuke, O God of Jacob,
both rider and horse lay stunned.
[7]But you, you are to be feared!
Who can stand before you
when once your anger is roused?
[8]From the heavens you uttered judgment;
the earth feared and was still,
[9]when God arose to establish judgment,
to save all the humble of the earth. Selah [10]‡Surely the wrath of man shall praise you;
the remnant [1] of wrath you will put on like a belt.
[11]Make your vows to the LORD your God and perform them;
let all around him bring gifts
to him who is to be feared, [12]‡who cuts off the spirit of princes,
who is to be feared by the kings of the earth.

In the Day of Trouble I Seek the Lord

To the choirmaster: according to Jeduthun. A Psalm of Asaph.

PSALM 77 ‡I cry aloud to God, aloud to God, and he will hear me.
[2]†In the day of my trouble I seek the Lord;
in the night my hand is stretched out without wearying;
my soul refuses to be comforted.
[3]When I remember God, I moan;
when I meditate, my spirit faints. Selah
[4]†You hold my eyelids open;
I am so troubled that I cannot speak.
[5]I consider the days of old,
the years long ago.
[6]†I said, [1] “Let me remember my song in the night;
let me meditate in my heart.”
Then my spirit made a diligent search:
[7]“Will the Lord spurn forever,
and never again be favorable?
[8]Has his steadfast love forever ceased?
Are his promises at an end for all time?
[9]Has God forgotten to be gracious?
Has he in anger shut up his compassion?” Selah [10]†Then I said, “I will appeal to this,
to the years of the right hand of the Most High.” [2] [11]I will remember the deeds of the LORD;
yes, I will remember your wonders of old.
[12]I will ponder all your work,
and meditate on your mighty deeds.
[13]Your way, O God, is holy.
What god is great like our God?
[14]You are the God who works wonders;
you have made known your might among the peoples.
[15]You with your arm redeemed your people,
the children of Jacob and Joseph. Selah [16]†When the waters saw you, O God, when the waters saw you, they were afraid;
indeed, the deep trembled.
[17]†The clouds poured out water;
the skies gave forth thunder;

your arrows flashed on every side.
[18]The crash of your thunder was in the whirlwind;
your lightnings lighted up the world;
the earth trembled and shook.
[19]Your way was through the sea,
your path through the great waters;
yet your footprints were unseen. [3] [20]You led your people like a flock
by the hand of Moses and Aaron.

Tell the Coming Generation

A Maskil [1] of Asaph.

PSALM 78 ‡Give ear, O my people, to my teaching;
incline your ears to the words of my mouth!
[2]†I will open my mouth in a parable;
I will utter dark sayings from of old,
[3]things that we have heard and known,
that our fathers have told us.
[4]We will not hide them from their children,
but tell to the coming generation
the glorious deeds of the LORD, and his might,
and the wonders that he has done.
[5]He established a testimony in Jacob and appointed a law in Israel, which he commanded our fathers
to teach to their children, [6]that the next generation might know them,
the children yet unborn,
and arise and tell them to their children,
[7]so that they should set their hope in God and not forget the works of God,
but keep his commandments;
[8]and that they should not be like their fathers,
a stubborn and rebellious generation,
a generation whose heart was not steadfast,
whose spirit was not faithful to God.
[9]†The Ephraimites, armed with [2] the bow, turned back on the day of battle.
[10]They did not keep God's covenant,
but refused to walk according to his law.
[11]They forgot his works and the wonders that he had shown them.
[12]†In the sight of their fathers he performed wonders in the land of Egypt, in the fields of Zoan.

[13]†He divided the sea and let them pass through it,
and made the waters stand like a heap.
[14]In the daytime he led them with a cloud,
and all the night with a fiery light.
[15]†He split rocks in the wilderness and gave them drink abundantly as from the deep.
[16]He made streams come out of the rock and caused waters to flow down like rivers.
[17]Yet they sinned still more against him,
rebelling against the Most High in the desert.
[18]†They tested God in their heart
by demanding the food they craved.
[19]†They spoke against God, saying,
“Can God spread a table in the wilderness?
[20]He struck the rock so that water gushed out and streams overflowed.
Can he also give bread
or provide meat for his people?”
[21]Therefore, when the LORD heard, he was full of wrath;
a fire was kindled against Jacob;
his anger rose against Israel, [22]because they did not believe in God and did not trust his saving power.
[23]Yet he commanded the skies above and opened the doors of heaven, [24]and he rained down on them manna to eat and gave them the grain of heaven.
[25]Man ate of the bread of the angels;
he sent them food in abundance.
[26]He caused the east wind to blow in the heavens,
and by his power he led out the south wind; [27]†he rained meat on them like dust,
winged birds like the sand of the seas;
[28]he let them fall in the midst of their camp,
all around their dwellings.
[29]And they ate and were well filled,
for he gave them what they craved.

[30]But before they had satisfied their craving,
while the food was still in their mouths, [31]the anger of God rose against them,
and he killed the strongest of them
and laid low the young men of Israel.
[32]In spite of all this, they still sinned;
despite his wonders, they did not believe.
[33]So he made their days vanish like [3] a breath, [4]
and their years in terror.
[34]When he killed them, they sought him;
they repented and sought God earnestly.
[35]They remembered that God was their rock,
the Most High God their redeemer.
[36]But they flattered him with their mouths;
they lied to him with their tongues.
[37]Their heart was not steadfast toward him;
they were not faithful to his covenant.
[38]Yet he, being compassionate, atoned for their iniquity
and did not destroy them;
he restrained his anger often
and did not stir up all his wrath.
[39]He remembered that they were but flesh,
a wind that passes and comes not again.
[40]How often they rebelled against him in the wilderness and grieved him in the desert!
[41]†They tested God again and again and provoked the Holy One of Israel.
[42]†They did not remember his power [5]
or the day when he redeemed them from the foe, [43]when he performed his signs in Egypt and his marvels in the fields of Zoan.
[44]He turned their rivers to blood, so that they could not drink of their streams.
[45]He sent among them swarms of flies, which devoured them,
and frogs, which destroyed them.
[46]He gave their crops to the destroying locust and the fruit of their labor to the locust.

[47]He destroyed their vines with hail and their sycamores with frost.
[48]He gave over their cattle to the hail and their flocks to thunderbolts.
[49]He let loose on them his burning anger, wrath, indignation, and distress,
a company of destroying angels.
[50]He made a path for his anger;
he did not spare them from death,
but gave their lives over to the plague.
[51]He struck down every firstborn in Egypt,
the firstfruits of their strength in the tents of Ham.
[52]Then he led out his people like sheep and guided them in the wilderness like a flock.
[53]He led them in safety, so that they were not afraid,
but the sea overwhelmed their enemies.
[54]And he brought them to his holy land,
to the mountain which his right hand had won.
[55]He drove out nations before them;
he apportioned them for a possession and settled the tribes of Israel in their tents.
[56]Yet they tested and rebelled against the Most High God and did not keep his testimonies, [57]†but turned away and acted treacherously like their fathers;
they twisted like a deceitful bow.
[58]For they provoked him to anger with their high places;
they moved him to jealousy with their idols.
[59]When God heard, he was full of wrath,
and he utterly rejected Israel.
[60]†He forsook his dwelling at Shiloh,
the tent where he dwelt among mankind, [61]and delivered his power to captivity,
his glory to the hand of the foe.
[62]He gave his people over to the sword and vented his wrath on his heritage.
[63]Fire devoured their young men, and their young women had no marriage song.

[64]Their priests fell by the sword,
and their widows made no lamentation.
[65]†Then the Lord awoke as from sleep,
like a strong man shouting because of wine.
[66]And he put his adversaries to rout;
he put them to everlasting shame.
[67]He rejected the tent of Joseph;
he did not choose the tribe of Ephraim,
[68]†but he chose the tribe of Judah,
Mount Zion, which he loves.
[69]He built his sanctuary like the high heavens,
like the earth, which he has founded forever.
[70]He chose David his servant
and took him from the sheepfolds; [71]from following the nursing ewes he brought him to shepherd Jacob his people,
Israel his inheritance.
[72]With upright heart he shepherded them
and guided them with his skillful hand.

How Long, O LORD?

A Psalm of Asaph.

PSALM 79 ‡†O God, the nations have come into your inheritance;
they have defiled your holy temple;
they have laid Jerusalem in ruins.
[2]They have given the bodies of your servants to the birds of the heavens for food,
the flesh of your faithful to the beasts of the earth.
[3]They have poured out their blood like water
all around Jerusalem,
and there was no one to bury them.
[4]We have become a taunt to our neighbors,
mocked and derided by those around us.
[5]How long, O LORD? Will you be angry forever?
Will your jealousy burn like fire?
[6]Pour out your anger on the nations that do not know you,
and on the kingdoms
that do not call upon your name!
[7]For they have devoured Jacob
and laid waste his habitation.
[8]Do not remember against us our former iniquities; [1]
let your compassion come speedily to meet us,
for we are brought very low.
[9]†Help us, O God of our salvation,
for the glory of your name;
deliver us, and atone for our sins,
for your name's sake!
[10]†Why should the nations say,
“Where is their God?”
Let the avenging of the outpoured blood of your servants be known among the nations before our eyes!
[11]†Let the groans of the prisoners come before you;
according to your great power, preserve those doomed to die!
[12]†Return sevenfold into the lap of our neighbors
the taunts with which they have taunted you, O Lord!
[13]But we your people, the sheep of your pasture,
will give thanks to you forever;
from generation to generation we will recount your praise.

Restore Us, O God

To the choirmaster: according to Lilies. A Testimony. Of Asaph, a Psalm.

PSALM 80 ‡†Give ear, O Shepherd of Israel, you who lead Joseph like a flock!
You who are enthroned upon the cherubim, shine forth.
[2]Before Ephraim and Benjamin and Manasseh, stir up your might
and come to save us!
[3]†Restore us, [1] O God;
let your face shine, that we may be saved!
[4]†O LORD God of hosts,
how long will you be angry with your people's prayers?
[5]You have fed them with the bread of tears and given them tears to drink in full measure.
[6]You make us an object of contention for our neighbors,
and our enemies laugh among themselves.
[7]Restore us, O God of hosts;
let your face shine, that we may be saved!
[8]†You brought a vine out of Egypt;
you drove out the nations and planted it.
[9]You cleared the ground for it;
it took deep root and filled the land.
[10]The mountains were covered with its shade,
the mighty cedars with its branches.
[11]It sent out its branches to the sea and its shoots to the River. [2] [12]Why then have you broken down its walls,
so that all who pass along the way pluck its fruit?
[13]The boar from the forest ravages it,
and all that move in the field feed on it.
[14]Turn again, O God of hosts!
Look down from heaven, and see;
have regard for this vine, [15]the stock that your right hand planted,
and for the son whom you made strong for yourself.
[16]They have burned it with fire; they have cut it down;
may they perish at the rebuke of your face!
[17]†But let your hand be on the man of your right hand,
the son of man whom you have made strong for yourself!

[18]Then we shall not turn back from you;
give us life, and we will call upon your name!
[19]Restore us, O LORD God of hosts!
Let your face shine, that we may be saved!

Oh, That My People Would Listen to Me

To the choirmaster: according to The Gittith. [1] Of Asaph.

PSALM 81 ‡Sing aloud to God our strength;
shout for joy to the God of Jacob!
[2]†Raise a song; sound the tambourine,
the sweet lyre with the harp.
[3]†Blow the trumpet at the new moon,
at the full moon, on our feast day.
[4]For it is a statute for Israel, a rule [2] of the God of Jacob.
[5]†He made it a decree in Joseph when he went out over [3] the land of Egypt.
I hear a language I had not known:
[6]†"I relieved your [4] shoulder of the burden;
your hands were freed from the basket.
[7]†In distress you called, and I delivered you;
I answered you in the secret place of thunder;
I tested you at the waters of Meribah. Selah
[8]Hear, O my people, while I admonish you!
O Israel, if you would but listen to me!
[9]There shall be no strange god among you;
you shall not bow down to a foreign god.
[10]I am the LORD your God,
who brought you up out of the land of Egypt.
Open your mouth wide, and I will fill it.
[11]"But my people did not listen to my voice;
Israel would not submit to me.
[12]So I gave them over to their stubborn hearts,
to follow their own counsels.
[13]Oh, that my people would listen to me,
that Israel would walk in my ways!
[14]†I would soon subdue their enemies and turn my hand against their foes.
[15]Those who hate the LORD would cringe toward him,

and their fate would last forever.
16 [†]But he would feed you [5] with the finest of the wheat, and with honey from the rock I would satisfy you."

Rescue the Weak and Needy

A Psalm of Asaph.

PSALM 82 ‡†God has taken his place in the divine council;
in the midst of the gods he holds judgment:
[2]‡“How long will you judge unjustly and show partiality to the wicked? Selah [3]Give justice to the weak and the fatherless;
maintain the right of the afflicted and the destitute.
[4]Rescue the weak and the needy;
deliver them from the hand of the wicked.”
[5]†They have neither knowledge nor understanding,
they walk about in darkness;
all the foundations of the earth are shaken.
[6]†I said, “You are gods,
sons of the Most High, all of you;
[7]†nevertheless, like men you shall die,
and fall like any prince.” [1] [8]†Arise, O God, judge the earth;
for you shall inherit all the nations!

O God, Do Not Keep Silence

A Song. A Psalm of Asaph.

PSALM 83 ‡O God, do not keep silence;
do not hold your peace or be still, O God!
[2]†For behold, your enemies make an uproar;
those who hate you have raised their heads.
[3]They lay crafty plans against your people;
they consult together against your treasured ones.
[4]†They say, “Come, let us wipe them out as a nation;
let the name of Israel be remembered no more!”
[5]For they conspire with one accord;
against you they make a covenant—
[6]†the tents of Edom and the Ishmaelites, Moab and the Hagrites,
[7]†Gebal and Ammon and Amalek,
Philistia with the inhabitants of Tyre;
[8]†Asshur also has joined them;
they are the strong arm of the children of Lot. Selah [9]†Do to them as you did to Midian, as to Sisera and Jabin at the river Kishon, [10]who were destroyed at En-dor,
who became dung for the ground.
[11]†Make their nobles like Oreb and Zeeb,
all their princes like Zebah and Zalmunna, [12]who said, “Let us take possession for ourselves of the pastures of God.”
[13]‡O my God, make them like whirling dust, [1]
like chaff before the wind.
[14]As fire consumes the forest,
as the flame sets the mountains ablaze, [15]so may you pursue them with your tempest and terrify them with your hurricane!
[16]Fill their faces with shame,
that they may seek your name, O LORD.
[17]Let them be put to shame and dismayed forever;
let them perish in disgrace, [18]†that they may know that you alone,
whose name is the LORD,
are the Most High over all the earth.

My Soul Longs for the Courts of the LORD

To the choirmaster: according to The Gittith. [1] A Psalm of the Sons of Korah.

PSALM 84 ‡†How lovely is your dwelling place,
O LORD of hosts!
[2]†My soul longs, yes, faints
for the courts of the LORD;
my heart and flesh sing for joy
to the living God.
[3]†Even the sparrow finds a home,
and the swallow a nest for herself,
where she may lay her young,
at your altars, O LORD of hosts,
my King and my God.
[4]†Blessed are those who dwell in your house, ever singing your praise! Selah [5]Blessed are those whose strength is in you,
in whose heart are the highways to Zion. [2] [6]†As they go through the Valley of Baca they make it a place of springs;
the early rain also covers it with pools.
[7]†They go from strength to strength;
each one appears before God in Zion.
[8]O LORD God of hosts, hear my prayer;
give ear, O God of Jacob! Selah [9]†Behold our shield, O God;
look on the face of your anointed!
[10]†For a day in your courts is better than a thousand elsewhere.
I would rather be a doorkeeper in the house of my God than dwell in the tents of wickedness.
[11]†For the LORD God is a sun and shield;
the LORD bestows favor and honor.
No good thing does he withhold from those who walk uprightly.

[12]O Lord of hosts,
blessed is the one who trusts in you!

Revive Us Again

To the choirmaster. A Psalm of the Sons of Korah.

PSALM 85 ‡†Lord, you were favorable to your land;
you restored the fortunes of Jacob.
[2]You forgave the iniquity of your people;
you covered all their sin. Selah [3]†You withdrew all your wrath;
you turned from your hot anger.
[4]Restore us again, O God of our salvation,
and put away your indignation toward us!
[5]Will you be angry with us forever?
Will you prolong your anger to all generations?
[6]Will you not revive us again,
that your people may rejoice in you?
[7]†Show us your steadfast love, O Lord,
and grant us your salvation.
[8]†Let me hear what God the Lord will speak, for he will speak peace to his people, to his saints;
but let them not turn back to folly.
[9]†Surely his salvation is near to those who fear him,
that glory may dwell in our land.
[10]†Steadfast love and faithfulness meet;
righteousness and peace kiss each other.
[11]Faithfulness springs up from the ground,
and righteousness looks down from the sky.
[12]†Yes, the Lord will give what is good,
and our land will yield its increase.
[13]Righteousness will go before him
and make his footsteps a way.

Great Is Your Steadfast Love

A Prayer of David.

PSALM 86 ‡Incline your ear, O LORD, and answer me,
for I am poor and needy.
[2]†Preserve my life, for I am godly;
save your servant, who trusts in you—you are my God.
[3]Be gracious to me, O Lord,
for to you do I cry all the day.
[4]†Gladden the soul of your servant,
for to you, O Lord, do I lift up my soul.
[5]For you, O Lord, are good and forgiving, abounding in steadfast love to all who call upon you.
[6]Give ear, O LORD, to my prayer;
listen to my plea for grace.
[7]In the day of my trouble I call upon you,
for you answer me.
[8]†There is none like you among the gods, O Lord,
nor are there any works like yours.
[9]†All the nations you have made shall come and worship before you, O Lord,
and shall glorify your name.
[10]For you are great and do wondrous things;
you alone are God.
[11]†Teach me your way, O LORD,
that I may walk in your truth;
unite my heart to fear your name.
[12]I give thanks to you, O Lord my God, with my whole heart, and I will glorify your name forever.
[13]For great is your steadfast love toward me;
you have delivered my soul from the depths of Sheol.
[14]†O God, insolent men have risen up against me;
a band of ruthless men seeks my life,
and they do not set you before them.
[15]But you, O Lord, are a God merciful and gracious, slow to anger and abounding in steadfast love and faithfulness.
[16]†Turn to me and be gracious to me;
give your strength to your servant,
and save the son of your maidservant.
[17]†Show me a sign of your favor, that those who hate me may see and be put to shame

because you, LORD, have helped me and comforted me.

Glorious Things of You Are Spoken

A Psalm of the Sons of Korah. A Song.

PSALM 87 ‡†On the holy mount stands the city he founded;
[2]†the LORD loves the gates of Zion
more than all the dwelling places of Jacob.
[3]†Glorious things of you are spoken,
O city of God. Selah
[4]†Among those who know me I mention Rahab and Babylon;
behold, Philistia and Tyre, with Cush [1]—
“This one was born there,” they say.
[5]And of Zion it shall be said,
“This one and that one were born in her”;
for the Most High himself will establish her.
[6]The LORD records as he registers the peoples,
“This one was born there.” Selah
[7]†Singers and dancers alike say,
“All my springs are in you.”

I Cry Out Day and Night Before You

A Song. A Psalm of the Sons of Korah. To the choirmaster: according to Mahalath Leannoth. A Maskil [1] of Heman the Ezrahite.

PSALM 88 ‡O LORD, God of my salvation;
I cry out day and night before you.
[2]Let my prayer come before you;
incline your ear to my cry!
[3]For my soul is full of troubles,
and my life draws near to Sheol.
[4]†I am counted among those who go down to the pit;
I am a man who has no strength,
[5]†like one set loose among the dead,
like the slain that lie in the grave,
like those whom you remember no more,
for they are cut off from your hand.
[6]You have put me in the depths of the pit,
in the regions dark and deep.
[7]†Your wrath lies heavy upon me,
and you overwhelm me with all your waves. Selah [8]†You have caused my companions to shun me;
you have made me a horror [2] to them.
I am shut in so that I cannot escape;
[9]†my eye grows dim through sorrow.
Every day I call upon you, O LORD;
I spread out my hands to you.
[10]†Do you work wonders for the dead?
Do the departed rise up to praise you? Selah [11]Is your steadfast love declared in the grave, or your faithfulness in Abaddon?
[12]Are your wonders known in the darkness, or your righteousness in the land of forgetfulness?
[13]But I, O LORD, cry to you;
in the morning my prayer comes before you.
[14]†O LORD, why do you cast my soul away?

Why do you hide your face from me?
[15]†Afflicted and close to death from my youth up,
I suffer your terrors; I am helpless. [3] [16]Your wrath has swept over me;
your dreadful assaults destroy me.
[17]They surround me like a flood all day long;
they close in on me together.
[18]†You have caused my beloved and my friend to shun me;
my companions have become darkness. [4]

I Will Sing of the Steadfast Love of the LORD

A Maskil [1] of Ethan the Ezrahite.

PSALM 89 ‡†I will sing of the steadfast love of the LORD, forever;
with my mouth I will make known your faithfulness to all generations.
[2]†For I said, “Steadfast love will be built up forever;
in the heavens you will establish your faithfulness.”
[3]†You have said, “I have made a covenant with my chosen one;
I have sworn to David my servant:
[4]†‘I will establish your offspring forever,
and build your throne for all generations.’” Selah [5]†Let the heavens praise your wonders, O LORD, your faithfulness in the assembly of the holy ones!
[6]†For who in the skies can be compared to the LORD?
Who among the heavenly beings [2] is like the LORD,
[7]†a God greatly to be feared in the council of the holy ones,
and awesome above all who are around him?
[8]O LORD God of hosts,
who is mighty as you are, O LORD,
with your faithfulness all around you?
[9]You rule the raging of the sea;
when its waves rise, you still them.
[10]†You crushed Rahab like a carcass;
you scattered your enemies with your mighty arm.
[11]The heavens are yours; the earth also is yours;
the world and all that is in it, you have founded them.
[12]†The north and the south, you have created them;
Tabor and Hermon joyously praise your name.
[13]You have a mighty arm; strong is your hand, high your right hand.
[14]Righteousness and justice are the foundation of your throne;
steadfast love and faithfulness go before you.
[15]†Blessed are the people who know the festal shout, who walk, O LORD, in the light of your face,

[16]who exult in your name all the day and in your righteousness are exalted.
[17]†For you are the glory of their strength;
by your favor our horn is exalted.
[18]†For our shield belongs to the LORD,
our king to the Holy One of Israel.
[19]†Of old you spoke in a vision to your godly one, [3] and said:
“I have granted help to one who is mighty;
I have exalted one chosen from the people.
[20]I have found David, my servant;
with my holy oil I have anointed him, [21]so that my hand shall be established with him;
my arm also shall strengthen him.
[22]The enemy shall not outwit him;
the wicked shall not humble him.
[23]I will crush his foes before him
and strike down those who hate him.
[24]My faithfulness and my steadfast love shall be with him,
and in my name shall his horn be exalted.
[25]†I will set his hand on the sea and his right hand on the rivers.
[26]He shall cry to me, ‘You are my Father,
my God, and the Rock of my salvation.’
[27]†And I will make him the firstborn,
the highest of the kings of the earth.
[28]My steadfast love I will keep for him forever,
and my covenant will stand firm [4] for him.
[29]I will establish his offspring forever and his throne as the days of the heavens.
[30]If his children forsake my law
and do not walk according to my rules, [5] [31]if they violate my statutes and do not keep my commandments, [32]†then I will punish their transgression with the rod and their iniquity with stripes, [33]†but I will not remove from him my steadfast love or be false to my faithfulness.

[34]I will not violate my covenant or alter the word that went forth from my lips.
[35]Once for all I have sworn by my holiness;
I will not lie to David.
[36]His offspring shall endure forever,
his throne as long as the sun before me.
[37]†Like the moon it shall be established forever,
a faithful witness in the skies.” Selah [38]But now you have cast off and rejected;
you are full of wrath against your anointed.
[39]†You have renounced the covenant with your servant;
you have defiled his crown in the dust.
[40]‡You have breached all his walls;
you have laid his strongholds in ruins.
[41]All who pass by plunder him;
he has become the scorn of his neighbors.
[42]You have exalted the right hand of his foes;
you have made all his enemies rejoice.
[43]You have also turned back the edge of his sword,
and you have not made him stand in battle.
[44]You have made his splendor to cease and cast his throne to the ground.
[45]†You have cut short the days of his youth;
you have covered him with shame. Selah [46]†How long, O LORD? Will you hide yourself forever?
How long will your wrath burn like fire?
[47]†Remember how short my time is!
For what vanity you have created all the children of man!
[48]What man can live and never see death?
Who can deliver his soul from the power of Sheol? Selah [49]‡Lord, where is your steadfast love of old, which by your faithfulness you swore to David?
[50]Remember, O Lord, how your servants are mocked, and how I bear in my heart the insults [6] of all the many nations, [51]with which your enemies mock, O LORD,
with which they mock the footsteps of your anointed.
[52]†Blessed be the LORD forever!

Amen and Amen.

Book Four

From Everlasting to Everlasting

A Prayer of Moses, the man of God.

PSALM 90 ‡†Lord, you have been our dwelling place [1]
in all generations.
[2]†Before the mountains were brought forth,
or ever you had formed the earth and the world,
from everlasting to everlasting you are God.
[3]†You return man to dust and say, “Return, O children of man!” [2] [4]†For a thousand years in your sight are but as yesterday when it is past, or as a watch in the night.
[5]†You sweep them away as with a flood; they are like a dream,
like grass that is renewed in the morning:
[6]in the morning it flourishes and is renewed;
in the evening it fades and withers.
[7]†For we are brought to an end by your anger;
by your wrath we are dismayed.
[8]†You have set our iniquities before you,
our secret sins in the light of your presence.
[9]†For all our days pass away under your wrath;
we bring our years to an end like a sigh.
[10]†The years of our life are seventy,
or even by reason of strength eighty;
yet their span [3] is but toil and trouble;
they are soon gone, and we fly away.
[11]†Who considers the power of your anger,
and your wrath according to the fear of you?
[12]†So teach us to number our days
that we may get a heart of wisdom.
[13]Return, O LORD! How long?
Have pity on your servants!
[14]†Satisfy us in the morning with your steadfast love,
that we may rejoice and be glad all our days.
[15]†Make us glad for as many days as you have afflicted us,
and for as many years as we have seen evil.
[16]Let your work be shown to your servants,
and your glorious power to their children.
[17]†Let the favor [4] of the Lord our God be upon us, and establish the work of our hands upon us;

yes, establish the work of our hands!

My Refuge and My Fortress

PSALM 91 ‡†He who dwells in the shelter of the Most High will abide in the shadow of the Almighty.
[2]I will say [1] to the Lord, “My refuge and my fortress,
my God, in whom I trust.”
[3]†For he will deliver you from the snare of the fowler and from the deadly pestilence.
[4]†He will cover you with his pinions, and under his wings you will find refuge;
his faithfulness is a shield and buckler.
[5]You will not fear the terror of the night,
nor the arrow that flies by day,
[6]nor the pestilence that stalks in darkness,
nor the destruction that wastes at noonday.
[7]A thousand may fall at your side,
ten thousand at your right hand,
but it will not come near you.
[8]†You will only look with your eyes and see the recompense of the wicked.
[9]Because you have made the Lord your dwelling place—
the Most High, who is my refuge [2]— [10]no evil shall be allowed to befall you,
no plague come near your tent.
[11]‡For he will command his angels concerning you to guard you in all your ways.
[12]On their hands they will bear you up,
lest you strike your foot against a stone.
[13]†You will tread on the lion and the adder;
the young lion and the serpent you will trample underfoot.
[14]†“Because he holds fast to me in love, I will deliver him;
I will protect him, because he knows my name.
[15]When he calls to me, I will answer him;
I will be with him in trouble;
I will rescue him and honor him.

[16]†With long life I will satisfy him and show him my salvation.”

How Great Are Your Works

A Psalm. A Song for the Sabbath.

PSALM 92 ‡It is good to give thanks to the LORD, to sing praises to your name, O Most High;
[2]†to declare your steadfast love in the morning,
and your faithfulness by night,
[3]†to the music of the lute and the harp,
to the melody of the lyre.
[4]For you, O LORD, have made me glad by your work;
at the works of your hands I sing for joy.
[5]How great are your works, O LORD!
Your thoughts are very deep!
[6]The stupid man cannot know;
the fool cannot understand this:
[7]that though the wicked sprout like grass and all evildoers flourish,
they are doomed to destruction forever;
[8]but you, O LORD, are on high forever.
[9]For behold, your enemies, O LORD,
for behold, your enemies shall perish;
all evildoers shall be scattered.
[10]†But you have exalted my horn like that of the wild ox;
you have poured over me [1] fresh oil.
[11]†My eyes have seen the downfall of my enemies;
my ears have heard the doom of my evil assailants.
[12]†The righteous flourish like the palm tree and grow like a cedar in Lebanon.
[13]†They are planted in the house of the LORD;
they flourish in the courts of our God.
[14]They still bear fruit in old age;
they are ever full of sap and green, [15]to declare that the LORD is upright;
he is my rock, and there is no unrighteousness in him.

The LORD Reigns

PSALM 93 ‡†The Lord reigns; he is robed in majesty;
the Lord is robed; he has put on strength as his belt.
Yes, the world is established; it shall never be moved.
[2]Your throne is established from of old;
you are from everlasting.
[3]‡The floods have lifted up, O Lord,
the floods have lifted up their voice;
the floods lift up their roaring.
[4]Mightier than the thunders of many waters, mightier than the waves of the sea,
the Lord on high is mighty!
[5]†Your decrees are very trustworthy;
holiness befits your house,
O Lord, forevermore.

The LORD Will Not Forsake His People

PSALM 94 ‡†O LORD, God of vengeance,
O God of vengeance, shine forth!
[2]Rise up, O judge of the earth;
repay to the proud what they deserve!
[3]O LORD, how long shall the wicked,
how long shall the wicked exult?
[4]They pour out their arrogant words;
all the evildoers boast.
[5]They crush your people, O LORD,
and afflict your heritage.
[6]They kill the widow and the sojourner,
and murder the fatherless;
[7]†and they say, “The LORD does not see;
the God of Jacob does not perceive.”
[8]Understand, O dullest of the people!
Fools, when will you be wise?
[9]He who planted the ear, does he not hear?
He who formed the eye, does he not see?
[10]He who disciplines the nations, does he not rebuke?
He who teaches man knowledge—
[11]†the LORD—knows the thoughts of man, that they are but a breath. [1] [12]†Blessed is the man whom you discipline, O LORD, and whom you teach out of your law, [13]to give him rest from days of trouble,
until a pit is dug for the wicked.
[14]†For the LORD will not forsake his people;
he will not abandon his heritage;
[15]for justice will return to the righteous,
and all the upright in heart will follow it.
[16]Who rises up for me against the wicked?
Who stands up for me against evildoers?
[17]†If the LORD had not been my help,

my soul would soon have lived in the land of silence.
[18]†When I thought, “My foot slips,” your steadfast love, O LORD, held me up.
[19]When the cares of my heart are many,
your consolations cheer my soul.
[20]†Can wicked rulers be allied with you,
those who frame injustice by statute?
[21]They band together against the life of the righteous and condemn the innocent to death. [2] [22]But the LORD has become my stronghold, and my God the rock of my refuge.
[23]†He will bring back on them their iniquity and wipe them out for their wickedness;
the LORD our God will wipe them out.

Let Us Sing Songs of Praise

PSALM 95 ‡†Oh come, let us sing to the LORD;
let us make a joyful noise to the rock of our salvation!
[2]Let us come into his presence with thanksgiving;
let us make a joyful noise to him with songs of praise!
[3]†For the LORD is a great God,
and a great King above all gods.
[4]†In his hand are the depths of the earth;
the heights of the mountains are his also.
[5]The sea is his, for he made it,
and his hands formed the dry land.
[6]Oh come, let us worship and bow down;
let us kneel before the LORD, our Maker!
[7]For he is our God,
and we are the people of his pasture,
and the sheep of his hand.
Today, if you hear his voice,
[8]†do not harden your hearts, as at Meribah,
as on the day at Massah in the wilderness, [9]†when your fathers put me to the test and put me to the proof, though they had seen my work.
[10]†For forty years I loathed that generation and said, “They are a people who go astray in their heart, and they have not known my ways.”
[11]†Therefore I swore in my wrath,
“They shall not enter my rest.”

Worship in the Splendor of Holiness

PSALM 96 ‡†Oh sing to the LORD a new song;
sing to the LORD, all the earth!
[2]†Sing to the LORD, bless his name;
tell of his salvation from day to day.
[3]†Declare his glory among the nations,
his marvelous works among all the peoples!
[4]†For great is the LORD, and greatly to be praised;
he is to be feared above all gods.
[5]For all the gods of the peoples are worthless idols,
but the LORD made the heavens.
[6]Splendor and majesty are before him;
strength and beauty are in his sanctuary.
[7]Ascribe to the LORD, O families of the peoples,
ascribe to the LORD glory and strength!
[8]†Ascribe to the LORD the glory due his name;
bring an offering, and come into his courts!
[9]†Worship the LORD in the splendor of holiness; [1]
tremble before him, all the earth!
[10]†Say among the nations, “The LORD reigns!
Yes, the world is established; it shall never be moved;
he will judge the peoples with equity.”
[11]‡Let the heavens be glad, and let the earth rejoice;
let the sea roar, and all that fills it;
[12]let the field exult, and everything in it!
Then shall all the trees of the forest sing for joy [13]†before the LORD, for he comes,
for he comes to judge the earth.
He will judge the world in righteousness,
and the peoples in his faithfulness.

The LORD Reigns

PSALM 97 ‡†The LORD reigns, let the earth rejoice;
let the many coastlands be glad!
[2]†Clouds and thick darkness are all around him;
righteousness and justice are the foundation of his throne.
[3]†Fire goes before him
and burns up his adversaries all around.
[4]†His lightnings light up the world;
the earth sees and trembles.
[5]†The mountains melt like wax before the LORD,
before the Lord of all the earth.
[6]†The heavens proclaim his righteousness,
and all the peoples see his glory.
[7]†All worshipers of images are put to shame,
who make their boast in worthless idols;
worship him, all you gods!
[8]†Zion hears and is glad,
and the daughters of Judah rejoice,
because of your judgments, O LORD.
[9]For you, O LORD, are most high over all the earth;
you are exalted far above all gods.
[10]†O you who love the LORD, hate evil!
He preserves the lives of his saints;
he delivers them from the hand of the wicked.
[11]†Light is sown [1] for the righteous,
and joy for the upright in heart.
[12]Rejoice in the LORD, O you righteous,
and give thanks to his holy name!

Make a Joyful Noise to the LORD

A Psalm.

PSALM 98 ‡†Oh sing to the LORD a new song,
for he has done marvelous things!
His right hand and his holy arm
have worked salvation for him.
[2]†The LORD has made known his salvation;
he has revealed his righteousness in the sight of the nations.
[3]†He has remembered his steadfast love and faithfulness to the house of Israel.
All the ends of the earth have seen
the salvation of our God.
[4]†Make a joyful noise to the LORD, all the earth;
break forth into joyous song and sing praises!
[5]‡Sing praises to the LORD with the lyre,
with the lyre and the sound of melody!
[6]With trumpets and the sound of the horn make a joyful noise before the King, the LORD!
[7]Let the sea roar, and all that fills it;
the world and those who dwell in it!
[8]†Let the rivers clap their hands;
let the hills sing for joy together
[9]†before the LORD, for he comes to judge the earth.
He will judge the world with righteousness,
and the peoples with equity.

The LORD Our God Is Holy

PSALM 99 ‡†The LORD reigns; let the peoples tremble!
He sits enthroned upon the cherubim; let the earth quake!
[2]†The LORD is great in Zion;
he is exalted over all the peoples.
[3]Let them praise your great and awesome name!
Holy is he!
[4]†The King in his might loves justice. [1]
You have established equity;
you have executed justice
and righteousness in Jacob.
[5]†Exalt the LORD our God;
worship at his footstool!
Holy is he!
[6]†Moses and Aaron were among his priests,
Samuel also was among those who called upon his name.
They called to the LORD, and he answered them.
[7]†In the pillar of the cloud he spoke to them;
they kept his testimonies
and the statute that he gave them.
[8]O LORD our God, you answered them;
you were a forgiving God to them,
but an avenger of their wrongdoings.
[9]†Exalt the LORD our God,
and worship at his holy mountain;
for the LORD our God is holy!

His Steadfast Love Endures Forever

A Psalm for giving thanks.

PSALM 100 ‡†Make a joyful noise to the LORD, all the earth!
[2]Serve the LORD with gladness!
Come into his presence with singing!
[3]†Know that the LORD, he is God!
It is he who made us, and we are his; [1]
we are his people, and the sheep of his pasture.
[4]†Enter his gates with thanksgiving,
and his courts with praise!
Give thanks to him; bless his name!
[5]†For the LORD is good;
his steadfast love endures forever,
and his faithfulness to all generations.

I Will Walk with Integrity

A Psalm of David.

PSALM 101 ‡I will sing of steadfast love and justice;
to you, O LORD, I will make music.
[2]†I will ponder the way that is blameless.
Oh when will you come to me?
I will walk with integrity of heart
within my house;
[3]‡†I will not set before my eyes anything that is worthless.
I hate the work of those who fall away;
it shall not cling to me.
[4]†A perverse heart shall be far from me;
I will know nothing of evil.
[5]†Whoever slanders his neighbor secretly
I will destroy.
Whoever has a haughty look and an arrogant heart
I will not endure.
[6]†I will look with favor on the faithful in the land,
that they may dwell with me;
he who walks in the way that is blameless shall minister to me.
[7]†No one who practices deceit shall dwell in my house;
no one who utters lies
shall continue before my eyes.
[8]†Morning by morning I will destroy all the wicked in the land, cutting off all the evildoers
from the city of the LORD.

Do Not Hide Your Face from Me

A Prayer of one afflicted, when he is faint and pours out his complaint before the LORD.

PSALM 102 ‡‡Hear my prayer, O LORD;
let my cry come to you!
[2]‡Do not hide your face from me
in the day of my distress!
Incline your ear to me;
answer me speedily in the day when I call!
[3]‡For my days pass away like smoke,
and my bones burn like a furnace.
[4]My heart is struck down like grass and has withered;
I forget to eat my bread.
[5]Because of my loud groaning
my bones cling to my flesh.
[6]‡I am like a desert owl of the wilderness, like an owl [1] of the waste places;
[7]‡I lie awake;
I am like a lonely sparrow on the housetop.
[8]All the day my enemies taunt me;
those who deride me use my name for a curse.
[9]For I eat ashes like bread and mingle tears with my drink, [10]‡because of your indignation and anger;
for you have taken me up and thrown me down.
[11]My days are like an evening shadow;
I wither away like grass.
[12]‡But you, O LORD, are enthroned forever;
you are remembered throughout all generations.
[13]‡You will arise and have pity on Zion;
it is the time to favor her;
the appointed time has come.
[14]For your servants hold her stones dear
and have pity on her dust.
[15]Nations will fear the name of the LORD, and all the kings of the earth will fear your glory.
[16]For the LORD builds up Zion;
he appears in his glory;
[17]he regards the prayer of the destitute and does not despise their prayer.

[18]†Let this be recorded for a generation to come,
so that a people yet to be created may praise the LORD:
[19]†that he looked down from his holy height;
from heaven the LORD looked at the earth, [20]to hear the groans of the prisoners,
to set free those who were doomed to die, [21]that they may declare in Zion the name of the LORD,
and in Jerusalem his praise, [22]†when peoples gather together,
and kingdoms, to worship the LORD.
[23]‡He has broken my strength in midcourse;
he has shortened my days.
[24]†“O my God,” I say, “take me not away in the midst of my days—
you whose years endure
throughout all generations!”
[25]‡Of old you laid the foundation of the earth, and the heavens are the work of your hands.
[26]They will perish, but you will remain;
they will all wear out like a garment.
You will change them like a robe, and they will pass away,
[27]but you are the same, and your years have no end.
[28]†The children of your servants shall dwell secure;
their offspring shall be established before you.

Bless the LORD, O My Soul

Of David.

PSALM 103 ‡†Bless the Lord, O my soul,
and all that is within me,
bless his holy name!
[2]†Bless the Lord, O my soul,
and forget not all his benefits, [3]†who forgives all your iniquity,
who heals all your diseases,
[4]who redeems your life from the pit,
who crowns you with steadfast love and mercy,
[5]†who satisfies you with good
so that your youth is renewed like the eagle's.
[6]‡The Lord works righteousness and justice for all who are oppressed.
[7]‡He made known his ways to Moses,
his acts to the people of Israel.
[8]The Lord is merciful and gracious,
slow to anger and abounding in steadfast love.
[9]†He will not always chide,
nor will he keep his anger forever.
[10]†He does not deal with us according to our sins,
nor repay us according to our iniquities.
[11]For as high as the heavens are above the earth,
so great is his steadfast love toward those who fear him;
[12]as far as the east is from the west,
so far does he remove our transgressions from us.
[13]†As a father shows compassion to his children,
so the Lord shows compassion to those who fear him.
[14]†For he knows our frame; [1]
he remembers that we are dust.
[15]‡As for man, his days are like grass;
he flourishes like a flower of the field;
[16]for the wind passes over it, and it is gone,
and its place knows it no more.
[17]‡But the steadfast love of the Lord is from everlasting to everlasting on those who fear him,
and his righteousness to children's children, [18]to those who keep his covenant and remember to do his commandments.

[19]†The LORD has established his throne in the heavens,
and his kingdom rules over all.
[20]†Bless the LORD, O you his angels,
you mighty ones who do his word,
obeying the voice of his word!
[21]Bless the LORD, all his hosts, his ministers, who do his will!
[22]†Bless the LORD, all his works,
in all places of his dominion.
Bless the LORD, O my soul!

O LORD My God, You Are Very Great

PSALM 104 ‡‡†Bless the LORD, O my soul!
O LORD my God, you are very great!
You are clothed with splendor and majesty,
[2]covering yourself with light as with a garment, stretching out the heavens like a tent.
[3]†He lays the beams of his chambers on the waters;
he makes the clouds his chariot;
he rides on the wings of the wind;
[4]†he makes his messengers winds,
his ministers a flaming fire.
[5]†He set the earth on its foundations,
so that it should never be moved.
[6]‡You covered it with the deep as with a garment;
the waters stood above the mountains.
[7]At your rebuke they fled;
at the sound of your thunder they took to flight.
[8]The mountains rose, the valleys sank down to the place that you appointed for them.
[9]You set a boundary that they may not pass,
so that they might not again cover the earth.
[10]‡You make springs gush forth in the valleys;
they flow between the hills;
[11]they give drink to every beast of the field;
the wild donkeys quench their thirst.
[12]Beside them the birds of the heavens dwell;
they sing among the branches.
[13]†From your lofty abode you water the mountains;
the earth is satisfied with the fruit of your work.
[14]You cause the grass to grow for the livestock and plants for man to cultivate,
that he may bring forth food from the earth [15]and wine to gladden the heart of man, oil to make his face shine and bread to strengthen man's heart.

[16]The trees of the LORD are watered abundantly,
the cedars of Lebanon that he planted.
[17]In them the birds build their nests;
the stork has her home in the fir trees.
[18]The high mountains are for the wild goats;
the rocks are a refuge for the rock badgers.
[19]‡He made the moon to mark the seasons; [1]
the sun knows its time for setting.
[20]You make darkness, and it is night,
when all the beasts of the forest creep about.
[21]The young lions roar for their prey, seeking their food from God.
[22]When the sun rises, they steal away
and lie down in their dens.
[23]Man goes out to his work and to his labor until the evening.
[24]‡O LORD, how manifold are your works!
In wisdom have you made them all;
the earth is full of your creatures.
[25]Here is the sea, great and wide,
which teems with creatures innumerable,
living things both small and great.
[26]†There go the ships,
and Leviathan, which you formed to play in it. [2] [27]‡These all look to you,
to give them their food in due season.
[28]When you give it to them, they gather it up;
when you open your hand, they are filled with good things.
[29]When you hide your face, they are dismayed;
when you take away their breath, they die
and return to their dust.
[30]†When you send forth your Spirit, [3] they are created,
and you renew the face of the ground.
[31]‡May the glory of the LORD endure forever;
may the LORD rejoice in his works, [32]†who looks on the earth and it trembles,

who touches the mountains and they smoke!
[33]I will sing to the LORD as long as I live;
I will sing praise to my God while I have being.
[34]May my meditation be pleasing to him,
for I rejoice in the LORD.
[35]†Let sinners be consumed from the earth,
and let the wicked be no more!
Bless the LORD, O my soul!
Praise the LORD!

Tell of All His Wonderful Works

PSALM 105 ‡‡Oh give thanks to the LORD; call upon his name;
make known his deeds among the peoples!
[2]Sing to him, sing praises to him;
tell of all his wondrous works!
[3]Glory in his holy name;
let the hearts of those who seek the LORD rejoice!
[4]Seek the LORD and his strength;
seek his presence continually!
[5]Remember the wondrous works that he has done,
his miracles, and the judgments he uttered, [6]†O offspring of Abraham, his servant,
children of Jacob, his chosen ones!
[7]‡He is the LORD our God;
his judgments are in all the earth.
[8]†He remembers his covenant forever,
the word that he commanded, for a thousand generations, [9]‡the covenant that he made with Abraham,
his sworn promise to Isaac,
[10]†which he confirmed to Jacob as a statute,
to Israel as an everlasting covenant, [11]†saying, “To you I will give the land of Canaan
as your portion for an inheritance.” [12]†When they were few in number,
of little account, and sojourners in it, [13]†wandering from nation to nation,
from one kingdom to another people, [14]†he allowed no one to oppress them;
he rebuked kings on their account, [15]†saying, “Touch not my anointed ones,
do my prophets no harm!”
[16]‡When he summoned a famine on the land and broke all supply [1] of bread, [17]he had sent a man ahead of them,

Joseph, who was sold as a slave.
[18]His feet were hurt with fetters;
his neck was put in a collar of iron; [19]until what he had said came to pass,
the word of the LORD tested him.
[20]The king sent and released him;
the ruler of the peoples set him free;
[21]he made him lord of his house
and ruler of all his possessions, [22]to bind [2] his princes at his pleasure and to teach his elders wisdom.
[23]‡†Then Israel came to Egypt;
Jacob sojourned in the land of Ham.
[24]And the LORD made his people very fruitful and made them stronger than their foes.
[25]He turned their hearts to hate his people,
to deal craftily with his servants.
[26]‡He sent Moses, his servant,
and Aaron, whom he had chosen.
[27]They performed his signs among them and miracles in the land of Ham.
[28]†He sent darkness, and made the land dark;
they did not rebel [3] against his words.
[29]†He turned their waters into blood and caused their fish to die.
[30]†Their land swarmed with frogs,
even in the chambers of their kings.
[31]†He spoke, and there came swarms of flies,
and gnats throughout their country.
[32]‡He gave them hail for rain,
and fiery lightning bolts through their land.
[33]He struck down their vines and fig trees,
and shattered the trees of their country.
[34]‡He spoke, and the locusts came,
young locusts without number,
[35]which devoured all the vegetation in their land and ate up the fruit of their ground.

[36]†He struck down all the firstborn in their land,
the firstfruits of all their strength.
[37]‡Then he brought out Israel with silver and gold,
and there was none among his tribes who stumbled.
[38]Egypt was glad when they departed,
for dread of them had fallen upon it.
[39]He spread a cloud for a covering,
and fire to give light by night.
[40]They asked, and he brought quail,
and gave them bread from heaven in abundance.
[41]He opened the rock, and water gushed out;
it flowed through the desert like a river.
[42]‡†For he remembered his holy promise,
and Abraham, his servant.
[43]So he brought his people out with joy,
his chosen ones with singing.
[44]And he gave them the lands of the nations,
and they took possession of the fruit of the peoples' toil, [45]†that they might keep his statutes and observe his laws.
Praise the LORD!

Give Thanks to the LORD, for He Is Good

PSALM 106 ‡†Praise the LORD!
Oh give thanks to the LORD, for he is good,
for his steadfast love endures forever!
[2]‡Who can utter the mighty deeds of the LORD,
or declare all his praise?
[3]Blessed are they who observe justice,
who do righteousness at all times!
[4]‡Remember me, O LORD, when you show favor to your people;
help me when you save them, [1]
[5]that I may look upon the prosperity of your chosen ones, that I may rejoice in the gladness of your nation,
that I may glory with your inheritance.
[6]†Both we and our fathers have sinned;
we have committed iniquity; we have done wickedness.
[7]‡†Our fathers, when they were in Egypt,
did not consider your wondrous works;
they did not remember the abundance of your steadfast love,
but rebelled by the sea, at the Red Sea.
[8]†Yet he saved them for his name's sake,
that he might make known his mighty power.
[9]†He rebuked the Red Sea, and it became dry, and he led them through the deep as through a desert.
[10]†So he saved them from the hand of the foe
and redeemed them from the power of the enemy.
[11]†And the waters covered their adversaries;
not one of them was left.
[12]†Then they believed his words;
they sang his praise.
[13]‡†But they soon forgot his works;
they did not wait for his counsel.
[14]†But they had a wanton craving in the wilderness,
and put God to the test in the desert;
[15]he gave them what they asked,

but sent a wasting disease among them.
[16]‡When men in the camp were jealous of Moses and Aaron, the holy one of the Lord, [17]the earth opened and swallowed up Dathan,
and covered the company of Abiram.
[18]Fire also broke out in their company;
the flame burned up the wicked.
[19]‡†They made a calf in Horeb and worshiped a metal image.
[20]They exchanged the glory of God for the image of an ox that eats grass.
[21]†They forgot God, their Savior,
who had done great things in Egypt, [22]†wondrous works in the land of Ham,
and awesome deeds by the Red Sea.
[23]†Therefore he said he would destroy them—had not Moses, his chosen one,
stood in the breach before him,
to turn away his wrath from destroying them.
[24]‡†Then they despised the pleasant land,
having no faith in his promise.
[25]They murmured in their tents,
and did not obey the voice of the Lord.
[26]Therefore he raised his hand and swore to them that he would make them fall in the wilderness, [27]and would make their offspring fall among the nations, scattering them among the lands.
[28]‡†Then they yoked themselves to the Baal of Peor,
and ate sacrifices offered to the dead;
[29]they provoked the Lord to anger with their deeds,
and a plague broke out among them.
[30]†Then Phinehas stood up and intervened,
and the plague was stayed.
[31]†And that was counted to him as righteousness from generation to generation forever.
[32]‡†They angered him at the waters of Meribah,
and it went ill with Moses on their account,

[33]‡for they made his spirit bitter, [2]
and he spoke rashly with his lips.
[34]‡They did not destroy the peoples,
as the LORD commanded them, [35]but they mixed with the nations and learned to do as they did.
[36]‡They served their idols,
which became a snare to them.
[37]They sacrificed their sons and their daughters to the demons; [38]they poured out innocent blood,
the blood of their sons and daughters,
whom they sacrificed to the idols of Canaan,
and the land was polluted with blood.
[39]‡Thus they became unclean by their acts,
and played the whore in their deeds.
[40]‡Then the anger of the LORD was kindled against his people,
and he abhorred his heritage;
[41]he gave them into the hand of the nations,
so that those who hated them ruled over them.
[42]Their enemies oppressed them,
and they were brought into subjection under their power.
[43]Many times he delivered them,
but they were rebellious in their purposes
and were brought low through their iniquity.
[44]‡Nevertheless, he looked upon their distress,
when he heard their cry.
[45]‡For their sake he remembered his covenant,
and relented according to the abundance of his steadfast love.
[46]He caused them to be pitied
by all those who held them captive.
[47]‡Save us, O LORD our God, and gather us from among the nations,
that we may give thanks to your holy name
and glory in your praise.
[48]‡Blessed be the LORD, the God of Israel,
from everlasting to everlasting!

And let all the people say, “Amen!”
Praise the LORD!

Book Five

Let the Redeemed of the LORD Say So

PSALM 107 ‡‡Oh give thanks to the LORD, for he is good,
for his steadfast love endures forever!
[2]Let the redeemed of the LORD say so,
whom he has redeemed from trouble [1] [3]and gathered in from the lands, from the east and from the west,
from the north and from the south.
[4]‡‡Some wandered in desert wastes, finding no way to a city to dwell in;
[5]hungry and thirsty,
their soul fainted within them.
[6]Then they cried to the LORD in their trouble,
and he delivered them from their distress.
[7]He led them by a straight way till they reached a city to dwell in.
[8]Let them thank the LORD for his steadfast love,
for his wondrous works to the children of man!
[9]For he satisfies the longing soul,
and the hungry soul he fills with good things.
[10]‡Some sat in darkness and in the shadow of death,
prisoners in affliction and in irons, [11]for they had rebelled against the words of God,
and spurned the counsel of the Most High.
[12]So he bowed their hearts down with hard labor;
they fell down, with none to help.
[13]Then they cried to the LORD in their trouble,
and he delivered them from their distress.
[14]He brought them out of darkness and the shadow of death,
and burst their bonds apart.
[15]Let them thank the LORD for his steadfast love,
for his wondrous works to the children of man!
[16]For he shatters the doors of bronze and cuts in two the bars of iron.
[17]‡Some were fools through their sinful ways,
and because of their iniquities suffered affliction;
[18]they loathed any kind of food,
and they drew near to the gates of death.

[19]Then they cried to the LORD in their trouble,
and he delivered them from their distress.
[20]He sent out his word and healed them,
and delivered them from their destruction.
[21]Let them thank the LORD for his steadfast love,
for his wondrous works to the children of man!
[22]And let them offer sacrifices of thanksgiving,
and tell of his deeds in songs of joy!
[23]‡Some went down to the sea in ships,
doing business on the great waters;
[24]they saw the deeds of the LORD,
his wondrous works in the deep.
[25]For he commanded and raised the stormy wind,
which lifted up the waves of the sea.
[26]They mounted up to heaven; they went down to the depths;
their courage melted away in their evil plight;
[27]they reeled and staggered like drunken men
and were at their wits' end. [2]
[28]Then they cried to the LORD in their trouble,
and he delivered them from their distress.
[29]He made the storm be still,
and the waves of the sea were hushed.
[30]Then they were glad that the waters [3] were quiet,
and he brought them to their desired haven.
[31]Let them thank the LORD for his steadfast love,
for his wondrous works to the children of man!
[32]Let them extol him in the congregation of the people,
and praise him in the assembly of the elders.
[33]‡‡He turns rivers into a desert,
springs of water into thirsty ground, [34]a fruitful land into a salty waste,
because of the evil of its inhabitants.
[35]‡He turns a desert into pools of water,
a parched land into springs of water.
[36]And there he lets the hungry dwell,
and they establish a city to live in;
[37]they sow fields and plant vineyards and get a fruitful yield.

[38]By his blessing they multiply greatly,
and he does not let their livestock diminish.
[39]‡When they are diminished and brought low through oppression, evil, and sorrow, [40]he pours contempt on princes and makes them wander in trackless wastes; [41]‡but he raises up the needy out of affliction and makes their families like flocks.
[42]The upright see it and are glad,
and all wickedness shuts its mouth.
[43]†Whoever is wise, let him attend to these things;
let them consider the steadfast love of the LORD.

With God We Shall Do Valiantly

A Song. A Psalm of David.

PSALM 108 ‡My heart is steadfast, O God!
I will sing and make melody with all my being! [1]
[2]Awake, O harp and lyre!
I will awake the dawn!
[3]I will give thanks to you, O LORD, among the peoples;
I will sing praises to you among the nations.
[4]For your steadfast love is great above the heavens;
your faithfulness reaches to the clouds.
[5]Be exalted, O God, above the heavens!
Let your glory be over all the earth!
[6]That your beloved ones may be delivered,
give salvation by your right hand and answer me!
[7]God has promised in his holiness: [2]
“With exultation I will divide up Shechem
and portion out the Valley of Succoth.
[8]Gilead is mine; Manasseh is mine;
Ephraim is my helmet,
Judah my scepter.
[9]Moab is my washbasin;
upon Edom I cast my shoe;
over Philistia I shout in triumph.”
[10]Who will bring me to the fortified city?
Who will lead me to Edom?
[11]Have you not rejected us, O God?
You do not go out, O God, with our armies.
[12]Oh grant us help against the foe,
for vain is the salvation of man!
[13]With God we shall do valiantly;
it is he who will tread down our foes.

Help Me, O LORD My God

To the choirmaster. A Psalm of David.

PSALM 109 ‡†Be not silent, O God of my praise!
[2]‡†For wicked and deceitful mouths are opened against me,
speaking against me with lying tongues.
[3]They encircle me with words of hate,
and attack me without cause.
[4]In return for my love they accuse me,
but I give myself to prayer. [1] [5]So they reward me evil for good,
and hatred for my love.
[6]‡Appoint a wicked man against him;
let an accuser stand at his right hand.
[7]When he is tried, let him come forth guilty;
let his prayer be counted as sin!
[8]‡May his days be few;
may another take his office!
[9]May his children be fatherless and his wife a widow!
[10]May his children wander about and beg,
seeking food far from the ruins they inhabit!
[11]May the creditor seize all that he has;
may strangers plunder the fruits of his toil!
[12]Let there be none to extend kindness to him,
nor any to pity his fatherless children!
[13]May his posterity be cut off;
may his name be blotted out in the second generation!
[14]May the iniquity of his fathers be remembered before the LORD, and let not the sin of his mother be blotted out!
[15]Let them be before the LORD continually, that he may cut off the memory of them from the earth!
[16]For he did not remember to show kindness, but pursued the poor and needy
and the brokenhearted, to put them to death.
[17]He loved to curse; let curses come [2] upon him!
He did not delight in blessing; may it be far [3] from him!
[18]He clothed himself with cursing as his coat;
may it soak [4] into his body like water,
like oil into his bones!

[19]May it be like a garment that he wraps around him,
like a belt that he puts on every day!
[20]May this be the reward of my accusers from the LORD,
of those who speak evil against my life!
[21]†But you, O GOD my Lord, deal on my behalf for your name's sake;
because your steadfast love is good, deliver me!
[22]For I am poor and needy,
and my heart is stricken within me.
[23]I am gone like a shadow at evening;
I am shaken off like a locust.
[24]My knees are weak through fasting;
my body has become gaunt, with no fat.
[25]I am an object of scorn to my accusers;
when they see me, they wag their heads.
[26]Help me, O LORD my God!
Save me according to your steadfast love!
[27]Let them know that this is your hand;
you, O LORD, have done it!
[28]Let them curse, but you will bless!
They arise and are put to shame, but your servant will be glad!
[29]May my accusers be clothed with dishonor;
may they be wrapped in their own shame as in a cloak!
[30]†With my mouth I will give great thanks to the LORD;
I will praise him in the midst of the throng.
[31]For he stands at the right hand of the needy one,
to save him from those who condemn his soul to death.

Sit at My Right Hand

A Psalm of David.

PSALM 110 ‡†The LORD says to my Lord:
        “Sit at my right hand,
until I make your enemies your footstool.”
[2]†The LORD sends forth from Zion your mighty scepter.
        Rule in the midst of your enemies!
[3]†Your people will offer themselves freely on the day of your power, [1]
        in holy garments; [2]
from the womb of the morning,
        the dew of your youth will be yours. [3] [4]†The LORD has sworn and will not change his mind,
“You are a priest forever
        after the order of Melchizedek.”
[5]†The Lord is at your right hand;
        he will shatter kings on the day of his wrath.
[6]†He will execute judgment among the nations,
        filling them with corpses;
he will shatter chiefs [4]
        over the wide earth.
[7]†He will drink from the brook by the way;
        therefore he will lift up his head.

Great Are the LORD's Works

PSALM 111 ‡† [1] Praise the LORD!
I will give thanks to the LORD with my whole heart,
in the company of the upright, in the congregation.
[2]‡Great are the works of the LORD, studied by all who delight in them.
[3]Full of splendor and majesty is his work,
and his righteousness endures forever.
[4]He has caused his wondrous works to be remembered;
the LORD is gracious and merciful.
[5]†He provides food for those who fear him;
he remembers his covenant forever.
[6]†He has shown his people the power of his works,
in giving them the inheritance of the nations.
[7]The works of his hands are faithful and just;
all his precepts are trustworthy;
[8]they are established forever and ever,
to be performed with faithfulness and uprightness.
[9]†He sent redemption to his people;
he has commanded his covenant forever.
Holy and awesome is his name!
[10]†The fear of the LORD is the beginning of wisdom;
all those who practice it have a good understanding.
His praise endures forever!

The Righteous Will Never Be Moved

PSALM 112 ‡† [1] Praise the LORD!
Blessed is the man who fears the LORD,
who greatly delights in his commandments!
[2]‡His offspring will be mighty in the land;
the generation of the upright will be blessed.
[3]Wealth and riches are in his house,
and his righteousness endures forever.
[4]Light dawns in the darkness for the upright;
he is gracious, merciful, and righteous.
[5]It is well with the man who deals generously and lends;
who conducts his affairs with justice.
[6]For the righteous will never be moved;
he will be remembered forever.
[7]He is not afraid of bad news;
his heart is firm, trusting in the LORD.
[8]His heart is steady; he will not be afraid,
until he looks in triumph on his adversaries.
[9]†He has distributed freely; he has given to the poor;
his righteousness endures forever;
his horn is exalted in honor.
[10]†The wicked man sees it and is angry;
he gnashes his teeth and melts away;
the desire of the wicked will perish!

Who Is like the LORD Our God?

PSALM 113 ‡†Praise the LORD!
Praise, O servants of the LORD,
praise the name of the LORD!
[2]†Blessed be the name of the LORD
from this time forth and forevermore!
[3]†From the rising of the sun to its setting,
the name of the LORD is to be praised!
[4]‡The LORD is high above all nations,
and his glory above the heavens!
[5]Who is like the LORD our God,
who is seated on high,
[6]‡who looks far down
on the heavens and the earth?
[7]‡He raises the poor from the dust
and lifts the needy from the ash heap, [8]to make them sit with princes,
with the princes of his people.
[9]†He gives the barren woman a home, making her the joyous mother of children.
Praise the LORD!

Tremble at the Presence of the Lord

PSALM 114 ‡When Israel went out from Egypt,
the house of Jacob from a people of strange language,
[2]†Judah became his sanctuary,
Israel his dominion.
[3]†The sea looked and fled;
Jordan turned back.
[4]†The mountains skipped like rams,
the hills like lambs.
[5]‡What ails you, O sea, that you flee?
O Jordan, that you turn back?
[6]O mountains, that you skip like rams?
O hills, like lambs?
[7]†Tremble, O earth, at the presence of the Lord,
at the presence of the God of Jacob, [8]†who turns the rock into a pool of water,
the flint into a spring of water.

To Your Name Give Glory

PSALM 115 ‡†Not to us, O LORD, not to us, but to your name give glory, for the sake of your steadfast love and your faithfulness!
[2]†Why should the nations say,
“Where is their God?”
[3]†Our God is in the heavens;
he does all that he pleases.
[4]‡Their idols are silver and gold,
the work of human hands.
[5]They have mouths, but do not speak;
eyes, but do not see.
[6]They have ears, but do not hear;
noses, but do not smell.
[7]They have hands, but do not feel;
feet, but do not walk;
and they do not make a sound in their throat.
[8]Those who make them become like them;
so do all who trust in them.
[9]‡O Israel, [1] trust in the LORD!
He is their help and their shield.
[10]O house of Aaron, trust in the LORD!
He is their help and their shield.
[11]You who fear the LORD, trust in the LORD!
He is their help and their shield.
[12]The LORD has remembered us; he will bless us;
he will bless the house of Israel;
he will bless the house of Aaron;
[13]he will bless those who fear the LORD,
both the small and the great.
[14]May the LORD give you increase,
you and your children!
[15]May you be blessed by the LORD,
who made heaven and earth!

[16][†]The heavens are the LORD's heavens,
but the earth he has given to the children of man.
[17]The dead do not praise the LORD,
nor do any who go down into silence.
[18]But we will bless the LORD
from this time forth and forevermore.
Praise the LORD!

I Love the LORD

PSALM 116 ‡I love the LORD, because he has heard my voice and my pleas for mercy.
[2]Because he inclined his ear to me,
therefore I will call on him as long as I live.
[3]†The snares of death encompassed me;
the pangs of Sheol laid hold on me;
I suffered distress and anguish.
[4]Then I called on the name of the LORD:
“O LORD, I pray, deliver my soul!”
[5]Gracious is the LORD, and righteous;
our God is merciful.
[6]The LORD preserves the simple;
when I was brought low, he saved me.
[7]Return, O my soul, to your rest;
for the LORD has dealt bountifully with you.
[8]For you have delivered my soul from death,
my eyes from tears,
my feet from stumbling;
[9]†I will walk before the LORD
in the land of the living.
[10]†I believed, even when [1] I spoke,
“I am greatly afflicted”;
[11]†I said in my alarm,
“All mankind are liars.”
[12]†What shall I render to the LORD for all his benefits to me?
[13]†I will lift up the cup of salvation
and call on the name of the LORD,
[14]†I will pay my vows to the LORD
in the presence of all his people.
[15]‡Precious in the sight of the LORD is the death of his saints.
[16]O LORD, I am your servant;

I am your servant, the son of your maidservant.
You have loosed my bonds.
[17]‡†I will offer to you the sacrifice of thanksgiving
and call on the name of the LORD.
[18]I will pay my vows to the LORD
in the presence of all his people, [19]†in the courts of the house of the LORD,
in your midst, O Jerusalem.
Praise the LORD!

The LORD's Faithfulness Endures Forever

PSALM 117 ‡†Praise the LORD, all nations!
Extol him, all peoples!
[2] †For great is his steadfast love toward us,
and the faithfulness of the LORD endures forever.
Praise the LORD!

His Steadfast Love Endures Forever

PSALM 118 ‡†Oh give thanks to the LORD, for he is good;
for his steadfast love endures forever!
[2]‡Let Israel say,
“His steadfast love endures forever.”
[3]Let the house of Aaron say,
“His steadfast love endures forever.”
[4]Let those who fear the LORD say,
“His steadfast love endures forever.”
[5]‡‡Out of my distress I called on the LORD;
the LORD answered me and set me free.
[6]†The LORD is on my side; I will not fear.
What can man do to me?
[7]The LORD is on my side as my helper;
I shall look in triumph on those who hate me.
[8]It is better to take refuge in the LORD
than to trust in man.
[9]It is better to take refuge in the LORD
than to trust in princes.
[10]‡All nations surrounded me;
in the name of the LORD I cut them off!
[11]They surrounded me, surrounded me on every side;
in the name of the LORD I cut them off!
[12]†They surrounded me like bees;
they went out like a fire among thorns;
in the name of the LORD I cut them off!
[13]†I was pushed hard, [1] so that I was falling,
but the LORD helped me.
[14]†The LORD is my strength and my song;
he has become my salvation.
[15]‡‡Glad songs of salvation are in the tents of the righteous:
“The right hand of the LORD does valiantly,
[16]the right hand of the LORD exalts,

the right hand of the LORD does valiantly!”
[17]I shall not die, but I shall live, and recount the deeds of the LORD.
[18]†The LORD has disciplined me severely,
but he has not given me over to death.
[19]‡†Open to me the gates of righteousness, that I may enter through them
and give thanks to the LORD.
[20]†This is the gate of the LORD;
the righteous shall enter through it.
[21]†I thank you that you have answered me
and have become my salvation.
[22]‡†The stone that the builders rejected has become the cornerstone. [2] [23]This is the LORD's doing;
it is marvelous in our eyes.
[24]†This is the day that the LORD has made;
let us rejoice and be glad in it.
[25]†Save us, we pray, O LORD!
O LORD, we pray, give us success!
[26]†Blessed is he who comes in the name of the LORD!
We bless you from the house of the LORD.
[27]†The LORD is God,
and he has made his light to shine upon us.
Bind the festal sacrifice with cords,
up to the horns of the altar!
[28]†You are my God, and I will give thanks to you;
you are my God; I will extol you.
[29]†Oh give thanks to the LORD, for he is good;
for his steadfast love endures forever!

Your Word Is a Lamp to My Feet

Aleph

PSALM 119 ‡‡† [1] Blessed are those whose way is blameless, who walk in the law of the LORD!
[2]†Blessed are those who keep his testimonies,
who seek him with their whole heart, [3]who also do no wrong,
but walk in his ways!
[4]†You have commanded your precepts to be kept diligently.
[5]‡Oh that my ways may be steadfast
in keeping your statutes!
[6]Then I shall not be put to shame,
having my eyes fixed on all your commandments.
[7]†I will praise you with an upright heart,
when I learn your righteous rules. [2] [8]I will keep your statutes;
do not utterly forsake me!

Beth

[9]‡How can a young man keep his way pure?
By guarding it according to your word.
[10]With my whole heart I seek you;
let me not wander from your commandments!
[11]I have stored up your word in my heart,
that I might not sin against you.
[12]†Blessed are you, O LORD;
teach me your statutes!
[13]With my lips I declare all the rules [3] of your mouth.
[14]†In the way of your testimonies I delight
as much as in all riches.
[15]†I will meditate on your precepts and fix my eyes on your ways.
[16]†I will delight in your statutes;
I will not forget your word.

Gimel

[17]Deal bountifully with your servant,
that I may live and keep your word.
[18]†Open my eyes, that I may behold wondrous things out of your law.
[19]†I am a sojourner on the earth;
hide not your commandments from me!
[20]†My soul is consumed with longing for your rules [4] at all times.
[21]†You rebuke the insolent, accursed ones,
who wander from your commandments.
[22]Take away from me scorn and contempt,
for I have kept your testimonies.
[23]Even though princes sit plotting against me,
your servant will meditate on your statutes.
[24]†Your testimonies are my delight;
they are my counselors.

Daleth

[25]†My soul clings to the dust;
give me life according to your word!
[26]When I told of my ways, you answered me;
teach me your statutes!
[27]†Make me understand the way of your precepts,
and I will meditate on your wondrous works.
[28]†My soul melts away for sorrow;
strengthen me according to your word!
[29]†Put false ways far from me
and graciously teach me your law!
[30]I have chosen the way of faithfulness;
I set your rules before me.
[31]I cling to your testimonies, O Lord;
let me not be put to shame!
[32]†I will run in the way of your commandments
when you enlarge my heart! [5]

He

[33]Teach me, O LORD, the way of your statutes;
and I will keep it to the end. [6] [34]Give me understanding, that I may keep your law and observe it with my whole heart.
[35]Lead me in the path of your commandments,
for I delight in it.
[36]Incline my heart to your testimonies,
and not to selfish gain!
[37]†Turn my eyes from looking at worthless things;
and give me life in your ways.
[38]Confirm to your servant your promise,
that you may be feared.
[39]†Turn away the reproach that I dread,
for your rules are good.
[40]Behold, I long for your precepts;
in your righteousness give me life!

Waw

[41]†Let your steadfast love come to me, O LORD, your salvation according to your promise; [42]then shall I have an answer for him who taunts me,
for I trust in your word.
[43]†And take not the word of truth utterly out of my mouth,
for my hope is in your rules.
[44]I will keep your law continually,
forever and ever,
[45]and I shall walk in a wide place,
for I have sought your precepts.
[46]I will also speak of your testimonies before kings and shall not be put to shame, [47]‡for I find my delight in your commandments, which I love.
[48]I will lift up my hands toward your commandments, which I love, and I will meditate on your statutes.

Zayin

[49]Remember your word to your servant,
in which you have made me hope.
[50]†This is my comfort in my affliction,
that your promise gives me life.
[51]The insolent utterly deride me,
but I do not turn away from your law.
[52]When I think of your rules from of old,
I take comfort, O LORD.
[53]Hot indignation seizes me because of the wicked,
who forsake your law.
[54]Your statutes have been my songs
in the house of my sojourning.
[55]I remember your name in the night, O LORD,
and keep your law.
[56]This blessing has fallen to me,
that I have kept your precepts.

Heth

[57]The LORD is my portion;
I promise to keep your words.
[58]I entreat your favor with all my heart;
be gracious to me according to your promise.
[59]When I think on my ways,
I turn my feet to your testimonies;
[60]I hasten and do not delay
to keep your commandments.
[61]Though the cords of the wicked ensnare me,
I do not forget your law.
[62]At midnight I rise to praise you,
because of your righteous rules.
[63]I am a companion of all who fear you,
of those who keep your precepts.
[64]The earth, O LORD, is full of your steadfast love;
teach me your statutes!

Teth

[65]You have dealt well with your servant,
O LORD, according to your word.
[66]Teach me good judgment and knowledge,
for I believe in your commandments.
[67]Before I was afflicted I went astray,
but now I keep your word.
[68]†You are good and do good;
teach me your statutes.
[69]The insolent smear me with lies,
but with my whole heart I keep your precepts; [70]†their heart is unfeeling like fat,
but I delight in your law.
[71]It is good for me that I was afflicted, that I might learn your statutes.
[72]The law of your mouth is better to me than thousands of gold and silver pieces.

Yodh

[73]†Your hands have made and fashioned me;
give me understanding that I may learn your commandments.
[74]Those who fear you shall see me and rejoice, because I have hoped in your word.
[75]†I know, O LORD, that your rules are righteous, and that in faithfulness you have afflicted me.
[76]Let your steadfast love comfort me
according to your promise to your servant.
[77]Let your mercy come to me, that I may live;
for your law is my delight.
[78]Let the insolent be put to shame,
because they have wronged me with falsehood;
as for me, I will meditate on your precepts.
[79]Let those who fear you turn to me,
that they may know your testimonies.
[80]May my heart be blameless in your statutes, that I may not be put to shame!

Kaph

[81]My soul longs for your salvation;
I hope in your word.
[82]My eyes long for your promise;
I ask, “When will you comfort me?”
[83]†For I have become like a wineskin in the smoke, yet I have not forgotten your statutes.
[84]How long must your servant endure? [7]
When will you judge those who persecute me?
[85]The insolent have dug pitfalls for me;
they do not live according to your law.
[86]All your commandments are sure;
they persecute me with falsehood; help me!
[87]They have almost made an end of me on earth,
but I have not forsaken your precepts.
[88]In your steadfast love give me life,
that I may keep the testimonies of your mouth.

Lamedh

[89]†Forever, O LORD, your word is firmly fixed in the heavens.
[90]Your faithfulness endures to all generations;
you have established the earth, and it stands fast.
[91]By your appointment they stand this day,
for all things are your servants.
[92]If your law had not been my delight,
I would have perished in my affliction.
[93]I will never forget your precepts,
for by them you have given me life.
[94]I am yours; save me,
for I have sought your precepts.
[95]The wicked lie in wait to destroy me,
but I consider your testimonies.
[96]I have seen a limit to all perfection,
but your commandment is exceedingly broad.

Mem

[97]Oh how I love your law!
It is my meditation all the day.
[98]‡Your commandment makes me wiser than my enemies,
for it is ever with me.
[99]I have more understanding than all my teachers,
for your testimonies are my meditation.
[100]I understand more than the aged, [8]
for I keep your precepts.
[101]I hold back my feet from every evil way,
in order to keep your word.
[102]I do not turn aside from your rules,
for you have taught me.
[103]How sweet are your words to my taste,
sweeter than honey to my mouth!
[104]Through your precepts I get understanding;
therefore I hate every false way.

Nun

[105]†Your word is a lamp to my feet
and a light to my path.
[106]I have sworn an oath and confirmed it,
to keep your righteous rules.
[107]I am severely afflicted;
give me life, O LORD, according to your word!
[108]Accept my freewill offerings of praise, O LORD,
and teach me your rules.
[109]I hold my life in my hand continually,
but I do not forget your law.
[110]The wicked have laid a snare for me,
but I do not stray from your precepts.
[111]†Your testimonies are my heritage forever,
for they are the joy of my heart.
[112]I incline my heart to perform your statutes forever, to the end. [9]

Samekh

[113]I hate the double-minded,
but I love your law.
[114]You are my hiding place and my shield;
I hope in your word.
[115]Depart from me, you evildoers,
that I may keep the commandments of my God.
[116]Uphold me according to your promise, that I may live, and let me not be put to shame in my hope!
[117]Hold me up, that I may be safe and have regard for your statutes continually!
[118]‡You spurn all who go astray from your statutes,
for their cunning is in vain.
[119]All the wicked of the earth you discard like dross, therefore I love your testimonies.
[120]My flesh trembles for fear of you,
and I am afraid of your judgments.

Ayin

[121]I have done what is just and right;
do not leave me to my oppressors.
[122]Give your servant a pledge of good;
let not the insolent oppress me.
[123]My eyes long for your salvation and for the fulfillment of your righteous promise.
[124]Deal with your servant according to your steadfast love,
and teach me your statutes.
[125]I am your servant; give me understanding,
that I may know your testimonies!
[126]It is time for the LORD to act,
for your law has been broken.
[127]Therefore I love your commandments above gold, above fine gold.
[128]†Therefore I consider all your precepts to be right;
I hate every false way.

Pe

[129]Your testimonies are wonderful;
therefore my soul keeps them.
[130]†The unfolding of your words gives light;
it imparts understanding to the simple.
[131]†I open my mouth and pant,
because I long for your commandments.
[132]Turn to me and be gracious to me,
as is your way with those who love your name.
[133]Keep steady my steps according to your promise,
and let no iniquity get dominion over me.
[134]Redeem me from man's oppression,
that I may keep your precepts.
[135]Make your face shine upon your servant,
and teach me your statutes.
[136]†My eyes shed streams of tears,
because people do not keep your law.

Tsadhe

[137]Righteous are you, O LORD, and right are your rules.
[138]You have appointed your testimonies in righteousness and in all faithfulness.
[139]My zeal consumes me,
because my foes forget your words.
[140]†Your promise is well tried,
and your servant loves it.
[141]I am small and despised,
yet I do not forget your precepts.
[142]Your righteousness is righteous forever,
and your law is true.
[143]Trouble and anguish have found me out,
but your commandments are my delight.
[144]Your testimonies are righteous forever;
give me understanding that I may live.

Qoph

[145]With my whole heart I cry; answer me, O LORD!
I will keep your statutes.
[146]I call to you; save me,
that I may observe your testimonies.
[147]I rise before dawn and cry for help;
I hope in your words.
[148]My eyes are awake before the watches of the night,
that I may meditate on your promise.
[149]Hear my voice according to your steadfast love;
O LORD, according to your justice give me life.
[150]They draw near who persecute me with evil purpose;
they are far from your law.
[151]But you are near, O LORD,
and all your commandments are true.
[152]Long have I known from your testimonies that you have founded them forever.

Resh

[153]Look on my affliction and deliver me,
for I do not forget your law.
[154]Plead my cause and redeem me;
give me life according to your promise!
[155]†Salvation is far from the wicked,
for they do not seek your statutes.
[156]Great is your mercy, O LORD;
give me life according to your rules.
[157]Many are my persecutors and my adversaries,
but I do not swerve from your testimonies.
[158]I look at the faithless with disgust,
because they do not keep your commands.
[159]Consider how I love your precepts!
Give me life according to your steadfast love.
[160]†The sum of your word is truth,
and every one of your righteous rules endures forever.

Sin and Shin

[161]†Princes persecute me without cause,
but my heart stands in awe of your words.
[162]I rejoice at your word like one who finds great spoil.
[163]†I hate and abhor falsehood,
but I love your law.
[164]†Seven times a day I praise you for your righteous rules.
[165]Great peace have those who love your law;
nothing can make them stumble.
[166]I hope for your salvation, O LORD,
and I do your commandments.
[167]My soul keeps your testimonies;
I love them exceedingly.
[168]I keep your precepts and testimonies,
for all my ways are before you.

Taw

[169]Let my cry come before you, O LORD;
give me understanding according to your word!
[170]Let my plea come before you;
deliver me according to your word.
[171]My lips will pour forth praise,
for you teach me your statutes.
[172]My tongue will sing of your word,
for all your commandments are right.
[173]†Let your hand be ready to help me,
for I have chosen your precepts.
[174]I long for your salvation, O LORD,
and your law is my delight.
[175]Let my soul live and praise you,
and let your rules help me.
[176]†I have gone astray like a lost sheep; seek your servant,
for I do not forget your commandments.

Deliver Me, O LORD

A Song of Ascents.

PSALM 120 ‡In my distress I called to the LORD, and he answered me.
[2]†Deliver me, O LORD,
from lying lips,
from a deceitful tongue.
[3]What shall be given to you,
and what more shall be done to you,
you deceitful tongue?
[4]†A warrior's sharp arrows,
with glowing coals of the broom tree!
[5]‡†Woe to me, that I sojourn in Meshech, that I dwell among the tents of Kedar!
[6]Too long have I had my dwelling among those who hate peace.
[7]I am for peace,
but when I speak, they are for war!

My Help Comes from the LORD

A Song of Ascents.

PSALM 121 ‡†I lift up my eyes to the hills.
From where does my help come?
[2]†My help comes from the Lord,
who made heaven and earth.
[3]‡†He will not let your foot be moved;
he who keeps you will not slumber.
[4]Behold, he who keeps Israel will neither slumber nor sleep.
[5]†The Lord is your keeper;
the Lord is your shade on your right hand.
[6]†The sun shall not strike you by day,
nor the moon by night.
[7]‡The Lord will keep you from all evil;
he will keep your life.
[8]The Lord will keep your going out and your coming in
from this time forth and forevermore.

Let Us Go to the House of the LORD

A Song of Ascents. Of David.

PSALM 122 ††I was glad when they said to me,
“Let us go to the house of the LORD!”
[2]†Our feet have been standing within your gates, O Jerusalem!
[3]†Jerusalem—built as a city that is bound firmly together, [4]†to which the tribes go up,
the tribes of the LORD,
as was decreed for [1] Israel,
to give thanks to the name of the LORD.
[5]There thrones for judgment were set,
the thrones of the house of David.
[6]†Pray for the peace of Jerusalem!
“May they be secure who love you!
[7]Peace be within your walls and security within your towers!”
[8]For my brothers and companions' sake
I will say, “Peace be within you!”
[9]For the sake of the house of the LORD our God,
I will seek your good.

Our Eyes Look to the LORD Our God

A Song of Ascents.

PSALM 123 ††To you I lift up my eyes,
O you who are enthroned in the heavens!
[2]†Behold, as the eyes of servants look to the hand of their master, as the eyes of a maidservant
to the hand of her mistress, so our eyes look to the LORD our God,
till he has mercy upon us.
[3]†Have mercy upon us, O LORD, have mercy upon us,
for we have had more than enough of contempt.
[4]Our soul has had more than enough of the scorn of those who are at ease,
of the contempt of the proud.

Our Help Is in the Name of the LORD

A Song of Ascents. Of David.

PSALM 124 ‡‡If it had not been the LORD who was on our side—
let Israel now say—
[2]†if it had not been the LORD who was on our side
when people rose up against us, [3]then they would have swallowed us up alive,
when their anger was kindled against us;
[4]‡then the flood would have swept us away,
the torrent would have gone over us;
[5]then over us would have gone
the raging waters.
[6]Blessed be the LORD,
who has not given us
as prey to their teeth!
[7]We have escaped like a bird from the snare of the fowlers;
the snare is broken,
and we have escaped!
[8]†Our help is in the name of the LORD,
who made heaven and earth.

The LORD Surrounds His People

A Song of Ascents.

PSALM 125 ‡‡†Those who trust in the LORD are like Mount Zion, which cannot be moved, but abides forever.
[2]†As the mountains surround Jerusalem,
so the LORD surrounds his people,
from this time forth and forevermore.
[3]†For the scepter of wickedness shall not rest on the land allotted to the righteous, lest the righteous stretch out their hands to do wrong.
[4]‡Do good, O LORD, to those who are good,
and to those who are upright in their hearts!
[5]†But those who turn aside to their crooked ways
the LORD will lead away with evildoers!
Peace be upon Israel!

Restore Our Fortunes, O LORD

A Song of Ascents.

PSALM 126 ‡†When the LORD restored the fortunes of Zion, we were like those who dream.
[2]‡Then our mouth was filled with laughter,
and our tongue with shouts of joy;
then they said among the nations,
“The LORD has done great things for them.”
[3]The LORD has done great things for us;
we are glad.
[4]†Restore our fortunes, O LORD,
like streams in the Negeb!
[5]‡Those who sow in tears shall reap with shouts of joy!
[6]He who goes out weeping, bearing the seed for sowing,
shall come home with shouts of joy,
bringing his sheaves with him.

Unless the LORD Builds the House

A Song of Ascents. Of Solomon.

PSALM 127 ‡‡Unless the LORD builds the house,
those who build it labor in vain.
Unless the LORD watches over the city,
the watchman stays awake in vain.
[2]‡It is in vain that you rise up early and go late to rest,
eating the bread of anxious toil;
for he gives to his beloved sleep.
[3]‡‡Behold, children are a heritage from the LORD,
the fruit of the womb a reward.
[4]‡Like arrows in the hand of a warrior are the children [1] of one's youth.
[5]Blessed is the man who fills his quiver with them!
He shall not be put to shame
when he speaks with his enemies in the gate. [2]

Blessed Is Everyone Who Fears the LORD

A Song of Ascents.

PSALM 128 ‡†Blessed is everyone who fears the LORD,
who walks in his ways!
[2]‡You shall eat the fruit of the labor of your hands;
you shall be blessed, and it shall be well with you.
[3]†Your wife will be like a fruitful vine
within your house;
your children will be like olive shoots
around your table.
[4]Behold, thus shall the man be blessed who fears the LORD.
[5]‡The LORD bless you from Zion!
May you see the prosperity of Jerusalem
all the days of your life!
[6]†May you see your children's children!
Peace be upon Israel!

They Have Afflicted Me from My Youth

A Song of Ascents.

PSALM 129 ‡†“Greatly [1] have they afflicted me from my youth”—
let Israel now say—
[2]†“Greatly have they afflicted me from my youth,
yet they have not prevailed against me.
[3]†The plowers plowed upon my back;
they made long their furrows.”
[4]†The LORD is righteous;
he has cut the cords of the wicked.
[5]‡May all who hate Zion
be put to shame and turned backward!
[6]†Let them be like the grass on the housetops,
which withers before it grows up, [7]with which the reaper does not fill his hand
nor the binder of sheaves his arms,
[8]nor do those who pass by say,
“The blessing of the LORD be upon you!
We bless you in the name of the LORD!”

My Soul Waits for the Lord

A Song of Ascents.

PSALM 130 ‡†Out of the depths I cry to you, O LORD!
[2]O Lord, hear my voice!
Let your ears be attentive
to the voice of my pleas for mercy!
[3]‡If you, O LORD, should mark iniquities,
O Lord, who could stand?
[4]But with you there is forgiveness,
that you may be feared.
[5]†I wait for the LORD, my soul waits,
and in his word I hope;
[6]†my soul waits for the Lord
more than watchmen for the morning,
more than watchmen for the morning.
[7]†O Israel, hope in the LORD!
For with the LORD there is steadfast love,
and with him is plentiful redemption.
[8]†And he will redeem Israel
from all his iniquities.

I Have Calmed and Quieted My Soul

A Song of Ascents. Of David.

PSALM 131 ‡†O LORD, my heart is not lifted up;
my eyes are not raised too high;
I do not occupy myself with things too great and too marvelous for me.
[2]†But I have calmed and quieted my soul,
like a weaned child with its mother;
like a weaned child is my soul within me.
[3]†O Israel, hope in the LORD
from this time forth and forevermore.

The LORD Has Chosen Zion

A Song of Ascents.

PSALM 132 ‡‡†Remember, O LORD, in David's favor,
all the hardships he endured,
[2]‡†how he swore to the LORD and vowed to the Mighty One of Jacob, [3]“I will not enter my house
or get into my bed, [4]I will not give sleep to my eyes
or slumber to my eyelids, [5]until I find a place for the LORD,
a dwelling place for the Mighty One of Jacob.”
[6]‡†Behold, we heard of it in Ephrathah;
we found it in the fields of Jaar.
[7]†“Let us go to his dwelling place;
let us worship at his footstool!”
[8]†Arise, O LORD, and go to your resting place, you and the ark of your might.
[9]†Let your priests be clothed with righteousness,
and let your saints shout for joy.
[10]‡†For the sake of your servant David,
do not turn away the face of your anointed one.
[11]‡The LORD swore to David a sure oath
from which he will not turn back:
“One of the sons of your body [1]
I will set on your throne.
[12]†If your sons keep my covenant and my testimonies that I shall teach them, their sons also forever
shall sit on your throne.”
[13]‡†For the LORD has chosen Zion;
he has desired it for his dwelling place:
[14]“This is my resting place forever;
here I will dwell, for I have desired it.
[15]I will abundantly bless her provisions;
I will satisfy her poor with bread.
[16]Her priests I will clothe with salvation,
and her saints will shout for joy.
[17]There I will make a horn to sprout for David;

I have prepared a lamp for my anointed.
[18] His enemies I will clothe with shame,
but on him his crown will shine."

When Brothers Dwell in Unity

A Song of Ascents. Of David.

PSALM 133 ‡†Behold, how good and pleasant it is
when brothers dwell in unity! [1] [2]†It is like the precious oil on the head, running down on the beard,
on the beard of Aaron,
running down on the collar of his robes!
[3]†It is like the dew of Hermon, which falls on the mountains of Zion!
For there the LORD has commanded the blessing, life forevermore.

Come, Bless the LORD

A Song of Ascents.

PSALM 134 ‡†Come, bless the LORD, all you servants of the LORD, who stand by night in the house of the LORD!
[2]†Lift up your hands to the holy place and bless the LORD!
[3]†May the LORD bless you from Zion,
he who made heaven and earth!

Your Name, O LORD, Endures Forever

PSALM 135 ‡‡Praise the LORD!
Praise the name of the LORD,
give praise, O servants of the LORD,
[2]who stand in the house of the LORD,
in the courts of the house of our God!
[3]‡Praise the LORD, for the LORD is good;
sing to his name, for it is pleasant! [1]
[4]‡For the LORD has chosen Jacob for himself,
Israel as his own possession.
[5]‡For I know that the LORD is great,
and that our Lord is above all gods.
[6]Whatever the LORD pleases, he does,
in heaven and on earth,
in the seas and all deeps.
[7]‡He it is who makes the clouds rise at the end of the earth,
who makes lightnings for the rain and brings forth the wind from his storehouses.
[8]‡‡He it was who struck down the firstborn of Egypt,
both of man and of beast;
[9]‡who in your midst, O Egypt,
sent signs and wonders
against Pharaoh and all his servants; [10]who struck down many nations
and killed mighty kings, [11]‡Sihon, king of the Amorites,
and Og, king of Bashan,
and all the kingdoms of Canaan, [12]‡and gave their land as a heritage,
a heritage to his people Israel.
[13]‡Your name, O LORD, endures forever,
your renown, [2] O LORD, throughout all ages.
[14]For the LORD will vindicate his people and have compassion on his servants.

[15]The idols of the nations are silver and gold,
the work of human hands.
[16]They have mouths, but do not speak;
they have eyes, but do not see;
[17]they have ears, but do not hear,
nor is there any breath in their mouths.
[18]†Those who make them become like them,
so do all who trust in them!
[19]‡O house of Israel, bless the LORD!
O house of Aaron, bless the LORD!
[20]O house of Levi, bless the LORD!
You who fear the LORD, bless the LORD!
[21]Blessed be the LORD from Zion,
he who dwells in Jerusalem!
Praise the LORD!

His Steadfast Love Endures Forever

PSALM 136 ‡†Give thanks to the LORD, for he is good,
for his steadfast love endures forever.
[2]Give thanks to the God of gods,
for his steadfast love endures forever.
[3]Give thanks to the Lord of lords,
for his steadfast love endures forever;
[4]‡to him who alone does great wonders,
for his steadfast love endures forever;
[5]to him who by understanding made the heavens,
for his steadfast love endures forever;
[6]to him who spread out the earth above the waters,
for his steadfast love endures forever;
[7]to him who made the great lights,
for his steadfast love endures forever;
[8]the sun to rule over the day,
for his steadfast love endures forever;
[9]the moon and stars to rule over the night,
for his steadfast love endures forever;
[10]‡to him who struck down the firstborn of Egypt,
for his steadfast love endures forever;
[11]and brought Israel out from among them,
for his steadfast love endures forever;
[12]with a strong hand and an outstretched arm,
for his steadfast love endures forever;
[13]to him who divided the Red Sea in two,
for his steadfast love endures forever;
[14]and made Israel pass through the midst of it,
for his steadfast love endures forever;
[15]but overthrew [1] Pharaoh and his host in the Red Sea,
for his steadfast love endures forever;
[16]‡to him who led his people through the wilderness,
for his steadfast love endures forever;
[17]to him who struck down great kings,

for his steadfast love endures forever;
[18]and killed mighty kings,
for his steadfast love endures forever;
[19]†Sihon, king of the Amorites,
for his steadfast love endures forever;
[20]†and Og, king of Bashan,
for his steadfast love endures forever;
[21]and gave their land as a heritage,
for his steadfast love endures forever;
[22]a heritage to Israel his servant,
for his steadfast love endures forever.
[23]†It is he who remembered us in our low estate,
for his steadfast love endures forever;
[24]and rescued us from our foes,
for his steadfast love endures forever;
[25]he who gives food to all flesh,
for his steadfast love endures forever.
[26]Give thanks to the God of heaven,
for his steadfast love endures forever.

How Shall We Sing the LORD's Song?

PSALM 137 ‡†By the waters of Babylon,
there we sat down and wept,
when we remembered Zion.
[2]†On the willows [1] there
we hung up our lyres.
[3]†For there our captors
required of us songs,
and our tormentors, mirth, saying,
“Sing us one of the songs of Zion!”
[4]†How shall we sing the LORD's song
in a foreign land?
[5]‡If I forget you, O Jerusalem,
let my right hand forget its skill!
[6]Let my tongue stick to the roof of my mouth,
if I do not remember you,
if I do not set Jerusalem
above my highest joy!
[7]†Remember, O LORD, against the Edomites
the day of Jerusalem,
how they said, “Lay it bare, lay it bare,
down to its foundations!”
[8]‡†O daughter of Babylon, doomed to be destroyed, blessed shall he be who repays you with what you have done to us!
[9]Blessed shall he be who takes your little ones and dashes them against the rock!

Give Thanks to the LORD

Of David.

PSALM 138 ‡†I give you thanks, O Lord, with my whole heart;
before the gods I sing your praise;
[2]†I bow down toward your holy temple and give thanks to your name for your steadfast love and your faithfulness, for you have exalted above all things
your name and your word. [1] [3]On the day I called, you answered me;
my strength of soul you increased. [2] [4]†All the kings of the earth shall give you thanks, O Lord, for they have heard the words of your mouth,
[5]and they shall sing of the ways of the Lord,
for great is the glory of the Lord.
[6]‡For though the Lord is high, he regards the lowly,
but the haughty he knows from afar.
[7]Though I walk in the midst of trouble,
you preserve my life;
you stretch out your hand against the wrath of my enemies,
and your right hand delivers me.
[8]†The Lord will fulfill his purpose for me;
your steadfast love, O Lord, endures forever.
Do not forsake the work of your hands.

Search Me, O God, and Know My Heart

To the choirmaster. A Psalm of David.

PSALM 139 ‡‡†O LORD, you have searched me and known me!
[2]You know when I sit down and when I rise up;
you discern my thoughts from afar.
[3]You search out my path and my lying down
and are acquainted with all my ways.
[4]Even before a word is on my tongue,
behold, O LORD, you know it altogether.
[5]†You hem me in, behind and before,
and lay your hand upon me.
[6]†Such knowledge is too wonderful for me;
it is high; I cannot attain it.
[7]‡†Where shall I go from your Spirit?
Or where shall I flee from your presence?
[8]If I ascend to heaven, you are there!
If I make my bed in Sheol, you are there!
[9]†If I take the wings of the morning and dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea, [10]even there your hand shall lead me,
and your right hand shall hold me.
[11]If I say, “Surely the darkness shall cover me,
and the light about me be night,” [12]even the darkness is not dark to you;
the night is bright as the day,
for darkness is as light with you.
[13]‡†For you formed my inward parts;
you knitted me together in my mother's womb.
[14]I praise you, for I am fearfully and wonderfully made. [1]
Wonderful are your works;
my soul knows it very well.
[15]†My frame was not hidden from you,
when I was being made in secret,
intricately woven in the depths of the earth.
[16]†Your eyes saw my unformed substance;
in your book were written, every one of them,
the days that were formed for me,
when as yet there was none of them.
[17]‡How precious to me are your thoughts, O God!

How vast is the sum of them!
[18]If I would count them, they are more than the sand.
I awake, and I am still with you.
[19]Oh that you would slay the wicked, O God!
O men of blood, depart from me!
[20]They speak against you with malicious intent;
your enemies take your name in vain! [2]
[21]Do I not hate those who hate you, O Lord?
And do I not loathe those who rise up against you?
[22]†I hate them with complete hatred;
I count them my enemies.
[23]†Search me, O God, and know my heart!
Try me and know my thoughts! [3] [24]†And see if there be any grievous way in me,
and lead me in the way everlasting! [4]

Deliver Me, O LORD, from Evil Men

To the choirmaster. A Psalm of David.

PSALM 140 ‡‡Deliver me, O LORD, from evil men;
preserve me from violent men,
[2]who plan evil things in their heart and stir up wars continually.
[3]†They make their tongue sharp as a serpent's, and under their lips is the venom of asps. Selah [4]‡Guard me, O LORD, from the hands of the wicked;
preserve me from violent men,
who have planned to trip up my feet.
[5]The arrogant have hidden a trap for me,
and with cords they have spread a net; [1] beside the way they have set snares for me. Selah [6]‡I say to the LORD, You are my God;
give ear to the voice of my pleas for mercy, O LORD!
[7]†O LORD, my Lord, the strength of my salvation,
you have covered my head in the day of battle.
[8]Grant not, O LORD, the desires of the wicked;
do not further their [2] evil plot, or they will be exalted! Selah [9]‡As for the head of those who surround me, let the mischief of their lips overwhelm them!
[10]Let burning coals fall upon them!
Let them be cast into fire,
into miry pits, no more to rise!
[11]Let not the slanderer be established in the land;
let evil hunt down the violent man speedily!
[12]‡I know that the LORD will maintain the cause of the afflicted, and will execute justice for the needy.
[13]Surely the righteous shall give thanks to your name;
the upright shall dwell in your presence.

Give Ear to My Voice

A Psalm of David.

PSALM 141 ‡O LORD, I call upon you; hasten to me!
Give ear to my voice when I call to you!
[2]†Let my prayer be counted as incense before you,
and the lifting up of my hands as the evening sacrifice!
[3]‡Set a guard, O LORD, over my mouth;
keep watch over the door of my lips!
[4]Do not let my heart incline to any evil,
to busy myself with wicked deeds
in company with men who work iniquity,
and let me not eat of their delicacies!
[5]†Let a righteous man strike me—it is a kindness;
let him rebuke me—it is oil for my head;
let my head not refuse it.
Yet my prayer is continually against their evil deeds.
[6]†When their judges are thrown over the cliff, [1]
then they shall hear my words, for they are pleasant.
[7]†As when one plows and breaks up the earth,
so shall our bones be scattered at the mouth of Sheol. [2] [8]But my eyes are toward you, O GOD, my Lord;
in you I seek refuge; leave me not defenseless! [3] [9]Keep me from the trap that they have laid for me and from the snares of evildoers!
[10]†Let the wicked fall into their own nets,
while I pass by safely.

You Are My Refuge

A Maskil [1] of David, when he was in the cave. A Prayer.

PSALM 142 ‡With my voice I cry out to the LORD;
with my voice I plead for mercy to the LORD.
[2]I pour out my complaint before him;
I tell my trouble before him.
[3]When my spirit faints within me,
you know my way!
In the path where I walk
they have hidden a trap for me.
[4]†Look to the right and see:
there is none who takes notice of me;
no refuge remains to me;
no one cares for my soul.
[5]†I cry to you, O LORD;
I say, “You are my refuge,
my portion in the land of the living.”
[6]Attend to my cry,
for I am brought very low!
Deliver me from my persecutors,
for they are too strong for me!
[7]†Bring me out of prison,
that I may give thanks to your name!
The righteous will surround me,
for you will deal bountifully with me.

My Soul Thirsts for You

A Psalm of David.

PSALM 143 ‡†Hear my prayer, O LORD;
give ear to my pleas for mercy!
In your faithfulness answer me, in your righteousness!
[2]†Enter not into judgment with your servant,
for no one living is righteous before you.
[3]For the enemy has pursued my soul;
he has crushed my life to the ground;
he has made me sit in darkness like those long dead.
[4]Therefore my spirit faints within me;
my heart within me is appalled.
[5]I remember the days of old;
I meditate on all that you have done;
I ponder the work of your hands.
[6]†I stretch out my hands to you;
my soul thirsts for you like a parched land. Selah
[7]†Answer me quickly, O LORD!
My spirit fails!
Hide not your face from me,
lest I be like those who go down to the pit.
[8]Let me hear in the morning of your steadfast love,
for in you I trust.
Make me know the way I should go,
for to you I lift up my soul.
[9]Deliver me from my enemies, O LORD!
I have fled to you for refuge! [1] [10]†Teach me to do your will,
for you are my God!
Let your good Spirit lead me
on level ground!
[11]†For your name's sake, O LORD, preserve my life!
In your righteousness bring my soul out of trouble!
[12]†And in your steadfast love you will cut off my enemies,
and you will destroy all the adversaries of my soul,
for I am your servant.

My Rock and My Fortress

Of David.

PSALM 144 ‡†Blessed be the Lord, my rock, who trains my hands for war,
and my fingers for battle;
[2]†he is my steadfast love and my fortress,
my stronghold and my deliverer,
my shield and he in whom I take refuge,
who subdues peoples [1] under me.
[3]‡O Lord, what is man that you regard him,
or the son of man that you think of him?
[4]Man is like a breath;
his days are like a passing shadow.
[5]‡Bow your heavens, O Lord, and come down!
Touch the mountains so that they smoke!
[6]Flash forth the lightning and scatter them;
send out your arrows and rout them!
[7]Stretch out your hand from on high;
rescue me and deliver me from the many waters,
from the hand of foreigners,
[8]whose mouths speak lies
and whose right hand is a right hand of falsehood.
[9]†I will sing a new song to you, O God;
upon a ten-stringed harp I will play to you, [10]who gives victory to kings,
who rescues David his servant from the cruel sword.
[11]†Rescue me and deliver me
from the hand of foreigners,
whose mouths speak lies
and whose right hand is a right hand of falsehood.
[12]†May our sons in their youth be like plants full grown,
our daughters like corner pillars cut for the structure of a palace; [13]‡may our granaries be full,
providing all kinds of produce;
may our sheep bring forth thousands and ten thousands in our fields; [14]†may our cattle be heavy with young,

suffering no mishap or failure in bearing; [2]
may there be no cry of distress in our streets!
[15]Blessed are the people to whom such blessings fall!
Blessed are the people whose God is the LORD!

Great Is the LORD

[1] A Song of Praise. Of David.

PSALM 145 ‡‡I will extol you, my God and King,
and bless your name forever and ever.
[2]Every day I will bless you and praise your name forever and ever.
[3]Great is the LORD, and greatly to be praised,
and his greatness is unsearchable.
[4]One generation shall commend your works to another,
and shall declare your mighty acts.
[5]On the glorious splendor of your majesty,
and on your wondrous works, I will meditate.
[6]They shall speak of the might of your awesome deeds,
and I will declare your greatness.
[7]They shall pour forth the fame of your abundant goodness and shall sing aloud of your righteousness.
[8]The LORD is gracious and merciful,
slow to anger and abounding in steadfast love.
[9]The LORD is good to all,
and his mercy is over all that he has made.
[10]All your works shall give thanks to you, O LORD,
and all your saints shall bless you!
[11]‡They shall speak of the glory of your kingdom
and tell of your power, [12]to make known to the children of man your [2] mighty deeds,
and the glorious splendor of your kingdom.
[13]Your kingdom is an everlasting kingdom,
and your dominion endures throughout all generations.
[The LORD is faithful in all his words
and kind in all his works.] [3] [14]‡The LORD upholds all who are falling and raises up all who are bowed down.
[15]The eyes of all look to you,
and you give them their food in due season.

[16]You open your hand;
    you satisfy the desire of every living thing.
[17]The LORD is righteous in all his ways
    and kind in all his works.
[18]The LORD is near to all who call on him,
    to all who call on him in truth.
[19]He fulfills the desire of those who fear him;
    he also hears their cry and saves them.
[20]†The LORD preserves all who love him,
    but all the wicked he will destroy.
[21]My mouth will speak the praise of the LORD,
    and let all flesh bless his holy name forever and ever.

Put Not Your Trust in Princes

PSALM 146 ‡†Praise the LORD!
Praise the LORD, O my soul!
[2]I will praise the LORD as long as I live;
I will sing praises to my God while I have my being.
[3]‡Put not your trust in princes,
in a son of man, in whom there is no salvation.
[4]When his breath departs, he returns to the earth;
on that very day his plans perish.
[5]†Blessed is he whose help is the God of Jacob, whose hope is in the LORD his God, [6]†who made heaven and earth,
the sea, and all that is in them,
who keeps faith forever;
[7]‡who executes justice for the oppressed,
who gives food to the hungry.
The LORD sets the prisoners free;
[8]the LORD opens the eyes of the blind.
The LORD lifts up those who are bowed down;
the LORD loves the righteous.
[9]†The LORD watches over the sojourners;
he upholds the widow and the fatherless,
but the way of the wicked he brings to ruin.
[10]†The LORD will reign forever,
your God, O Zion, to all generations.
Praise the LORD!

He Heals the Brokenhearted

PSALM 147 ‡Praise the LORD!
For it is good to sing praises to our God;
  for it is pleasant, [1] and a song of praise is fitting.
[2]†The LORD builds up Jerusalem;
  he gathers the outcasts of Israel.
[3]†He heals the brokenhearted
  and binds up their wounds.
[4]He determines the number of the stars;
  he gives to all of them their names.
[5]Great is our Lord, and abundant in power;
  his understanding is beyond measure.
[6]†The LORD lifts up the humble; [2]
  he casts the wicked to the ground.
[7]Sing to the LORD with thanksgiving;
  make melody to our God on the lyre!
[8]He covers the heavens with clouds;
  he prepares rain for the earth;
  he makes grass grow on the hills.
[9]He gives to the beasts their food,
  and to the young ravens that cry.
[10]His delight is not in the strength of the horse,
  nor his pleasure in the legs of a man, [11]but the LORD takes pleasure in those who fear him,
  in those who hope in his steadfast love.
[12]Praise the LORD, O Jerusalem!
  Praise your God, O Zion!
[13]†For he strengthens the bars of your gates;
  he blesses your children within you.
[14]He makes peace in your borders;
  he fills you with the finest of the wheat.
[15]‡He sends out his command to the earth;
  his word runs swiftly.
[16]He gives snow like wool;

he scatters hoarfrost like ashes.
[17]He hurls down his crystals of ice like crumbs;
who can stand before his cold?
[18]He sends out his word, and melts them;
he makes his wind blow and the waters flow.
[19]‡He declares his word to Jacob,
his statutes and rules [3] to Israel.
[20]He has not dealt thus with any other nation;
they do not know his rules. [4]
Praise the Lord!

Praise the Name of the LORD

PSALM 148 ‡‡Praise the LORD!
Praise the LORD from the heavens;
praise him in the heights!
[2]†Praise him, all his angels;
praise him, all his hosts!
[3]Praise him, sun and moon,
praise him, all you shining stars!
[4]†Praise him, you highest heavens,
and you waters above the heavens!
[5]‡Let them praise the name of the LORD!
For he commanded and they were created.
[6]†And he established them forever and ever;
he gave a decree, and it shall not pass away. [1] [7]Praise the LORD from the earth,
you great sea creatures and all deeps, [8]†fire and hail, snow and mist,
stormy wind fulfilling his word!
[9]Mountains and all hills,
fruit trees and all cedars!
[10]Beasts and all livestock, creeping things and flying birds!
[11]Kings of the earth and all peoples, princes and all rulers of the earth!
[12]Young men and maidens together,
old men and children!
[13]‡Let them praise the name of the LORD,
for his name alone is exalted;
his majesty is above earth and heaven.
[14]†He has raised up a horn for his people,
praise for all his saints,
for the people of Israel who are near to him.
Praise the LORD!

Sing to the LORD a New Song

PSALM 149 ‡†Praise the LORD!
Sing to the LORD a new song,
his praise in the assembly of the godly!
[2]Let Israel be glad in his Maker;
let the children of Zion rejoice in their King!
[3]†Let them praise his name with dancing,
making melody to him with tambourine and lyre!
[4]For the LORD takes pleasure in his people;
he adorns the humble with salvation.
[5]Let the godly exult in glory;
let them sing for joy on their beds.
[6]‡Let the high praises of God be in their throats and two-edged swords in their hands, [7]to execute vengeance on the nations and punishments on the peoples, [8]to bind their kings with chains
and their nobles with fetters of iron, [9]†to execute on them the judgment written!
This is honor for all his godly ones.
Praise the LORD!

Let Everything Praise the LORD

PSALM 150 ‡†Praise the LORD!
Praise God in his sanctuary;
praise him in his mighty heavens! [1] [2]†Praise him for his mighty deeds;
praise him according to his excellent greatness!
[3]†Praise him with trumpet sound;
praise him with lute and harp!
[4]†Praise him with tambourine and dance;
praise him with strings and pipe!
[5]Praise him with sounding cymbals;
praise him with loud clashing cymbals!
[6]†Let everything that has breath praise the LORD!
Praise the LORD!

Study Notes

PSALMS—NOTE ON 1:1–6 This wisdom psalm basically functions as an introduction to the entire book of Psalms. Its theme is as big as the whole Bible because it tells of people, paths, and ultimate destinations (for a significant parallel see Jer. 17:5–8). By two cycles of contrast, Ps. 1 separates all people into their respective spiritual categories:

- I. By observation, all people are separated ethically (1:1–4)
    - A. A Picture of the Godly (1:1–3)
    - B. A Picture of the Ungodly (1:4)
- II. By outcome, all people are separated judicially (1:5–6)
    - A. The Failure of Ungodly People (1:5)
    - B. The Fruition of Lifestyles (1:6)
        - 1. Recognition of the godly (1:6a)
        - 2. Ruination of the ungodly (1:6b)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 1:1 Blessed. From the perspective of the individual, this is a deep-seated joy and contentment in God; from the perspective of the believing community, it refers to redemptive favor (cf. the blessings and cursings of Deut. 27:11–28:6). walks not . . . nor stands . . . nor sits. The "beatitude" man (cf. Matt. 5:3–11) is first described as one who avoids such associations as these, which exemplify sin's sequential downward drag.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 1:2 his delight is in the law. Switching to a positive description, the spiritually "happy" man is characterized by the consistent contemplation and internalization of God's word for ethical direction and obedience.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 1:3 like a tree. Because of the mostly arid terrain of Israel, a lush tree served as a fitting symbol of blessing in the OT. planted. Lit., "transplanted." Trees do not plant themselves; neither do sinful people transport themselves into God's kingdom. Salvation is his marvelous work of grace (cf. Isa. 61:3; Matt. 15:13). Yet, there is genuine responsibility in appropriating the abundant resources of God (cf. Jer. 17:8), which lead to eventual productivity.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 1:4 The wicked are not so. This is an abrupt contrast, lit., “Not so the wicked!” chaff. A frequent OT word picture from harvest time for what is unsubstantial, without value, and worthy only to be discarded.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 1:5 Therefore . . . not stand. “Therefore” introduces the strong conclusion that the ungodly will not be approved by God’s judgment.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 1:6 the Lord knows. This is far more than recognition; the Lord “knows” everything. In this context, the reference is to personal intimacy and involvement with his righteous ones (contra. Matt. 7:23; cf. 2 Tim. 2:19). the way of. The repetition of this phrase picks up on the “path” imagery so characteristic of this psalm. It refers to one’s total course of life, i.e., lifestyle. Here these two courses arrive at the ways of life and death, as in Deut. 30:19; Jer. 21:8; cf. Matt. 7:13–14. will perish. One day the wicked person's way will end in ruin; a new order is coming and it will be a righteous order. So Ps. 1 begins with the "blessed" and ends with those who "perish" (cf. Ps. 9:5–6; 112:10).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 2:1–12 Sometimes Ps. 2 is said to share with Ps. 1 in the role of introducing the Psalter (cf. "blessed" in 1:1 and 2:12). Also, it seems that, while the function of Ps. 1 is to disclose the two different "ways" for individuals, Ps. 2 follows up with its application to nations. This psalm is normally termed "royal" and has had a long history of messianic interpretation. Although it has no title, it seems to bear the imprint of David's hand. As such, it fluidly moves from the lesser David through the Davidic dynasty to the Greater David—Jesus Christ. Psalm 2 progressively shines its poetic spotlight on four vivid scenes relating to the mutiny of mankind against God:

I. Scene One: Human Rebellion (2:1–3)
II. Scene Two: Divine Reaction (2:4–6)
III. Scene Three: Divine Rule (2:7–9)
IV. Scene Four: Human Responsibility (2:10–12)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 2:1 plot in vain. This is the irony of man's depravity—devising, conspiring, and scheming emptiness (cf. Ps. 38:12; Prov. 24:2; Isa. 59:3, 13).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 2:2 against . . . against. The nations and peoples, led by their kings and rulers (v. 1), direct their hostility toward the Lord and his anointed one. The consecrated and commissioned mediatorial representative referred to David in a near sense and Messiah, i.e., Christ, in the ultimate sense (cf. Acts 4:25–26).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 2:3 their bonds . . . their cords. Mutinous mankind, instead of understanding that these are God's love-bonds (Hos. 11:4), view them as yoke-bonds (Jer. 5:5).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 2:5 Then. After mocking them with the laughter of divine contempt, God speaks and acts from his perfectly balanced anger.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 2:6 I have set. Their puny challenge (v. 3) is answered by this powerful pronouncement. It's as good as done: his king will be enthroned on Jerusalem's most prominent hill.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 2:7 I will tell of the decree. The installed mediator now recites the Lord's previously issued enthronement ordinance. You are my Son. This recalls 2 Sam. 7:8–16 as the basis for the Davidic king. It is also the only OT reference to the Father/Son relationship in the Trinity, a relationship decreed in eternity past and demonstrated in the incarnation, thus a major part of the NT. today I have begotten you. This expresses the privileges of relationship, with its prophetic application to the Son—Messiah. This verse is quoted in the NT with reference to the birth of Jesus (Heb. 1:5–6) and also to his resurrection (Acts 13:33–34) as the earthly affirmations.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 2:9 You shall. The supreme sovereignty of "the King of kings" is pictured in its subjugating might. The shepherd's "rod" and the king's "scepter" are the same word in the original. Shepherding and kingly imagery often merged in ancient Near Eastern thought (cf. Mic. 7:14).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 2:10–12 The tone of these verses is surprising. Instead of immediate judgment, the Lord and his Anointed mercifully provide an opportunity for repentance. Five commands place responsibility on mutinous mankind.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 2:12 Kiss the Son. This symbolic act would indicate allegiance and submission (cf. 1 Sam. 10:1; 1 Kings 19:18). The word for "Son" here is not the Hebrew word for "son" that was used in Ps. 2:7, but rather its Aramaic counterpart (cf. Dan. 7:13), which is a term that would especially be suitable for these commands being addressed to "nations" (Ps. 2:1). perish in the way. These words pick up the major burden of Ps. 1.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 3:1–8 This psalm intermingles both lament and confidence. In its sweeping scope, it becomes a pattern for praise, peace, and prayer amidst pressure. As it unfolds through three interrelated historical phenomena, David shares his theological "secret" of having assurance in the face of adversity.

I. The Psalmist’s Predicament (3:1–2)
II. The Psalmist’s Peace (3:3–6)
III. The Psalmist’s Prayer (3:7–8)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 3:Title The first of 73 psalms attributed to David by superscription. Further information connects its occasion with the Absalom episode (2 Sam. 15–18), although many of its features are more descriptive of persecution in general.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 3:1–2 many . . . Many . . . many. The psalmist begins on a low note with his multiplied miseries.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 3:2–3 no salvation for him . . . But you . . . a shield about me. There is a strong contrast between the allegation and the psalmist’s assurance. David’s attitude and outlook embraces the theology that Paul summarized in Rom. 8:31. Psalm 3 also introduces Divine Warrior language (cf. Ex. 15 as a background).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 3:5 I lay down and slept. Since God is known for his sustaining protection, David could relax in the most trying of circumstances.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 3:7 Arise, O Lord! This is a battle cry for God to engage the enemy and defend his soldiers (cf. Num. 10:35; Ps. 68:1).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 3:8 Salvation belongs to the Lord. This is a broad-sweeping, all-inclusive deliverance, whether in the temporal or eternal realm.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 4:1–8 There are certain similarities between Ps. 3 and 4. For example, the former is sometimes labeled a morning psalm (cf. 3:5), while the latter has been called an evening psalm (cf. 4:8). In both, David is besieged with suffering, injustice, and oppression. Additionally, Ps. 4 also exhibits the changing attitudes of the worshiper in his most difficult circumstances. David’s movement will be from anxiety to assurance, as he travels down the road of prayer and trust in God. At the end of yet another day of pressure, pain, and persecution, David engages in three conversations that ultimately lead to a point of blessed relaxation:

I. Praying to God for Preservation (4:1)
II. Reasoning with His Enemies about Repentance (4:2–5)
III. Praising God for True Perspective (4:6–8)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 4:Title Psalm 4 introduces the first of 55 assignments to the master, director, or chief overseer of worship services in its title. Further instruction is given in the direction “with stringed instruments.” The chief musician, therefore, was to lead the great choir and the string portion of the orchestra in this celebration of worship.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 4:1 O God of my righteousness! The ultimate basis for divine intervention resides in God, not in the psalmist. On union with God’s righteousness based on his mercy, see Jer. 23:6 (cf. 1 Cor. 1:30). distress. This is an important word for trying circumstances in the psalms. It pictures the psalmist’s plight as being in straits, i.e., painfully restricted. Here his testimony to God’s historical salvation, “You have given me relief,” conveys the picture that his Lord had provided space or room for him.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 4:2–3 God’s agenda for David (v. 3) is radically contrasted with that of his enemies (v. 2). The term for “godly” or “pious” in the OT is above all else indicating a person blessed by God’s grace.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 4:4 Be angry, and do not sin. In this context, the admonition means to tremble or shake in the fear of the Lord so as not to sin (cf. Isa. 32:10–11; Hab. 3:16).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 4:5 trust. This command reflects the primary word group in the OT for faith-commitment.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 4:6–8 The taunting skeptics are cut off by the testimony of the psalmist to his rest because of God’s personal blessings.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 4:8 dwell in safety. The word “safety” introduces a play on words by going back to the term “trust” in v. 5. David evidences a total confidence in God amidst his crisis.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 5:1–12 Psalm 5 is basically a lament with elements of declarations of innocence and confidence and prayers for protection. David was standing in the presence of the Lord when he put his enemies before his God. His prayers have two major concerns: “Help me and harm them!” Therefore, David releases his respective prayers for divine intervention and imprecation upon two rounds of contrast that differentiate the enemies of God from the children of God.

I. Round One: Theological Contrast of Retribution with Reconciliation (5:1–8)
    A. David’s Prayer for Intervention Expressed (5:1–3)
    B. David’s Prayer for Intervention Explained (5:4–8)
II. Round Two: Practical Contrast of the Wayward with the Worshipful (5:9–12)
    A. David’s Prayer of Imprecation Expressed (5:10a–c)
    B. David’s Prayer of Imprecation Explained (5:9, 10d–12)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 5:Title Whereas the instructions to the worship leader in Ps. 4 pertain to a stringed accompaniment, Ps. 5 is to be celebrated in community worship with flute accompaniment (cf. 1 Sam. 10:5; 1 Kings 1:40; Isa. 30:29).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 5:1 Give ear. This command is built upon the word for "ear." It takes its place alongside of parallel requests that God would pay careful attention to the supplicant and his sufferings (17:1; 55:1–2).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 5:2 my King and my God. David may have been the anointed theocratic king on earth, but he fully understood that the ultimate King of all Israel and of the whole earth is God (for God's conditional allowance for mediatorial kingship, see 1 Sam. 8:19ff.).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 5:3 in the morning . . . in the morning. These words have led many to label this a morning psalm (cf. 3:5).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 5:4–6 not . . . not . . . not . . . hate . . . destroy . . . abhors. These three negatively phrased descriptions follow three directly stated affirmations. This reveals God's perfect standard of justice both in principle and in practice.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 5:7 But I. The psalmist starkly contrasts himself with his enemies. They are haughty; he is humble.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 5:8–9 To man's "hoof" problem, David exposes man's "mouth" problem, with special application to his slick-talking enemies. Proverbs is especially given to exposing the deadliness of mankind's spiritual "hoof" and "mouth" disease, i.e., one's walk and talk. Paul includes these assessments from Ps. 5:9 in his list of 14 terrible indictments of all mankind in Rom. 3:13.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 5:8 Lead me . . . make your way straight. Disciples are to walk in God's way(s), being obedient to his direction(s) for their lives, yet they are fully dependent upon his grace for responsible progress (cf. 119:1–5, 26–27, 30, 32–33).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 5:10–12 He prays for the just ends of the wicked according to God’s revealed standard of justice (Deut. 25:1), and contrastingly urges those who are regarded as righteous by the Lord’s grace to joyfully celebrate his blessings.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 6:1–10 This lament seems to be quite intensive, for apparently David is sleepless. His circumstances seem hopeless and helpless. The early Christian church regarded this psalm as the first among the “penitential psalms” (cf. Ps. 32; 38; 51; 102; 130; 143). David’s cries, coming up from the depths of his personal pit of persecution, indicate a radical change in his frame of mind as he addresses two different audiences.

I. Pouring out His Soul before God: A Defeatist Frame of Mind (6:1–7)
  A. A Tone of Helplessness (6:1–4)
  B. A Tone of Hopelessness (6:5–7)
II. Turning His Attention to His Enemies: A Defiant Frame of Mind (6:8–10)
  A. His Boldness about It (6:8a)
  B. His Basis for It (6:8b–10)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 6:Title A new musical direction appears (Hebrew Sheminith), lit., “upon an eight,” indicating either “upon an eight-stringed lyre” or “upon the octave” (i.e., a lower bass melody to accompany these lyrics of intense lament).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 6:1 in your anger . . . in your wrath. He does not ask for immunity from judgment, but for the tempering of God’s discipline with mercy.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 6:2, 7bones . . . eye. Many assume that because the psalmist mentions bodily “parts” his affliction was a grave physical illness. Obviously, his circumstances would have had an effect on his physical dimension. However, in OT anthropology such references are picturesque metaphors for an affliction of his total being (cf. all the parallel, personal references, e.g., “me,” “my soul,” i.e., my being or person, “I,” etc.).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 6:3 how long? This is a common exclamation of intense lament (cf. 90:13; Hab. 2:6; Rev. 6:10).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 6:4 deliver my life . . . your steadfast love. This introduces a new synonym for salvation, connoting an action of drawing off or out. He desires the Lord to graciously extricate him (cf. Job 36:15; Ps. 18:19; 116:8).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 6:5 no remembrance of you. There is much about "death" and "the grave," i.e., Sheol, in Psalms. Such language as that of v. 5 does not imply annihilation, but inability to participate temporally in public praise offerings (cf. Hezekiah's reasoning in Isa. 38:18).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 6:6–7 Sleep has eluded him because of his severe sorrow.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 6:8–10 Out of his dire straits, boldness surprisingly breaks through as he addresses his enemies. This boldness also has only one basis, that the psalmist's confidence is wholly grounded upon his Lord's attention and ultimate intervention.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 7:1–17 This psalm is basically a plea for divine vindication in the light of the oppressor's allegations and actions. David's confidence in the Divine Judge is the backbone of Ps. 7 (cf. Abraham in Gen. 18:25). As this truth grips him more and more, he will move from a tense anxiety to a transcendent assurance. This psalm follows David through three progressively calming stages of expression in response to the painfully false accusations that were being hurled against him.

I. Stage One: David's Concern as He Passionately Begs the Attention of the Divine Judge (7:1–5)
II. Stage Two: David's Court Appearance as He Painstakingly Argues His Case before the Divine Judge (7:6–16)
III. Stage Three: David's Composure as He Patiently Waits for the Verdict of the Divine Judge (7:17)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 7:Title This title introduces one of the more enigmatic terms found in superscriptions of the psalms—"a Shiggaion (Hebrew) of David." It is probably related to the idea of wondering, reeling, veering, or weaving. Consequently, the term may also indicate the song's irregularity in rhythm (cf. Hab. 3:1). "He sang" also indicates that this was a vocal solo. The occasion, "concerning the words of Cush, a Benjaminite," cannot be readily identified from the historical books; however, whoever this was or whatever the name represented, some enemy had obviously been falsely charging David (cf. Shimei—2 Sam. 16:5; 19:16).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 7:2 like a lion they tear my soul. Often the psalmist's enemies are symbolized by vicious, attacking animals, with "the king of beasts" occurring frequently (10:9; 17:12; 22:13, 16, 21).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 7:3–5 Such self-pronounced curses are powerful protestations of innocence (not sinlessness) in the context of being falsely charged (cf. the boldness of Job in 31:5ff.).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 7:6 Arise. The battle cry relating back to Num. 10:35 recurs (cf. Ps. 9:19; 10:12; 17:13; 44:26; 102:13).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 7:8 my righteousness . . . the integrity. These are not declarations of sinlessness but of innocence in this "court case."

PSALMS—NOTE ON 7:9 you who test the minds and hearts, O righteous God! The Just Judge has perfect insight (cf. God examining the heart and mind in Jer. 17:10; also cf. Acts 1:24; 15:8).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 7:11–13 This shows yet another blending of the Divine Warrior and Divine Judge themes.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 7:14–16 Often the principle of exact retribution surfaces in the psalms (cf. the maxim of Prov. 26:27 and the judgment of Hab. 2:15–18).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 8:1–9 The beginning and ending of the psalm suggest that it is essentially a hymn of praise. Yet, a major portion qualifies it as a so-called nature psalm, i.e., a psalm of creation. Furthermore, there is a significant focus on the created dignity of man. Through this vehicle, the important subject of Adamic theology comes to the forefront, making this psalm ultimately suitable to the important association of the "One," the Last Adam, i.e., Christ and the “many” (cf. Heb. 2:6–8). Structurally, Psalm 8’s beginning and concluding bursts of praise are driven by David’s contemplation of two pairs of radical contrasts.

- I. Introductory Praise (8:1)
- II. Two Pairs of Radical Contrasts (8:2–8)
  - A. Between the Nature of “Infants” and Infidels (8:2)
  - B. Between Unaided General Revelation and Unveiled Special Revelation (8:3–8)
- III. Concluding Praise (8:9)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 8:Title Another instrument is referenced in this title, most probably a guitar-like harp associated with Gath in Philistia.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 8:1 Lord . . . Lord. Of these twin nouns of direct address to God, the first is his specially revealed name Yahweh (Ex. 3:14), and the second puts an emphasis on his sovereignty. your name. The name of God refers to the revealed Person of God, encompassing all of his attributes.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 8:2 The introductory irony about infants sets the stage for a contrast between the dependent and the foolishly self-sufficient.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 8:3 your heavens, the work of your fingers. The heavens are created by God (33:6, 9; 102:25; 136:5). The anthropomorphism “your fingers” miniaturizes the magnitude of the universe in the presence of the Creator.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 8:4–6 Quoted in the NT at 1 Cor. 15:27–28; Eph. 1:22; Heb. 2:5–10.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 8:4 what is man. If the whole universe is diminutive in the sight of the Divine Creator, how much less is the significance of mankind! Even the word for “man” used in v. 4 alludes to his weakness (cf. 9:19–20; 90:3a; 103:15, etc.). and the son of man. This phrase also looks upon man as insignificant and transitory (e.g., Ps. 90:3b). Yet, the Aramaic counterpart of this phrase is found in Dan. 7:13, which has profound messianic overtones (cf. also Jesus’ favorite self-designation in the NT, Son of Man).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 8:5–8 These verses consistently emphasize the significance of man, who was created in the image and likeness of God to exercise dominion over the rest of creation (Gen. 1:26–28).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 9:1–20 Psalms 9 and 10 go together, so much so that early Greek and Latin versions treat and number them as one. However, Ps. 9 and 10 evidence two different forms: the first is an individual hymn while the second is an individual lament. In the first part (9:1–12) praise is prominent, and in the second part (vv. 13–20) prayer is prominent. Many subtle patterns weave the thoughts of its verses and lines together. Shifting back and forth between the individual and corporate perspectives is characteristic, as are introverted (i.e., chiastic) structures. Basically, David's hymn in Ps. 9 ebbs and flows through two respective tides of prayer and praise.

I. First Tide: Divine Justice and Praise (9:1–12)
    A. Individual Praise and Divine Justice (9:1–4)
    B. Divine Justice and Corporate Praise (9:5–12)
II. Second Tide: Divine Justice and Prayer (9:13–20)
    A. Individual Prayer and Divine Justice (9:13–16)
    B. Divine Justice and Corporate Prayer (9:17–20)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 9:Title The new element of this title lit. reads "Death to the Son." Many conjectures have arisen about this puzzling phrase, but it is safest to regard these words as designating a particular tune.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 9:1–2 I will . . . I will . . . I will . . . I will. These four "I wills" launch Ps. 9 with David's dedication to exuberant worship of the Lord.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 9:1 your wonderful deeds. This especially references God's extraordinary interventions into history on behalf of his people (cf. the exodus events).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 9:4 you have maintained my just cause. This is exactly what God is known to do (cf. Deut. 10:18; 1 Kings 8:45, 49).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 9:5–10 Verses 5 and 6 reveal the Just Judge's dealings with the godless, vv. 7–8, his dealings with all men in general, and vv. 9–10, his gracious dealings with dependent disciples.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 9:11 the Lord, who sits enthroned in Zion! There is a both/and tension running throughout the OT, i.e., God is enthroned in and above the heavens, and also, he symbolically dwells locally in his tabernacle (cf. 1 Kings 8; Ps. 11:4).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 9:12, 18 the afflicted . . . the needy . . . the poor. These designations often stand for the individual psalmist and/or the corporate community of disciples he represents. The terms all point to those who are afflicted, vulnerable, and therefore totally dependent upon the Lord.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 9:15–16 The "boomerang" principle of exact retribution returns.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 9:17–20 Prominent theological themes from Ps. 1 and 2 also return as the psalmist draws this great hymn to a climax.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 90:1–17 The thrust of this magnificent prayer is to ask God to have mercy on frail human beings living in a sin-cursed universe. Moses begins the psalm with a reflection on God's eternality, then expresses his somber thoughts about the sorrows and brevity of life in their relationship to God's anger, and concludes with a plea that God would enable his people to live a significant life. The psalm seems to have been composed as the older generation of Israelites who had left Egypt were dying off in the wilderness (Num. 14).

I. The Praise of God's Eternality (90:1–2)
II. The Perception of Man's Frailty (90:3–12)
III. The Plea for God's Mercy (90:13–17)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 90:Title Moses, the man of God. Moses the prophet (Deut. 18:15–22) was unique in that the Lord knew him "face to face" (Deut. 34:10–12). "Man of God" (Deut. 33:1) is a technical term used over 70 times in the OT, always referring to one who spoke for God. It is used of Timothy in the NT (1 Tim. 6:11; 2 Tim. 3:17).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 90:1 our dwelling place. God is our sanctuary for protection, sustenance, and stability (cf. Deut. 33:27; Ps. 91:9).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 90:2 from everlasting to everlasting. God's nature is without beginning or end, free from all succession of time, and contains in itself the cause of time (cf. 102:27; Isa. 41:4; 1 Cor. 2:7; Eph. 1:4; 1 Tim. 6:16; Rev. 1:8).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 90:3 You return man to dust. Though different from the "dust" of Gen. 3:19, this phrase is no doubt a reference to that passage. Humanity lives under a sovereign decree of death and cannot escape it.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 90:4 a watch in the night. A "watch" was a four-hour period of time (cf. Ex. 14:24; Lam. 2:19; 2 Pet. 3:8).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 90:5 with a flood. Humankind is snatched from the earth as though it were being swept away by floodwaters. like a dream.

Humanity lives its existence as though asleep or in a coma. People are insensitive to the brevity of life and the reality of God's wrath.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 90:7 brought to an end by your anger. The physical bodies of the human race wear out by the effects of God's judgment on sin in the universe (cf. Deut. 4:25–28; 11:16–17). Death is by sin (Rom. 5:12).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 90:8 the light of your presence. All sin is in clear view to the "face" of God.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 90:9 like a sigh. After struggling through his life of afflictions and troubles, a man's life ends with a moan of woe and weariness.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 90:10 seventy . . . eighty. Though Moses lived to be 120 years old, and his "eye was undimmed, and his vigor unabated" (Deut. 34:7), human life was usually more brief and lived under the anger of God. Because of this certain and speedy end, life is sad.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 90:11 your wrath . . . fear of you? Instead of explaining away life's curses, a wise person will recognize God's wrath toward sin as the ultimate cause of all afflictions and consequently learn to fear God.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 90:12 number our days. Evaluate the use of time in light of the brevity of life. heart of wisdom. Wisdom repudiates autonomy and focuses on the Lord's sovereignty and revelation.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 90:14 your steadfast love. See note on Ps. 85:7.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 90:15 glad . . . afflicted us. A prayer that one's days of joy would equal his days of distress.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 90:17 the favor of the Lord. The Lord's favor implies his delight and approval. establish the work of our hands. By God's mercy and grace, one's life can have value, significance, and meaning (cf. 1 Cor. 15:58).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 91:1–16 This psalm describes God's ongoing sovereign protection of his people from the ever-present dangers and terrors that surround humanity. The original setting may be that of an army about to go to battle. Most of the terrors mentioned in this psalm are left undefined, no doubt intentionally, so that no kind of danger is omitted from application. Believers in every age can read this psalm to learn that nothing can harm a child of God unless the Lord permits it. However, in light of the many references in the Psalms to the future messianic kingdom (cf. especially Ps. 96–100), this psalm must be read as being literally fulfilled then.

- I. The Lord's Protection (91:1–13)
    - A. The Confidence (91:1–2)
    - B. The Dangers (91:3–6)
    - C. The Examples (91:7–13)
- II. The Lord's Pledge (91:14–16)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 91:1 shelter of the Most High. An intimate place of divine protection. The use of "Most High" for God emphasizes that no threat can ever overpower him. shadow of the Almighty. In a land where the sun can be oppressive and dangerous, a "shadow" was understood as a metaphor for care and protection.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 91:3 snare of the fowler. This metaphor represents any plots against the believer intended to endanger his life. deadly pestilence. The reference here and in v. 6 is specifically to dreaded diseases, plagues, and epidemics (cf. Jer. 14:12; Ezek. 5:12; 14:19).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 91:4 under his wings. Pictures the protection of a parent bird (see note on Ps. 57:1).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 91:8 only . . . with your eyes. The righteous are so safe in disaster all around them, that they are only spectators.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 91:11–12 This promise of angelic protection was misquoted by Satan in his temptation of the Messiah (see Matt. 4:6).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 91:13 tread . . . lion and the adder. In general, a metaphor for God's protection from all deadly attacks (see notes on Ps.

58:4ff.).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 91:14 he holds fast to me in love. God himself is the speaker in this section (vv. 14–16) and he describes the blessing he gives to those who know and love him. The word for "love" means a "deep longing" for God, or a "clinging" to God.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 91:16 long life. Long life was a specific promise to the OT saint for obedience to the law (e.g., Ex. 20:12; Prov. 3:2). The prophets also promise it to God's people in the future messianic kingdom (cf. Isa. 65:17–23).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 92:1–15 This psalm expresses the exuberance of the psalmist as he recognizes that God is merciful in salvation, great in his works of creation, just in his dealings with the wicked, and faithful in prospering his children.

I. An Expression of Theistic Optimism (92:1–5)
II. An Observation Concerning Righteous Sovereignty (92:6–9)
III. A Testimony to God's Goodness (92:10–15)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 92:Title for the Sabbath. In the postexilic community, some psalms were sung throughout the week in connection with the morning and evening sacrifice; others were designated especially for Sabbath worship.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 92:2 steadfast love . . . faithfulness. These attributes are constant themes of the psalms (see notes on Ps. 85:7; 89:5; see also Luke 10:2).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 92:3 harp. See note on Ps. 81:2.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 92:10 my horn. See note on Ps. 75:4. poured over me fresh oil. This figure is based on a practice of making an animal's horns gleam by rubbing oil on them. Thus God, in effect, had invigorated the psalmist (cf. 23:5; 133:2).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 92:11 My eyes . . . of my enemies. God gratified the psalmist's desire by bringing his enemies to ruin.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 92:12 flourish like the palm tree. The palm tree and the cedar symbolized permanence and strength (cf. v. 14). They are in contrast to the transience of the wicked, who are pictured as temporary as grass (v. 7). See notes on Psalm 1.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 92:13 planted in the house of the Lord. A tree planted in the courtyard of the temple symbolized the thriving conditions of those who maintain a close relationship with the Lord (see note on Ps. 52:8).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 93:1–5 Psalms 93 and 95–100 (cf. Ps. 47) are dedicated to celebrating God's sovereign kingship over the world. Psalm 93 glorifies God's eternal, universal kingdom, which is providentially administered through his Son (Col. 1:17). Nothing is more powerful than the Lord; nothing is more steadfast than his reign, nothing is more sure than his revelation.

I. The Lord's Universal Kingdom (93:1–4)
  A. Over the Earth (93:1–2)
  B. Over the Sea (93:3–4)
II. The Lord's Authoritative Revelation (93:5)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 93:1 The Lord reigns. An exclamation of the Lord's universal reign over the earth from the time of creation (v. 2; cf. 103:19; 145:13) and forever.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 93:3–4 The sea with all its power is nothing in comparison to the power of God. The doubling and tripling of expressions throughout this psalm (vv. 1, 3–4) are poetic means of generating literary energy and emphasis.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 93:5 decrees are very trustworthy. As God's rule over the earth is stable, so his revelation given through Scripture is trustworthy (cf. 19:7).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 94:1–23 The psalmist's urgent concern in this psalm is that the righteous are being oppressed, the wicked are prospering, and it does not look as though God cares. The psalmist thus pleads with God to punish the wicked (cf. Ps. 73; 82).

I. Address to God (94:1–2)
II. Arrogance of the Wicked (94:3–7)
III. Admonition to the Foolish (94:8–11)
IV. Assurance for the Righteous (94:12–15)
V. Advocacy from God (94:16–23)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 94:1 God of vengeance. Vengeance from God is not in the sense of uncontrolled vindictiveness, but in the sense of just retribution by the eternal Judge for trespasses against his law. shine forth! Make an appearance; he may even be asking for a theophany (cf. 50:2; 80:1).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 94:7 The Lord does not see. An autonomous and atheistic attitude (see note on Ps. 59:7).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 94:11 thoughts of man . . . but a breath. The wicked designs of the human mind amount to nothing (cf. 92:5; 1 Cor. 3:20).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 94:12 Blessed. To be blessed was to be wise and prosperous in life, as a result of the instruction of God (cf. 84:5, 12).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 94:14 will not forsake his people. God has a permanent commitment to his people, Israel, established through a covenant based on his abiding love (Gen. 15; Jer. 12:15; Mic. 7:18). This important truth serves as a doctrinal basis for Ps. 93–100 and was intended to encourage the nation during difficult times. Paul refers to this in Rom. 11:1 as he assures the future salvation of Israel.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 94:17 soul . . . lived in . . . silence. "Silence" here is another term for Sheol, the realm of the dead (cf. 31:17).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 94:18 your steadfast love. See note on Ps. 85:7.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 94:20 frame injustice by statute? Corrupt judges and rulers counter the very divine moral order of the universe by using law for wickedness rather than for good.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 94:23 wipe them out for their wickedness. Portrays destruction while they are sinning.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 95:1–11 This psalm, with its references to the wilderness wanderings, may have been composed by David (Heb. 4:7) for the Feast of the Booths, or Tabernacles (cf. Ps. 81). During this feast, the people of Israel lived in booths, remembering God's provisions for them in the wilderness. After a call to worship (95:1–7a), a prophecy in the voice of the Holy Spirit himself (cf. Heb. 3:7) breaks in and reminds the people of the dangers of rebellion and tempting God. Psalm 95:7b–11 is quoted verbatim in Heb. 3:7–11 (cf. Heb. 3:15; 4:3–7) with the warning that those vacillating Jews also were in danger of missing the promised "rest" (i.e., salvation).

I. Positive Call to Worship (95:1–7a)
II. Negative Warning of Wrath (95:7b–11)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 95:1 rock of our salvation. This metaphor for God was especially appropriate in this psalm, which refers (vv. 8–9) to the water that came from the rock in the wilderness (cf. Ex. 17:1–7; Num. 20:1–13; 1 Cor. 10:4).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 95:3 a great King above all gods. This is a poetic way of denying the existence of other gods (cf. 96:5), which existed only as statues, not persons (cf. Jer. 10:1–10).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 95:4 depths of the earth. This refers to the depths of the seas, valleys, and caverns, and contrasts with the hills. The point (cf. v. 5) is that God was not a local god like the imaginary gods of the heathens, usually put up in high places, but the universal Creator and Ruler of the whole earth (see note on Ps. 65:5).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 95:8 at Meribah. Meribah (translated "rebellion") was the place in the wilderness where the Israelites rebelled against the Lord.

Their complaint about lack of water demonstrated their lack of faith in the Lord (Ex. 17:1–7; Num. 20:1–13; Ps. 81:7).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 95:9 put me to the test. This is a reference to the same event (v. 8), also called “Massah” (translated “testing”), when God brought water out of the rock (Ex. 17:7; cf. Deut. 6:16; 9:22; 33:8). The writer to the Hebrews applies the principle of this event to his readers, suggesting that their inclination to doubt the Lord and return to Judaism was parallel with their fathers’ inclination to doubt the Lord and go back to Egypt.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 95:10 astray in their heart. Their wanderings in the desert were the outworking of straying hearts.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 95:11 my rest. The “rest” was originally the Promised Land (i.e., Canaan), where the people came at the end of Israel’s 40-year journey in the wilderness. It was analogously applied in the book of Hebrews to salvation by grace (Heb. 3:7–4:10; cf. Heb. 2:3).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 96:1–13 The substance of this psalm, and portions of Ps. 97; 98; and 100 are found in 1 Chron. 16, which was used by David’s direction in the dedication of the tabernacle on Mount Zion. The psalm has importance beyond that historical occasion, however, because it anticipates kingdom praise for the Lord from all the nations of the world (Ps. 96:3–4, 7, 9–13; cf. Isa. 2:2–4; Zech. 14:16–19), and even from nature itself. It also expresses the intense joy that will saturate the earth when the Messiah is ruling from Jerusalem (cf. Isa. 25:9; 40:9–10).

I. The Proclamation of Praise (96:1–6)
    A. The Invitation to Praise (96:1–3)
    B. The Recipient of Praise (96:4–6)
II. The Exhortation to Worship (96:7–13)
    A. Worship from the Gentile Nations (96:7–10)
    B. Worship from Personified Nature (96:11–13)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 96:1 a new song. This new song was intended for the future inauguration of the millennial rule of the Lord over the earth (cf. 144:9; 149:1; Rev. 5:9; 14:3).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 96:2 tell of his salvation. Genuine praise includes a testimony to others of God's plan of redemption.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 96:3 his glory . . . nations. The glory of the Lord is more than just his majestic splendor. It includes all of the reasons for admiring and praising him, such as his acts of creation (cf. 19:2) and redemption (96:2). all the peoples! See note on Ps. 67:3.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 96:4 feared above all gods. See note on Ps. 95:3.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 96:8 an offering. According to the psalmists and prophets, offerings and sacrifices will be presented to the Lord in the millennial kingdom (cf. Ps. 45:12; Ezek. 40–46).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 96:9 splendor of holiness. That is, "worship the Lord because of the splendor of his holiness" (cf. 29:2; 99; 110:3; also 1 Chron. 16:29). See note on 2 Chron. 20:21.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 96:10 established. Instead of the continuance of international chaos in human history, the world will be settled and efficiently managed by the Messiah in the millennial kingdom (cf. Ps. 2; Mic. 4:1–5). judge the peoples with equity. Not only will the Lord establish international peace and stability in the future messianic kingdom, but he will also rule the world with impeccable justice (cf. Ps. 96:13; Isa. 11:1–5).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 96:11–12 This is what even inanimate creation awaits (cf. Rom. 8:19–22).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 96:13 he comes. The rule of the Lord described in this psalm is not the present universal kingdom (Ps. 93), but one which will be established when Christ returns to earth.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 97:1–12 The psalmist, though recognizing the Lord's universal rule at the present (v. 9), anticipates a new coming of the Lord to judge the earth. The imagery of the Lord's presence may, in fact, be the basis of some NT passages' descriptions of the second coming (cf. Matt. 24; Rev. 19). Special emphasis is also placed on the Lord's totally righteous judgments on the world in his kingdom, as well as his obliteration of false religions.

- I. The Announcement of the Reign of the Lord (97:1–2)
- II. The Effect of the Reign of the Lord (97:3–12)
    - A. On His Foes (97:3–9)
    - B. On His Friends (97:10–12)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 97:1 many coastlands. Refers to all the continents, as well as islands of the world (cf. Isa. 42:10; Dan. 2:34–35, 44; Zech. 14:9).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 97:2 Clouds and thick darkness. Such a description emphasizes the terrifying effect of the Lord's presence, both in the past (Ex. 19:16–18), and in the future Day of the Lord (Joel 2:2; Zeph. 1:15; Matt. 24:29–30).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 97:3 burns up his adversaries. The Lord will utterly destroy his enemies in the future Day of the Lord (cf. Zech. 14:12).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 97:4 His lightnings. This is perhaps a reference to the Lord's awesome and public coming to rule the world (Matt. 24:26–30).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 97:5 mountains melt. At the coming of the Lord, the mountains will fade away (cf. Isa. 40:3–5; Zech. 14:4, 10).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 97:6 heavens proclaim his righteousness. See the parallel description of Christ's coming in glory in Isa. 40:5 and Matt. 24:29–31 (cf. Rev. 19:11–15).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 97:7 all you gods! No false gods or religions will be allowed in the messianic kingdom (cf. Zech. 13:2–3).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 97:8 Zion. See note on Ps. 87:2. because of your judgments. A major reason for joy and well-being in the messianic kingdom will be the perfectly righteous judgments of Christ on the peoples of the world (cf. 97:1–3; 48:11; Isa. 11:1–5; Zech. 8:3).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 97:10 preserves the lives of his saints. Here the doctrine of eternal security is stated. Gratitude for such grace should motivate believers to holiness.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 97:11 Light is sown. This is a poetic way of describing the ultimate triumph of righteousness and the righteous (cf. Isa. 58:8, 10; 60:19–20; Mal. 4:2).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 98:1–9 Like the surrounding psalms, this psalm proclaims the excitement and joy of the whole earth over the rule of the Lord in the kingdom. This psalm is given over entirely to praise, with only a brief mention of the wicked.

- I. Celebration of the Lord’s Victorious Reign (98:1–6)
  - A. Triumphs of the Lord (98:1–3)
  - B. Praise to the Lord (98:4–6)
- II. Exaltation of the Lord’s Righteous Judgments (98:7–9)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 98:1 a new song. See note on Ps. 96:1. right hand . . . holy arm. These are symbols of power. salvation. The Lord is often pictured in the OT as a divine warrior (Ex. 15:2–3; Ps. 18; 68:1–8; Isa. 59:15ff.). According to the prophets, Christ will begin his millennial reign following his victory over the nations of the world that will gather against Israel in the end times (cf. Zech. 14:1–15; Rev. 19:11–21).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 98:2 the nations. See notes on Ps. 57:9; 67:3; 82:8.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 98:3 his steadfast love and faithfulness. See notes on Ps. 85:7 and 89:5. salvation. These words are a metaphor for the Lord’s establishment of his righteous kingdom on earth (cf. Isa. 46:13; 51:5–8).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 98:4 Make a joyful noise. A great cheer, greeting and welcoming a king (cf. Zech. 9:9; Matt. 21:4–9). break forth. The idea is that of an eruption of praise that could not be contained (cf. Isa. 14:7; 44:23; 55:12).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 98:5–6 lyre . . . trumpets . . . horn. Instruments normally used in temple worship (cf. 1 Chron. 16:5–6; 2 Chron. 5:12–13; 29:25–30; Ezra 3:10–13).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 98:8 rivers clap their hands. Different parts of nature are pictured as rejoicing in this universal scene of joy (cf. Isa. 35:1–2; Rom. 8:19–21).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 98:9 he comes. See note on Ps. 96:13.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 99:1–9 The theme of this psalm is summed up in its last phrase: "the Lord our God is holy" (v. 9). The psalmist encourages praise to the king for his holiness (vv. 3, 5, 9), which is the utter separateness of God's being from all other creatures and things, as well as his moral separateness from sin. The psalmist also exults in the truth that such a holy God has had an intimate saving relationship with Israel throughout her history (vv. 6–9).

I. Exaltation of the King's Holiness (99:1–5)
II. Examples of the King's Holiness (99:6–9)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 99:1 upon the cherubim. See note on Ps. 80:1; cf. 18:6–19; Ezek. 10:1ff.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 99:2 Zion. See note on Ps. 87:2; cf. Heb. 12:22–24. peoples. See notes on Ps. 57:9 and 67:3.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 99:4 The King in his might loves justice. "King in his might" may be a kind of epithet for God; or (combining this phrase with v. 3) the psalmist may be saying that a holy name is the strength of a just king. equity. That is, fairness (cf. Isa. 11:1–5).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 99:5 his footstool. In general, this is a metaphor for the temple in Jerusalem (cf. Isa. 60:13; Lam. 2:1); but more specifically, for the ark of the covenant (1 Chron. 28:2). Footstools were included with the thrones of the kings of Israel (2 Chron. 9:18).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 99:6 Moses . . . Aaron . . . Samuel. Using three of the nation's famous heroes for examples, the psalmist demonstrates that a holy God has had an enduring, intimate, and saving relationship with Israel.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 99:7 pillar of the cloud. This was a medium of divine direction (cf. Ex. 13:21–22; 33:9–10; Num. 12:5; Deut. 31:15ff.). testimonies . . . statute. Terms in Psalms for God's word (see Ps. 119).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 99:9 his holy mountain. This is the hill in Jerusalem where the temple was (cf. 15:1; 24:3), and where it will be located in the future messianic kingdom (cf. Isa. 24:23).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 100:1–5 This well-known psalm, emphasizing the universal nature of God's kingship, is a benediction to the series of psalms that are occupied with the Lord's kingdom rule (Ps. 93; 95–100). Most of it is a call to praise and thanksgiving, while 100:3, 5 fix the reasons for that worship.

I. A Call to Praise the Lord (100:1–3)
II. A Call to Thank the Lord (100:4–5)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 100:1 Make a joyful noise. See note on Ps. 66:1.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 100:3 Know. In the sense of experiencing and being completely assured of the truth. the Lord he is God! A confession that Israel's covenant God, Jehovah, is the only true God. made us. Though God's actual creation of every human being is understood here, this phrase seems to refer to God's making and blessing Israel as a nation (cf. Deut. 32:6, 15; Ps. 95:6; Isa. 29:22–23; 44:2). his people . . . his pasture. The shepherd image is often ascribed to the king of Israel, as well as to the Lord (cf. Ps. 78:70–72; Isa. 44:28; Jer. 10:21; Zech. 10:3; 11:4–17; also Ps. 23:1; 28:9; 74:1; 77:20; 78:52–53; 80:1; 95:7). The figure suggests intimate care (cf. Luke 15:3–6). According to the NT, the Lord is also the Shepherd of saints in the church age (John 10:16).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 100:4 his gates . . . courts. The gates and courts were those of the temple.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 100:5 the Lord is good. God is the source and perfect example of goodness. his steadfast love. See note on Ps. 85:7. his faithfulness. God's faithfulness in the sense of keeping his promises.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 101:1–8 This Davidic psalm expresses the righteous commitments of the mediatorial king (David) to his eternal king (the Lord) in regard to 1) his own personal life and 2) the lives of those who inhabit the kingdom. Possibly, this psalm was used later at the coronations of future kings over Israel. Ultimately, only King Jesus would perfectly fulfill these holy resolutions (cf. Isa. 9:6–7; 11:1–5).

- I. Personal Life of the King (101:1–4)
- II. Personal Outcome of Kingdom Inhabitants (101:5–8)
  - A. The Just (101:6)
  - B. The Unjust (101:5, 7, 8)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 101:2 blameless. As the king goes, so go his followers (cf. v. 6). when will you come to me? This is not an eschatological expectation, but rather a personal expression of David’s need for God’s immanent involvement in his earthly kingship. my house. The king first starts with his own personal life (cf. v. 7), and then looks beyond to his kingdom (cf. vv. 5, 8).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 101:3–4 Similar to the “blessed man” in 1:1.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 101:3 my eyes. The king desires to look at nothing but that which is righteous (cf. v. 6).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 101:4 evil. The king will not engage in wickedness (cf. v. 8).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 101:5 slanders . . . haughty look . . . arrogant heart. Neither character assassination nor pride will be tolerated in the kingdom.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 101:6 the faithful in the land. Compare to “the wicked in the land” in v. 8.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 101:7 deceit . . . lies. A premium is put on truth as foundational for a kingdom associated with the God of truth (cf. John 14:6).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 101:8 the land . . . the city of the Lord. Israel and Jerusalem respectively.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 102:1–28 The non-specific superscription is unique to this psalm that highlights the thoughts of one who is afflicted (cf. Ps. 22; 69; 79; 102; 130; 142), perhaps expressing exilic lament (cf. Ps. 42; 43; 74; 79; 137). Like Job, whose troubles were not the result of God’s judgment for personal sin, the psalmist cries out in pain. His only relief comes from refocusing on sovereign God and his eternal purposes. Messianic overtones are present as Heb. 1:10–12 quotes Ps. 102:25–26.

I. A Plea for Immediate Divine Help (102:1–11)
II. A Perspective of God’s Sovereignty and Eternality (102:12–22)
III. A Prayer for Longer Life (102:23–28)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 102:1–2 Frequently the Psalms begin with a cry for God’s sovereign intervention when human resources have proved insufficient, e.g., 77:1 and 142:1.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 102:2 your face . . . your ear. Anthropomorphic language (i.e., a figure of speech that attributes human features to God) that points to God’s attention and response, respectively.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 102:3–5 bones . . . heart . . . bones. These terms describe the emotional and physical toll of the psalmist’s ordeal.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 102:6 desert owl. The verse describes a desolate situation, extreme loneliness (cf. Isa. 34:8–15; Zeph. 2:13–15). owl. Owls were unclean animals, cf. Lev. 11:16–18.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 102:7 lonely sparrow. Feeling like a solitary bird, the psalmist expresses his perceived abandonment by both God and man.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 102:10–11 an evening shadow. The time of sunset is used to describe the psalmist’s desperate sense that his life will end shortly because God has punished him by withdrawing his presence and strength.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 102:12–22 The psalmist radically shifts his focus from earth to heaven—from his dilemma to God—and basks in the eternal nature of God and the eternal outworking of God’s redemptive plan.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 102:13–16 Zion. Earthly Zion or Jerusalem is in view (cf. vv. 16, 21–22). Perhaps this points to the time of restoration after the Babylonian exile (c. 605–536 B.C.).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 102:18 recorded. The psalmist had a sense of the perpetuation of his literary effort.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 102:19 looked down . . . looked. The transcendent omniscience of God is in view.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 102:22 peoples . . . kingdoms. This will ultimately be fulfilled in Christ's messianic reign over the world (cf. Ps. 2).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 102:23–24 The psalmist desires to live longer but acknowledges his mortality compared to God's eternality.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 102:24 the midst of my days. Lit., at the halfway point of life.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 102:25–27 Eternal God created the heavens and earth, which will one day perish (v. 26). Hebrews 1:10–12 applies this passage to the Lord Jesus Christ, who is superior to the angels because: 1) he is eternal, while they had a beginning; and 2) he created, but they were created. This passage clearly affirms the eternality and deity of Christ. The unchangeable God will outlast his creation, even into the new creation (cf. Mal. 3:6; James 1:17; 2 Pet. 3; Rev. 21–22).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 102:28 The realistic hope of one who perceives that though he is about to die, God's purposes on earth will be accomplished in future generations.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 103:1–22 Psalms 103 and 104 appear as an intentional pair designed to promote the blessing and exaltation of God. This psalm represents a soliloquy in which David surveys God's goodness and encourages the angels and the works of God's creation to join him in divine praise.

I. A Call for Human Praise (103:1–19)
    A. Personally (103:1–5)
    B. Corporately (103:6–19)
II. A Call for Creation's Praise (103:20–22b)
    A. Angels (103:20–21)

B. Works of Creation (103:22a–b)

III. A Refrain of Personal Praise (103:22c)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 103:1 Bless the Lord. Cf. 103:2, 22; 104:1, 35

PSALMS—NOTE ON 103:2 forget not all his benefits. These earthly gifts from God included: 1) forgiveness of sin (v. 3), 2) recovery from sickness (v. 3), 3) deliverance from death (v. 4), 4) abundant love and mercy (v. 4), and 5) food to sustain life (v. 5).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 103:3 diseases. This is not a promise, but rather a testimony that should be understood in the light of Deut. 32:39.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 103:5 youth is renewed like the eagle's. The mysterious way of the long-lived eagle symbolized strength and speed (cf. Ex. 19:4; Jer. 48:40), which also characterizes human youth. As a general rule, a person blessed of God will grow weak and slow down less rapidly than otherwise (cf. Isa. 40:29–31, which uses the same language).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 103:6–19 The psalmist rehearses the attributes of God with which he blesses the saints.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 103:7–8 his ways to Moses. Cf. Moses' request (Ex. 33:13) with God's answer (Ex. 34:6–7).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 103:9 not always chide. There will be a final day of accountability, both at death (Luke 16:19–31) and the great white throne (Rev. 20:11–15). The Genesis flood served as a stark preview of this truth (cf. Gen. 6:3).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 103:10 not deal. God's great mercy (v. 11) and irreversible, complete justification (v. 12) have redemptively accomplished for us, by the death of Christ (cf. 2 Cor. 5:21; Phil. 3:9), what we ourselves could not do.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 103:13 As a father. Unlike the pagan gods, who are apathetic or hostile.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 103:14 dust. Physically speaking, as Adam was created of dust (Gen. 2:7), so mankind at death decomposes back into dust (Gen. 3:19).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 103:15–16 days . . . like grass. Man's life is short and transitory (cf. Isa. 40:8).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 103:17–18 the steadfast love of the Lord. Those who appeal to God's mercy by proper fear (v. 17) and obedience (v. 18) will overcome the shortness of physical life with eternal life. Luke 1:50 quotes Ps. 103:17.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 103:19 his throne in the heavens. From everlasting to everlasting God has always ruled over all things (cf. 11:4; 47:1–9; 148:8–13). This universal kingdom is to be distinguished from God's mediatorial kingdom on earth.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 103:20–21 his angels . . . his hosts. Unfallen, righteous angels who serve God night and day (cf. 148:2; Rev. 5:11–13).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 103:22 all his works. Refers to God's creation, which is also to his praise (cf. Ps. 148–150, also 1 Chron. 29:10–13).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 104:1–35 In vivid poetic detail, the psalmist sings of the Lord's glory in creation (cf. Gen. 1–2; Job 38–41; Ps. 19:1–6; 148:1–6; Prov. 30:4; Isa. 40:1–6; John 1:1–3; Rom. 1:18–25; Col. 1:16–17). He refers to the original creation (cf. Ps. 104:5) without forgetting the fall of man and the cursed earth (104:23, 29, 35). He alternates reciting God's greatness by 1) personal praise to the Creator (vv. 1–2, 5–9, 20–30), and 2) declaring God's handiwork to his human audience (vv. 3–4, 10–19, 31–35). The flow of the psalm loosely follows the order of creation as first reported in Gen. 1:1–31 but closes (Ps. 104:35) with an allusion to the end-time events recorded in Rev. 20–22.

I. The Heavens and Earth Created (104:1–9)
II. The Needs of Creatures Met (104:10–18)
III. The Sun and Moon (104:19–23)
IV. The Sea and Its Inhabitants (104:24–26)

V. God’s Providential Care (104:27–30)
VI. Benediction to the Creator (104:31–35)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 104:1–9 This section approximates the first two days of creation (cf. Gen. 1:1–8).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 104:1 very great. The Creator is greater than his creation. Therefore, the Creator is to be worshiped, not the creation (cf. Ex. 20:3–4; Rom. 1:29).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 104:3 the waters. Refers to the original creation with the waters above the heaven (cf. Gen. 1:7–8).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 104:4 winds . . . flaming fire. Hebrews 1:7 attributes these characteristics to angels, describing their swiftness and destructiveness as God’s instruments of judgment.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 104:5 foundations. Cf. Job 38:4.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 104:6–9 While this might sound like the worldwide flood of Gen. 6–9, it continues to refer to the creation, especially Gen. 1:9–10 regarding the third day of creation.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 104:10–18 With water (vv. 10–13), vegetation (v. 14), food-producing vines, trees, and grain (v. 15), trees (vv. 16–17), and cliffs (v. 18), the Creator provides for the basic needs of his creation. This corresponds to the third day of creation (cf. Gen. 1:11–13).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 104:13 lofty abode. Refers to rain clouds.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 104:19–23 This section corresponds to the fourth day of creation in Gen. 1:14–19. The work period of predators (the night) is contrasted with the work time of humans (the day).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 104:24–26 This portion corresponds to the fifth day of creation in Gen. 1:20–23.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 104:26 Leviathan. This term appears in four other OT passages (Job 3:8; 41:1; Ps. 74:14; Isa. 27:1). In each case, Leviathan refers to some mighty creature who can overwhelm man but who is no match for God. Some form of sea monster, probably a dinosaur, is in view. See note on Job 41:1.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 104:27–30 All of creation waits upon God for his providential care. These verses allude to the sixth day of creation (cf. Gen. 1:24–31).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 104:30 your Spirit. This most likely should be translated "your breath," which corresponds to "the breath of life" in Gen. 2:7.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 104:31–35 The psalmist closes with a benediction to the Creator in which he prays that the ungodly might no longer spiritually pollute God's universe (v. 35). This prayer anticipates the new heaven and new earth (cf. Rev. 21–22).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 104:32 trembles . . . smoke. Earthquakes and fires caused by lightning are in view.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 104:35 sinners . . . wicked. Although God has been merciful to let his fallen human creation live on (cf. Gen. 3:1–24), those who bless and praise the Lord desire to see the day when 1) sinful men have been abolished from the earth (cf. Rev. 20:11–15), and 2) the curse of the earth is reversed (cf. Rev. 22:3).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 105:1–45 Just as Ps. 103 and 104 were matched pairs; so are Ps. 105 and 106, as they look at Israel's history from God's perspective and then Israel's vantage respectively. This psalm possibly originated by command of David to Asaph on the occasion when the ark of the covenant was first brought to Jerusalem (2 Sam. 6:12–19; 1 Chron. 16:1–7). Psalm 105:1–15 repeats 1 Chron. 16:8–22.

I. Rejoicing in God's Works for Israel (105:1–3)
II. Remembering God's Works for Israel (105:4–6)
III. Recounting the Work of God for Israel (105:7–45)
    A. Abraham to Joseph (105:7–25)

B. Moses to Joshua (105:26–45)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 105:1–5 Ten imperatives call Israel to a time of remembering, celebrating, and spreading the report abroad of the work of God on Israel's behalf as a result of God's covenant with Abraham.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 105:6 offspring of Abraham . . . children of Jacob. Those who were to obey the commands of vv. 1–5, i.e., the nation of Israel.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 105:7–12 This section rehearses the Abrahamic Covenant.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 105:8 a thousand generations. A reference to an exceedingly long time (a generation is normally 40 years) which would encompass the remainder of human history, i.e., forever (cf. Deut. 7:9; 1 Chron. 16:15).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 105:9–10 The original covenant that God had made with Abraham. He later renewed it with Isaac and then Jacob (cf. Abraham—Gen. 12:1–3; 13:14–18; 15:18–21; 17:1–21; 22:15–19; Isaac—26:23–25; and Jacob—35:9–12).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 105:10 an everlasting covenant. From the time of the covenant until the end. Five OT covenants are spoken of as "everlasting": 1) the Noahic Covenant, Gen. 9:16; 2) the Abrahamic Covenant, Gen. 17:7, 13, 19; 3) the Priestly Covenant, Lev. 24:8; 4) the Davidic Covenant, 2 Sam. 23:5; and 5) the New Covenant, Jer. 32:40.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 105:11 saying. This probably has God's promise to Abraham at Gen. 17:8 in view.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 105:12 few. God promised Abraham that he would multiply his small number of descendants to be as numerous as the stars of heaven and the sand of the seashore (cf. Gen. 13:16; 15:5; 17:2, 6; 22:17).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 105:13 nation to nation. Abraham had migrated from Ur of the Chaldeans to Haran and finally to Canaan (Gen. 11:31). Later, he visited Egypt (Gen. 12:10–13:1).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 105:14 he rebuked. The Lord struck Pharaoh and his house with great plagues when Sarai was taken to his quarters (Gen. 12:17). Abimelech, king of Gerar, was also rebuked by God (Gen. 20:3–7).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 105:15 Touch not . . . no harm. No one passage in the OT records this exact statement. The psalmist most likely is summarizing several occasions, such as Gen. 20:7 and 26:11. my anointed ones . . . my prophets. With poetic parallelism, God's prophets are termed those whom he chose to represent him on earth. In Gen. 20:7, Abraham is called a prophet. This title could also apply to Isaac and Jacob.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 105:16–25 The history recorded in Gen. 37–50 is in view. Psalm 105:16–22 refers to Joseph's experience in Egypt (cf. Gen. 37–41), while Ps. 105:23 looks to Jacob's trek to Egypt that resulted in a 430-year stay (Gen. 42–50; cf. Gen. 15:13–14; Ex. 12:40). Psalm 105:24–25 gives an overall summary of Israel's experience in Egypt (cf. Ex. 1:7–14).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 105:23 the land of Ham. Another name for the area in Egypt where part of the descendants of Ham, the youngest son of Noah, settled (cf. Gen. 9:24; Ps. 78:51).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 105:23–25 God sovereignly used Egypt to judge Israel (cf. Gen. 15:13).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 105:26–36 God's deliverance of Israel from Egypt through the leadership of Moses and Aaron is rehearsed with a special emphasis on the 10 plagues, ending with the Passover (cf. Ex. 5–12).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 105:28 darkness. The ninth plague (cf. Ex. 10:21–29).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 105:29 waters into blood. The first plague (cf. Ex. 7:14–25).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 105:30 frogs. The second plague (cf. Ex. 8:1–15).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 105:31 swarms of flies . . . gnats. The fourth and third plagues respectively (cf. Ex. 8:16–32). The fifth plague of pestilence (Ex. 9:1–7) and the sixth plague of boils (Ex. 9:8–12) are not mentioned.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 105:32–33 hail . . . fiery lightning bolts. The seventh plague (cf. Ex. 9:13–35).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 105:34–35 locusts. The eighth plague (cf. Ex. 10:1–20).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 105:36 struck down . . . the firstborn. The tenth and final plague, which was death to the firstborn of man and beast (cf. Ex. 11:1–12:51).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 105:37–41 The psalmist summarizes Israel's exodus from Egypt. God provided for their financial and physical needs (cf. Ex. 11:2–3; 12:35 and Ex. 15:26); protection by day and night (cf. Ex. 14:19–20); food needs (Ex. 16:1–36); and water needs (cf. Ex. 17:6; Num. 20:1–11).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 105:42–45 The psalmist concludes with a summary that alludes to Joshua's leading the nation back into the land, first promised to Abraham (Josh. 1–12), and then distributed to the 12 tribes of Israel (Josh. 13–24). What God promised (cf. Ps. 105:7–12) he delivered.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 105:42 he remembered. As promised in v. 8.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 105:45 keep . . . observe. This theme of obedience begins (Josh. 1:6–9) and ends (Josh. 24:14–16, 18, 21, 24) the book of Joshua.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 106:1–48 Psalm 106 rehearses God's mercy during Israel's history in spite of Israel's sinfulness (cf. Neh. 9:1–38; Ps. 78; Isa. 63:7–64:12; Ezek. 20:1–44; Dan. 9:1–19; Acts 7:2–53; 1 Cor. 10:1–13). The occasion for this psalm is most likely the repentance (Ps. 106:6) of postexilic Jews who had returned to Jerusalem (vv. 46–47). Verses 1, 47–48 seem to be borrowed from 1 Chron. 16:34–36, which was sung on the occasion of the ark's first being brought to Jerusalem by David (cf. 2 Sam. 6:12–19; 1 Chron. 16:1–7). True revival appears to be the psalmist's intention.

I. The Invocation (106:1–5)
II. The Identification with Israel's Sins (106:6)

III. The Confession of Israel's Sins (106:7–46)
    A. During Moses' Time (106:7–33)
    B. From Joshua to Jeremiah (106:34–46)
IV. The Plea for Salvation (106:47)
V. The Benediction (106:48)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 106:1 good . . . steadfast love. These attributes of God are especially praiseworthy to the psalmist in light of Israel's historical sin pattern (cf. vv. 6–46).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 106:2–3 Verse 2 asks the question answered in v. 3.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 106:4–5 The psalmist has the benefits of the Abrahamic Covenant in mind (see note on Ps. 105:9–10). He prays here for personal deliverance (106:4) and later for national deliverance (v. 47).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 106:6 we . . . fathers. The psalmist acknowledges the perpetual sinfulness of Israel, including that of his own generation.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 106:7–12 This section recalls the crossing of the Red Sea during the exodus by the nation, when Pharaoh and his army were in pursuit (cf. Ex. 14:1–31).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 106:7 Red Sea. See note on Ex. 13:18.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 106:8 name's sake. The glory and reputation of God provide the highest motive for his actions. This frequent OT phrase appears six other places in the Psalms (cf. 23:3; 25:11; 31:3; 79:9; 109:21; 143:11).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 106:9 He rebuked the Red Sea. This reliable historical account recalls a true supernatural miracle of God (cf. Ex. 14:21–22) just as he would later provide a way for the nation to cross the Jordan into the land (cf. Josh. 3:14–17).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 106:10 Quoted in Luke 1:71.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 106:11 not one of them was left. As recorded in Ex. 14:28 (cf. Ps. 78:53).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 106:12 they sang his praise. The Song of Moses is in view (cf. Ex. 15:1–21).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 106:13–33 This section remembers the nation's wanderings in the wilderness (cf. Num. 14–Deut. 34).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 106:13–15 The Jews forgot what God had most recently done on their behalf, but 1) remembered the basics of life that Egypt provided, and 2) doubted that they would have water (cf. Ex. 15:24) or food (cf. Ex. 16:2–3) in the future.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 106:14 put God to the test. According to Num. 14:22, the nation tempted, or tested, God at least 10 times (cf. Ex. 5:21; 6:9; 14:11–12; 15:24; 16:2–3; 17:2–3; 32:1–6; Num. 11:1–6; 12:1–2; 14:2–3).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 106:16–18 Korah, who is not named here, led the rebellion that is recounted (cf. Num. 16:1–35). God's judgment concluded with fire that consumed 250 men (cf. Num. 16:35).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 106:19–23 This section remembers when the nation convinced Aaron to make a golden calf for idol worship while Moses was on the mountain receiving the commandments of God (cf. Ex. 32:1–14; Deut. 9:7–21).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 106:19 Horeb. Most likely another name for Mount Sinai (cf. Ex. 19:11). This special place, called "the mountain of God" (cf. Ex. 3:1; 1 Kings 19:8), is where Moses received the commandments of God (Deut. 1:6; 5:2; 29:1; Mal. 4:4).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 106:21 God, their Savior. This title, common in the Pastoral Epistles, is seldom used in the OT outside of Isaiah (Isa. 19:20; 43:3, 11; 45:15, 21; 49:26; 60:16; 63:8). Here it refers to physical deliverance. It looks forward to Jesus Christ as spiritual redeemer (Luke 2:11).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 106:22 Ham. Another name for the part of Egypt that was settled by descendants of Ham, the youngest son of Noah (cf. Gen. 9:24; 10:6–20).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 106:23 Moses . . . in the breach. Moses pleaded with God, based on the Abrahamic Covenant promises, not to destroy the nation in spite of their idolatry and immoral behavior (cf. Ex. 32:11–14).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 106:24–27 This portion recounts 1) the nation's rejection of Joshua's and Caleb's positive report from the land, and 2) their desire to return to Egypt (cf. Num. 14:1–4). God responded with judgment (Num. 14:11–38).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 106:24 the pleasant land. A term used of the land God promised to Abraham for the nation Israel (cf. Jer. 3:19, Zech. 7:14).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 106:28–31 This scene recounts Israel's encounter with the prophet Balaam who, on behalf of Balak, King of Moab, tried to curse Israel but was prevented from doing so by God (cf. Num. 22–24; Deut. 23:4; Josh. 24:9–10; Neh. 13:2). Having failed, Balaam advised Balak to entice Israel with immorality and idolatry (cf. Num. 31:16 25:1; 2 Pet. 2:15; Jude 11; Rev. 2:14). Israel sinned and God judged (Num. 25:1–13). Balaam was later slain by Israel (cf. Josh. 13:22).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 106:28 Baal of Peor. Refers to Baal, a god of the Moabites, whose worship occurred at the location of the mountain called Peor (cf. Num. 23:28). sacrifices offered to the dead. This most likely refers to sacrifices made to lifeless idols (cf. 1 Thess. 1:9). Israel should have been worshiping "the living God" (cf. Deut. 5:26; 1 Sam. 17:26, 36; Ps. 42:2; 84:2; Jer. 10:3–10; Dan. 6:20, 26).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 106:30 Phinehas. The son of Eleazar, son of Aaron (cf. Num. 25:7).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 106:31 counted to him as righteousness. This was a just and rewardable action, evidencing faith in God. As with Abraham (cf. Gen. 15:6 and Rom. 4:3; Gal. 3:6; James 2:23), so it was also with Phinehas. The everlasting covenant of perpetual priesthood through Aaron, from the house of Levi, was first made by God in Lev. 24:8–9 (cf. Jer. 33:17–22; Mal. 2:4–8). This covenant was reaffirmed in Num. 18:8, 19. In this text, the covenant is further specified to be through the line of faithful Phinehas.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 106:32–33 This scene looks back to Num. 20:1–13 when Moses, provoked by the continuing rebellion of Israel, nonetheless wrongly struck the rock in anger (cf. Ex. 11:8; 16:20) and thus offended God (cf. Num. 20:12). As a result, both Aaron (cf. Num. 20:22–29) and Moses (Deut. 34:1–8) died prematurely without entering the Promised Land.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 106:32 the waters of Meribah. Cf. Num. 20:13.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 106:33 his spirit. This most likely refers to the Holy Spirit of God. The Spirit of God had an extensive ministry in the OT (cf. Gen. 1:2; 6:3; 2 Sam. 23:2; Neh. 9:30; Ps. 139:7; Isa. 48:16; Ezek. 2:2; 3:12–14; 8:3; 11:1, 5, 24; Hag. 2:5, Zech. 7:12). Both Isa. 63:10–11 and Acts 7:51 point to this particular event.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 106:34–39 This section describes the general sins of Israel from the time they entered the land (Josh. 3–4) until they were exiled to Assyria (2 Kings 17) and Babylon (2 Kings 24–25). They failed to expel the heathen and sadly conformed to their idolatry.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 106:36–38 idols . . . demons . . . idols. Demons impersonate idols and encourage idol worship (cf. Deut. 32:17; 2 Chron. 33:5–7; 1 Cor. 10:14–21; Rev. 9:20). The sacrifice of children was not uncommon (cf. Deut. 12:31; 2 Kings 17:17; Ezek. 16:20–21).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 106:39 their acts . . . deeds. God held Israel directly responsible for their sin without excuse.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 106:40–43 From the time of the judges until the Assyrian and Babylonian exiles, God used the hand of his enemies to discipline Israel for their sin.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 106:44–46 This emphasizes the unconditional nature of God’s covenant with Abraham.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 106:45 he remembered his covenant. This answers the psalmist’s prayer of vv. 4–5 with regard to the Abrahamic Covenant that 1) the descendants of Abraham would multiply, and 2) they would possess the land (see note on Ps. 105:9–10; cf. Luke 1:72–75). For their sake. A secondary complement to God, who was primarily acting for his name's sake (cf. Ps. 106:8).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 106:47 The psalmist pleads, on behalf of the nation and in light of the Abrahamic Covenant, for the nation to be regathered in Israel. He remembers what the men of Moses' day forgot, i.e., God as their Savior (cf. v. 21). Even though the tribes of Judah and Benjamin returned to Israel in Ezra and Nehemiah, this text looks ahead to the regathering of Israel at the time when the Lord Jesus Christ returns to rule over the promised Davidic (2 Sam. 7) millennial kingdom (Rev. 20) on earth (cf. Ezek. 37:11–28; Hos. 14:4–8; Joel 3:18–21; Amos 9:7–15; Mic. 7:14–20; Zeph. 3:8–20; Zech. 12–14).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 106:48 from everlasting to everlasting! With the hopeful prayer of v. 47 on his lips, the psalmist closes the fourth book of the Psalms (Ps. 90–106) with a grand benediction focusing on the eternal character of God, Israel's Savior (cf. 1 Chron. 16:36; Ps. 41:13; 90:2).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 107:1–43 The opening line of Ps. 105–107, "Oh give thanks to the Lord," links together this trilogy of songs that praise God for his goodness and mercy to Israel. Most likely this psalm has a postexilic origin (cf. 107:3). The psalm develops two main themes: 1) praising God for his continual deliverance (vv. 4–32), and 2) remembering God's response to man's obedience/disobedience (vv. 33–42).

I. The Call to Praise (107:1–3)
II. The Cause of Rejoicing—Deliverance (107:4–32)
III. The Consequences of Obedience/Disobedience (107:33–42)
IV. The Commentary on Wisdom/Understanding (107:43)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 107:1–3 All of those who have been delivered (redeemed) from the hand of Israel's enemy focus on God's goodness and everlasting mercy. They had been delivered through the centuries from Egypt to the south (cf. Ex. 12–14), Syria and Assyria to the north (cf. 2 Kings 19:29–37), the Philistines to the west (cf. 2 Sam. 8:1; 2 Kings 18:8), and Babylon to the east (cf. Ezra 1). Compare the psalmist's prayer in Ps. 106:47 with 107:3.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 107:4–32 This portion contains four pictures or actual situations that illustrate the disastrous end of sin in the nation: 1) wandering in the wilderness (vv. 4–9), 2) languishing in prison (vv. 10–16); 3) enduring sickness (vv. 17–22); and 4) tossing on a stormy sea (vv. 23–32). Each picture follows the same sequence of four events: 1) man's predicament (vv. 4–5, 10–12, 17–18, 23–27); 2) man's petition (vv. 6a, 13a, 19a, 28a); 3) God's pardon (vv. 6b–7, 13b–14, 19b–20, 28b–30); and 4) man's praise (vv. 8–9, 15–16, 21–22, 31–32).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 107:4–9 Possibly the psalmist looked back at the desert wanderings of ungrateful, faithless Israel after the miraculous exodus (Num. 14–Josh. 2).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 107:10–16 Possibly the psalmist thought of the capture and imprisonment of King Zedekiah c. 586 B.C. (cf. 2 Kings 25:4–7; Jer. 39:4–8; 52:1–11).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 107:17–22 Possibly the psalmist recalled the mass affliction and subsequent mass healing in Num. 21:4–9.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 107:23–32 Possibly the psalmist had Jonah and the sailors bound for Tarshish in mind (cf. Jonah 1).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 107:33–42 This section contrasts God's blessing in response to man's obedience with God's judgment on man's sin. The psalmist makes his point with four illustrations: 1) descending from prosperity to poverty (vv. 33–34); 2) being lifted up from barrenness to blessedness (vv. 35–38); 3) falling from the top to the bottom (vv. 39–40); and 4) being elevated from low to high (vv. 41–42).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 107:33–34 Perhaps the three years of drought from Ahab's and Jezebel's sins are in view (cf. 1 Kings 17:1; 18:18).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 107:35–38 Perhaps the time of Abraham (Gen. 24:1, 34–35) or Joshua (Josh. 24:13) is in view.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 107:39–40 Perhaps the Assyrian exile (2 Kings 17:4–6) or the Babylonian captivity (2 Kings 24:14–15) is in view.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 107:41–42 Perhaps the impoverished Jews in Egypt who were made rich with Egyptian gold and other treasures are in view (cf. Ex. 1:13–14 with 3:21–22; 11:2; 12:35–36).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 107:43 Perhaps the psalmist has Prov. 8:1–36, Eccles. 12:13–14, or Hos. 14:9 in mind as he pens these concluding words.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 108:1–13 David combines portions of his own previously written Ps. 57 and 60 to make up this psalm commemorating God's victories (108:1–5 is from 57:7–11; 108:6–13 is from 60:5–12). He deleted the laments that began each psalm (57:1–6 and 60:1–4) while combining his own words of exaltation and confidence in God with only slight word variation. No specific historical occasion behind this psalm is given. See notes on Ps. 57:7–11 and Ps. 60:5–12.

I. Personal Exaltation of God (108:1–5)
II. Personal Confidence in God (108:6–13)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 109:1–31 This imprecatory psalm of David cannot be conclusively connected by the psalm's general details with any particular incident/person in the king's life as chronicled in 1 and 2 Samuel; 1 Kings; and 1 Chronicles. David responds here to those who have launched a vicious verbal assault of false accusations against him (cf. Ps. 109:2–3, 20). This psalm is considered messianic in nature, since Acts 1:20 quotes Ps. 109:8 in reference to Judas's punishment for betraying Christ (cf. 41:9; 69:25). David reverses roles with his enemies by moving from being the accused in man's court to being the accuser/prosecutor before the bar of God.

I. The Plaintiff's Plea (109:1–5)
II. The Punishment Desired (109:6–20)
III. The Petition for Justice (109:21–29)
IV. The Praise of the Judge (109:30–31)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 109:1 O God of my praise! David begins and ends (cf. v. 30) with praise for the Chief Justice of the universe. At v. 21, David addresses the Judge as "O God, my Lord" and at v. 26 as "O Lord my God."

PSALMS—NOTE ON 109:2–5 David's complaint was that the innocent were being accused by the guilty. He asserted that the charges were without cause (v. 3). While Doeg the Edomite has been identified by some (cf. 1 Sam. 21–22; Ps. 52), the far more likely candidate would be Saul (cf. 1 Sam. 18–27). Eight of the 14 historical superscriptions in other psalms refer to the sufferings of David related to Saul's pursuits for the purpose of killing David (cf. Ps. 18; 34; 54; 56; 57; 59; 63; 142).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 109:2 In vv. 2–5, 20, 25, 27–29, David refers to a group of accusers, in contrast to vv. 6–19 where an individual is mentioned. Most likely, the individual is the group leader.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 109:6–20 The Mosaic law had anticipated false accusations and malicious witnesses (cf. Deut. 19:16–21) by decreeing that the false accuser was to be given the punishment intended for the accused. It would appear that David had this law in mind here and Ps. 109:26–29. Thus, his imprecations are not malicious maledictions, but rather a call for justice according to the law. These severe words have respect not to the penitent, but to the impenitent and hard-hearted foes of God and his cause, whose inevitable fate is set.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 109:8 The apostle Peter cited this verse as justification for replacing Judas the betrayer with another apostle (cf. Acts 1:20).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 109:21–29 David petitioned the court for justice by asking for deliverance for the judge's sake (v. 21) and then for his own sake (vv. 22–25). Afterward, he requested that his enemies be rightfully punished (vv. 26–29).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 109:30–31 David's praise for the Divine Magistrate (v. 30) was based on his confidence in the compassion and mercy of the judge (v. 31). Second Samuel 22 and Ps. 18 record the general outcome to David's case, which was tried in God's courtroom.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 110:1–7 This psalm contains one of the most exalted prophetic portions of Scripture presenting Jesus Christ as both a holy king and a royal high priest—something that no human monarch of Israel ever experienced. It, along with Ps. 118, is by far the most quoted psalm in the NT (Matt. 22:44; 26:64; Mark 12:36; 14:62; Luke 20:42–43; 22:69; Acts 2:34–35; Heb. 1:13; 5:6; 7:17, 21; 10:13). While portraying the perfect king, the perfect high priest, and the perfect government, Ps. 110 declares Christ's current role in heaven as the resurrected Savior (v. 1) and his future role on earth as the reigning Monarch (vv. 2–7). This psalm is decidedly messianic and millennial in content. Jesus Christ (Matt. 22:43–44) verifies the Davidic authorship. The exact occasion of this psalm is unknown, but it could easily have been associated with God's declaration of the Davidic Covenant in 2 Sam. 7:4–17.

I. Christ the King (110:1–3)
II. Christ the High Priest (110:4–7)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 110:1 my Lord. Refers to the divine/human King of Israel—the Lord Jesus Christ. Christ's humanity descended from David, which is demanded by the Davidic promise of 2 Sam. 7:12. Using this passage, Christ also declared his deity in the gospels (Matt. 22:44; Mark 12:36; Luke 20:42–43) by arguing that only God could have been lord to King David. my right hand. God the Father invited God the Son in his ascension to sit at the place of honor in the heavenly throne room (cf. Acts 2:22–36; Heb. 10:10–12). your enemies your footstool. Footstool was an ancient Near Eastern picture of absolute victory portraying the idea that one's enemy was now underfoot (cf. Ps. 8:6–7; 47:3; Isa. 66:1; 1 Cor. 15:27). This anticipates Christ's second advent (cf. Rev. 19:11–21) as a conquering king (cf. Heb. 10:13).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 110:2 your mighty scepter. From the human side, the ancestral staff of Judah is in view (cf. Gen. 49:10). From the divine side, the rod of iron by which King Jesus will subdue the earth is intended (cf. Ps. 2:9). Zion. God intends to install his ultimate earthly king in Jerusalem (the southwest side is Zion; cf. 132:13–18). The earthly Zion (cf. 2:6; Isa. 59:20) is in view, not the heavenly Zion because 1) there are no enemies in heaven, and 2) none of the activities in Ps. 110:5–7 will take place in heaven. Rule.

Christ will rule on the earthly throne of his father David (cf. Luke 1:32), in fulfillment of Isa. 9:6 and Zech. 14:9.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 110:3 offer themselves freely. The redeemed inhabitants of earth will willingly serve the King of kings and Lord of lords. the day of your power. Refers to the power displayed during the millennial reign of Jesus Christ (cf. Zech. 14:1–21; Rev. 19:11–20:6). holy garments . . . womb . . . dew. This seems to apply to the King and to represent him as in the constant vigor of youth, a period distinguished by strength and activity, or it may refer to his holiness, eternality, and deity.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 110:4 You are a priest. The first time in the history of Israel when a king simultaneously served as high priest. Christ (a.k.a. “Branch,” cf. Isa. 4:2; Jer. 23:5–6; Zech. 3:8; 6:12–13) will build the temple at which the world will worship God (cf. 2 Sam. 7:13; Isa. 2:2–4; Ezekiel 40–48). forever. Christ represents the final and foremost high priest in the history of Israel. the order of Melchizedek. This high priest could not be of Aaron’s lineage in that he would not be eternal, not be of Judah, not be a king, and not be of the New Covenant (Jer. 31:31–33; Heb. 8–9). Melchizedek, which means “king of righteousness,” served as the human priest/king of Salem in Gen. 14:17–20 and provides a picture of the order of Christ’s priesthood (cf. Heb. 5:6; 7:17, 21). The sons of Zadok will serve with Christ in the Millennium as his human priestly associates (cf. Ezek. 44:15; 48:11).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 110:5 your right hand. The roles have here reversed—the Father now stands at the right hand of the Son. This pictures the Father supplying the needs of the Son (cf. Ps. 16:8; 109:31; Isa. 41:13). The Father provides the defeat of his enemies on earth so that his Son can fulfill God’s land and nation promises to Abraham (Gen. 12:1–2) and kingship promise to David (2 Sam. 7:12, 13, 16). the day of his wrath. This refers to the “Day of the Lord” (cf. Ps. 110:3 “the day of your power”), which finds its global expression at the end of Daniel’s seventieth week (cf. Dan. 9:24–27). This term exclusively speaks of God’s wrath, which will be poured out on an unrepentant world in order to set up Christ’s 1,000-year (millennial) reign (cf. Joel 2:1, 11, 31; 3:14; Rev. 6:16–17; 14:19; 19:15).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 110:6 judgment . . . filling . . . shatter. Cf. 2:8–9; 50:1–6; Isa. 2:4; 9:6–7; Dan. 2:44–45; 7:26–27; Joel 3:2, 12; Mic. 4:3; Matt. 25:32; Rev. 6:15–17; 14:20; 16:14; 19:19–21.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 110:7 He will drink. This pictures a refreshed conqueror who has kingly access to the whole world. This could anticipate the east-west flow of fresh water out of Jerusalem as recorded in Zech. 14:8. he will lift up. The lifted head pictures Christ's strength in victory (cf. Ps. 3:3; 27:6; 75:10). As 22:28 reports, "For kingship belongs to the Lord, and he rules over the nations" (cf. Zech. 14:9).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 111:1–10 Psalms 111 and 112 are alike in that 1) they both begin with, “Praise the Lord!” (as does Ps. 113), and 2) they both are acrostics with 22 lines corresponding to the 22 letters of the Hebrew alphabet. Psalm 111 exalts the works of God, while Ps. 112 extols the man who fears God. The author(s) and occasion(s) are unknown.

I. A Word of Praise (111:1)
II. Words about God’s Works (111:2–9)
III. A Word of Wisdom (111:10)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 111:1 with my whole heart. Jesus might have had this passage in mind when he stated that the greatest commandment was, “You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart . . . ” (Matt. 22:37).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 111:2–9 God’s work(s) are mentioned five times (vv. 2, 3, 4, 6, 7). Overall, the greater work of redemption seems to be in view (v. 9) without excluding lesser works of a temporal nature (vv. 5–6).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 111:5 food . . . his covenant. It is quite possible that the psalmist has alluded to God’s faithfulness in providing food for Jacob through Joseph (Gen. 37–50) in fulfillment of the Abrahamic Covenant to make the nation like the stars of the sky (Gen. 15:5).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 111:6 the inheritance of the nations. It seems even more sure that the psalmist has the Abrahamic Covenant in view (cf. Gen. 15:18–21; 17:1–8), specifically the exodus (Exodus–Deuteronomy) and the conquering/dividing of the land (Joshua). See notes on Deut. 7:1–2.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 111:9 commanded his covenant forever. In light of vv. 5–6 and Gal. 3:6–9, this appears to look at the redemption aspects of the Abrahamic Covenant, which was declared frequently to be an “everlasting” or “forever” covenant (cf. Gen. 17:7, 13, 19; 1 Chron. 16:15, 17; Ps. 105:8, 10; Isa. 24:5).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 111:10 The fear of the Lord. See note on Prov. 1:7.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 112:1–10 See note on Ps. 111:1–10.

I. The Blessing of Obedience (112:1–9)
II. The Emptiness of Sin (112:10)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 112:1 who fears the Lord. This psalm begins where 111:10 ended and links the two together.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 112:2–9 The desire of every human for prosperity can only come through obedience to the commands of God (cf. 1:1–3).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 112:9 his horn. Horns on an animal were an indication of strength and prosperity. This is applied figuratively to the righteous.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 112:10 In utter contrast to the righteous man of vv. 2–9, the wicked man lives a worthless existence without strength (cf. 1:4–6).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 113:1–9 Psalms 113–118 comprise a rich six-psalm praise to God commonly called the “Egyptian Hallel” (hallel meaning praise in Hebrew). These were sung at Passover, Pentecost, and Tabernacles, but had the greatest significance at Passover, which celebrated the Jews’ deliverance from Egypt (cf. Ex. 12–14). Traditionally Ps. 113–114 were sung before the Passover meal and Ps. 115–118 afterwards. Psalm 118 would most likely be what Christ and the disciples sang before they left the Upper Room the night Christ was betrayed (cf. Matt. 26:30; Mark 14:26). There are two other notable sets of praise in the Psalter: 1) The Great Hallel (Ps. 120–136) and 2) The Final Hallel (Ps. 145–150).

I. The Call to Praise (113:1–3)
II. The Cause for Praise (113:4–9)
    A. God’s Transcendence (113:4, 5)
    B. God’s Immanence (113:6–9)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 113:1 servants. Refers to the redeemed, all of whom should serve God with obedience. the name. The name of God represents all his attributes.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 113:2 this time . . . forevermore! Praise is to be rendered always (cf. Eph. 5:20; 1 Thess. 5:18).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 113:3 rising . . . setting. From the first moment of consciousness in the morning to the last waking moment before sleep.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 113:4–5 Believers are to praise the only One worthy of praise for his transcendent sovereignty.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 113:6–9 looks far down. In appearance, God must figuratively lean over from the faraway heavens to examine the earth (cf. Isa. 40:12–17). In a far greater way Christ humbled himself in the incarnation (cf. Phil. 2:5–11).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 113:7–8 the poor. This is borrowed almost exactly from Hannah's song in 1 Sam. 2:8. God is responsible for both the rich and the poor (Prov. 22:2). God's compassion reaches out to the poor and needy (cf. Ps. 72:12–13). Ultimately, Christ came to save those who are poor in spirit (cf. Isa. 61:2; Luke 4:18).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 113:9 the barren woman. Sarah (Gen. 21:2), Rebekah (Gen. 25:21), and Rachel (Gen. 30:23) would be the most significant since the outcome of the Abrahamic Covenant depended on these childless women being blessed by God to be mothers.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 114:1–8 See note on Ps. 113:1–9. This psalm is the one most explicitly related to the exodus (Ex. 12–14). It recounts God's response to a captive nation (Israel in Egypt) in order to honor his promises in the Abrahamic Covenant (Gen. 28:13–17) given to Jacob (cf. Ps. 114:1, "the house of Jacob"; 114:7, "the God of Jacob").

I. God Inhabits Israel (114:1–2)
II. God Intimidates Nature (114:3–6)
III. God Invites Trembling (114:7–8)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 114:2 Judah . . . Israel. Judah/Benjamin and the northern ten tribes respectively. sanctuary . . . dominion. God dwelt among the peoples as a pillar of cloud by day and a pillar of fire by night (cf. Ex. 13:21–22; 14:19).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 114:3 The sea . . . Jordan. Two miracles of God, i.e., separating the waters began and ended the exodus. On the way out of Egypt, God parted the Red Sea (Ex. 14:15–31) and 40 years later he parted the Jordan River in order for the Jews to enter the Promised Land (Josh. 3:1–17).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 114:4 mountains . . . hills. Refers to the violent appearance of God to Israel at Sinai (cf. Ex. 19:18; Judg. 5:4–5; Ps. 68:17–18).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 114:5–6 In poetic imagery, God questioned why the most fixed of geographical features, i.e., water and mountains, could not resist his power and will.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 114:7 Tremble. The only proper response of helpless nature before omnipotent God.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 114:8 the rock. Refers to the first incident at Massah/Meribah (Ex. 17:5–6) and/or the second (Num. 20:8–11).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 115:1–18 See note on Ps. 113:1–9. This praise psalm appears to be antiphonal in nature, following this outline and pattern: 1) the people (115:1–8); 2) the priests (vv. 9–11); 3) the people (vv. 12–13); 4) the priests (vv. 14–15); and 5) the people (vv. 16–18). Verses 4–11 are very similar to 135:15–20. It has been suggested that this psalm is postexilic (cf. 115:2) and could have first been sung at the dedication of the second temple (cf. Ezra 6:16).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 115:1 to your name give glory. God declared he would share his glory with no one (Isa. 42:8; 48:11).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 115:2 Where is their God? (cf. 42:3, 10; 79:10; Joel 2:17; Mic. 7:10). The Jews despised this Gentile taunt.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 115:3 Israel’s God is alive and rules the earth from his throne room above.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 115:4–8 In contrast, Gentiles worship dead gods of their own making, fashioned in the image of the fallen creature (cf. Isa. 44:9–20; 46:5–7; Jer. 10:3–16; Rom. 1:21–25). The idol worshiper becomes like the idol—spiritually useless.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 115:9–11 These three verses of priestly admonition (cf. 118:2–4; 135:19–20) could apply to three different groups: 1) the nation Israel (115:9); 2) the Levitical priests from the house of Aaron (115:10); and 3) proselytes to Judaism who are God fearers (115:11). To all three groups, God is their help and shield.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 115:16 the earth. Strong implications that planet earth alone is the dwelling place of life.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 116:1–19 See note on Ps. 113:1–9. This is an intensely personal "thank you" psalm to the Lord for saving the psalmist from death (116:3, 8). The occasion and author remain unknown, although the language used by Jonah in his prayer from the fish's stomach is remarkably similar. While this appears to deal with physical death, the same song could be sung by those who have been saved from spiritual death.

I. The Lord's Response to the Psalmist's Prayer for Deliverance from Death (116:1–11)
II. The Psalmist's Reaction to God's Deliverance of Him from Death (116:12–19)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 116:3 Sheol. Another term for grave/death.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 116:9 I will walk. A vow of obedience.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 116:10 I believed. Faith in God and his ability to deliver preceded the psalmist's prayer for deliverance. This verse is quoted by the apostle Paul in 2 Cor. 4:13. It rehearses the principle of walking by faith, not by sight.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 116:11 All mankind are liars. Either the psalmist is reacting to his false accusers or to men who say that they can deliver him but have not.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 116:12 What shall I render. God needs nothing and puts no price on his free mercy and grace. The psalmist renders the only acceptable gift—obedience and thanksgiving.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 116:13 the cup of salvation. This is the only place in the OT where this exact phrase is used. It probably has the meaning of the cup in 16:5 and 23:5; i.e., the redeemed life circumstances provided by God, in contrast to 75:8, which speaks about the cup of God’s wrath.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 116:14 I will pay my vows. Most likely this refers to the vows made during the time of duress (cf. 116:18–19).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 116:15–16 The psalmist realized what a special blessing his deliverance (“loosed my bonds”) was in light of v. 15. Therefore, he reemphasized his role as a servant of God following the example of his mother.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 116:17–19 These verses parallel vv. 13–14. Jonah made an almost identical statement (Jonah 2:9).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 116:17 the sacrifice of thanksgiving. Probably not a Mosaic sacrifice, but rather actual praise and thanksgiving rendered from the heart in the spirit of Ps. 136 and 138 (cf. 50:23; 100:4; 119:108).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 116:19 the house of the Lord. Refers to 1) the tabernacle in Jerusalem if written by David or before, or 2) the temple in Jerusalem if written by Solomon or later.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 117:1–2 See note on Ps. 113:1–9. The seal of redemptive truth is bound up in this diminutive but seminal psalm—its profundity far outdistances its size. This pivotal psalm exhibits three distinguishing features: 1) it is the shortest psalm; 2) it is the shortest chapter in the Bible; and 3) it is the middle chapter of the Bible. That God looked redemptively beyond the borders of Israel in the OT is made clear here. The psalm looks back to God’s intent for Adam and Eve in Eden (Gen. 1–2) and looks ahead to the ultimate fulfillment in the new heavens and earth (Rev. 21–22).

I. A Global Invitation (117:1)

II. A Grand Explanation (117:2)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 117:1 nations . . . peoples! Paul quoted this verse in Rom. 15:11 to make the point that from the very beginning of time God has pursued a worldwide redemptive purpose (cf. Rom. 15:7–13). Other passages quoted by Paul in Romans 15 to make this point include: Deut. 32:43; 2 Sam. 22:50; and Isa. 11:10. While not as obvious in the OT, the NT makes this point unmistakably clear (cf. Acts 10:34–35; Rom. 1:16; 1 Cor. 12:13; Gal. 3:1–29, esp. 28; Col. 3:11).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 117:2 The reasons for such exalted praise as that commanded in v. 1 are: 1) because of God's redemptive kindness, and 2) because of God's eternal truth. Therefore, what God has promised, he will provide (cf. John 6:37–40).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 118:1–29 See note on Ps. 113:1–9. This psalm, along with Ps. 110, is intensely messianic and thus the most quoted by the NT (Matt. 21:9, 42; 23:39; Mark 11:9–10; 12:10–11; Luke 13:35; 19:38; 20:17; John 12:13; Acts 4:11; Heb. 13:6; 1 Pet. 2:7). Neither the author nor the specific circumstances of the psalm are identified. Two reasonable possibilities could be entertained: 1) it was written during Moses' day in the exodus, or 2) it was written sometime after the Jews returned to Jerusalem from exile. Probably it was the former, given 1) the nature of the Egyptian Hallel (esp. Ps. 114); 2) its use by the Jewish community especially at Passover; 3) the close similarity to Moses' experience in the exodus; 4) the striking similarity in language (Ps. 118:14 with Ex. 15:2; Ps. 118:15–16 with Ex. 15:6, 12; Ps. 118:28 with Ex. 15:2); and 5) the particularly pointed messianic significance as it relates to the redemption provided by Christ our Passover (1 Cor. 5:7). It seems reasonable to propose that Moses possibly wrote this beautiful psalm to look back in worship at the historical Passover and look ahead in wonder to the spiritual Passover in Christ.

I. Call to Worship (118:1–4)
II. Personal Praise (118:5–21)
III. Corporate Praise (118:22–24)
IV. Commitment to Worship (118:25–29)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 118:1 give thanks. Cf. Ps. 105–107; 136. The psalm ends in 118:29 as it began here.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 118:2–4 Israel . . . Aaron . . . those who fear the Lord. See note on Ps. 115:9–11. The phrase “his steadfast love endures forever” is repeated in all 26 verses of Ps. 136 (cf. 118:1, 29).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 118:5–21 This section contains individual praise by the psalmist, possibly Moses.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 118:5–9 The psalmist focuses intensely on the Lord.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 118:6 Hebrews 13:6 quotes this verse; cf. Ps. 56:4, 11.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 118:10–14 It seems obvious that the leader of the nation is speaking here.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 118:12 a fire among thorns. Dried thorns burn easily and quickly.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 118:13 I was pushed. Refers to the psalmist’s enemy.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 118:14 These words are identical to Moses’ words in Ex. 15:2.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 118:15–18 A declaration of victory.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 118:15–16 The right hand. Very similar to Moses’ words in Ex. 15:6, 12.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 118:18 This possibly refers to the incident at Meribah where Moses struck the rock (cf. Num. 20:8–13).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 118:19–21 The victory against overwhelming odds elicits from the psalmist a great desire to praise God.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 118:19 gates of righteousness. Most likely a figurative reference, i.e., spiritual gates through which the righteous pass (cf. 100:4), rather than to the gates of the temple, e.g., 1 Chron. 9:23.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 118:20 the gate. This points to the entryway that leads to the presence of the Lord. Jesus may have had this psalm in mind when he taught about “the narrow gate” in Matt. 7:13–14.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 118:21 my salvation. The Lord has delivered the psalmist from otherwise certain defeat and death (cf. 118:14–15).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 118:22–26 The NT quotes of vv. 22–23 and vv. 25–26 lend strong messianic significance here. If Moses is the author, then the NT writers use a perfect analogy in connecting this passage to Christ. For example, Moses said that God would raise up another prophet like himself (Deut. 18:15). Peter identified this other prophet as the Lord Jesus Christ (cf. Acts 3:11–26). So Moses is a legitimate, biblically recognized type of Christ.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 118:22 stone . . . builders rejected . . . cornerstone. Peter identified the chief cornerstone in the NT as Christ (Acts 4:11; 1 Pet. 2:7). In the parable of the vineyard (Matt. 21:42; Mark 12:10–11; Luke 20:17), the rejected son of the vineyard owner is likened to the rejected stone that became the chief cornerstone. Christ was that rejected stone. Jewish leaders were pictured as builders of the nation. Now, this passage in Ps. 118:22 has a historical basis that is paralleled in its major features by analogy with the rejection of Christ who came to deliver/save the nation. Moses’ experience, as a type of Christ, pictured Christ’s rejection. On at least three occasions Moses (“stone”) was rejected by the Jews (“builders”) as their God sent the deliverer (“cornerstone”). For examples see Ex. 2:11–15, cf. Acts 7:35; Ex. 14:10–14; 16:1–3, 11–12, 20.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 118:24 the day. Probably refers to 1) the day of deliverance and/or 2) the day the stone was made the cornerstone, which they now celebrate.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 118:25 Lord, we pray, give us success! Transliterated from Hebrew, this becomes “Hosanna.” These words were shouted by the crowd to Christ at the time of his triumphal entry to Jerusalem (Matt. 21:9; Mark 11:9–10; John 12:13). Days later they rejected him because he did not provide military/political deliverance.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 118:26 Blessed. Christ taught that the nation of Israel would not see him again after his departure (ascension to heaven) until they could genuinely offer these words to him at his second coming (cf. Matt. 23:39; Luke 13:35). In this historical text, it could have easily been sung by the Jews of Moses' day, especially at the end of the 40 years but prior to Moses' death (cf. Deut. 1–33). the house of the Lord. A phrase used in reference to the tabernacle of Moses (cf. Ex. 23:19; 34:26; Deut. 23:18) and later the temple (cf. 1 Kings 6:1).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 118:27 light. Similar to the Mosaic benediction of Num. 6:25. the altar. The altar of burnt offerings, which stood on the east in the court outside of the Holy Place (cf. Ex. 27:1–8; 38:1–7).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 118:28 This bears a striking resemblance to Ex. 15:2.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 118:29 A repetition of 118:1.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 119:1–176 This longest of psalms and chapters in the Bible stands as the "Mount Everest" of the Psalter. It joins Ps. 1 and 19 in exalting God's word. The author is unknown for certain, although David, Daniel, or Ezra have reasonably been suggested. The psalmist apparently wrote while under some sort of serious duress (cf. 119:23, 42, 51, 61, 67, 71, 78, 86–87, 95, 110, 121, 134, 139, 143, 146, 153–154, 157, 161, 169). This is an acrostic psalm (cf. 9; 10; 25; 34; 37; 111; 112; 145) composed of 22 sections, each containing eight lines. All eight lines of the first section start with the first letter of the Hebrew alphabet; thus the psalm continues until all 22 letters have been used in order. The eight different terms referring to Scripture occurring throughout the psalm are: 1) law, 2) testimonies, 3) precepts, 4) statutes, 5) commandments, 6) judgments, 7) word, and 8) ordinances. From before sunrise to beyond sunset, the word of God dominated the psalmist's life, e.g., 1) before dawn (119:147), 2) all the day (v. 97), 3) seven times a day (v. 164), 4) nightly (vv. 55, 148), and 5) at midnight (v. 62). Other than the acrostic form, Ps. 119 does not have an outline. Rather, there are many frequently recurring themes that will be delineated in the notes.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 119:1–2 Blessed . . . Blessed. Similar to 1:1–3. Elsewhere, the psalmist declares that Scripture is more valuable than money (119:14, 72, 127, 162) and brings more pleasure than the sweetness of honey (v. 103; cf. Prov. 13:13; 16:20; 19:16).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 119:1 walk. A habitual pattern of living.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 119:2 their whole heart. “Heart” refers to intellect, volition, and emotion (cf. vv. 7, 10–11, 32, 34, 36, 58, 69–70, 80, 111–112, 145, 161). Complete commitment or “whole heart” appears six times (vv. 2, 10, 34, 58, 69, 145).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 119:4 kept diligently. The psalmist passionately desired to obey God’s word (cf. vv. 4, 8, 30–32, 44–45, 51, 55, 57, 59–61, 63, 67–68, 74, 83, 87, 101–102, 106, 110, 112, 129, 141, 157, 167, 168).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 119:5–6 Oh. It is hard at times to distinguish where the psalmist’s testimony ends and prayer begins (cf. vv. 29, 36, 58, 133).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 119:7 will praise you. The Scriptures provoke singing, thanksgiving, rejoicing, and praise (cf. vv. 13–14, 54, 62, 108, 151–152, 160, 164, 171–172, 175). righteous. God’s word reflects the character of God, especially righteousness (cf. vv. 7, 62, 75, 106, 123, 138, 144, 160, 164, 172).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 119:9–11 Internalizing the word is a believer’s best weapon to defend against encroaching sin.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 119:12 teach me. The student/psalmist invites the Divine Author to be his instructor (cf. vv. 26, 33, 64, 66, 68, 108, 124, 135) with the result that the psalmist did not turn aside from the word (v. 102).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 119:14 all riches. Cf. vv. 72 and 127.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 119:15 meditate . . . fix. The psalmist reflected frequently on the Scriptures (cf. vv. 23, 27, 48, 78, 97, 99, 148).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 119:16 I will delight. (cf. vv. 24, 35, 47, 70, 77, 92, 143, 174). I will not forget. (cf. vv. 93, 176).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 119:18 Open my eyes. Perhaps this is the supreme prayer that a student of Scripture could speak since it confesses the student's inadequacy and the Divine Author's sufficiency (cf. vv. 98–99, 105, 130).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 119:19 a sojourner. As a citizen of God's kingdom, the psalmist was a mere sojourner in the kingdom of men.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 119:20 consumed with longing. This expresses the psalmist's deep passion for the word (cf. vv. 40, 131).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 119:21 the insolent, accursed ones. The psalmist identified with God's rebuke of those who disobey his word (cf. vv. 53, 104, 113, 115, 118, 126).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 119:24 my counselors. The chief means of biblical counseling is the application of God's word by God's Spirit to the heart of a believer (cf. vv. 98–100).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 119:25 give me life. Revival is greatly desired by the psalmist, who realizes that God and God's word alone are sufficient (cf. vv. 37, 40, 50, 88, 93, 107, 149, 154, 156, 159).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 119:27 Make me understand. Philip asked the Ethiopian eunuch who was reading Isa. 53, "Do you understand what you are reading?" (Acts 8:30). The psalmist understood God to be the best source of instruction (cf. vv. 34, 73, 100, 125, 144, 169).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 119:28 melts away for sorrow. Refers to grief or sorrow over sin.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 119:29–30 false ways . . . way of faithfulness. The psalmist desired to emulate the true character of God in contrast to the lying ways of Satan (cf. v. 163).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 119:32 run in the way. Reflects the energetic response of the psalmist to God's word.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 119:37 looking at worthless things. The psalmist desires to examine the things of greatest value, i.e., God’s word (cf. vv. 14, 72, 127).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 119:39 good. The very attributes of God (cf. v. 68) become the characteristics of Scripture: 1) trustworthy (v. 42); 2) true (vv. 43, 142, 151, 160); 3) faithful (v. 86); 4) unchangeable (v. 89); 5) eternal (vv. 90, 152); 6) light (v. 105); and 7) pure (v. 140).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 119:41 your salvation. This reflects a repeated desire (cf. vv. 64, 76, 81, 88, 94, 109, 123, 134, 146, 149, 153–154, 159, 166).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 119:43 hope. The psalmist waits patiently for the working of God’s word (cf. vv. 49, 74, 81, 114, 147).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 119:47–48 which I love. The psalmist expresses his great affection for the word (cf. vv. 97, 113, 127, 140, 159, 163, 165, 167).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 119:50 comfort. What the psalmist found in God’s word (cf. vv. 52, 76, 82).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 119:68 You are good. The psalmist frequently appeals to the character of God: 1) his faithfulness (vv. 75, 90); 2) his compassion (v. 77); 3) his righteousness (vv. 137, 142); and 4) his mercy (v. 156).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 119:70 like fat. Refers to the proud of v. 69 whose hearts are thick and thus the word is unable to penetrate.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 119:73 Your hands. Figuratively refers to God’s involvement in human life (139:13–16).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 119:75 you have afflicted me. The psalmist expresses his confidence in God’s sovereignty over human affliction referred to in vv. 67, 71 (cf. Deut. 32:39; Isa. 45:7; Lam. 3:37–38).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 119:83 a wineskin in the smoke. Just as smoke will dry out, stiffen, and crack a wineskin thus making it useless, so the psalmist’s affliction has debilitated him.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 119:89 Forever . . . fixed in the heavens. God's word will not change and is always spiritually relevant.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 119:98–100 The wisdom of God always far surpasses the wisdom of man.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 119:105 lamp . . . light. God's word provides illumination to walk without stumbling.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 119:111 joy. Cf. v. 162.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 119:118–119 spurn . . . discard. God righteously judges the wicked by his word.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 119:128 See note on v. 21.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 119:130 light . . . understanding. Refers to illumination in comprehending the meaning of Scripture.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 119:131 pant. As after God himself (cf. 42:1–2).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 119:136 streams of tears. The psalmist is brought to sobbing over the sin of others.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 119:140 well tried. Like silver refined seven times (cf. 12:6), the word is without impurity, i.e., it is inerrant in all that it declares.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 119:155 Salvation is far. Salvation is clearly revealed in the Scripture and nowhere else with such perspicuity.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 119:160 The sum . . . truth. There is not a speck of untruth in Scripture.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 119:161 in awe. Just as one stands in awe of God himself.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 119:163 I hate . . . falsehood. Cf. vv. 29–30.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 119:164 Seven times. Seven is perhaps used in the sense of perfection/completion meaning here that a continual attitude of praise characterizes the psalmist's life.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 119:173 your hand. An anthropomorphic figure of speech.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 119:176 I have gone astray. In spite of all that he has affirmed regarding Scripture's power in his life, the psalmist confesses that sin has not yet been eliminated from his life (cf. Rom. 7:15–25). Any decrease of sin in his life should be attributed to the suppression of unrighteousness by the working of God's word (cf. Ps. 119:9–11).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 120:1–7 Psalms 120–136 comprise “The Great Hallel”; cf. “The Egyptian Hallel” (Ps. 113–118) and “The Final Hallel” (Ps. 145–150). Almost all these psalms (15 of 17) are “Songs of Ascent” (Ps. 120–134), which the Jewish pilgrims sang on their way up to Jerusalem (about 2,700 feet in elevation) on three prescribed annual occasions. These feasts included: 1) Unleavened Bread; 2) Weeks/Pentecost/Harvest; and 3) Ingathering/Tabernacles/Booths. Cf. Ex. 23:14–17; 34:22–23; Deut. 16:16. David authored four of these songs (Ps. 122; 124; 131; 133), Solomon one (Ps. 127), while 10 remain anonymous. When these psalms were assembled in this way is unknown. It appears that these songs begin far away from Jerusalem (cf. Meschech and Kedar in Ps. 120:5) and progressively move toward Jerusalem until the pilgrims have actually reached the temple and finished their worship (cf. 134:1–2). With regard to Ps. 120, the author and circumstances are unknown, although it seems as if the worshiper lives at a distance among unbelieving people (cf. v. 5).

I. Petition (120:1–2)
II. Indictment (120:3–4)
III. Lament (120:5–7)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 120:2 lying lips . . . deceitful tongue. Cf. 52:2–4; 109:2; Rom. 3:9–18.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 120:4 sharp arrows . . . coals. Lies and false accusations are likened to 1) the pain/injury inflicted in battle by arrows, and 2) the pain of being burned with charcoal made from the wood of a broom tree (a desert bush that grows 10 to 15 feet high).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 120:5–7 The psalmist actually lives among pagans who do not embrace his desire for peace.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 120:5 Meshech . . . Kedar! In Asia Minor (cf. Gen. 10:2) and Arabia (Isa. 21:16) respectively.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 121:1–8 See note on Ps. 120:1–7. The author and circumstances are unknown. This song strikes a strong note of assurance in four stages that God is help and protection to keep both Israel and individual believers safe from harm.

I. God—Helper (121:1–2)
II. God—Keeper (121:3–4)
III. God—Protector (121:5–6)
IV. God—Preserver (121:7–8)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 121:1 hills. Most likely those in the distance as the pilgrim looks to Jerusalem, especially the temple.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 121:2 My help. The psalmist does not look to the creation, but rather the Creator for his help.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 121:3 moved. Cf. 37:23–24.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 121:3–4 slumber. Cf. the appearance of sleep, 44:23. The living God is totally unlike the pagan gods/dead idols (cf. 1 Kings 18:27).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 121:5 your right hand. This represents the place of human need.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 121:6 by day . . . by night. Around-the-clock protection.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 121:7–8 While this seems to have a temporal sense at first glance, there are indications that it looks beyond to eternal life, e.g., all evil (v. 7) and forevermore (v. 8).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 122:1–9 See note on Ps. 120:1–7. David expressed his great joy over Jerusalem, which he had settled by defeating the Jebusites (cf. 2 Sam. 5) and bringing the tabernacle and ark for permanent residency (cf. 2 Sam. 6). David’s desire/prayer was temporarily fulfilled in Solomon’s reign (cf. 1 Kings 4:24–25). It is ironic that Jerusalem, which means “city of peace,” has been fought over through history more than any other city in the world. Prophetically, David’s desire will not be experienced in its fullness until the Prince of Peace (Isa. 9:6) comes to rule permanently (Zech. 14:9, 11) as the promised Davidic King (cf. 2 Sam. 7:12–13, 16; Ezek. 37:24–28).

I. Joy Over Worship (122:1–5)
II. Prayer Over Jerusalem (122:6–9)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 122:1 the house of the Lord. A term used of the tabernacle (cf. Ex. 23:19; 34:26; 2 Sam. 12:20), not the temple that would be built later by Solomon.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 122:2 standing within your gates. Sometime after the tabernacle and ark of the covenant had arrived in the city of David (2 Sam. 6). David's joy is that the ark has found its proper location.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 122:3 bound firmly together. The Jerusalem of David's day (Zion) was smaller than the enlargement by Solomon.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 122:4 decreed for Israel. Refers to God's command to go up to Jerusalem three times annually (see note on Ps. 120:1–7).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 122:6–9 A most appropriate prayer for a city whose name means peace and is the residency of the God of peace (Isa. 9:6; Rom. 15:33; Heb. 13:20). Compare prayers for the peace of Israel (Ps. 125:5; 128:6) and other psalms that exalt Jerusalem (Ps. 128; 132; 147). History would prove that bad times had to come (Ps. 79; 137) before the best of times (Rev. 21–22).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 123:1–4 See note on Ps. 120:1–7. The author and situation are unknown

I. Exalting God (123:1–2)
II. Enlisting God's Mercy (123:3–4)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 123:1 my eyes. The progression from 121:1. enthroned in the heavens. Cf. 11:4; 103:19; 113:5.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 123:2 servants . . . master. The psalmist reasons from the lesser to the greater (human to the divine; earthly to the heavenly).

One’s eyes should be on the Lord to mercifully meet one’s needs.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 123:3–4 contempt . . . scorn. From unbelieving pagans, perhaps the Samaritans (cf. Neh. 1:3; 2:19).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 124:1–8 See note on Ps. 120:1–7. A Davidic psalm that generically recalls past deliverances, possibly the exodus (124:5).

I. God’s Protection (124:1–5)
II. God’s Provision (124:6–8)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 124:1–2 God has preserved Israel from extinction.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 124:2 when people rose up. A general statement that could cover the history of Israel from Abraham to David.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 124:4–5 flood . . . torrent . . . raging waters. The Red Sea crossing (Ex. 14) and/or the Jordan crossing (Josh. 3) are pictured.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 124:8 Our help. Cf. 121:1–2.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 125:1–5 See note on Ps. 120:1–7. The author and circumstances are unknown, although the times of Hezekiah (2 Kings 18:27–35) or Nehemiah (Neh. 6:1–19) have been suggested.

I. The Security of Jerusalem (125:1–3)
II. The Spiritual Purity of Jerusalem (125:4–5)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 125:1 Mount Zion. The southwest mount representing Jerusalem and an emblem of permanence, supported by God’s covenant promise.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 125:1–2 forever. More than a temporal promise is involved here.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 125:2 his people. Those who trust in the Lord (cf. v. 1).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 125:3 scepter of wickedness. Assyrian rule if in Hezekiah’s time, or Medo-Persian rule if in Nehemiah’s day. the land. This would be the land promised to Abraham (Gen. 15:18–21).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 125:4–5 The outcome of the upright (v. 4) is contrasted with the crooked (v. 5). The true Israel is distinguished from the false (cf. Rom. 2:28–29; 9:6–7).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 125:5 lead away. Eternal rather than temporal judgment seems to be in view. Peace. God will one day institute a lasting covenant of peace (cf. Ezek. 37:26).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 126:1–6 See note on Ps. 120:1–7. The author and occasion are not named in the psalm. However, 126:1 points to a time of return from captivity. Most likely this refers to the Babylonian captivity, from which there were three separate returns: 1) under Zerubbabel in Ezra 1–6 (c. 538 B.C.); 2) under Ezra in Ezra 7–10 (c. 458 B.C.); and 3) under Nehemiah in Neh. 1–2 (c. 445 B.C.). The occasion could be 1) when the foundation for the second temple had been laid (cf. Ezra 3:8–10), or 2) when the Feast of Booths, or Tabernacles, was reinstated (cf. Neh. 8:13–14). This psalm is similar to Ps. 85, which rejoices over Israel’s return from exile, but contrasts with Ps. 137, which laments the pain of the Babylonian captivity.

I. The Testimony of Restoration (126:1–3)
II. The Prayer for Riches (126:4)
III. The Wisdom of Righteousness (126:5–6)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 126:1 those who dream. The actual experience of liberation, so unexpected, seemed more like a dream than reality.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 126:2–3 The Lord has done. First recognized by the surrounding nations (v. 2) and then the returning remnant (v. 3).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 126:4 Restore. A prayer to restore the nation’s fortunes at their best. streams in the Negeb! The arid region south of Beersheba, which is utterly dry in the summer, but whose streams quickly fill and flood with the rains of spring. In this manner, the psalmist prays that Israel’s fortunes will rapidly change from nothing to everything.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 126:5–6 sow . . . reap. By sowing tears of repentance over sin, the nation reaped the harvest of a joyful return to the land of Israel.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 127:1–5 See note on Ps. 120:1–7. The author is Solomon (cf. Eccles. 12:10), but the occasion is unknown. The major message of God being central to and sovereign in life sounds much like portions of Solomon's Ecclesiastes (cf. Eccles. 2:24–25; 5:18–20; 7:13–14; 9:1). Psalms 112 and 128 also develop a strong message on the family.

I. God's Sovereignty in Everyday Life (127:1–2)
II. God's Sovereignty in Family Life (127:3–5)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 127:1–2 God's sovereignty is seen in three realms: 1) building a house, 2) protecting a city, and 3) earning a living. In all three instances, the sovereign intention of God is far more crucial to the outcome than man's efforts. Otherwise, a man's endeavor is in vain (cf. Eccles. 1:2; 12:8).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 127:2 the bread of anxious toil. Food earned with painful labor.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 127:3–5 The same principle of God's sovereignty applies to raising a family.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 127:3 heritage . . . reward. Children are a blessing from the Lord. There are overtones of God's promise to Abraham to make his offspring like the dust of the earth and the stars of heaven (Gen. 13:16; 15:5).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 127:4–5 As arrows are indispensable for a warrior to succeed in battle, so children are invaluable as defenders of their father and mother in time of war or litigation. The more such defenders, the better.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 128:1–6 See note on Ps. 120:1–7. The author and occasion are unknown. Psalms 112 and 127 also address issues of the home.

I. The Basics of Fearing the Lord (128:1, 4)
II. The Blessings of Fearing the Lord (128:2–3, 5–6)

- A. In the Present (128:2–3)
- B. In the Future (128:5–6)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 128:1 who fears the Lord. See note on Prov. 1:7. Psalm 112:1–6 also develops this theme. A good working definition is provided by the parallel line, "who walks in his ways." Fathers (128:1, 4), mothers (Prov. 31:30), and children (Ps. 34:11) are to fear the Lord. This psalm may have been the basis for Jesus' illustration of the two builders (cf. Matt. 7:24–27).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 128:2–3 Four blessings are recounted: 1) provisions, 2) prosperity, 3) reproducing partner, and 4) flourishing progeny.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 128:3 olive shoots. Shoots grow off of the main root of an olive tree to reproduce.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 128:5–6 Two realms of blessing are mentioned: 1) personal blessing and 2) national blessing.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 128:6 children's children! Cf. 103:17; 112:2; Prov. 13:22; 17:6 on grandchildren. This is a prayer for prosperity for God's people.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 129:1–8 See note on Ps. 120:1–7. The author and occasion are not specified. However, 129:4 indicates a release from captivity, likely the Babylonian captivity.

- I. Israel's Freedom Celebrated (129:1–4)
- II. Israel's Foe Imprecated (129:5–8)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 129:1 afflicted. From living in Egypt (c. 1875–1445 B.C.), to enduring the Babylonian captivity (c. 605–538 B.C.), Israel had enjoyed little rest from her enemies.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 129:2 prevailed. As the Lord had promised Abraham (cf. Gen. 12:1–3).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 129:3 plowed upon my back. A farming analogy used to describe the deep, but nonfatal, wounds inflicted on Israel by her enemies.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 129:4 cut the cords. These cords tied the ox to the plow, and refer to God ending the persecution (cf. Ps. 121; 124).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 129:5–8 A three-part imprecatory prayer: 1) be put to shame and defeat (v. 5), 2) be few and short lived (vv. 6–7), and 3) be without God's blessing (v. 8).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 129:6 grass on the housetops. Grass with shallow roots, which quickly dies with the first heat, depicts the wicked.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 130:1–8 See note on Ps. 120:1–7. The author and occasion are not mentioned. This is the sixth of seven penitential psalms (cf. Ps. 6; 32; 38; 51; 102; 143).

I. Urgent Prayer of the Psalmist (130:1–2)
II. Magnified Forgiveness of God (130:3–4)
III. Waiting Patience of the Psalmist (130:5–6)
IV. Unique Hope of Israel (130:7–8)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 130:1 Out of the depths. A figurative expression of severe distress.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 130:3–4 The psalmist basks in the glow of God's never-ending forgiveness (cf. 143:2).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 130:5 in his word I hope. The psalmist expresses a certain hope since God's word cannot fail (cf. Matt. 5:18; Luke 16:17; John 10:35).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 130:6 watchmen for the morning. Probably refers to shepherds with a night watch, which ends with the sun's rising.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 130:7 hope in the Lord! The psalmist's hope in God's word (v. 5) parallels Israel's hope in the Lord.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 130:8 he will redeem Israel. This can be taken in both a historical and a soteriological sense (cf. Matt. 1:21; Luke 1:68; Rom. 9–11).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 131:1–3 See note on Ps. 120:1–7. David is the author, but the circumstances are not apparent.

I. A Personal Testimony (131:1–2)
II. A National Exhortation (131:3)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 131:1 lifted up . . . raised too high. God gives grace to the humble (cf. Prov. 3:34; 16:5; James 4:6). David expresses the greatest of God's ways (cf. Ps. 139:6; Rom. 11:33–36).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 131:2 like a weaned child. David has been trained to trust God to supply his needs as a weaned child trusts his mother.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 131:3 David exhorts the nation to forever embrace his own personal hope in the Lord.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 132:1–18 See note on Ps. 120:1–7. The author and occasion are not specifically mentioned. However, the bringing of the tabernacle to Jerusalem in David's time seems likely (cf. 2 Sam. 6:12–19 with Ps. 132:6–9). Further, Solomon's quote of vv. 8–10 in his dedication of the temple (2 Chron. 6:41–42) makes that time probable. Psalm 132 has strong historical implications with regard to the Davidic Covenant (cf. 2 Sam. 7:10–14, 16; Ps. 89; 132:10–11) and pronounced messianic and millennial overtones (132:12–18). Essentially, this psalm contains the nation's prayers for David's royal descendants that look ahead, even to Messiah.

I. Israel's First Prayer (132:1)
II. David's Vow to God (132:2–9)
III. Israel's Second Prayer (132:10)
IV. God's Vow to David (132:11–18)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 132:1–9 This section focuses on David fulfilling his vow to God to bring the tabernacle to rest in Jerusalem and thus his descendants are to be remembered by the Lord.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 132:1 hardships. This seems to be inclusive from the times of being pursued by Saul (cf. 1 Sam. 18–26) through God's judgment because David numbered the people (cf. 2 Sam. 24). Perhaps it focuses on David's greatest affliction, which came from not having the ark in Jerusalem.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 132:2–5 Although this specific vow is not recorded elsewhere in Scripture, the historical circumstances can be found in 2 Sam. 6; 1 Chron. 13–16.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 132:2 the Mighty One of Jacob. A title last used by Jacob in Gen. 49:24.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 132:6–9 The ark was brought from Kiriath-jearim to Jerusalem (cf. 2 Sam. 6; 1 Chron. 13, 15).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 132:6 heard of it in Ephrathah. Probably referring to David's younger days in Ephrathah, which was an earlier name for Bethlehem (cf. Ruth 1:1–2; 4:11), when he and his family had heard of the ark but had not seen it. found it in the fields of Jaar. After the ark of the covenant was returned by the Philistines in the days of Saul (cf. 1 Sam. 7:1–2), it rested at the house of Abinadab in Kiriath-jearim until David decided to move to Jerusalem (cf. 2 Sam. 6; 1 Chron. 13–16).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 132:7 his footstool! God's throne is in heaven (cf. Isa. 66:1) and his footstool is on earth (cf. Ps. 99:5), figuratively speaking. Thus to worship at the ark of the covenant on earth would be, so to speak, at God's footstool.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 132:8 Arise, O Lord. Since the Holy Place contained the bread of the presence (Ex. 25:30; 1 Sam. 21:6), the psalmist refers to moving the ark to Jerusalem.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 132:9 Describes the proper inward attire for the priests who would oversee the move.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 132:10–18 This section focuses on God's fulfilling his vow to David to perpetuate the Davidic throne and thus his descendants are to be remembered by the Lord.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 132:10 A prayer that God's promise and favor would not be withheld from David's descendants on the throne of Judah. your anointed. As David had been anointed king (1 Sam. 16:13), so a greater King had been anointed, namely Christ, but not yet seated on the throne (cf. Isa. 61:1; Luke 4:18–19).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 132:11–12 God's covenant with David (2 Sam. 23:5) is summarized here from 2 Sam. 7:11–16 and 1 Kings 9:1–9.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 132:12 This conditional aspect could interrupt the occupation of the throne, but it would not invalidate God's promise to one day seat the Messiah as king forever (cf. Ezek. 37:24–28).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 132:13–18 This section looks forward prophetically to the day that Jesus Christ, the son of David and the son of Abraham (Matt. 1:1), will be installed by God on the throne of David in the city of God to rule and bring peace on earth, especially Israel (cf. Ps. 2; 89; 110; Isa. 25; 26; Jer. 23:5–6; 33:14–18; Ezek. 37; Dan. 2:44–45; Zech. 14:1–11).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 132:13 Zion. Refers to earthly Jerusalem.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 133:1–3 See note on Ps. 120:1–7. The occasion for this Davidic psalm is unknown. Perhaps it was prompted by the nation's coming together in unity at his coronation (cf. 2 Sam. 5:1–3; 1 Chron. 11:1–3). Its teaching on fraternal unity would have been instructive to David's sons, who were antagonistic toward one another, e.g., Absalom murdered Amnon (2 Sam. 13:28–33) and Adonijah tried to preempt Solomon's right to the throne (1 Kings 1:5–53).

I. Praise of Unity (133:1)
II. Pictures of Unity (133:2–3)
    A. Oil on Aaron's head (133:2)
    B. Dew on Mount Zion (133:3)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 133:1 brothers. Those whose lineage can be traced to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. unity. While national unity might be on the surface, the foundation must always be spiritual unity. This would be the emphasis here, since these songs were sung by Jewish pilgrims traveling to the three great feasts.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 133:2 oil on. Most likely refers to the anointing of Aaron as high priest of the nation (cf. Ex. 29:7; 30:30), which would picture a rich spiritual blessing as a first priority.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 133:3 the dew of Hermon. Mount Hermon, a 9,200-foot peak at the extreme northern portion of Palestine, provided the major water supply for the Jordan River by its melting snow. This reference could be to the Jordan water supply or figuratively to the actual prevalent dew of Hermon being hypothetically transported to Zion. Either way, this pictures a refreshing material blessing as a second, lesser priority. there. Seems to refer to Zion. life forevermore. Cf. 21:4–6.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 134:1–3 See note on Ps. 120:1–7. This final song in the "songs of ascent" seems to picture the worshipers exhorting the priests to continued faithfulness (134:1–2) while the priests bestow a final blessing on the faithful as the feast ends and the pilgrims depart Zion for home (134:3).

I. Exhortation to Faithfulness (134:1–2)
II. Solicitation of Blessing (134:3)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 134:1 servants. Levites who ministered to God's people. by night. The burnt offerings continued day and night (cf. Lev. 6:8–13), as did the Levitical service (cf. 1 Chron. 9:33). house of the Lord! Refers to the tabernacle up to the time of David (Ex. 23:19; 2 Sam. 12:20) and to the temple from Solomon on (1 Kings 9:10).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 134:2 Lift up your hands. A common OT praise practice (cf. 28:2; 63:4; 119:48; 141:2; Lam. 2:19), which was understood figuratively in the NT (1 Tim. 2:8).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 134:3 the Lord. The Creator blesses his human creation. bless you from Zion. Since God's presence resided in the tabernacle/temple on Zion, from a human perspective it would be the source of divine blessing.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 135:1–21 Psalms 135 and 136 conclude the "Great Hallel." The composer and occasion of Ps. 135 are unknown but likely postexilic. Psalm 135:15–20 is strikingly similar to 115:4–11.

I. Call to Praise (135:1–2)
II. Causes for Praise (135:3–18)
    A. God's Character (135:3)
    B. God's Choice of Jacob (135:4)
    C. God's Sovereignty in Creation (135:5–7)
    D. God's Deliverance of Israel (135:8–12)
    E. God's Unique Nature (135:13–18)

III. Concluding Praise (135:19–21)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 135:1–2 servants . . . stand . . . in the courts. Addressed to the priests and Levites (cf. 134:1).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 135:3 the Lord is good. A consistent theme in the psalms (cf. 16:2; 25:8; 34:8; 73:1; 86:5; 100:5; 106:1; 107:1; 118:1; 136:1; 145:9).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 135:4 the Lord has chosen. Refers to God's unique selection of the offspring of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob to enjoy God's covenant blessing (cf. Deut. 7:6–8; 14:2; Ps. 105:6; Isa. 41:8–9; 43:20; 44:1; 49:7). his own possession. Cf. Deut. 26:18–19. See note on Ps. 148:14.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 135:5 the Lord is great. A common superlative to distinguish the true God of Israel from the false gods of the other nations (cf. Deut. 7:21; Ps. 48:1; 77:13; 86:10; 95:3; 104:1; 145:3; 147:5).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 135:7 clouds rise. Refers to the water cycle of earthly evaporation and condensation in the clouds.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 135:8–12 In reference to God's deliverance of Israel from Egypt to the Promised Land.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 135:8 struck down. The final plague in Egypt (cf. Ex. 11).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 135:9 signs and wonders. Cf. Deut. 26:8; 29:3; 34:11.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 135:11 Sihon. Cf. Num. 21:21–32, which recounts Israel's defeat of Sihon, king of the Amorites. Og. Cf. Num. 21:33–35, which recounts Israel's defeat of Og, king of Bashan. kingdoms of Canaan. Joshua 6–12 recounts Joshua's conquest of the land.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 135:12 gave their land . . . to his people Israel. As promised to Abraham (cf. Gen. 15:18–21).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 135:13–18 The living God of Israel (vv. 13–14) stands decidedly superior to the imaginary gods of the nations (vv. 15–18).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 135:18 make them . . . like them. Both are worthless and will know nothing of eternal life.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 135:19–20 The categories 1) Israel, 2) Aaron, 3) Levi, and 4) you who fear the Lord, refer to the nation as a whole (Israel), the priesthood (Aaron and Levi), and the true believers (who fear the Lord).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 136:1–26 This psalm, extremely similar to Ps. 135, closes the Great Hallel. Unique to all the psalms, Ps. 136 uses the antiphonal refrain “for his steadfast love endures forever” after each stanza, perhaps spoken by the people in responsive worship. The author and occasion remain unknown.

I. Call to Praise (136:1–3)
II. Causes for Praise (136:4–22)
    A. God’s Creation (136:4–9)
    B. God’s Deliverance (136:10–15)
    C. God’s Care and Gift (136:16–22)
III. Concluding Praise (136:23–26)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 136:1 he is good. See note on Ps. 135:3.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 136:4–9 Cf. Gen. 1.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 136:10–15 Cf. Ex. 11–14.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 136:16–22 Cf. Num. 14–36.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 136:19 Sihon. See note on Ps. 135:11.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 136:20 Og. See note on Ps. 135:11.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 136:23 low estate. Cf. Deut. 7:7; 9:4–5; Ezek. 16:1–5.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 137:1–9 A psalm, explicitly about the Babylonian captivity of Judah. Its author and date are unknown.

I. Lamentations (137:1–4)
II. Conditions (137:5–6)
III. Imprecations (137:7–9)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 137:1 the waters of Babylon. The Tigris and Euphrates Rivers. we . . . wept. They even wept when the exile was over and the second temple was being built (cf. Ezra 3:12), so deep was their sorrow. Zion. The dwelling place of God on earth (Ps. 9:11; 76:2) which was destroyed by the Babylonians (2 Chron. 36:19; Ps. 74:6–8; 79:1; Isa. 64:10–11; Jer. 52:12–16; Lam. 2:4, 6–9; Mic. 3:12).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 137:2 hung up our lyres. In captivity, there was no use for an instrument of joy (cf. Isa. 24:8).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 137:3 our captors. The Babylonians taunted the Jews to sing of their once beautiful, but now destroyed, Zion. the songs of Zion! Cf. Ps. 46; 48; 76; 84; 87; 122.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 137:4 How shall we sing. A rhetorical question whose answer is, “We can’t!” the Lord’s song. A unique way to refer to divine inspiration of the psalms.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 137:5–6 Their refusal to sing was not caused by either of two unthinkable situations: 1) they forgot Jerusalem; 2) they did not have Jerusalem as their chief joy. The worst of punishments should be imposed if any one or a combination of these factors were to become true.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 137:7 the Edomites. Edomites had been allied with the Babylonians in the fall and destruction of Jerusalem (cf. Isa. 21:11–12; Jer. 49:7–12; Lam. 4:21; Ezek. 25:12–14; 35:1–15; Obad. 11–14). The psalmist only prayed for that which the Lord had always promised. the day of Jerusalem. The day Jerusalem was destroyed. See notes on Ps. 137:1.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 137:8 destroyed. Cf. Isa. 13:1–14:23, 46–47; Jer. 50–51; Hab. 1:11; 2:6–17.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 137:8–9 blessed . . . he. For these will be God's human instruments used to carry out his prophesied will for the destruction of Babylon.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 138:1–8 The next eight psalms were written by David (Ps. 138–145) and are his last in the Psalter. The occasion is unknown, although it's possible that David wrote them in response to the Davidic Covenant (cf. 2 Sam. 7:12–16).

I. Individual Praise (138:1–3)
II. International Praise (138:4–5)
III. Invincible Praise (138:6–8)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 138:1 the gods. This can refer to either pagan royalty (cf. 82:1) and/or to the idols they worship.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 138:2 holy temple. Refers to the tabernacle since Solomon's temple has not yet been built. your name . . . your word. Most likely this means that God's latest revelation ("your word") exceeded all previous revelation about God. This would be in concert with David's prayer (2 Sam. 7:18–29) after he received the Davidic promise (2 Sam. 7:12–16).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 138:4 All the kings. In contrast to 2:1–3, cf. 68:32; 72:11–12; 96:1, 3, 7–8; 97:1; 98:4; 100:1; 102:15; 148:11.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 138:6–7 David sees himself as "the lowly" and his enemies as "the haughty."

PSALMS—NOTE ON 138:8 fulfill. Refers to God's work in David's life, especially the Davidic Covenant (cf. 2 Sam. 7:12–16).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 139:1–24 This intensely personal Davidic psalm expresses the psalmist's awe that God knew him, even to the minutest detail. David might have remembered the Lord's words, "the Lord looks on the heart" (1 Sam. 16:7). The exact occasion is unknown.

I. God's Omniscience (139:1–6)

II. God’s Omnipresence (139:7–12)
III. God’s Omnipotence (139:13–18)
IV. David’s Obeisance (139:19–24)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 139:1–6 God knows everything about David.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 139:1 searched me. As it has been in David’s life, he prays later that it will continue to be (cf. vv. 23–24). David understands that nothing inside of him can be hidden from God.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 139:5 hem me. God used circumstances to limit David’s actions.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 139:6 too wonderful. Cf. 131:1 and Rom. 11:33–36.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 139:7–12 God was always watching over David and thus it was impossible to do anything over which God is not a spectator.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 139:7 your Spirit. A reference to the Holy Spirit (cf. 51:11; 143:10). See “The Anointing of the Holy Spirit in the OT” at Ps. 50.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 139:9 the wings of the morning. In conjunction with “the uttermost parts of the sea,” David uses this literary figure to express distance.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 139:13–18 God’s power is magnified in the development of human life before birth.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 139:13 formed . . . knitted. By virtue of the divinely designed period of pregnancy, God providentially watches over the development of the child while yet in the mother’s womb.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 139:15 secret . . . depths of the earth. Used figuratively of the womb.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 139:16 your book. This figure of speech likens God’s mind to a book of remembrance. there was none of them. God sovereignly ordained David’s life before he was conceived.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 139:17–18 David expresses his amazement at the infinite mind of God compared to the limited mind of man, especially as it relates to the physiology of human life (cf. vv. 13–16).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 139:22 complete hatred. David has no other response to God's enemies than that of hatred, i.e., he is not neutral toward them nor will he ever ally himself with them.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 139:23–24 In light of vv. 19–22, David invites God to continue searching his heart to root out any unrighteousness, even when it is expressed against God's enemies.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 139:24 the way everlasting. David expresses his desire/expectation of eternal life (see notes on Phil. 1:6).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 140:1–13 Davidic authorship is stated here, but the circumstances are unknown. It is like the psalms earlier in the Psalter that feature the usual complaint, prayer, and confident hope of relief.

- I. Concerning David (140:1–5)
  - A. “Deliver Me” (140:1–3)
  - B. “Protect Me” (140:4–5)
- II. Concerning David’s Enemies (140:6–11)
  - A. “Thwart Them” (140:6–8)
  - B. “Punish Them” (140:9–11)
- III. Concerning the Lord (140:12–13)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 140:1–3 The emphasis here is deliverance from evil plans.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 140:3 asps. A type of snake (cf. Rom. 3:13), signifying cunning and venom.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 140:4–5 The emphasis here is protection from being captured.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 140:6–8 The emphasis here is upon God’s thwarting the plans of David’s enemy.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 140:7 covered my head. God has figuratively been David’s helmet in battle.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 140:9–11 The emphasis here is upon God’s turning their evil plans back on them in judgment.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 140:12–13 David expresses unshakeable confidence in the character of God and the outcome for the righteous (cf. 10:17–18; 74:21; 82:3–4).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 141:1–10 Another psalm of lament by David whose occasion is unknown. This psalm is comprised of four prayers that have been combined into one.

I. Prayer for God’s Haste (141:1–2)
II. Prayer for Personal Righteousness (141:3–5)
III. Prayer for Justice (141:6–7)
IV. Prayer for Deliverance (141:8–10)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 141:2 incense . . . evening sacrifice. David desired that his prayers and stretching forth for God’s help (68:31; 77:2) be as disciplined and regular as the offering of incense (Ex. 30:7–8) and burnt offerings (Ex. 29:38–39) in the tabernacle.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 141:3–4 David prayed that God would protect him from the kind of evil that characterized his own enemy.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 141:5 David acknowledged that God would use other righteous men to answer his prayer in vv. 3–4 (cf. Prov. 9:8; 19:25; 27:6; 27:17).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 141:6 judges . . . thrown over. That the leaders of the wicked would be punished by being thrown over a cliff (cf. Luke 4:28–29) is at the heart of David’s prayer (cf. Ps. 141:5). my words . . . pleasant. In the sense that David’s words were true.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 141:7 our bones. The basis on which the judges were thrown over the cliff—they had first done this to the righteous (cf. v. 10).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 141:10 fall into their own nets. David prays that the wicked will be destroyed by their own devices.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 142:1–7 Under the same circumstances as Ps. 57 (according to the superscription), David recounted his desperate days hiding in the cave of Adullam (1 Sam. 22:1) while Saul sought him to take his life (1 Sam. 18–24). It appears that David’s situation, for the moment at least, seems hopeless without God’s intervention. Psalm 91 provides the truths that bring the solution.

I. Cry of David (142:1–2)
II. Circumstances of David (142:3–4)
III. Confidence of David (142:5–7)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 142:4 no one. It appears to David that he has been totally abandoned.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 142:5 You are my refuge. A frequent claim in the psalms (cf. 7:1; 11:1; 16:1; 18:2; 25:20; 31:1; 46:1; 57:1; 61:3; 62:7; 91:2; 94:22; 141:8; 143:9; 144:2).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 142:7 prison. The cave in which David was hidden.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 143:1–12 No specific background is known for this Davidic psalm, which is the final penitential psalm (cf. Ps. 6; 32; 38; 51; 102; 130).

I. David's Passion (143:1–2)
II. David's Predicament (143:3–6)
III. David's Plea (143:7–12)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 143:1 faithfulness . . . righteousness! David fervently appeals to God's character.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 143:2 no one living is righteous. David admits his own unrighteousness and realizes that if he is to be delivered for righteousness' sake (cf. v. 11), it will be because of God's righteousness, not his own.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 143:6 a parched land. As a drought-struck land yearns for life-giving water, so persecuted David longs for his life-giving Deliverer.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 143:7 your face. An anthropomorphism picturing God's attention to the psalmist's plight.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 143:10 your . . . Spirit. Refers to the Holy Spirit (cf. 51:11; 139:7). See note on Ps. 51:11.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 143:11 your name's sake. David appeals to God's benefit and honor, not his own (cf. 23:3; 31:3; 79:9).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 143:12 your servant. To attack God’s servant is to attack God, thus bringing God to the rescue.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 144:1–15 This Davidic psalm, in part (vv. 1–8), is very similar to 18:1–15. It could be that this psalm was written under the same kind of circumstances as the former, i.e., on the day that the Lord delivered him from the hand of all his enemies and from the hand of Saul (cf. 2 Sam. 22:1–18).

I. God’s Greatness (144:1–2)
II. Man’s Insignificance (144:3–4)
III. God’s Power (144:5–8)
IV. Man’s Praise (144:9–10)
V. God’s Blessing (144:11–15)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 144:1 my rock. David’s foundation is God—solid and unshakeable (cf. 19:14; 31:3; 42:9; 62:2; 71:3; 89:26; 92:15; 95:1). trains my hands for war. David lived in the days of Israel’s theocracy, not the NT church. God empowered the king to subdue his enemies.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 144:2 God provided six benefits: 1) steadfast love, 2) a fortress, 3) a stronghold, 4) a deliverer, 5) a shield, and 6) a refuge.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 144:3–4 Eternal God is contrasted with short-lived man (cf. 8:4).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 144:5–8 Highly figurative language is used to portray God as the heavenly warrior who comes to fight on earth on behalf of David against God’s enemies.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 144:9 a new song. A song of victory that celebrates deliverance/salvation (cf. 33:3; 40:3; 96:1; 98:1; 144:9; 149:1; Rev. 5:9; 14:3).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 144:11 Cf. vv. 7–8.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 144:12 sons . . . daughters. God’s rescue of David’s kingdom from foreigners would bring blessing on families.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 144:13–14 granaries . . . sheep . . . cattle. Blessing would also come to the agricultural efforts.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 144:14 no mishap . . . failure . . . cry of distress. Peace, not strife, would characterize the land.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 145:1–21 David penned this most exquisite conclusion to his 73 psalms in the Psalter. Here, the king of Israel extols and celebrates the King of Eternity for who he is, what he has done, and what he has promised. Not only rich in content, this psalm also duplicates a majestic acrostic design using the 22 letters of the Hebrew alphabet. Psalm 145 begins the great crescendo of praise that completes the psalter and might be called “The Final Hallel” (Ps. 145–150).

I. Commitment to Praise (145:1–2)
II. God’s Awesome Greatness (145:3–7)
III. God’s Great Grace (145:8–13)
IV. God’s Unfailing Faithfulness (145:14–16)
V. God’s Unblemished Righteousness (145:17–20)
VI. Recommitment/Exhortation to Praise (145:21)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 145:1 my God and King. David, king of Israel, recognized God as his sovereign (cf. 5:2; 84:3).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 145:11–13 kingdom. David refers here to the broadest use of kingdom in Scripture—i.e., God the eternal king ruling over all from before creation and eternally thereafter (cf. 10:16; Dan. 4:3; 7:27).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 145:14–16 The emphasis is on God’s common grace to all of humanity (cf. Matt. 5:45; Luke 6:35; Acts 14:17; 17:25).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 145:20 the wicked . . . destroy. The wicked await an eternity of living forever, away from the presence of God in the lake of fire (cf. 2 Thess. 1:9; Rev. 20:11–15).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 146:1–10 From this psalm to the conclusion of the Psalter, each psalm begins and ends with “Praise the Lord!” (Ps. 146–150).

Neither the composer nor the occasions are known. Psalm 146 appears similar in content to Ps. 113; 145.

- I. Commitment to Praise (146:1–2)
- II. Misplaced Trust (146:3–4)
- III. Blessed Hope (146:5–10)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 146:1 O my soul! Cf. the beginnings and ends of Ps. 103–104.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 146:3–4 Put not your trust. This could be 1) a general principle, 2) a reference to the people wanting a human king like the nations (1 Sam. 8:5), or 3) Judah’s later dependence on foreign kings for protection (2 Kings 16:7–9).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 146:5 the God of Jacob. Also the God of Abraham and Isaac, thus the recipients of God’s blessing through the Abrahamic Covenant (cf. Gen. 12:1–3; Ps. 144:15).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 146:6 Man’s trust is best placed in the Creator of heaven and earth and the Revealer of all truth.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 146:7–9b God righteously and mercifully reaches out to those in need.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 146:9c the way of the wicked. Cf. 1:4–6 and 145:20.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 146:10 will reign forever. In contrast to man who perishes (cf. v. 4), the truths of vv. 5–9 are not faddish or temporal but rather eternal (cf. Rev. 22:5).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 147:1–20 See note on Ps. 146:1–10. This seems to be a postexilic psalm (cf. 147:2–3) that might have been used to celebrate the rebuilt walls of Jerusalem (cf. vv. 2, 13; Neh. 12:27, 43). The hard questions that God posed to Job (Job 38–41) and Israel (Isa. 40), the psalmist here turns into declarations worthy of praise. Psalm 147:1, 7, and 12 each introduce a stanza of praise in this three-part hymn. Verses 2–3, 19–20 specifically speak of God’s involvement with Israel.

I. Praise the Lord—Part 1 (147:1–6)
II. Praise the Lord—Part 2 (147:7–11)
III. Praise the Lord—Part 3 (147:12–20)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 147:2 builds up Jerusalem. Ezra and Nehemiah chronicle this portion of Israel's history.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 147:3 heals the brokenhearted. Cf. Ps. 137 (brokenhearted) with Ps. 126 (healed).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 147:6 Each part of the psalm ends with a contrast—here the humble and the wicked (cf. vv. 10–11, 19–20).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 147:13 he strengthens. Refers to a means of defense, most likely in reference to the rebuilding of Jerusalem's walls in Nehemiah's time.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 147:15–18 Describes the cold weather that Jerusalem can experience. God sovereignly oversees the normal and the extraordinary.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 147:19–20 The psalmist acknowledges God's unique election of Israel from among all the nations (cf. Gen. 12:1–3; Ex. 19:5–6; Deut. 7:6–8; 14:2; 26:18–19; 2 Sam. 7:23–24; Ezek. 16:1–7).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 148:1–14 See note on Ps. 146:1–10. The author and background for this psalm, which calls for all of God's creation to praise him, is unknown. There is a connection between the creation praising God and his involvement with Israel.

I. Heaven's Praise (148:1–6)
    A. Who? (148:1–4)
    B. Why? (148:5–6)
II. Earth's Praise (148:7–14)
    A. Who? (148:7–12)
    B. Why? (148:13–14)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 148:1–4 A representative sample of God's creation in the skies and heavens.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 148:2 all his hosts! Another term for angels.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 148:4 waters above the heavens! Cf. Gen. 1:7.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 148:5–6 He emphatically ascribes creation to God alone.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 148:6 Jeremiah 31:35–37 and 33:20–22 might be in mind in the sense that the certain, fixed order of creation was a witness to God's unbreakable covenants with Abraham and David.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 148:8 fulfilling his word! Another way of saying that God sovereignly oversees weather.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 148:13–14 Two reasons are given for earth's praise: 1) his name alone is exalted in heaven (148:13) and 2) he has exalted Israel on earth (148:14).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 148:14 a horn. Refers in general to the strength and prosperity of the nation, which became the cause of praise for Israel. This suggests that Israel will enjoy better times than in the past, e.g., during David's and Solomon's reigns or after returning from the Babylonian captivity. people . . . near to him. Cf. also "my chosen people" (Isa. 43:20) and "his own possession" (Ps. 135:4).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 149:1–9 See note on Ps. 146:1–10. The composer and occasion for this psalm are unknown.

I. Israel's Praise of God (149:1–5)
II. Israel's Punishment of the Nations (149:6–9)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 149:1 a new song. A song of testimony concerning salvation (cf. v. 4). the assembly. The gathering of the nation for worship.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 149:3 dancing. Either individual or group, perhaps like David when he brought the ark to Jerusalem (2 Sam. 6:15–16). tambourine. An instrument that accompanied dancing and singing (cf. Ex. 15:20; 1 Sam. 18:6). See note on 2 Sam. 6:14.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 149:6–9 It would appear that this section is eschatological in nature and looks 1) to the millennium when all nations and peoples will acknowledge Christ as king and 2) to Jerusalem as his royal capital (cf. Ezek. 28:25–26; Joel 3:9–17; Mic. 5:4–15).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 149:9 the judgment written! Another way of saying “according to the Scriptures,” as God has prophesied the subjection of the nations. This . . . honor. The privilege of carrying out God’s will.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 150:1–6 See note on Ps. 146:1–10. This concluding psalm fitly caps the Psalter and the Final Hallel (Ps. 145–150) by raising and then answering some strategic questions about praise: 1) where? (150:1); 2) what for? (v. 2); 3) with what? (vv. 3–5); and 4) who? (v. 6). The author and occasion are unknown.

I. Place of Praise (150:1)
II. Points of Praise (150:2)
III. Proper Means of Praise (150:3–5)
IV. Practitioners of Praise (150:6)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 150:1 sanctuary . . . mighty heavens! “Sanctuary” most likely refers to the temple in Jerusalem, so the sense would be “Praise God on earth and in heaven.”

PSALMS—NOTE ON 150:2 Praise should be for 1) what God has done and 2) who God is.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 150:3 harp. A smaller, portable version of the harp, most likely played with a plectrum (pick).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 150:4 tambourine and dance. See note on Ps. 149:3.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 150:6 everything. All of God’s living creation. This is the fitting conclusion to Book Five of the Psalms (Ps. 107–150) and to the entire Psalter.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 10:1–18 Whereas Ps. 9 started out with praise, Ps. 10 begins in despair. In Ps. 9 the psalmist was confident of the sure coming of Divine justice; in Ps. 10 injustice is rampant and God seems disinterested. However, the psalmist's walking more by sight than by faith will slowly turn around as he shifts his focus from empirical observations to theological facts. This is not an easy turnaround, especially since he is surrounded by so many practical atheists (cf. 10:4, 11, 13). But hope will begin to dawn for the helpless (e.g., v. 12). In view of such kinds of general observations, the psalmist's expressions in Ps. 10 exemplify how true believers seem to live in two different worlds at the same time.

I. From His World of Hostility, Discouragement (10:1–11)
II. From His World of Hope, Encouragement (10:12–18)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 10:1 Why . . . ? Why . . . ? Two "whys" of lament boldly blurt out the psalmist's question: "God, why do you remain aloof?" (cf. 13:1; 22:11; 38:21; 44:24; 71:12; 88:14).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 10:3 curses . . . renounces. The wicked's modus operandi is the opposite of what God demands (Deut. 25:1).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 10:5 His ways prosper at all times. God seems to be rewarding the ruthless. The psalmist's questioning insinuation is, "Has God also abandoned his own standards for retribution and reward?" Cf. other why-do-the-wicked-prosper inquiries in Job 20:2ff. and Jer. 12:1.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 10:7–11 Evidences of "hoof" and "mouth" disease (walk/talk) return in application to the wicked. These are enhanced by a return also of the ungodly being described as stalking, rapacious beasts.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 10:12 Arise. The battle cry of Num. 10:35 also comes back again (cf. Ps. 7:6; 9:19). lift up your hand. This is an idiom for God's strength and power, especially as it is used in the context of retaliation.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 10:14 helper of the fatherless. God is pictured as Helper or Advocate again, but this time in association with orphans. He is the Defender par excellence of the defenseless (on the imagery, cf. Ex. 22:21ff.; Deut. 10:18ff.; 1 Sam. 1:17; Jer. 7:6).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 10:15 Break the arm of the wicked. The "hand" of God (vv. 12, 14) is more than sufficiently strong to shatter the arm (another figure for power) of ungodly men.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 10:16–18 The confident mood of this great climax outshines the psalm's introductory protestations. The psalmist's great Lord listens (v. 17) and acts (v. 18).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 11:1–7 The panic that launched this psalm was not David's but that of his apparently well-meaning counselors. Their mood is panic, but David's is peace. In view of David's attitude, this psalm can be listed with the psalms of confidence (Ps. 4; 16; 23; 27; 62; 125; 131). Also, the solidarity of the theocratic king and the theocratic people is obvious, as indicated by the shifts back and forth between singular and plural phrasings. The developing verses and lines of this psalm reveal that, although two different "voices" were speaking to David in yet another context of personal and national crisis, he had made up his mind to trust only in the Lord.

I. Introductory Affirmation (11:1a)
II. The Two Voices
    A. The Voice Urging Flight (11:1b–3)
    B. The Voice Urging Faith (11:4–7)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 11:1 In the Lord I take refuge. God is the exclusive refuge for his persecuted children (cf. 16:1; 36:7).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 11:3 These are the words of a committed but confused saint. His philosophical problem is, "In view of the crumbling of the theocratic society, what can one righteous person, out of a shrinking remnant, do?"

PSALMS—NOTE ON 11:4a in his holy temple . . . in heaven. This emphasizes the transcendent throne room of God, yet God has sovereign sway over all the affairs of earth (cf. Hab. 2:20).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 11:4b–5a his eyes see, his eyelids test. His transcendence previously depicted does not negate his eminence here presented from the perspective of the divine scrutiny of all men, including the righteous (cf. Jer. 6:27–30; 17:10).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 11:5b–6 his soul hates. This is undiluted, perfect retribution.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 11:7a For the Lord is righteous. He loves righteousness. He himself is the perfect norm or standard for all spiritual integrity.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 11:7b his face. Cf. 17:15; 27:4; 63:2; 1 John 3:2.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 12:1–8 Men's words do hurt, but the Lord's words heal. These thoughts preoccupy David in Ps. 12. The psalm begins and ends with the reality of the current reign of the wicked. Yet amidst this very black setting, the gemstone truth of v. 5 shines all the more brightly. These eight verses are characterized by subtle repetitions and bold contrasts. In the development of Ps. 12, David provides a model for passing a spiritual hearing test, in that genuine disciples listen to and properly respond to two radically different sources of speech.

I. Surviving the Propaganda of Depraved Speech (12:1–4)
    A. By Prayer (12:1–2)
    B. By Petition (12:3–4)
II. Security in the Protection of Divine Speech (12:5–8)
    A. Its Divine Promises (12:5)
    B. Its Divine Purity (12:6)
    C. Its Divine Perseverance (12:7–8)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 12:1 for the godly one is gone. His words and phraseology are deliberately hyperbolic, yet David's perception indeed was that the pious have perished!

PSALMS—NOTE ON 12:2–4 These smooth-talking sinners verbally abuse the remnant (vv. 2–3) and verbally defy their Sovereign (v. 4).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 12:3a May the Lord cut off all flattering lips. Here is a call for death in the light of sin. On the obnoxious sin of lying lips, cf. 5:9; Isa. 30:10; Dan. 11:32; Rom. 3:13.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 12:6 pure . . . refined. The Lord's perfect words present a most radical contrast with the profane words of arrogant sinners. The purity of God's Person assures the purity of his promises (cf. 19:7–10).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 12:7–8 The hostile realities of v. 8 call for the heavenly resources of v. 7.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 13:1–6 Psalm 13 launches with an explosion of four "How longs?" indicating another lament is about to begin. But David will shift radically from turmoil to tranquility in the space of six short verses through three levels of attitude.

I. Below "Sea Level" Expressions of Despair (13:1–2)
II. "Sea Level" Expressions of Desires (13:3–4)
III. "Mountaintop Level" Expressions of Delight (13:5–6)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 13:1–2 These lines reintroduce the familiar triangle of the psalmist, his God, and his enemies. This three-way relationship produces perplexity and pain. In view of God's apparent absence (v. 1), he seems left to his own resources, which are unable to deal with the reality of his enemies (v. 2).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 13:4b–5b rejoice . . . rejoice. Using the same verb, he deliberately contrasts his enemy's celebration with his own confidence in divine deliverance.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 14:1–7 Psalm 14, a wisdom poem, along with its nearly identical twin Ps. 53, contains profound deliberations on human depravity. David's representative desire for deliverance (14:7) provides the chorus to his two preceding dirges on depravity.

I. The Dirges on Depravity (14:1–6)
    A. The First Dirge: In the Form of a Round, Addresses the Universality of Depravity (14:1–3)

        B. The Second Dirge: In the Form of a Ballad, Addresses the Futility of Depravity (14:4–6)
    II. The Chorus on Deliverance (14:7)
        A. The Wish for It (14:7a)
        B. The Worship Attending It (14:7b–c)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 14:1 The fool. In the Bible, this designation carries moral rather than intellectual meaning (Isa. 32:6).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 14:1–3 The "alls" and "nones" of these lines make the indictments universally applicable. No wonder Paul included these indictments in Rom. 3:10–12. There is also a common scriptural association of doing with thinking.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 14:4–6 The shift from third person affirmations about the wicked (vv. 4–5) to the second person (v. 6a) intensifies this confrontation with divine judgment.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 14:7 Zion. The place on earth where God was pleased to reveal his presence, protection, and power (cf. 3:4; 20:2; 128:5; 132:13; 134:3).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 15:1–5 Whereas Ps. 14 focused on the way of the wicked, Ps. 15 concentrates on the way of the righteous (cf. Ps. 1). The saved sinner is described as exhibiting indications of ethical integrity. These characteristics alternate in triplets of positive and negative descriptions. The whole psalm unfolds through a question-and-answer vehicle, and indeed it may be regarded as the ultimate question-and-answer session. With its focus on moral responsibility, the psalm offers a sequence of responses to the question of acceptable worship.

    I. A Two-Part Question (15:1)
    II. A Twelve-Part Response (15:2–5b)
        A. Three Positively Phrased Ethical Characteristics (15:2)
            1. His lifestyle exhibits integrity
            2. His deeds exhibit justice

        3. His speech exhibits reliability
    B. Three Negatively Cast Ethical Characteristics (15:3)
        1. He does not tread over people with his tongue
        2. He does not harm his fellow man
        3. He does not dump reproach upon family or friend
    C. Three Positively Phrased Ethical Characteristics (15:4a–c)
        1. He views the reprobate as rejected
        2. He respects the people of God
        3. He holds himself accountable
    D. Three Negatively Cast Ethical Characteristics (15:4d–5b)
        1. He is not fickle
        2. He is not greedy
        3. He cannot be bought
    E. A One-Part Guarantee (15:5c)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 15:1 your tent. Cf. 61:4; for possible background see 2 Sam. 6:12–17.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 15:2–5 Notice the focus on life-and-lip qualities.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 15:4 despised . . . honors. Whom God rejects, the psalmist rejects; whom God loves, he loves.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 15:5 interest. Interest rates ran as high as 50 percent, but God’s law put strict regulations on borrowing and lending (see notes on Deut. 23:19–20; 24:10–13). He . . . shall never be moved. This is an important promise in the light of its usage in Psalms and Proverbs (cf. Ps. 10:6; 13:4; 16:8; 46:5; 62:2, 6; Prov. 10:30).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 16:1–11 The only prayer of Ps. 16 comes in the first line. The rest of the psalm consists of David’s weaving together his personal testimonies of trust in the Lord. In view of this, David’s opening prayer is bolstered by two cycles of testimony.

I. David’s Introductory Prayer (16:1)
II. David’s Testimony (16:2–11)
    A. His Testimony of Communion (16:2–4)
        1. Its divine dimension (16:2)
        2. Its human dimension (16:3–4)
    B. His Testimony of Confidence (16:5–11)
        1. Its past and present dimensions (16:5–8)
        2. Its present and future dimensions (16:9–11)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 16:Title A Miktam of David. Cf. Ps. 56; 57; 58; 59; 60. In spite of many conjectures, this designation remains obscure.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 16:1 Preserve me. This is a frequent request begging God to protect the psalmist (cf. 17:8; 140:4; 141:9).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 16:2 I have no good apart from you. I.e., “My well-being is entirely dependent upon you.”

PSALMS—NOTE ON 16:4 He will have nothing to do with false gods or the people pursuing them.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 16:5–6 These lines use OT metaphors to describe the blessing of God.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 16:9 my whole being. Starting back at v. 7, the psalmist referred to his core of being as “my heart,” now “my whole being” (or “my glory,” esv footnote) and next “my flesh” and “my soul.” The anthropological terms stand for the whole person, so it is best to consider “my whole being” or “my glory” as referring to that distinctive way in which man is created in the image of God, i.e., his intelligence and ability to speak.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 16:10 These words expressed the confidence of the lesser David, but were applied messianically to the resurrection of the Greater David (the Lord Jesus Christ) both by Peter (Acts 2:25–28) and Paul (Acts 13:35).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 17:1–15 This “prayer” of David brims with petitions, as many as seventeen of them depending upon the translation of certain Hebrew verb forms. There are many literary parallels with Ps. 16. Although the psalm shows indications of mixed forms, it is essentially a prayer for protection. David is fond of using themes and phrases from the exodus narrative (cf. Ex. 15; Deut. 32). A logical chiastic development is detected in its verses, with the focus shifting from the psalmist (Ps. 17:1–8) to his enemies (vv. 9–12), remaining on his enemies in vv. 13–14, then shifting back to David (v. 15). Or viewing its development from another angle, David approaches the divine court with three clusters of appeals in seeking justice.

I. Appeals Dealing with Response and Recognition (17:1–5)

- II. Appeals Dealing with Rescue and Relief (17:6–12)
    - A. His Need for Rescue Is Presented (17:6–8)
    - B. His Need for Relief Is Documented (17:9–12)
- III. Appeals Dealing with Retribution and Rest (17:13–15)
    - A. His Anticipation of Their Retribution (17:13–14)
    - B. His Assurance of His Own Rest (17:15)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 17:Title This is the first psalm simply entitled “A Prayer” (cf. Ps. 86; 90; 102; 142).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 17:1–2 The introductory language is that of the law court, and David stands before the ultimate Chief Justice to present his case.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 17:3–5 His basic integrity (vv. 3–4) especially in view of the present case, was, is, and shall be dependent upon the grace of God (v. 5).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 17:8 the apple of your eye. An expression meaning the pupil of the human eye. As a person protects that vital organ of vision, so God protects his people.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 17:10 They close their hearts to pity. Lit., “They have closed their fat.” This was a common OT idiom for insensitivity (cf. Deut. 32:15; Job 15:27; Ps. 73:7; Jer. 5:28).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 17:13 Divine Warrior language.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 17:14–15 The common grace of God is overlooked by those who are satisfied with temporal prosperities (v. 14), but David brings back the proper perspective on true satisfaction in v. 15. Cf. Jesus’ teaching on these vital issues in Matt. 6:19–34.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 18:1–50 Psalm 18 is clearly an individual psalm of thanksgiving, also bearing royal characteristics. Its poetry and themes resemble other ancient testimonies to God’s great historical deliverances (e.g., Ex. 15; Judg. 5). Between David’s opening (Ps. 18:1–3) and closing (vv. 46–50) praises to God, his life with the Lord is described in three stages.

- I. Prelude: His Opening Praises (18:1–3)
- II. The Stages of His Life (18:4–45)
  - A. In the Pit of Peril (18:4–19)
    - 1. His desperation (18:4–5)
    - 2. His defender (18:6–15)
    - 3. His deliverance (18:16–19)
  - B. On a Course of Ethical Integrity (18:20–28)
    - 1. The principles of the Lord's direction (18:20–26)
    - 2. The privileges of the Lord's direction (18:27–28)
  - C. In the Turbulent Atmosphere of Leadership (18:29–45)
    - 1. Military leadership (18:29–42)
    - 2. Theocratic leadership (18:43–45)
  - D. Postscript: His Closing Praises (18:46–50)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 18:Title This large psalm bears a large title. Although the title seems to refer to only one specific occasion (e.g., "on the day"), it does state that God's deliverance was "from the hand of all his enemies, and from the hand of Saul." Therefore, it is preferable that the language of this superscription be understood to summarize the testimony of David's whole life in retrospect.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 18:1 love. This is not the normal word for love that often bears covenant meaning (e.g., Deut. 7:8; Ps. 119:97), but it is a rare verb form of a word group that expresses tender intimacy. David's choice of words intended to express very strong devotion, like Peter's in John 21:15–17.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 18:2 Military metaphors for the Divine Warrior multiply in this verse. Both defensively and offensively, the Lord was all David needed in life's tough battles.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 18:4 cords of death. Cf. Jonah 2:2–9.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 18:7–15 This theophany, a vivid poetic picture of God's presence, rivals other biblical presentations (cf. Ex. 19:16ff.; Deut. 33:2ff.; Judg. 4–5; Ps. 68:7–8; Mic. 1:3–4; Hab. 3; Rev. 19). His presence is largely described by various catastrophic responses by all creation.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 18:16–19 His sheer power, exhibited so dramatically in vv. 7–15, is now amazingly attested as coming to rescue the psalmist personally.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 18:20–24, 37–38 These verses should not be taken out of context, making David look like an arrogant boaster. As in vv. 25–36 and 39–50, both David and the community, although responsible for living with integrity within the covenant relationship, are fully dependent on the resources of God to do so. Therefore, his "boasting" is biblical, since it is ultimately in the Lord (Jer. 9:23–4).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 18:31 a rock. Cf. vv. 2 and 46. Moses, at the beginning of his great song about the Lord in Deut. 32, called God "The Rock" (v. 4). The Lord is indeed a massive, unshakable foundation and source of protection.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 18:50 This concluding verse is another royal messianic affirmation of the Davidic Covenant in 2 Sam. 7.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 19:1–14 Because of its two distinct parts and two different names for God, some have tried to argue that Ps. 19 was really two compositions, one ancient and one more recent. However, the shorter form of the name "God" (cf. the longer form in Gen. 1:1) speaks of his power, especially power exhibited as Creator, while "Lord" fits the relational focus. Consequently, David depicted the Lord God as author of both his world and word in a unified hymn. God has revealed himself to mankind through these two avenues. The human race stands accountable to him because of his non-verbal and verbal communications. In the light of these intentions, Ps. 19 eloquently summarizes two prominent vehicles of God's self-disclosure.

I. God's General Self-Disclosure in the World (19:1–6)
  A. The Publication of the Skies (19:1–4b)
  B. The Prominence of the Sun (19:4c–6)

II. God’s Special Self-Disclosure in the Word (19:7–14)
A. The Attributes of the Word (19:7–9)
B. An Appreciation for the Word (19:10–11)
C. The Application of the Word (19:12–14)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 19:1–6 The testimony of the universe comes forth consistently and clearly, but sinful mankind persistently resists it. For this reason, general revelation cannot convert sinners, but it does make them highly accountable (cf. Rom. 1:18ff.). Salvation comes ultimately only through special revelation, i.e., as the word of God is effectually applied by the Spirit of God.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 19:1 heavens . . . sky. Both are crucial elements of the creation in Gen. 1 (cf. vv. 1, 8). declare . . . proclaims. Both verbs emphasize the continuity of these respective disclosures. his handiwork. An anthropomorphism illustrating God’s great power (cf. the “work of your fingers” in Ps. 8:3).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 19:2–3 speech . . . no speech. This is not a contradiction, but shows that the constant communication of the heavens is not with words of a literal nature.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 19:4 The message of the created world extends to everywhere.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 19:4c–6 Neither the sun nor the heavens are deified as was the case in many pagan religions. In the Bible, God is the Creator and Ruler over all creation.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 19:7–14 The scene shifts from God’s world to God’s word.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 19:7–8 Each of four parallel lines contains a word (a synonym) for God’s word; each describes what his word is; and each pronounces what it effectually accomplishes.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 19:7 law. This might better be translated, “his teaching,” “a direction,” or “instruction” (cf. Ps. 1:2). testimony. This word for the word derives from the root “to bear witness.” It, so to speak, bears testimony to its Divine Author.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 19:8 precepts. This synonym looks upon God’s word as orders, charges, statutes, etc. They are viewed as the Governor’s governings. commandment. This word is related to the verb “to command” or “order.” The word is therefore also perceived as divine orders.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 19:9 fear. This is not technically a word for the word, but it does reflect the reality that Scripture is the manual for worship of God. rules. This term looks upon God’s word as conveying his judicial decisions.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 19:12–13 The psalmist deals respectively with unintentional sins and high-handed infractions (cf. Lev. 4:1ff.; Num. 15:22ff.). David’s concerns reflect the attitude of a maturing disciple who, by God’s grace and provisions, deals with his sins and does not deny them.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 19:14 be acceptable. Using a term often associated with God’s acceptance of properly offered, literal sacrifices, he asks for grace and enablement as he lays his “lip-and-life” sacrifices on the “altar” (cf. Josh. 1:8).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 20:1–9 Psalms 20 and 21 are twin warfare events—Ps. 20 is mostly ceremony before a battle, while Ps. 21 is mostly celebration after a battle. In the theocracy, these were to be considered holy wars with the chain of command being as follows: the Lord is Commander-in-Chief over the anointed king-general and the theocratic people—soldiers. All holy convocations, both before and after battles, involved prayer and praise assemblies dedicated to God, who grants victories through the theocratic king-general. Psalm 20, in anticipation of a military campaign, commemorates a three-phase ceremony regularly conducted by the people in the presence of the Commander-in-Chief on behalf of the king-general.

I. An Offering of Their Prayers (20:1–5)
II. A Confirmation of Their Confidence (20:6–8)
III. A Reaffirmation of Their Dependence (20:9)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 20:1 May the Lord answer you in the day of trouble! This is the prayer of God’s people for their king-general (cf. “his anointed,” v. 6).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 20:2 from the sanctuary . . . from Zion! These are designations about the place of God’s symbolic presence in the ark, which David had recaptured and installed in a tabernacle on Mount Zion. The people’s wish was that the Lord himself would uphold, support, and sustain the king-general with his extending, powerful presence throughout the military campaign.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 20:5 your salvation. Here, by contrast, God’s salvation is victory in battle.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 20:7 Some trust in. Trust, boast, and praise must not be directed to the wrong objects but only to God himself (cf., e.g., Deut. 17:16; 20:1–4; Lev. 26:7–8; Ps. 33:16–17; Isa. 31:1–3; Jer. 9:23–24; Zech. 4:6).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 20:9 This verse could also be rendered: “Lord, grant victory to the king! Answer us when we call!”

PSALMS—NOTE ON 21:1–13 The first part of Ps. 21 is a thanksgiving for victory; the last part is an anticipation of future victories in the Lord through the king-general. Two scenarios of victory provide a context for praise and prayer to the Commander-in-Chief of Israel's king-general.

- I. A Present-Past Scenario of Praise: Grounded upon Victories Accomplished in the Lord (21:1–6)
- II. A Present-Future Scenario of Prayer and Praise: Grounded upon Victories Anticipated in the Lord (21:7–13)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 21:2 Cf. Ps. 20:4, the before; Ps. 21:2, the after.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 21:3 you set a crown of fine gold upon his head. This is symbolic of superlative blessing (note the reversal in Ezek. 21:25–27).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 21:4 The first part of the verse most likely pertains to preservation of life in battle, and the second part to perpetuation of the dynasty (cf. 2 Sam. 7:13, 16, 29; Ps. 89:4; 132:12).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 21:5–6 The King had given great prominence to the king-general.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 21:7 For the king. The human responsibility dimension of the previous divine blessings is identified as the king-general's dependent trust in God. But the sovereign grace of God provides the ultimate basis for one not being moved or "shaken" (cf. Ps. 15:5; 16:8; 17:5; Prov. 10:30).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 21:8 Your . . . you. Without denying the mediatorship of the king-general, these delineations obviously put the spotlight upon the Commander-in-Chief.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 22:1–31 This psalm presents the reader with a great contrast in mood. Lament characterizes the first 21 verses, while praise and thanksgiving describe the last 10 verses. Prayer accounts for this dramatic shift from lament to praise. It is the story of first being God-forsaken and then God-found and filled. It was applied immediately to David and ultimately to the Greater David, Messiah. The NT contains 15 messianic quotations of or allusions to this psalm, leading some in the early church to label it “the fifth gospel.”

- I. The Psalmist’s Hopelessness (22:1–10)
  - A. His Hopelessness and National History (22:1–5)
  - B. His Hopelessness and Natal History (22:6–10)
- II. The Psalmist’s Prayer (22:11–21)
  - A. A No-Help Outlook (22:11–18)
  - B. A Divine-Help Outlook (22:19–21)
- III. The Psalmist’s Testimonies and Worship (22:22–31)
  - A. An Individual Precipitation of Praise (22:22–25)
  - B. A Corporate Perpetuation of Praise (22:26–31)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 22:Title The Doe of the Dawn. This unique phrase in the superscription is probably best taken as a tune designation.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 22:1 This heavy lament rivals Job 3; Ps. 69; Jer. 20:14–18. My God, my God, why have you forsaken me? The repeated noun of direct address to God reflects a personal molecule of hope in a seemingly hopeless situation. “Forsaken” is a strong expression for personal abandonment, intensely felt by David and supremely experienced by Christ on the cross (Matt. 27:46).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 22:2–5 The thrust of these verses is “even though you have not responded to me, you remain the Holy One of Israel who has demonstrated his gracious attention time and time again to your people.”

PSALMS—NOTE ON 22:6–8 Reproach and ridicule were overwhelming the psalmist. For messianic applications, cf. Matt. 27:39–44 and Luke 23:35.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 22:7 they make mouths at me. An idiom for sneering (cf. Job 16:10; Ps. 35:21; Heb. 5:5).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 22:8 trusts in the Lord. Lit., “he rolled to the Lord.” The idea is that he turned his burden over to the Lord (cf. 37:5; Prov. 16:3).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 22:9–10 The psalmist had a long history of reliance upon God.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 22:12–13 This imagery of enemies as rapacious beasts returns (cf. vv. 16, 20–21).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 22:14–15 These are graphic images showing that his vitality and courage had left him.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 22:16 they have pierced my hands and feet. The Hebrew text reads “like a lion,” i.e., these vicious attacking enemies, like animals, have torn me. Likely, a messianic prediction with reference to crucifixion (cf. Isa. 53:5; Zech. 12:10).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 22:17 This is a graphic picture of emaciation and exhaustion (cf. Job 33:21; Ps. 102:5).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 22:18 they divide . . . they cast. All four gospel writers appeal to this imagery in describing Christ’s crucifixion (Matt. 27:35; Mark 15:24; Luke 23:34; John 19:24).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 22:21 You have rescued. A welcomed breaking of God’s silence finally arrives. This is fully in keeping with his character (cf. 20:6; 28:6; 31:22; 118:5).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 22:22 The psalmist cannot contain himself; he must testify loudly in the great assembly of God’s great mercies. His exuberance is meant to be contagious (cf. Heb. 2:12).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 22:27 His testimony expands by soliciting universal praises for universal divine blessings (cf. 67:7; 98:3).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 23:1–6 This psalm is probably the best known passage of the OT. It is a testimony by David to the Lord's faithfulness throughout his life. As a hymn of confidence, it pictures the Lord as a disciple's Shepherd-King-Host. David, by using some common ancient Near Eastern images in Ps. 23, progressively unveils his personal relationship with the Lord in three stages.

I. David's Exclamation: "The Lord Is My Shepherd" (23:1a)
II. David's Expectations (23:1b–5b)
    A. "I Shall Not Want" (23:1b–3)
    B. "I Will Fear No Evil" (23:4–5b)
III. David's Exultation: "My Cup Overflows" (23:5c–6)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 23:1 The Lord is my shepherd. Cf. Gen. 48:15; 49:24; Deut. 32:6–12; Ps. 28:9; 74:1; 77:20; 78:52; 79:13; 80:1; 95:7; 100:3; Isa. 40:11; Jer. 23:3; Ezek. 34; Hos. 4:16; Mic. 5:4; 7:14; Zech. 9:16 on the image of the Lord as a Shepherd. This imagery was used commonly in kingly applications and is frequently applied to Jesus in the NT (e.g., John 10; Heb. 13:20; 1 Pet. 2:25; 5:4).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 23:2–3 Four characterizing activities of the Lord as Shepherd (i.e., emphasizing his grace and guidance) are followed by the ultimate basis for his goodness, i.e., “his name’s sake” (cf. 25:11; 31:3; 106:8; Isa. 43:25; 48:9; Ezek. 36:22–32).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 23:4 the valley of the shadow of death. Phraseology used to convey a perilously threatening environment (cf. Job 10:21–22; 38:17; Ps. 44:19; 107:10; Jer. 2:6; Luke 1:79). your rod and your staff. The shepherd’s club and crook are viewed as comforting instruments of protection and direction, respectively.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 23:5–6 The able Protector (v. 4) is also the abundant Provider.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 23:5 you anoint. The biblical imagery of anointing is frequently associated with blessing (45:7; 92:10; 104:15; 133:2; Eccles. 9:8; Amos 6:6; Luke 7:46).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 23:6 and I shall dwell. There is some question concerning the form in the Hebrew text (cf. also 27:4). Should it be rendered “I shall return” or “I shall dwell”? Whichever way it is taken, by the grace of his Lord, David is expecting ongoing opportunities of intimate fellowship.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 24:1–10 The form of Ps. 24 has been disputed. For example, it has been labeled by some as an entrance ceremony (cf. Ps. 15), by others, a hymn of praise, and yet by others, a mixture of both elements. Its occasion has also been contended; however, the view that it might have been used at the time of the bringing of the ark to Jerusalem (2 Sam. 6:12–19; 1 Chron. 13) still has credible appeal. The early church designated it messianically as an ascension psalm (cf. Ps. 24:3). The movement of the psalm seems to follow the movement of the people. It traces the community’s worship procession, both spatially and spiritually, through three progressive stages.

I. Stage One: Worship of the Creator through Contemplation (24:1–2)
II. Stage Two: Worship of the Savior through Consecration (24:3–6)
    A. The Probing Questions Inviting Consecration (24:3)

B. The Proper Qualities Indicating Consecration (24:4–6)

III. Stage Three: Worship of the King through Commemoration (24:7–10)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 24:1 the Lord’s. On his universal ownership, cf. Ex. 19:5; Deut. 10:14; Ps. 50:12; 89:11; in the NT, cf. 1 Cor. 3:21, 23.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 24:2 This is a poetic, not a scientific, picture of creation (cf. Gen. 1:9–10; 7:11; 49:25; Ex. 20:4; Deut. 33:13; Job 26:10; Ps. 74:13; 136:6; 2 Pet. 3:5).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 24:3 In the liturgy, the questions were most likely asked by the priest. The worshipers would have then responded antiphonally with the “answers.” On the form, cf. Ps. 15 and Isa. 33:14–16.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 24:4 These sample qualities do not signify sinless perfection, but rather basic integrity of inward motive and outward manner.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 24:7–9 These are bold personifications indicating that the city gates need to stretch themselves to make way for the awesome entrance of the Great King. By so doing, they too participate in worshiping him.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 24:10 The Lord of hosts. The Divine Warrior possibly comes back into consideration; he, the Commander-in-Chief, is “the God of the armies” (cf. 1 Sam. 17:45).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 25:1–22 David grapples with the heavy issues of life, avoiding denial and affirming dependence. He must trust God in the face of his troubles and troublemakers. These 22 verses follow an acrostic development. On a larger scale, the psalm develops chiastically: Verses 1–7 and 16–22 are parallel sections of prayers for protection and/or deliverance, while the core, vv. 8–15, contains affirmations about God and about his dealings with believers.

I. Prayers in Times of Trial (25:1–7)

II. Praise in Periods of Confidence (25:8–15)

III. Petition for Help in Trouble (25:16–22)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 25:1 I lift up my soul. This is a vivid picture of David’s dependence (cf. 86:4; 143:8).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 25:2–3 put to shame. The important phenomenon of shame for the wicked and no shame for the righteous returns (cf. a millennial expression of this great principle in Isa. 49:23).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 25:4–5 The noun and verb metaphors speak of direction for life’s pathways (cf. the thrust of Ps. 1).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 25:6–7 Remember . . . Remember not . . . remember. These are not concerns about God forgetting something, but the psalmist’s prayer reminds the readers about God’s gracious covenant promises and provisions, all of which are grounded upon his “goodness’ sake” (cf. v. 11, “your name’s sake”).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 25:8–10 More metaphors for life’s paths are used for the purpose of begging divine direction (cf. vv. 4–5). The last line of v. 10 emphasizes covenant responsibilities on the human side (cf. the divine side in vv. 6–7).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 25:11 pardon my guilt, for it is great. A maturing disciple develops an increasing sensitivity to sin, which drives him more consistently to an appropriation of the promises of God’s pardoning grace (cf. v. 18b).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 25:12 Who . . . ? This interrogative device (cf. Ps. 15; 24) serves as an introductory vehicle to the hallmarks of genuine discipleship.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 25:14 The friendship. This could well be rendered the “counsel” or intimate personal communion (cf. Job 29:4; Ps. 55:14; Prov. 3:32).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 25:15 net. The snare of the hunter or fowler (cf. 31:4).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 25:16–21 Ten rapid-fire prayer requests, asking for relief and encouragement, lie at the heart of these six verses.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 25:16 lonely and afflicted. These terms speak of isolation and humiliation.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 25:22 The shift from the individual to the community is really not surprising, since the welfare of the theocratic people is inextricably connected to the covenant individual (cf. Ps. 51:18–19).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 26:1–12 Psalms 26; 27; and 28 mention the house, or sanctuary, of the Lord because public worship is the central interest. The form of Ps. 26 is mixed, i.e., containing elements of declarations of innocence, prayer, and confidence (cf. v. 1 as a paradigm). Structurally, four intermingling prayers and proofs reveal the psalmist's passion to worship the Lord in spirit and in truth.

I. His Situation (26:1)
    A. His Prayer for Justice (26:1a)
    B. His Proofs of Commitment (26:1b)
II. His Transparency (26:2–8)
    A. His Prayer for Scrutiny (26:2)
    B. His Proofs of Loyalty (26:3–8)
III. His Eschatological Outlook (26:9–11a)
    A. His Prayers for Final Favor (26:9)
    B. His Proofs of Measurable Difference (26:10–11a)
IV. His Confidence (26:11b–12)
    A. His Prayers Show Confidence in the Person of God (26:11b)
    B. His Proofs Show Confidence in the Provision of God (26:12)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 26:1 Vindicate me. Lit., "Judge me!" This refers to exoneration of some false accusations and/or charges under the protection of the covenant stipulations of the theocratic law (cf. 7:8; 35:24; 43:1). my integrity. Again, this is not a claim to perfection, but of innocence, particularly as viewed within the context of ungrounded "legal" charges (cf.

7:8; Prov. 10:9; 19:1; 20:7; 28:6). without wavering. Cf. Ps. 18:36; 37:31; contrast 73:18–20.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 26:2 Prove . . . try . . . test. These three invitations to divine scrutiny are essentially synonymous ways of testing, refining, and purifying (cf. 11:4–5; 12:6; 17:3; 66:10; Jer. 17:9–10).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 26:4–5 This language suggests that David is making a personal application of the characteristics of 1:1.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 26:6 Personal cleansing is a necessary prerequisite for acceptable worship (cf. 24:3–4).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 26:7 proclaiming. The Hebrew text reads “to hear the sound of praise and to proclaim . . . ,” a reference to the enjoyment of and participation in public worship.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 26:8 your glory. God’s “glory” most frequently refers to his self-manifestation, e.g., his attributes revealed and exhibited. See note on Lev. 9:23.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 26:9–11 This is another sharp contrast between the injurious and the innocent.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 26:12 My foot stands. Cf. v. 1, “without wavering.”

PSALMS—NOTE ON 27:1–14 This psalm is characterized by strong contrasts such as lament and laud; persecution and praise; plus warfare and worship. In Ps. 27, the psalmist, in the presence of his Lord, engages in three conversations that help him balance the ups and downs of real life.

I. He Converses with Himself about Privileges (27:1–6)
II. He Converses with the Lord about Problems (27:7–12)
III. He Converses with Himself about Perseverance (27:13–14)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 27:1 light. This important biblical word picture with exclusively positive connotations pictures the light of redemption in contrast to the darkness of condemnation (cf. 18:28; 36:9; 43:3; Isa. 60:1, 19–20; Mic. 7:8; John 8:12; 12:46; 1 John 1:5).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 27:2 eat up my flesh. An allusion to the psalmist's enemies being like vicious beasts (cf. 7:2; 14:4; 17:12; Job 19:22; Jer. 30:16; 50:7). This wording was also employed to describe slander and defamation (cf. a close Aramaic parallel in Dan. 3:8; 6:24). they who stumble and fall. This doublet conveys thorough defeat (cf. Isa. 3:8; 8:15; 31:3; Jer. 46:6).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 27:4 One thing. The primary issue in David's life was to live in God's presence and by his purpose (cf. 15:1; 23:6; cf. Paul's "one thing" in Phil. 3:13).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 27:5 his shelter. David portrays the privileges of divine protection as being hidden in God's "booth" or "shelter," a term in parallelism with "tabernacle" or "tent."

PSALMS—NOTE ON 27:8–9 Seek my face . . . Your face . . . your face. God's "face" indicates his personal presence or simply his being (24:6; 105:4); and seeking his face is a primary characteristic of true believers who desire fellowship with God (cf. Deut. 4:29; 2 Chron. 11:16; 20:4; Ps. 40:16; Jer. 50:4; Hos. 3:5; Zech. 8:22).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 27:10 Even though those nearest and dearest to David might abandon him, his Lord would always be concerned about and care for him (cf. Deut. 31:6, 8; Isa. 49:14–15; Heb. 13:5).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 27:14 Wait . . . wait. This particular word for waiting connotes either a tense or eager and patient anticipation of the Lord (cf. 37:34; 40:1).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 28:1–9 We encounter a radical shift from lamentation and prayer to thanksgiving. The psalmist, without regard for his unchanged circumstances, shows confidence in crisis. David, moving through two cycles of crisis and confidence, magnifies the justice of God.

- I. First Cycle: Individual in Outlook, and Terminates in Praise (28:1–7)
    - A. His Personal Crisis (28:1-5b)
    - B. His Personal Confidence (28:5c–7)
- II. Second Cycle: Corporate in Outlook, and Terminates in Prayer (28:8–9)
    - A. His Reassurance in the Light of Corporate Confidence (28:8)
    - B. His Request in the Face of Corporate Crisis (28:9)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 28:1 deaf . . . silent. On the striking picture of God being deaf and dumb regarding his situation, cf. 35:22; 83:1; 109:1; Isa. 57:11; 64:12; 65:6; Hab. 1:13.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 28:2 when I lift up my hands. On this symbolic "posture" representing the heart's attitude in dependent prayer, see Ex. 9:29; 17:11–12; Ps. 63:4; 1 Tim. 2:8.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 28:3–5 The iniquities of the psalmist's (really God's) enemies bring forth sharp imprecations.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 28:6 For he has heard the voice of my pleas for mercy. Contrast vv. 1–2. Through faith, the psalmist will live his life as though God has already intervened.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 28:8 his anointed. This is most likely a corporate reference to the people of God being anointed, not to an individual (cf. Hab. 3:13).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 28:9 your heritage. God amazingly considers his people a most precious possession (cf. Deut. 7:6–16; 9:29; 1 Sam. 10:1; Ps. 33:12; 94:5; Eph. 1:18).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 29:1–11 This psalm has all the earmarks of the earliest Hebrew poetry (cf. Ex. 15; Judg. 5). As to its general form, it is a hymn. Many of its images appear in parallel literature, especially in referencing pagan gods by various "forces of nature." However, the Lord is the unique Creator and supreme Sovereign over all these phenomena. He alone is "the God of gods” (Dan. 11:36). In view of these realities, three representative realms of the supremacy of God bring forth praise to Yahweh (Jehovah) alone.

I. The Lord’s Supremacy over Heavenly Beings (29:1–2)
II. The Lord’s Supremacy over the “Forces of Nature” (29:3–9)
III. The Lord’s Supremacy over Humanity (29:10–11)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 29:1 heavenly beings. Lit “sons of God” (cf. 89:6 in its context of 89:5–10; cf. the plural form of “gods” in Ex. 15:11). The reference here in Ps. 29 is most likely to Yahweh’s mighty angels.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 29:3–9 This is an awesome theophany, depicting dramatic movements in the powerful manifestations of the Lord God, which function to establish his supremacy as the only true God in comparison with any of the so-called gods of Israel’s pagan neighbors.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 29:3 The voice of the Lord. His voice is frequently associated with the thunder (cf., e.g., 1 Sam. 7:10; Job 37:4–5; Ps. 18:13; Isa. 30:30–31).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 29:5 the cedars . . . the cedars of Lebanon. These are the grandest of forest trees, and those of Lebanon were especially impressive.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 29:6 Sirion. This is the Phoenician name for Mount Hermon to the north of Dan (cf. Deut. 3:9).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 29:8 the wilderness of Kadesh. Kadesh-barnea is in the southern desert country. For its importance in the history of Israel, see note on Num. 20:1.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 29:10 the flood. This refers to the universal flood of Gen. 6–8 (esp., Gen. 7:17).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 30:1–12 A mixture of forms characterize Ps. 30. David speaks out of a cycle of life (i.e., lamentation and laud), especially moving through prayer to praise. In spite of great variety, the psalm is bonded together by praise emphases (cf. vv. 4, 9, 12). The psalmist's beginning and ending pledges to praise provide structure for his prayers and testimonies.

I. His Beginning Pledge of Praise (30:1a)
II. His Look Back upon Historic Prayers and Testimonies (30:1b–9)
    A. His Individual Remembrance (30:1b–3)
    B. His Public Reminders (30:4–5)
    C. His Individual Reflections (30:6–9)
III. His Look Ahead to Continuing Prayers and Testimonies (30:10–12a)
IV. His Concluding Pledge of Praise (30:12b)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 30:Title The first part of this title, i.e., "A Psalm of David," is a common notation in the superscriptions of many psalms. However, the middle words, "a song at the dedication of the temple," were probably added later, although they could have referenced David's temporary tent for the ark erected on Mount Zion (2 Sam. 6:17) or his own house (2 Sam. 5:11–12).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 30:2–3 you have healed me. God alone is the unique healer (cf. Ex. 15:26; Deut. 32:39; Ps. 107:20). David is extolling God for bringing him back from a near-death experience.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 30:5 This stark contrast constitutes one of the most worshipful testimonies from the Scriptures (cf. the principle in Isa. 54:7–8; John 16:20–22; 2 Cor. 4:17).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 30:6 David recalls his previous independent attitude and arrogant talk. God had warned the nation and its leaders about such sinfully myopic outlooks (cf. Deut. 8:11–20; note sample failures in Deut. 32:15; 2 Chron. 32:25; Jer. 22:21; Hos. 13:6; Dan. 4:28–37). By the grace of God, David woke up to the fact that he was acting like his arrogant adversaries (cf. Ps. 10:6).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 30:8–10 A familiar argument for preservation of life (cf. 6:5; 28:1; 88:10–12; 115:17; Isa. 38:18–19).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 30:12 my glory. Now with renewed perspective (contrast v. 6), he recognizes that all he is and has is due to God's unmerited grace (cf. v. 7a).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 31:1–24 This psalm contains more of David's problems, prayers, and praises. David will again walk a road that takes him from anguish to assurance. Within the two settings of Ps. 31, the psalmist's testimonies passionately celebrate the sufficiencies of God.

- I. The Originally Private Setting (31:1–18)
    - A. His Testimony about Security and Salvation (31:1–5)
    - B. His Testimony about Discernment and Deliverance (31:6–8)
    - C. His Testimony about Reproach and Relief (31:9–18)
- II. The Ultimately Public Setting (31:19–24)
    - A. His Testimonies and Divine Exaltation (31:19–22)
    - B. His Testimonies and Human Exhortation (31:23–24)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 31:2 Incline your ear to me. This is a bold pay-attention-to-my-prayer demand (cf. 102:2).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 31:3 The language resembles that of 23:1–3, except it now comes packaged in prayer requests.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 31:5 Into your hand. This is applied to both the lesser David and the Greater David (Luke 23:46); here it involves the common denominator of trust. This is a metaphor depicting God's power and control (cf. Ps. 31:15a; contrast vv. 8, 15b).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 31:6 I hate. Cf. 26:5 on the proper basis for such hatred (cf. 139:21). worthless idols. This is a common designation for false gods (cf. Deut. 32:21; 1 Kings 16:13; Jer. 10:15; 14:22; 16:19; 18:15; Jonah 2:8). On the "idiocy" of idolatry, see Hab. 2:18–20.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 31:9–10 These terms quite frequently are employed metaphysically to convey the nonphysical impact of trials and tribulations.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 31:11 He was a reproach to adversaries and personal acquaintances alike, a very painful alienation (cf. 88:8, 18).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 31:13 terror on every side! (Cf. Jer. 6:25; 20:3, 10; 46:5; 49:29; Lam. 2:22.) they scheme. On such wicked plotting, cf. Jer. 11:19 and 18:23.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 31:16 This is a request for a personal application of the blessing of Num. 6:25 (cf. Ps. 4:6; 67:1; 80:3, 7, 19; 119:135).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 31:17 On their shame but not his, cf. 25:2–3, 20; Jer. 17:18.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 31:18, 20 His enemies exhibit signs of "mouth" disease.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 31:19 your goodness. As in the case of his other attributes, God being perfectly good is the ground for his doing good things (cf. 119:68).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 31:23 Love the Lord. Biblical love includes an attitudinal response and demonstrated obedience (cf. Deut. 6:4–5; 10:12; John 14:15, 21; 15:10; 2 John 6). The assurance of both reward and retribution is a biblical maxim (e.g., Deut. 7:9–10).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 31:24 Be strong . . . take courage. A singular form of this plural imperative was addressed to Joshua in Josh. 1:7. It is used nearly 20 times in the OT, particularly in anticipation of battle.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 32:1–11 This psalm has been classified by the early church as one of seven penitential psalms (cf. Ps. 6; 38; 51; 102; 130; 143). Among these, Ps. 32 and 51 stand out as confessional giants. As historically related to the life of David and especially in connection with the Bathsheba episode (cf. 2 Sam. 11–12), Ps. 51 would have preceded Ps. 32. The overall thrust, intent, and development of Ps. 32 may be summarized as follows:

Life's most important lessons about sin, confession, and forgiveness are skillfully shared by David through two avenues of approach.

- I. First Avenue: Remembering These Lessons (32:1–5)
    - A. Lessons about Results (32:1–2)
    - B. Lessons about Resistance (32:3–4)
    - C. Lessons about Responses (32:5)
- II. Second Avenue: Relaying These Lessons (32:6–11)
    - A. Lessons about Responses (32:6–7)
    - B. Lessons about Resistance (32:8–9)
    - C. Lessons about Results (32:10–11)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 32:Title "A Maskil" in the heading introduces a new technical term. It could indicate that Ps. 32 was a "contemplative poem," or a "psalm of understanding," or a "skillful psalm."

PSALMS—NOTE ON 32:1–2 transgression . . . sin . . . iniquity. Three key OT words for sin occur, viewing it respectively as rebellion, failure, and perversion.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 32:3–4 These are vivid descriptions of the physical effects of his impenitent state.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 32:5 David picks up the key terms that he had used to describe sin in vv. 1–2, but now, in a context of personal confession, he identifies those heinous affronts to the person of God as his own. On the priority of confession, cf. Prov. 28:13 and 1 John 1:8–10.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 32:6 David slips right back into teaching mode in this verse, emphasizing that every person who knows the grace of God should not presume upon that grace by putting off confession.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 32:8 instruct . . . teach . . . counsel. This terminology applies to biblical wisdom.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 32:9 horse . . . mule. I.e., Don't be stubborn. Such animals are used as pointed illustrations of this sin (cf. Prov. 26:3; Isa. 1:3; James 3:3).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 33:1–22 This psalm is a general hymn of praise. Its two primary themes are: 1) Yahweh is the Lord of nature, and 2) he is Lord of history. In biblical thought, these realms are always related; the Creator sovereignly rules over his total creation, over all creatures throughout time.

I. A Praise Prelude (33:1–3)
II. The Rationale for Praise (33:4–5)
  A. The Lord's Sovereign Power in Natural History (33:4)
  B. The Lord's Sovereign Providence over Human History (33:5)
III. The Response of Praise (33:6–19)
  A. The Creator's Sovereign Power (33:6–9)
  B. The Creator's Sovereign Providence (33:10–19)
IV. A Prayer Finale (33:20–22)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 33:1 befits. This means that praise to him is proper, suitable, and fitting. On the propriety of praise, cf. 147:1.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 33:3 a new song. I.e., a new occasion and impulse for expressing fresh praise to God (cf. 96:1; 98:1; 149:1).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 33:6, 9 God's utterances created a universe out of nothing (cf. "God said" in Gen. 1:3, 6, 9, 11, 14, 20, 24, 26).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 33:6 host. This designation refers to stellar and planetary bodies (cf. Isa. 40:26; 45:12) and/or heaven's complement of angels (cf. Ps. 103:20–22). The former emphasis is more prominent in the immediate context.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 33:7 He gathers. On this picturesque language of God's "heaping up" waters as a "pile" of dirt or sand, cf. Ex. 15:8; Josh. 3:13–16; Ps. 78:13.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 33:10–11 A sharp contrast is drawn between mankind's shaky plans and the Lord's sovereign plans.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 33:15 he who fashions the hearts. This is the potter's word (cf. Gen. 2:7); for the significance of this statement, see Isa. 29:15–16.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 33:16–19 On the teaching of these verses, cf. the maxim of Zech. 4:6.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 34:1–22 This acrostic psalm is quite similar to Ps. 25, not just in form, but also in major themes (e.g., the emphasis on redemption that brings each psalm to a close in 25:22 and 34:22). Individual and corporate applications of the Lord's deliverance are found throughout. This psalm unfolds with a praise mode followed by teaching.

I. Personal Testimony (34:1–10)
II. Personal Teaching (34:11–22)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 34:Title The historical occasion to which this heading alludes is found in 1 Sam. 21:10–15; however, there is nothing obvious in the context of Ps. 34 to make such a specific connection. Abimelech, like Pharaoh, was a dynastic designation, not a proper name.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 34:1–3 This is one of the greatest invitations in the Psalms to all the people to join together in praise.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 34:2 This is proper boasting because of the only proper object, God himself (cf. Jer. 9:23–24).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 34:7 The angel of the Lord. A special manifestation of Yahweh himself at strategic historical junctures (cf. Gen. 16:7ff.; 18; 19; 31:11ff.; Josh. 5; Judg. 6; 13). A strong case can be made that these were preincarnate appearances of the Lord Jesus Christ. See note on Ex. 3:2.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 34:11 This solicitation to wisdom compares with Prov. 1–9.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 34:12–14 This introduces some crucial character qualities of God's true people; cf. 15:1–5.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 34:14 The pathway theme of Ps. 1; here the emphasis is on leaving the evil and doing good (cf. Job 28:28; Prov. 3:7; 16:6, 17; Isa. 1:16–17; etc.).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 34:18 brokenhearted . . . crushed in spirit. These are graphic idioms that describe dependent disciples (cf. 51:17; 147:3; Isa. 57:15; 61:1; 66:2; Matt. 5:3).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 34:19–22 The side-by-side realities of human persecution and divine preservation once again vividly depict real life in the real world.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 35:1–28 Psalm 35, as to its form, is an individual lament. Its context of literal and legal warfare suggests a scenario of the theocratic king being accused, and about to be attacked, by a foreign power with whom he had previously entered into a covenant. David presents his "case" before the Divine Judge, moving from a complaint about the situation, to prayer about the situation, and finally, when the Lord would justly respond to the situation, praise for his righteous intervention. So, three cycles of exasperation and expectation in Ps. 35 convey the psalmist's prayers about his opponents to God.

I. First Cycle: The Attacks He Was Experiencing (35:1–10)
II. Second Cycle: The Perjury He Was Experiencing (35:11–18)
    A. He Prays that God Would Examine the Evidence (35:11–16)
    B. He Prays that God Would Act without Delay (35:17)
    C. He Pledges Praise (35:18)
III. Third Cycle: The Mockery He Was Anticipating (35:19–28)
    A. He Prays for Judgment Concerning Them (35:19–21)
    B. He Prays for Justice Concerning Himself (35:22–26)
    C. He Pledges Praise (35:27–28)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 35:1 Contend . . . fight. The first bold prayer solicits the legal advocacy of God (cf. Prov. 25:8–9; Isa. 3:13), while the second asks the Divine Warrior to fight his battles for him (e.g., Ex. 15:3; Deut. 32:41ff.).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 35:3 Say to my soul, "I am your salvation!" David is longing for reassurance (cf. 3:8a).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 35:4–8 Cf. the imprecations of Ps. 7; 69; 109.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 35:7 without cause . . . without cause. This adds to his defense; all their attacks, from a covenant or legal standpoint, have been unjustified.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 35:10 Lord, who is like you. This had become a canonized expression of awe at the uniqueness of Israel's great God (cf. Ex. 15:11; Mic. 7:18).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 35:11–14 A strong contrast is drawn between the psalmist's attitude about the covenant agreement and that of his treaty partner.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 35:16 On the painful maimings of mockery, cf. Job 16:9; Ps. 37:12; 112:10; Lam. 2:16.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 35:17 How long . . . ? On laments, cf. 13:1 and Hab. 1:2.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 35:19 wrongfully. Cf. "without cause" twice in v. 7.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 35:21 Aha, Aha! This taunting chorus will return in v. 25.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 35:21–22 Our eyes have seen it! You have seen, O Lord. What David's enemy allegedly saw, the Lord has seen perfectly. David knew that his God would vindicate him based upon the true evidence, all in his favor.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 35:23 for my cause. He brings back the advocacy theme of v. 1.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 35:27 Cf. 40:16. his servant. Besides being a polite third-person reference to the psalmist, the terminology was also used of an OT disciple regarding himself as bound to the Lord.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 36:1–12 At least three themes may be detected in this psalm: 1) wisdom, vv. 1–4; 2) praise, vv. 5–9; and 3) prayer, vv. 10–12. Psalm 36 resembles Ps. 14 in its description of human depravity; it also brings to mind David's personal confession found in Ps. 32. Paul used Ps. 36:1 to summarize his list of 14 indictments against the whole race in Rom. 3:10–18. As to its overall structure, David's two different moods in Ps. 36 exemplify his continuing quest for balance concerning the realities of human wickedness and divine benevolence.

- I. Mood of Deliberation (36:1–9)
  - A. His Deliberations on Human Infidelity (36:1–4)
  - B. His Deliberations on Divine Fidelity (36:5–9)
- II. Mood of Dependence (36:10–12)
  - A. Implemented through Prayer (36:10–11)
  - B. Intimated through Perspective (36:12)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 36:Title The term "servant," found in 35:27, appears in this title. It carries an association with covenant relationship emphasizing submission to and service for God. For its application to David within the texts of Psalms, cf. 78:70 and 89:3.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 36:1 no fear of God. This is the opposite of the attitude that characterizes true disciples. The word here is actually "dread" or "terror" (cf. Deut. 2:25; Ps. 119:120; Isa. 2:10, 19, 21; etc.).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 36:2 I.e., he flatters himself so much that he is unable to understand enough to hate his own iniquity.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 36:3–4 Although Paul cites only Ps. 36:1b in Rom. 3, the same categories of characteristic sinfulness also show up in that context; cf. character: Ps. 36:2 with Rom. 3:10–12; communications: Ps. 36:3a with Rom. 3:13–14; and conduct: Ps. 36:3b–4 with Rom. 3:15–17.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 36:5–6 These attributes of God are immeasurable.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 36:7 the shadow of your wings. Although some would take this as referring to wings of the cherubim over the ark, it is probably more generally a reference to the protective care of a parent bird for its young (Deut. 32:11; Ps. 17:8; 91:4; Ruth 2:12; cf. Jesus' allusion to the word picture in Matt. 23:37).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 36:9 In your light do we see light. It is likely that this phraseology bears both literal and figurative significance, i.e., God is the source of physical life and also of spiritual life. The Lord is the Source and Sustainer of all light and life.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 36:11 the foot of arrogance. This is likely military imagery referring to the practice of a victorious king-general symbolically placing his foot upon the neck of a prostrated, defeated king-general.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 36:12 Cf. 14:5a; 18:38; Prov. 24:16.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 37:1–40 Psalm 37, an irregular acrostic, is a wisdom poem addressed to man, not God. Verses 12–24 sound very much like the maxims of Proverbs. The covenant promises of the "land" for Israel are prominent in its verses (cf. Ps. 37:3, 9, 11, 22, 29, 34). Its basic theme deals with the age-old question "Why do the ungodly prosper while the godly painfully struggle through life?" An intricate arrangement puts forth David's answer. In Psalm 37, David mixes and matches six thoughts in order to advance his major message on the eventual arrival of divine justice.

I. An Introductory Overview (37:1–2)
II. An Initial Expansion (37:3–11)
III. Some Proverbial Perspectives (37:12–24)
IV. An Initial Testimony (37:25–26)
V. A Final Expansion (cf. vv. 3–11) (37:27–34)
VI. A Final Testimony (cf. vv. 25–26) (37:35–40)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 37:2 Here-today-gone-tomorrow illustrations about the wicked characterize this psalm. On this theme, cf. Job 14:1–2; Ps. 90:5–6; 103:15–16; Isa. 40:6–8; Matt. 6:30; James 1:10–11; 1 John 2:17.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 37:7–8 The message of "Relax! Don't react!" returns (cf. v. 1).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 37:10 In just a little while. Cf. similar terminology in Jer. 51:33 and Hos. 1:4. The Lord's intervention is imminent.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 37:17 the arms of the wicked shall be broken. Their members will be shattered for grabbing and getting wealth (v. 16b). Cf. Job 38:15; Ps. 10:15; Jer. 48:25; Ezek. 30:21.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 37:18 Cf. 1:6.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 37:21 The OT contains both precepts and proverbs about borrowing and lending; cf. Deut. 15:6; 28:12, 44; Ps. 112:1–6; Prov. 22:7.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 37:24 For corroborations of such divine comfort, cf. 145:14; Prov. 24:16; Mic. 7:8.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 37:31 The law of his God is in his heart. On God's internalized instruction, cf. Deut. 6:6; Ps. 40:8; 119 (throughout); Jer. 31:33; Isa. 51:7.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 37:38 cut off. On this truth of judgment, cf. vv. 9, 22, 28, 34, and 109:13. For a positive presentation in reference to the faithful, cf. Prov. 23:18; 24:14, 20.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 37:39 salvation . . . from the Lord. Since salvation belongs to him (3:8), he is the perennial Source of it (cf. 62:1–2).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 38:1–22 Prayers surround a core of intense lament (vv. 2–20). In many ways David's laments parallel those of Job. David's perspective is that his painful plight is due, at least in part, to his personal sin. Organizationally, David's opening and closing prayers in Ps. 38 relate to two onslaughts by enemies.

I. Introductory Prayer (38:1–2)
II. First Onslaught: The Enemy Within (38:3–10)
III. Second Onslaught: Enemies Without (38:11–20)
IV. Concluding Prayers (38:21–22)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 38:Title for the memorial. Lit., “To cause to remember” (cf. the title to Ps. 70). The psalmist either 1) reminds God of his plight so that he might act, or 2) reminds himself and the community of his historic predicament so that both he and they would fervently pray in similar contexts of acute suffering.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 38:1 Cf. 6:1; 39:11; Jer. 31:18.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 38:2 your arrows. The language relates to the Divine Warrior motif; on God as Archer, cf. Deut. 32:23; Job 6:4; 16:13; Ps. 7:12; Lam. 3:12–13; etc.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 38:5 my foolishness. On culpable ethical folly, cf. 69:5. David views this as the reason for the divine chastisements of 38:3ff.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 38:11 friends . . . companions . . . kin. Those near and dear to him had abandoned him to his adversity, adding insult to injury.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 38:13–14 The ultimate example of non-response to tauntings and torturings may be seen in the Suffering Servant of Isa. 53:7; cf. 1 Pet. 2:23.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 38:19–20 Although he had confessed personal sins, he remained legally innocent in comparison with his persecutors.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 39:1–13 Psalm 39 is an exceptionally heavy lament, which compares with Job 7 and much of Ecclesiastes. It also carries on the here-today-gone-tomorrow emphasis of Ps. 37 with a new twist, an application to all men, especially the psalmist. In this intense lament, David will break his initial silence with two rounds of requests and reflections about the brevity and burdens of life.

I. Introduction: David’s Silence (39:1–3)
II. Round One: The Brevity and Burdens of Life (39:4–6)
    A. His Request for Perspective (39:4)
    B. His Reflections on Perspective (39:5–6)
III. Round Two: The Brevity and Burdens of Life (39:7–13)
    A. His Reflection on Hope (39:7)

B. His Requests and Reflections on Providence (39:8–11)
C. His Requests for Relief (39:12–13)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 39:Title to Jeduthun. This is most likely a specifically designated worship director (cf. 1 Chron. 9:16; 16:37ff.; 25:1–3; Neh. 11:17).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 39:1 I will . . . I will. The form of these expressions intimates strong volitional commitments. not sin with my tongue. This sinning could have been in one or both of two ways: 1) directly, by criticizing God for not bringing retribution on the wicked, and 2) indirectly, by complaining in the hearing of the wicked.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 39:2 His silence did not ease his pain; it seemed to make it all the worse.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 39:3 Cf. Jeremiah's predicament in Jer. 20:9. then I spoke with my tongue. Contrast the silence of Ps. 39:1. Yet, he did not violate the conditions of his original commitment, since he did not vent before men, but unloaded his burdens before God (cf. vv. 4ff.)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 39:4 For similar prayers about the brevity and burdens of life, cf. Job 6:11; 7:7; 14:13; 16:21–22; Ps. 90:12; Eccles. 2:3.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 39:5 handbreadths. He measures the length of his life with the smallest popular measuring unit of ancient times (1 Kings 7:26); cf. "four fingers" (i.e., about 2.9 in.) in Jer. 52:21. and my lifetime is as nothing before you. On "measuring" God's age, cf. Ps. 90:2. breath. For the same Hebrew word, cf. Eccles. 1:2ff., " vanity " (a total of 31 occurrences of this term are in Ecclesiastes); Ps. 144:4. On the concept in the NT, cf. James 4:14.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 39:6 Surely for nothing they are in turmoil. On the futility and irony of this phenomenon, cf. Job 27:16 in context; Eccles. 2:18–23 and Luke 12:16–20.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 39:9 In this verse, the terminology of 38:13 and 39:2 reappears, accompanied by the theology of Job 42.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 39:11 like a moth. The moth normally represented one of the most destructive creatures, but here the delicacy of the moth is intended (cf. Job 13:28; Isa. 50:9; 51:8; Matt. 6:19ff.).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 39:12 sojourner . . . guest. He considers himself to be a temporary guest and squatter in the presence of God; on the terminology, cf. Lev. 25:23; Deut. 24:19ff.; 1 Chron. 29:15; Ps. 119:19; and for the concept in the NT, cf. Heb. 11:13 and 1 Pet. 2:11.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 39:13 This stark request is parallel in its intention with v. 10.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 40:1–17 Psalm 40 begins with a high flight of thanksgiving and ends with a mixture of prayer and lament (cf. the movement of Ps. 27). Furthermore, the last five verses of Ps. 40 are nearly identical to Ps. 70. Crucial associations surface throughout this psalm. The first is between the theocratic king as an individual and the community of the theocratic people. Beyond this, from the vantage point of NT revelation, an association with the Greater David is contained in seed form in 40:6–8 (cf. Heb. 10:5–7). Historical precedent and prayers for a present plight move the psalm along from beginning to end. Attitudinally, David understood the importance of what would be explicitly commanded through Paul in Rom. 12:1–2. These elements constitute only a part of the richness of Ps. 40. The following notes will help to follow David's mental movements through these 17 verses: Two situations constitute the framework for the psalmist's publicized expressions of worship in Ps. 40.

I. Precedent from a Past Situation (40:1–10)
    A. The Merciful Rescue by God (40:1–3)
    B. The Multiple Resources in God (40:4–5)
    C. The Motivational Responses to God (40:6–10)
II. Prayers for a Present Situation (40:11–17)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 40:2 the pit of destruction . . . the miry bog. The imagery describes his past hopeless and helpless situation; cf. the language of 69:2, 14; Jer. 38:6ff. God by his grace had taken him from no footing to sure footing.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 40:3 a new song. See note on Ps. 33:3.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 40:3–4 trust in the Lord . . . the Lord his trust. The verb and the noun forms of this important Hebrew root connote a faith of confident commitment, here in the right object, God alone (cf. the teaching of Jer. 17:7). David's desire was always to make such commitment contagious.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 40:5 Cf. the psalmist's pleasant "frustration" in 139:12–18.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 40:6–8 The author of Hebrews dramatically applies these verses to the Greater David (Heb. 10:5–7).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 40:6 sacrifice and offering you have not delighted. He is not negating the commandment to offer sacrifices, but is emphasizing their being offered with the right attitude of heart (contra. Saul, 1 Sam. 15:22–23; note the emphases on proper spiritual prerequisites for sacrifices in Ps. 19:14; 50:7–15; 51:15–17; 69:30–31; Isa. 1:10–15; Jer. 7:21–26; Hos. 6:6; Amos 5:21–24; Mic. 6:6–8; Matt. 23:23). you have given me an open ear. Lit., "ears" or "two ears you have dug for me." This pictures obedience and dedication.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 40:7 in the scroll of the book it is written of me. Deuteronomy 17:14–20 would apply to the lesser David; cf. likely applications regarding the Greater David in passages like Luke 24:27 and John 5:39, 46.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 40:9 glad news of deliverance. This word for "good news" in Hebrew (cf. the root in Isa. 40:9; 41:27; 52:7; 60:6; 61:1) is the precursor of the NT terminology for the "gospel" and "preaching the gospel," i.e., "announcing the good news." The word translated "deliverance" here is "righteousness" in the Hebrew (see esv footnote), and this "righteousness" is identified as God's righteousness in the next verse (Ps. 40:10).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 40:10 David's spirit here was encountered previously in 22:22–23.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 40:12 Cf. both external persecution and internal perversity in Ps. 38.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 40:13–17 See notes on Psalm 70.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 41:1–13 The words of this psalm are general and apply to anyone who might be considered "down." The most painful and specific factor addressed here is the insult that is being added to the psalmist's injury (cf. Ps. 6; 38; and portions of Job and Jeremiah). While the form and structure of Ps. 41 are quite complex, "blessed" serves as bookends in 41:1, 13. Within these, other elements include 1) confidence (vv. 1b–3; 11–12), 2) prayers (vv. 4, 10), and 3) lament (vv. 5–9), with moments of wisdom and praise. David’s message in Ps. 41 speaks of God’s tender, loving care in the critical care unit of life.

I. Recognizes Human Compassion (41:1a)
II. Revels in God’s Care for the Compassionate (41:1b–3)
III. Requests Grace, Health, and Forgiveness (41:4)
IV. Rehearses the Meanness that He Has Experienced (41:5–9)
V. Requests Grace, Health, and Retribution (41:10)
VI. Revels in God’s Care for Him Personally (41:11, 12)
VII. Recognizes Divine Compassion (41:13)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 41:1 Blessed. On this “blessed,” cf. 1:1 and 2:12.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 41:2 called blessed in the land. The verb “blessed” is from the same Hebrew root as the exclamatory description “blessed” of v. 1 (on other occurrences of the verb, cf. Prov. 3:18; 31:28; Song 6:9).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 41:3 The Lord sustains him on his sickbed. This pictures God as Physician dispensing his tender, loving care PSALMS—NOTE ON 41:4 for I have sinned against you! The ancient Near Eastern association of sin and sickness returns (cf. 31:10; 32:5; 38:3–4, 18; 40:12; etc.). On the explicit combination of “sinning against,” cf. Ps. 51:4. This perspective of the psalmist does not negate the reference to his basic “integrity” in 41:12.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 41:6 And when one comes . . . he goes out. This hypocritical “sick call” really adds insult to injury. The visitor lies to the sick one and gathers “information” for more slander.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 41:9 Even my close friend . . . lifted his heel against me. David’s close companion betrayed him; he kicked him while he was “down.” The Greater David’s experience and the employment of this reference in John 13:18 was to Judas (cf. Matt. 26:21ff.).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 41:13 Blessed be. The essence of the Hebrew root of "amen" is "it is true," i.e., reliable, confirmed, verified. Notice that Book I of the Psalms (Ps. 1–41) closes with a doxology; cf. the endings of the other four books (Ps. 72:18–19; 89:52; 106:48; 150:6).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 42:1–11 As in the case of Ps. 9 and 10, Ps. 42 and 43 were originally probably one. Some ancient manuscripts put them together; Ps. 43 has no title while the rest around it do. In form, Ps. 42 may be considered an individual lament. This psalm also exemplifies a primary characteristic of Book II of the Psalms, the preference of the ascription "God" (or parallels to it) for the Deity. The occasion and situation of Ps. 42 are historically unspecified; however, what is obvious is that the psalmist's situation was intense and greatly aggravated by his surrounding mockers. Consequently, Ps. 42 is a dirge of two stanzas.

I. Stanza One: The Psalmist Sings of His Drought (42:1–5)
    A. The Content of This Stanza (42:1–4)
    B. The Chorus of This Dirge (cf. v. 11) (42:5)
II. Stanza Two: The Psalmist Sings of His Drowning (42:6–11)
    A. The Content of This Stanza (42:6–10)
    B. The Chorus of This Dirge (cf. v. 5) (42:11)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 42:Title The references to "the choirmaster," i.e., the worship director, and Maskil, a "contemplation" or lesson (see esv footnote; cf. 32:1) are not new, but the reference to "the Sons of Korah" is. On the ancestry of "the Sons of Korah," cf. Num. 26:10ff.; 1 Chron. 6:16ff.; 2 Chron. 20:19. A total of 11 psalms are associated with this group, and seven of them are found in Book II (Ps. 42; 44; 45; 46; 47; 48; 49). These people are probably better regarded as the Levitical performers, rather than the authors of these psalms (i.e., "For the Sons of Korah").

PSALMS—NOTE ON 42:1 As a deer pants . . . pants my soul. On this simile from nature, cf. Joel 1:20. In the psalmist's estimation, he is facing a severe divine drought.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 42:2 My soul thirsts for God. On this desire for the water of God, cf. 36:8–9; Isa. 41:17; 55:1; Jer. 2:13; 14:1–9; 17:13; John 4:10; 7:37–38; Rev. 7:17; 21:6; 22:1, 17.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 42:4 These things I remember as I pour out my soul. Such language also characterizes Jeremiah’s Lamentations, indicating a heavy dirge. On “pouring out one’s soul” or “heart,” cf. 1 Sam. 1:15; Ps. 62:8; Lam. 2:19. These are attempts at trying to unburden oneself from intolerable pain, grief, and agony.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 42:5 cast down . . . turmoil. In this active introspection the psalmist rebukes himself for his despondency.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 42:6 the land of Jordan . . . of Hermon . . . Mount Mizar. The Jordan and Mount Hermon notations refer to a location in northern Palestine, an area of head waters that flow southward. These locations signal that a sharp contrast in the word pictures describing the psalmist’s change in condition is imminent. He is about to move from drought to drowning (cf. vv. 7ff.). The location and significance of Mount Mizar is not known.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 42:7 Deep . . . your waterfalls . . . your waves. He alleges that God is ultimately responsible for the oceans of trial in which he seems to be drowning.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 42:8 the Lord commands his steadfast love. This statement of confidence interrupts his laments (cf. their continuance in vv. 9–10), providing a few gracious gulps of divine “air” under the cascading inundations of his trials and tormentors.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 43:1–5 Psalm 43 might be conceived of as an epilogue to Ps. 42. The psalmist moves away from introspection toward invocation. However, as 43:5 will indicate, the psalmist’s problems had not ended, at least not fully and finally. Nevertheless, spiritual progress is evident. By interrelating the psalmist’s two modes of communication in Ps. 43 and then by comparing them with the laments of Ps. 42, one observes indications of that progress as he continued to deal with his despondency.

- I. Prayers to God (43:1–4)
    - A. Righting Wrongs (43:1–2)

        - B. Restoring "Rights" (i.e., proper or appropriate things) (43:3–4)
    - II. "Pep-talks" to Oneself (43:5)
        - A. Exhortation (43:5a–b)
        - B. Encouragement (43:5c–d)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 43:1 Vindicate me . . . defend my cause. Lit., "Judge me, O God, and argue my case." This combination of legal terms demonstrates respectively that the psalmist was requesting God to be both his Divine Judge (cf. Judg. 11:27; 1 Sam. 24:12; Ps. 7:8; 26:1) and Defense Attorney (cf. 119:154; Prov. 22:23; 23:11; Jer. 50:34; Lam. 3:58). On both concepts together, as here, cf. 1 Sam. 24:15; Ps. 35:1, 24; Mic. 7:9.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 43:2 why . . . ? Why . . . ? Since God was his refuge of strength, the psalmist questioned, why this divine rejection and why his dejection?

PSALMS—NOTE ON 43:3 your light and your truth; let them lead me. These are bold personifications for divine guidance. He desired that these "messenger-attributes" divinely direct (cf. such "leading" and "guiding" in Gen. 24:48; Ps. 78:14, 53, 72; 107:30; Isa. 57:18) so as to bring him successfully to his destination, i.e., Israel's designated place for worship.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 43:5 Why . . . why . . . Hope. Cf. 42:5, 11.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 44:1–26 Psalm 44 is a national lament following some great but historically unidentifiable defeat in battle. Throughout this psalm there are subtle shifts between speakers of the first person plural (i.e., "We" and "us"; cf. vv. 1–3, 5, 7–14, 17–22) and the first person singular (i.e., "I" or "my"; cf. vv. 4, 6, 15–16). This may indicate that the psalm was originally sung antiphonally with alterations coming from both the beaten king-general and his defeated nation. The prayers of vv. 23–26 may have been offered in unison as a climax. By employing three historical centers in Ps. 44, the psalmist tries to understand and deal with a national tragedy.

- I. Focus on Past History: The Shock of This National Tragedy (44:1–8)

II. Focus on Current History: The Inscrutability of This National Tragedy (44:9–22)
III. Focus on Future History: A Prayer for an End to This National Tragedy (44:23–26)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 44:Title The words of this title are the same as those in the title of Ps. 42; however, in the Hebrew text their order is slightly different.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 44:1 we have heard. There was a rich tradition about God's great acts, which the nation's fathers had passed on. Indeed the rehearsal of holy history was commanded (cf. Ex. 10:1–2; 12:26ff.; 13:14ff.; Deut. 6:20ff.; Josh. 4:6ff.; Ps. 78:3).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 44:2 you planted. On the imagery of God's planting his people, cf. 2 Sam. 7:10; Isa. 5:1ff.; Jer. 12:2; also cf. their being planted and taking root in Ps. 80:8–11.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 44:3 not . . . but your right hand. This is a brief historical summary of the theology of divine grace, intervention, and enablement (cf. Josh. 24:17–18).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 44:4 ordain salvation for Jacob! If the division of the Hebrew consonants is taken at a different point (as it is in some early versions) this line would better fit into the immediate context, reading: "You are my King, my God, who commands (or, orders) victories for Jacob." "Jacob," the original name of the ancient patriarch, is often used to designate the nation of Israel, especially in poetry.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 44:5–8 Through you . . . For not in my bow do I trust . . . But you have saved us. The defeated king-general picks up the theology of v. 3 and adds his personal commitment to it.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 44:9 But you . . . not gone out with our armies. The Lord God is viewed here as having resigned his commission as the nation's Divine Warrior.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 44:11–16 You have made . . . You have sold. These are graphic descriptions of God superintending the defeat and utter humiliation of the nation.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 44:17–21 though we have not forgotten you . . . If we had forgotten the name of our God. The nation’s recent defeat was painfully perplexing in view of their basic loyalty to God.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 44:22 Yet for your sake. They had no specific answers; only this inescapable conclusion that, by God’s sovereign will, they were allowed to be destroyed by their enemies. Cf. Paul’s quote of this verse in Rom. 8:36 and its general principle in Matt. 5:10–12; 1 Pet. 3:13–17; 4:12–16.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 44:23 Awake . . . Rouse yourself! Cf. 35:23. God does not actually sleep. This is only in appearance to man’s perception.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 44:26 Rise up. Cf. Num. 10:35; Ps. 3:7; 7:6. Redeem us for . . . your steadfast love! The psalm therefore comes full circle from the history of God’s gracious redemption (44:1–3) to the hope for the same in the near future (v. 26).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 45:1–17 Some portions of Ps. 45 convey a secular emphasis, while others suggest a sacred extension. Upon the occasion of a royal wedding, the psalmist offers a three-part song of celebration.

I. Poetic Preface (45:1)
II. Song of Celebration (45:2–16)
    A. The King-Groom (45:2–9)
        1. Endowments of the king-groom (45:2)
        2. Exploits of the king-groom (45:3–5)
        3. Elevation of the king-groom (45:6–7)
        4. Eminence of the king-groom (45:8–9)
    B. The Princess-Bride (45:10–15)
        1. A challenge to the princess-bride (45:10–12)

        - 2. The procession of the princess-bride (45:13–15)
    - C. Future Children from This Union (45:16)
- III. Poetic Postscript (45:17)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 45:Title Two new notations are found, “according to Lilies” and “a love song.” The first most likely had to do with the tune used in accompaniment with its words. The second notation referring to its content probably indicated that this psalm was a wedding song, and even more specifically, a royal wedding composition.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 45:1 My heart overflows . . . my tongue. The psalmist is overwhelmed with emotion upon the occasion of the king’s marriage; consequently, he puts his stirred-up mind and feelings into words. In v. 2ff. his tongue is the brush that he uses to paint vivid word pictures.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 45:2 You are the most handsome. I.e., you are “more beautiful than,” or, “most handsome among” (cf. an ancient prerequisite for kingship; in the Bible note the comments, e.g., in 1 Sam. 9:2; 10:23; 16:12; 2 Sam. 14:25; 1 Kings 1:6; Song 5:10; Isa. 33:17). grace is poured upon your lips. The implication is that God has anointed the king’s words (cf. Eccles. 10:12; Luke 4:22).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 45:3–5 Gird your sword. In these verses the psalmist wishes the king future victories in battle.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 45:6–7 Your throne, O God. Since this king-groom was likely a member of the Davidic dynasty (e.g., 2 Sam. 7), there was a near and immediate application (cf. 1 Chron. 28:5; 29:23). Through progressive revelation (i.e., Heb. 1:8–9), we learn of the ultimate application to “a greater than Solomon” who is God—the Lord Jesus Christ.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 45:9 daughters of kings . . . ladies of honor. . . the queen. This court picture could refer to royal female guests, but also includes the other wives and concubines of the king-groom (cf. the situation with Solomon in 1 Kings 11:1). Such polygamy of course was prohibited by God’s word; unfortunately, it was still common among the kings of Israel.

gold of Ophir. Although its geographical location is not known, “Ophir” was well known as the location of the purest gold.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 45:10–15 O daughter. The major emphasis of this portion is “Here comes the bride!” However, even in this section the focus still concentrates, according to ancient Near Eastern precedent, upon the royal groom.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 45:16 In place of your fathers shall be your sons. The loyal and joyful poet now speaks of the blessings of anticipated children from this union.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 46:1–11 Psalm 46 was the scriptural catalyst for Martin Luther’s great hymn, “A Mighty Fortress Is Our God.” This psalm also launches a trilogy of psalms (i.e., 46; 47; 48); they are all songs of triumph. Furthermore, it has also been grouped among the so-called “songs of Zion” (cf. Psalm 48; 76; 84; 87; 122). Psalm 46 extols the adequacy of God in facing threats from nature and the nations. God indeed protects (cf. 46:1, 7, 11) his people upon the earth (cf. vv. 2, 6, 8, 9, 10). The major burden of Ps. 46 is that God provides stability for his people who live in two exceedingly unstable environments.

I. The Unstable Environment of Nature (46:1–3)
    A. The Affirmation of His Stability (46:1)
    B. The Application of His Stability (46:2–3)
II. The Unstable Environment of the Nations (46:4–11)
    A. The First Chorus (46:4–7)
    B. The Follow-Up Chorus (46:8–11)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 46:Title The new element in this title is “Alamoth.” The early Greek translation (LXX) interprets this technical term as “hidden things.” However, the Hebrew word normally has to do with “girls” or “young maidens.” Consequently, the most likely conjecture about this phrase is that it is a technical musical notation, possibly indicating a song which was to be sung with female voices at a higher range.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 46:2 though the earth gives way. I.e., "When earth changes and when mountains move (or) shake (or) totter (or) slip . . . " (cf. the language of Isa. 24:19–20; 54:10; Hag. 2:6). These are poetic allusions to earthquakes. Since "the earth" and "mountains" are regarded by men as symbols of stability, when they "dance" great terror normally ensues. But when the most stable becomes unstable, there should be "no fear" because of the transcendent stability of God.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 46:3 though its waters roar. This is an illustration of powerfully surging and potentially destructive floods of waters. These will not erode God's protective fortifications.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 46:4 There is a river whose streams. These words about refreshing waters contrast with those about the threatening torrents of v. 3. Cf. the garden of paradise concept often mentioned in ancient Near Eastern literature, but most important, cf. the biblical revelation, noting especially the "bookends" of Gen. 2:10 and Rev. 22:1–2. the city of God. These words in their present setting refer to Jerusalem, God's chosen earthly residence (cf. Ps. 48:1–2; Isa. 60:14).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 46:5–6 she shall not be moved. These verses pick up some of the key terms about moving, slipping, tottering, sliding, and roaring from vv. 1–3; however, here, because of the presence of God, the forces of nature and the nations are no longer a threat to the people of God who dwell with him.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 46:7 The Lord of hosts is with us. The precious personal presence (cf. "God with us" in Isa. 7:14; 8:8, 10) of the Divine Warrior (cf. "Lord of hosts" or "armies," e.g., Ps. 24:10; 48:8; 59:5) secures the safety of his people.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 46:8 desolations. This word not only characterizes God's past exploits but it is also employed in various "Day of the Lord" contexts (e.g., Isa. 13:9; Hos. 5:9; Zeph. 2:15).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 46:10 Be still, and know that I am God. These twin commands to not panic and to recognize his sovereignty are probably directed to both his nation for comfort and all other nations for warning.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 47:1–9 The main concepts of Ps. 47 develop around key words and phrases, e.g., “peoples” and “nations” (vv. 1, 3, 8, 9); “earth” and “all the earth” (vv. 2, 7, 9); and “king” or “reigning (as king)” (vv. 2, 6, 7, 8). The major message of this psalm is that God is the unique Sovereign over all. Structurally, there are two choruses of worship in Ps. 47, which celebrate this universal kingship of the Lord God Most High.

I. First Chorus: God as the Victorious King-Warrior (47:1–5)
  A. Its Call to Worship (47:1)
  B. Its Causes for Worship (47:2–5)
II. Second Chorus: God as the Sovereign King-Governor (47:6–9)
  A. Its Call to Worship (47:6)
  B. Its Causes for Worship (47:7–9b)
  C. Its Code of Worship (47:9c)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 47:1 all peoples. The call to worship is universal.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 47:3 He subdued. An axiomatic truth about the past, present, and future.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 47:4 He chose. Again, “he chose” serves as a timeless truth. Cf. the election of Israel in Deut. 7:6ff. and Ps. 135:4. On the land of promise as “heritage,” cf. Deut. 32:8–9 and Ps. 105:11. See notes on Eph. 1:4 and 1 Pet. 1:2 for a discussion of the doctrine of divine election. the pride of Jacob whom he loves. The “glory” or “pride” of Jacob also refers to the land of Canaan (cf. the term illustratively in Isa. 13:19; then in Isa. 60:15; Nah. 2:2; etc.). “Whom he loves” is signal terminology for God’s special, elective, covenantal “love” (cf., e.g., Mal. 1:2ff.). This special focus on God’s covenant with Israel does not negate the bigger picture involving blessing to all nations sketched out in the original Abrahamic Covenant of Gen. 12:1–3.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 47:5 God has gone up with a shout. The imagery likely refers to God’s presence, after having gone into battle with his people, now ascending victoriously to his immanent “residence” on Mount Zion and to his transcendent residence in heaven. This procession with the ark of God was accompanied by great shouts and blasts of celebration in vv. 5–6.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 47:9 the shields of the earth. This imagery stands parallel with “the princes of the people.” Illustratively, there may be a loose analogy to God’s sovereignly appointed human governors (cf. Rom. 13:1–7) as protectors for the masses.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 48:1–14 In Ps. 48, it often appears that Zion itself is the object of praise. While referring to Zion, this hymn of confidence (cf. Ps. 46; 47) contains several checks and balances showing that it is ultimately God, who dwells in Zion, who is to be praised. Therefore, this perspective must be kept in mind as the lines of Ps. 48 flow back and forth with respective emphases on the city and the great God of that city. This psalm, sung with orchestral accompaniment, therefore contrasts two different responses to the God of Zion and the Zion of God.

I. Introduction (48:1–3)
II. The Panic-Response of the Provokers of God (48:4–7)
    A. The Chronicling of It (48:4–6)
    B. The Cause of It (48:7)
III. The Praise-Response of the People of God (48:8–14)
    A. Their Celebration (48:8–13)
    B. Their Conclusion (48:14)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 48:2 the joy of all the earth. Cf. the judgment context of Lam. 2:15. the far north. “North” is an interpretive translation of a word term that occurs as a Semitic place name, i.e., “Zaphon.” In Canaanite mythology Zaphon was an ancient Near Eastern equivalent to Mount Olympus, the dwelling place of pagan gods. If this was the psalmist’s intention in Ps. 48:2, the reference becomes a polemical description of the Lord; he is not only King of kings but also is God of all so-called gods. the city of the great King. Cf. Ps. 47:2 and Matt. 5:34–35. God himself has always been the King of kings.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 48:3 Within her citadels God. God is in Mount Zion’s citadels, or fortresses. The context points to the military connotation of this word.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 48:4–7 This dramatic, poetic rapid-fire, historical rehearsal of events chronicles some serious threat to Jerusalem from a hostile coalition of forces. They had come arrogantly to destroy Jerusalem, the Zion of God; but the God of Zion surprisingly and powerfully devastated them.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 48:7 the ships of Tarshish. A notable Mediterranean port of uncertain location (cf. Jonah 1:3), possibly Spain.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 48:8 As we have heard, so have we seen. Cf. the personal, individual testimony of Job (i.e., Job 42:5). The historical tradition of Ps. 48:1–3 had been proven true once again in the events of vv. 4–7.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 48:11 the daughters of Judah. This phrase would refer to the surrounding cities and villages.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 48:14 that this is God. Other options for translating the Hebrew text of this line are: 1) "For this God is our God," or 2) "For this is God, our God."

PSALMS—NOTE ON 49:1–20 Psalm 49 deals with the most real thing about life—the certainty of death. One of its major lessons is that "you really can't take it with you." Containing these kinds of very practical lessons about life and death, it falls neatly into the category of a didactic or wisdom poem. At places it sounds very much like portions of Job, Proverbs, and Ecclesiastes. It contains warnings to the rich and famous and words of comfort for the poor. These timeless OT messages undergird many NT passages, such as the accounts about the rich fool in Luke 12:13–21 or the rich man and Lazarus in Luke 16. After a fairly lengthy introduction the body of the psalm falls into two parts as indicated by the climaxing refrain in Ps. 49:12 and 20. The wisdom poet of Ps. 49 developed his somber theme in two stages, focusing on death as the universal experience of all men.

I. Introduction (49:1–4)
II. Stage One: The Common Experience of Death (49:5–12)

    - A. Applying His Teaching through an Important Reflection (49:5–6)
    - B. Explaining His Teaching through Important Reminders (49:7–12)
- III. Stage Two: The Contrasting Experience in Death (49:13–20)
    - A. The Assurance of This Contrasting Experience in Death (49:13–15)
    - B. The Application of This Contrasting Experience in Death (49:16–20)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 49:1 all peoples . . . all inhabitants. The scope of his message is geographically universal.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 49:2 low and high, rich and poor. Note the chiastic order (i.e., A-B-B-A) of these descriptives. The scope of his message is also socially universal.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 49:3–4 wisdom . . . understanding . . . proverb . . . riddle. All these are wisdom terms (cf. respectively, Prov. 1:20; 9:1; 14:1; 24:7; then Prov. 2:3; 3:13; 5:1; 14:29; 18:2; 19:8; next Prov. 1:6; Ezek. 17:2; and finally, Judg. 14:12ff.).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 49:5 the iniquity of those who cheat me. This indicates evil chasing him.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 49:6 those who trust in their wealth. Mankind's propensity to trust in his own material goods is well attested in Scripture (e.g., 52:7; Jer. 17:5). Biblically this is exposed as the epitome of stupidity (cf., e.g., Prov. 23:4–5; Luke 12:16ff.).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 49:7–9 no man can. No person, regardless of his means, is able to escape death; it is inevitable (Heb. 9:27). This passage anticipates the second death of hell (cf. Rev. 20:11–15), except for those who by faith have repented of their sin and embraced the only adequate ransom—the one paid by the Lord Jesus Christ with his death on the cross (cf. Matt. 20:28; 1 Pet. 1:18–19).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 49:9b–10a never see the pit. For he sees. The irony is obvious; the wealthy person somehow hopes to get around death, yet he witnesses people constantly dying all around him, from the wise to the foolish.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 49:12 Man . . . will not remain. This refrain (cf. v. 20) is the main point of the psalm. Cf. this concept in Eccles. 3:19. While man and beast both die, man’s spirit lives on eternally but beasts have no life after death.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 49:14 Like sheep they are appointed for Sheol; death shall be their shepherd. More irony; they are considered as sheep once noted for their grazing; now death shall graze on them. the upright shall rule . . . in the morning. This harbinger of good news to come (cf. v. 15) interrupts this long series of confirmations of the condemnation of the self-reliant.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 49:15 But God will ransom my soul . . . he will receive me. This is one of the greatest affirmations of confidence in God in the Psalms. Although the faithless person cannot buy his way out of death (v. 7ff.), the faithful one is redeemed by the only Redeemer, God himself. On the significance of the word “receive,” cf. Gen. 5:24; 2 Kings 2:10; Ps. 73:24; Heb. 11:5. So in Ps. 49:15 the psalmist expresses his confidence in God, that he would raise him to eternal life.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 49:17 he will carry nothing away. An explicit you-can’t-take-it-with-you attestation (cf. Job 1:21; Eccles. 5:15; 1 Tim. 6:6–7).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 49:20 Man . . . yet without understanding. The refrain is similar to that of v. 12.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 50:1–23 God himself is quoted throughout the psalm. Consequently, its form resembles the prophetic writings that specialized in delivering divine oracles. Its major burden is to delineate the nature of true worship (i.e., “worship in spirit and truth,” cf. John 4:24). The psalmist skillfully develops this burden in a polemical fashion with its exposures of externalism and hypocrisy. The Lord God, the Supreme Judge, levels two felony charges against his professing people.

- I. Introduction: The Supreme Judge Enters to Preside (50:1–6)
- II. The Supreme Judge Levels Two Charges (50:7–21)
  - A. First Charge: Ritualism (50:7–15)
  - B. Second Charge: Rebellion (50:16–21)
- III. The Supreme Judge Offers a Solution (50:22–23)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 50:Title This is the first psalm entitled “A Psalm of Asaph” (cf. Ps. 73–83 in Book III of Psalms). For references to “Asaph,” cf. 1 Chron. 6:39; 15:16ff.; 16:5ff.; 25:1ff.; 2 Chron. 5:12; 29:30; Ezra 2:40; Neh. 12:46. Sometimes the simple “Asaph” may stand for the longer expression “the sons of Asaph.” Each occasion needs to be examined to see what the relationship between a given psalm and “Asaph” might be, i.e., composed by, handed down by, sung by this special Levitical choir. Many older commentators feel that Ps. 50 was authored by the original “Asaph.”

PSALMS—NOTE ON 50:1 The Mighty One, God the Lord. The Divine Judge is introduced with three significant OT names. The first two are the short and longer forms of the most common word for “God” in the OT, and the third is the name for Israel’s God par excellence, i.e., Yahweh (cf. its historical origin in Ex. 3:14). from the rising of the sun to its setting. A common OT idiom conveying from east to west, i.e., all over the planet.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 50:2–3 God shines forth. These verses utilize the language of theophany (cf. Ex. 19:16–19).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 50:4–5 He calls to the heavens above . . . the earth . . . his people . . . my faithful ones. He summons the heavens and the earth as personified witnesses for these charges he is about to level concerning his professing people (cf., e.g., Deut. 32:1ff.; Isa. 1:2ff.).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 50:5 a covenant with me by sacrifice! Such a ratification of covenant is serious, sacred business (cf. Ex. 24:3–8). This reference to "sacrifice" will set the stage for his first felony charge in Ps. 50:7ff.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 50:8 Not for your sacrifices do I rebuke you. The Divine Judge's condemnations are directed not at the act of sacrifice but at the people's attitude in sacrificing (cf. 1 Sam. 15:22; Ps. 40:6–8; 51:17; 69:30; Isa. 1:12; Jer. 7:21–26; Hos. 6:6; Mic. 6:6–8).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 50:9–13 I will not accept a bull from your house. God refuses mere ritual; it is an abomination to him. He, unlike the pagan deities, needs nothing; he created everything and owns everything.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 50:14 Offer to God . . . thanksgiving. Here is the sacrifice that always pleases him (cf. 51:17; Heb. 13:15).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 50:16–20 the wicked. Whereas the first charge dealt with a vertical relationship (cf. the first tablet of the Ten Commandments), this one in v. 16ff. focuses on evidences of horizontal violations of covenant (i.e., rebellion against God in the context of man-to-fellow-man offenses; cf. the second half of the Ten Commandments).

Anointing of the Holy Spirit in the Old Testament

Old Testament Israel had mediators who stood between God and his people. To empower the OT mediators, the Holy Spirit gave special administrative ability to carry out the management of the nation and military skills that enabled them to defeat the theocracy's enemies. The Lord first anointed Moses with this ministry of the Spirit, and then in a truly dramatic scene, took some of this ministry of the Spirit and shared it with the 70 elders. Thus they were enabled to help Moses administer Israel (Num. 11:17–25).

Also Joshua (Deut. 34:9), the judges (Judg. 3:10; 6:34), and the kings of united Israel and the southern kingdom were anointed with this special ministry of the Spirit. When the Spirit of the Lord came upon King Saul, for example, he was in effect given "another heart" (1 Sam. 10:6–10). This does not mean that he was regenerated at this point in his life, but that he was given skills to be a king. Later the theocratic anointing was taken from Saul and given to David (1 Sam. 16:1–14). Saul, from that time on, became a totally incapable leader.

King David no doubt had this special ministry of the Spirit in mind in his prayer of repentance in Psalm 51. He was not afraid of losing his salvation when he prayed, "take not your Holy Spirit from me" (Ps. 51:11), but rather was concerned that God would remove this spiritual wisdom and administrative skill from him. David had earlier seen such a tragedy in the life of Saul when that king of Israel lost the anointing of the Holy Spirit. David was thus pleading with God not to remove his hand of guidance.

King Solomon also perceived his youthful inabilities at the beginning of his reign and requested God to give him special wisdom in administering Israel. God was greatly pleased with this request and granted an extra measure to the young man (1 Kings 3:7–12, 28; 4:29–34). Although the OT is silent in this regard about the kings who succeeded Solomon, the theocratic anointing of the Spirit likely came on all of the descendants of David in connection with the Davidic Covenant.

When the theocracy went out of existence as Judah was carried away into captivity, and the last Davidic king was disempowered, the theocratic anointing was no longer given (Ezek. 8–11). The kings of the northern tribes, on the other hand, being essentially apostate and not in the Davidic line, never had the benefit of this special ministry of the Spirit.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 50:21 I have been silent . . . I rebuke you. God’s longsuffering grace must never be looked upon as laxity (cf. 2 Pet. 3:3–10) nor abused. His reckoning for rebellion will indeed be manifested.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 50:22 Mark this. Before destruction mercifully comes an opportunity for deliberation and repentance.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 50:23 one who offers thanksgiving . . . glorifies me. Cf. v. 14. This remains the remedy for mere ritualism. The conclusions of vv. 22 and 23 came in chiastic order, heightening the total impact of the psalm’s two felony charges (i.e., the recounting of ritualism, vv. 7–15; the recounting of rebellion, vv. 16–21; the remedy of repentance for rebellion, v. 22; the remedy of repentance for ritualism, v. 23).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 51:1–19 This is the classic passage in the OT on man’s repentance and God’s forgiveness of sin. Along with Ps. 32, it was written by David after his affair with Bathsheba and his murder of Uriah, her husband (2 Sam. 11–12). It is one of seven poems called penitential psalms (Ps. 6; 32; 38; 51; 102; 130; 143). To David’s credit, he recognized fully how horrendous his sin was against God, blamed no one but himself, and begged for divine forgiveness.

I. Plea for Forgiveness (51:1–2)
II. Proffer of Confession (51:3–6)
III. Prayer for Moral Cleanness (51:7–12)
IV. Promise of Renewed Service (51:13–17)
V. Petition for National Restoration (51:18–19)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 51:1 steadfast love. Even though he had sinned horribly, David knew that forgiveness was available, based on God’s covenant love.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 51:4 Against you, you only. David realized what every believer seeking forgiveness must, that even though he had tragically wronged Bathsheba and Uriah, his ultimate crime was against God and his holy law (cf. 2 Sam. 11:27). Romans 3:4 quotes Ps. 51:4.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 51:5 brought forth in iniquity. David also acknowledged that his sin was not God’s fault in any way (vv. 4b, 6), nor was it some aberration. Rather, the source of David’s sin was a fallen, sinful disposition, his since conception.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 51:7 hyssop. Old Testament priests used hyssop, a leafy plant, to sprinkle blood or water on a person being ceremonially cleansed from defilements such as leprosy or touching a dead body (cf. Lev. 14:6ff.; Num. 19:16–19). Here hyssop is a figure for David’s longing to be spiritually cleansed from his moral defilement. In forgiveness, God washes away sin (cf. Ps. 103:12; Isa. 1:16; Mic. 7:19).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 51:8 bones. A figure of speech for the framework of the entire person. He was experiencing personal collapse under guilt (cf. 32:3–4).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 51:11 your Holy Spirit from me. This is a reference to the special Holy Spirit anointing on theocratic mediators.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 51:12 willing spirit. God is generous, willing, and eager to uphold the believer. This mention of spirit possibly refers to the Holy Spirit.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 51:16 you will not delight in sacrifice. Ritual without genuine repentance is useless. However, with a right heart attitude, sacrifices were acceptable (see v. 19).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 52:1–9 This psalm is a poetic lesson about the futility of evil, the final triumph of righteousness, and the sovereign control of God over the moral events of history. The event in David’s life that motivated him to write this psalm is recorded in 1 Sam. 21–22.

I. The Rashness of the Wicked (52:1–5)
II. The Reaction of the Righteous (52:6–7)
III. The Rejoicing of the Godly (52:8–9)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 52:1 mighty man. A reference to Doeg, the chief of Saul’s shepherds, who reported to Saul that the priests of Nob had aided David when he was a fugitive (cf. 1 Sam. 22:9, 18–19).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 52:5 God will break you down. Ultimately, the wicked are in the hands of a holy God (cf. Heb. 9:27).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 52:6 see and fear. God’s punishment of the wicked serves as a reinforcement to the righteous to obey God. shall laugh at him. In the end, the wicked become a laughingstock in a universe controlled by God.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 52:8 green olive tree. The psalmist exults (through this simile) that the one who trusts in the mercy of God is productive and secure.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 53:1–6 This psalm is nearly identical to Ps. 14 (Ps. 53:1–5a is from 14:1–5a; 53:6 is from 4:7). The major difference is 53:5, in which the psalmist celebrates a military victory over an enemy. Apparently Ps. 14 is here rephrased to apply to a specified war event, earning it a distinct place in the canon.

I. The Description of Those Who Reject God and His People (53:1–4)
II. The Danger to Those Who Reject God and His People (53:5)
III. The Deliverance of His People (53:6)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 53:Title Mahalath. The name of a tune or an instrument.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 53:1–4 See notes on Psalm 14. Romans 3:10–12 quotes Ps. 53:1–3.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 53:2 God. The reference to "God" rather than "Lord" is another difference between Ps. 14 and 53. "Elohim" is used three times in Ps. 14, but seven times in Ps. 53.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 53:5 in great terror. The verse describes a sudden reversal in the fortunes of war. The haughty enemy besieging Israel was suddenly terrified and utterly defeated. Historical examples of such unexpected terrors to Israel's enemy are recorded in 2 Chron. 20 and Isa. 37. scatters the bones. Perhaps nothing was more disgraceful to a nation at war than to have the bones of its dead army scattered over the land rather than buried.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 54:1–7 This psalm apparently comes from the same period of David's life as does Ps. 52. Even though David had recently rescued an Israelite border town from the Philistines, he was still considered a traitor to Saul (1 Sam. 23 and 26). In the wake of this emotional devastation, David prayed to God for vindication. The psalm provides encouragement to any believer who has been maligned.

I. The Prayer for Deliverance (54:1–3)
II. The Anticipation of Deliverance (54:4–5)
III. The Thanksgiving for Deliverance (54:6–7)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 54:1 by your name. In the ancient world, a person's name was essentially the person himself. Here, God's name includes his covenant protection. vindicate. David requests that God will execute justice for him, as in a court trial when a defendant is declared not guilty.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 54:2 give ear. An anthropomorphism meaning "listen," "pay attention."

PSALMS—NOTE ON 54:3 strangers. Either non-Israelites or Israelites who had broken the covenant with God might be called strangers. Since in this case Saul and the Ziphites are the oppressors, the strangers are apostate Israelites (cf. 1 Sam. 23:19; 26:1).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 54:5 in your faithfulness. Since God is omniscient, he can execute perfect justice against the wicked.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 54:7 looked in triumph. David anticipates with confidence that which he has seen in the past—the defeat of his enemies.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 55:1–23 In this individual lament, David pours out his heart to his Lord because a former close friend has betrayed him (vv. 12–14). There is a strong possibility that this psalm was occasioned by the betrayal of Absalom and/or Ahithophel (cf. 2 Sam. 15–18). Most of the psalm alternates between prayers for his enemy's ruin (Ps. 55:9, 15, 19, 23) and praises for God's blessings (vv. 16, 18, 22). The high point of the psalm for Christians who have been "stabbed in the back" by a confidant is v. 22. Though despairing, David expresses ultimate confidence in God.

I. The Prayer of Distress (55:1–8)
II. The Prayer for Justice (55:9–15)
III. The Prayer of Assurance (55:16–23)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 55:3 drop trouble. The verb pictures something being tipped over, crashing down on the victim.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 55:6 wings like a dove! David expresses his escapist feelings.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 55:9 divide their tongues. Perhaps this is an allusion to the Tower of Babel, where God destroyed the force of the movement against him by multiplying languages (cf. Gen. 11:5–9).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 55:15 go down to Sheol alive. Since God had done this once with the enemies of Moses (Num. 16:30), David asks him to perform the same judgment on his enemies.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 55:19 they do not change. David's enemies were too set in their ways and too secure to pay any attention to God.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 55:20 violated his covenant. This enemy had broken a treaty in his treachery, even against his allies.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 55:21 war was in his heart. Though the traitor talked peace, his intention was war.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 55:22 Cast your burden on the Lord. The word for “burden” implies one’s circumstances, one’s lot. The psalmist promises that the Lord will uphold the believer in the struggles of life.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 55:23 the pit of destruction. Compare the unusual death of Absalom (2 Sam. 18:9–15) and the suicide of Ahithophel (2 Sam. 17:23).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 56:1–13 This psalm, apparently written when David had been endangered by the Philistines (1 Sam. 21:10–15), expresses the kind of confidence in the Lord that believers should exude when they find themselves in terrifying circumstances. David’s natural reaction was to panic (Ps. 56:3, 4, 11). But he demonstrates in this psalm that the believer can replace potential terror with the composure of trust.

I. Fear and Faith (56:1–4)
II. Destroyer and Deliverer (56:5–9)
III. Trust and Thanksgiving (56:10–13)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 56:Title according to The Dove. Possibly a tune name which links Ps. 56 with Ps. 55 (cf. 55:6ff.). See note on Psalm 16:Title.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 56:3 I put my trust in you. Confidence in the Lord is a purposeful decision, replacing an emotional reaction to one’s circumstances.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 56:5 All day. Anguish is intensified by unceasing harassment.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 56:7 In wrath. The anger of God is not an emotional loss of temper, but a judicial outrage resulting from God’s holy nature reacting to wickedness and ungodliness.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 56:8 my tears . . . your bottle. David asked God to keep a remembrance of all of his sufferings, so that God would eventually vindicate him.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 56:11 What can man do to me? No human has the power to overcome God’s providential control.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 56:12 vows. Confident that the Lord would deliver him, David had already vowed to present a thank offering to God (cf. Lev. 7:12; Ps. 50:14).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 57:1–11 This is another lament expressing supreme confidence in the Lord in the midst of calamitous circumstances. Though David finds himself hiding from Saul (see Title), he knows that his real refuge is not in the walls of the cave (cf. 1 Sam. 22:1; 24:3), but in the shadow of God's wings.

I. The Plea for Protection (57:1–6)
II. The Proffering of Praise (57:7–11)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 57:Title Do Not Destroy. Possibly the opening words of a known song, implying that this psalm should be sung to the same tune. See note on Psalm 16:Title.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 57:1 the shadow of your wings. Metaphorically, God cares for his own as a mother bird protects its young. Symbolically, there may be a reference here to the cherubim wings on the ark of the covenant where God was specifically present (cf. Ex. 37:1–16; Ps. 17:8; 36:7; 61:4; 63:7; 91:1, 4). I will take refuge. When life becomes bizarre, only one's relationship with his God calms the soul.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 57:2 God Most High. God is transcendent, elevated far above his creation and all powerful. fulfills his purpose for me. God's transcendence (v. 2a) never removes him from intimate involvement in his peoples' lives.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 57:4 lions. The wicked are pictured as menacing animals, ready to destroy their prey with their razor-edged teeth (cf. 7:2; 10:9; 17:12; 22:13). fiery. The wicked are like a consuming fire.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 57:5 Be exalted, O God. A truly godly person wants God's glory to be exhibited more than he wants his own personal problems to be solved.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 57:6 a net . . . a pit. Set a trap, as a hunter might entangle an animal's feet with a net.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 57:7–11 These verses were borrowed by David for 108:1–5.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 57:8 my glory! The mind, that rational, intellectual, emotional part of a person that interacts with and praises God. See note on 16:9. I will awake the dawn. He cannot wait until morning to praise the Lord for all of his blessings. He must wake up the personified dawn so that he can praise the Lord.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 57:9 the peoples . . . nations. References to Gentiles, nations that would not normally know Jehovah God.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 57:10 to the heavens. David is thinking as broadly (v. 9) and as highly (vv. 10–11) as he can. God's mercy, truth, and glory are immense and unfathomable (cf. Rom. 11:33; Eph. 3:17–18).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 58:1–11 As a lament against tyranny, the first half of the psalm rehearses a series of charges against wicked leaders and judges; and the second half is an imprecatory prayer that they be obliterated. In the end, the psalmist is certain that God will act with ultimate justice.

I. The Indictment of Unjust Leaders (58:1–5)
II. The Imprecation Against Unjust Leaders (58:6–11)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 58:Title Do Not Destroy. See note on Psalm 57:Title. See note on Psalm 16:Title.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 58:1 gods. The leaders were silent when they should have spoken up for righteousness.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 58:2 devise. These wicked rulers meditate on the strategy for wicked schemes.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 58:3 go astray from birth. All people are born totally depraved. Without being made new creatures in Christ by God's power, they are prevented by their wicked nature from pleasing God (cf. 51:5; Rom. 3:9–18; 2 Cor. 5:17).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 58:4 They have venom. The words and actions of these tyrants are like poisonous venom in a serpent's fangs. deaf adder. Like a cobra that cannot hear its charmer are these stubborn rulers, who ignore all encouragements to righteousness.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 58:6 break the teeth . . . fangs. The psalmist prays that the means of doing evil would be destroyed.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 58:7 vanish like water. An imprecatory prayer that the tyrants would disappear like water seeping into sand in a dry wadi. arrows . . . blunted. Apparently a prayer that the intentions of evil would be rendered as ineffective as broken arrows.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 58:8 snail that dissolves. A simile for that which is transitive, perhaps based facetiously on the idea that a snail depletes itself in its own trail as it moves along.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 58:9 Sooner than your pots . . . thorns. An obscure metaphor implying swiftness. The Lord will quickly destroy the wicked rulers.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 58:10 bathe his feet in the blood. The point of the figure is that the wicked will eventually be defeated and the righteous will share with the Lord in his victory.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 58:11 God who judges on earth. In the end, the righteous will see that Jehovah is not indifferent to injustices.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 59:1–17 This is another in a series of laments in which the psalmist pleads for God to defend him against his oppressors. The psalm is a mixture of prayers, unfavorable descriptions of the adversary, imprecations, and praise to God. Though written when David was king of Israel, the psalm recalls an earlier time of anguish when Saul sought to kill David (1 Sam. 19:11). Ultimately David's strong confidence in God's sovereignty transforms the lament into a song of assurance.

I. A Plea for God’s Deliverance (59:1–15)
II. Praise for God’s Defense (59:16–17)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 59:Title Do Not Destroy. See note on Psalm 57:Title. Miktam. See note on Psalm 16:Title. Saul sent men . . . to kill him. The setting for the psalm is 1 Sam. 19:11. David’s wife (Saul’s daughter) helped David escape through a window in the middle of the night.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 59:5 God of hosts. “Hosts” represent God’s angels as his army.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 59:6 howling like dogs. Dogs of the ancient world were often wild scavengers. Here, they serve as a simile for the messengers of Saul outside David’s house setting an ambush.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 59:7 bellowing with their mouths. Pictures the coarse, uncouth character of Saul’s henchmen (cf. v. 12). swords in their lips. Their conversation was dedicated to the assassination of David. “Who . . will hear . . . ?” A blasphemy implying that God either doesn’t exist or doesn’t know what happens in the affairs of mankind.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 59:8 all the nations. Gentiles (see note on Ps. 57:9). This phrase and “my people” in v. 11 imply that this psalm was written several years after the event when David was king and involved in international affairs. David wrote his psalms as a prophet under the superintendence of the Holy Spirit (2 Sam. 23:2).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 59:11 my people forget. The psalmist thinks that if the Lord were to destroy the wicked too quickly, the lesson of God’s hatred of evil might not be impressed on the minds of the people.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 60:1–12 This psalm is a national lament written after the unexpected military setback alluded to in 2 Sam. 8:13 and 1 Chron. 18:12. While David and the main part of his army were fighting in the northern part of the country, one of Israel's other neighboring enemies, Edom, successfully attacked the southern part of Judah. David ultimately prevailed in victory. The psalm expresses the feelings of a people shocked and confused by a tragedy that suggested that God had abandoned them. Psalm 60:5–12 is essentially repeated in 108:6–13.

I. The People's Contemplation of Abandonment (60:1–5)
II. The Lord's Control over the Nations (60:6–8)
III. The People's Confidence in God (60:9–12)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 60:Title Joab . . . struck down twelve thousand. The Lord soon rewarded their confidence in him, enabling the armies of Israel to slaughter the Edomites.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 60:2 land to quake. Earthquake imagery is used to illustrate that what appears secure sometimes is not.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 60:3 wine . . . that made us stagger. This metaphor compares the impact of wine on the mind with the confusion that comes from a bewildering event in life.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 60:4 banner. God and his truth serve as a rallying point for the perplexed people.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 60:5 beloved. Beloved refers to God's beloved people ruled over by David.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 60:6 Shechem . . . Succoth. These are two territories on opposite sides of the Jordan, occupied by Israel. Jacob had settled in Succoth (east of the Jordan) when he returned from his sojourn with Laban (cf. Gen. 33:17).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 60:7 Gilead . . . Ephraim. All of these key geographical locations in Israel ultimately belonged to God, who was more interested in their welfare than anyone else. helmet. Ephraim was the primary source of defense to the north of Israel. scepter. Judah was the tribe that was to govern Israel, and from which David and his descendants came.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 60:8 Moab . . . Edom . . . Philistia. The three principal enemies surrounding Israel to the northeast, southeast, and west, respectively. Moab is my washbasin. The psalmist pictures Moab as a humble, menial servant to God, either being or bringing a washbasin for his use. upon Edom . . . shoe. The picture is that of a man entering his house and throwing his shoes to his servant. Edom, like Moab, was a servant under God's sovereign control. Philistia I shout. Here is a victorious battle shout from the pagans, who must realize God's power is behind Israel's victory.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 60:12 With God . . . valiantly. The nation relearned the truth that only God gives victory.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 61:1–8 David may have written this wonderful psalm when his own son, Absalom, temporarily drove him away from his throne in Israel (2 Sam. 15–18). The psalm is rich in metaphors and references to God's covenants with Israel. David once again demonstrates a godly response to overwhelming and depressing developments in life.

I. The Cry for Help (61:1–2)
II. The Confidence in God (61:3–7)
III. The Commitment to Loyalty (61:8)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 61:2 from the end of the earth. David's absence from his homeland compounds his feelings of discouragement and exhaustion. The phrase also hints at feelings of estrangement from God. my heart is faint. David's hope and courage were failing. the rock that is higher. David expresses his disregard of personal autonomy and his reliance on his God in this metaphor for refuge.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 61:3 strong tower. One of four figures of speech in vv. 3–4 for security; the strong towers stabilized the city walls and served as places of defense and refuge.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 61:5 heritage. Refers to the benefits, including life in the Promised Land (cf. Deut. 28–30), of participating in a covenant with God.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 61:6 Prolong the life of the king. In the immediate context, David prays for himself in his struggle with Absalom. Beyond this, here is a prayer for the continuity of the divinely established monarchy. Because he realized that one of his descendants would be the Messiah, David sometimes does not distinguish himself from the messianic dynasty.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 61:7 forever. The Davidic Covenant guaranteed that on the basis of God's merciful and faithful dealings with David and the nation, David's descendants would rule on the throne of Israel forever (cf. 2 Sam. 7; Ps. 40:11; 89:4, 33–37).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 61:8 perform my vows day after day. As a regular means of expressing thanksgiving for prayers answered, the psalmist promised daily obedience to his Lord (cf. 56:12).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 62:1–12 Whether Absalom's rebellion is the setting or not (2 Sam. 15–18), David writes this psalm while facing treason from someone. David faces the problem of his adversaries forthrightly (Ps. 62:3–4), but his thoughts focus primarily on God (cf. Phil. 4:4–13).

I. Affirming God's Covenant Relationship (62:1, 2, 5, 6)
II. Confronting One's Treasonous Adversaries (62:3–4)
III. Trusting God's Sovereignty (62:7–10)
IV. Praising God's Power and Mercy (62:11–12)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 62:Title according to Jeduthun. An official temple musician. See note on Psalm 39:Title.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 62:1 For God . . . waits in silence. Silence indicates trust that is both patient and uncomplaining (cf. v. 5).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 62:2 greatly shaken. Means "demoralized."

PSALMS—NOTE ON 62:3 leaning wall . . . tottering fence. A metaphor for imminent collapse. Some apply it to the victim, but as translated here it refers to the attacker.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 62:6 I shall not be shaken. David demonstrates his increased confidence in the Lord.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 62:9 low estate . . . high estate. All men, regardless of social status, are woefully inadequate objects of trust.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 63:1–11 In deepest words of devotion, this psalm expresses David's intense love for his Lord. The psalm was written while David was in the Judean wilderness, either during his flight from Saul (1 Sam. 23), or more likely from Absalom (2 Sam. 15; cf. Ps. 63:11 "the king"). David writes from the perspective of these tenses:

I. Present—Seeking God's Presence (63:1–5)
II. Past—Remembering God's Power (63:6–8)
III. Future—Anticipating God's Judgment (63:9–11)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 63:1 earnestly I seek you. Eagerness to be with the Lord in every situation is more in view than the time of day. my soul thirsts. David longs for God's presence as a wanderer in a desert longs for water. in a dry and weary land. David writes this psalm while hiding in the wilderness of Judea, but longing to be back worshiping in Jerusalem.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 63:3 better than life. God's covenant love is more valuable to David than life itself (cf. Phil. 1:21; Acts 20:24).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 63:4 lift up my hands. As an OT posture of prayer, the upheld hands pictured both the ascent of prayer and the readiness to receive every good gift that comes from God (cf. James 1:17). It was thus a posture of trust in God alone.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 63:5 fat and rich food. A metaphor comparing the spiritual and emotional satisfaction of the divine presence with the satisfaction of rich banquet food.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 63:8 My soul clings to you. In response to God's repeated invitation to "hold fast" to him (Deut. 4:4; 10:20; 13:4), the psalmist clings to God. This signifies David’s unfailing commitment to his Lord.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 63:9 into the depths of the earth. A reference to the realm of the dead. See note on Eph. 4:9.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 63:10 jackals. Scavengers, feasting on unburied bodies (see note on Ps. 53:5).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 63:11 who swear by him. The Mosaic Covenant instructed this practice expressing loyalty to the true God alone (cf. Deut. 6:13; 10:20; 1 Kings 8:31; Jer. 12:16).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 64:1–10 This psalm begins with a vivid description of the devious ways of the wicked, especially their speech (vv. 3–5, 8). Still, the psalmist does not fear that God will lose control of the situation. After seeing his justice at work, the righteous will be glad and trust all the more in him (v. 10).

I. The Malevolent Ingenuity of the Wicked (64:1–6)
II. The Memorable Reciprocation by the Lord (64:7–10)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 64:1 preserve . . . from dread. The psalmist recognized that the fear of an enemy can be as destructive as an actual assault.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 64:3 whet their tongues. Their intent was to slander with their speech (cf. 59:7).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 64:4 from ambush. Anonymously.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 64:5 Who can see them? This was a question of brazen autonomy. They mock the omniscience of God (cf. 59:7).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 64:6 inward mind . . . heart . . . deep. The evil intent of the unrighteous flows from inward depravity.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 64:7 God shoots . . . arrow. The arrows of God, as OT history demonstrates, include natural judgments such as deadly disease, defeat, and calamity.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 64:8 brought to ruin . . . own tongues. God providentially steers the plots of the wicked to their own demise.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 64:9 tell. Believers should glorify God, not only for his love and mercy, but also for his marvelous acts of judgment on the wicked.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 65:1–13 This is a praise psalm, full of hopeful, confident, even enthusiastic feelings in response to God's goodness with no complaints or curses. The setting is a celebration at the tabernacle, perhaps at Passover and the Feast of Unleavened Bread in the spring, or the Feast of Booths, or Tabernacles, in the fall.

I. Praise for Spiritual Blessings (65:1–5)
II. Praise for Natural Blessings (65:6–13)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 65:1 Zion. Specifically the hill in Jerusalem where Israel worshiped Jehovah, but also synonymous with the Promised Land (cf. 48:2; also 3:4; 9:12; 24:3; 68:5; 87). vows . . . performed. This is likely a reference to vows made by the farmers because of an abundant harvest (cf. 56:12; 61:8).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 65:2 all flesh come. Reference to the future millennial kingdom when all the world will worship the Lord (cf. Zech. 14:16–19).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 65:3 atone. The word, found three times in the Psalms (78:38; 79:9), means to cover sin and its effects. In the OT, atonement was symbolized in sacrificial ritual (cf. Ex. 30:10; Lev. 16:10–11), though actual forgiveness of sin was ultimately based on the death of Christ applied to the penitent sinner (cf. Heb. 9).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 65:5 hope . . . earth . . . seas. Unlike local heathen gods, Jehovah God is not just the God of a single locality. The universal worship of the Lord is required of all men (cf. Rom. 1:18–32) and will be a reality in the messianic era when the kingdom of God will cover the earth (cf. Isa. 2:1–4; Zech. 14:9).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 65:8 morning . . . evening. The nations who live in the east where the sun first makes its morning appearance, and those who live in the west where the sun disappears into darkness rejoice in the Lord.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 65:11 wagon tracks overflow with abundance. Like a farm wagon dropping its overflow along the cart path.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 66:1–20 This joyful psalm begins with group praise and then focuses on the individual worship. The psalmist rehearses some of the major miracles in Israel's history and testifies that God has always been faithful in the midst of serious troubles.

I. Communal Hymn of Praise to God (66:1–12)
    A. For Future Glory (66:1–4)
    B. For Previous Faithfulness (66:5–7)
    C. For Continual Protection (66:8–12)
II. An Individual Hymn of Praise to God (66:13–20)
    A. Through Fulfilled Vows (66:13–15)
    B. For Answered Prayer (66:16–20)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 66:1 Shout for joy. A shout of loyalty and homage, as in 1 Sam. 10:24.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 66:4 All the earth worships you. This praise is not only an acknowledgment of God's universal Lordship, but also an intimation of the people's belief in a future worldwide kingdom where God will be worshiped (cf. Isa. 66:23; Zech. 14:16; Phil. 2:10–11).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 66:6 sea . . . river. A reference to the crossing of the Red Sea and possibly the Jordan River. The OT writers considered the Red Sea crossing the ultimate demonstration of God's power, as well as his care for Israel.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 66:9 feet slip. God had prevented them from prematurely slipping into the realm of the dead.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 66:10 tried us as silver. God had brought the nation through purifying trials.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 66:11 brought us into the net. The psalmist speaks of a hunter's net or snare as a metaphor for some extremely difficult situations into which God had brought Israel.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 66:12 ride over our heads. A picture of a hostile army riding in victory over Israel's defeated troops.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 66:13 perform my vows to you. Paying the vows is spelled out in the following verses as offering sacrifices of dedication that had been previously promised God (cf. Lev. 1; 22:18, 21; Ps. 56:12; 61:8; 65:1).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 67:1–7 This brief psalm develops two optimistic themes: the need and result of God's mercy, and the future universal worship of God. The psalm reflects the promise to Abraham that God would bless his descendants, and in Abraham, "all the families of the earth" (Gen. 12:1–3).

I. The Prayer for Divine Mercy (67:1–2)
II. The Plea for Universal Worship (67:3–5)
III. The Prospect of Divine Blessings (67:6–7)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 67:1 face to shine. When a king smiled on a supplicant with pleasure, the petitioner was likely to receive his request (cf. Num. 6:24–26; Ps. 31:16; 44:3; 80:3, 7, 19; 119:135; Prov. 16:15).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 67:3 peoples. A reference to the inclusion of the Gentile nations in the millennial kingdom (cf. Isa. 56:3–8; 60:1–14; Zech. 14:16–19; Matt. 8:11; 25:31–46; Rev. 20:1–10).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 68:1–35 This exuberant psalm includes prayer, praise, thanksgiving, historical reminder, and imprecation. It expresses a pride in Jehovah God for his care over his people and his majesty in the universe. The writing of this psalm may have come out of David's jubilant restoration of the ark of the covenant to Jerusalem (cf. 2 Sam. 6:12–15).

I. A Fanfare of Commendation (68:1–6)
II. A Reflection on Faithfulness (68:7–18)
III. An Acclamation of Majesty (68:19–31)

IV. An Invitation to Praise (68:32–35)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 68:1 God shall arise. The first sentence in this psalm is essentially the same as Num. 10:35. It was perhaps a fanfare of words announcing the movement of the ark of the covenant (cf. Ps. 68:24–27; also 2 Sam. 6:12–15).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 68:4 name is the Lord. Other names for God in this psalm include God (Elohim, v. 1), Lord (Adonai, v. 11), Almighty (v. 14), Lord God (v. 18), God the Lord (v. 20), and King (v. 24).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 68:6 solitary in a home. God cares for those who have lost families, especially the orphans and widows (v. 5; cf. Ex. 22:22–24; Ps. 10:14; James 1:27). leads out the prisoners. Speaks of God’s liberating prisoners of war.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 68:9 restored your inheritance. God sustains his covenant people.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 68:14 snow fall on Zalmon. “Zalmon” means “black” or “dark mountain.” The “snow” pictures the contrast of corpses or bones scattered over the mountain.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 68:15 mountain of Bashan. A mountain across the Jordan to the east, here figuratively described as jealous of Mount Zion (cf. v. 16), the place which had been chosen for the special presence of God (cf. Jer. 22:20–21).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 68:17 Sinai . . . in the sanctuary. God’s presence had been with the armies in the same way it had been on Mount Sinai at the giving of the law (cf. Ex. 19).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 68:18 ascended on high. Paul quotes this text in Eph. 4:8 where he applies it to Christ’s ascending to the heavens in triumph.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 68:22 Bashan . . . sea. Whether the enemy tries to escape by land (Bashan) or by sea, God will bring them back to be destroyed by his people (cf. Amos 9:2–4).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 68:24 procession . . . sanctuary. A description of the celebration when the ark of the covenant, a symbol of God's presence, was brought to Mount Zion (cf. 1 Chron. 15:16–28).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 68:27 Benjamin . . . Naphtali. Representative tribes of Israel, two from the south (Benjamin and Judah) and two from the north (Zebulun and Naphtali).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 68:29 kings . . . gifts. This section of praise (vv. 28–35) looks forward to the Messiah's reign when the world will universally worship God in the temple in Jerusalem (cf. Isa. 2:2–4; 18:7; 45:14; 60:3–7; Ezek. 40–48; Hag. 2:7; Zech. 2:11–13; 6:15; 8:21–22; 14:16–19).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 68:30 tribute. Tribute money, signifying subservience to God.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 69:1–36 This psalm is a prayer of desperation. David realizes that because he is hated by others, he may shortly be killed. Though he begs for rescue, and calls down curses on his enemies, he concludes the psalm with a high note of praise, with inferences concerning the coming messianic kingdom when all enemies of God's people are dealt with swiftly and severely (cf. Rev. 2:27). Much of this psalm was applied to Christ by the NT writers. This psalm expresses the feelings of any believer who is being horribly ridiculed, but it uniquely refers to Christ.

I. The Prayer of Desperation (69:1–28)
  A. The Description of His Situation (69:1–3)
  B. The Reason for His Situation (69:4–12)
  C. The Hope for His Situation (69:13–18)
  D. The Reproach of His Situation (69:19–21)
  E. The Revenge for His Situation (69:22–28)
II. The Promise of Salvation (69:29–36)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 69:Title according to Lilies. The name of a tune. See note on Psalm 45:Title.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 69:4 hate me. Quoted in John 15:25.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 69:6 put to shame. The psalmist fears that his dismal situation may be a stumbling block to other believers.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 69:8 alien . . . sons. Even his family rejected him (cf. Matt. 12:46–50; John 7:3–5).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 69:9 has consumed me. The psalmist has brought hatred and hostility on himself by his unyielding insistence that the behavior of the people measure up to their outward claim of devotion to God. Whenever God was dishonored he felt the pain, because he loved God so greatly. Jesus claimed for himself this attitude, as indicated in John 2:17 and Rom. 15:3.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 69:11 sackcloth. David's wearing of sackcloth, a symbol of grief, brought even more ridicule.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 69:12 sit in the gate. The highest in society, those who sat in the gate of a city, were usually governmental officials. Even there city leaders were gossiping about the psalmist. drunkards make songs. The dregs of society, the drunkards, ridiculed David in their raucous songs.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 69:15 pit close its mouth. The "pit" was another word for Sheol, the realm of the dead. The psalmist felt that death was imminent.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 69:21 poison . . . sour wine. The "poison" was probably gall, a poisonous herb. Here it serves as a metaphor for betrayal. Friends who should provide sustenance to the psalmist had turned against him. Gall in wine was actually offered to Christ while he was on the cross (Matt. 27:34).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 69:22 table . . . become a snare. A snare was a trap for birds. The psalmist prays that the plots of the wicked against him would backfire and destroy them instead.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 69:22–23 Quoted in Rom. 11:9–10.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 69:25 Quoted in Acts 1:20 with reference to Judas.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 69:26 him whom you have struck down. Those hostile to the psalmist were ridiculing him as one suffering from God’s chastisement. In its messianic application, the suffering of the Messiah was a part of God’s plan from eternity past (cf. Isa. 53:10).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 69:31 more than an ox . . . bull. See 51:16; also Heb. 9:11–12; 10:9–12. horns and hoofs. Implies a grown animal, one that would be especially valuable.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 70:1–5 This prayer for deliverance from one's enemies is nearly identical to 40:13–17. It substitutes "God" for "Lord" in 70:1, 4, 5.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 71:1–24 One of the features of the psalms is that they meet the circumstances of life. This psalm to God expresses the concerns of old age. At a time in his life when he thinks he should be exempt from certain kinds of troubles, he once again is personally attacked. Though his enemies conclude that God has abandoned him, the psalmist is confident that God will remain faithful.

I. Confidence in God Stated (71:1–8)
II. Confidence in God Practiced in Prayer (71:9–13)
III. Confidence in God Vindicated (71:14–24)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 71:3 continually. Psalm 71:1–3 is almost the same as 31:1–3a. One difference, however, is the word "continually," which the elderly person writing this psalm wants to emphasize. God has "continually" been faithful (cf. 71:6, 14).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 71:7 a portent. A reference to his trials. People are amazed at this person's life, some interpreting his trials as God's care, and others as God's punishment.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 71:15 their number. The blessings of God's salvation and righteousness are innumerable.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 71:20 from the depths of the earth. Not actual resurrection, but rescue from near-death conditions and renewal of life's strength and meaning.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 72:1–20 This is a Coronation Psalm, dedicated to the prosperity of Solomon at the beginning of his reign (1 Kings 2). No NT writer applies any of the psalm to Christ. Still, since the Davidic kings and the Messiah's rule occasionally merge into each other in the OT literature, the messianic inferences here ought not to be missed (Ps. 72:7, 17; cf. Isa. 11:1–5; 60–62). This psalm describes a reign when God, the king, nature, all classes of society, and foreign nations all live together in harmony.

I. A Just Reign (72:1–4)
II. A Universal Reign (72:5–11)
III. A Compassionate Reign (72:12–14)
IV. A Prosperous Reign (72:15–17)
V. A Glorious Reign (72:18–20)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 72:1 your justice. A prayer that the king would faithfully mediate God's justice on the nation (cf. Deut. 17:18–20). the royal son. A reference primarily to Solomon, emphasizing his bond with the Davidic dynasty; but it also anticipates Messiah's reign as the culmination of the Davidic Covenant (cf. 2 Sam. 7:12–13; Ps. 2:1–12).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 72:3 mountains . . . prosperity. When the king rules with justice and compassion, the earth itself radiates well-being.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 72:7 till the moon be no more. Primarily referring to the length of the Davidic dynasty, and possibly also specifically to the messianic reign (2 Sam. 7:16; Ps. 89:3–4, 29, 36–37; Luke 1:30–33). Jeremiah also makes the same kind of observation (cf. Jer. 33:23–26).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 72:8 the River. Israel's boundaries were to extend to the River Euphrates (cf. Ex. 23:31; 1 Kings 4:21; Ps. 89:25).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 72:10 Tarshish . . . Seba. Countries near and far that brought tribute to Solomon (cf. 1 Kings 4:21; 10:1, 23–24; Isa. 60:4–7; Jer. 6:20). Tarshish is probably in Spain; Sheba, a kingdom in southern Arabia (modern Yemen); and Seba, a north African nation.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 72:20 are ended. Asaph's psalms immediately follow after this (Ps. 73–83), though David did author some of the psalms included later in the collection (e.g., Ps. 86; 101; 103). This closes Book II (Ps. 42–72) of the Psalms.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 73:1–28 This psalm illustrates the results of allowing one's faith in God to be buried under self-pity. The psalmist became depressed when he contrasted the seeming prosperity of the wicked with the difficulties of living a righteous life. Beginning in v. 15, however, his attitude changes completely. He looks at life from the perspective of being under the control of a sovereign, holy God, and concludes that it is the wicked, not the righteous, who have blundered.

- I. Perplexity Over the Prosperity of the Wicked (73:1–14)
    - A. Their Prosperity (73:1–5)
    - B. Their Pride (73:6–9)
    - C. Their Presumption (73:10–14)
- II. Proclamation of the Justice of God (73:15–28)
    - A. His Perspective (73:15–17)
    - B. His Judgments (73:18–20)
    - C. His Guidance (73:21–28)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 73:Title Asaph. Asaph was a Levite who led one of the temple choirs (1 Chron. 15:19; 25:1–2). His name is identified with Ps. 73–83, and also Ps. 50 (see note on 50:Title). He either wrote these psalms, or his choir sang them, or later choirs in the tradition of Asaph sang them.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 73:4 no pangs until death. The wicked seem to go through life in good health, without pain until they die. The Hebrew text could also be translated in the sense of dying a painless death.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 73:9 tongue struts through the earth. The insolent speech of the wicked can be heard anywhere one goes.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 73:10 find no fault in them. The Hebrew reads, “the waters of a full cup are drained by them” (see esv footnote). In this case, those who associate with the wicked person “drink in” everything he declares (cf. Ps. 1).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 73:11 Is there knowledge in the Most High? The wicked insist on living as if God is not omniscient and does not know what happens on earth.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 73:17 sanctuary of God. As the psalmist worshiped God at the worship center, he began to understand God’s perspective on the fate of the wicked. This is the turning point of the psalm.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 73:20 despise them as phantoms. The wicked are like a bad dream that one forgets as soon as he awakens. Their well-being is fleeting.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 73:22 like a beast toward you. The psalmist confesses his sin of evaluating life secularly and faithlessly.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 73:27 perish; you put an end. The psalmist concludes that those who abandon God and attempt to live an autonomous life based on self-chosen idols will eventually endure eternal death.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 74:1–23 This community lament expresses the agony of the people in the midst of the most excruciating of circumstances. It was bad enough that Israel's enemies had destroyed the temple (cf. 2 Kings 25). But even worse, it seemed to the psalmist that God had abandoned them. In this prayer he reminds God of his bond with Israel, his past supernatural deeds in the protection of Israel, and begs God to save his covenant nation now (cf. Ps. 137 and Lamentations).

I. The Terror of Abandonment (74:1–11)
II. The Remembrance of Omnipotence (74:12–17)
III. The Plea for Help (74:18–23)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 74:Title Asaph. If this psalm reflects the destruction of the temple by Nebuchadnezzar in 586 B.C., Asaph would have been dead by then. Thus this title may mean that this psalm was written by or sung by a later Asaph choir (see notes on Psalm 50; 73:Title).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 74:2 tribe of your heritage. The psalmist laments that even though God possessed Israel, he had not protected it.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 74:3 Direct your steps. An anthropomorphism meaning to hurry to come to examine the rubble.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 74:4 they set up their own signs for signs. The ravagers had set up their military and pagan religious banners in God's temple.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 74:5 swing axes. Like lumberjacks surrounded by trees, the enemy had furiously destroyed everything in sight in the temple of God.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 74:8 the meeting places. God allowed only one sanctuary, and during Josiah's revival, the high places had been destroyed (cf. 2 Kings 22–23). This may be a reference to the several rooms of the temple, or to nonsacrificial religious sites throughout the land.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 74:9 our signs. While hostile and pagan signs were everywhere, signs of true Jehovah worship, such as the altars for sacrifice, were missing.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 74:13 divided the sea. Most likely a reference to God's creation activity, rather than to the parting of the Red Sea (cf. Gen. 1:6–8; Ex. 14:26–31). sea monsters. This identifies whales, sharks, and other large sea creatures, including dinosaurs.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 74:14 Leviathan. See note on Job 41:1.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 74:15 split open springs and brooks. This may be a reference to the universal flood (cf. Gen. 7:11), or it may describe creation (Gen. 1:6–8).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 74:17 fixed all the boundaries. As Creator, God made day and night and the seasons (v. 16); he divided the land from the sea; and he even established national boundaries.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 74:20 the covenant. The people had apostatized (cf. Ex. 16:3–8). God, however, was still in an eternal covenant (the Abrahamic Covenant) with the nation (cf. Gen. 17:1–8).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 75:1–10 In this psalm, the believing community asserts that, in spite of physical, moral, and societal turmoil, God never loses control of the universe. He gives stability to earthly life, and he will judge the wicked at the appropriate time. Structurally, the psalm revolves around three metaphors: pillars of the earth (v. 3); horns (vv. 5–6, 10); and God's cup of wrath (v. 8).

I. Divine Stability of the Universe (75:1–3)
II. Divine Justice over the World (75:4–10)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 75:Title Do Not Destroy. See note on Ps. 57:Title.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 75:1 your name is near. God's name represents his presence. The history of God's supernatural interventions on behalf of his people demonstrated that God was personally immanent. But OT saints did not have the fullness from permanent, personal indwelling of the Holy Spirit (cf. John 14:1, 16–17; 1 Cor. 3:16; 6:19).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 75:3 I . . . keep steady its pillars. In uncertain times, God stabilizes societies through his common grace.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 75:4 Do not lift up your horn. The horn symbolized an animal's or human's strength and majesty (cf. Deut. 33:17; Amos 6:13; Zech. 1:18–21). Lifting up the horn apparently described a stubborn animal who kept itself from entering a yoke by holding its head up as high as possible. The phrase thus symbolized insolence or rebellion.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 75:8 cup. The cup of wrath describes God's judgment, which he forces down the throats of the wicked (cf. Job 21:20; Isa. 51:17; Jer. 25:15–29; Matt. 20:22; 26:39).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 75:10 horns . . . cut off. To cut off the horns of the wicked would be to humble them (cf. v. 4).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 76:1–12 This psalm teaches that God is willing to use his great power for his people. Some commentators, including the editors of the LXX, have suggested that this psalm was written to celebrate the destruction of Sennacherib's Assyrian army in 701 B.C., as well as the subsequent assassination of Sennacherib himself (vv. 5–6; cf. 2 Kings 18–19; Isa. 36–37). The psalm also includes eschatological overtones (especially Ps. 76:8–12), when Jehovah will defeat his enemies and bring them into judgment.

I. God's Nearness to His People (76:1–3)
II. God's Deliverance of His People (76:4–9)

III. God’s Majesty to His People (76:10–12)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 76:Title Asaph. See notes on Psalm 50; 73; 74:Title.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 76:3 broke the . . . arrows . . . shield . . . sword. God destroyed the enemy’s weapons.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 76:4 mountains of prey. Probably a poetic description of the attackers.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 76:5 use their hands. God had crippled the enemy soldiers.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 76:10 wrath of man shall praise you. The railings against God and his people are turned into praise to God when God providentially brings the wicked down (cf. Isa. 36:4–20; Acts 2:23; Rom. 8:28).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 76:12 cuts off the spirit of princes. God shatters the attitude of proud governmental leaders who rebel against him.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 77:1–20 This psalm illustrates one cure for depression. The psalmist does not explain the cause of his despair, but he was definitely locked into gloom. When he thought about God, it only caused him to complain bitterly. But beginning in v. 10, the psalmist’s mood starts to change because he commits himself to focusing on God’s goodness and past acts of deliverance. His lament then changes into a hymn of praise.

I. The Irritations of a Depressed Soul (77:1–9)
II. The Intention to Refocus the Mind (77:10–15)
III. The Illustrations of God’s Past Blessings (77:16–20)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 77:Title Jeduthun. See note on Psalm 39:Title.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 77:2 hand is stretched out. This was the posture for prayer. The psalmist prayed throughout the night.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 77:4 hold my eyelids open. The psalmist was so upset that he could neither sleep nor talk rationally.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 77:6 my song in the night. The remembrance of happier times only deepened his depression. meditate in my heart. His spirit continually meditated on possible solutions to his problems.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 77:10 right hand of the Most High. The psalmist began to remember the times when God used his right hand (power) to strengthen and protect him.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 77:16 waters . . . afraid. A dramatic picture of God's parting the waters of the Red Sea (cf. v. 19; also Ex. 14:21–31; 15:1–19).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 77:17 your arrows. A metaphor for lightning flashes.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 78:1–72 This didactic psalm was written to teach the children how gracious God had been in the past in spite of their ancestors' rebellion and ingratitude. If the children learn well the theological interpretation of their nation's history, hopefully they would "not be like their fathers" (v. 8). The psalmist especially focuses on the history of the exodus.

I. Exhortation on the Instruction of Children (78:1–11)
II. Lecture on the Graciousness of God (78:12–72)
    A. Rehearsal of Israel's History (78:12–39)
    B. Reiteration of Historical Lessons (78:40–72)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 78:2 parable. The word is used here in the broader sense of a story with moral and spiritual applications. dark sayings. Puzzling, ambiguous information. The lessons of history are not easily discerned correctly. For an infallible interpretation of history, there must be a prophet. The specific puzzle in Israel's history is the nation's rebellious spirit in spite of God's grace.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 78:9 Ephraimites. The act of treachery or apostasy of this largest of the northern tribes is not specifically identified in Israel's history.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 78:12 fields of Zoan. The regions of Zoan, an Egyptian city.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 78:13 waters stand like a heap. The parting of the Red Sea at the beginning of the exodus, which allowed Israel to escape from the Egyptian armies, was always considered by the OT saints to be the most spectacular miracle of their history (cf. Ex. 14).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 78:15 split rocks. Twice in the wilderness, when Israel desperately needed a great water supply, God brought water out of rocks (cf. Ex. 17:6; Num. 20:11).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 78:18 food they craved. Instead of being grateful for God's marvelous provisions of manna, the Israelites complained against God and Moses. God sent them meat, but also judged them (Num. 11).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 78:19 spread a table in the wilderness? The answer was "yes," but the question implied a sarcastic lack of faith.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 78:27 rained meat. A poetic description of the quail that dropped into Israel's camp in the wilderness (Num. 11:31–35).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 78:41 provoked the Holy One. The Israelites did this by doubting God's power.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 78:42 did not remember his power. The generations of Israelites who left Egypt and eventually died in the wilderness were characterized by ignoring God's previous acts of power and faithfulness. The following verses (vv. 42–55) rehearse the plagues and miracles of the exodus from Egypt, which marvelously demonstrated God's omnipotence and covenant love.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 78:57 deceitful bow. This is a useless bow.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 78:60 dwelling at Shiloh. Shiloh was an early location of Jehovah worship in the Promised Land. The capture and removal of the ark from Shiloh by the Philistines symbolized God's judgment (cf. Josh. 18:1; 1 Sam. 1:9; 3:1; 4:1–22).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 78:65 strong man . . . wine. The picture is that of a furious, raging warrior entering the battle on Israel's side.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 78:68 the tribe of Judah. Instead of the prestigious tribes, God chose Judah. In Judah was Mount Zion where the central worship center of Jehovah was located. Also, David their king, as well as his royal descendants, were from this tribe.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 79:1–13 The historical basis for this lament psalm was probably Nebuchadnezzar's destruction of the temple in 586 B.C. (cf. Ps. 74; 2 Kings 25:8–21; Lam. 1–5). The psalm contains prayer for the nation's spiritual needs, curses against the enemies of God's people, and praises in anticipation of God's actions. The psalm helps the believer express his anguish in a disaster when it seems as though God is aloof.

I. The Lamentation Over the National Disaster (79:1–4)
II. The Supplication for Divine Intervention (79:5–13)
    A. The Prayer for Vindication (79:5–7)
    B. The Prayer for Forgiveness (79:8–9)
    C. The Prayer for Reprisal (79:10–12)
    D. The Praise for Response (79:13)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 79:1 nations. In this context, the word refers to heathen, pagan people. inheritance. The inheritance of God was national Israel, and specifically its capital city, Jerusalem, where the temple was located.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 79:9 atone. See 65:3. for your name's sake. A defeat of a nation was believed to be a defeat of its god. A mark of spiritual maturity is one's concern for the reputation of God.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 79:10 Where is their God? The heathen were mocking Israel's God by saying that the destruction of the nation implied that its God was nonexistent.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 79:11 doomed to die! A prayer for the preservation of the prisoners awaiting execution in the enemy's dungeon.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 79:12 sevenfold into the lap. A petition that God would restore his reputation by bringing a destruction of the enemies much worse than what had happened to Israel.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 80:1–19 This psalm was probably written from Jerusalem in astonishment at the captivity of the 10 northern tribes in 722 B.C. The psalmist recognized that God's people had removed themselves through apostasy from the blessings of the Mosaic Covenant. So he begs God to act and to restore his people into covenant blessings (vv. 3, 7, 14, 19).

I. Prayer for Divine Restoration (80:1–3)
II. Despair over God's Anger (80:4–7)
III. Description of God's Vine (80:8–16a)
IV. Prayer for Divine Restoration (80:16b–19)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 80:Title according to Lilies. The name of a tune. See note on Psalm 45:Title.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 80:1 enthroned upon the cherubim. A reference to the ark of the covenant, a symbol for God's presence. The images of two cherubim sat on top of the ark, facing each other (cf. Ex. 37:1–9).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 80:3 face shine. See note on Ps. 67:1; cf. 80:7, 19.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 80:4 God of hosts. See note on Ps. 59:5; cf. 80:7, 14.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 80:8 vine out of Egypt. The vine is a metaphor for Israel, whom God delivered out of Egypt and nurtured into a powerful nation (cf. Isa. 5:1–7; 27:2–6; Matt. 21:33–40).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 80:17 son of man. In this context, this phrase is primarily a reference to Israel. In a secondary sense, the "son of man" may allude to the Davidic dynasty and even extend to the Messiah, since he is so frequently called by that title in the NT.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 81:1–16 This psalm was intended to be used in the celebration of one of the feasts of Israel, most likely the Feast of Booths, or Tabernacles. After the call to worship (vv. 1–5), the psalm presents a message from God in the first person (vv. 6–16). This oracle pleads with Israel to “listen” to him (v. 13), so that he might pour out on the nation the blessings of the covenant.

I. A Call to Joyful Worship (81:1–5)
II. A Call to Godly Obedience (81:6–16)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 81:Title to The Gittith. See note on Psalm 8:Title.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 81:2 harp. A musical instrument with a long and narrow neck resembling a guitar. This word is rendered as lute by some translations.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 81:3 new moon . . . full moon. The seventh month of Israel’s year (Tishri; September/October) culminated the festival year with a succession of celebrations. The month began with the blowing of the trumpets, continued with the Day of Atonement on the tenth day, and celebrated the Feast of Booths, or Tabernacles, on the fifteenth day when the moon was full. The Feast of Tabernacles praised God for his care in the wilderness wanderings, and also pointed to the coming kingdom (Matt. 17:1–4).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 81:5 language . . . had not known. Either the psalmist heard a message, the meaning of which he did not grasp, in which case this message is presented as an oracle in the following verses; or, the psalmist is referring to the Egyptian language, which the Jews did not know.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 81:6 hands . . . freed . . . basket. The Israelites in Egypt were forced to carry bricks and clay in baskets.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 81:7 secret place of thunder. Probably a reference to God’s presence on Mount Sinai at the giving of the law (cf. Ex. 19:16ff.; 20:18ff.). waters of Meribah. Meribah, which means “strife” or “dispute,” marked places where Israel tempted God (cf. Ex. 17:1–7; Num. 20:1–13; Ps. 95:8; 106:32).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 81:14 soon subdue their enemies. One of the blessings of obedience promised to Israel in the Mosaic Covenant was victory over its enemies (cf. Num. 33:52–56; Deut. 6:16–19; 7:16–24).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 81:16 honey from the rock. This phrase was first used by Moses in his song of praise (Deut. 32:13). Though honey is sometimes found in the clefts of rocks, the intent of the figure here is more likely to valuable food provided from unlikely places.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 82:1–8 This psalm, like Ps. 2 and 58, focuses on the injustices of tyranny. The psalmist pictures God standing in the assembly of earthly leaders, to whom he has delegated authority, and condemning their injustices. The final prayer of the psalmist (82:8) is that God hyimself will take direct control of the affairs of this world.

I. The Assembly of World Leaders Before God (82:1)
II. The Evaluation of World Leaders by God (82:2–7)
III. The Replacement of World Leaders with God (82:8)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 82:1 divine council. The scene opens with God having called the world leaders together. midst of the gods. The best interpretation is that these are human leaders, such as judges, kings, legislators, and presidents (cf. Ex. 22:8–9, 28; Judg. 5:8–9). God the Great Judge presides over these lesser judges.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 82:2–4 judge unjustly. God accuses the lesser human judges of social injustices that violate the Mosaic law (e.g., Deut. 24).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 82:5 darkness. Signifies both intellectual ignorance and moral iniquity. foundations of the earth are shaken. When leaders rule unjustly, the divinely established moral order that undergirds human existence is undermined.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 82:6 I said. Kings and judges are set up ultimately by the decree of God (2:6). God, in effect, invests his authority in human leaders for the stability of the universe (cf. Rom. 13:1–7). But God may revoke this authority (Ps. 82:7). You are gods. Jesus, in quoting this phrase in John 10:34, supported the interpretation that the “gods” were human beings. In a play on words, he claims that if human leaders can be called “gods,” certainly the Messiah can be called God. sons of the Most High. Created by God for noble life.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 82:7 like men you shall die. In spite of being made in God's image, they were mortal and would die like human beings. fall like . . . prince. The unjust rulers would become vulnerable to the violent deaths that often accompanied tyranny.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 82:8 you shall inherit all the nations. The psalmist prayerfully anticipates the future when God will set up his kingdom and restore order and perfect justice to a sin-cursed world (cf. Ps. 96–97; Isa. 11:1–5).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 83:1–18 This psalm, a national lament that includes prayer and imprecations, may be best studied with a map since several individual national enemies of Israel are noted. Second Chronicles 20:1–30 may record the specific historical event prompting this psalm, though some Bible students believe that the nations mentioned are only symbolic of all of Israel's enemies. The psalmist begs God to rescue Israel from its enemies as he had done so many times in the past.

I. A Plea for Help (83:1)
II. A Protest Against Israel's Enemies (83:2–8)
III. A Petition for Divine Judgment (83:9–18)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 83:2 your enemies. Throughout this psalm, the hostile nations are described as God's enemies.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 83:4 wipe them out. The hostile nations, under Satan's influence, repudiated God's promise to preserve forever the nation of Israel (cf. Gen. 17:7–8; Ps. 89:34–37).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 83:6 Edom . . . Hagrites. The list of nations represents Israel's enemies throughout its history. Edom descended from Esau and lived southeast of Israel. The Ishmaelites, descendants from Abraham and Hagar, were Bedouin tribes. The Moabites descended from Lot (cf. v. 8) and were tribal people living east of the Jordan (cf. Judg. 11:17–18; Isa. 15–16). The Hagrites were a nomadic tribe living east of the Jordan (1 Chron. 5:10, 19–20).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 83:7 Gebal . . . Tyre. Gebal was probably a community south of the Dead Sea, near Petra in Edom. Ammon, a nation descending from Lot, was located east of the Jordan River. The Amalekites, nomads living southeast of the Jordan River, were descendants of Esau (cf. Gen. 36:12, 16; Ex. 17:8–13; Num. 24:20; Judg. 6:3; 1 Sam. 15:1–8). Philistia was located southwest of Israel (Judg. 14–16). Tyre was northwest of Israel (cf. Ezek. 27).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 83:8 Asshur. Probably a reference to Assyria, the dominant nation of the eighth century B.C. that took captive the northern 10 tribes of Israel in 722 B.C. Assyria used smaller nations, like Moab and Ammon (the children of Lot; cf. Gen. 19:36–38), to accomplish its military goals.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 83:9 Midian . . . Jabin. The psalmist reminded God of famous past victories. Gideon had defeated the Midianites (Judg. 7:19–25). Barak and Deborah defeated Jabin and his army commander, Sisera, near the Brook Kishon (Judg. 4–5).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 83:11 Oreb . . . Zalmunna. These men were chiefs of the Midianites when they were defeated by Gideon (cf. Judg. 6–8).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 83:13–15 The psalmist uses several dramatic similes in his prayer for the destruction of Israel’s enemies.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 83:18 know . . . Most High. The purpose of the maledictions against the hostile nations is neither personal nor national, but spiritual: that the nations may know and glorify God. you alone . . . the Lord. The Gentile nations need to know that the God of the Bible is the only God.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 84:1–12 This psalm, like other psalms of ascent (Ps. 120–134), expresses the joy of a pilgrim traveling up to Jerusalem, then up into the temple to celebrate one of the feasts. The pilgrim focuses his attention especially on the thought of being in the very presence of the Lord God. The NT believer-priest, in an even greater way, can come into the presence of the Lord (cf. Heb. 4:16; 10:19–22).

I. The Expectation of Worshiping God (84:1–4)
II. The Expedition to Worship God (84:5–7)
III. The Elation at Worshiping God (84:8–12)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 84:Title to The Gittith. See note on Psalm 8:Title. Sons of Korah. These descendants of Levi through Kohath were the gatekeepers and musicians in the temple at Jerusalem (1 Chron. 6:22; 9:17–32; 26:1; see all Ps. 42–49; 84; 85; 87; 88).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 84:1 lovely is your dwelling place. The temple worship center was “lovely” because it enabled the OT saint to come into the presence of God (cf. Ps. 27; 42:1–2; 61:4; 63:1–2). Lord of hosts! “Hosts” represent God’s angelic armies, thus God’s omnipotence over all powers in heaven and on earth (cf. 84:3, 8, 12).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 84:2 longs . . . faints . . . sing for. The psalmist is consumed with his happy, but intense desire to worship God in the temple.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 84:3 sparrow . . . swallow. The psalmist admires these birds who were able to build their nests in the temple courtyards, near the altars of God.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 84:4 Blessed. This word is used three times (vv. 4, 5, 12) to describe the happiness of those who, like the Sons of Korah, “lodged around the house of God” (1 Chron. 9:27).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 84:6 Valley of Baca. “Baca” can be translated as “weeping” or “balsam tree.” The valley was an arid place on the way to Jerusalem. they make it a place of springs. The pilgrims traveling to a festival of worship at Jerusalem turn an arid valley into a place of joy.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 84:7 from strength to strength. Anticipation of joyous worship of God in Jerusalem overcame the pilgrims’ natural weariness in their difficult journey. Zion. See note on Ps. 87:2.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 84:9 Behold our shield. A metaphor for the king, who also would have participated in a festival at the temple (cf. 47:9; Hos. 4:18). the face of your anointed. The king is regularly described as God’s “anointed” (Ps. 2:2; 18:50; 20:6; 28:8; 89:38, 51). The psalmist thus prays that God would look upon the king with favor, blessing his reign with prosperity.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 84:10 doorkeeper. One day standing at the door of the temple, or just being near even if not inside, was better than a thousand days fellowshiping with the wicked.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 84:11 sun and shield. This pictures God’s overall provision and protection.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 85:1–13 The psalmist pledges that God will again demonstrate his covenant love to Israel. God has been merciful in the past; he is angry presently; but he will restore Israel in the future (cf. Deut. 30; Hos. 3:4–5). Though God judges, he is faithful to his promises. The feelings expressed in this psalm may describe those of the Jews returning from exile in Babylon. Though they were grateful for restoration to their land, they were disappointed that the conditions did not measure up to the glory of the preexilic life there (cf. Ezra 3:12–13).

I. Review of God’s Past Mercies (85:1–3)
II. Recognition of God’s Present Anger (85:4–7)
III. Revelation of God’s Future Salvation (85:8–13)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 85:Title Sons of Korah. See note on Psalm 84:Title.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 85:1 favorable to your land. In the past, God deemed his nation, Israel, to be acceptable.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 85:3 your hot anger. See note on Ps. 56:7.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 85:7 steadfast love. The word means “loyal love” or “unfailing love,” and specifies God’s faithfulness to his people through his covenant relationship.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 85:8 peace. Ultimately this comes in the Messiah’s kingdom (cf. Matt. 10:34; Luke 2:14).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 85:9 salvation . . . who fear him. Only those who renounce their sinful autonomy and put their complete trust in the living God will participate in the blessings of salvation and the future kingdom (cf. John 3:3–5). glory may dwell in our land. The departure of the glory of God, which signified his presence, is described in Ezek. 10–11. He withdrew his glory because of the apostasy of the nation immediately preceding the Babylonian exile (cf. Ezek. 8–11). The return of the glory of the Lord in the future millennial temple is foretold in Ezek. 43:1–4 (cf. Ps. 26:8; 63:2; Isa. 40:3–5; 60:1–3; 62:1–5). See note on Lev. 9:23.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 85:10 Steadfast love . . . faithfulness . . . righteousness . . . peace. These four spiritual qualities characterizing the atmosphere of the future kingdom of Christ, will relate to each other in perfect harmony and will saturate kingdom life (cf. vv. 10, 13).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 85:12 our land . . . increase. Increase in the fertility and productivity of the land will also characterize the future kingdom of Christ (cf. Isa. 4:2; 30:23–26; 32:15; Jer. 31:12; Ezek. 36:8–11; Amos 9:13–15; Zech. 8:11–12).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 86:1–17 This psalm is an individual lament (cf. Ps. 56) in which David expresses his distress and overcomes that distress through praise and worship. There is a sense of urgency demonstrated by some 14 prayer requests. Undergirding the requests is the covenant relationship (86:2, 5, 13).

I. The Request for God’s Attention (86:1–7)
II. The Testimony to God’s Uniqueness (86:8–13)
III. The Plea for God’s Deliverance (86:14–17)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 86:2 I am godly. David, though recognizing his sinfulness (v. 1), insisted that by the grace of God he had not broken his covenant with the Lord.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 86:4 soul . . . soul. The psalmist requests that his inner person would be preserved according to the covenant agreements (cf. Deut. 7–8; 20).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 86:8 among the gods. David is here contrasting the true God with the imaginary deities of the heathen nations (cf. v. 10; also Ex. 15:11; Ps. 89:6; Isa. 46:5–11).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 86:9 All the nations . . . worship. The psalmists and prophets often look into the future messianic age when all the nations of the world will worship the Lord (cf. 22:27; Isa. 2:3; Zech. 8:21–22; 14:16–19; Rev. 15:4).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 86:11 unite my heart. The psalmist prays that he would have an undivided heart, single-heartedly loyal to his Lord (cf. Rom. 7:15; James 1:8).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 86:14 insolent men. The insolent (i.e., proud, arrogant) are those who act independently from God, rebelling against him and his people (cf. 119:21, 51, 69, 78, 85, 122).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 86:16 the son of your maidservant. David asks for special favor from God just as a servant born in the household would receive more than a servant brought in from outside the household (cf. 116:16).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 86:17 a sign. A request for a favorable indication that would demonstrate that God was truly on David's side.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 87:1–7 This psalm describes the Lord's love for Jerusalem and exalts this city as the religious center of the world in the coming messianic kingdom (cf. Ps. 48). Though the nations of the world (even including some of Israel's former enemies) will worship the Lord then, Israel will still be the favored nation (cf. Isa. 2:2–4; 19:23–25; 45:22–25; 56:6–8; Zech. 8:20–23; 14:16–19).

I. The Lord's Love for Zion (87:1–3)
II. The Lord's Favor of Israel (87:4–6)
III. The Musicians' Exultation over Jerusalem (87:7)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 87:Title Sons of Korah. See note on Psalm 84:Title.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 87:1 holy mount . . . he founded. The city founded by the Lord was Jerusalem, located in the hill country of Judea.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 87:2 gates of Zion. Zion is a poetic description of Jerusalem, seemingly used by the OT writers when special spiritual and religious significance was being attached to the city. Though God certainly loved other cities in Israel, he did not choose any of them to be his worship center (cf. Ps. 122; 125; 132; 133). The gates represent the access of the potential worshiper into the city where he could come into a special worshiping relationship with God. more than all the dwelling places of Jacob. The other cities in Israel were not chosen by God to be the place of his special dwelling.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 87:3 O city of God. Jerusalem was God's city because there God met his people in praise and offerings.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 87:4 Rahab and Babylon. Rahab was a monster of ancient pagan mythology and symbolized Egypt in the OT (cf. 89:10; Isa. 30:7; 51:9). Two of the superpowers of the ancient world, fierce enemies of Israel, will one day worship the Lord in Zion (cf. Isa. 19:19–25). Philistia . . . Tyre . . . Cush. Three more Gentile nations, ancient enemies of Israel, whose descendants will worship the Lord in Jerusalem (cf. Isa. 14:28–32; 18:1–7). This multinational worship is pictured as a great joy to the Lord himself. This one was born there. To be born in Jerusalem will be noted as a special honor in the messianic kingdom (cf. Ps. 87:5–6; also Zech. 8:20–23).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 87:7 All my springs are in you. "Springs" is a metaphor for the source of joyful blessings. Eternal salvation, including the death and resurrection of Christ, is rooted in Jerusalem. The prophets also tell of a literal fountain flowing from the temple in Jerusalem that will water the surrounding land (cf. Joel 3:18; Ezek. 47:1–12).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 88:1–18 This lament is unusual in that it does not end on a happy note. The psalmist has been ill or injured since the days of his youth (v. 15) and bemoans God's failure to hear his prayer for good health. He assumes that God is angry with him, but like Job, he knows of no cause for that anger. But though he does not understand God's ways, the psalmist does turn to God, thus indicating an underlying trust.

I. Complaints Against God's Action (88:1–9)
II. Challenges to God's Wisdom (88:10–12)
III. Charges Against God's Conduct (88:13–18)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 88:Title Sons of Korah. See note on Psalm 84:Title. Mahalath Leannoth. "Mahalath" is either the name of a tune or an instrument, possibly a reed pipe that was played on sad occasions. "Leannoth" may mean "to afflict" and describes the despair that permeates this psalm. Maskil. See note on Psalm 32:Title. Heman the Ezrahite. Heman was a musician from the family of the Kohathites, who founded the Korahite choir (cf. 1 Chron. 6:33; 2 Chron. 5:12; 35:15). He may be the same person who was one of the wise men during Solomon's reign (1 Kings 4:31). "Ezrahite" may mean "native born," or may be the name of a family clan (cf. 1 Chron. 2:6).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 88:4 go down to the pit. "Pit" is one of several references to the grave in this psalm (cf. the dead, vv. 5, 10; Sheol, or the grave, vv. 3, 5, 11; Abaddon, v. 11).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 88:5 set loose among the dead. Expresses the idea that death cuts off all ties to friends and family as well as to God.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 88:7 all your waves. Like the waves rolling onto the seashore, so God has directed trouble after trouble on the psalmist (cf. v. 17).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 88:8 companions to shun me. The psalmist claims that the Lord has turned his friends against him. Some see this as a quarantine experience, as from leprosy (cf. v. 18; also Job 19:13–20).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 88:9 eye grows dim. This could be a description of the psalmist's tears, used as a figure for his entire collapse under this distress.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 88:10 wonders for the dead? The psalmist reminds God, through a series of rhetorical questions, that the dead cannot testify to God’s goodness.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 88:14 hide your face. That is, not answer prayer.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 88:15 death from my youth The psalmist has had some serious illness or injury from the time of his youth.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 88:18 beloved . . . friend . . . companions. See note on v. 8.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 89:1–52 This psalm describes the author’s attempt to reconcile the seeming contradictions between his theology and the reality of his nation’s conditions. Through the first 37 verses, he rehearses what he knows to be theologically accurate: God has sovereignly chosen Israel to be his nation, and David’s descendants to rule. The last third of the psalm reflects the psalmist’s chagrin that the nation had been ravaged and the Davidic monarchy had apparently come to a disgraceful end. To his credit, the psalmist refuses to explain away his theology, but instead keeps the tension, hopefully to be resolved at a later time with the promised reestablishment of an earthly kingdom under one of David’s descendants (cf. Ps. 110; 132).

I. God’s Manifest Faithfulness to the Davidic Covenant (89:1–37)
    A. God’s Covenant Love (89:1–4)
    B. God’s Praiseworthiness (89:5–18)
    C. God’s Covenant with David (89:19–37)
II. God’s Apparent Neglect of the Davidic Covenant (89:38–52)
    A. The Psalmist’s Lament (89:38–45)
    B. The Psalmist’s Consternation (89:46–51)
    C. The Doxology (89:52)

PSALMS—NOTE ON 89:Title Ethan the Ezrahite. Possibly the Levitical singer mentioned in 1 Chron. 6:42 and 15:17, 19 (see note on Psalm 88:Title).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 89:1 steadfast love. See note on Ps. 85:7 (cf. Ps. 89:2, 14, 24, 28, 33, 49).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 89:2 you will establish . . . faithfulness. The psalmist exults that the Lord himself will guarantee the eternality of the Davidic dynasty (cf. 2 Sam. 23:5).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 89:3 covenant with my chosen. The Davidic Covenant, culminating in Messiah's reign, was established in 2 Sam. 7 (cf. 1 Kings 8:23; 1 Chron. 17; 2 Chron. 21:7; Ps. 110; 132). The covenant was in the form of a royal grant covenant as God, the Great King, chose David as his servant king. In this type of covenant, the person with whom the Lord established the covenant could violate the terms of the covenant and the Lord would still be obligated to maintain the covenant.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 89:4 offspring forever . . . throne. The covenant with David was extended to his descendants. The throne promise guaranteed that the rightful heir to the throne would always be a descendant of David (cf. vv. 29, 36; see also 2 Sam. 7:13, 16, 18; Luke 1:31–33). The genealogies of Jesus qualify him for the throne (cf. Matt. 1:1–17; Luke 3:23–38).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 89:5 faithfulness. The word suggests constant and habitual actions, meaning here that God was reliable. For God to violate this consistency of actions would be to violate his very nature (cf. vv. 1–2, 8, 24, 33, 49).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 89:6 heavenly beings. Lit., "sons of God," i.e., angels.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 89:7 council of the holy ones. This pictures a gathering of the angels around their sovereign Lord.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 89:10 Rahab. A figurative term for Egypt. See note on Ps. 87:4.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 89:12 Tabor and Hermon. Mountains in Israel pictured joining in praise with the rest of creation.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 89:15 festal shout. Refers to a cheer, a shout of joyful homage to God (cf. 33:3; 47:5; 95:1; 98:4; 100:1. See note on Ps. 66:1).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 89:17 our horn is exalted. See note on Ps. 75:4 (cf. 89:24).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 89:18 shield belongs to the Lord. The “shield” was a metaphor for the king (see note on Ps. 84:9).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 89:19 your godly one. The “godly ones” (cf. esv footnote) were people like the prophet, Nathan, whom the Lord used to tell David about his covenant with David (2 Sam. 7:4ff.).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 89:25 hand . . . sea . . . rivers. A reference to the promise of Ex. 23:31 that the Lord would give Israel the land between the Red Sea and the Euphrates River.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 89:27 the firstborn. The firstborn child was given a place of special honor and a double portion of the inheritance (Gen. 27; 2 Kings 2:9). However, in a royal grant covenant, a chosen person could be elevated to the level of firstborn sonship and thus have title to a perpetual gift involving dynastic succession (cf. Ps. 2:7). Though not actually the first, Israel was considered the firstborn among nations (Ex. 4:22); Ephraim the younger was treated as the firstborn (Gen. 48:13–20); and David was the firstborn among kings. In this latter sense of prominent favor, Christ can be called the firstborn over all creation (Col. 1:15), in that he is given the preeminence over all created beings.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 89:32 rod . . . stripes. The rod was an instrument for inflicting wounds, and the stripes were marks left by such a flogging. God’s warning reflects his knowledge of the evident potential for disobedience among the descendants of David (cf. 2 Sam. 7:14). In the lifetime of David’s grandsons, for example, the kingdom was split with the 10 northern tribes leaving the rulership of the Davidic line (cf. Jer. 31:31 and Ezek. 37:16–17 for the future reunification of the 12 tribes).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 89:33 my steadfast love. Though the Lord might have to severely discipline David’s descendants, he would never remove his covenant from this family (cf. 2 Sam. 7:15). Thus the covenant could be conditional in any one or more generations and yet be unconditional in its final outcome (cf. Ezek. 37:24–28).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 89:37 faithful witness in the skies. God's covenant with David regarding his descendants was as certain as the establishment of the sun (v. 36) and the moon in the heavens (cf. Jer. 33:14–26). The promise involved a kingdom "in the land" (Jer. 33:15).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 89:39 renounced the covenant. The Hebrew word behind "renounced" is rare, and it may better be translated "disdained." It seemed to the psalmist that the condition of Israel indicated that God was neglecting his covenant with David (cf. Ezek. 37:1–14). defiled his crown. This depicts a serious insult to the dynasty because it is of divine origin.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 89:40–45 The ruin is depicted in several images: left with broken hedges, thus defenseless; a stronghold whose ruins invite invaders; a weakling plundered by all his enemies; a soldier with a useless sword; and a youth prematurely old.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 89:45 cut short the days of his youth. This is a figure for the relative brevity of the Davidic dynasty. The dynasty was cut off in its youth.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 89:46 hide yourself forever? By God's seeming refusal to answer prayer and restore the Davidic kingship, it seemed as though God was hiding himself. Of course, the discipline of disobedient kings had been foretold (v. 32). According to the prophets, God would eventually restore Israel and the Davidic throne in an earthly kingdom (cf. Hos. 3:4–5). Never in the OT is there a sense that this Davidic promise would be fulfilled by Christ with a spiritual and heavenly reign.

PSALMS—NOTE ON 89:47 The prosperity of the Davidic kingdom is linked to the welfare of all people (cf. 72:17; Isa. 9:7; 11:1–10). If the kingdom fails, who can survive? (Ps. 89:48).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 89:49–51 Here is a final plea for God to come to the help of his people, so as to avoid reproach (cf. Isa. 37:17–35).

PSALMS—NOTE ON 89:52 Blessed be the Lord. This blessing, indicating returning confidence, closes not only Ps. 89, but all of Book III (Ps. 73–89) of the Psalms.

Introduction to Proverbs

Title

The title in the Hebrew Bible is “The Proverbs of Solomon” (1:1), as also in the Greek Septuagint (LXX). Proverbs pulls together the most important 513 of the over 3,000 proverbs pondered by Solomon (1 Kings 4:32; Eccles. 12:9), along with some proverbs of others whom Solomon likely influenced. The word “proverb” means “to be like,” thus Proverbs is a book of comparisons between common, concrete images and life’s most profound truths. Proverbs are simple, moral statements (or illustrations) that highlight and teach fundamental realities about life. Solomon sought God’s wisdom (2 Chron. 1:8–12) and offered “pithy sayings” designed to make men contemplate 1) the fear of God and 2) living by his wisdom (Prov. 1:7; 9:10). The sum of this wisdom is personified in the Lord Jesus Christ (1 Cor. 1:30).

Author and Date

The phrase "Proverbs of Solomon" is more a title than an absolute statement of authorship (Prov. 1:1). While King Solomon, who ruled Israel from 971–931 B.C. and was granted great wisdom by God (see 1 Kings 4:29–34), is the author of the didactic section (Prov. 1–9) and the proverbs of 10:1–22:16, he is likely only the compiler of the "sayings of the wise" in 22:17–24:34, which are of an uncertain date before Solomon's reign. The collection in chs. 25–29 was originally composed by Solomon (25:1) but copied and included later by Judah's king Hezekiah (c. 715–686 B.C.). Chapter 30 reflects the words of Agur and ch. 31 the words of Lemuel, who perhaps was Solomon. Proverbs was not assembled in its final form until Hezekiah's day or after. Solomon authored his proverbs before his heart was turned away from God (1 Kings 11:1–11), since the book reveals a godly perspective and is addressed to the "naive" and "young" who need to learn the fear of God. Solomon also wrote Psalms 72 and 127, Ecclesiastes, and Song of Solomon. See Introduction: Author and Date for Ecclesiastes and Song of Solomon.

Background and Setting

The book reflects a threefold setting as: 1) general Wisdom literature; 2) insights from the royal court; and 3) instruction offered in the tender relationship of a father and mother with their children, all designed to produce meditation on God. Since Proverbs is Wisdom literature, by nature it is sometimes difficult to understand (1:6). Wisdom literature is part of the whole of OT truth; the Priest gave the Law, the Prophet gave a Word from the Lord, and the Sage (or wise man) gave his wise Counsel (Jer. 18:18; Ezek. 7:26). In Proverbs, Solomon the Sage gives insight into the "knotty" issues of life (Prov. 1:6) that are not directly addressed in the Law or the Prophets. Though it is practical, Proverbs is not superficial or external because it contains moral and ethical elements stressing upright living that flow out of a right relationship with God. In 4:1–4, Solomon connected three generations as he entrusted to his son Rehoboam what he learned at the feet of David and Bathsheba. Proverbs is both a pattern for the tender impartation of truth from generation to generation, as well as a vast resource for the content of the truth to be imparted. Proverbs contains the principles and applications of Scripture that the godly characters of the Bible illustrate in their lives.

Historical and Theological Themes

Solomon came to the throne with great promise, privilege, and opportunity. God had granted his request for understanding (1 Kings 3:9–12; 2 Chron. 1:10–12), and his wisdom exceeded all others (1 Kings 4:29–31). However, the shocking reality is that he failed to live out the truth that he knew and even taught his son Rehoboam (1 Kings 11:1, 4, 6–11), who subsequently rejected his father’s teaching (1 Kings 12:6–11).

Proverbs contains a gold mine of biblical theology, reflecting themes of Scripture brought to the level of practical righteousness (Prov. 1:3), by addressing man’s ethical choices, calling into question how he thinks, lives, and manages his daily life in light of divine truth. More specifically, Proverbs calls man to live as the Creator intended him to live when he made man (Ps. 90:1–2, 12).

The recurring promise of Proverbs is that generally the wise (the righteous who obey God) live longer (Prov. 9:11), prosper (2:20–22), experience joy (3:13–18) and the goodness of God temporally (12:21), while fools suffer shame (3:35) and death (10:21). On the other hand, it must be remembered that this general principle is balanced by the reality that the wicked sometimes prosper (Ps. 73:3, 12), though only temporarily (Ps. 73:17–19). Job illustrates that there are occasions when the godly wise are struck with disaster and suffering.

There are a number of important themes addressed in Proverbs, which are offered in random order and address different topics, so that it is helpful to study the proverbs thematically as illustrated.

I. Man’s Relationship to God
A. His Trust	Prov. 22:19
B. His Humility	Prov. 3:34
C. His Fear of God	Prov. 1:7
D. His Righteousness	Prov. 10:25
E. His Sin	Prov. 28:13
F. His Obedience	Prov. 6:23
G. Facing Reward	Prov. 12:28

H. Facing Tests	Prov. 17:3
I. Facing Blessing	Prov. 10:22
J. Facing Death	Prov. 15:11
II. Man’s Relationship to Himself
A. His Character	Prov. 20:11
B. His Wisdom	Prov. 1:5
C. His Foolishness	Prov. 26:10–11
D. His Speech	Prov. 18:21
E. His Self Control	Prov. 6:9–11
F. His Kindness	Prov. 3:3
G. His Wealth	Prov. 11:4
H. His Pride	Prov. 27:1
I. His Anger	Prov. 29:11
J. His Laziness	Prov. 13:4
III. Man’s Relationship to Others
A. His Love	Prov. 8:17
B. His Friends	Prov. 17:17
C. His Enemies	Prov. 16:7
D. His Truthfulness	Prov. 23:23
E. His Gossip	Prov. 20:19
F. As a Father	Prov. 20:7; 31:2–9
G. As a Mother	Prov. 31:10–31
H. As Children	Prov. 3:1–3
I. In Educating Children	Prov. 4:1–4
J. In Disciplining Children	Prov. 22:6

The two major themes that are interwoven and overlapping throughout Proverbs are wisdom and folly. Wisdom, which includes knowledge, understanding, instruction, discretion, and obedience, is built on the fear of the Lord and the word of God. Folly is everything opposite to wisdom.

Interpretive Challenges

The first challenge is the generally elusive nature of Wisdom literature itself. Like the parables, the intended truths are often veiled from understanding if given only a cursory glance, and thus must be pondered in the heart (1:6; 2:1–4; 4:4–9).

Another challenge is the extensive use of parallelism, which is the placing of truths side by side so that the second line expands, completes, defines, emphasizes, or reaches the logical conclusion, the ultimate end, or, in some cases, the contrasting point of view. Often the actual parallel is only implied. For example, 12:13 contains an unstated, but clearly implied parallel, in that the righteous one comes through trouble because of his virtuous speech (cf. 28:7). In interpreting the Proverbs, one must: 1) determine the parallelism and often complete what is assumed and not stated by the author; 2) identify the figures of speech and rephrase the thought without those figures; 3) summarize the lesson or principle of the proverb in a few words; 4) describe the behavior that is taught; and 5) find examples inside Scripture.

Challenges are also found in the various contexts of Proverbs, all of which affect interpretation and understanding. First, there is the setting in which they were spoken; this is largely the context of the young men in the royal court of the king. Second, there is the setting of the book as a whole and how its teachings are to be understood in light of the rest of Scripture. For example, there is much to be gained by comparing the wisdom Solomon taught with the wisdom Christ personified. Third, there is the historical context in which the principles and truths draw on illustrations from their own day.

A final area of challenge comes in understanding that proverbs are divine guidelines and wise observations, i.e., teaching underlying principles (24:3–4) which are not always inflexible laws or absolute promises. These expressions of general truth (cf. 10:27; 22:4) generally do have “exceptions,” due to the uncertainty of life and unpredictable behavior of fallen men. God does not guarantee uniform outcome or application for each proverb, but in studying them and applying them, one comes to contemplate the mind of God, his character, his attributes, his works, and his blessings. All of the treasures of wisdom and knowledge expressed in Proverbs are hidden in Christ (Col. 2:3).

Proverbs

The Beginning of Knowledge

PROVERBS 1 ‡†The proverbs of Solomon, son of David, king of Israel:

[2]‡†To know wisdom and instruction,
to understand words of insight, [3]†to receive instruction in wise dealing,
in righteousness, justice, and equity;
[4]†to give prudence to the simple,
knowledge and discretion to the youth—[5]†Let the wise hear and increase in learning,
and the one who understands obtain guidance, [6]†to understand a proverb and a saying,
the words of the wise and their riddles.
[7]†The fear of the LORD is the beginning of knowledge;
fools despise wisdom and instruction.

The Enticement of Sinners

[8]‡Hear, my son, your father's instruction,
and forsake not your mother's teaching, [9]for they are a graceful garland for your head and pendants for your neck.
[10]‡†My son, if sinners entice you,
do not consent.
[11]†If they say, “Come with us, let us lie in wait for blood;
let us ambush the innocent without reason; [12]†like Sheol let us swallow them alive,
and whole, like those who go down to the pit;
[13]†we shall find all precious goods,
we shall fill our houses with plunder;
[14]throw in your lot among us;

we will all have one purse”— [15]‡my son, do not walk in the way with them;
hold back your foot from their paths, [16]for their feet run to evil,
and they make haste to shed blood.
[17]‡For in vain is a net spread
in the sight of any bird, [18]but these men lie in wait for their own blood;
they set an ambush for their own lives.
[19]Such are the ways of everyone who is greedy for unjust gain;
it takes away the life of its possessors.

The Call of Wisdom

[20]‡Wisdom cries aloud in the street, in the markets she raises her voice;
[21]‡at the head of the noisy streets she cries out;
at the entrance of the city gates she speaks:
[22]‡“How long, O simple ones, will you love being simple?
How long will scoffers delight in their scoffing
and fools hate knowledge?
[23]‡If you turn at my reproof, [1]
behold, I will pour out my spirit to you;
I will make my words known to you.
[24]‡Because I have called and you refused to listen,
have stretched out my hand and no one has heeded, [25]because you have ignored all my counsel and would have none of my reproof, [26]‡I also will laugh at your calamity;
I will mock when terror strikes you,
[27]when terror strikes you like a storm and your calamity comes like a whirlwind,
when distress and anguish come upon you.
[28]‡‡Then they will call upon me, but I will not answer;
they will seek me diligently but will not find me.
[29]Because they hated knowledge and did not choose the fear of the Lord,

[30]would have none of my counsel and despised all my reproof, [31]†therefore they shall eat the fruit of their way,
and have their fill of their own devices.
[32]†For the simple are killed by their turning away,
and the complacency of fools destroys them;
[33]but whoever listens to me will dwell secure and will be at ease, without dread of disaster.”

The Value of Wisdom

PROVERBS 2 ‡My son, if you receive my words
and treasure up my commandments with you,
[2]‡making your ear attentive to wisdom and inclining your heart to understanding; [3]‡yes, if you call out for insight and raise your voice for understanding, [4]‡if you seek it like silver and search for it as for hidden treasures, [5]then you will understand the fear of the LORD and find the knowledge of God.
[6]‡For the LORD gives wisdom;
from his mouth come knowledge and understanding;
[7]‡he stores up sound wisdom for the upright;
he is a shield to those who walk in integrity, [8]guarding the paths of justice and watching over the way of his saints.
[9]‡Then you will understand righteousness and justice and equity, every good path;
[10]‡for wisdom will come into your heart,
and knowledge will be pleasant to your soul; [11]‡discretion will watch over you,
understanding will guard you, [12]‡delivering you from the way of evil,
from men of perverted speech, [13]who forsake the paths of uprightness to walk in the ways of darkness, [14]‡who rejoice in doing evil and delight in the perverseness of evil, [15]men whose paths are crooked,
and who are devious in their ways.
[16]‡So you will be delivered from the forbidden [1] woman,
from the adulteress [2] with her smooth words, [17]‡who forsakes the companion of her youth and forgets the covenant of her God; [18]†for her house sinks down to death,

and her paths to the departed; [3] [19]†none who go to her come back, nor do they regain the paths of life.
[20]So you will walk in the way of the good and keep to the paths of the righteous.
[21]†For the upright will inhabit the land,
and those with integrity will remain in it, [22]but the wicked will be cut off from the land,
and the treacherous will be rooted out of it.

Trust in the LORD with All Your Heart

PROVERBS 3 ‡‡†My son, do not forget my teaching,
but let your heart keep my commandments,
[2]for length of days and years of life
and peace they will add to you.
[3]†Let not steadfast love and faithfulness forsake you;
bind them around your neck;
write them on the tablet of your heart.
[4]†So you will find favor and good success [1]
in the sight of God and man.
[5]Trust in the LORD with all your heart,
and do not lean on your own understanding.
[6]In all your ways acknowledge him,
and he will make straight your paths.
[7]†Be not wise in your own eyes;
fear the LORD, and turn away from evil.
[8]†It will be healing to your flesh [2]
and refreshment [3] to your bones.
[9]‡Honor the LORD with your wealth and with the firstfruits of all your produce; [10]then your barns will be filled with plenty,
and your vats will be bursting with wine.
[11]‡My son, do not despise the LORD's discipline or be weary of his reproof, [12]for the LORD reproves him whom he loves,
as a father the son in whom he delights.

Blessed Is the One Who Finds Wisdom

[13]Blessed is the one who finds wisdom,
and the one who gets understanding, [14]‡for the gain from her is better than gain from silver and her profit better than gold.
[15]She is more precious than jewels,

and nothing you desire can compare with her.
[16]Long life is in her right hand;
in her left hand are riches and honor.
[17]Her ways are ways of pleasantness, and all her paths are peace.
[18]†She is a tree of life to those who lay hold of her;
those who hold her fast are called blessed.
[19]‡The LORD by wisdom founded the earth;
by understanding he established the heavens;
[20]by his knowledge the deeps broke open,
and the clouds drop down the dew.
[21]My son, do not lose sight of these—keep sound wisdom and discretion, [22]†and they will be life for your soul
and adornment for your neck.
[23]Then you will walk on your way securely,
and your foot will not stumble.
[24]If you lie down, you will not be afraid;
when you lie down, your sleep will be sweet.
[25]‡Do not be afraid of sudden terror or of the ruin [4] of the wicked, when it comes, [26]for the LORD will be your confidence and will keep your foot from being caught.
[27]Do not withhold good from those to whom it is due, [5]
when it is in your power to do it.
[28]†Do not say to your neighbor, “Go, and come again, tomorrow I will give it”—when you have it with you.
[29]†Do not plan evil against your neighbor,
who dwells trustingly beside you.
[30]†Do not contend with a man for no reason,
when he has done you no harm.
[31]†Do not envy a man of violence and do not choose any of his ways, [32]†for the devious person is an abomination to the LORD,
but the upright are in his confidence.
[33]The LORD's curse is on the house of the wicked,
but he blesses the dwelling of the righteous.

[34]†Toward the scorners he is scornful,
but to the humble he gives favor. [6] [35]The wise will inherit honor, but fools get [7] disgrace.

A Father's Wise Instruction

PROVERBS 4 Hear, O sons, a father's instruction, and be attentive, that you may gain [1] insight, [2]†for I give you good precepts;
    do not forsake my teaching.
[3]‡When I was a son with my father,
    tender, the only one in the sight of my mother,
[4]he taught me and said to me,
“Let your heart hold fast my words;
    keep my commandments, and live.
[5]Get wisdom; get insight;
    do not forget, and do not turn away from the words of my mouth.
[6]Do not forsake her, and she will keep you;
    love her, and she will guard you.
[7]The beginning of wisdom is this: Get wisdom,
    and whatever you get, get insight.
[8]†Prize her highly, and she will exalt you;
    she will honor you if you embrace her.
[9]†She will place on your head a graceful garland;
    she will bestow on you a beautiful crown.”
[10]Hear, my son, and accept my words, that the years of your life may be many.
[11]I have taught you the way of wisdom;
    I have led you in the paths of uprightness.
[12]When you walk, your step will not be hampered,
    and if you run, you will not stumble.
[13]†Keep hold of instruction; do not let go;
    guard her, for she is your life.
[14]†Do not enter the path of the wicked,
    and do not walk in the way of the evil.
[15]†Avoid it; do not go on it;
    turn away from it and pass on.
[16]‡For they cannot sleep unless they have done wrong;
    they are robbed of sleep unless they have made someone stumble.

[17]For they eat the bread of wickedness and drink the wine of violence.
[18]†But the path of the righteous is like the light of dawn, which shines brighter and brighter until full day.
[19]The way of the wicked is like deep darkness;
they do not know over what they stumble.
[20]My son, be attentive to my words;
incline your ear to my sayings.
[21]‡Let them not escape from your sight;
keep them within your heart.
[22]For they are life to those who find them,
and healing to all their [2] flesh.
[23]Keep your heart with all vigilance,
for from it flow the springs of life.
[24]Put away from you crooked speech,
and put devious talk far from you.
[25]Let your eyes look directly forward,
and your gaze be straight before you.
[26]Ponder [3] the path of your feet;
then all your ways will be sure.
[27]Do not swerve to the right or to the left;
turn your foot away from evil.

Warning Against Adultery

PROVERBS 5 ‡My son, be attentive to my wisdom;
incline your ear to my understanding,
[2]that you may keep discretion,
and your lips may guard knowledge.
[3]†For the lips of a forbidden [1] woman drip honey,
and her speech [2] is smoother than oil, [4]‡but in the end she is bitter as wormwood,
sharp as a two-edged sword.
[5]†Her feet go down to death;
her steps follow the path to [3] Sheol;
[6]†she does not ponder the path of life;
her ways wander, and she does not know it.
[7]‡And now, O sons, listen to me,
and do not depart from the words of my mouth.
[8]Keep your way far from her,
and do not go near the door of her house, [9]‡lest you give your honor to others and your years to the merciless, [10]lest strangers take their fill of your strength,
and your labors go to the house of a foreigner, [11]†and at the end of your life you groan,
when your flesh and body are consumed, [12]and you say, “How I hated discipline,
and my heart despised reproof!
[13]I did not listen to the voice of my teachers or incline my ear to my instructors.
[14]†I am at the brink of utter ruin
in the assembled congregation.” [15]‡Drink water from your own cistern, flowing water from your own well.
[16]‡Should your springs be scattered abroad, streams of water in the streets?
[17]Let them be for yourself alone,

and not for strangers with you.
[18]†Let your fountain be blessed,
and rejoice in the wife of your youth, [19]†a lovely deer, a graceful doe.
Let her breasts fill you at all times with delight;
be intoxicated [4] always in her love.
[20]†Why should you be intoxicated, my son, with a forbidden woman and embrace the bosom of an adulteress? [5] [21]‡For a man's ways are before the eyes of the LORD, and he ponders [6] all his paths.
[22]The iniquities of the wicked ensnare him,
and he is held fast in the cords of his sin.
[23]†He dies for lack of discipline,
and because of his great folly he is led astray.

Practical Warnings

PROVERBS 6 ‡My son, if you have put up security for your neighbor, have given your pledge for a stranger,
[2]‡if you are snared in the words of your mouth,
caught in the words of your mouth,
[3]then do this, my son, and save yourself,
for you have come into the hand of your neighbor:
go, hasten, [1] and plead urgently with your neighbor.
[4]Give your eyes no sleep and your eyelids no slumber;
[5]save yourself like a gazelle from the hand of the hunter, [2]
like a bird from the hand of the fowler.
[6]‡‡Go to the ant, O sluggard;
consider her ways, and be wise.
[7]Without having any chief,
officer, or ruler,
[8]she prepares her bread in summer and gathers her food in harvest.
[9]How long will you lie there, O sluggard?
When will you arise from your sleep?
[10]A little sleep, a little slumber,
a little folding of the hands to rest,
[11]‡and poverty will come upon you like a robber,
and want like an armed man.
[12]‡A worthless person, a wicked man,
goes about with crooked speech, [13]‡winks with his eyes, signals [3] with his feet,
points with his finger, [14]‡with perverted heart devises evil, continually sowing discord;
[15]‡therefore calamity will come upon him suddenly;
in a moment he will be broken beyond healing.
[16]‡There are six things that the LORD hates,
seven that are an abomination to him:

[17]haughty eyes, a lying tongue,
and hands that shed innocent blood, [18]a heart that devises wicked plans,
feet that make haste to run to evil, [19]a false witness who breathes out lies,
and one who sows discord among brothers.

Warnings Against Adultery

[20]‡My son, keep your father's commandment,
and forsake not your mother's teaching.
[21]Bind them on your heart always;
tie them around your neck.
[22]‡When you walk, they [4] will lead you;
when you lie down, they will watch over you;
and when you awake, they will talk with you.
[23]‡For the commandment is a lamp and the teaching a light,
and the reproofs of discipline are the way of life, [24]‡to preserve you from the evil woman, [5]
from the smooth tongue of the adulteress. [6] [25]‡Do not desire her beauty in your heart, and do not let her capture you with her eyelashes; [26]‡for the price of a prostitute is only a loaf of bread, [7]
but a married woman [8] hunts down a precious life.
[27]‡Can a man carry fire next to his chest
and his clothes not be burned?
[28]Or can one walk on hot coals
and his feet not be scorched?
[29]‡So is he who goes in to his neighbor's wife;
none who touches her will go unpunished.
[30]‡People do not despise a thief if he steals to satisfy his appetite when he is hungry, [31]‡but if he is caught, he will pay sevenfold;
he will give all the goods of his house.
[32]He who commits adultery lacks sense;
he who does it destroys himself.
[33]He will get wounds and dishonor,

and his disgrace will not be wiped away.
[34]For jealousy makes a man furious,
and he will not spare when he takes revenge.
[35]He will accept no compensation;
he will refuse though you multiply gifts.

Warning Against the Adulteress

PROVERBS 7 ‡My son, keep my words
and treasure up my commandments with you;
[2]†keep my commandments and live;
keep my teaching as the apple of your eye;
[3]†bind them on your fingers;
write them on the tablet of your heart.
[4]Say to wisdom, “You are my sister,”
and call insight your intimate friend, [5]to keep you from the forbidden [1] woman,
from the adulteress [2] with her smooth words.
[6]†For at the window of my house
I have looked out through my lattice,
[7]†and I have seen among the simple,
I have perceived among the youths,
a young man lacking sense,
[8]†passing along the street near her corner,
taking the road to her house [9]in the twilight, in the evening, at the time of night and darkness.
[10]†And behold, the woman meets him, dressed as a prostitute, wily of heart. [3] [11]‡She is loud and wayward;
her feet do not stay at home;
[12]now in the street, now in the market,
and at every corner she lies in wait.
[13]She seizes him and kisses him,
and with bold face she says to him, [14]†“I had to offer sacrifices, [4]
and today I have paid my vows;
[15]†so now I have come out to meet you,
to seek you eagerly, and I have found you.
[16]‡I have spread my couch with coverings,
colored linens from Egyptian linen;

[17]I have perfumed my bed with myrrh,
aloes, and cinnamon.
[18]†Come, let us take our fill of love till morning;
let us delight ourselves with love.
[19]‡For my husband is not at home;
he has gone on a long journey;
[20]he took a bag of money with him;
at full moon he will come home.”
[21]†With much seductive speech she persuades him;
with her smooth talk she compels him.
[22]†All at once he follows her,
as an ox goes to the slaughter,
or as a stag is caught fast [5] [23]†till an arrow pierces its liver;
as a bird rushes into a snare;
he does not know that it will cost him his life.
[24]†And now, O sons, listen to me,
and be attentive to the words of my mouth.
[25]Let not your heart turn aside to her ways;
do not stray into her paths, [26]†for many a victim has she laid low,
and all her slain are a mighty throng.
[27]†Her house is the way to Sheol, going down to the chambers of death.

The Blessings of Wisdom

PROVERBS 8 ‡Does not wisdom call?
Does not understanding raise her voice?
[2]On the heights beside the way,
at the crossroads she takes her stand;
[3]beside the gates in front of the town,
at the entrance of the portals she cries aloud:
[4]‡“To you, O men, I call,
and my cry is to the children of man.
[5]O simple ones, learn prudence;
O fools, learn sense.
[6]‡Hear, for I will speak noble things,
and from my lips will come what is right, [7]for my mouth will utter truth;
wickedness is an abomination to my lips.
[8]All the words of my mouth are righteous;
there is nothing twisted or crooked in them.
[9]‡They are all straight to him who understands,
and right to those who find knowledge.
[10]‡Take my instruction instead of silver,
and knowledge rather than choice gold, [11]for wisdom is better than jewels,
and all that you may desire cannot compare with her.
[12]“I, wisdom, dwell with prudence,
and I find knowledge and discretion.
[13]‡The fear of the LORD is hatred of evil.
Pride and arrogance and the way of evil
and perverted speech I hate.
[14]I have counsel and sound wisdom;
I have insight; I have strength.
[15]‡By me kings reign,
and rulers decree what is just;
[16]by me princes rule,
and nobles, all who govern justly. [1]

[17]†I love those who love me,
and those who seek me diligently find me.
[18]‡Riches and honor are with me,
enduring wealth and righteousness.
[19]My fruit is better than gold, even fine gold,
and my yield than choice silver.
[20]I walk in the way of righteousness,
in the paths of justice, [21]granting an inheritance to those who love me,
and filling their treasuries.
[22]‡"The LORD possessed [2] me at the beginning of his work, [3]
the first of his acts of old.
[23]Ages ago I was set up,
at the first, before the beginning of the earth.
[24]‡When there were no depths I was brought forth,
when there were no springs abounding with water.
[25]Before the mountains had been shaped,
before the hills, I was brought forth, [26]before he had made the earth with its fields,
or the first of the dust of the world.
[27]†When he established the heavens, I was there;
when he drew a circle on the face of the deep, [28]when he made firm the skies above,
when he established [4] the fountains of the deep, [29]†when he assigned to the sea its limit,
so that the waters might not transgress his command,
when he marked out the foundations of the earth, [30]†then I was beside him, like a master workman,
and I was daily his [5] delight, rejoicing before him always,
[31]†rejoicing in his inhabited world
and delighting in the children of man.
[32]"And now, O sons, listen to me:
blessed are those who keep my ways.
[33]Hear instruction and be wise,
and do not neglect it.
[34]Blessed is the one who listens to me,

watching daily at my gates,
waiting beside my doors.
[35]For whoever finds me finds life
and obtains favor from the LORD, [36]†but he who fails to find me injures himself;
all who hate me love death.”

The Way of Wisdom

PROVERBS 9 †Wisdom has built her house;
she has hewn her seven pillars.
[2]†She has slaughtered her beasts; she has mixed her wine;
she has also set her table.
[3]‡She has sent out her young women to call from the highest places in the town,
[4]“Whoever is simple, let him turn in here!”
To him who lacks sense she says,
[5]†“Come, eat of my bread and drink of the wine I have mixed.
[6]Leave your simple ways, [1] and live,
and walk in the way of insight.”
[7]‡Whoever corrects a scoffer gets himself abuse, and he who reproves a wicked man incurs injury.
[8]Do not reprove a scoffer, or he will hate you;
reprove a wise man, and he will love you.
[9]Give instruction [2] to a wise man, and he will be still wiser;
teach a righteous man, and he will increase in learning.
[10]†The fear of the LORD is the beginning of wisdom,
and the knowledge of the Holy One is insight.
[11]†For by me your days will be multiplied,
and years will be added to your life.
[12]†If you are wise, you are wise for yourself;
if you scoff, you alone will bear it.

The Way of Folly

[13]‡†The woman Folly is loud;
she is seductive [3] and knows nothing.
[14]She sits at the door of her house;
she takes a seat on the highest places of the town, [15]calling to those who pass by,
who are going straight on their way,

[16]“Whoever is simple, let him turn in here!”
And to him who lacks sense she says, [17]†“Stolen water is sweet,
and bread eaten in secret is pleasant.”
[18]†But he does not know that the dead [4] are there, that her guests are in the depths of Sheol.

The Proverbs of Solomon

PROVERBS 10 ‡†The proverbs of Solomon.

A wise son makes a glad father,
but a foolish son is a sorrow to his mother.
[2]†Treasures gained by wickedness do not profit,
but righteousness delivers from death.
[3]†The LORD does not let the righteous go hungry,
but he thwarts the craving of the wicked.
[4]†A slack hand causes poverty,
but the hand of the diligent makes rich.
[5]†He who gathers in summer is a prudent son,
but he who sleeps in harvest is a son who brings shame.
[6]†Blessings are on the head of the righteous,
but the mouth of the wicked conceals violence.
[7]†The memory of the righteous is a blessing,
but the name of the wicked will rot.
[8]†The wise of heart will receive commandments,
but a babbling fool will come to ruin.
[9]†Whoever walks in integrity walks securely,
but he who makes his ways crooked will be found out.
[10]†Whoever winks the eye causes trouble,
but a babbling fool will come to ruin.
[11]†The mouth of the righteous is a fountain of life,
but the mouth of the wicked conceals violence.
[12]†Hatred stirs up strife,
but love covers all offenses.
[13]†On the lips of him who has understanding, wisdom is found,
but a rod is for the back of him who lacks sense.
[14]†The wise lay up knowledge,
but the mouth of a fool brings ruin near.
[15]†A rich man's wealth is his strong city;
the poverty of the poor is their ruin.
[16]†The wage of the righteous leads to life,
the gain of the wicked to sin.

[17]Whoever heeds instruction is on the path to life,
but he who rejects reproof leads others astray.
[18]†The one who conceals hatred has lying lips,
and whoever utters slander is a fool.
[19]†When words are many, transgression is not lacking,
but whoever restrains his lips is prudent.
[20]†The tongue of the righteous is choice silver;
the heart of the wicked is of little worth.
[21]†The lips of the righteous feed many,
but fools die for lack of sense.
[22]†The blessing of the LORD makes rich,
and he adds no sorrow with it. [1] [23]Doing wrong is like a joke to a fool,
but wisdom is pleasure to a man of understanding.
[24]†What the wicked dreads will come upon him,
but the desire of the righteous will be granted.
[25]†When the tempest passes, the wicked is no more,
but the righteous is established forever.
[26]Like vinegar to the teeth and smoke to the eyes,
so is the sluggard to those who send him.
[27]†The fear of the LORD prolongs life,
but the years of the wicked will be short.
[28]The hope of the righteous brings joy,
but the expectation of the wicked will perish.
[29]†The way of the LORD is a stronghold to the blameless, but destruction to evildoers.
[30]†The righteous will never be removed,
but the wicked will not dwell in the land.
[31]The mouth of the righteous brings forth wisdom,
but the perverse tongue will be cut off.
[32]The lips of the righteous know what is acceptable,
but the mouth of the wicked, what is perverse.

PROVERBS 11 †A false balance is an abomination to the LORD,
but a just weight is his delight.
[2]†When pride comes, then comes disgrace,
but with the humble is wisdom.
[3]The integrity of the upright guides them,
but the crookedness of the treacherous destroys them.
[4]†Riches do not profit in the day of wrath,
but righteousness delivers from death.
[5]The righteousness of the blameless keeps his way straight,
but the wicked falls by his own wickedness.
[6]The righteousness of the upright delivers them,
but the treacherous are taken captive by their lust.
[7]When the wicked dies, his hope will perish,
and the expectation of wealth [1] perishes too.
[8]The righteous is delivered from trouble,
and the wicked walks into it instead.
[9]With his mouth the godless man would destroy his neighbor,
but by knowledge the righteous are delivered.
[10]When it goes well with the righteous, the city rejoices,
and when the wicked perish there are shouts of gladness.
[11]†By the blessing of the upright a city is exalted,
but by the mouth of the wicked it is overthrown.
[12]†Whoever belittles his neighbor lacks sense,
but a man of understanding remains silent.
[13]†Whoever goes about slandering reveals secrets,
but he who is trustworthy in spirit keeps a thing covered.
[14]†Where there is no guidance, a people falls,
but in an abundance of counselors there is safety.
[15]†Whoever puts up security for a stranger will surely suffer harm, but he who hates striking hands in pledge is secure.
[16]†A gracious woman gets honor,
and violent men get riches.
[17]A man who is kind benefits himself,
but a cruel man hurts himself.
[18]†The wicked earns deceptive wages,
but one who sows righteousness gets a sure reward.
[19]Whoever is steadfast in righteousness will live,

but he who pursues evil will die.
[20]†Those of crooked heart are an abomination to the LORD,
but those of blameless ways are his delight.
[21]†Be assured, an evil person will not go unpunished,
but the offspring of the righteous will be delivered.
[22]†Like a gold ring in a pig's snout is a beautiful woman without discretion.
[23]†The desire of the righteous ends only in good;
the expectation of the wicked in wrath.
[24]‡One gives freely, yet grows all the richer;
another withholds what he should give, and only suffers want.
[25]Whoever brings blessing will be enriched,
and one who waters will himself be watered.
[26]The people curse him who holds back grain,
but a blessing is on the head of him who sells it.
[27]Whoever diligently seeks good seeks favor, [2]
but evil comes to him who searches for it.
[28]†Whoever trusts in his riches will fall,
but the righteous will flourish like a green leaf.
[29]†Whoever troubles his own household will inherit the wind, and the fool will be servant to the wise of heart.
[30]†The fruit of the righteous is a tree of life,
and whoever captures souls is wise.
[31]†If the righteous is repaid on earth,
how much more the wicked and the sinner!

PROVERBS 12 †Whoever loves discipline loves knowledge, but he who hates reproof is stupid.
[2]A good man obtains favor from the LORD,
but a man of evil devices he condemns.
[3]†No one is established by wickedness,
but the root of the righteous will never be moved.
[4]†An excellent wife is the crown of her husband,
but she who brings shame is like rottenness in his bones.
[5]The thoughts of the righteous are just;
the counsels of the wicked are deceitful.
[6]†The words of the wicked lie in wait for blood,
but the mouth of the upright delivers them.
[7]†The wicked are overthrown and are no more,
but the house of the righteous will stand.
[8]A man is commended according to his good sense,
but one of twisted mind is despised.
[9]†Better to be lowly and have a servant than to play the great man and lack bread.
[10]†Whoever is righteous has regard for the life of his beast,
but the mercy of the wicked is cruel.
[11]†Whoever works his land will have plenty of bread,
but he who follows worthless pursuits lacks sense.
[12]†Whoever is wicked covets the spoil of evildoers,
but the root of the righteous bears fruit.
[13]An evil man is ensnared by the transgression of his lips,
but the righteous escapes from trouble.
[14]†From the fruit of his mouth a man is satisfied with good,
and the work of a man's hand comes back to him.
[15]The way of a fool is right in his own eyes,
but a wise man listens to advice.
[16]†The vexation of a fool is known at once,
but the prudent ignores an insult.
[17]†Whoever speaks [1] the truth gives honest evidence,
but a false witness utters deceit.
[18]†There is one whose rash words are like sword thrusts,
but the tongue of the wise brings healing.
[19]Truthful lips endure forever,

but a lying tongue is but for a moment.
[20]†Deceit is in the heart of those who devise evil,
but those who plan peace have joy.
[21]No ill befalls the righteous,
but the wicked are filled with trouble.
[22]Lying lips are an abomination to the LORD,
but those who act faithfully are his delight.
[23]†A prudent man conceals knowledge,
but the heart of fools proclaims folly.
[24]†The hand of the diligent will rule,
while the slothful will be put to forced labor.
[25]Anxiety in a man's heart weighs him down,
but a good word makes him glad.
[26]†One who is righteous is a guide to his neighbor, [2]
but the way of the wicked leads them astray.
[27]†Whoever is slothful will not roast his game,
but the diligent man will get precious wealth. [3] [28]In the path of righteousness is life,
and in its pathway there is no death.

PROVERBS 13 A wise son hears his father's instruction,
but a scoffer does not listen to rebuke.
[2]‡From the fruit of his mouth a man eats what is good,
but the desire of the treacherous is for violence.
[3]Whoever guards his mouth preserves his life;
he who opens wide his lips comes to ruin.
[4]†The soul of the sluggard craves and gets nothing,
while the soul of the diligent is richly supplied.
[5]The righteous hates falsehood,
but the wicked brings shame [1] and disgrace.
[6]Righteousness guards him whose way is blameless,
but sin overthrows the wicked.
[7]†One pretends to be rich, yet has nothing;
another pretends to be poor, yet has great wealth.
[8]†The ransom of a man's life is his wealth,
but a poor man hears no threat.
[9]†The light of the righteous rejoices,
but the lamp of the wicked will be put out.
[10]†By insolence comes nothing but strife,
but with those who take advice is wisdom.
[11]†Wealth gained hastily [2] will dwindle,
but whoever gathers little by little will increase it.
[12]†Hope deferred makes the heart sick,
but a desire fulfilled is a tree of life.
[13]†Whoever despises the word brings destruction on himself,
but he who reveres the commandment will be rewarded.
[14]†The teaching of the wise is a fountain of life,
that one may turn away from the snares of death.
[15]Good sense wins favor,
but the way of the treacherous is their ruin. [3] [16]†In everything the prudent acts with knowledge,
but a fool flaunts his folly.
[17]A wicked messenger falls into trouble,
but a faithful envoy brings healing.
[18]Poverty and disgrace come to him who ignores instruction,
but whoever heeds reproof is honored.
[19]†A desire fulfilled is sweet to the soul,

but to turn away from evil is an abomination to fools.
[20]†Whoever walks with the wise becomes wise,
but the companion of fools will suffer harm.
[21]†Disaster [4] pursues sinners,
but the righteous are rewarded with good.
[22]†A good man leaves an inheritance to his children's children,
but the sinner's wealth is laid up for the righteous.
[23]†The fallow ground of the poor would yield much food,
but it is swept away through injustice.
[24]†Whoever spares the rod hates his son,
but he who loves him is diligent to discipline him. [5] [25]†The righteous has enough to satisfy his appetite, but the belly of the wicked suffers want.

PROVERBS 14 †The wisest of women builds her house,
but folly with her own hands tears it down.
[2]Whoever walks in uprightness fears the LORD,
but he who is devious in his ways despises him.
[3]†By the mouth of a fool comes a rod for his back, [1]
but the lips of the wise will preserve them.
[4]Where there are no oxen, the manger is clean,
but abundant crops come by the strength of the ox.
[5]A faithful witness does not lie,
but a false witness breathes out lies.
[6]A scoffer seeks wisdom in vain,
but knowledge is easy for a man of understanding.
[7]†Leave the presence of a fool,
for there you do not meet words of knowledge.
[8]The wisdom of the prudent is to discern his way,
but the folly of fools is deceiving.
[9]†Fools mock at the guilt offering,
but the upright enjoy acceptance. [2] [10]†The heart knows its own bitterness, and no stranger shares its joy.
[11]The house of the wicked will be destroyed,
but the tent of the upright will flourish.
[12]†There is a way that seems right to a man,
but its end is the way to death. [3] [13]Even in laughter the heart may ache,
and the end of joy may be grief.
[14]†The backslider in heart will be filled with the fruit of his ways, and a good man will be filled with the fruit of his ways.
[15]The simple believes everything,
but the prudent gives thought to his steps.
[16]One who is wise is cautious [4] and turns away from evil,
but a fool is reckless and careless.
[17]†A man of quick temper acts foolishly,
and a man of evil devices is hated.
[18]The simple inherit folly,
but the prudent are crowned with knowledge.
[19]†The evil bow down before the good,

the wicked at the gates of the righteous.
[20]†The poor is disliked even by his neighbor,
but the rich has many friends.
[21]Whoever despises his neighbor is a sinner,
but blessed is he who is generous to the poor.
[22]Do they not go astray who devise evil?
Those who devise good meet [5] steadfast love and faithfulness.
[23]In all toil there is profit,
but mere talk tends only to poverty.
[24]†The crown of the wise is their wealth,
but the folly of fools brings folly.
[25]†A truthful witness saves lives,
but one who breathes out lies is deceitful.
[26]†In the fear of the LORD one has strong confidence,
and his children will have a refuge.
[27]†The fear of the LORD is a fountain of life,
that one may turn away from the snares of death.
[28]†In a multitude of people is the glory of a king,
but without people a prince is ruined.
[29]†Whoever is slow to anger has great understanding,
but he who has a hasty temper exalts folly.
[30]†A tranquil [6] heart gives life to the flesh,
but envy [7] makes the bones rot.
[31]†Whoever oppresses a poor man insults his Maker,
but he who is generous to the needy honors him.
[32]†The wicked is overthrown through his evildoing,
but the righteous finds refuge in his death.
[33]†Wisdom rests in the heart of a man of understanding, but it makes itself known even in the midst of fools. [8] [34]†Righteousness exalts a nation,
but sin is a reproach to any people.
[35]†A servant who deals wisely has the king's favor,
but his wrath falls on one who acts shamefully.

PROVERBS 15 A soft answer turns away wrath,
but a harsh word stirs up anger.
[2]†The tongue of the wise commends knowledge,
but the mouths of fools pour out folly.
[3]†The eyes of the LORD are in every place,
keeping watch on the evil and the good.
[4]†A gentle [1] tongue is a tree of life,
but perverseness in it breaks the spirit.
[5]A fool despises his father's instruction,
but whoever heeds reproof is prudent.
[6]In the house of the righteous there is much treasure,
but trouble befalls the income of the wicked.
[7]The lips of the wise spread knowledge;
not so the hearts of fools. [2] [8]†The sacrifice of the wicked is an abomination to the LORD,
but the prayer of the upright is acceptable to him.
[9]The way of the wicked is an abomination to the LORD,
but he loves him who pursues righteousness.
[10]†There is severe discipline for him who forsakes the way;
whoever hates reproof will die.
[11]†Sheol and Abaddon lie open before the LORD;
how much more the hearts of the children of man!
[12]A scoffer does not like to be reproved;
he will not go to the wise.
[13]†A glad heart makes a cheerful face,
but by sorrow of heart the spirit is crushed.
[14]The heart of him who has understanding seeks knowledge,
but the mouths of fools feed on folly.
[15]†All the days of the afflicted are evil,
but the cheerful of heart has a continual feast.
[16]††Better is a little with the fear of the LORD than great treasure and trouble with it.
[17]†Better is a dinner of herbs where love is than a fattened ox and hatred with it.
[18]†A hot-tempered man stirs up strife,
but he who is slow to anger quiets contention.
[19]†The way of a sluggard is like a hedge of thorns,

but the path of the upright is a level highway.
[20]A wise son makes a glad father,
but a foolish man despises his mother.
[21]Folly is a joy to him who lacks sense,
but a man of understanding walks straight ahead.
[22]†Without counsel plans fail,
but with many advisers they succeed.
[23]To make an apt answer is a joy to a man, and a word in season, how good it is!
[24]†The path of life leads upward for the prudent, that he may turn away from Sheol beneath.
[25]†The LORD tears down the house of the proud but maintains the widow's boundaries.
[26]The thoughts of the wicked are an abomination to the LORD,
but gracious words are pure.
[27]†Whoever is greedy for unjust gain troubles his own household, but he who hates bribes will live.
[28]†The heart of the righteous ponders how to answer,
but the mouth of the wicked pours out evil things.
[29]The LORD is far from the wicked,
but he hears the prayer of the righteous.
[30]†The light of the eyes rejoices the heart,
and good news refreshes [3] the bones.
[31]†The ear that listens to life-giving reproof will dwell among the wise.
[32]Whoever ignores instruction despises himself,
but he who listens to reproof gains intelligence.
[33]†The fear of the LORD is instruction in wisdom,
and humility comes before honor.

PROVERBS 16 †The plans of the heart belong to man,
but the answer of the tongue is from the LORD.
[2]†All the ways of a man are pure in his own eyes,
but the LORD weighs the spirit.
[3]†Commit your work to the LORD,
and your plans will be established.
[4]†The LORD has made everything for its purpose,
even the wicked for the day of trouble.
[5]Everyone who is arrogant in heart is an abomination to the LORD;
be assured, he will not go unpunished.
[6]†By steadfast love and faithfulness iniquity is atoned for,
and by the fear of the LORD one turns away from evil.
[7]†When a man's ways please the LORD,
he makes even his enemies to be at peace with him.
[8]Better is a little with righteousness than great revenues with injustice.
[9]†The heart of man plans his way,
but the LORD establishes his steps.
[10]†An oracle is on the lips of a king;
his mouth does not sin in judgment.
[11]†A just balance and scales are the LORD's;
all the weights in the bag are his work.
[12]†It is an abomination to kings to do evil,
for the throne is established by righteousness.
[13]Righteous lips are the delight of a king,
and he loves him who speaks what is right.
[14]†A king's wrath is a messenger of death,
and a wise man will appease it.
[15]†In the light of a king's face there is life,
and his favor is like the clouds that bring the spring rain.
[16]†How much better to get wisdom than gold!
To get understanding is to be chosen rather than silver.
[17]†The highway of the upright turns aside from evil;
whoever guards his way preserves his life.
[18]Pride goes before destruction,
and a haughty spirit before a fall.
[19]†It is better to be of a lowly spirit with the poor than to divide the spoil with the proud.

[20]Whoever gives thought to the word [1] will discover good,
and blessed is he who trusts in the LORD.
[21]†The wise of heart is called discerning,
and sweetness of speech increases persuasiveness.
[22]†Good sense is a fountain of life to him who has it,
but the instruction of fools is folly.
[23]†The heart of the wise makes his speech judicious and adds persuasiveness to his lips.
[24]†Gracious words are like a honeycomb, sweetness to the soul and health to the body.
[25]†There is a way that seems right to a man,
but its end is the way to death. [2] [26]†A worker's appetite works for him;
his mouth urges him on.
[27]†A worthless man plots evil,
and his speech [3] is like a scorching fire.
[28]†A dishonest man spreads strife,
and a whisperer separates close friends.
[29]A man of violence entices his neighbor and leads him in a way that is not good.
[30]†Whoever winks his eyes plans [4] dishonest things;
he who purses his lips brings evil to pass.
[31]†Gray hair is a crown of glory;
it is gained in a righteous life.
[32]†Whoever is slow to anger is better than the mighty,
and he who rules his spirit than he who takes a city.
[33]†The lot is cast into the lap,
but its every decision is from the LORD.

PROVERBS 17 †Better is a dry morsel with quiet than a house full of feasting [1] with strife.
[2]†A servant who deals wisely will rule over a son who acts shamefully and will share the inheritance as one of the brothers.
[3]†The crucible is for silver, and the furnace is for gold,
and the LORD tests hearts.
[4]An evildoer listens to wicked lips,
and a liar gives ear to a mischievous tongue.
[5]†Whoever mocks the poor insults his Maker;
he who is glad at calamity will not go unpunished.
[6]†Grandchildren are the crown of the aged,
and the glory of children is their fathers.
[7]Fine speech is not becoming to a fool;
still less is false speech to a prince.
[8]†A bribe is like a magic stone in the eyes of the one who gives it;
wherever he turns he prospers.
[9]†Whoever covers an offense seeks love,
but he who repeats a matter separates close friends.
[10]†A rebuke goes deeper into a man of understanding than a hundred blows into a fool.
[11]†An evil man seeks only rebellion,
and a cruel messenger will be sent against him.
[12]†Let a man meet a she-bear robbed of her cubs rather than a fool in his folly.
[13]†If anyone returns evil for good,
evil will not depart from his house.
[14]†The beginning of strife is like letting out water,
so quit before the quarrel breaks out.
[15]†He who justifies the wicked and he who condemns the righteous are both alike an abomination to the LORD.
[16]†Why should a fool have money in his hand to buy wisdom
when he has no sense?
[17]†A friend loves at all times,
and a brother is born for adversity.
[18]†One who lacks sense gives a pledge and puts up security in the presence of his neighbor.
[19]†Whoever loves transgression loves strife;

he who makes his door high seeks destruction.
20†A man of crooked heart does not discover good,
and one with a dishonest tongue falls into calamity.
21†He who sires a fool gets himself sorrow,
and the father of a fool has no joy.
22†A joyful heart is good medicine,
but a crushed spirit dries up the bones.
23†The wicked accepts a bribe in secret [2]
to pervert the ways of justice.
24†The discerning sets his face toward wisdom,
but the eyes of a fool are on the ends of the earth.
25†A foolish son is a grief to his father and bitterness to her who bore him.
26†To impose a fine on a righteous man is not good,
nor to strike the noble for their uprightness.
27†Whoever restrains his words has knowledge,
and he who has a cool spirit is a man of understanding.
28†Even a fool who keeps silent is considered wise;
when he closes his lips, he is deemed intelligent.

PROVERBS 18 †Whoever isolates himself seeks his own desire;
he breaks out against all sound judgment.
[2]†A fool takes no pleasure in understanding, but only in expressing his opinion.
[3]†When wickedness comes, contempt comes also,
and with dishonor comes disgrace.
[4]†The words of a man's mouth are deep waters;
the fountain of wisdom is a bubbling brook.
[5]†It is not good to be partial to [1] the wicked or to deprive the righteous of justice.
[6]†A fool's lips walk into a fight,
and his mouth invites a beating.
[7]A fool's mouth is his ruin,
and his lips are a snare to his soul.
[8]†The words of a whisperer are like delicious morsels;
they go down into the inner parts of the body.
[9]†Whoever is slack in his work is a brother to him who destroys.
[10]†The name of the Lord is a strong tower;
the righteous man runs into it and is safe.
[11]†A rich man's wealth is his strong city,
and like a high wall in his imagination.
[12]†Before destruction a man's heart is haughty,
but humility comes before honor.
[13]If one gives an answer before he hears,
it is his folly and shame.
[14]†A man's spirit will endure sickness,
but a crushed spirit who can bear?
[15]An intelligent heart acquires knowledge,
and the ear of the wise seeks knowledge.
[16]†A man's gift makes room for him and brings him before the great.
[17]†The one who states his case first seems right,
until the other comes and examines him.
[18]†The lot puts an end to quarrels and decides between powerful contenders.
[19]†A brother offended is more unyielding than a strong city, and quarreling is like the bars of a castle.

[20]†From the fruit of a man's mouth his stomach is satisfied;
he is satisfied by the yield of his lips.
[21]†Death and life are in the power of the tongue,
and those who love it will eat its fruits.
[22]†He who finds a wife finds a good thing
and obtains favor from the LORD.
[23]†The poor use entreaties,
but the rich answer roughly.
[24]†A man of many companions may come to ruin,
but there is a friend who sticks closer than a brother.

PROVERBS 19 †Better is a poor person who walks in his integrity than one who is crooked in speech and is a fool.
[2]†Desire [1] without knowledge is not good,
and whoever makes haste with his feet misses his way.
[3]†When a man's folly brings his way to ruin,
his heart rages against the LORD.
[4]†Wealth brings many new friends,
but a poor man is deserted by his friend.
[5]†A false witness will not go unpunished,
and he who breathes out lies will not escape.
[6]†Many seek the favor of a generous man, [2]
and everyone is a friend to a man who gives gifts.
[7]†All a poor man's brothers hate him;
how much more do his friends go far from him!
He pursues them with words, but does not have them. [3] [8]Whoever gets sense loves his own soul;
he who keeps understanding will discover good.
[9]A false witness will not go unpunished,
and he who breathes out lies will perish.
[10]†It is not fitting for a fool to live in luxury,
much less for a slave to rule over princes.
[11]†Good sense makes one slow to anger,
and it is his glory to overlook an offense.
[12]†A king's wrath is like the growling of a lion,
but his favor is like dew on the grass.
[13]†A foolish son is ruin to his father,
and a wife's quarreling is a continual dripping of rain.
[14]†House and wealth are inherited from fathers,
but a prudent wife is from the LORD.
[15]†Slothfulness casts into a deep sleep,
and an idle person will suffer hunger.
[16]†Whoever keeps the commandment keeps his life;
he who despises his ways will die.
[17]†Whoever is generous to the poor lends to the LORD,
and he will repay him for his deed.
[18]†Discipline your son, for there is hope;
do not set your heart on putting him to death.

[19]†A man of great wrath will pay the penalty, for if you deliver him, you will only have to do it again.
[20]Listen to advice and accept instruction,
that you may gain wisdom in the future.
[21]†Many are the plans in the mind of a man,
but it is the purpose of the Lord that will stand.
[22]†What is desired in a man is steadfast love,
and a poor man is better than a liar.
[23]†The fear of the Lord leads to life,
and whoever has it rests satisfied;
he will not be visited by harm.
[24]†The sluggard buries his hand in the dish
and will not even bring it back to his mouth.
[25]†Strike a scoffer, and the simple will learn prudence;
reprove a man of understanding, and he will gain knowledge.
[26]†He who does violence to his father and chases away his mother is a son who brings shame and reproach.
[27]Cease to hear instruction, my son,
and you will stray from the words of knowledge.
[28]†A worthless witness mocks at justice,
and the mouth of the wicked devours iniquity.
[29]†Condemnation is ready for scoffers,
and beating for the backs of fools.

PROVERBS 20 †Wine is a mocker, strong drink a brawler, and whoever is led astray by it is not wise. [1] [2]†The terror of a king is like the growling of a lion;
whoever provokes him to anger forfeits his life.
[3]†It is an honor for a man to keep aloof from strife,
but every fool will be quarreling.
[4]†The sluggard does not plow in the autumn;
he will seek at harvest and have nothing.
[5]†The purpose in a man's heart is like deep water,
but a man of understanding will draw it out.
[6]†Many a man proclaims his own steadfast love,
but a faithful man who can find?
[7]†The righteous who walks in his integrity—blessed are his children after him!
[8]†A king who sits on the throne of judgment
winnows all evil with his eyes.
[9]†Who can say, “I have made my heart pure;
I am clean from my sin”?
[10]†Unequal [2] weights and unequal measures
are both alike an abomination to the LORD.
[11]Even a child makes himself known by his acts,
by whether his conduct is pure and upright. [3] [12]†The hearing ear and the seeing eye,
the LORD has made them both.
[13]†Love not sleep, lest you come to poverty;
open your eyes, and you will have plenty of bread.
[14]†“Bad, bad,” says the buyer,
but when he goes away, then he boasts.
[15]†There is gold and abundance of costly stones,
but the lips of knowledge are a precious jewel.
[16]†Take a man's garment when he has put up security for a stranger, and hold it in pledge when he puts up security for foreigners. [4] [17]Bread gained by deceit is sweet to a man,
but afterward his mouth will be full of gravel.
[18]†Plans are established by counsel;
by wise guidance wage war.
[19]†Whoever goes about slandering reveals secrets;

therefore do not associate with a simple babbler. [5] [20]†If one curses his father or his mother,
his lamp will be put out in utter darkness.
[21]†An inheritance gained hastily in the beginning will not be blessed in the end.
[22]†Do not say, “I will repay evil”;
wait for the LORD, and he will deliver you.
[23]†Unequal weights are an abomination to the LORD,
and false scales are not good.
[24]†A man's steps are from the LORD;
how then can man understand his way?
[25]†It is a snare to say rashly, “It is holy,”
and to reflect only after making vows.
[26]†A wise king winnows the wicked and drives the wheel over them.
[27]†The spirit [6] of man is the lamp of the LORD, searching all his innermost parts.
[28]†Steadfast love and faithfulness preserve the king,
and by steadfast love his throne is upheld.
[29]The glory of young men is their strength,
but the splendor of old men is their gray hair.
[30]†Blows that wound cleanse away evil;
strokes make clean the innermost parts.

PROVERBS 21 †The king's heart is a stream of water in the hand of the LORD;
he turns it wherever he will.
[2]†Every way of a man is right in his own eyes,
but the LORD weighs the heart.
[3]†To do righteousness and justice is more acceptable to the LORD than sacrifice.
[4]†Haughty eyes and a proud heart,
the lamp [1] of the wicked, are sin.
[5]†The plans of the diligent lead surely to abundance,
but everyone who is hasty comes only to poverty.
[6]The getting of treasures by a lying tongue is a fleeting vapor and a snare of death. [2] [7]†The violence of the wicked will sweep them away, because they refuse to do what is just.
[8]The way of the guilty is crooked,
but the conduct of the pure is upright.
[9]†It is better to live in a corner of the housetop
than in a house shared with a quarrelsome wife.
[10]†The soul of the wicked desires evil;
his neighbor finds no mercy in his eyes.
[11]†When a scoffer is punished, the simple becomes wise;
when a wise man is instructed, he gains knowledge.
[12]†The Righteous One observes the house of the wicked;
he throws the wicked down to ruin.
[13]†Whoever closes his ear to the cry of the poor will himself call out and not be answered.
[14]†A gift in secret averts anger,
and a concealed bribe, [3] strong wrath.
[15]When justice is done, it is a joy to the righteous
but terror to evildoers.
[16]†One who wanders from the way of good sense will rest in the assembly of the dead.
[17]†Whoever loves pleasure will be a poor man;
he who loves wine and oil will not be rich.
[18]†The wicked is a ransom for the righteous, and the traitor for the upright.

[19]†It is better to live in a desert land than with a quarrelsome and fretful woman.
[20]Precious treasure and oil are in a wise man's dwelling,
    but a foolish man devours it.
[21]†Whoever pursues righteousness and kindness will find life, righteousness, and honor.
[22]†A wise man scales the city of the mighty and brings down the stronghold in which they trust.
[23]Whoever keeps his mouth and his tongue keeps himself out of trouble.
[24]“Scoffer” is the name of the arrogant, haughty man who acts with arrogant pride.
[25]The desire of the sluggard kills him,
    for his hands refuse to labor.
[26]†All day long he craves and craves,
    but the righteous gives and does not hold back.
[27]†The sacrifice of the wicked is an abomination;
    how much more when he brings it with evil intent.
[28]†A false witness will perish,
    but the word of a man who hears will endure.
[29]†A wicked man puts on a bold face,
    but the upright gives thought to [4] his ways.
[30]No wisdom, no understanding, no counsel can avail against the LORD.
[31]†The horse is made ready for the day of battle,
    but the victory belongs to the LORD.

PROVERBS 22 A good name is to be chosen rather than great riches, and favor is better than silver or gold.
[2]The rich and the poor meet together;
the LORD is the maker of them all.
[3]†The prudent sees danger and hides himself,
but the simple go on and suffer for it.
[4]†The reward for humility and fear of the LORD is riches and honor and life. [1] [5]Thorns and snares are in the way of the crooked;
whoever guards his soul will keep far from them.
[6]†Train up a child in the way he should go;
even when he is old he will not depart from it.
[7]†The rich rules over the poor,
and the borrower is the slave of the lender.
[8]‡Whoever sows injustice will reap calamity,
and the rod of his fury will fail.
[9]Whoever has a bountiful [2] eye will be blessed,
for he shares his bread with the poor.
[10]Drive out a scoffer, and strife will go out,
and quarreling and abuse will cease.
[11]†He who loves purity of heart, and whose speech is gracious, will have the king as his friend.
[12]†The eyes of the LORD keep watch over knowledge,
but he overthrows the words of the traitor.
[13]†The sluggard says, “There is a lion outside!
I shall be killed in the streets!”
[14]†The mouth of forbidden [3] women is a deep pit;
he with whom the LORD is angry will fall into it.
[15]†Folly is bound up in the heart of a child,
but the rod of discipline drives it far from him.
[16]†Whoever oppresses the poor to increase his own wealth, or gives to the rich, will only come to poverty.

Words of the Wise

[17]‡‡Incline your ear, and hear the words of the wise,

and apply your heart to my knowledge, [18]for it will be pleasant if you keep them within you,
if all of them are ready on your lips.
[19]That your trust may be in the LORD,
I have made them known to you today, even to you.
[20]‡Have I not written for you thirty sayings of counsel and knowledge, [21]‡to make you know what is right and true,
that you may give a true answer to those who sent you?
[22]‡‡‡Do not rob the poor, because he is poor,
or crush the afflicted at the gate, [23]for the LORD will plead their cause and rob of life those who rob them.
[24]‡Make no friendship with a man given to anger,
nor go with a wrathful man, [25]lest you learn his ways
and entangle yourself in a snare.
[26]‡Be not one of those who give pledges,
who put up security for debts.
[27]If you have nothing with which to pay,
why should your bed be taken from under you?
[28]‡Do not move the ancient landmark that your fathers have set.
[29]Do you see a man skillful in his work?
He will stand before kings;
he will not stand before obscure men.

PROVERBS 23 ‡When you sit down to eat with a ruler, observe carefully what [1] is before you, [2]and put a knife to your throat
if you are given to appetite.
[3]Do not desire his delicacies,
for they are deceptive food.
[4]‡Do not toil to acquire wealth;
be discerning enough to desist.
[5]When your eyes light on it, it is gone,
for suddenly it sprouts wings,
flying like an eagle toward heaven.
[6]‡Do not eat the bread of a man who is stingy; [2]
do not desire his delicacies,
[7]for he is like one who is inwardly calculating. [3]
“Eat and drink!” he says to you,
but his heart is not with you.
[8]You will vomit up the morsels that you have eaten,
and waste your pleasant words.
[9]‡Do not speak in the hearing of a fool,
for he will despise the good sense of your words.
[10]‡Do not move an ancient landmark or enter the fields of the fatherless, [11]‡for their Redeemer is strong;
he will plead their cause against you.
[12]Apply your heart to instruction and your ear to words of knowledge.
[13]‡Do not withhold discipline from a child;
if you strike him with a rod, he will not die.
[14]‡If you strike him with the rod,
you will save his soul from Sheol.
[15]‡My son, if your heart is wise,
my heart too will be glad.
[16]‡My inmost being [4] will exult
when your lips speak what is right.
[17]‡Let not your heart envy sinners, but continue in the fear of the LORD all the day.
[18]‡Surely there is a future,

and your hope will not be cut off.
[19]‡Hear, my son, and be wise,
and direct your heart in the way.
[20]‡Be not among drunkards [5]
or among gluttonous eaters of meat, [21]for the drunkard and the glutton will come to poverty,
and slumber will clothe them with rags.
[22]‡Listen to your father who gave you life,
and do not despise your mother when she is old.
[23]‡Buy truth, and do not sell it;
buy wisdom, instruction, and understanding.
[24]‡The father of the righteous will greatly rejoice;
he who fathers a wise son will be glad in him.
[25]Let your father and mother be glad;
let her who bore you rejoice.
[26]My son, give me your heart,
and let your eyes observe [6] my ways.
[27]‡For a prostitute is a deep pit;
an adulteress [7] is a narrow well.
[28]She lies in wait like a robber and increases the traitors among mankind.
[29]‡Who has woe? Who has sorrow?
Who has strife? Who has complaining?
Who has wounds without cause?
Who has redness of eyes?
[30]‡Those who tarry long over wine;
those who go to try mixed wine.
[31]‡Do not look at wine when it is red,
when it sparkles in the cup
and goes down smoothly.
[32]‡In the end it bites like a serpent and stings like an adder.
[33]‡Your eyes will see strange things,
and your heart utter perverse things.
[34]‡You will be like one who lies down in the midst of the sea, like one who lies on the top of a mast. [8] [35]‡“They struck me,” you will say, [9] “but I was not hurt;

they beat me, but I did not feel it.
When shall I awake?
I must have another drink."

PROVERBS 24 ‡Be not envious of evil men,
nor desire to be with them,
[2]for their hearts devise violence,
and their lips talk of trouble.
[3]‡By wisdom a house is built,
and by understanding it is established;
[4]by knowledge the rooms are filled with all precious and pleasant riches.
[5]‡A wise man is full of strength, and a man of knowledge enhances his might,
[6]for by wise guidance you can wage your war,
and in abundance of counselors there is victory.
[7]‡Wisdom is too high for a fool;
in the gate he does not open his mouth.
[8]Whoever plans to do evil
will be called a schemer.
[9]The devising [1] of folly is sin,
and the scoffer is an abomination to mankind.
[10]If you faint in the day of adversity,
your strength is small.
[11]‡Rescue those who are being taken away to death;
hold back those who are stumbling to the slaughter.
[12]‡If you say, “Behold, we did not know this,”
does not he who weighs the heart perceive it?
Does not he who keeps watch over your soul know it,
and will he not repay man according to his work?
[13]‡My son, eat honey, for it is good,
and the drippings of the honeycomb are sweet to your taste.
[14]‡Know that wisdom is such to your soul;
if you find it, there will be a future,
and your hope will not be cut off.
[15]‡Lie not in wait as a wicked man against the dwelling of the righteous;
do no violence to his home;
[16]for the righteous falls seven times and rises again,
but the wicked stumble in times of calamity.
[17]‡Do not rejoice when your enemy falls,

and let not your heart be glad when he stumbles, [18]lest the Lord see it and be displeased,
and turn away his anger from him.
[19]‡Fret not yourself because of evildoers,
and be not envious of the wicked, [20]‡for the evil man has no future;
the lamp of the wicked will be put out.
[21]‡My son, fear the Lord and the king,
and do not join with those who do otherwise, [22]‡for disaster will arise suddenly from them,
and who knows the ruin that will come from them both?

More Sayings of the Wise

[23]‡‡These also are sayings of the wise.

Partiality in judging is not good.
[24]Whoever says to the wicked, “You are in the right,”
will be cursed by peoples, abhorred by nations, [25]but those who rebuke the wicked will have delight,
and a good blessing will come upon them.
[26]‡Whoever gives an honest answer kisses the lips.
[27]‡Prepare your work outside;
get everything ready for yourself in the field,
and after that build your house.
[28]‡Be not a witness against your neighbor without cause,
and do not deceive with your lips.
[29]Do not say, “I will do to him as he has done to me;
I will pay the man back for what he has done.”
[30]‡I passed by the field of a sluggard,
by the vineyard of a man lacking sense, [31]and behold, it was all overgrown with thorns;
the ground was covered with nettles,
and its stone wall was broken down.
[32]Then I saw and considered it;
I looked and received instruction.

[33]A little sleep, a little slumber,
a little folding of the hands to rest,
[34]and poverty will come upon you like a robber,
and want like an armed man.

More Proverbs of Solomon

PROVERBS 25 ‡†These also are proverbs of Solomon which the men of Hezekiah king of Judah copied.

[2]‡It is the glory of God to conceal things,
but the glory of kings is to search things out.
[3]As the heavens for height, and the earth for depth,
so the heart of kings is unsearchable.
[4]‡Take away the dross from the silver,
and the smith has material for a vessel;
[5]take away the wicked from the presence of the king,
and his throne will be established in righteousness.
[6]‡Do not put yourself forward in the king's presence or stand in the place of the great,
[7]for it is better to be told, “Come up here,”
than to be put lower in the presence of a noble.
What your eyes have seen [8]‡do not hastily bring into court, for [1] what will you do in the end,
when your neighbor puts you to shame?
[9]Argue your case with your neighbor himself,
and do not reveal another's secret, [10]lest he who hears you bring shame upon you,
and your ill repute have no end.
[11]‡A word fitly spoken
is like apples of gold in a setting of silver.
[12]Like a gold ring or an ornament of gold is a wise reprover to a listening ear.
[13]†Like the cold of snow in the time of harvest is a faithful messenger to those who send him;
he refreshes the soul of his masters.
[14]Like clouds and wind without rain is a man who boasts of a gift he does not give.
[15]†With patience a ruler may be persuaded,
and a soft tongue will break a bone.

[16]†If you have found honey, eat only enough for you,
lest you have your fill of it and vomit it.
[17]Let your foot be seldom in your neighbor's house,
lest he have his fill of you and hate you.
[18]†A man who bears false witness against his neighbor is like a war club, or a sword, or a sharp arrow.
[19]Trusting in a treacherous man in time of trouble is like a bad tooth or a foot that slips.
[20]†Whoever sings songs to a heavy heart is like one who takes off a garment on a cold day,
and like vinegar on soda.
[21]†If your enemy is hungry, give him bread to eat,
and if he is thirsty, give him water to drink, [22]for you will heap burning coals on his head,
and the LORD will reward you.
[23]†The north wind brings forth rain,
and a backbiting tongue, angry looks.
[24]†It is better to live in a corner of the housetop
than in a house shared with a quarrelsome wife.
[25]†Like cold water to a thirsty soul,
so is good news from a far country.
[26]†Like a muddied spring or a polluted fountain is a righteous man who gives way before the wicked.
[27]†It is not good to eat much honey,
nor is it glorious to seek one's own glory. [2] [28]†A man without self-control is like a city broken into and left without walls.

PROVERBS 26 ‡†Like snow in summer or rain in harvest,
so honor is not fitting for a fool.
[2]†Like a sparrow in its flitting, like a swallow in its flying,
a curse that is causeless does not alight.
[3]A whip for the horse, a bridle for the donkey,
and a rod for the back of fools.
[4]‡Answer not a fool according to his folly,
lest you be like him yourself.
[5]Answer a fool according to his folly,
lest he be wise in his own eyes.
[6]†Whoever sends a message by the hand of a fool cuts off his own feet and drinks violence.
[7]†Like a lame man's legs, which hang useless,
is a proverb in the mouth of fools.
[8]†Like one who binds the stone in the sling is one who gives honor to a fool.
[9]Like a thorn that goes up into the hand of a drunkard
is a proverb in the mouth of fools.
[10]†Like an archer who wounds everyone is one who hires a passing fool or drunkard. [1] [11]†Like a dog that returns to his vomit is a fool who repeats his folly.
[12]†Do you see a man who is wise in his own eyes?
There is more hope for a fool than for him.
[13]‡The sluggard says, “There is a lion in the road!
There is a lion in the streets!”
[14]As a door turns on its hinges,
so does a sluggard on his bed.
[15]The sluggard buries his hand in the dish;
it wears him out to bring it back to his mouth.
[16]†The sluggard is wiser in his own eyes than seven men who can answer sensibly.
[17]‡†Whoever meddles in a quarrel not his own is like one who takes a passing dog by the ears.
[18]‡Like a madman who throws firebrands, arrows, and death
[19]is the man who deceives his neighbor and says, “I am only joking!”

[20]‡For lack of wood the fire goes out,
and where there is no whisperer, quarreling ceases.
[21]As charcoal to hot embers and wood to fire,
so is a quarrelsome man for kindling strife.
[22]‡The words of a whisperer are like delicious morsels;
they go down into the inner parts of the body.
[23]‡Like the glaze [2] covering an earthen vessel are fervent lips with an evil heart.
[24]Whoever hates disguises himself with his lips
and harbors deceit in his heart; [25]when he speaks graciously, believe him not,
for there are seven abominations in his heart; [26]though his hatred be covered with deception,
his wickedness will be exposed in the assembly.
[27]‡Whoever digs a pit will fall into it,
and a stone will come back on him who starts it rolling.
[28]A lying tongue hates its victims,
and a flattering mouth works ruin.

PROVERBS 27 †Do not boast about tomorrow,
for you do not know what a day may bring.
[2]Let another praise you, and not your own mouth;
a stranger, and not your own lips.
[3]A stone is heavy, and sand is weighty,
but a fool's provocation is heavier than both.
[4]†Wrath is cruel, anger is overwhelming,
but who can stand before jealousy?
[5]†Better is open rebuke than hidden love.
[6]†Faithful are the wounds of a friend;
profuse are the kisses of an enemy.
[7]†One who is full loathes honey,
but to one who is hungry everything bitter is sweet.
[8]†Like a bird that strays from its nest is a man who strays from his home.
[9]Oil and perfume make the heart glad,
and the sweetness of a friend comes from his earnest counsel. [1] [10]†Do not forsake your friend and your father's friend, and do not go to your brother's house in the day of your calamity.
Better is a neighbor who is near than a brother who is far away.
[11]†Be wise, my son, and make my heart glad,
that I may answer him who reproaches me.
[12]†The prudent sees danger and hides himself,
but the simple go on and suffer for it.
[13]†Take a man's garment when he has put up security for a stranger, and hold it in pledge when he puts up security for an adulteress. [2] [14]†Whoever blesses his neighbor with a loud voice, rising early in the morning,
will be counted as cursing.
[15]†A continual dripping on a rainy day
and a quarrelsome wife are alike; [16]to restrain her is to restrain the wind or to grasp [3] oil in one's right hand.
[17]†Iron sharpens iron,

and one man sharpens another. [4] [18]Whoever tends a fig tree will eat its fruit,
and he who guards his master will be honored.
[19]As in water face reflects face,
so the heart of man reflects the man.
[20]†Sheol and Abaddon are never satisfied,
and never satisfied are the eyes of man.
[21]†The crucible is for silver, and the furnace is for gold,
and a man is tested by his praise.
[22]†Crush a fool in a mortar with a pestle
along with crushed grain,
yet his folly will not depart from him.
[23]‡Know well the condition of your flocks,
and give attention to your herds, [24]for riches do not last forever;
and does a crown endure to all generations?
[25]When the grass is gone and the new growth appears and the vegetation of the mountains is gathered, [26]the lambs will provide your clothing,
and the goats the price of a field.
[27]There will be enough goats' milk for your food, for the food of your household and maintenance for your girls.

PROVERBS 28 †The wicked flee when no one pursues,
but the righteous are bold as a lion.
[2]†When a land transgresses, it has many rulers,
but with a man of understanding and knowledge,
its stability will long continue.
[3]†A poor man who oppresses the poor is a beating rain that leaves no food.
[4]Those who forsake the law praise the wicked,
but those who keep the law strive against them.
[5]Evil men do not understand justice,
but those who seek the LORD understand it completely.
[6]Better is a poor man who walks in his integrity than a rich man who is crooked in his ways.
[7]†The one who keeps the law is a son with understanding, but a companion of gluttons shames his father.
[8]†Whoever multiplies his wealth by interest and profit [1] gathers it for him who is generous to the poor.
[9]†If one turns away his ear from hearing the law,
even his prayer is an abomination.
[10]†Whoever misleads the upright into an evil way will fall into his own pit,
but the blameless will have a goodly inheritance.
[11]†A rich man is wise in his own eyes,
but a poor man who has understanding will find him out.
[12]†When the righteous triumph, there is great glory,
but when the wicked rise, people hide themselves.
[13]†Whoever conceals his transgressions will not prosper,
but he who confesses and forsakes them will obtain mercy.
[14]†Blessed is the one who fears the LORD always,
but whoever hardens his heart will fall into calamity.
[15]Like a roaring lion or a charging bear is a wicked ruler over a poor people.
[16]†A ruler who lacks understanding is a cruel oppressor, but he who hates unjust gain will prolong his days.
[17]†If one is burdened with the blood of another,
he will be a fugitive until death; [2]
let no one help him.

[18]Whoever walks in integrity will be delivered,
but he who is crooked in his ways will suddenly fall.
[19]Whoever works his land will have plenty of bread,
but he who follows worthless pursuits will have plenty of poverty.
[20]†A faithful man will abound with blessings,
but whoever hastens to be rich will not go unpunished.
[21]†To show partiality is not good,
but for a piece of bread a man will do wrong.
[22]†A stingy man [3] hastens after wealth and does not know that poverty will come upon him.
[23]†Whoever rebukes a man will afterward find more favor than he who flatters with his tongue.
[24]†Whoever robs his father or his mother and says, “That is no transgression,” is a companion to a man who destroys.
[25]†A greedy man stirs up strife,
but the one who trusts in the LORD will be enriched.
[26]Whoever trusts in his own mind is a fool,
but he who walks in wisdom will be delivered.
[27]†Whoever gives to the poor will not want,
but he who hides his eyes will get many a curse.
[28]†When the wicked rise, people hide themselves,
but when they perish, the righteous increase.

PROVERBS 29 †He who is often reproved, yet stiffens his neck, will suddenly be broken beyond healing.
[2]†When the righteous increase, the people rejoice,
but when the wicked rule, the people groan.
[3]He who loves wisdom makes his father glad,
but a companion of prostitutes squanders his wealth.
[4]†By justice a king builds up the land,
but he who exacts gifts [1] tears it down.
[5]†A man who flatters his neighbor spreads a net for his feet.
[6]An evil man is ensnared in his transgression,
but a righteous man sings and rejoices.
[7]A righteous man knows the rights of the poor;
a wicked man does not understand such knowledge.
[8]†Scoffers set a city aflame,
but the wise turn away wrath.
[9]†If a wise man has an argument with a fool,
the fool only rages and laughs, and there is no quiet.
[10]Bloodthirsty men hate one who is blameless and seek the life of the upright. [2] [11]A fool gives full vent to his spirit,
but a wise man quietly holds it back.
[12]†If a ruler listens to falsehood,
all his officials will be wicked.
[13]†The poor man and the oppressor meet together;
the LORD gives light to the eyes of both.
[14]If a king faithfully judges the poor,
his throne will be established forever.
[15]†The rod and reproof give wisdom,
but a child left to himself brings shame to his mother.
[16]When the wicked increase, transgression increases,
but the righteous will look upon their downfall.
[17]†Discipline your son, and he will give you rest;
he will give delight to your heart.
[18]†Where there is no prophetic vision the people cast off restraint, [3]
but blessed is he who keeps the law.
[19]†By mere words a servant is not disciplined,

for though he understands, he will not respond.
[20]†Do you see a man who is hasty in his words?
There is more hope for a fool than for him.
[21]†Whoever pampers his servant from childhood will in the end find him his heir. [4] [22]†A man of wrath stirs up strife,
and one given to anger causes much transgression.
[23]†One's pride will bring him low,
but he who is lowly in spirit will obtain honor.
[24]†The partner of a thief hates his own life;
he hears the curse, but discloses nothing.
[25]The fear of man lays a snare,
but whoever trusts in the LORD is safe.
[26]†Many seek the face of a ruler,
but it is from the LORD that a man gets justice.
[27]An unjust man is an abomination to the righteous, but one whose way is straight is an abomination to the wicked.

The Words of Agur

PROVERBS 30 ‡†The words of Agur son of Jakeh. The oracle. [1]

The man declares, I am weary, O God;
I am weary, O God, and worn out. [2]
[2]‡Surely I am too stupid to be a man.
I have not the understanding of a man.
[3]†I have not learned wisdom,
nor have I knowledge of the Holy One.
[4]†Who has ascended to heaven and come down?
Who has gathered the wind in his fists?
Who has wrapped up the waters in a garment?
Who has established all the ends of the earth?
What is his name, and what is his son's name?
Surely you know!
[5]‡†Every word of God proves true;
he is a shield to those who take refuge in him.
[6]†Do not add to his words,
lest he rebuke you and you be found a liar.
[7]‡Two things I ask of you;
deny them not to me before I die:
[8]Remove far from me falsehood and lying;
give me neither poverty nor riches;
feed me with the food that is needful for me, [9]†lest I be full and deny you and say, “Who is the LORD?”
or lest I be poor and steal
and profane the name of my God.
[10]Do not slander a servant to his master,
lest he curse you, and you be held guilty.
[11]‡†There are those [3] who curse their fathers and do not bless their mothers.
[12]†There are those who are clean in their own eyes
but are not washed of their filth.
[13]†There are those—how lofty are their eyes,

how high their eyelids lift!
[14]†There are those whose teeth are swords,
whose fangs are knives,
to devour the poor from off the earth,
the needy from among mankind.
[15]†The leech has two daughters:
Give and Give. [4]
Three things are never satisfied;
four never say, “Enough”:
[16]†Sheol, the barren womb,
the land never satisfied with water,
and the fire that never says, “Enough.”
[17]†The eye that mocks a father and scorns to obey a mother will be picked out by the ravens of the valley and eaten by the vultures.
[18]†Three things are too wonderful for me;
four I do not understand:
[19]the way of an eagle in the sky,
the way of a serpent on a rock,
the way of a ship on the high seas,
and the way of a man with a virgin.
[20]This is the way of an adulteress:
she eats and wipes her mouth and says, “I have done no wrong.” [21]†Under three things the earth trembles;
under four it cannot bear up:
[22]a slave when he becomes king,
and a fool when he is filled with food;
[23]an unloved woman when she gets a husband,
and a maidservant when she displaces her mistress.
[24]†Four things on earth are small,
but they are exceedingly wise:
[25]†the ants are a people not strong,
yet they provide their food in the summer;
[26]†the rock badgers are a people not mighty,
yet they make their homes in the cliffs;

[27]†the locusts have no king,
yet all of them march in rank;
[28]†the lizard you can take in your hands,
yet it is in kings' palaces.
[29]‡Three things are stately in their tread;
four are stately in their stride:
[30]the lion, which is mightiest among beasts and does not turn back before any;
[31]†the strutting rooster, [5] the he-goat,
and a king whose army is with him. [6] [32]†If you have been foolish, exalting yourself, or if you have been devising evil,
put your hand on your mouth.
[33]†For pressing milk produces curds, pressing the nose produces blood,
and pressing anger produces strife.

The Words of King Lemuel

PROVERBS 31 ‡†The words of King Lemuel. An oracle that his mother taught him:

[2]‡†What are you doing, my son? [1] What are you doing, son of my womb?
What are you doing, son of my vows?
[3]†Do not give your strength to women,
your ways to those who destroy kings.
[4]‡It is not for kings, O Lemuel,
it is not for kings to drink wine,
or for rulers to take strong drink,
[5]lest they drink and forget what has been decreed and pervert the rights of all the afflicted.
[6]‡Give strong drink to the one who is perishing, and wine to those in bitter distress; [2] [7]let them drink and forget their poverty and remember their misery no more.
[8]‡Open your mouth for the mute,
for the rights of all who are destitute. [3] [9]Open your mouth, judge righteously, defend the rights of the poor and needy.

The Woman Who Fears the LORD

[10]‡‡† [4] An excellent wife who can find?
She is far more precious than jewels.
[11]†The heart of her husband trusts in her,
and he will have no lack of gain.
[12]She does him good, and not harm,
all the days of her life.
[13]‡†She seeks wool and flax,
and works with willing hands.
[14]†She is like the ships of the merchant;

she brings her food from afar.
[15]†She rises while it is yet night and provides food for her household and portions for her maidens.
[16]†She considers a field and buys it;
with the fruit of her hands she plants a vineyard.
[17]†She dresses herself [5] with strength and makes her arms strong.
[18]†She perceives that her merchandise is profitable.
Her lamp does not go out at night.
[19]†She puts her hands to the distaff,
and her hands hold the spindle.
[20]‡She opens her hand to the poor and reaches out her hands to the needy.
[21]†She is not afraid of snow for her household,
for all her household are clothed in scarlet. [6] [22]†She makes bed coverings for herself;
her clothing is fine linen and purple.
[23]†Her husband is known in the gates
when he sits among the elders of the land.
[24]†She makes linen garments and sells them;
she delivers sashes to the merchant.
[25]‡†Strength and dignity are her clothing,
and she laughs at the time to come.
[26]†She opens her mouth with wisdom,
and the teaching of kindness is on her tongue.
[27]†She looks well to the ways of her household and does not eat the bread of idleness.
[28]‡†Her children rise up and call her blessed;
her husband also, and he praises her: [29]‡“Many women have done excellently,
but you surpass them all.”
[30]‡†Charm is deceitful, and beauty is vain,
but a woman who fears the Lord is to be praised.
[31]†Give her of the fruit of her hands,
and let her works praise her in the gates.

Study Notes

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 1:1–7 These verses form the prologue, where the reader is called to serious study for his own benefit. In a few brief words, he is introduced to: 1) the genre of this literature (v. 1); 2) a clear twofold purpose (vv. 2–6); and 3) an all-important motto (v. 7).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 1:1 proverbs. See Introduction: Title. The proverbs are short, pithy sayings that express timeless truth and wisdom. They arrest one's thoughts, causing the reader to reflect on how one might apply divine principles to life situations (e.g., 2:12). Proverbs contains insights both in poetry and prose; yet, at the same time, it includes commands to be obeyed. God's proverbs are not limited to this book alone (see Gen. 10:9; 1 Sam. 10:12; 24:13; Jer. 31:29; Ezek. 12:22; 18:2). Solomon. See Introduction: Author and Date. As Solomon became king of Israel, he sought and received wisdom and knowledge from the Lord (2 Chron. 1:7–12), which led him to wealth, honor, and fame.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 1:2–6 The twofold purpose of the book is 1) to produce the skill of godly living by wisdom and instruction (v. 2a; expanded in vv. 3–4), and 2) to develop discernment (v. 2b, expanded in v. 5).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 1:2 wisdom. See Introduction: Historical and Theological Themes. To the Hebrew mind, wisdom was not knowledge alone, but the skill of living a godly life as God intended man to live (cf. Deut. 4:5–8). instruction. This refers to the discipline of the moral nature. understand. This word looks at the mental discipline that matures one for spiritual discernment.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 1:3 wise dealing, in righteousness, justice, and equity. Expanding the purpose and terms of v. 2a, Proverbs engages in a process of schooling a son in the disciplines of: 1) wise behavior (a different Hebrew word from that in v. 2) which means discreet counsel or the ability to govern oneself by choice; 2) righteousness, the application of God's standards in dealing with others; 3) justice, the ability to conform to the will and standard of God; a practical righteousness that matches one's positional righteousness; and 4) equity, the living of life in a fair, pleasing way.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 1:4 prudence . . . simple. The purpose is to impart discernment to the naive and the ignorant. The root of "simple" is a word meaning "an open door," an apt description of the undiscerning, who do not know what to keep in or out of their minds. knowledge and discretion to the youth. To make one ponder before sinning, thus to make a responsible choice.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 1:5 guidance. The wise believer will have the ability to guide or govern others with truth.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 1:6 understand a proverb . . . saying. Proverbs seeks to sharpen the mind by schooling one in "parabolic speech" and "dark sayings" that need reflection and interpretation. riddles. Study of the Scriptures is sufficient to provide the wisdom for the perplexities of life.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 1:7 The fear of the Lord. The overarching theme of this book and particularly the first nine chapters is introduced—reverence for God (see v. 29; 2:5; 3:7; 8:13; 9:10; 14:26–27; cf. also Job 28:28; Ps. 34:11; Acts 9:31). See Introduction: Historical and Theological Themes. This reverential awe and admiring, submissive fear is foundational for all spiritual knowledge and wisdom (cf. Prov. 2:4–6; 9:10; 15:33; Job 28:28; Ps. 111:10; Eccles. 12:13). While the unbeliever may make statements about life and truth, he does not have true or ultimate knowledge until he is in a redemptive relationship of reverential awe with God. Notice the progression here: 1) teaching about God; 2) learning about God; 3) fearing God; 4) knowing God; and 5) imitating God's wisdom. The fear of the Lord is a state of mind in which one's own attitudes, will, feelings, deeds, and goals are exchanged for God's (cf. Ps. 42:1).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 1:8–9:18 This lengthy section features parental praise of wisdom in the form of didactic addresses. These chapters prepare the reader for the actual proverbs that begin in 10:1ff.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 1:10–19 Here is a warning against enticement by sinners, who will succeed if his son fails to embrace wisdom (v. 8).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 1:10 sinners. This term is reserved in Scripture to describe unbelievers for whom sin is continual and who endeavor to persuade even believers to sin with them (see note on James 4:8). The sins of murder and robbery are used as illustrations of such folly.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 1:11 Come with us. The intimidating force of peer pressure is often the way to entice those who lack wisdom.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 1:12 swallow. The wicked devise a plot of deception in which the innocent are captured and victimized like one who is taken by death itself—as with Joseph (Gen. 37:20ff.), Jeremiah (Jer. 38:6–13), and Daniel (Dan. 6:16–17). “Pit” is the place of death. For the wicked it is a place of no return (Job 7:9), darkness (Ps. 143:3), and torment (Isa. 14:11).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 1:13 we . . . plunder. This is the enlisting of the innocent without full disclosure of intent. Abundant spoil is promised by this outright robbery, which is made to appear easy and safe for the thieves and murderers.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 1:15 do not walk. This directly confronts the invitation of v. 11. Sin must be rejected at the first temptation (cf. Ps. 119:114–115; James 1:15) by refusing even the association that can lead to sin (cf. Ps. 1:1–6). Avoid the beginnings of sin (see Prov. 4:14).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 1:17 net spread. It would be ineffective to set up a net for catching a bird in full view of the bird. Taken with v. 18, this analogy means that the sinner sets up his trap for the innocent in secret, but in the end the trap is sprung on him (v. 19). This greed entraps him (cf. 1 Tim. 6:9–11). Stupid sinners rush to their own ruin.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 1:20–33 In this section, wisdom is personified and speaks in the first person, emphasizing the serious consequences that come to those who reject it. Similar personifications of wisdom occur in 3:14–18; 8:1–36; 9:1–12.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 1:21 cries out . . . the city. While enticement is covert and secret (v. 10), wisdom, with nothing to hide, is available to everyone, being found in the most prominent of public places.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 1:22 How long. Three questions reveal three classes of those needing wisdom, and the downward progression of sin: 1) the naive or simple-minded, who are ignorant; 2) scoffers or mockers, who commit more serious, determined acts; and 3) fools or obstinate unbelievers, who will not listen to the truth. Proverbs aims its wisdom primarily at the first group.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 1:23 reproof. God's wisdom brings to bear against the sinner indictments for sin that demand repentance. To the one who does repent, God promises the spirit or essence of true wisdom linked to divine revelation.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 1:24–26 Sinners who respond with indifference and mockery at God's indictments increase their guilt (cf. Rom. 2:5) and bring upon themselves the wrath of God's mockery and indifference (Prov. 1:26–27). Some wait to seek God until it is too late. See Deut. 1:45; 1 Sam. 28:6; Ps. 18:41.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 1:26–27 calamity . . . terror . . . distress and anguish. All these terms describe the severe troubles of divine judgment. When sinners who have rejected wisdom call on God in the day of judgment, God will respond to their distress with derision.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 1:28–32 God's rejection of sinners is carefully detailed. This is the aspect of God's wrath expressed in his abandonment of sinners. See notes on Rom. 1:24–28. No prayers or diligent seeking will help them (cf. Prov. 8:17).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 1:28–30 I will not answer. God will withdraw his invitation to sinners because they have rejected him. Notice the rejection of wisdom (v. 7), knowledge (v. 22), reproof (vv. 23–24), and counsel (v. 25).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 1:31 eat the fruit of their way. The ultimate punishment is God's giving a people up to the result of their wickedness.

Cf. Rom. 1:24–28.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 1:32 complacency. Willful carelessness or lack of appropriate care is intended.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 2:1 my words. Solomon has taken God's law and made it his own by faith and obedience, as well as teaching. The wisdom of these words is available to those who, first of all, understand the rich value ("treasure") that wisdom possesses. Appropriating wisdom begins when one values it above all else.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 2:2 ear . . . heart. See note on 4:21–23. Once wisdom is properly valued, both the ear and mind are captivated by it.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 2:3 call out for insight. This shows the passionate pleading of one who is desperate to know and apply the truth of God. The least bit of indifference will leave one bereft of the fullness of wisdom.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 2:4 seek . . . search. A desiring search, the most intensive of a lifetime. Cf. Job 28:1–28 for a parallel.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 2:6 his mouth. The words of his mouth are contained in Scripture. It is there that God speaks (cf. Heb. 1:1–2; 2 Pet. 1:20–21). Wisdom comes only by revelation.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 2:7–8 the upright. This identifies those who are true believers, who seek to know, love, and obey God and to live righteously. These covenant keepers alone can know wisdom and experience God's protection.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 2:9 righteousness and justice and equity. The ethical triad of 1:3.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 2:10 wisdom will come into your heart. See note on 4:21–23.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 2:11 discretion . . . understanding. Truth is the protector from all evil (see Ps. 119:11, 97–104).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 2:12 perverted speech. Twisted speech is typical of those who reject wisdom (cf. 8:13; 10:31–32).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 2:14 Fools love most what is worst.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 2:16 forbidden woman. She is the harlot repeatedly condemned in Proverbs (cf. 5:1–23; 6:20–29; 7:1–27; 22:14; 23:27), as in the rest of Scripture (Ex. 20:14; Lev. 20:10). She is "foreign" or "strange" because such women were at first from outside Israel, but came to include any prostitute or adulteress. Her words are the flattering or smooth words of Prov. 7:14–20.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 2:17 forsakes the companion. She leaves the guidance and friendship of her husband (cf. 16:28; 17:9). forgets the covenant. In a wide sense this could be the covenant of Sinai (Ex. 20:14), but specifically looks to the marriage covenant of Gen. 2:24, with its commitment to fidelity.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 2:18 sinks down to death. The destructive nature of this blinding sin leads one to walk alongside death (see vv. 8–9, 12, 15). Death in Proverbs is presented as both a gradual descent (5:23) and a sudden end (29:1).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 2:19 none who go . . . come back. The irreversible nature of continuing in this sin points to its devastating consequences. It leads to physical death, as expressed in the Hebrew euphemisms of v. 22 ("cut off" and "rooted out"). After that comes the reality of eternal death.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 2:21 inhabit the land . . . remain. Exactly opposite to those who live in sexual sin and are headed for death, those who belong to the Lord will live. See note on 8:18–21.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 3:1–35 Here the study of truth leading to wisdom is commended to all. This is enforced by a contrast of the destinies of the wise and wicked.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 3:1–20 Solomon instructs that wisdom is: 1) rooted in sound teaching (vv. 1–4); 2) rests in trust in God (vv. 5–6), and 3) rewards those who obey (vv. 7–10). While wisdom demands chastening, it brings profound benefits (vv. 13–18), and its importance is clear since it undergirded God’s creation (vv. 19–20).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 3:1 my teaching. Hebrew “Torah,” from the verb “to throw, distribute, or teach,” hence “teaching.” It is used of God’s law (29:18), but here, as in 2:1, it is used of the commands and principles that God gave through Solomon. heart. See note on 4:21–23.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 3:3 neck . . . heart. The virtues of mercy (the Hebrew word for lovingkindness and loyal love) and truth that come from God are to become part of us—outwardly in our behavior for all to see as an adornment of spiritual beauty, and inwardly as the subject of our meditation (cf. Deut. 6:4–9). Such inward and outward mercy and truth is evidence of New Covenant salvation (cf. Jer. 31:33–34).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 3:4 God and man. Cf. Christ in Luke 2:52.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 3:7 This is alluded to by Paul in Rom. 12:16.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 3:8 healing . . . refreshment. The renewal here is in the marrow, the inner parts (Job 21:24). God is promising physical well-being for those who live wisely according to his will. Such physical well-being is what David forfeited before he confessed that he had sinned against Bathsheba and Uriah (see Ps. 32:3–4; 51:8).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 3:9–10 Honor the Lord . . . wealth. A biblical view of wealth demands using possessions for honoring God. This is accomplished by trusting God (v. 5); by giving the best to God (“first”; cf. Ex. 22:29; 23:19; Deut. 18:4); by being fair (Prov. 3:27–28); by giving generously (11:25); and by expressing gratitude for all he gives (Deut. 6:10–12). The result of such faithfulness to honor him is prosperity and satisfaction.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 3:11–12 not despise . . . discipline. Since even the wisest of God’s children are subject to sin, there is necessity of God’s fatherly discipline to increase wisdom and blessing. Such correction should not be resisted. See notes on Heb. 12:5–11.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 3:14–15 Cf. Ps. 19:10–11. Divine wisdom yields the richest treasures, described in Prov. 3:14–18 as "gain," "long life," "riches," "honor," "pleasantness," "peace," "life," and "blessed."

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 3:18 tree of life. This expression is a metaphor referring to temporal and spiritual renewal and refreshment (cf. 11:30; 13:12; 15:4).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 3:19–20 Solomon is indicating that wisdom is basic to all of life, for by it God created everything. Since God used it to create the universe, how eager must we be to use it to live in this universe.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 3:22 life for your soul. The association of wisdom with the inner spiritual life (cf. vv. 2, 16) unfolds throughout the book (cf. 4:10, 22; 7:2; 8:35; 9:11; 10:11, 16–17; 11:19, 30; 12:28; 13:14; 14:27; 15:4, 24; 16:22; 19:23; 21:21; 22:4). adornment for your neck. The wisdom of God will adorn one's life for all to see its beauty (cf. 1:9).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 3:25–26 afraid . . . confidence. Living in God's wisdom provides the basis for the believer's peace of mind (v. 24) and removes fear (v. 25).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 3:28 neighbor. A neighbor is anyone in need whom God brings across one's path. See Luke 10:29–37.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 3:29 plan . . . dwells. Do not plan evil against one trusting in your protection.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 3:30 contend. This can mean "come to hand blows," or, with legal overtones, "accuse a man."

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 3:31 envy. Many law keepers wish they were lawbreakers (Ps. 37:1–7). They would like to be oppressors rather than the oppressed.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 3:32 abomination. Specifically, an abomination is an attitude or act that is incompatible with God's nature and intolerable to him, leading to his anger and judgment. This is an important theme in Proverbs (see note on 6:16–19). in his confidence. This means that God discloses himself and his truth to the upright (cf. Ps. 25:14).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 3:34 humble. Lit., “he who bends himself” (James 4:6; 1 Pet. 5:5).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 4:2 good precepts . . . my teaching. There is no wisdom but that which is linked to sound teaching, which should be the focal point of all instruction (cf. 1 Tim. 1:10; 4:13, 16; 5:17; 2 Tim. 3:10, 16; 4:2; Titus 1:9; 2:1, 10).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 4:3–5 son with my father . . . my mother. This is Solomon’s reference to David and Bathsheba (2 Sam. 12:24).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 4:8 Prize . . . exalt . . . honor . . . embrace. The more highly one esteems wisdom, the more highly wisdom lifts that person.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 4:9 head. See note on 3:22.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 4:13 Keep . . . do not let go; guard. The father commanded his son in v. 5 to “get wisdom”; here he commands him to hold on to it.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 4:14 Do not enter the path of the wicked. Sin is best dealt with at its beginning by the application of necessary wisdom to suit the initial temptation (cf. Ps. 1:1).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 4:15 Four verbs identify aspects necessary in urgently dealing with sin at its start (v. 14): 1) avoid the sinful situation; 2) pass as far from it as possible; 3) turn away from the sin; and 4) pass beyond or escape the sin. The plan here fits exactly with the pattern of sin’s enticement outlined in James 1:13–15.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 4:16–17 they cannot sleep. Cf. 3:24. They have to sin before they can sleep, and they view their sin as food for their hungry, wicked souls.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 4:18 path of the . . . light of dawn. The path of the believer is one of increasing light, just as a sunrise begins with the faint glow of dawn and proceeds to the splendor of noonday.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 4:21–23 heart. The "heart" commonly refers to the mind as the center of thinking and reason (3:3; 6:21; 7:3), but also includes the emotions (15:15, 30), the will (11:20; 14:14), and thus, the whole inner being (3:5). The heart is the depository of all wisdom and the source of whatever affects speech (4:24), sight (v. 25), and conduct (vv. 26–27).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 5:1–2 be attentive. The wise father marshals all the essential terms to sum up his call to wisdom (cf. 1:2; 2:2; 3:13; 4:5).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 5:3 lips . . . speech. Seduction begins with deceptive flattery (cf. 2:16). Lips of honey should be part of true love in marriage (Song 4:11).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 5:4–5 in the end. Lit., "the future" of tasting her lips is like "wormwood," a symbol of suffering (cf. Deut. 29:18), and a "sword," the symbol of death. She travels on the road to death and hell (cf. Prov. 2:18).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 5:5 Sheol. See note on 1:12.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 5:6 her ways wander. Her steps willfully and predictably stagger here and there as she has no concern for the abyss ahead.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 5:7–14 These verses describe the high price of infidelity. The focus here is on the guilty suffering of the one who yields to lust rather than obeying God's law. Contrast the proper response to such temptation in the case of Joseph (Gen. 39:1–12).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 5:9–10 take their fill of your strength. The consequences of this sin may include slavery, as a commuted punishment, instead of death that should have come for adultery (Deut. 22:22). In that case, "the merciless" was the judge and the "others" were the masters to whom all the energy of youth was directed in slavery. All personal wealth was lost to outsiders, and one served in a stranger's house helping him to prosper.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 5:11 flesh and body. This could be a reference to venereal disease (cf. 1 Cor. 6:18), or to the natural end of life. At that point, filled with an irreversible regret (Prov. 5:12), the ruined sinner vainly laments his neglect of warning and his sad disgrace.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 5:14 in the assembled congregation. A most painful loss in such a situation is public disgrace in the community. There can be public confession, discipline, and forgiveness, but not restoration to one's former place of honor and service. See 6:33.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 5:15–19 Using the imagery of water, the joy of a faithful marriage is contrasted with the disaster of infidelity (vv. 9–14). "Cistern" and "well" refer to the wife from whom the husband is to draw all his satisfying refreshment, sexually and affectionately (v. 19; cf. 9:17–18; Song 4:9–11).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 5:16–17 springs . . . streams. The euphemism refers to the male procreation capacity with the idea of the foolish as a fountain ("spring") scattering precious water—a picture of the wastefulness of sexual promiscuity. The result of such indiscriminate sin is called "streams of waters in the streets," a graphic description of the illegitimate street children of harlotry. Rather, says Solomon, "let them be for yourself alone" and not the children of such immoral strangers.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 5:18 fountain be blessed. God offers to bless male procreation when it is confined to one's wife. It should be noted that, in spite of the sinful polygamy of David and Solomon, as well as the disastrous polygamy of Rehoboam (cf. 2 Chron. 11:21), the instruction here identifies God's ideal as one wife from youth on.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 5:19 graceful doe. The doe has graceful beauty in her face and form and is often used in the poetry of Bible times for the beauty of a woman. breasts. This is imagery of affection (cf. Song 1:13; 4:1–7; 7:7–8).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 5:20 Such behavior is presented as having no benefit; thus, to justify such folly is senseless.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 5:21–22 before the eyes . . . held. The Lord sees all that man does and in mercy withholds immediate judgment, allowing the sinner time to repent or to be caught in his own sin (cf. Num. 32:23; Ps. 7:15–16; 57:6; Prov. 1:17; Gal. 6:7–8). Notice the example of Haman (Est. 5:9–14; 7:1–10).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 5:23 He dies. See note on 2:18.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 6:1 security . . . pledge. The foolishness here is making one's self responsible for another's debt and pledging to pay if the other defaults (cf. 11:15; 17:18; 20:16; 22:26). While there is precedent for such a practice, it is far better to give to those in need (see 19:17; Deut. 15:1–15) or lend without interest (see Prov. 28:8; Lev. 25:35–38).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 6:2–4 snared . . . come into the hand. Cf. 22:26–27. Anyone who becomes responsible for another person's debt is trapped and controlled because he has yielded control of what God has given him as a stewardship. The situation is so serious that it is imperative to take control of one's own God-given resources and get out of such an intolerable arrangement immediately ("save yourself," 6:5) before coming to poverty or slavery. Cf. Gen. 43:9 and 44:32–33.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 6:6–11 A warning against laziness is appropriate after the discussion on the folly of guaranteeing someone else's debt, since it is often lazy people who want sureties.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 6:6 ant . . . sluggard. Cf. 30:25. The ant is an example of industry, diligence, and planning (6:7–8) and serves as a rebuke to a sluggard (a lazy person who lacks self-control). Wisdom sends a lazy man to learn from an ant (see 10:4, 26; 12:24; 13:4; 15:19; 19:15; 20:4; 26:14–16).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 6:11 robber . . . armed man. The lazy man, with his inordinate devotion to sleep rather than work (vv. 9–10), learns too late, thus coming to inescapable poverty just as a victim is overpowered by a robber (see 24:33–34). While laziness leads to poverty (cf. 10:4–5; 13:4; 20:4, 13), laziness is not always the cause of poverty (cf. 14:31; 17:5; 19:1, 17, 22; 21:12; 28:3, 11).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 6:12 A worthless person. A scoundrel (1 Sam. 25:25; Job 34:18), lit., a "man of Belial" (useless; cf. 1 Sam. 2:12; 30:22), a term that came to be used of the devil himself (see 2 Cor. 6:15).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 6:13 winks . . . signals . . . points. Apparently this was common in the East. Fearing detection, and to hide his intention, the deceiver spoke lies to the victim while giving signals with his eyes, hands, and feet to someone else who was in on the deception to carry out the intrigue.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 6:14 discord. The sin of discord, dissent, or creating conflict intentionally recurs in Proverbs (15:18; 16:28; 17:14; 18:19; 21:9, 19; 22:10; 23:29; 25:24; 26:21; 27:15; 28:25; 29:22).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 6:15 beyond healing. The results of iniquity can be irreversible. His punishment will fit his crime when God judges.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 6:16–19 six . . . seven. The sequence of these two numbers was used both to represent totality and as a means of arresting attention (cf. 30:15, 18; Job 5:19; Amos 1:3). These seven detestable sins provide a profound glimpse into the sinfulness of man. These verses act as a summary of the previous warnings: 1) haughty eyes (v. 13a, "winks"); 2) lying tongue (v. 12b, "crooked speech"); 3) hands (v. 13c, "finger"); 4) heart (v. 14a); 5) feet (v. 13b); 6) false witness (v. 12b); and 7) discord (v. 14c).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 6:22 walk . . . lie down . . . awake. Cf. 3:23–24. This parallels the three circumstances of life in Deut. 6:6–9 and 11:18–20, for which wisdom provides direction, protection, and meditation. The biblical instruction for parents prevents the entrance of evil by supplying good and true thoughts, even when sleeping.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 6:23 the commandment . . . the teaching . . . discipline. These all identify the word of God, which provides the wisdom leading to abundant and eternal life.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 6:24 See notes on 2:16 and 5:3. Parental instruction in wisdom is crucial to strengthen a person against the strong attraction of sexual sin. By loving truth and being elevated to wisdom, men are not seduced by lying flattery.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 6:25 desire. Sexual sin is rooted in desire (imagination of the sinful act), as implied in Ex. 20:17 and addressed by Christ in Matt. 5:28. This initial attraction must be consistently rejected (James 1:14–15).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 6:26 loaf of bread. Here a loaf of bread demonstrates how the prostitute reduces the life of a man to insignificance, including the loss of his wealth (see 29:3), freedom, family, purity, dignity, and even his soul (6:32).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 6:27–29 Powerful metaphors are given here to describe the obvious danger and destructive consequences of adultery, showing that punishment is a natural and expected consequence.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 6:29 touches her. This refers to a touch intended to inflame sexual passion. Paul uses the same expression with the same meaning in 1 Cor. 7:1.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 6:30–35 Adultery is compared to a thief. Unlike the pity extended to a starving thief, who, though it may cost all he has, can make restitution and put the crime behind him permanently (vv. 30–31), for the adulterer there is no restitution as he destroys his soul (v. 32; cf. Deut. 22:22). If he lives, he is disgraced for life (Prov. 6:33) with a reproach that will never go away. The jealous husband will have no mercy on him either (vv. 34–35; cf. 27:4; Song 8:6).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 6:31 sevenfold. Varying measures of restitution occur in Scripture (cf. Ex. 22:1ff.; Lev. 6:5; Num. 5:7; 2 Sam. 12:6; Luke 19:8), but none are so severe as for the thief.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 7:1–4 Cf. 2:1–4; 3:1–3; 4:10.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 7:2 apple of your eye. This expression refers to the pupil of the eye which, because it is the source of sight, is carefully protected (see Deut. 32:10; Ps. 17:8; Zech. 2:8). The son is to guard and protect his father’s teachings because they give him spiritual and moral sight.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 7:3 bind. This is a call to give the truth of divine wisdom a permanent place in the mind and in conduct. Cf. 3:3; 6:21; Deut. 6:8.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 7:6 The drama of seduction by the adulteress, introduced in v. 5 and unfolding to v. 23, is described from the viewpoint of one who is watching from his window.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 7:7 simple . . . lacking sense. See notes on 1:2–4.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 7:8 taking the road. Against the advice of 4:14–15, he put himself right in the harlot's place. "Fleeing from sexual immorality" (1 Cor. 6:18) starts by not being in the harlot's neighborhood at night. Cf. Prov. 7:25.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 7:10 wily of heart. Lit., "hidden." This is an unfair contest between the naive young man, who lacks wisdom and is void of the truth, and the evil woman, who knows her goal, but hides her true intentions. See notes on 6:26 and 23:27–28.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 7:11–12 These verses break the narrative to describe the woman's modes of operation leading to her successful seduction of the naive man.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 7:14 offer sacrifices. According to the law of peace offerings (Lev. 7:11–18), the meat left over after the sacrifice was to be eaten before the end of the day. She appears very religious in making the invitation that the man join her because she had made her offering and is bringing home the meat that must be eaten.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 7:15 It is already night (v. 9) and the meal must be consumed. It cannot be left for morning. Such hypocrisy is concerned about the ceremonial law while aggressively seducing someone to violate God's moral law.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 7:16–17 Egyptian linen. Fine linen was a sign of wealth (31:22; Isa. 19:9; Ezek. 27:7). Here the solicitation is direct, as she describes the comfort of her bed with its aromatic spices (cf. Song 1:13; 3:6).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 7:18 fill of love. Adultery is not true love, but mere physical gratification.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 7:19–20 She gives the naive man the assurance that there is no fear of discovery of their act, since her husband has taken a large sum of cash, needed because he will be away for a long time (lit., “at full moon”), returning at a set time and not before.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 7:21 When the location, time, and setting were allowed, the seduction was easy (cf. v. 26).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 7:22 slaughter . . . fast. Ignorant of the real danger and incapable of resistance, he quickly succumbs like a beast to be butchered or a criminal put in chains.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 7:23 arrow . . . bird. This refers to a mortal wound, as the liver represents the seat of life (Lam. 2:11) and the bird is snared to be eaten (cf. Prov. 6:26).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 7:24 The appropriate application of this drama is made in the admonition of these verses to avoid her deadly seduction.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 7:26 It is not just weak men who fall, but strong men in the wrong place at the wrong time with the wrong thoughts for the wrong reasons.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 7:27 Cf. 5:5.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 8:1–3 wisdom. See note on 1:21. The openness and public exposure of wisdom contrasts with the secrecy and intrigues of the wicked adulterers in ch. 7.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 8:4–5 simple ones. See note on 1:4.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 8:6–8 The virtues of wisdom are summarized in all that is noble, right, true, and righteous.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 8:9 straight. Lit., “clear.” The one who applies his mind to the wisdom of God will understand and gain moral knowledge and the insight to recognize truth. Cf. 1 Cor. 1:18–25.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 8:10–11 The most valuable reality a young person can attain is the insight to order his life by the standard of truth (see notes on 3:14–15; 8:18–21; also Job 28:12–28; Ps. 19:10).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 8:13 The fear of the Lord. See note on 1:7. arrogance . . . hate. Wisdom hates what God hates (cf. 6:16–19; Ps. 5:5). The highest virtue is humility (submission to God), and thus wisdom hates pride and self-exaltation above all.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 8:15–16 kings . . . rulers . . . princes . . . nobles. In this royal court setting, Solomon addresses his son as a future king. All these leaders should do their work by God's wisdom and justice.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 8:17 love. Wisdom's love for the one who receives it is proven by the benefits mentioned in vv. 18–21.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 8:18–21 Riches and honor. Cf. 3:16 and 22:4. Solomon, who was given great wisdom, experienced its wealth of benefits firsthand as a young king (cf. 1 Kings 3:12–14; 10:14–29).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 8:22–31 The Lord possessed me. Cf. 3:19–20. Wisdom personified claims credit for everything that God created, so that wisdom was first, as God was eternally first. Christ used his eternal wisdom in creation (John 1:1–3; 1 Cor. 1:24, 30).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 8:24–26 Notice how these verses parallel the creation account. The earth (v. 23) with day one in Gen. 1:1–5; water (Prov. 8:24) with day two in Gen. 1:6–8; and land (Prov. 8:25–26) with day three in Gen. 1:9–13.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 8:27 circle on the face of the deep. The Hebrew word for circle indicates that the earth is a globe; therefore the horizon is circular (cf. Isa. 40:22). This "deep" that surrounds the earth was the original world ocean that covered the surface of the earth before it was fully formed and given life (cf. Gen. 1:2).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 8:29 sea its limit. In creation, God limited the waters on the earth (cf. Gen. 1:9; 7:11; 8:2), commanding into existence shorelines beyond which the oceans cannot go. foundations. This figuratively denotes the solid structure of the earth (cf. Job 38:4; Ps. 24:2).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 8:30 master workman. As translated in Song 7:1 and Jer. 52:15, this term describes wisdom as competent and experienced in the craft of creation.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 8:31 delighting. When God rejoiced over his creation (Gen. 1:31; Job 38:7), wisdom was also rejoicing, especially in the creation of mankind, who alone in the physical creation has the capacity to appreciate wisdom and truth.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 8:36 hate me love death. Since wisdom is the source of life (see 3:18), anyone hating wisdom, so as to spurn it, is acting as if he loves death.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 9:1 seven pillars. The significance of seven is to convey the sufficiency of this house as full in size and fit for a banquet.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 9:2 mixed her wine. Cf. 23:29–30. Wine was diluted with water as much as one to eight, to reduce its power to intoxicate. It was also mixed with spices for flavor (Song 8:2). Unmixed wine is called strong drink (cf. Prov. 20:1; 31:6; Lev. 10:9; Isa. 28:7; Luke 1:15).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 9:3–5 The call of wisdom is not secret, but public. See note on 1:21.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 9:5 Come, eat . . . drink. Cf. God’s banquet call (Isa. 55:1–3; Luke 14:16–24; Rev. 22:17).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 9:7–9 Wise people receive reproof and rebuke with appreciation; fools do not.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 9:10 The fear of the Lord. See note on 1:7.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 9:11 See Introduction: Historical and Theological Themes.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 9:12 Every individual is responsible for his own conduct, so that the choices we make affect our own lives.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 9:13–18 The feast of folly is described as offered by the foolish hostess. Note the contrast with lady wisdom in vv. 1–6 and similarities to the immoral woman in 7:6–23.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 9:13 loud. Cf. 7:11–12.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 9:17 Forbidden delights sometimes seem sweeter and more pleasant because of their risk and danger.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 9:18 Sheol. See note on 1:12. Like the adulterer, the flattering words of folly lead to death (see 2:18–19; 5:5; 7:21–23, 26–27).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 10:1–22:16 This large section contains 375 of Solomon's individual proverbs. They are in no apparent order, with only occasional grouping by subject, and are often without a context to qualify their application. They are based on Solomon's inspired knowledge of the law and the Prophets. The parallel, two-line proverbs of chs. 10–15 are mostly contrasts or opposites (antithetical), while those of chs. 16–22 are mostly similarities or comparisons (synthetical).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 10:1 sorrow to his mother. See note on 23:15–16. This parental grief is most deeply felt by the mother, who plays a more intimate role in raising a child.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 10:2 death. The greatest of all treasures, life, is gained by righteousness.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 10:3 craving of the wicked. For a while, the wicked may seem to realize their desires; in the end, God removes their accomplishments because they are evil (cf. Ps. 37:16–20).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 10:4 diligent. This is in contrast to the sluggard (see notes on 6:6–11). Poverty by itself is not evil, unless it is the product of laziness.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 10:5 gathers . . . sleeps. Cf. 6:6–11; 13:4; 15:19; 24:30–34; 28:19–20. The timing necessary in agriculture can be applied to the general laying hold of life's opportunities.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 10:6 violence. See 10:13; 12:13; 14:3; 18:6–7. The violence that has gone forth from the wicked, later falls back upon his foul mouth (cf. Hab. 2:17; Mal. 2:16).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 10:7 memory . . . name. This refers to the way a righteous person is remembered by man and God after his death.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 10:8 receive commandments. To finish the parallelism, the wise listens and is teachable and, therefore, will be lifted up. The fool, always talking, falls because he rejects God's commands.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 10:9 Those who have integrity (who live what they believe) exist without fear of some evil being discovered, while those who are perverse and have secret wickedness will not be able to hide it. Cf. 11:3; 19:1; 20:7.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 10:10 winks the eye. See 6:13–14.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 10:11 fountain of life. The Lord is the source of this fountain (Ps. 36:9), which then springs up in the wise man as wise speech (Prov. 10:11), wise laws (13:14), the fear of the Lord (14:27), and understanding (16:22). See notes on 3:18; Ezek. 47:1–12; John 4:10; 7:38–39. violence. See note on Prov. 10:6.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 10:12 love. True love seeks the highest good for another (cf. 1 Cor. 13:4–7). First Peter 4:8 quotes this verse.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 10:13 rod. This first reference to corporal punishment applied to the backside (cf. 19:29; 26:3) recommends it as the most effective way of dealing with children and fools. See also 13:24; 18:6; 19:29; 22:15; 23:13–14; 26:3; 29:15.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 10:14 mouth of a fool. The loose tongue of the fool is a recurring subject in Proverbs (cf. vv. 6, 8, 13, 18–19, 31–32; 12:23; 13:3; 15:1–2, 23, 26, 28, 31–33; 17:28; 18:2, 6–8). James parallels this emphasis concerning the tongue (James 1:26; 3:1–12).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 10:15 rich man's . . . poor. While the rich man thinks he has his walled city for protection (cf. 18:11; 28:11), the poor man knows he has nothing. Both should trust in the Lord as their only protection (cf. 3:5–6; 11:4, 28; 18:10–11; Ps. 20:7; Eccles. 9:11–18; James 5:1–6).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 10:16 wage. The industry alone of the righteous makes him truly successful, while the earnings of the wicked provide more opportunities for sinning.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 10:18 hatred . . . slander. Both the harboring and venting of hatred are wrong and will be punished. Slander (gossip or lies) is forbidden (cf. 25:10; also 16:28; 18:8; 20:19; 26:20, 22).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 10:19 Wisdom is to restrain the tongue, since much speech risks sin. Cf. Ps. 39:1; James 1:26; 3:2–8.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 10:20 tongue . . . heart. These words are used as parallel terms because they are inseparably linked. Cf. Matt. 15:18–19. choice silver. Good words are scarce, precious, and valuable (cf. Prov. 15:23; Isa. 50:4).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 10:21 feed . . . die. Sound teaching benefits many; the fool starves himself to death spiritually by his lack of wise teaching (cf. Hos. 4:6).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 10:22 rich. While having more than what one needs is not the object of wisdom, it is generally the result (cf. Deut. 6:11–15; 1 Kings 3:10–14). See Introduction: Historical and Theological Themes. no sorrow. None of the sorrow that is associated with ill-gotten wealth (cf. Prov. 13:11; 15:6; 16:19; 21:6; 28:6) is associated with wealth provided by the Lord.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 10:24 What the wicked dreads. The righteous receive what they desire, while the wicked receive what they fear (cf. Heb. 10:26–29).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 10:25 tempest. See 1:27; 6:15; 29:1.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 10:27 fear of the Lord. See note on 1:7.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 10:29 The way of the Lord. This is the spiritual path in which God directs man to walk (see note on Acts 18:25).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 10:30 Cf. Ps. 37:9–11.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 11:1 A false balance. Cf. 16:11; 20:10, 23. As indicated in Lev. 19:35–36; Deut. 25:13–16; Ezek. 45:10; Amos 8:5; Mic. 6:10, God detests dishonesty.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 11:2 pride. From a root meaning “to boil,” or “to run over,” indicating an overwhelmingly arrogant attitude or behavior. It is used of ordinary men (Deut. 17:12–13); kings (Neh. 9:10); Israel (Neh. 9:16, 29); false prophets (Deut. 18:20); and murderers (Ex. 21:14). the humble. A rare word, which appears in Mic. 6:8: "walk humbly with your God." This humble and teachable spirit is first of all directed toward God (cf. Prov. 15:33; 16:18–19; 18:12; 22:4).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 11:4 day of wrath. Money buys no escape from death in the day of final accounting to God, the divine Judge (cf. Isa. 10:3; Ezek. 7:19; Zeph. 1:18; Luke 12:16–21).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 11:11 Social influence for good or bad is in view.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 11:12 belittles. Lit., one who gossips, slanders, or destroys with words, in contrast to the silence of the wise. See notes on 10:14, 18.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 11:13 slandering. This depicts someone who is a peddler in scandal, who speaks words deliberately intended to harm rather than merely unguarded speech (cf. Lev. 19:16).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 11:14 abundance of counselors. As in 15:22; 20:18; 24:6, a good decision is made with multiple wise advisers. The more crucial the decision, the more appropriate is corporate wisdom. Note the example of David (2 Sam. 15:30–17:23).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 11:15 See note on 6:1.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 11:16 gracious woman . . . violent men. While evil men may grasp at wealth, they will never attain the honor due a gracious woman (cf. 31:30).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 11:18 deceptive wages. The efforts of the wicked deceiver do not yield the riches his deception seeks, but the righteous receive a reward from God.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 11:20 abomination. Defined throughout Scripture as attitudes, this involves words and behaviors that God hates (see 6:16).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 11:21 Individually or in collaboration, the power of the wicked cannot free them from just punishment, while the unaided children of the righteous find deliverance by reason of their relationship with God.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 11:22 gold ring. A nose ring was an ornament intended to beautify a woman in OT times (cf. Gen. 24:47; Isa. 3:21; Ezek. 16:12). It was as out of place in a pig's nose as the lack of discretion was in a lovely lady.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 11:23 desire . . . expectation. These terms refer to outcomes from God's perspective.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 11:24–26 gives freely, yet grows all the richer. The principle here is that generosity, by God's blessing, secures increase, while stinginess leads to poverty instead of expected gain. The one who gives receives far more in return (Ps. 112:9; Eccles. 11:1; John 12:24–25; Acts 20:35; 2 Cor. 9:6–9).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 11:28 trusts in his riches. Cf. 23:4–5; see notes on 1 Tim. 6:17, 19.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 11:29 inherit the wind. The one who mismanages his house will see all he has blown away, and he will have nothing left in the end. He will serve the one who manages well (15:27).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 11:30 tree of life. See note on 3:18. captures souls. Lit., "to take lives," in the sense of doing them good or influencing them with wisdom's ways (cf. Luke 5:10). The word is also used for capturing people for evil purposes as in Prov. 6:25; Ps. 31:13; Ezek. 13:18.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 11:31 repaid. God's final blessing and reward to the "righteous," and his judgment and punishment of the "wicked" and "sinners" come after life on this earth has ended. But there are foretastes of both during life on the earth, as the righteous experience God's personal care and goodness, while the wicked are void of it.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 12:1 stupid. From the Hebrew “to graze”; he is as stupid as the brute cattle (cf. Ps. 49:20; 73:22).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 12:3 root. The familiar image is of the righteous being firm like a flourishing tree (Ps. 1; Jer. 17:7–8).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 12:4 excellent wife. See notes on 31:10 and Ruth 3:11. For the opposite see Prov. 19:13; 21:9, 19; 25:24; 27:15. rottenness in his bones. This speaks of suffering that is like a painful and incurable condition.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 12:6 lie in wait. See notes on 1:11–12.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 12:7 house. The rewards of wise living are not only to individuals, but extend to one’s household or family.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 12:9 Better . . . than. This is one of several proverbs which makes a distinct comparison using “Better . . . than” (cf. 15:16–17; 16:8, 19, 32; 17:1; 19:1; 21:9, 19; 25:7, 24; 27:5, 10; 28:6). lowly . . . play the great man. The obscure person of lowly rank, who can at least afford to hire a servant because of his honest gain is better than the one who falsely boasts about his prominence but is really poor.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 12:10 has regard . . . cruel. Lit., he has concern for the condition of his beast, while the wicked has no concern for people.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 12:11 worthless pursuits. Energy expended in worthless pursuits and fantasies is as useless as outright laziness. See notes on 6:6–11; 20:4; 24:30–34.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 12:12 covets the spoil. This refers to the desire for spoils gained by the schemes of the wicked, contrasted with a simple life of obedience that produces blessing.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 12:14 fruit of his mouth. This deals with the power of words; the reward of wise words is like the reward for physical labor (cf. 10:11; 15:4; 18:4).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 12:16 ignores an insult. A model of self-control, the prudent man ignores an insult (cf. 9:7; 10:12).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 12:17 speaks the truth. In the court, the truthful witness promotes justice.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 12:18 words . . . thrusts. The contrast here is between cutting words that are spoken "rashly" (Ps. 106:33) and thoughtful words that bring health. Cf. Eph. 4:29–30.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 12:20 Deceit. The contrasting parallel is implied, not stated. Those who plan evil by deceit have no joy because of the risks and dangers in their plan, but the righteous who lead by peace fear nothing, and thus have joy.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 12:23 conceals. Unlike the fool who makes all hear his folly, the wise person is a model of restraint and humility, speaking what he knows at an appropriate time (cf. 29:11). See notes on 1:4 and 10:14.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 12:24 forced labor. Unlike the hardworking people who have charge over their work, the lazy are eventually forced to go to work for the diligent to survive.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 12:26 astray. Cf. 1 Cor. 15:33. This verse could be understood as saying that the righteous "guides" his friends carefully, unlike the wicked who leads his companions astray.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 12:27 will not roast. The sluggard lacks commitment to make something of his opportunities (cf. vv. 11, 25).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 13:2–3 The parallels here are implied. A man of good words prospers, but a man of evil words (thus unfruitful to God) provokes violence against himself.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 13:4 See notes on 6:6, 11.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 13:7 pretends to be rich . . . pretends to be poor. The same pretense is presented in two contrasting weaknesses; one pretends to be rich while the other pretends to be poor. In contrast, men should be honest and unpretentious (cf. 11:24; 2 Cor. 6:10).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 13:8 ransom . . . wealth . . . poor . . . threat. Riches deliver some people from punishment, while others suffer, because they will not heed the rebuke of laziness, which keeps them poor.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 13:9 light . . . lamp. This image of life, prosperity, and joy is contrasted with adversity and death (cf. Job 3:20).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 13:10 The proud spurn advice from others; the wise accept it.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 13:11 Cf. 20:21.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 13:12 tree of life. See note on 3:18.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 13:13 word . . . commandment. These terms refer to divine revelation.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 13:14 fountain of life. See note on 10:11.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 13:16 flaunts. The language vividly shows that a fool displays folly, as a peddler openly spreads out his wares for others to gaze upon. Cf. 12:23 and 15:2.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 13:19 The fool’s relentless pursuit of evil and hatred of good does not ever let him taste the sweet blessings of obedience.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 13:20 walks . . . companion. This speaks of the power of association to shape character. Cf. 1:10, 18; 2:12; 4:14; 16:29; 22:24–25; 23:20; 28:7, 19; Ps. 1.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 13:21 This is a basic theme/general principle throughout Proverbs and is illustrated throughout the OT, which establishes that righteousness brings divine blessing and evil brings divine cursing.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 13:22 leaves an inheritance. While good men’s estates remain with their families, the wealth of the wicked does not. In the providence of God, it will ultimately belong to the righteous. Cf. 28:8 and Job 27:16–17.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 13:23 injustice. The contrast here is between the poor, but industrious, man who will be rewarded with provision from his efforts, and the rich man whose efforts are brought to ruin by his deeds of injustice (cf. James 5:1–6).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 13:24 rod . . . diligent . . . discipline. Early childhood teaching (see note on 22:6) requires both parental discipline, including corporal punishment (cf. 10:13; 19:18; 22:15; 29:15, 17), and balanced kindness and love. There is great hope that the use of the "divine ordinance" of the rod will produce godly virtue (cf. 23:13–14) and parental joy (cf. 10:1; 15:20; 17:21; 23:15–16, 24–25; 28:7; 29:1, 15, 17). Such discipline must have the right motivation (Heb. 12:5–11) and appropriate severity (Eph. 6:4). One who has genuine affection for his child, but withholds corporal punishment, will produce the same kind of child as a parent who hates his offspring.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 13:25 This states more directly the teaching of vv. 13, 18, 21.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 14:1 builds her house. Cf. the wise woman building her house (31:10–31) with lady wisdom building her house (9:1–6).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 14:3 rod. A rare Hebrew word that refers to a small shoot (see Isa. 11:1). Here it is metaphoric for the proud, inflicting tongue in a fool's mouth, which destroys the fool and others (cf. 11:2; 16:18; 29:23).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 14:7 Leave. Avoid association with all who cannot teach you wisdom. Cf. 1 Tim 4:6–7 and 6:3–5.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 14:9 Fools mock at the guilt. While fools ridicule their impending judgment (cf. 1:26), the wise are promised favor with God (cf. Isa. 1:11–20) and man (cf. Prov. 10:32; 11:27). Cf. 1 Sam. 2:26 and Luke 2:40, 52.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 14:10 At its depth, suffering and rejoicing are personal and private. No one is able to communicate them fully (1 Sam. 1:10; 1 Kings 8:38; Matt. 2:18; 26:39–42, 75).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 14:12 way to death. See notes on Matt. 7:13–14.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 14:14 backslider in heart. This term, so often used by the prophets (Isa. 57:17; Jer. 3:6, 8, 11–12, 14, 22; 8:5; 31:22; 49:4; Hos. 11:7; 14:4), is here used in such a way as to clarify who is a backslider. He belongs in the category of the fool, the wicked, and the disobedient and he is contrasted with the godly wise. It is a word that the prophets used of apostate unbelievers.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 14:17 quick temper . . . evil devices. The contrast is between the hasty anger that is labeled as folly and the deliberate malice that produces hatred (Ps. 37:7).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 14:19 evil bow. The ancient custom was for the inferior to prostrate himself before the superior or wait humbly before the great one’s gate seeking favor. Good will humble evil.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 14:20 This sad-but-true picture of human nature is not given approvingly, but only as a fact.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 14:24 folly of fools brings folly. This is emphatic language, playing on the word “fool” and showing that the only reward for fools is more folly.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 14:25 The truth produces justice, on which the lives of people may depend.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 14:26 fear of the Lord. See note on 1:7.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 14:27 fountain of life. See note on 10:11.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 14:28 multitude of people. This is a truism stating that a king’s honor comes from the support of his people as they increase and prosper (cf. 30:29–31).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 14:29 Cf. v. 17.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 14:30 tranquil heart . . . flesh. A healthy mind filled with wisdom is associated with a healthy body (cf. 3:5–8; 17:22). bones rot. See note on 12:4.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 14:31 oppresses a poor . . . Maker. It offends the Creator when one neglects the poor, who are part of his creation (cf. 14:21; 17:5; 19:17; 21:13; 22:2, 7; 28:8; 29:13).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 14:32 righteous . . . death. Cf. 23:18. Hope in death for the righteous is a central OT theme (cf. Job 19:25–26; Ps. 31:5; 49:14–15; 73:24; Eccles. 11:9; Isa. 26:19; Dan. 12:1–2).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 14:33 makes itself known. Wisdom is quietly preserved in the heart of the wise for the time of proper use, while fools are eager to blurt out their folly (cf. 12:23; 13:16; 15:2, 14).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 14:34 exalts. While just principles and actions preserve and even exalt a society, their absence shames a society (cf. 11:11).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 14:35 acts shamefully. Cf. 10:5 and 12:4.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 15:2 See note on 14:33.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 15:3 eyes of the Lord. Cf. 5:21. This refers to God’s omniscience. Cf. 1 Sam 16:7; 2 Chron. 16:9; Job 24:23; Ps. 33:13–15; 139:1–16; Jer. 17:10.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 15:4 tree of life. See note on 3:18. breaks the spirit. To break or wound, thus to destroy one’s morale (cf. Isa. 65:14).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 15:8 External acts of worship, though according to biblical prescription, are repulsive to God when the heart of the worshiper is wicked (cf. Isa. 1:12–15; Amos 5:21; Mal. 1:11–14; Heb. 11:4, 6).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 15:10 the way. The way of truth and righteousness (see 2:13; 10:17).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 15:11 Sheol and Abaddon. Cf. 27:20. Hell or Sheol is the place of the dead (see note on 1:12). “Abaddon” or destruction refers to the experience of eternal punishment. Cf. Job 26:6.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 15:13 Cf. v. 4.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 15:15 continual feast. The joyous, inward condition of the wise man’s heart (14:21) is described as a perpetual feast. Real happiness is always determined by the state of the heart (cf. Hab. 3:17–18; 1 Tim. 4:6–8).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 15:16–17 See note on 12:9 for other “Better . . . than” references.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 15:16 fear of the Lord. See note on 1:7.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 15:17 dinner of herbs. The typical dinner of the poor.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 15:18 “Hotheads” are contrasted with “peacemakers” (cf. 14:17, 29; 15:1; 28:25; 29:11, 22).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 15:19 thorns. He is too lazy to remove them. See notes on 6:6, 11.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 15:22 See note on 11:14.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 15:24 Sheol beneath. See note on 1:12.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 15:25 When evil men try to take the property of widows, God will intervene (cf. 22:28; 23:10–11). The most desolate (widows) who have God’s help possess a more permanent dwelling place than the prosperous and self-reliant sinners.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 15:27 bribes. Cf. 18:5; 24:23; 29:4; Ex. 23:8; Deut. 16:19; Eccles. 7:7; Isa. 1:23.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 15:28 mouth of the wicked pours out. Wicked people don’t guard their words. See note on 12:23; cf. Eph. 4:29.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 15:30 light of the eyes. This is a comparison, so that the "good news" defines this term. Whatever is good, sound truth and wisdom stirs the heart by relieving anxiety and producing a cheerful face (cf. 14:30; 15:13; 17:22).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 15:31 ear that listens . . . wise. The acquiring of wisdom demands a teachable spirit.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 15:33 fear of the Lord. See note on 1:7.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 16:1 plans . . . answer. Human responsibility is always subject to God's absolute sovereignty (cf. 3:6; 16:2, 9, 33; 19:21; 20:24; 21:1, 30–31).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 16:2 spirit. While man can be self-deceived, God determines his true motives (cf. 21:2; 24:12; 1 Sam. 16:7; 1 Cor. 4:4).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 16:3 Commit. Lit., "roll upon" in the sense of both total trust (3:5–6) and submission to the will of God (Ps. 22:8; 37:5; 119:133); he will fulfill your righteous plans.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 16:4 The wicked will bring glory to God in the day of their judgment and eternal punishment. See notes on Rom. 9:17–23.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 16:6 By God's "steadfast love and faithfulness," he affects the atonement or covering of sin, which for the believing sinner inclines him to keep away from evil. See notes on Lev. 16:1–34 and 17:11 for explanation of atonement. fear of the Lord. See note on Prov. 1:7.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 16:7 This general rule does not preclude persecution from some. See note on 2 Tim. 3:12.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 16:9 See notes on vv. 1–2. Sovereign God overrules the plans of men to fulfill his purposes. See Gen. 50:20; 1 Kings 12:15; Ps. 119:133; Jer. 10:23; Dan. 5:23–30; 1 Cor. 3:19–20.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 16:10 oracle. This does not imply any occultic practice forbidden in Lev. 19:26, but is literally a decision from divine wisdom, in the words of the king who represented God. The king was under mandate (Deut. 17:18–20) to seek out and speak God's wisdom (cf. David in 2 Sam. 14:17–20; Solomon in 1 Kings 3:9–12; and Christ as King in Isa. 11:2).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 16:11 See note on 11:1.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 16:12 See note on 14:34.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 16:14 This points to the king's power of "life or death," which can be abused (cf. 1 Sam. 22:16–18; Est. 7–10; Dan. 2:5) or used for good (cf. 2 Sam. 1:1–16; 4:5–12).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 16:15 clouds that bring the spring rain. The late spring rain, which matured the crop, fell before the harvest (cf. 2 Sam. 23:3–4; Ps. 72:6) and is here compared to the king's power to grace his subjects with encouragement.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 16:16 better. Cf. 3:13–16; 8:10–11, 18–19.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 16:17 A plain road represents the habitual course of the righteous in departing from evil. As long as he stays on it, he is safe.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 16:19 The proud are those who have plundered the poor.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 16:21 sweetness of speech. "Honeyed words," which reflect intelligence, judiciousness, and discernment in speech. This refers to eloquent discourse from the wise (cf. v. 24).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 16:22 fountain of life. See note on 10:11. The advice of the understanding person brings blessing, while the correction offered by a fool is useless.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 16:23 heart. See note on 4:21–23.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 16:24 Gracious words. See note on v. 21; cf. 24:13–14 and Ps. 19:10.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 16:25 way to death. Cf. 14:12.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 16:26 works for him. Labor is hard and often grievous, but necessary, even for the lazy (cf. Eccles. 6:7; Eph. 4:28; 6:7; 2 Thess. 3:10–12).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 16:27 worthless man. See note on 6:12. He literally digs a pit for his neighbor as a hunter would for prey (cf. Ps. 7:15; 62:6), and his speech is incendiary (cf. James 3:6).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 16:28 spreads. The same root word is used for the release of flaming foxes in the grain fields of the Philistines (Judg. 15:4–5; cf. 17:9). whisperer. Or gossip. See note on Prov. 6:14; cf. 8:8; 26:20, 22 for the same Hebrew term.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 16:30 purses. The idea of winking or squinting the eyes and compressing one's lips was to express the posture connoting deep thought and determined purpose.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 16:31 This calls for respecting elders. Cf. 20:29.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 16:32 slow to anger. See notes on 14:17 and 25:28. Cf. Eccles. 9:17–18; James 1:19–20.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 16:33 lot. See note on 16:1. Casting lots was a method often used to reveal God's purposes in a matter (cf. Josh. 14:1–2; 1 Sam. 14:38–43; 1 Chron. 25:8–31; Jonah 1:7; Acts 1:26). The high priest may have carried lots in his sacred vest, along with the Urim and Thummim (see note on Ex. 28:30).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 17:1 Cf. 15:17.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 17:2 servant who deals wisely . . . inheritance. A faithful servant will rise above an unworthy son and receive an inheritance (cf. 11:29; 1 Kings 11:26, 28–38; Matt. 8:11–12).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 17:3 crucible. This was a heated crucible used to test and refine precious metal. Cf. Ps. 66:10; Isa. 1:25; 48:10; Jer. 6:29; Ezek.

22:17–22; Dan. 12:10; Mal. 3:3.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 17:5 Cf. 14:21, 31.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 17:6 Grandchildren. Godly influence generates mutual love and respect in a family, which extends from generation to generation (cf. Ps. 90 with Ex. 20:12).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 17:8 bribe. This refers to a bribe that brings prosperity to its recipient (v. 23; 15:27).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 17:9 Cf. 16:28 and 18:8.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 17:10 For the theme of a teachable spirit, cf. 9:7–8 and 15:31–33.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 17:11 Just retribution comes against people who rebel, and thus the king's messenger will have no mercy (cf. 16:14; 2 Sam. 20:1–22; 1 Kings 2:25, 29, 34, 46).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 17:12 Fools are less rational in anger than wild bears.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 17:13 evil for good. Solomon knew this proverb well, since his father mistreated Uriah (cf. 2 Sam. 12:10–31). Contrast this with the man who repays evil with good (cf. Prov. 20:22; Matt. 5:43–48; 1 Pet. 3:9).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 17:14 letting out water. The smallest break in the dam sets loose an uncontrollable flood force.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 17:15 The unjust judge is controlled by his pride, prejudice, bribes, and passions. See note on 24:23b–25; cf. Ex. 23:7 and Isa. 5:23.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 17:16 Even wealth cannot buy wisdom for those who do not love it. Cf. 4:7.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 17:17 The difference between a friend and brother is noted here. A true friend is a constant source of love, while a brother in one’s family may not be close, but is drawn near to help in trouble. Friends are closer than brothers because they are available all the time, not just in the crisis. Cf. 18:24.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 17:18 See notes on 6:1, 2–4.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 17:19 makes his door high. The image here is of the proud person who flaunts his wealth with a huge house having a large front door and who thus invites death (cf. Jer. 22:13–19).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 17:20 crooked. Cf. 10:31.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 17:21 Cf. 10:1; 15:20; 17:25; 19:26.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 17:22 Cf. 14:30; 15:13, 30; 16:14; Job 29:24.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 17:23 See note on v. 8.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 17:24 ends of the earth. This refers to the fool’s roving fixations in the absence of wisdom.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 17:25 Cf. v. 21.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 17:26 fine . . . strike. Here is a clear statement on political and religious injustice, focusing on the equally bad mistreatment of the innocent and the noble.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 17:27 restrains. Cf. 10:19; 14:29; 15:18; 16:27, 32; 29:20.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 17:28 fool . . . is considered wise. This is not saying that fools show wisdom in their silence, but that silence conceals their folly.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 18:1 isolates himself. This man seeks selfish gratification and accepts advice from no one.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 18:2 Cf. Eccles. 10:12–14.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 18:3 Sin and punishment are inseparably connected, as evil produces both the feeling of contempt in others and its manifestation, scorn.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 18:4 words . . . deep waters. Wise speech is like a deep, inexhaustible stream of blessing.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 18:5 Cf. 17:26 and 28:21.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 18:6–7 The fool self-destructs. Cf. 12:13; 17:14, 19, 28; 19:29; 20:3.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 18:8 delicious morsels. This comes from a Hebrew word, meaning “to swallow greedily.” The proverb is repeated in 26:22.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 18:9 slack . . . destroys. To leave a work half done or poorly done is to destroy it. See notes on 6:1, 11.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 18:10 The name of the Lord. This expression, found only here in Proverbs, stands for the manifest perfections of God such as faithfulness, power, mercy, and wisdom, on which the righteous rely for security (cf. Ex. 3:15; 15:1–3; Ps. 27:4–5)

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 18:11 This proverb repeats 10:15 and contrasts with 18:10.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 18:12 Cf. 16:18.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 18:14 crushed spirit. Cf. 12:25 and 15:13. When the spirit is broken, people lose hope.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 18:16 man’s gift. This is not the word for a bribe (cf. 17:23), but rather the word for a present given to someone (cf. Jacob’s gift, Gen. 32:20–21; Joseph’s gift, Gen. 43:11; David’s gift, 1 Sam. 17:17–18; and Abigail’s gift, 1 Sam. 25:27).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 18:17 See v. 13. Cross-examination avoids hasty judgment.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 18:18 lot. See note on 16:33.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 18:19 There are no feuds as difficult to resolve as those with relatives; no barriers are so hard to bring down. Hence, great care should be taken to avoid such conflicts. bars of a castle. Cf. Judg. 16:3; 1 Kings 4:13; Neh. 3:3; Isa. 45:2.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 18:20 yield of his lips. See notes on 12:14 and 13:2–3. The consequences of one's words should produce satisfaction and fulfillment.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 18:21 Death and life. The greatest good and the greatest harm are in the power of the tongue (cf. James 3:6–10).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 18:22 Cf. 12:4; 19:14; 31:10–31.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 18:23 The rich do not need favors from others, so they do not care how they treat people.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 18:24 come to ruin. The person who makes friends too easily and indiscriminately does so to his own destruction. On the other hand, a friend chosen wisely is more loyal than a brother. friend. This is a strong word meaning "one who loves" and was used of Abraham, God's friend (2 Chron. 20:7; Isa. 41:8; cf. 1 Sam. 18:1; 2 Sam. 1:26).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 19:1 Integrity is better than wealth. Cf. 15:16–17 and 16:8.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 19:2 haste with his feet. Rashness, the result of ignorance, brings trouble. misses. Lit., "to miss the mark."

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 19:3 his heart rages. The fool blames God for his troubles and failures (cf. Gen. 4:5; Isa. 8:21; Lam. 3:39–41).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 19:4 Wealth brings. Cf. v. 7 and 14:20. Lit., wealth adds new friends while poverty alienates existing friends who grow weary of the demands of the poor.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 19:5, 9 For the sin of perjury, cf. 6:19; 12:17; 14:5, 25; 19:9; Deut. 19:18–21.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 19:6 Generosity or bribery could be the issue.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 19:7 See note on v. 4.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 19:10 Neither are suited for possessions or responsibilities beyond their capabilities of managing wisely (cf. 30:21–23).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 19:11 slow to anger. See note on 14:17.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 19:12 This is a call to submit to governmental authority. Cf. Rom. 13:1–4 and 1 Pet. 2:13–17.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 19:13 continual dripping. An obstinate, argumentative woman is literally like a leak so unrelenting that one has to run from it or go mad. Here are two ways to devastate a man: an ungodly son and an irritating wife.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 19:14 One receives inheritance as a family blessing (a result of human birth), but a wise wife (cf. 31:10–31) is a result of divine blessing. Cf. 12:4; 18:22; 31:10–31.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 19:15 See notes on 6:6, 11.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 19:16 commandment. Wisdom is equated with God’s commandments. In a sense, Proverbs contains the applications and implications of all that is in God’s moral law.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 19:17 See note on 14:31.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 19:18 Discipline. See notes on 3:11–12; 13:24; 22:6.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 19:19 Repeated acts of kindness are wasted on ill-natured people.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 19:21 See note on 16:1.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 19:22 Rich liars are not kind since their lies bring harm; a kind poor man is more desirable.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 19:23 fear of the Lord. See note on 1:7.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 19:24 The lazy man’s lack of action to move his hand from the flat, metal food saucer up to his mouth is because he is too lazy, as explained in 26:15.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 19:25 scoffer . . . simple . . . understanding. Three classes of people are noted: 1) scoffers are rebuked for learning nothing; 2) simple people are warned by observing the rebuke of the scoffer; and 3) the understanding deepen their wisdom from any reproof.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 19:26 violence. Cf. 10:1; 15:20; 17:21, 25; 28:24. The son appears to come into possession of his father’s property during his parents’ lifetime, but rather than caring for them, he drives them out (cf. Ex. 20:12; 21:15, 17).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 19:28 worthless witness. See note on 12:17.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 19:29 See note on 10:13.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 20:1 Wine . . . strong drink. This begins a new theme of temperance (see 23:20–21, 29–35; 31:4–5). Wine was grape juice mixed with water to dilute it, but strong drink was unmixed (see note on Eph. 5:18). While the use of these beverages is not specifically condemned (Deut. 14:26), being intoxicated always is (Isa. 28:7). Rulers were not to drink, so their judgment would not be clouded nor their behavior less than exemplary (see Prov. 31:4–5). See note on 1 Tim. 3:3. mocker . . . brawler. "Mocker" is the same word as "scoffer" in 19:25, 29; a brawler is violent, loud, and uncontrolled. Both words describe the personality of the drunkard.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 20:2 See notes on 16:14 and 19:12. Men who resist governmental authority injure themselves. See notes on Rom. 13:1–5.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 20:3 Cf. 15:18; 17:14; 19:11.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 20:4 sluggard See notes on 6:6, 11.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 20:5 deep water. The wise man has keen discernment reaching to the deepest intentions of the heart to grasp wise counsel (cf. 18:4; Heb. 4:12).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 20:6 There are a lot more people who are eager to brag about themselves than there are those who are truly faithful to testify of God's goodness.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 20:7 integrity. See note on 10:9.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 20:8 winnows. The king as judge lit., "sifts" (as in v. 26) data as he discerns evil and good (cf. Isa. 11:3–4).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 20:9 No one can make himself sinless. Cf. Job 14:4; Rom. 3:10, 23; 1 John 1:8. Those whose sin has been forgiven are pure before God (Ps. 51:1–2, 9–10).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 20:10 See note on 11:1; cf. 20:23.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 20:12 Because God has given man the ability to hear and see, it should be obvious that he hears and sees everything (see Ps. 94:9).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 20:13 See notes on 6:6, 11.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 20:14 The buyer purposely undervalues the thing he is negotiating to purchase, in order to bring down the price. Afterward, he brags about his cleverness.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 20:15 Wealth is a blessing when honestly gained, but wisdom is more desirable. See notes on 3:14–15; 8:10–11, 18–21; 16:16.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 20:16 See note on 6:1. Garments were common security for a loan but they always had to be returned by sundown (Ex. 22:26–27; Deut. 24:10–13). Anyone who foolishly has taken on the responsibility for the debt of a stranger will likely never be paid back, so he will never pay his creditor unless his own garment is taken as security.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 20:18 wise guidance. Cf. 11:14; 15:22; Luke 14:28–32.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 20:19 slandering. Those who love to spread secrets will flatter to learn them.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 20:20 lamp will be put out. Cf. 13:9. This grievous sin (cf. 30:11, 17; Ex. 21:17; Lev. 20:9) will result in death.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 20:21 gained hastily. This implies an unjust method in gaining the inheritance, so that it will be lost by the same unjust ways or by punishment (cf. 13:11; 21:5–6; 28:20, 22).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 20:22 I will repay evil. God, not man, avenges evil (cf. Deut. 32:35; Rom. 12:17, 19; Heb. 10:30) and delivers from the wicked.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 20:23 Cf. v. 10; see note on 11:1.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 20:24 See notes on 16:1, 9, 33. Since a man cannot comprehend the unfolding purposes of God's providence in his life, he has to walk in faith.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 20:25 to say rashly. To declare something sacred, i.e., promising it to God in consecration as an offering, was irreversible and, therefore, serious. See Eccles. 5:4–6; cf. Num. 30:2; Deut. 23:21–23; Ps. 50:14; 78:11.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 20:26 See note on v. 8.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 20:27 the lamp of the Lord. The "spirit" represents the conscience of man which searches every secret place. Cf. Rom. 2:15; see note on 2 Cor. 1:12.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 20:28 Steadfast love and faithfulness. See note on 3:3.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 20:30 Wise use of corporal punishment deters evil behavior. See note on 10:13.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 21:1 he turns it. See notes on 16:1, 9, 33; cf. 19:21; 20:24. Note the examples of the divine hand of God in the cases of Artaxerxes (Ezra 7:21–23), Tiglath-pileser (Isa. 10:5–7), Cyrus (Isa. 45:1–4), and Nebuchadnezzar (Dan. 4:34) and Belshazzar (Dan. 5:23–25).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 21:2 See note on 16:2.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 21:3 See note on 15:8 (cf. 1 Sam. 15:22; Isa. 1:10–20; Hos. 6:6; Mic. 6:6–8).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 21:4 lamp of the wicked. Cf. 6:17; 30:13; Ps. 18:27; 131:1. "Lamp" is used as a symbol for the eyes, which conveys their pride.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 21:5–7 These verses address the evils of ill-gotten gain. They show three major defects in the way this gain is acquired: 1) hastily (v. 5; cf. 19:2; 28:20); 2) deceitfully (21:6; cf. 13:11); and 3) violently (21:7; cf. 12:6).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 21:7 Cf. 1:18–19.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 21:9 corner of the housetop. Since roofs were open like patios (cf. Deut. 22:8; 1 Sam. 9:25; 2 Kings 4:10), a small arbor or enclosure in the corner of a flat roof was a very inconvenient place to live. quarrelsome wife. Cf. Prov. 19:13; 21:19; 25:24; 27:15–16; see note on 19:13.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 21:10 wicked desires evil. So strongly does he seek to do evil (cf. Eccles. 8:11) that he will not even spare his neighbor if he gets in his way.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 21:11 See note on 19:25.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 21:12 See note on 20:22; cf. 10:25 and 14:11.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 21:13 poor. See note on 14:31.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 21:14 Cf. 17:8; 18:16; 19:6.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 21:16 This is proven in the account of the simple man who was seduced (2:18; 7:22–23; 9:18).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 21:17 wine and oil. These are associated with unbridled luxury in feasting (Deut. 14:26; Neh. 8:12; Ps. 104:15; Amos 6:6; John 12:5). Costly indulgences impoverish.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 21:18 By suffering the very thing they had devised for the righteous, or brought on them, the wicked became their ransom, in the sense of being a substitute in judgment.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 21:19 See note on 19:13.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 21:21 Those who pursue “righteousness” and “kindness” receive more than they seek (see Matt. 5:6–7; 6:33).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 21:22 Cf. 24:5. Wisdom is better than strength (cf. Eccles. 7:19; 9:15).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 21:26 The sin of covetousness marks the lazy man as the virtue of benevolence marks the righteous.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 21:27 See note on 15:8; cf. v. 3; Isa. 1:13–15.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 21:28 false witness. See note on 12:17.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 21:29 The wicked become obstinate, maintaining what suits them without regard for others or the truth, while good people proceed with integrity.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 21:31 made ready . . . victory. This is not a condemnation of adequate preparation but rather of reliance on it for victory, instead of on the Lord (cf. Ezra 8:22; Ps. 20:7; Isa. 31:1–3; Hos. 1:7).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 22:3 Wise people see the approach of sin and remove themselves from it, while naive people walk right into it and suffer the consequences.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 22:4 fear of the Lord. See note on 1:7.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 22:6 way he should go. There is only one right way, God's way, the way of life. That way is specified in great detail in Proverbs. Since it is axiomatic that early training secures lifelong habits, parents must insist upon this way, teaching God's word and enforcing it with loving discipline consistently throughout the child's upbringing. See note on 13:24. Cf. Deut. 4:9; 6:6–8; 11:18–21; Josh. 24:15; Eph. 6:4.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 22:7 rich rules. While this is naturally true, the law and Prophets condemned those who were oppressive (cf. 22:22–23; Deut. 24:14–18; Isa. 5:8; Jer. 34:13, 17; Mic. 2:2).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 22:8–9 bountiful. The principle of sowing and reaping is emphasized. Cf. Job 4:8; Hos. 8:7; 10:13; 2 Cor. 9:6; Gal. 6:7–9.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 22:11 Even the most powerful are drawn to the wise (cf. Eccles. 10:12).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 22:12 The eyes of the Lord. See note on 15:3. God's sovereign omniscience protects the principles and possessors of divine knowledge.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 22:13 a lion outside. Cf. 26:13. The lazy give lame excuses for not leaving the house to work. See notes on 6:6, 11.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 22:14 The flattering seductions of such a woman lure men into a pit as God makes their sin its own punishment. See note on 2:16; cf. 5:3 and 7:5.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 22:15 See note on 13:24.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 22:16 These two vices reflect the same selfish attitude: withholding from the poor to keep what one has, and giving to the rich to induce them to give one more. Both are unacceptable to God and incur punishment.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 22:17–24:34 Solomon did not author, but did compile, this collection containing 77 proverbs that were most likely spoken by godly men prior to Solomon's reign. The section begins with an introduction (22:17–21), followed by a collection of proverbs in random order, one, two or three verses each (as opposed to the one-verse, two-line proverbs in the previous section). This is followed by two collections of additional proverbs (22:22–24:22 and 24:23–34), which continue and enlarge upon the wisdom themes of this book.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 22:17–21 This introductory section offers an exhortation, reminiscent of 2:1–5 and 5:1–2, to be alert to hear and speak the wisdom of God.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 22:20 thirty sayings. This term is lit. "chief proverbs" (cf. 8:6).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 22:21 true answer. Solomon is especially concerned about accuracy so that his reader can teach others.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 22:22–24:22 The first collection of words for wise men is recorded.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 22:22–23 See note on 14:31.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 22:22 gate. Beggars typically sat at the gate because of the large number of people passing by. The gate was also the place for civic and legal issues to be settled (cf. 31:23). The "afflicted" were there begging or seeking justice or mercy and were to be fairly treated.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 22:24–25 Cf. 12:26.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 22:26–27 See note on 6:1.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 22:28 landmark. This refers to stealing land by moving the boundaries. See note on 15:25; cf. Lev. 25:23 and Deut. 19:14.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 23:1–3 Here is a warning to exercise restraint when confronted with the luxuries of a wealthy ruler who seeks to lure you into his schemes and intrigues. Daniel is the classic illustration of one who lived by this proverb, refusing the allurements of the pagan monarch, which he knew could corrupt him (see Dan. 1:8ff.).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 23:4–5 Cf. 11:28; 28:22; 1 Tim. 6:9–10, 17. Rather than wearing one's self out pursuing wealth, pursue the wisdom of God and what glorifies him, and he will bless with prosperity as he chooses. See Prov. 2:1–11 and 3:5–10.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 23:6–8 stingy. This is the greedy one who, to be rich, hoards his riches, withholding from the poor and needy to keep and increase his own wealth. He invites someone to enjoy his courtesies, feigning generosity, while really being sickeningly hypocritical, as his real goal is to take advantage in some way so as to increase his wealth at his guest's expense. Cf. 26:24–26.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 23:9 This is true because fools hate wisdom (cf. 1:22; 9:8; 12:1).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 23:10–11 ancient landmark. See note on 15:25; cf. 22:22–23.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 23:11 Redeemer. In a normal situation the near kinsman would rescue the one who had fallen upon hard times (cf. Lev. 25:25; Ruth 2:20; 3:12–13; 4:1–12) or avenge in the case of a murder (Num. 35:19). “Redeemer” is applied to God as the Savior of his people (e.g., Gen. 48:16; Ex. 6:6; Job 19:25; Ps. 19:14; Isa. 41:14; 43:14; 44:24) since the helpless had no voice.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 23:13–14 discipline. See notes on 13:24 and 22:6. The child will survive the punishment and thus avoid an untimely or premature death due to sinful conduct (cf. Deut. 21:18–21).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 23:14 Sheol. See note on 1:12.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 23:15–16 son . . . wise. The result of discipline (vv. 13–14) is the child’s wise choices, bringing the parents joy (cf. vv. 24–25; 10:1; 15:20; 17:21; 28:7; 29:3).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 23:16 inmost being. Lit., “the kidney,” along with the heart (cf. 3:5; 4:21–23), are figurative expressions for the inner man or the seat of one’s thoughts and feelings.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 23:17 fear of the Lord. See note on 1:7.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 23:18 there is a future. Cf. v. 24. Anyone who might envy sinners needs to know that their prosperity is brief. They will die (“be cut off ”); then there will be a time when all iniquities will be dealt with and divine justice will prevail (cf. Ps. 37:28–38). The righteous will live forever (see note on Prov. 14:32).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 23:19 the way. The way of wisdom is the only right way (4:10–11).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 23:20 drunkards. Cf. vv. 29–35 and Deut. 21:20.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 23:22 Cf. 1:8; 2:1; 3:1; 4:1; 5:1; Eph. 6:1.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 23:23 Buy truth. Obtain the truth at all costs. Cf. 4:5–7 and Matt. 13:44–46. Then never relinquish it at any price (see Dan. 1:8ff.).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 23:24–25 See notes on vv. 15–16 and 13:24.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 23:27–28 prostitute . . . adulteress. Cf. 22:14. The terms refer to any immoral woman. See notes on 2:16; 5:3–5; 7:6–27; 9:13–18. Falling into her clutches should be as frightening as the prospect of falling into a deep pit or well, from which there is no escape.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 23:29–35 This passage offers a powerful warning against drunkenness, presented as a riddle (v. 29) with its answer (v. 30). Following the riddle, come exhortations (vv. 31–32) and descriptions of the drunkard's delirious thoughts (vv. 33, 35).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 23:30 mixed wine. See note on 20:1. Lingering long at the wine is indicative of constant drinking, so as to induce drunkenness (cf. 1 Tim. 3:3; Titus 1:7). Searching for more to drink indicates the same pursuit.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 23:31 wine when it is red. This describes wine when it is especially desirable and when it is most intoxicating, perhaps as "strong drink" or mixed with spices only and not water, as opposed to the "new wine" (3:10), which was fresh and unfermented or less fermented (cf. Hos. 4:11).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 23:32 bites . . . stings. This recounts the hangover, but also the more than likely destructive consequences (cf. Isa. 59:5; Jer. 8:17).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 23:33 The delirium and distortion of reality are part of the drunkard's miserable experience (see note on 1 Cor. 6:12).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 23:34 Here is the warning about the dizziness, sickness, and confusion of the drunkard, like being seasick at the top of the mast, the most agitated point on a ship in strong seas.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 23:35 The drunkard's lack of sense is so severe that his first waking thought is to repeat his debauchery and dangerous sin.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 24:1–2 Cf. 23:3, 17.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 24:3–4 house is built. House can refer to a physical structure (cf. 14:1), a family (see Josh. 24:15), or even a dynasty (see 2 Sam. 7:11–12; 1 Kings 11:38; 1 Chron. 17:10).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 24:5–6 Wisdom and wise counsel are associated with strength. See notes on 11:14 and 13:20; cf. Eccles. 9:16–18.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 24:7 the gate. See note on 22:22. Since the leading minds were there debating the issues of life, it was no place for fools.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 24:11 The danger here may be from unjust treatment or violence. Deliverance can either be by giving a true testimony on their behalf, by providing what they need to survive, or by rescuing them from a fatal course.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 24:12 who weighs the heart. See note on 16:2. God is the One who knows the truth about the motives of the heart and the excuses for failing to do what is right (cf. James 4:17). repay man according to his work? Cf. Prov. 24:29; Job 34:11; Jer. 25:14; 50:29.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 24:13–14 This is not a command to eat honey, but an analogy to seek the sweetness of wisdom's rewards. Cf. Ps. 19:10.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 24:14 hope . . . cut off. See note on 23:18.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 24:15–16 seven times. This stands for "often" or "many" (see 26:16; Job 5:19). The plots of the wicked against the righteous, though partially and temporarily successful, shall not be ultimately successful; while the wicked will fall under God's eternal judgment and find no help or deliverance.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 24:17–18 when your enemy falls. See note on 25:21–22. Gloating over a fallen enemy can be more serious than the sin the enemy committed.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 24:19 Fret not. Do not become angrily excited or envious at the apparent prosperity of the wicked. Cf. 3:31; 23:17–18; 24:1.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 24:20 lamp of the wicked. See note on 13:9.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 24:21 fear the Lord. See note on 1:7. the king. Loyalty to the king is proper because he is the agent of the Lord's wisdom (cf. Deut. 17:14–20; Rom. 13:1–7). That loyalty includes having no part with rebels who seek to subvert or overthrow him ("do otherwise"). Peter draws on this verse in his call to good citizenship in 1 Pet. 1:17 and 2:17.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 24:22 the ruin that will come from them both. A reference to the retributive power of the king and the Lord (cf. Job 31:23).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 24:23a These words introduce a brief section forming an appendix of further wise sayings (vv. 23b–34) that finish the first group of proverbs compiled by Solomon to add to his own. See note on 22:17–24:34.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 24:23b–25 Partiality in judging. Injustice is evil and destabilizes society. See note on 17:15.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 24:26 kisses the lips. A just and righteous response is as desirable as this most intimate expression of friendship.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 24:27 First, secure by diligent work and planning a good living in your fields, then build. In other words, provide a financial base so that all the necessities and contingencies are secured, then move from the tents (which were acceptable) to a house (which was desirable).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 24:28–29 Avenging the evil done by one's neighbor by offering false witness (cf. 14:5; 19:5) against him is forbidden. See notes on 6:16–19 and 20:22.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 24:30–34 See notes on 6:6, 11. Thorns also appear in his life in 15:19 (see note there.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 25:1–29:27 Hezekiah’s collection of Solomon’s proverbs.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 25:1 men of Hezekiah . . . copied. This collection of 137 proverbs was spoken by Solomon and most likely copied into a collection during the reign of Judah’s king, Hezekiah (c. 715–686 B.C.) over 200 years later. See Introduction: Author and Date. This is consistent with Hezekiah’s efforts to bring revival to Judah (2 Chron. 29:30; 32:26), as he elevated the forgotten wisdom of David and Solomon (cf. 2 Chron. 29:31; 30:26).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 25:2–3 God . . . kings. The roles of God and the king are compared. God, whose knowledge is above all human knowledge (cf. Ps. 92:5; Eccles. 3:11; Isa. 46:10; Acts 15:18; Heb. 4:13), and whose ways are unsearchable (cf. Job 5:9; Ps. 145:3; Isa. 40:28), keeps things to himself because he needs no counsel (see Rom. 11:34). On the contrary, kings should rightly seek to know what they must know in order to rule righteously.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 25:4–5 A nation is established as wisdom replaces and purifies wickedness (cf. 14:34; 16:12).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 25:6–7 In the royal court as in all of life, self-seeking and pride bring a person down. Do not intrude into such a place, for the elevating of the humble is honorable, but the humbling of the proud is disgraceful (cf. Luke 14:8–10; James 4:7–10).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 25:8–10 hastily bring into court. When conflict arises, the man with a contentious spirit is quick to go to court, but he is better off to talk it over with his neighbor than to expose himself to public shame in court, where everything will be told.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 25:11–12 The imagery of beauty describes well-chosen words, including words of rebuke. Cf. 15:23 and 24:26.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 25:13 cold of snow. A faithful messenger (cf. v. 25; 26:6) was as refreshing as snow would be in the heat of the summer harvest.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 25:15 patience. Patience is a mighty weapon. See 15:1 and 16:32.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 25:16 This may be a parable that goes with v. 17, instructing the wise not to overdo anything that may lead to disgust and rejection, including overstaying or being overbearing with a friend who may begin to resent him.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 25:18 He is as destructive to reputation as those weapons are to the body.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 25:20 vinegar on soda. Pouring vinegar on an alkali (e.g., baking soda) produces a reaction like boiling or turning tranquility into agitation. So is the effect of singing joyful songs without sympathy to the sorrowful. Cf. Ps. 137:3–4.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 25:21–22 As metals are melted by placing fiery coals on them, so is the heart of an enemy softened by such kindness. Contrast the coals of judgment in Ps. 140:10. Paul quotes this proverb in Rom. 12:20. Cf. Matt. 5:43–48.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 25:23 The theme is cause and effect; as surely as a rain cloud brings the rain, slander, or “a backbiting tongue,” produces anger.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 25:24 See notes on 19:13 and 21:9.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 25:25 See note on v. 13.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 25:26 muddied spring. The righteous one who sins muddies the water for the wicked who see him and for whom he should serve as an example of righteousness (cf. Ps. 17:5).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 25:27 Eating honey is analogous to enjoying the sweetness of your own self-glory. See notes on vv. 6–7, 16.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 25:28 city broken into. Such are exposed and vulnerable to the incursion of evil thoughts and successful temptations. For the opposite, see note on 16:32.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 26:1–12 The fool is described in every verse. Most verses compare aspects of natural order that are violated with the behavior of a fool. The deteriorating nature of foolishness is seen as the description progresses from drink (v. 6) to vomit (v. 11).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 26:1 These damaging incongruities of nature illustrate those in the moral realm. Cf. 17:7 and 19:10.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 26:2 curse that is causeless. A bird's aimless motion without landing is compared to a fool who utters an undeserved curse—it does not land either.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 26:4–5 Answer not a fool. Taken together, these verses teach the appropriate way to answer a fool (e.g., an unbeliever who rejects truth). He should not be answered with agreement to his own ideas and presuppositions, or he will think he is right (v. 4), but rather he should be rebuked on the basis of his folly and shown the truth so he sees how foolish he is (v. 5).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 26:6 Self-inflicted wounds come to the person who chooses to depend upon a fool (cf. 25:13).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 26:7 Awkward and useless.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 26:8 binds the stone. As it is nonsense to fasten a stone to a slingshot so that it will not release, so it is nonsense to honor a fool.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 26:10 The Hebrew language is obscure here, so as to produce many interpretations of what this is saying. Since it is impossible to know exactly what it said in the original, it is impossible to know exactly what it means. The translation might be: "Much brings forth from itself all; but the reward and the wages of the fool pass away." This could mean, reasonably, that although he who possesses much and has great ability may be able to accomplish all he wants, that is not the case when he makes use of the work of fools, who not only do not accomplish anything, but destroy everything.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 26:11 Peter quotes this disgusting proverb in 2 Pet. 2:22.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 26:12 wise in his own eyes. There are degrees of foolishness, with intellectual conceit being the most stupid and hard to remedy. This is applied to the lazy man in v. 16 and the rich in 28:11.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 26:13–16 The sluggard See notes on 6:6, 11 and 22:13.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 26:16 The ignorant are ignorant of their ignorance. seven. See note on 24:15–16.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 26:17–28 Here is a picturesque discourse on the evil speaking of fools and lazy people and its harmful effects.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 26:17 dog by the ears. The dog was not domesticated in Palestine and thus to grab any dog was dangerous. The aggressor deserved to be bitten for his unprovoked act.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 26:18–19 The serious damage done by deceit cannot be dismissed as a joke (cf. Isa. 50:11).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 26:20–22 whisperer. See notes on 6:14 and 16:28. Slander fuels this fire.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 26:22 morsels. See note on 18:8.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 26:23 covering an earthen vessel. A cheap veneer of silver over a common clay pot hiding its commonness and fragility, is like the deception spoken by evil people. This thought is expanded in vv. 24–28.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 26:27 The ruin intended for others will come back on the person who spoke it.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 27:1 boast about tomorrow. Fools think they know the future or can affect its outcome, but the future rests with sovereign God. See notes on 16:1–9; cf. Ps. 37; James 4:13–16.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 27:4 jealousy. Cf. 6:34; Song 8:6. The most uncontrollable sin.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 27:5–6 open rebuke. To genuinely love is to manifest the truth, even if it means to rebuke (cf. 28:23; Ps. 141:5; Gal. 4:16).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 27:6 the kisses of an enemy. Cf. 5:3–5 and 26:23–24.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 27:7 The luxury and indolence of wealth make the best things tasteless, while the hard-working person who hungers finds every bitter thing sweet. This proverb extends beyond food to things in general, which means so much more to those with little.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 27:8 man who strays. Such are not only out of place, but off duty and in danger. Stay close to home.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 27:10 Adhere to tried and true friends. The ties of blood may be less reliable than those of genuine friendship. See notes on 17:17 and 18:24.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 27:11 A wise son accredits his father and also aides him in difficulty with appropriate answers (cf. 10:1; 15:20). This proverb is true in reverse as well (cf. 17:25; 19:13; 22:21; 23:15).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 27:12 Cf. 22:3.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 27:13 See note on 20:16.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 27:14 blesses his neighbor. Excessive flattery all day raises suspicion of selfishness.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 27:15–16 See notes on 19:13 and 21:9. This kind of woman is impossible to restrain or tame.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 27:17 Iron sharpens iron. The benefits of intellectual and theological discussion encourage joy through a keener mind and the improvement of good character, which the face will reveal.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 27:20 Sheol and Abaddon. Man's desires are never filled up. They are as insatiable as the place of eternal punishment, which never overfills (cf. 30:15–16).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 27:21 crucible . . . tested by his praise. Popularity and praise "test" personal character. See note on 17:3.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 27:22 mortar . . . pestle. A bowl and rod of stone that were used to crush solid grain into powder.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 27:23–27 This portion contrasts the common shepherd's labor and God's provision with the fleeting nature of uncertain riches and power (v. 24). Since all lands reverted to the original owners every 50 years, flocks were the staple wealth. Only by care and diligence could they be perpetuated and profitable. God's providence aids this effort (cf. Ps. 65:9–13) to properly use the blessings of the land (Prov. 27:25–27).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 28:1 A guilty conscience imagines accusers everywhere (cf. Num. 32:23; Ps. 53:5), while a clear conscience has boldness to face everyone.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 28:2 many rulers. Unrighteousness in a nation produces political instability, with many vying for power, thus the tenure of each leader is shortened. Wisdom promotes social order and long rule.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 28:3 oppresses the poor. When the poor come to power and oppress their own, it is as bad as a destructive storm washing the fields clean instead of watering the crop.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 28:7 The son who obeyed God's law would not be a glutton and shame his father. Cf. 23:19–25.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 28:8 interest and profit. The law forbade the charging of interest to fellow Jews (see Deut. 23:19–20), but this was often violated (cf. Neh. 5:7, 11; Ezek. 22:12). gathers it for him. In the providence and justice of God, such wealth will be forfeited to someone who treats the poor fairly. See notes on Prov. 13:22 and 14:31.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 28:9 See note on 15:8.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 28:10 The attempted corruption of the righteous is a wicked sin (Matt. 5:19; 18:6; 23:15). fall into his own pit. See note on Prov. 26:27.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 28:11 rich man is wise in his own eyes. This contrasts the discerning poor with the rich man, who is deceived by his self-confidence. Riches are not always possessed by the unrighteous and wisdom by the poor, but, more often than not, this is the case due to the blinding nature of wealth (cf. 11:28; 18:23; Matt. 19:23–24).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 28:12 When wicked people come into power, the righteous "shout" (11:10), "groan" (29:2), and "hide" (28:28).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 28:13 conceals . . . confesses. Sin must not be hidden but confessed. See notes on Ps. 32:1–9 and 1 John 1:6–9.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 28:14 hardens his heart. Cf. Ex. 7:13; 17:7; Ps. 95:8; Rom. 2:5.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 28:16 cruel oppressor. The tyrannical leader who is covetous (implied) is foolish and short-lived.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 28:17 Whoever is inwardly tormented by the murder of someone takes to ceaseless flight to escape the avenger of blood and the punishment of his crime. He flees and finds no rest until the grave receives him. The exhortation is to avoid helping a murderer with any support, refuge, or security against the vengeance that pursues him from the arm of justice.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 28:20 abound with blessings. Blessings are the product of honest labor. See notes on 10:22; 11:24–26; cf. Gen. 49:25; Mal. 3:10. hastens to be rich. See note on Prov. 20:21; cf. 1 Tim. 6:9.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 28:21 piece of bread. A small bribe. Cf. 15:27; 18:5; 24:23.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 28:22 stingy man. A miser is motivated by greed. See notes on 21:5–7.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 28:23 Flattery has no value but reproof does, so it leads to gratitude. Cf. 16:13 and 27:5–6.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 28:24 robs his father . . . mother. See note on 19:26. To plunder one's own family is an unthinkable crime, but it is worse yet when denied.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 28:25 greedy man . . . strife. This is arrogance that satisfies itself at the expense of conflict with others and never knows the prosperity of humble trust in God.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 28:27 hides his eyes. This refers to one who does not respond to the needs of the poor. See note on 14:31; cf. 1 John 3:16–18.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 28:28 See note on v. 12.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 29:1 stiffens his neck. This refers to a state of increasing obstinance, along with an unteachable spirit. See note on 28:14.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 29:2 righteous . . . wicked. See note on 28:12. This could describe the political turmoil of the northern kingdom of Israel in the time of Hezekiah, who collected these proverbs (see note on 25:1).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 29:4 gifts. See note on 15:27.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 29:5 Flattery is a trap. Cf. 26:28 and 28:23.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 29:8 These angry, arrogant men fan the flames of strife that trap a city as if engulfed in flames (cf. 26:21).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 29:9 argument. A fool may respond to wisdom with anger or laughter, but in either case, no agreement can be reached. Cf. 26:4–5.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 29:12 ruler listens to falsehood. A corrupt leader will draw around him corrupt people. Allow lies and you will be surrounded by liars.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 29:13 gives light to the eyes. This phrase means to sustain life. God gives life to both the poor and the rich oppressor, and he holds each responsible for his truth. Cf. 22:1.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 29:15 See notes on 13:24 and 22:6.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 29:17 Discipline your son. See notes on 13:24 and 22:6.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 29:18 no . . . vision. This proverb looks both to the lack of the word (i.e., 1 Sam. 3:1) and the lack of hearing the word (Amos 8:11–12), which lead to lawless rebellion (cf. Ex. 32:25; Lev. 13:45; Num. 5:18). The proverb then contrasts the joy and glory of a lawful society (Prov. 28:14; Mal. 4:4).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 29:19 will not respond. This verse views the mind-set of an unprincipled and foolish slave who is unresponsive and irresponsible.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 29:20 hasty in his words? See note on 10:19.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 29:21 The idea is of overindulging a servant, so that the servant will ultimately want to be cared for like a son, rather than one who serves the master.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 29:22 Cf. 15:18.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 29:23 Cf. 16:18–19.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 29:24 partner of a thief. By refusing to testify with full disclosure to avoid incrimination, one commits perjury, which leads to punishment. See note on Matt. 26:63.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 29:26 face of a ruler. The moral is to seek the Lord’s favor, since he alone can and will exact justice.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 30:1–33 The words of Agur. This is a collection of proverbs written by an unknown sage who was likely a student of wisdom at the time of Solomon (cf. 1 Kings 4:30–31). Agur reflects humility (Prov. 30:1–4), a deep hatred for arrogance (vv. 7–9), and a keen theological mind (vv. 5–6).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 30:1 oracle. This word is often used of a prophet (cf. Zech. 9:1; Mal. 1:1) and can be translated "burden" for its weighty character as a divine word or prophecy (cf. Mal. 1:1). As the esv footnote indicates, instead of weary and worn out, the Hebrew could also be vocalized to read, "to Ithiel and Ucal." If so, then Agur addressed his wisdom perhaps to his favorite pupils, as Luke to Theophilus (Luke 1:1–4; Acts 1:1–2).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 30:2–3 too stupid . . . nor have I knowledge. This is a statement of humility and a recognition of the reality that, apart from divine revelation, there would be no true wisdom at all (see notes on 1:7; 9:10). This is illustrated in the pursuits of Job (Job 3:3–26) and Solomon (Eccles. 3:1–15). Agur was wise because he first admitted what he could not know (1 Cor. 2:6–16).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 30:3 knowledge of the Holy One. Agur knew that he could not gain wisdom through human searching alone. Understanding is here associated with the holiness of God. Cf. 9:10 and 1 Cor. 8:2.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 30:4 Who . . . ? What . . . ? These questions can be answered only by revelation from God. A man can know the "what" about creative wisdom through observation of the physical world and its inner workings, but cannot know the "who." The "who" can be known only when God reveals himself, which he has in Scripture. This is the testimony and conclusion of Job (Job 42:1–6), Solomon (Eccles. 12:1–14), Isaiah (Isa. 40:12–17; 46:8–11; 66:18–19), and Paul (Rom. 8:18–39). his son's name. Jesus Christ. Cf. John 1:1–18.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 30:5–6 These verses move from the uncertainty of human speculation to the certainty of divine revelation. Agur quotes from David (2 Sam. 22:31; Ps. 18:30).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 30:5 proves. Lit., "tried," and found to be without dross or error. Cf. Ps. 12:6.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 30:6 Do not add. A powerful statement on the inspired nature of God's canonical word to Israel. To add to God's word is to deny God as the standard of truth (cf. Gen. 2:16–17 with 3:2–3). See notes on Deut. 4:2 and Rev. 22:18–19.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 30:7–9 The prayer of a true wisdom-seeker. He seeks from the Lord honesty in heart and sufficiency in him (away from the dangers posed by the extremes of poverty or wealth). If he has too much, he could cease depending on God (see Deut. 8:11–20; 10:15; 18:11), and if he has too little, he could be tempted to be as the sluggard (Prov. 6:6–11).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 30:9 Who is the Lord? This is a question reflecting extreme arrogance, e.g., "What is the Almighty, that we should serve him?" (Job 21:14–16). Cf. Deut. 8:10–18; Luke 12:16–21.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 30:11–14 There are those. These proverbs condemn various forms of unwise behavior and are connected with this common phrase that points to the fact that certain sins can uniquely permeate a whole society or time period.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 30:11 See note on 20:20. Cf. Ex. 21:17; Ps. 14:5; 24:6.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 30:12 See notes on 16:2; 20:9; cf. Matt. 23:23–26.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 30:13 See note on 21:4.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 30:14 See note on 14:31.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 30:15–16 leech . . . Give and Give. These two blood-sucking mouths of the horse leech, which lived off the blood of its victim, are used to picture the insatiably greedy.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 30:16 Sheol . . . fire. Four illustrations of the greedy are given, all of which are parasitic in nature and characterize the heart of human greed. Cf. Gen. 16:2; 20:18; 30:1.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 30:17 eye that mocks. This proverb vividly speaks to the tragic results of disregarding parental respect and authority and the destruction it brings. See notes on 10:1; 17:21; 29:15, 17; cf. Ex. 20:12. ravens . . . vultures. These birds scavenge the unburied corpse of a child who dies prematurely because of rebellion. Cf. 1 Sam. 17:44; 1 Kings 14:11; Jer. 16:4; Ezek. 29:5; 39:7.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 30:18–20 Hypocrisy is illustrated by four natural analogies of concealment: 1) an eagle leaves no trail in the air; 2) a slithering snake leaves no trail on the rock; 3) a ship leaves no trail in the sea; 4) a man leaves no marks after he has slept with a virgin. These actions are all concealed and thus serve to illustrate the hypocrisy of the adulterous woman who hides the evidences of her shame while professing innocence.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 30:21–23 earth trembles. See notes on 19:10 and 28:3. Society is greatly agitated when normal roles are overturned, e.g., servants reigning, fools made rich, hated women married, and maidservants becoming wives (cf. Gen. 16:1–6).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 30:24–28 Four things . . . are small. These verses picture four creatures that survive due to natural instinct. The wisdom seen in each of these reveals the beauty of the wise Creator and his creation (cf. Ps. 8:3–9) and becomes a model for the principle that labor, diligence, organization, planning, and resourcefulness are better than strength, thus implying the superiority of wisdom over might.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 30:25 ants. These survive through planning and labor. See note on 6:6.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 30:26 rock badgers. Though weak, these animals survive by being diligent enough to climb and find sanctuary in high places. Cf. Lev. 11:5; Ps. 104:18.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 30:27 locusts. These survive through careful organization.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 30:28 lizard. These creatures are resourceful and can make their home in inaccessible places—even in a palace.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 30:29–31 Three things are stately in their tread; four. The three creatures and the king all picture wise, stately, and orderly deportment. Each offers a glimpse of the Creator's power and wisdom (cf. Job 38:1–42:6) and illustrates the dignity and confidence of those who walk wisely.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 30:31 strutting rooster. The meaning in Hebrew is uncertain. Other possibilities are 1) a greyhound or 2) a war-horse ready for battle. Cf. Job 39:19–25. he-goat. This is the he-goat that was the leader of the flock. Cf. Dan. 8:5.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 30:32 put your hand on your mouth. Lit., "stop your scheming and talking"—a gesture of awestruck, self-imposed silence. Cf. Job 21:5; 29:9; 40:4.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 30:33 produces . . . produces . . . produces. The verb is the same in all three instances. These are natural causes and effects to show that anger pressed beyond certain limits produces conflict.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 31:1–31 This concluding chapter contains two poems: 1) The Wise King (31:2–9) and 2) The Excellent Wife (31:10–31). Both are the teachings of a godly mother (v. 1) to King Lemuel, whom ancient Jewish tradition identified as King Solomon, but who is otherwise unknown.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 31:1 oracle. See note on 30:1. mother taught him. See 1:8.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 31:2–9 The godly king is addressed (v. 2) and told that his reign should be characterized by: 1) holiness (v. 3); 2) sobriety (vv. 4–7); and 3) compassion (vv. 8–9). This section is filled with succinct and solemn warnings against vices to which kings are particularly susceptible—immorality, overindulgence, unrighteous rule, and indifference to those in need.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 31:2 my son. The phrase is repeated three times to indicate the serious passion of a mother's heart. son of my vows. Like Hannah, she had dedicated her child to the Lord (cf. 1 Sam. 1:11, 27–28).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 31:3 Do not give your strength to women. Multiplying foreign wives destroys a king as it did Solomon (cf. Deut. 17:17; 1 Kings 11:1–4). See notes on Prov. 5:9–11.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 31:4–5 See notes on 20:1 and 23:29–35. Intoxicating drinks can weaken reason and judgment, loosen convictions, or pervert the heart. They do not suit rulers who need clear, steady minds and keen judgment.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 31:6–7 Give strong drink. Such extreme situations, possibly relating to a criminal on death row or someone agonizing in pain with a terminal illness or tragic circumstance, are in utter contrast to that of the king (cf. Ps. 104:15).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 31:8–9 Open your mouth. Plead for those who cannot plead their own case, namely those who are otherwise ruined by their condition of weakness. The king's duty was to righteously uphold the case of the helpless in both physical (v. 6) and material (v. 9) crises. The monarch thus mediates the compassion of God. See note on 14:31.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 31:10–31 This poem offers a beautiful description of the excellent wife as defined by a wife and mother (v. 1). Spiritual and practical wisdom plus moral virtues mark the character of this woman in contrast to the immoral women of v. 3. While the scene here is of a wealthy home and the customs of the ancient Near East, the principles apply to every family. They are set forth as the prayer of every mother for the future wife of her son, and literarily arranged with each of the 22 verses beginning with the 22 letters of the Hebrew alphabet in consecutive order.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 31:10–12 This section describes her marriage.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 31:10 excellent. See note on 12:4; cf. Ruth 3:11. who can find? She does exist, but is very hard to find. Cf. Prov. 18:22.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 31:11 trusts in her. He does not maintain jealous guard over her or keep his valuables locked up so that she cannot access them as was a common ancient practice in a house of distrust. She demonstrates impeccable loyalty to her husband, and her thrift and industry will add to his wealth.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 31:13–24 This section describes her behavior.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 31:13 seeks wool and flax. Excellent women gathered the material for making clothes (v. 19).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 31:14 like the ships. Excellent women would go far to secure the best food for their families.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 31:15 rises while it is yet night. In order to have the food prepared for the family each day, she had to rise before dawn to begin the work, which she would do gladly.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 31:16 considers a field. She was resourceful and entrepreneurial in her investing and reinvesting.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 31:17 Such women were not soft, but by virtue of rigorous work, strong.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 31:18 profitable. That which she produced for the family of clothing, food, and wealth was good and profitable. lamp . . . night. Lamp is to be understood literally (cf. v. 15). She planted the vineyard during the day (v. 16), and wove late at night (v. 19). She rose early before dawn to prepare the food (v. 15), thus keeping a before-sunrise to after-dark schedule to care for her household, which was the foremost priority of her life (cf. Titus 2:5).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 31:19 distaff . . . spindle. These tools are used to turn wool into thread for making clothing. Cf. Ex. 35:25.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 31:20–24 Her activities, driven by the priority of caring for her family, resulted in multiplied fruitfulness for: 1) the poor and needy (v. 20); 2) her own household (v. 21); 3) herself (v. 22); 4) her husband (v. 23); and 5) the tradesmen (v. 24).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 31:21 snow. Snow indicates the cold that occurs in the high altitudes of Palestine. Her labors anticipated her family's need for warm clothing in such cold places and seasons.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 31:22 fine linen and purple. The efforts she makes to honor others are rewarded to her. These silk and purple garments are expensive evidences of the blessings returned to her by God's grace.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 31:23 known in the gates. This woman made a significant contribution to her husband's position in the community and to his success (vv. 10–12). His domestic comfort promoted his advancement in public honor. A man's good reputation begins with his home and thus the virtue of his wife (cf 18:22).

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 31:24 makes . . . sells them. With all her other responsibilities faithfully discharged, she took time to make items of clothing for the purposes of trade.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 31:25–27 This section emphasizes her character.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 31:25 Strength and dignity. These words describe the character of the woman who fears the Lord. Her inward clothing displays divine wisdom, giving her confidence to face the future with its unexpected challenges.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 31:26 opens her mouth . . . teaching of kindness. Her teaching of wisdom and the law is tempered with mercy.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 31:27 She was a skilled manager of the home. See note on Titus 2:4–5. bread of idleness. Lit., "eyes looking everywhere" as in the lazy man (cf. Prov. 6:6, 9) of whom the same root word is used.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 31:28–29 This section describes her family life.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 31:28 rise up and call her blessed. She was greatly respected because she has earned the praise of her family. See note on 29:17. There can be no higher joy for a mother than for her children to grow up to praise her as the source of the wisdom that made them godly. See note on 1 Tim. 2:15.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 31:29–30 you surpass them all. This was her husband’s superlative praise (v. 28) which was well-deserved, in which he used the same word for “excellent” found in v. 10.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 31:30–31 This portion summarizes her spiritual life.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 31:30 Charm . . . beauty. True holiness and virtue command permanent respect and affection, far more than charm and beauty of face and form. Cf. 1 Tim. 2:9–10 and 1 Pet. 3:1–6. a woman who fears the Lord. Proverbs ends where it began with a reference to the fear of the Lord. See note on Prov. 1:7.

PROVERBS—NOTE ON 31:31 fruit . . . works. See vv. 10–29. While she receives material reward (v. 22), the praise and success she labored to bring to her family and community will be her praise. The result of all her efforts is her best eulogy.

Introduction to Ecclesiastes

Title

The English title, Ecclesiastes, comes from the Greek and Latin translations of Solomon’s book. The LXX used the Greek term ekkleēsiasteēs for its title. It means “preacher,” derived from the word ekklēsia, translated “assembly” or “congregation” in the NT. Both the Greek and Latin versions derive their titles from the Hebrew title, Qoheleth, which means “one who calls or gathers” the people. It refers to the one who addresses the assembly; hence, the preacher (cf. 1:1–2, 12; 7:27; 12:8–10). Along with Ruth, Song of Solomon, Esther, and Lamentations, Ecclesiastes stands with the OT books of the Megilloth, or “five scrolls.” Later rabbis read these books in the synagogue on five special occasions during the year—Ecclesiastes being read on Pentecost.

Author and Date

The autobiographical profile of the book’s writer unmistakably points to Solomon. Evidence abounds such as: 1) the titles fit Solomon, “son of David, king in Jerusalem” (1:1) and “king over Israel in Jerusalem” (1:12); 2) the author’s moral odyssey chronicles Solomon’s life (1 Kings 2–11); and 3) the role of one who “taught the people knowledge” and wrote “many proverbs” (Eccles. 12:9) corresponds to his life. All point to Solomon, the son of David, as the author.

Once Solomon is accepted as the author, the date and occasion become clear. Solomon was writing, probably in his latter years (no later than c. 931 B.C.), primarily to warn the young people of his kingdom, without omitting others. He warned them to avoid walking through life on the path of human wisdom; he exhorted them to live by the revealed wisdom of God (12:9–14).

Background and Setting

Solomon’s reputation for possessing extraordinary wisdom fits the Ecclesiastes profile. David recognized his son’s wisdom (1 Kings 2:6, 9) before God gave Solomon an additional measure. After he received a “wise and discerning mind” from the Lord (1 Kings 3:7–12), Solomon gained renown for being exceedingly wise by rendering insightful decisions (1 Kings 3:16–28), a reputation that attracted “all the kings of the earth” to his courts (1 Kings 4:34). In addition, he composed songs and proverbs (1 Kings 4:32; cf. Eccles. 12:9), activity befitting only the ablest of sages. Solomon’s wisdom, like Job’s wealth, surpassed the wisdom of “the people of the east” (1 Kings 4:30; Job 1:3).

The book is applicable to all who would listen and benefit, not so much from Solomon’s experiences, but from the principles he drew as a result. Its aim is to answer some of life’s most challenging questions, particularly where they seem contrary to Solomon’s expectations. This has led some unwisely to take the view that Ecclesiastes is a book of skepticism. But in spite of amazingly unwise behavior and thinking, Solomon never let go of his faith in God (Eccles. 12:13–14).

Historical and Theological Themes

As is true with most biblical Wisdom literature, little historical narrative occurs in Ecclesiastes, apart from Solomon’s own personal pilgrimage. The kingly sage studied life with high expectations but repeatedly bemoaned its shortcomings, which he acknowledged were due to the curse (Gen. 3:14–19). Ecclesiastes represents the painful autobiography of Solomon who, for much of his life, squandered God’s blessings on his own personal pleasure rather than God’s glory. He wrote to warn subsequent generations not to make the same tragic error, in much the same manner as Paul wrote to the Corinthians (cf. 1 Cor. 1:18–31; 2:13–16).

The Hebrew word translated “vanity,” “vanities,” and “vain life” expresses the futile attempt to be satisfied apart from God. This word is used 38 times expressing the many things hard to understand about life. All earthly goals and ambitions when pursued as ends in themselves produce only emptiness. Paul was probably echoing Solomon’s dissatisfaction when he wrote, “ . . . the creation was subjected to futility” (Solomon’s “vanity”; Rom. 8:19–21). Solomon’s experience with the effects of the curse (see Gen. 3:17–19) led him to view life as “chasing after the wind.”

Solomon asked, “What does man gain by all the toil . . . ?” (Eccles. 1:3), a question he repeated in 2:22 and 3:9. The wise king gave over a considerable portion of the book to addressing this dilemma. The impossibility of discovering both the inner workings of God’s creation and the personal providence of God in Solomon’s life were also deeply troubling to the king, as they were to Job. But the reality of judgment for all, despite many unknowns, emerged as the great certainty. In light of this judgment by God, the only fulfilled life is one lived in proper recognition of God and service to him. Any other kind of life is frustrating and pointless.

A proper balance of the prominent “enjoy life” theme with that of “divine judgment” tethers the reader to Solomon’s God with the sure chord of faith. For a time, Solomon suffered from the imbalance of trying to enjoy life without regard for the fear of Yahweh’s judgment holding him on the path of obedience. In the end, he came to grasp the importance of obedience. The tragic results of Solomon’s personal experience, coupled with the insight of extraordinary wisdom, make Ecclesiastes a book from which all believers can be warned and grow in their faith (cf. 2:1–26). This book shows that if one perceives each day of existence, labor, and basic provision as a gift from God, and accepts whatever God gives, then that person lives an abundant life (cf. John 10:10). However, one who looks to be satisfied apart from God will live with futility regardless of his or her accumulations.

Interpretive Challenges

The author's declaration that "all is vanity" envelops the primary message of the book (cf. 1:2; 12:8). The word translated "vanity" is used in at least three ways throughout the book. In each case, it looks at the nature of man's activity "under the sun" as: 1) "fleeting," which has in view the vapor-like (cf. James 4:14) or transitory nature of life; 2) "futile" or "meaningless," which focuses on the cursed condition of the universe and the debilitating effects it has on man's earthly experience; or 3) "incomprehensible" or "enigmatic," which gives consideration to life's unanswerable questions. Solomon draws upon all three meanings in Ecclesiastes.

While the context in each case will determine which meaning Solomon is focusing upon, the most recurring meaning of vanity is "incomprehensible" or "unknowable," referring to the mysteries of God's purposes. Solomon's conclusion to "fear God and keep his commandments" (12:13–14) is more than the book's summary; it is the only hope of the good life and the only reasonable response of faith and obedience to sovereign God. He precisely works out all activities under the sun, each in its time according to his perfect plan, but also discloses only as much as his perfect wisdom dictates and holds all men accountable. Those who refuse to take God and his word seriously are doomed to lives of the severest vanity.

Outline

The book chronicles Solomon’s investigations and conclusions regarding man’s lifework, which combines all of his activity and its potential outcomes including limited satisfaction. The role of wisdom in experiencing success surfaces repeatedly, particularly when Solomon must acknowledge that God has not revealed all of the details. This leads Solomon to the conclusion that the primary issues of life after the Edenic fall involve divine blessings to be enjoyed and the divine judgment for which all must prepare.

Ecclesiastes

All Is Vanity

ECCLESIASTES 1 †The words of the Preacher, [1] the son of David, king in Jerusalem.

[2]†Vanity [2] of vanities, says the Preacher, vanity of vanities! All is vanity.
[3]†What does man gain by all the toil
at which he toils under the sun?
[4]‡†A generation goes, and a generation comes,
but the earth remains forever.
[5]The sun rises, and the sun goes down,
and hastens [3] to the place where it rises.
[6]The wind blows to the south and goes around to the north;
around and around goes the wind,
and on its circuits the wind returns.
[7]All streams run to the sea,
but the sea is not full;
to the place where the streams flow,
there they flow again.
[8]‡All things are full of weariness;
a man cannot utter it;
the eye is not satisfied with seeing,
nor the ear filled with hearing.
[9]What has been is what will be,
and what has been done is what will be done,
and there is nothing new under the sun.
[10]Is there a thing of which it is said, “See, this is new”?
It has been already
in the ages before us.
[11]†There is no remembrance of former things, [4]

nor will there be any remembrance of later things [5] yet to be among those who come after.

The Vanity of Wisdom

[12]‡†I the Preacher have been king over Israel in Jerusalem. [13]†And I applied my heart [6] to seek and to search out by wisdom all that is done under heaven. It is an unhappy business that God has given to the children of man to be busy with. [14]†I have seen everything that is done under the sun, and behold, all is vanity and a striving after wind. [7]

[15]†What is crooked cannot be made straight, and what is lacking cannot be counted.

[16]†I said in my heart, “I have acquired great wisdom, surpassing all who were over Jerusalem before me, and my heart has had great experience of wisdom and knowledge.” [17]†And I applied my heart to know wisdom and to know madness and folly. I perceived that this also is but a striving after wind.

[18]†For in much wisdom is much vexation, and he who increases knowledge increases sorrow.

The Vanity of Self-Indulgence

ECCLESIASTES 2 ‡‡I said in my heart, “Come now, I will test you with pleasure; enjoy yourself.” But behold, this also was vanity. [2]I said of laughter, “It is mad,” and of pleasure, “What use is it?” [3]†I searched with my heart how to cheer my body with wine—my heart still guiding me with wisdom—and how to lay hold on folly, till I might see what was good for the children of man to do under heaven during the few days of their life. [4]‡I made great works. I built houses and planted vineyards for myself. [5]I made myself gardens and parks, and planted in them all kinds of fruit trees. [6]I made myself pools from which to water the forest of growing trees. [7]I bought male and female slaves, and had slaves who were born in my house. I had also great possessions of herds and flocks, more than any who had been before me in Jerusalem. [8]†I also gathered for myself silver and gold and the treasure of kings and provinces. I got singers, both men and women, and many concubines, [1] the delight of the children of man.

[9]So I became great and surpassed all who were before me in Jerusalem. Also my wisdom remained with me. [10]†And whatever my eyes desired I did not keep from them. I kept my heart from no pleasure, for my heart found pleasure in all my toil, and this was my reward for all my toil. [11]†Then I considered all that my hands had done and the toil I had expended in doing it, and behold, all was vanity and a striving after wind, and there was nothing to be gained under the sun.

The Vanity of Living Wisely

[12]‡So I turned to consider wisdom and madness and folly. For what can the man do who comes after the king? Only what has already been done. [13]Then I saw that there is more gain in wisdom than in folly, as there is more gain in light than in darkness. [14]†The wise person has his eyes in his head, but the fool walks in darkness. And yet I perceived that the same event happens to all of them. [15]Then I said in my heart, “What happens to the fool will happen to me also. Why then have I been so very wise?” And I said in my heart that this also is vanity. [16]For of the wise as of the fool there is no enduring remembrance, seeing that in the days to come all will have been long forgotten. How the wise dies just like the fool! [17]†So I hated life, because what is done under the sun was grievous to me, for all is vanity and a striving after wind.

The Vanity of Toil

[18]‡†I hated all my toil in which I toil under the sun, seeing that I must leave it to the man who will come after me, [19]and who knows whether he will be wise or a fool? Yet he will be master of all for which I toiled and used my wisdom under the sun. This also is vanity. [20]So I turned about and gave my heart up to despair over all the toil of my labors under the sun, [21]†because sometimes a person who has toiled with wisdom and knowledge and skill must leave everything to be enjoyed by someone who did not toil for it. This also is vanity and a great evil. [22]What has a man from all the toil and striving of heart with which he toils beneath the sun? [23]For all his days are full of sorrow, and his work is a vexation. Even in the night his heart does not rest. This also is vanity.

[24]†There is nothing better for a person than that he should eat and drink and find enjoyment [2] in his toil. This also, I saw, is from the hand of God, [25]†for apart from him [3] who can eat or who can have enjoyment? [26]†For to the one who pleases him God has given wisdom and knowledge and joy, but to the sinner he has given the business of gathering and collecting, only to give to one who pleases God. This also is vanity and a striving after wind.

A Time for Everything

ECCLESIASTES 3 ‡For everything there is a season, and a time for every matter under heaven:

> [2]a time to be born, and a time to die;
> a time to plant, and a time to pluck up what is planted;
> [3]a time to kill, and a time to heal;
> a time to break down, and a time to build up;
> [4]a time to weep, and a time to laugh;
> a time to mourn, and a time to dance;
> [5]a time to cast away stones, and a time to gather stones together;
> a time to embrace, and a time to refrain from embracing;
> [6]a time to seek, and a time to lose;
> a time to keep, and a time to cast away;
> [7]a time to tear, and a time to sew;
> a time to keep silence, and a time to speak;
> [8]a time to love, and a time to hate;
> a time for war, and a time for peace.

The God-Given Task

[9]‡What gain has the worker from his toil? [10]I have seen the business that God has given to the children of man to be busy with. [11]‡He has made everything beautiful in its time. Also, he has put eternity into man's heart, yet so that he cannot find out what God has done from the beginning to the end. [12]‡I perceived that there is nothing better for them than to be joyful and to do good as long as they live; [13]‡also that everyone should eat and drink and take pleasure in all his toil—this is God's gift to man.

[14]‡I perceived that whatever God does endures forever; nothing can be added to it, nor anything taken from it. God has done it, so that people fear before him. [15]That which is, already has been; that which is to be, already has been; and God seeks what has been driven away. [1]

From Dust to Dust

[16]Moreover, I saw under the sun that in the place of justice, even there was wickedness, and in the place of righteousness, even there was wickedness.
[17]†I said in my heart, God will judge the righteous and the wicked, for there is a time for every matter and for every work. [18]†I said in my heart with regard to the children of man that God is testing them that they may see that they themselves are but beasts. [19]For what happens to the children of man and what happens to the beasts is the same; as one dies, so dies the other.
They all have the same breath, and man has no advantage over the beasts, for all is vanity. [20]†All go to one place. All are from the dust, and to dust all return. [21]†Who knows whether the spirit of man goes upward and the spirit of the beast goes down into the earth? [22]†So I saw that there is nothing better than that a man should rejoice in his work, for that is his lot. Who can bring him to see what will be after him?

Evil Under the Sun

ECCLESIASTES 4 ‡Again I saw all the oppressions that are done under the sun. And behold, the tears of the oppressed, and they had no one to comfort them! On the side of their oppressors there was power, and there was no one to comfort them. [2]And I thought the dead who are already dead more fortunate than the living who are still alive. [3]†But better than both is he who has not yet been and has not seen the evil deeds that are done under the sun.

[4]†Then I saw that all toil and all skill in work come from a man's envy of his neighbor. This also is vanity and a striving after wind.

[5]†The fool folds his hands and eats his own flesh.

[6]Better is a handful of quietness than two hands full of toil and a striving after wind.

[7]‡Again, I saw vanity under the sun: [8]one person who has no other, either son or brother, yet there is no end to all his toil, and his eyes are never satisfied with riches, so that he never asks, “For whom am I toiling and depriving myself of pleasure?” This also is vanity and an unhappy business.

[9]Two are better than one, because they have a good reward for their toil. [10]For if they fall, one will lift up his fellow. But woe to him who is alone when he falls and has not another to lift him up! [11]Again, if two lie together, they keep warm, but how can one keep warm alone? [12]And though a man might prevail against one who is alone, two will withstand him—a threefold cord is not quickly broken.

[13]‡Better was a poor and wise youth than an old and foolish king who no longer knew how to take advice. [14]For he went from prison to the throne, though in his own kingdom he had been born poor. [15]†I saw all the living who move about under the sun, along with that [1] youth who was to stand in the king's [2] place. [16]There was no end of all the people, all of whom he led. Yet those who come later will not rejoice in him. Surely this also is vanity and a striving after wind.

Fear God

ECCLESIASTES 5 ‡† [1] Guard your steps when you go to the house of God. To draw near to listen is better than to offer the sacrifice of fools, for they do not know that they are doing evil. [2]† [2] Be not rash with your mouth, nor let your heart be hasty to utter a word before God, for God is in heaven and you are on earth. Therefore let your words be few. [3]For a dream comes with much business, and a fool's voice with many words.

[4]‡When you vow a vow to God, do not delay paying it, for he has no pleasure in fools. Pay what you vow. [5]It is better that you should not vow than that you should vow and not pay. [6]†Let not your mouth lead you [3] into sin, and do not say before the messenger [4] that it was a mistake. Why should God be angry at your voice and destroy the work of your hands? [7]†For when dreams increase and words grow many, there is vanity; [5] but God is the one you must fear.

The Vanity of Wealth and Honor

[8]‡If you see in a province the oppression of the poor and the violation of justice and righteousness, do not be amazed at the matter, for the high official is watched by a higher, and there are yet higher ones over them. [9]But this is gain for a land in every way: a king committed to cultivated fields. [6]

[10]†He who loves money will not be satisfied with money, nor he who loves wealth with his income; this also is vanity. [11]†When goods increase, they increase who eat them, and what advantage has their owner but to see them with his eyes? [12]‡Sweet is the sleep of a laborer, whether he eats little or much, but the full stomach of the rich will not let him sleep.

[13]There is a grievous evil that I have seen under the sun: riches were kept by their owner to his hurt, [14]and those riches were lost in a bad venture. And he is father of a son, but he has nothing in his hand. [15]As he came from his mother's womb he shall go again, naked as he came, and shall take nothing for his toil that he may carry away in his hand. [16]This also is a grievous evil: just as he came, so shall he go, and what gain is there to him who toils for the wind? [17]Moreover, all his days he eats in darkness in much vexation and sickness and anger.

[18]‡†Behold, what I have seen to be good and fitting is to eat and drink and find enjoyment [7] in all the toil with which one toils under the sun the few days of his life that God has given him, for this is his lot. [19]†Everyone also to whom God has given wealth and possessions and power to enjoy them, and to accept his lot and rejoice in his toil—this is the gift of God. [20]†For he will not much remember the days of his life because God keeps him occupied with joy in his heart.

ECCLESIASTES 6 There is an evil that I have seen under the sun, and it lies heavy on mankind: [2]‡a man to whom God gives wealth, possessions, and honor, so that he lacks nothing of all that he desires, yet God does not give him power to enjoy them, but a stranger enjoys them. This is vanity; it is a grievous evil. [3]‡‡If a man fathers a hundred children and lives many years, so that the days of his years are many, but his soul is not satisfied with life's good things, and he also has no burial, I say that a stillborn child is better off than he. [4]For it comes in vanity and goes in darkness, and in darkness its name is covered. [5]Moreover, it has not seen the sun or known anything, yet it finds rest rather than he. [6]Even though he should live a thousand years twice over, yet enjoy [1] no good—do not all go to the one place?

[7]‡All the toil of man is for his mouth, yet his appetite is not satisfied. [2] [8]For what advantage has the wise man over the fool? And what does the poor man have who knows how to conduct himself before the living? [9]Better is the sight of the eyes than the wandering of the appetite: this also is vanity and a striving after wind.

[10]Whatever has come to be has already been named, and it is known what man is, and that he is not able to dispute with one stronger than he. [11]The more words, the more vanity, and what is the advantage to man? [12]For who knows what is good for man while he lives the few days of his vain life, which he passes like a shadow? For who can tell man what will be after him under the sun?

The Contrast of Wisdom and Folly

ECCLESIASTES 7 ‡A good name is better than precious ointment, and the day of death than the day of birth.
[2]‡It is better to go to the house of mourning than to go to the house of feasting, for this is the end of all mankind,
and the living will lay it to heart.
[3]Sorrow is better than laughter,
for by sadness of face the heart is made glad.
[4]The heart of the wise is in the house of mourning,
but the heart of fools is in the house of mirth.
[5]It is better for a man to hear the rebuke of the wise than to hear the song of fools.
[6]For as the crackling of thorns under a pot,
so is the laughter of the fools;
this also is vanity.
[7]Surely oppression drives the wise into madness,
and a bribe corrupts the heart.
[8]Better is the end of a thing than its beginning,
and the patient in spirit is better than the proud in spirit.
[9]Be not quick in your spirit to become angry,
for anger lodges in the bosom of fools.
[10]‡Say not, "Why were the former days better than these?"
For it is not from wisdom that you ask this.
[11]Wisdom is good with an inheritance,
an advantage to those who see the sun.
[12]‡For the protection of wisdom is like the protection of money, and the advantage of knowledge is that wisdom preserves the life of him who has it.
[13]‡Consider the work of God:
who can make straight what he has made crooked?

[14]‡In the day of prosperity be joyful, and in the day of adversity consider: God has made the one as well as the other, so that man may not find out anything that will be after him.

[15]‡†In my vain life I have seen everything. There is a righteous man who perishes in his righteousness, and there is a wicked man who prolongs his life in his evildoing. [16]†Be not overly righteous, and do not make yourself too wise. Why should you destroy yourself? [17]Be not overly wicked, neither be a fool. Why should you die before your time? [18]It is good that you should take hold of this, and from that withhold not your hand, for the one who fears God shall come out from both of them.

[19]†Wisdom gives strength to the wise man more than ten rulers who are in a city.

[20]†Surely there is not a righteous man on earth who does good and never sins.

[21]‡Do not take to heart all the things that people say, lest you hear your servant cursing you. [22]Your heart knows that many times you yourself have cursed others.

[23]‡All this I have tested by wisdom. I said, “I will be wise,” but it was far from me. [24]That which has been is far off, and deep, very deep; who can find it out?

[25]I turned my heart to know and to search out and to seek wisdom and the scheme of things, and to know the wickedness of folly and the foolishness that is madness. [26]†And I find something more bitter than death: the woman whose heart is snares and nets, and whose hands are fetters. He who pleases God escapes her, but the sinner is taken by her. [27]‡Behold, this is what I found, says the Preacher, while adding one thing to another to find the scheme of things— [28]which my soul has sought repeatedly, but I have not found. One man among a thousand I found, but a woman among all these I have not found. [29]†See, this alone I found, that God made man upright, but they have sought out many schemes.

Keep the King's Command

ECCLESIASTES 8 Who is like the wise?
And who knows the interpretation of a thing?
A man's wisdom makes his face shine,
and the hardness of his face is changed.

[2]‡I say: [1] Keep the king's command, because of God's oath to him. [2] [3]Be not hasty to go from his presence. Do not take your stand in an evil cause, for he does whatever he pleases. [4]For the word of the king is supreme, and who may say to him, “What are you doing?” [5]‡Whoever keeps a command will know no evil thing, and the wise heart will know the proper time and the just way. [6]For there is a time and a way for everything, although man's trouble [3] lies heavy on him. [7]‡For he does not know what is to be, for who can tell him how it will be? [8]‡No man has power to retain the spirit, or power over the day of death. There is no discharge from war, nor will wickedness deliver those who are given to it. [9]All this I observed while applying my heart to all that is done under the sun, when man had power over man to his hurt.

Those Who Fear God Will Do Well

[10]‡Then I saw the wicked buried. They used to go in and out of the holy place and were praised [4] in the city where they had done such things. This also is vanity. [11]‡Because the sentence against an evil deed is not executed speedily, the heart of the children of man is fully set to do evil. [12]‡Though a sinner does evil a hundred times and prolongs his life, yet I know that it will be well with those who fear God, because they fear before him. [13]But it will not be well with the wicked, neither will he prolong his days like a shadow, because he does not fear before God.

Man Cannot Know God's Ways

[14]‡There is a vanity that takes place on earth, that there are righteous people to whom it happens according to the deeds of the wicked, and there are wicked people to whom it happens according to the deeds of the righteous. I said that this also is vanity. [15]‡And I commend joy, for man has no good thing under the sun but to eat and drink and be joyful, for this will go with him in his toil through the days of his life that God has given him under the sun.

[16]‡When I applied my heart to know wisdom, and to see the business that is done on earth, how neither day nor night do one's eyes see sleep, [17]then I saw all the work of God, that man cannot find out the work that is done under the sun. However much man may toil in seeking, he will not find it out. Even though a wise man claims to know, he cannot find it out.

Death Comes to All

ECCLESIASTES 9 ‡But all this I laid to heart, examining it all, how the righteous and the wise and their deeds are in the hand of God. Whether it is love or hate, man does not know; both are before him. [2]‡It is the same for all, since the same event happens to the righteous and the wicked, to the good and the evil, [1] to the clean and the unclean, to him who sacrifices and him who does not sacrifice. As the good one is, so is the sinner, and he who swears is as he who shuns an oath. [3]This is an evil in all that is done under the sun, that the same event happens to all. Also, the hearts of the children of man are full of evil, and madness is in their hearts while they live, and after that they go to the dead. [4]But he who is joined with all the living has hope, for a living dog is better than a dead lion. [5]For the living know that they will die, but the dead know nothing, and they have no more reward, for the memory of them is forgotten. [6]Their love and their hate and their envy have already perished, and forever they have no more share in all that is done under the sun.

Enjoy Life with the One You Love

[7]‡Go, eat your bread with joy, and drink your wine with a merry heart, for God has already approved what you do.

[8]Let your garments be always white. Let not oil be lacking on your head.

[9]‡Enjoy life with the wife whom you love, all the days of your vain life that he has given you under the sun, because that is your portion in life and in your toil at which you toil under the sun. [10]Whatever your hand finds to do, do it with your might, [2] for there is no work or thought or knowledge or wisdom in Sheol, to which you are going.

Wisdom Better than Folly

[11]‡Again I saw that under the sun the race is not to the swift, nor the battle to the strong, nor bread to the wise, nor riches to the intelligent, nor favor to those with knowledge, but time and chance happen to them all. [12]†For man does not know his time. Like fish that are taken in an evil net, and like birds that are caught in a snare, so the children of man are snared at an evil time, when it suddenly falls upon them.

[13]‡I have also seen this example of wisdom under the sun, and it seemed great to me. [14]There was a little city with few men in it, and a great king came against it and besieged it, building great siegeworks against it. [15]But there was found in it a poor, wise man, and he by his wisdom delivered the city. Yet no one remembered that poor man. [16]†But I say that wisdom is better than might, though the poor man's wisdom is despised and his words are not heard.

[17]The words of the wise heard in quiet are better than the shouting of a ruler among fools. [18]Wisdom is better than weapons of war, but one sinner destroys much good.

ECCLESIASTES 10 ‡Dead flies make the perfumer's ointment give off a stench;
so a little folly outweighs wisdom and honor.
[2]‡A wise man's heart inclines him to the right,
but a fool's heart to the left.
[3]‡Even when the fool walks on the road, he lacks sense,
and he says to everyone that he is a fool.
[4]If the anger of the ruler rises against you, do not leave your place, for calmness [1] will lay great offenses to rest.

[5]‡There is an evil that I have seen under the sun, as it were an error proceeding from the ruler: [6]‡folly is set in many high places, and the rich sit in a low place. [7]I have seen slaves on horses, and princes walking on the ground like slaves.

[8]‡He who digs a pit will fall into it, and a serpent will bite him who breaks through a wall.
[9]He who quarries stones is hurt by them,
and he who splits logs is endangered by them.
[10]‡If the iron is blunt, and one does not sharpen the edge,
he must use more strength,
but wisdom helps one to succeed. [2] [11]If the serpent bites before it is charmed,
there is no advantage to the charmer.
[12]‡The words of a wise man's mouth win him favor, [3]
but the lips of a fool consume him.
[13]The beginning of the words of his mouth is foolishness, and the end of his talk is evil madness.
[14]A fool multiplies words, though no man knows what is to be,
and who can tell him what will be after him?
[15]‡The toil of a fool wearies him,
for he does not know the way to the city.
[16]Woe to you, O land, when your king is a child,
and your princes feast in the morning!
[17]Happy are you, O land, when your king is the son of the nobility, and your princes feast at the proper time,

for strength, and not for drunkenness!
[18]†Through sloth the roof sinks in,
and through indolence the house leaks.
[19]†Bread is made for laughter,
and wine gladdens life,
and money answers everything.
[20]Even in your thoughts, do not curse the king,
nor in your bedroom curse the rich,
for a bird of the air will carry your voice,
or some winged creature tell the matter.

Cast Your Bread upon the Waters

ECCLESIASTES 11 †Cast your bread upon the waters,
for you will find it after many days.
[2]†Give a portion to seven, or even to eight,
for you know not what disaster may happen on earth.
[3]‡If the clouds are full of rain,
they empty themselves on the earth,
and if a tree falls to the south or to the north,
in the place where the tree falls, there it will lie.
[4]He who observes the wind will not sow,
and he who regards the clouds will not reap.

[5]As you do not know the way the spirit comes to the bones in the womb [1] of a woman with child, so you do not know the work of God who makes everything.

[6]In the morning sow your seed, and at evening withhold not your hand, for you do not know which will prosper, this or that, or whether both alike will be good.

[7]‡†Light is sweet, and it is pleasant for the eyes to see the sun.

[8]So if a person lives many years, let him rejoice in them all; but let him remember that the days of darkness will be many. All that comes is vanity.

[9]†Rejoice, O young man, in your youth, and let your heart cheer you in the days of your youth. Walk in the ways of your heart and the sight of your eyes. But know that for all these things God will bring you into judgment.

[10]†Remove vexation from your heart, and put away pain [2] from your body, for youth and the dawn of life are vanity.

Remember Your Creator in Your Youth

ECCLESIASTES 12 †Remember also your Creator in the days of your youth, before the evil days come and the years draw near of which you will say, “I have no pleasure in them”; [2]‡†before the sun and the light and the moon and the stars are darkened and the clouds return after the rain, [3]†in the day when the keepers of the house tremble, and the strong men are bent, and the grinders cease because they are few, and those who look through the windows are dimmed, [4]†and the doors on the street are shut—when the sound of the grinding is low, and one rises up at the sound of a bird, and all the daughters of song are brought low— [5]†they are afraid also of what is high, and terrors are in the way; the almond tree blossoms, the grasshopper drags itself along, [1] and desire fails, because man is going to his eternal home, and the mourners go about the streets— [6]‡†before the silver cord is snapped, or the golden bowl is broken, or the pitcher is shattered at the fountain, or the wheel broken at the cistern, [7]‡†and the dust returns to the earth as it was, and the spirit returns to God who gave it. [8]Vanity of vanities, says the Preacher; all is vanity.

Fear God and Keep His Commandments

[9]‡Besides being wise, the Preacher also taught the people knowledge, weighing and studying and arranging many proverbs with great care. [10]The Preacher sought to find words of delight, and uprightly he wrote words of truth.

[11]†The words of the wise are like goads, and like nails firmly fixed are the collected sayings; they are given by one Shepherd. [12]†My son, beware of anything beyond these. Of making many books there is no end, and much study is a weariness of the flesh.

[13]‡The end of the matter; all has been heard. Fear God and keep his commandments, for this is the whole duty of man. [2] [14]For God will bring every deed into judgment, with [3] every secret thing, whether good or evil.

Study Notes

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 1:1 The words. The matters of the book are the crucial issues for Solomon’s faith. They resemble the subject matter of Ps. 39 and 49. the Preacher. The title of one who gathers the assembly together for instruction. See Introduction: Title.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 1:2 Vanity of vanities. Solomon’s way of saying “the greatest vanity.” Cf. the discussion of “vanity” in Introduction: Interpretive Challenges.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 1:3 gain. Advantage to or gain from one’s labor. A very important and repeated word for Solomon (cf. 3:19; 5:9, 11, 16; 6:7, 11; 7:11–12; 10:10). Solomon looks at the fleeting moments of life and the seemingly small gain for man’s activity under the sun. The only lasting efforts are those designed to accomplish God’s purposes for eternity. toil. Work is not just one’s livelihood, but all of man’s activity in life. under the sun. The phrase appears about 30 times to describe daily life.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 1:4–7 These pictures from God’s creation illustrate and underscore the futile repetition of human activity.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 1:4 generation . . . earth. The essence of this comparison is permanence/impermanence without profit or "advantage." The observer perceives life as an endless cycle of activity which, by itself, does not bring security or meaning to man's experience.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 1:8–11 This is a summary of sorts. Solomon looks at the effect of repetitious, enduring activity in God's creation over many generations as compared to the brief, comparatively profitless activity of one man that fails to produce an enduring satisfaction, and he concludes that it is wearisome. Another harsh reality comes with the realization that nothing is new and nothing will be remembered.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 1:11 no remembrance. A written record or some other object which serves as a reminder of these events, people, and things will be short-lived.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 1:12–6:9 This section records Solomon's ill-advised quest for greater wisdom.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 1:12 king over Israel. See Introduction: Author and Date.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 1:13 wisdom. Solomon's use of the term, in typical Hebrew fashion, is more practical than philosophical and implies more than knowledge. It carries notions of ability for proper behavior, success, common sense, and wit. unhappy business. Man's search to understand is at times difficult, yet God-given (cf. 2:26; 3:10; 5:16–19; 6:2; 8:11, 15; 9:9; 12:11). God. The covenant name, Lord, is never used in Ecclesiastes. However, "God" is found almost 40 times. The emphasis is more on God's sovereignty in creation and providence than his covenant relationship through redemption.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 1:14 striving after wind. One aspect of life's vanity is its fleeting character. Like the wind, much of what is desirable in life cannot be held in one's hand (cf. 1:14, 17; 2:11, 17, 26; 4:4, 6, 16; 5:16; 6:9).

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 1:15 crooked . . . lacking. With no necessarily moral implications being made, these words measure wisdom as the ability to resolve issues in life. In spite of man’s grandest efforts, some crooked matters will remain unstraightened.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 1:16 wisdom. Cf. Introduction: Background and Setting.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 1:17 I applied my heart to know. When Solomon depended on empirical research rather than divine revelation to understand life, he found it to be an empty experience.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 1:18 wisdom . . . much vexation. The expected outcome of wisdom is success. Success, in turn, should bring happiness. But Solomon concluded that there were no guarantees. This grieves the one who places his hope in human achievement alone.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 2:1–11 Pleasure, although not necessarily evil, has its shortcomings, much like human wisdom. Solomon reflected upon his tragic experiences in attempting to draw satisfaction purely out of pleasure.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 2:1–2 test. The investigation or test was crucial for Solomon. But the test was not scientific; rather it was a practical experiment to see what worked. He was interested in what a given act accomplished.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 2:3 cheer. In further tests on the human level, Solomon overemphasized human gratification at the expense of God’s glory.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 2:4–8 Cf. 1 Kings 4–10 for an amplified account of Solomon’s riches.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 2:8 many concubines. This fits Solomon’s 700 wives and 300 concubines (1 Kings 11:3). Most likely this should be translated “harem,” which would refer to Solomon’s many women (cf. 1 Kings 11:3).

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 2:10 reward. Solomon's portion in life. This was what he received for all his activity and effort.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 2:11 nothing to be gained. "Vanity" is defined in this context. The futility of the labor process is that Solomon had nothing of enduring and satisfying substance to show for it. Wisdom is no guarantee that one will achieve satisfaction, even in accomplishments comparable to Solomon's. To expend God-given resources for human accomplishment alone is empty.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 2:12–17 Human wisdom suffers another crucial shortcoming—it leaves both the wise and the fool empty-handed at the threshold of death.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 2:14 fool walks in darkness. The fool is not one who is mentally deficient, but is morally bankrupt. It is not that he cannot learn wisdom, but that he won't. He refuses to know, fear, and obey God.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 2:17 because what is done. Since it had no more lasting value than the folly of a fool, Solomon viewed even the great reward of his labor as a source of pain.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 2:18–22 Cf. 4:7–8.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 2:18 hated all my toil. Solomon left the kingdom divided to Jeroboam and his son Rehoboam, both of whom squandered their opportunities (1 Kings 12–14).

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 2:21 leave everything. The portion of one's life that he must leave behind at death.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 2:24 nothing better. Even with the limitations of this present life (cf. 3:12–13, 22; 5:18–19; 8:15; 9:7), humanity should rejoice in its temporal goodness. from the hand of God. Solomon's strong view of God's sovereignty brings comfort after an honest critique of what life in a cursed world entails.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 2:25 apart from him. Lit., “outside of him” (i.e., God).

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 2:26 to the one who pleases him God has given. The qualifier “who pleases him” makes God’s prerogative the standard.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 3:1–8 a time for every matter. Not only does God fix the standard and withhold or dispense satisfaction (2:26), but he also appoints “times.” Earthly pursuits are good in their proper place and time, but unprofitable when pursued as the chief goal (cf. 3:9–10).

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 3:9–10 Earthly pursuits (vv. 1–8) are unprofitable when considered as life’s chief good, which was never intended by God.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 3:11 everything. Every activity or event for which a culmination point may be fixed. beautiful. The phrase echoes “God saw . . . it was very good” (Gen. 1:31). Even in a cursed universe, activity should not be meaningless. Its futility lies in the fickle satisfaction of man and his failure to trust the wisdom of sovereign God. put eternity into man’s heart. God made men for his eternal purpose, and nothing in post-fall time can bring them complete satisfaction.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 3:12 to be joyful and to do good. These words capture the goal of Solomon’s message, which he echoes and elaborates on in 11:9–10 and again in 12:13–14.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 3:13 take pleasure in all his toil. In accepting everything as a gift of his Creator, even in a cursed world, man is enabled to see “good” in all his work (cf. 2:24–25; 5:19).

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 3:14 fear before him. Acknowledging God’s enduring and perfect work becomes grounds for reverence, worship, and meaning. Apart from God, man’s works are pitifully inadequate. The theme, “fear God,” also appears in 5:7; 8:12–13; 12:13.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 3:17 God will judge . . . for there is a time. The culminating issue of Solomon’s “appointed time” discussion is that there is a time for judgment (cf. John 5:28–29). God’s judgment is a central theme in Solomon’s message for this book (cf. Eccles. 11:9; 12:14). Even where the word “judgment” is absent, the greater issue of divine retribution is often pervasive.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 3:18–19 what happens. The ultimate fate of man and beast is to die. Solomon isn’t looking at eternal destinies, but rather at what all earthly flesh shares in common.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 3:20 from the dust . . . to dust. Genesis 3:19 is alluded to in the broadest sense, i.e., all of living creation will die and go to the grave. Neither heaven nor hell is considered here.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 3:21 the spirit. Man’s breath or physical life appears on the surface to be little different from that of an animal. In reality, man’s soul differs in that God has made him eternal (cf. v. 11).

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 3:22 after him. Once again, death becomes the overshadowing reality.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 4:1–3 The oppressiveness of some lives renders death more appealing.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 4:3 evil deeds. Earthly life can be so disheartening as to make nonexistence preferable.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 4:4 man’s envy. The lack of satisfaction with life leads some to conclude that everyone else has it better.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 4:5 folds his hands . . . eats his own flesh. Even the man who settles into idleness, living on what he takes from others, is self-tormented and never satisfied (cf. Isa. 9:20; 44:20).

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 4:7–12 The futility of labor alone without satisfaction and without any heir to experience its value is addressed (cf. 2:18–22, a complementary message). Life is better with companionship.

Solomon Reflects on Genesis

Solomon Reflects on Genesis

Toward the end of his life, the penitent King Solomon pondered life in the wake of the fall and the outworking of man’s sin.
Solomon drew the following conclusions, possibly from his own study of Genesis:

1. God created the heavens and earth with laws of design and regularity (Eccles. 1:2–7; 3:1–8; cf. Gen. 1:1–31; 8:22).
2. Man is created from dust and returns to dust (Eccles. 3:20; 12:7; cf. Gen. 2:7; 3:19).
3. God placed in man his life-giving breath (Eccles. 12:7; cf. Gen. 2:7).
4. As God ordained it, marriage is one of life’s most enjoyable blessings (Eccles. 9:9; cf. Gen. 2:18–25).
5. Divine judgment results from the fall (Eccles. 3:14–22; 11:9; 12:14; cf. Gen. 2:17; 3:1–19).
6. The effect of the curse on creation is “vanity,” i.e., futility (Eccles. 1:5–8; cf. Gen. 3:17–19).
7. Labor after the fall is difficult and yields little profit (Eccles. 1:3, 13; 2:3; 3:9–11; cf. Gen. 3:17–19).
8. Death overcomes all creatures after the fall (Eccles. 8:8; 9:4–5; cf. Gen. 2:17; 3:19).
9. After the fall, man’s heart is desperately wicked (Eccles. 7:20, 29; 8:11; 9:3; cf. Gen. 3:22; 6:5; 8:21).
10. God withholds certain knowledge and wisdom from man for his wise, but unspoken, reasons (Eccles. 6:12; 8:17; cf. Gen. 3:22).

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 4:13–16 The cherished popularity of kings is precarious and short-lived.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 4:15 youth. This refers to the legitimate successor to the “old and foolish king,” as opposed to the “poor and wise youth” (cf. v. 13) who rises on his ability to reign.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 5:1–7 A prelude to the book’s concluding admonition to approach God with reverence.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 5:1 the house of God. The temple Solomon built in Jerusalem (cf. 1 Kings 8:15–21).

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 5:2 heaven . . . earth. Because God is in heaven and man is on earth, rash promises and arguments before him are foolish.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 5:4–5 Pay what you vow. Promises made to God have serious implications. The OT background for this admonition is found in Deut. 23:21–23 and Judg. 11:35. Ananias and Sapphira learned the hard way (cf. Acts 5:1–11).

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 5:6 mouth lead you into sin. Don’t vow something that your fleshly desire will cause you to break. messenger. The priest in the house of God (cf. Mal. 2:7). Both priests and prophets are called messengers, commissaries who deliver and report back messages for the Heavenly King (cf. Isa. 6:1–13). Don’t tell them your broken vow was a small thing.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 5:7 God . . . fear. Cf. 3:14; 8:12–13; 12:13.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 5:8–9 Officials have an unfair advantage to attain wealth.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 5:10 The love of money is never satisfied (cf. 1 Tim. 6:9–10).

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 5:11 they increase who eat them. This refers to the rich man’s dependents.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 5:12–17 Earthly treasures are precarious and bring disadvantages; they produce anxiety (v. 12) and pain (v. 13). They disappear through bad business (v. 14) and are left at death (v. 15). They can even produce fear (v. 17).

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 5:18–20 In contrast to the anxiety of those just described (vv. 12–17), for those who consider God as the source of wealth, there are pleasures, riches, and the ability to enjoy them (see 2:24).

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 5:18 fitting. The same word translated in 3:11 “beautiful.” Once again, Solomon uses an admonition to enjoy the richness of life that God gives.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 5:19 the gift of God. To understand this is to enjoy the satisfaction of his good gifts.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 5:20 God keeps him occupied. When a person recognizes the goodness of God, he rejoices and does not dwell unduly on the troubles detailed in the previous context.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 6:2 God does not give him power to enjoy them. The Lord gives and takes away for his own purposes. So, the blessings of God cannot be assumed or taken for granted. But they should be enjoyed with thankfulness while they are available.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 6:3–6 Not having a burial, as in the case of King Jehoiakim (Jer. 22:18–19), indicated complete disrespect and disregard for one's life. To die without mourners or honors was considered worse than being born dead, even if one had many children and a full life.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 6:3 This is hyperbole.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 6:7–12 Lack of soul satisfaction comes from working only for what is consumed (v. 7), seeing little difference in the end between the wise and foolish (v. 8), not knowing the future (v. 9), realizing that God alone controls everything (v. 10), and true understanding of the present and future is limited (vv. 11–12).

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 7:1 good name. Where a man has so lived to earn a good reputation, the day of his death can be a time of honor.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 7:2–6 The point of this section is to emphasize that more is learned from adversity than from pleasure. True wisdom is developed in the crucible of life's trials, though the preacher wishes that were not the case when he writes "this also is vanity" (v. 6).

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 7:10 former days. In the midst of trouble and discontent, it is easy to lose touch with reality.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 7:12 wisdom is like the protection. Wisdom is better than money because it provides the fulfilled life.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 7:13 straight what he has made crooked? Man should consider God's activity because God is sovereign, decreeing and controlling everything under the sun (cf. 1:15).

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 7:14 prosperity . . . adversity. God ordains both kinds of days and withholds knowledge of the future.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 7:15–18 The focus on the nature of righteousness is made clear in the statement “for the one who fears God shall come out from both of them” (v. 18).

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 7:15 perishes . . . prolongs. The fact that some righteous men die young and some wicked men live long is enigmatic (cf. 8:11–12).

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 7:16 overly righteous . . . too wise. Solomon has already exhorted his readers to be righteous and wise (cf. v. 19). The warning here is against being self-righteous or pharisaical.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 7:19 Wisdom gives strength. The measure of wisdom is its ability to bring good outcomes in life.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 7:20 does good and never sins. Solomon gave great emphasis to the general effects of sin (cf. Gen. 3:1–24) and also pointed out the universality of personal transgressions. Paul may have recalled this passage when he wrote Rom. 3:10.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 7:21–22 all the things that people say. Since you have many offensive words to be forgiven, don’t keep strict accounts of other’s offensive words against you.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 7:23–24 “I will be wise” . . . who can find it out? The already wise king resolves to be even wiser. But upon further investigation, the limitations of wisdom become apparent. Some things are unknowable. This realization quickly dampens his enthusiasm.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 7:26 the woman. This is the seductress about whom Solomon warns young men in Proverbs (Prov. 2:16–19; 5:1–14; 6:24–29; 7:1–27). Elsewhere, Solomon exalts the virtues of man’s lifetime companion (Eccles. 9:9; cf. Prov. 5:15–23; 31:10–31).

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 7:27–29 Empirical acquisition of knowledge, that is man seeking righteousness through his many schemes, fails. Only God can make man upright.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 7:29 many schemes. The same word is translated "intent" and reflects the evil imaginations of all human beings since Adam and Eve.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 8:2–3 God's oath to him. This refers to Israel's promises to serve King Solomon (1 Chron. 29:24).

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 8:5–6 proper time and the just way. A wise man knows when to apply the proper course of action for the best outcome, whether in an earthly sense before the king (8:2) or an eternal sense before God (cf. 12:13–14).

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 8:7 what . . . how. God has appointed a time for everything but man knows neither the time nor the outcome. These uncertainties can increase his misery.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 8:8 spirit. Death is as precarious and uncontrollable as the wind.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 8:10 the holy place. This refers to the temple at Jerusalem (cf. 5:1). vanity. Lessons that should be gained from the death of the hypocritically wicked are quickly forgotten.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 8:11 the sentence. The gracious delay of God's retribution leads to further disobedience. This delay, in actuality, in no way diminishes the certainty of final judgment.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 8:12–13 those who fear God . . . the wicked. There is no real advantage for the wicked, although at times it might seem so (cf. 5:7; 12:13–14). Temporal patience does not eliminate eternal judgment.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 8:14 vanity. Temporally speaking, God generally rewards obedience and punishes disobedience. Solomon regards the exceptions to this principle as enigmatic and discouraging (see Ps. 73).

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 8:15 joy. In no way does Solomon commend unbridled, rampant indulgence in sin, which is implied in Christ's account of the man whose barns were full. That man may have justified his sin by quoting this passage (cf. Luke 12:19). His focus here is on the resolve to enjoy life in the face of the injustice that surrounded him (see Eccles. 2:24).

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 8:16–17 all the work of God. God's work is wonderful, but at times incomprehensible.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 9:1 in the hand of God. There will be no inequities in the final judgment of the righteous or the wicked, because God remembers both in perfect detail.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 9:2–3 the same event happens to all. Death because of universal depravity.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 9:7 eat . . . drink. See notes on 2:24.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 9:9 the wife. Cf. Prov. 5:15–19 and Solomon's Song.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 9:11 time and chance. Wisdom cannot guarantee good outcomes because of what appear to be so many unpredictable contingencies.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 9:12 his time. The time of his misfortune, especially death (cf. 11:8, "days of darkness"; 12:1, "evil days").

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 9:13–15 Wisdom may not receive its due in this life.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 9:16 This is true because he lacks status and position.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 10:1–20 Solomon draws together assorted examples of the wisdom he has both scrutinized and touted.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 10:2 right . . . left. This proverb is based on the fact that, commonly, the right hand is more deft than the left.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 10:3 fool. See note on 2:14. walks. A person lacking wisdom will manifest that in daily conduct.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 10:5 It is a great and far-reaching evil when leaders make bad judgments.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 10:6–7 rich . . . princes. Life presents some strange ironies and is not, in this world, always fair.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 10:8–10 digs . . . does not sharpen. Dangers and uncertainties abound in life.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 10:10 wisdom . . . to succeed. A little wisdom will ease the efforts of life. Even though life’s experiences often don’t turn out the way one would have hoped, wise living usually produces a good outcome. This is a very important conclusion for Solomon’s testing of wisdom.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 10:12–14 words. Man demonstrates wisdom in words as well as works. Foolish words yield unfavorable outcomes.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 10:15 to the city. A proverb for ignorance with regard to the most ordinary matters, which extends even to spiritual realities. If a fool can’t find a town, how could he possibly locate God?

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 10:18 roof sinks in . . . house leaks. This is likely an analogy for the kingdom of a lazy monarch.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 10:19 money answers everything. The partying king of v. 18 thinks he can fix all the disasters of his inept reign by raising taxes.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 11:1 Cast your bread. Take a calculated and wise step forward in life, like a farmer who throws his seed on the wet or marshy ground and waits for it to grow (cf. Isa. 32:20).

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 11:2 Give a portion. Be generous while there is plenty, and make friends while time remains, because one never knows when he might need them to return the favor.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 11:7–12:8 Solomon crystallizes the book's message. Death is imminent and with it comes retribution. Enjoyment and judgment, though strange partners, come together in this section because both clamor for man's deepest commitment. Surprisingly, one does not win out over the other. In a world created for enjoyment but damaged by sin, judgment and enjoyment/pleasure are held in tension. With too much pleasure, judgment stands as a threatening force; with too much judgment, enjoyment suffers. In the final analysis, both are prominent themes of life that are resolved in our relationship to God, the primary issue of life and this book.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 11:3–6 The world is full of things over which one has no control including the purposes of God. There is no virtue in wishful wondering, but there is hope for those who get busy and do their work.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 11:7 Light. Good times in contrast to "darkness" (v. 8), meaning bad times. Cf. 12:1.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 11:9 Rejoice . . . judgment. The two terms seem to cancel out the other. How can this be explained? Enjoy life but do not commit iniquity. The balance that is called for insures that enjoyment is not reckless, sinful abandonment. Pleasure is experienced in faith and obedience, for as Solomon has said repeatedly, one can only receive true satisfaction as a gift from God.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 11:10 vanity. Enjoy childhood and youth while you can because they are soon gone.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 12:1 Remember . . . your Creator . . . evil days. Remember you are God's property, so serve him from the start of your years, not the end of your years, when service is very limited.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 12:2–6 Solomon uses the imagery of aging, incorporating elements of a dilapidated house, nature, and a funeral procession to heighten the emphasis of 11:7–12:1.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 12:2 sun . . . moon . . . clouds. Youth is typically the time of dawning light, old age the time of twilight's gloom.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 12:3 keepers of the house tremble. The hands and arms that protect the body, as guards do a palace, shake in old age. strong men are bent. The legs, like supporting pillars, weaken. grinders. Teeth. those who look through the windows. Eyes.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 12:4 doors. Lips that do not have much to say. sound of the grinding. This refers to little eating, when the sound of masticating is low. rises up. Light sleep. daughters of song. The ear and voice that once loved music.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 12:5 afraid . . . of what is high. For fear of falling. almond tree blossoms. A white blossoming tree among dark trees speaks of hair. mourners. The funeral is near.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 12:6–7 Here are the images of death.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 12:6 silver cord is snapped. Perhaps this pictures a lamp hanging from a silver chain, which breaks with age, smashing the lamp. Some suggest this refers to the spinal cord. golden bowl. Possibly this refers to the brain. pitcher . . . wheel . . . cistern. Wells required a wheel with a rope attached in order to lower the pitcher for water. Perhaps this pictures the fountain of blood, the heart. snapped . . . broken . . . shattered . . . broken. All of these actions portray death as tragic and irreversible.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 12:7 dust . . . spirit. Solomon recalls Gen. 2:7 and 3:19 as he contemplates the end of the aging process. spirit returns to . . . who gave it. The sage ends his message with the culmination of a human life. "The Lord gave, and the Lord has taken away" (Job 1:21; 1 Tim. 6:7).

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 12:7–8 This gloomy picture of old age does not negate the truth that old age can be blessed for the godly (Prov. 16:31), but it does remind the young that they will not have the ability to enjoy that blessing of a godly old age and a life of strong service to God if they do not remember their Creator while young (Eccles. 12:1).

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 12:9–14 Solomon’s final words of advice.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 12:11 goads . . . nails firmly fixed. Two shepherd’s tools are in view: one used to motivate reluctant animals, the other to secure those who might otherwise wander into dangerous territory. Both goads and nails picture aspects of applied wisdom. one Shepherd. True wisdom has its source in God alone.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 12:12 books. Books written on any other subject than God’s revealed wisdom will only proliferate the uselessness of man’s thinking.

ECCLESIASTES—NOTE ON 12:13–14 Fear God. Solomon’s final word on the issues raised in this book, as well as life itself, focus on one’s relationship to God. All of the concern for a life under the sun, with its pleasures and uncertainties, was behind Solomon. Such things seemed comparatively irrelevant to him as he faced the end of his life. But death, in spite of the focused attention he had given to it in Ecclesiastes, was not the greatest equalizer. Judgment/retribution is the real equalizer as Solomon saw it, for God will bring every person’s every act to judgment. Unbelievers will stand at the great white throne judgment (cf. Rev. 20:11–15) and believers before Christ at the Bema judgment (cf. 1 Cor. 3:10–15; 2 Cor. 5:9–10). When all is said and done, the certainty and finality of retribution give life the meaning for which David’s oft-times foolish son had been searching. Whatever may be one’s portion in life, accountability to God, whose ways are often mysterious, is both eternal and irrevocable.

Introduction to Song of Solomon

Title

The Greek Septuagint (LXX) and Latin Vulgate (Vulgate) versions follow the Hebrew (Masoretic Text) with literal translations of the first two words in 1:1—“The Song of Songs.” This is followed by “which is Solomon’s,” giving the fuller sense. The superlative, “Song of Songs” (cf. Most Holy Place in Ex. 26:33–34 and “King of kings” in Rev. 19:16), indicates that this song is the best among Solomon’s 1,005 musical works (1 Kings 4:32). The word translated “song” frequently refers to music that honors the Lord (cf. 1 Chron. 6:31–32; Ps. 33:3; 40:3; 144:9).

Author and Date

Solomon, who reigned over the united kingdom 40 years (971–931 B.C.), appears seven times by name in this book (1:1, 5; 3:7, 9, 11; 8:11–12). In view of his writing skills, musical giftedness (1 Kings 4:32), and the authorial, not dedicatory, sense of Song 1:1, this piece of Scripture could have been penned at any time during Solomon's reign. Since cities to the north and to the south are spoken of in Solomon's descriptions and travels, both the period depicted and the time of actual writing point to the united kingdom before it divided after Solomon's reign ended. Knowing that this portion of Scripture comprises one song by one author, it is best taken as a unified piece of poetic, Wisdom literature rather than a series of love poems without a common theme or author.

Background and Setting

Two people dominate this true-life, dramatic love song. Solomon, whose kingship is mentioned five times (1:4, 12; 3:9, 11; 7:5), appears as “the beloved.” The Shulammite maiden (6:13) remains obscure; most likely she was a resident of Shunem, three miles north of Jezreel in lower Galilee. Some suggest she is Pharaoh’s daughter (1 Kings 3:1), although the Song provides no evidence for this conclusion. Others favor Abishag, the Shunammite who cared for King David (1 Kings 1:1–4, 15). An unknown maiden from Shunem, whose family had possibly been employed by Solomon (Song 8:11), seems most reasonable. She would have been Solomon’s first wife (Eccles. 9:9), before he sinned by adding 699 other wives and 300 concubines (1 Kings 11:3).

Minor roles feature several different groups in this book. First, note the not-infrequent commentary by “the daughters of Jerusalem” (Song 1:4b, 8, 11; 3:6–11; 5:9; 6:1, 10, 13a; 7:1–5; 8:5a), who might be part of Solomon’s household staff (cf. 3:10). Second, the affirmation of 5:1b would most likely be God’s blessing on the couple’s union. Third, the Shulamite’s brothers speak (8:8–9).

The setting combines both rural and urban scenes. Portions take place in the hill country north of Jerusalem, where the Shulammite lived (6:13) and where Solomon enjoyed prominence as a vinegrower and shepherd (Eccles. 2:4–7). The city section includes the wedding and time afterward at Solomon’s abode in Jerusalem (Song 3:6–7:13).

The first spring appears in 2:11–13 and the second in 7:12. Assuming a chronology without gaps, the Song of Solomon took place over a period of time at least one year in length, but probably no longer than two years.

Historical and Theological Themes

All 117 verses in Solomon’s Song have been recognized by the Jews as a part of their sacred writings. Along with Ruth, Esther, Ecclesiastes, and Lamentations, it is included among the OT books of the Megilloth, or “five scrolls.” The Jews read this song at Passover, calling it “the Holy of Holies.” Surprisingly, God is not mentioned explicitly except possibly in Song 8:6. No formal theological themes emerge. The NT never quotes Solomon’s Song directly (nor Esther, Obadiah, and Nahum).

In contrast to the two distorted extremes of ascetic abstinence and lustful perversion outside of marriage, Solomon’s ancient love song exalts the purity of marital affection and romance. It parallels and enhances other portions of Scripture that portray God’s plan for marriage, including the beauty and sanctity of sexual intimacy between husband and wife. The Song rightfully stands alongside other classic Scripture passages that expand on this theme, e.g., Gen. 2:24; Ps. 45; Prov. 5:15–23; 1 Cor. 7:1–5; 13:1–8; Eph. 5:18–33; Col. 3:18–19; and 1 Pet. 3:1–7. Hebrews 13:4 captures the heart of this song, “Let marriage be held in honor among all, and let the marriage bed be undefiled, for God will judge the sexually immoral and adulterous.”

Interpretive Challenges

The Song has suffered strained interpretations over the centuries by those who use the “allegorical” method of interpretation, claiming that this song has no actual historical basis, but rather that it depicts God’s love for Israel and/or Christ’s love for the church. The misleading idea from hymnology that Christ is the rose of Sharon and the lily of the valleys results from this method (2:1). The “typological” variation admits the historical reality, but concludes that it ultimately pictures Christ’s bridegroom love for his bride the church.

A more satisfying way to approach Solomon’s Song is to take it at face value and interpret it in the normal historical sense, understanding the frequent use of poetic imagery to depict reality. To do so understands that Solomon recounts 1) his own days of courtship, 2) the early days of his first marriage, followed by 3) the maturing of this royal couple through the good and bad days of life. The Song of Solomon expands on the ancient marriage instructions of Gen. 2:24, thus providing spiritual music for a lifetime of marital harmony. It is given by God to demonstrate his intention for the romance and loveliness of marriage, the most precious of human relations and “the grace of life” (1 Pet. 3:7).

The metaphoric and euphemistic nature of this book is designed by God to veil the private intimacy of marriage. Its beautiful expressions of romantic love are purposefully shrouded in poetic language—intended only to give general insight into the joys of passion, desire, and romance. In this way, the Song expresses the wonders of marital love while distancing itself from anything crass or explicitly sensual. Interpreters of this book must be careful to maintain the dignified character of the book, and must not read anything into it that is not actually there.

The Song of Solomon

SONG OF SOLOMON 1 †The Song of Songs, which is Solomon's.

The Bride Confesses Her Love

She [1]

[2]††Let him kiss me with the kisses of his mouth!
For your love is better than wine;
[3]†your anointing oils are fragrant;
your name is oil poured out;
therefore virgins love you.
[4]†Draw me after you; let us run.
The king has brought me into his chambers.

Others

We will exult and rejoice in you;
we will extol your love more than wine;
rightly do they love you.

She

[5]†I am very dark, but lovely,
O daughters of Jerusalem,
like the tents of Kedar,
like the curtains of Solomon.
[6]†Do not gaze at me because I am dark,
because the sun has looked upon me.
My mother's sons were angry with me;
they made me keeper of the vineyards,
but my own vineyard I have not kept!
[7]†Tell me, you whom my soul loves,
where you pasture your flock,
where you make it lie down at noon;

for why should I be like one who veils herself
beside the flocks of your companions?

Solomon and His Bride Delight in Each Other

He

[8]†If you do not know,
O most beautiful among women,
follow in the tracks of the flock,
and pasture your young goats
beside the shepherds' tents.
[9]†I compare you, my love,
to a mare among Pharaoh's chariots.
[10]Your cheeks are lovely with ornaments,
your neck with strings of jewels.

Others

[11]We will make for you [2] ornaments of gold, studded with silver.

She

[12]While the king was on his couch,
my nard gave forth its fragrance.
[13]†My beloved is to me a sachet of myrrh that lies between my breasts.
[14]My beloved is to me a cluster of henna blossoms in the vineyards of Engedi.

He

[15]†Behold, you are beautiful, my love;
behold, you are beautiful;
your eyes are doves.

She

[16]‡Behold, you are beautiful, my beloved, truly delightful.
Our couch is green;
[17]the beams of our house are cedar;
our rafters are pine.

SONG OF SOLOMON 2 I am a rose [1] of Sharon,
a lily of the valleys.

He

[2]As a lily among brambles,
so is my love among the young women.

She

[3]‡As an apple tree among the trees of the forest,
so is my beloved among the young men.
With great delight I sat in his shadow,
and his fruit was sweet to my taste.
[4]‡He brought me to the banqueting house, [2]
and his banner over me was love.
[5]Sustain me with raisins;
refresh me with apples,
for I am sick with love.
[6]His left hand is under my head,
and his right hand embraces me!
[7]‡I adjure you, [3] O daughters of Jerusalem,
by the gazelles or the does of the field,
that you not stir up or awaken love
until it pleases.

The Bride Adores Her Beloved

[8]The voice of my beloved!
Behold, he comes,
leaping over the mountains,
bounding over the hills.
[9]My beloved is like a gazelle
or a young stag.
Behold, there he stands
behind our wall,
gazing through the windows,
looking through the lattice.

[10]My beloved speaks and says to me:
“Arise, my love, my beautiful one,
and come away,
[11]‡for behold, the winter is past;
the rain is over and gone.
[12]The flowers appear on the earth,
the time of singing [4] has come,
and the voice of the turtledove
is heard in our land.
[13]The fig tree ripens its figs,
and the vines are in blossom;
they give forth fragrance.
Arise, my love, my beautiful one,
and come away.
[14]‡O my dove, in the clefts of the rock,
in the crannies of the cliff,
let me see your face,
let me hear your voice,
for your voice is sweet,
and your face is lovely.
[15]‡Catch the foxes [5] for us,
the little foxes
that spoil the vineyards,
for our vineyards are in blossom.” [16]‡My beloved is mine, and I am his;
he grazes [6] among the lilies.
[17]Until the day breathes
and the shadows flee,
turn, my beloved, be like a gazelle or a young stag on cleft mountains. [7]

The Bride's Dream

SONG OF SOLOMON 3 ‡†On my bed by night
I sought him whom my soul loves;
I sought him, but found him not.
[2]I will rise now and go about the city,
in the streets and in the squares;
I will seek him whom my soul loves.
I sought him, but found him not.
[3]†The watchmen found me
as they went about in the city.
“Have you seen him whom my soul loves?”
[4]†Scarcely had I passed them
when I found him whom my soul loves.
I held him, and would not let him go until I had brought him into my mother's house,
and into the chamber of her who conceived me.
[5]†I adjure you, O daughters of Jerusalem,
by the gazelles or the does of the field,
that you not stir up or awaken love
until it pleases.

Solomon Arrives for the Wedding

[6]‡‡What is that coming up from the wilderness like columns of smoke,
perfumed with myrrh and frankincense,
with all the fragrant powders of a merchant?
[7]Behold, it is the litter [1] of Solomon!
Around it are sixty mighty men,
some of the mighty men of Israel, [8]all of them wearing swords
and expert in war,
each with his sword at his thigh,
against terror by night.

[9]King Solomon made himself a carriage [2]
from the wood of Lebanon.
[10]He made its posts of silver,
its back of gold, its seat of purple;
its interior was inlaid with love
by the daughters of Jerusalem.
[11]Go out, O daughters of Zion, and look upon King Solomon,
with the crown with which his mother crowned him
on the day of his wedding,
on the day of the gladness of his heart.

Solomon Admires His Bride's Beauty

He

SONG OF SOLOMON 4 ‡‡‡‡Behold, you are beautiful, my love,
behold, you are beautiful!
Your eyes are doves
behind your veil.
Your hair is like a flock of goats
leaping down the slopes of Gilead.
[2]Your teeth are like a flock of shorn ewes
that have come up from the washing,
all of which bear twins,
and not one among them has lost its young.
[3]Your lips are like a scarlet thread,
and your mouth is lovely.
Your cheeks are like halves of a pomegranate
behind your veil.
[4]Your neck is like the tower of David,
built in rows of stone; [1]
on it hang a thousand shields,
all of them shields of warriors.
[5]Your two breasts are like two fawns,
twins of a gazelle,
that graze among the lilies.
[6]Until the day breathes
and the shadows flee,
I will go away to the mountain of myrrh
and the hill of frankincense.
[7]You are altogether beautiful, my love;
there is no flaw in you.
[8]†Come with me from Lebanon, my bride;
come with me from Lebanon.
Depart [2] from the peak of Amana,
from the peak of Senir and Hermon,
from the dens of lions,
from the mountains of leopards.
[9]†You have captivated my heart, my sister, my bride;
you have captivated my heart with one glance of your eyes,
with one jewel of your necklace.
[10]How beautiful is your love, my sister, my bride!

How much better is your love than wine,
and the fragrance of your oils than any spice!
[11]Your lips drip nectar, my bride;
honey and milk are under your tongue;
the fragrance of your garments is like the fragrance of Lebanon.
[12]A garden locked is my sister, my bride,
a spring locked, a fountain sealed.
[13]Your shoots are an orchard of pomegranates with all choicest fruits,
henna with nard,
[14]nard and saffron, calamus and cinnamon,
with all trees of frankincense,
myrrh and aloes,
with all choice spices—
[15]†a garden fountain, a well of living water, and flowing streams from Lebanon.
[16]†Awake, O north wind,
and come, O south wind!
Blow upon my garden,
let its spices flow.

Together in the Garden of Love

She

Let my beloved come to his garden,
and eat its choicest fruits.

He

SONG OF SOLOMON 5 †I came to my garden, my sister, my bride,
I gathered my myrrh with my spice,
I ate my honeycomb with my honey,
I drank my wine with my milk.

Others

Eat, friends, drink,
and be drunk with love!

The Bride Searches for Her Beloved

She

[2]†††I slept, but my heart was awake.
A sound! My beloved is knocking.
“Open to me, my sister, my love,
my dove, my perfect one,
for my head is wet with dew,
my locks with the drops of the night.”
[3]†I had put off my garment;
how could I put it on?
I had bathed my feet;
how could I soil them?
[4]†My beloved put his hand to the latch,
and my heart was thrilled within me.
[5]I arose to open to my beloved,
and my hands dripped with myrrh,
my fingers with liquid myrrh,
on the handles of the bolt.
[6]I opened to my beloved,
but my beloved had turned and gone.
My soul failed me when he spoke.
I sought him, but found him not;
I called him, but he gave no answer.
[7]†The watchmen found me
as they went about in the city;

they beat me, they bruised me,
they took away my veil,
those watchmen of the walls.
[8]I adjure you, O daughters of Jerusalem,
if you find my beloved,
that you tell him
I am sick with love.

Others

[9]‡What is your beloved more than another beloved,
O most beautiful among women?
What is your beloved more than another beloved,
that you thus adjure us?

The Bride Praises Her Beloved

She

[10]‡My beloved is radiant and ruddy, distinguished among ten thousand.
[11]His head is the finest gold;
his locks are wavy,
black as a raven.
[12]His eyes are like doves
beside streams of water,
bathed in milk,
sitting beside a full pool. [1] [13]His cheeks are like beds of spices, mounds of sweet-smelling herbs.
His lips are lilies,
dripping liquid myrrh.
[14]His arms are rods of gold,
set with jewels.
His body is polished ivory, [2] bedecked with sapphires. [3] [15]His legs are alabaster columns, set on bases of gold.

His appearance is like Lebanon,
choice as the cedars.
[16]His mouth [4] is most sweet,
and he is altogether desirable.
This is my beloved and this is my friend,
O daughters of Jerusalem.

Others

SONG OF SOLOMON 6 †Where has your beloved gone,
O most beautiful among women?
Where has your beloved turned,
that we may seek him with you?

Together in the Garden of Love

She

[2]‡My beloved has gone down to his garden to the beds of spices, to graze [1] in the gardens
and to gather lilies.
[3]I am my beloved's and my beloved is mine;
he grazes among the lilies.

Solomon and His Bride Delight in Each Other

He

[4]‡‡†You are beautiful as Tirzah, my love, lovely as Jerusalem,
awesome as an army with banners.
[5]Turn away your eyes from me,
for they overwhelm me—
Your hair is like a flock of goats
leaping down the slopes of Gilead.
[6]Your teeth are like a flock of ewes
that have come up from the washing;
all of them bear twins;
not one among them has lost its young.
[7]Your cheeks are like halves of a pomegranate
behind your veil.
[8]‡†There are sixty queens and eighty concubines,
and virgins without number.
[9]My dove, my perfect one, is the only one,

the only one of her mother,
pure to her who bore her.
The young women saw her and called her blessed;
the queens and concubines also, and they praised her.
[10]†“Who is this who looks down like the dawn,
beautiful as the moon, bright as the sun,
awesome as an army with banners?”

She

[11]††I went down to the nut orchard to look at the blossoms of the valley, to see whether the vines had budded,
whether the pomegranates were in bloom.
[12]Before I was aware, my desire set me
among the chariots of my kinsman, a prince. [2]

Others

[13]† [3] Return, return, O Shulammite, return, return, that we may look upon you.

He

Why should you look upon the Shulammite,
as upon a dance before two armies? [4]

SONG OF SOLOMON 7 ‡†How beautiful are your feet in sandals,
O noble daughter!
Your rounded thighs are like jewels,
the work of a master hand.
[2]Your navel is a rounded bowl that never lacks mixed wine.
Your belly is a heap of wheat,
encircled with lilies.
[3]Your two breasts are like two fawns,
twins of a gazelle.
[4]Your neck is like an ivory tower.
Your eyes are pools in Heshbon,
by the gate of Bath-rabbim.
Your nose is like a tower of Lebanon,
which looks toward Damascus.
[5]Your head crowns you like Carmel,
and your flowing locks are like purple;
a king is held captive in the tresses.
[6]‡How beautiful and pleasant you are,
O loved one, with all your delights! [1]
[7]Your stature is like a palm tree,
and your breasts are like its clusters.
[8]I say I will climb the palm tree
and lay hold of its fruit.
Oh may your breasts be like clusters of the vine,
and the scent of your breath like apples,
[9]‡and your mouth [2] like the best wine.

She

It goes down smoothly for my beloved, gliding over lips and teeth. [3] [10]†I am my beloved's,
and his desire is for me.

The Bride Gives Her Love

[11]Come, my beloved,
let us go out into the fields and lodge in the villages; [4] [12]let us go out early to the vineyards and see whether the vines have budded, whether the grape blossoms have opened and the pomegranates are in bloom.
There I will give you my love.
[13]The mandrakes give forth fragrance,
and beside our doors are all choice fruits,
new as well as old,
which I have laid up for you, O my beloved.

Longing for Her Beloved

SONG OF SOLOMON 8 †Oh that you were like a brother to me who nursed at my mother's breasts!
If I found you outside, I would kiss you,
and none would despise me.
[2]I would lead you and bring you into the house of my mother—
she who used to teach me.
I would give you spiced wine to drink,
the juice of my pomegranate.
[3]‡His left hand is under my head,
and his right hand embraces me!
[4]I adjure you, O daughters of Jerusalem,
that you not stir up or awaken love
until it pleases.
[5]‡†Who is that coming up from the wilderness,
leaning on her beloved?
Under the apple tree I awakened you.
There your mother was in labor with you;
there she who bore you was in labor.
[6]‡†Set me as a seal upon your heart,
as a seal upon your arm,
for love is strong as death,
jealousy [1] is fierce as the grave. [2]
Its flashes are flashes of fire,
the very flame of the LORD.
[7]Many waters cannot quench love, neither can floods drown it.
If a man offered for love
all the wealth of his house,
he [3] would be utterly despised.

Final Advice

Others

[8]†We have a little sister,
and she has no breasts.
What shall we do for our sister on the day when she is spoken for?
[9]†If she is a wall,
we will build on her a battlement of silver,
but if she is a door,
we will enclose her with boards of cedar.

She

[10]†I was a wall,
and my breasts were like towers;
then I was in his eyes
as one who finds [4] peace.
[11]†Solomon had a vineyard at Baal-hamon;
he let out the vineyard to keepers;
each one was to bring for its fruit a thousand pieces of silver.
[12]My vineyard, my very own, is before me;
you, O Solomon, may have the thousand,
and the keepers of the fruit two hundred.

He

[13]†O you who dwell in the gardens, with companions listening for your voice;
let me hear it.

She

[14]Make haste, my beloved,
and be like a gazelle
or a young stag
on the mountains of spices.

Study Notes

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 1:1 See Introduction: Title; Author and Date.

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 1:2–3:5 In this first of three major sections to the Song, 32 out of 39 verses are spoken by the Shulammite, with brief interludes by her beloved and the daughters of Jerusalem. This portion most likely represents her remembrances of past events combined with the desires of her heart to marry the king, as she anticipates his arrival to take her to Jerusalem for the wedding in 3:6ff.

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 1:2–3 Four features of Solomon attracted the beloved: 1) his lips, 2) his love, 3) his lotion, and 4) his pure lifestyle. Later Solomon noticed these same features in her (4:9–11).

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 1:3 virgins. The daughters of Jerusalem (v. 5).

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 1:4 let us run. This is better understood as spoken by the Shulammite, rather than the daughters of Jerusalem, in the sense of "let us hurry." The king has brought me. This is better understood as the desire of her heart—"Let the king bring me into his chambers"—rather than a statement of fact. we will extol your love. The daughters of Jerusalem affirmed the Shulammite's praise in v. 2.

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 1:5–6 I am very dark. The Shulammite was concerned that the sun (from working outdoors) had marred her complexion (cf. vineyard, 7:12; 8:11).

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 1:6 my own vineyard. Speaks of herself (cf. 8:12).

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 1:7 veils herself. Valuing purity, she disclaimed the veil of the prostitute, unlike Tamar (Gen. 38:14–16). Rather, she would go as a shepherdess to a shepherd.

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 1:8 This could have been spoken by the daughters of Jerusalem. most beautiful among women. The Shulammite received accolades as the best (cf. 5:9; 6:1). This is reminiscent of the Prov. 31 woman (Prov. 31:29).

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 1:9 my love. The first of nine uses (1:15; 2:2, 10, 13; 4:1, 7; 5:2; 6:4) a mare. Coming from an accomplished horseman (1 Kings 10:26–29), this speech figure makes perfect sense as a striking compliment of her dazzling beauty.

1:5	“tents of Kedar”	nomadic tribal tents made of dark goat hair
1:5	“curtains of Solomon”	most likely the beautiful curtains of Solomon’s palace
1:9	“a mare”	a young, female horse
1:12; 4:13–14	“nard”	an aromatic oil taken from an Indian herb
1:13; 3:6; 4:6, 14; 5:1, 5, 13	“myrrh”	an aromatic gum from the bark of a balsam tree made into perfume in either liquid or solid form
1:14; 4:13	“henna blossoms”	a common shrub whose white, spring blossoms give off a fragrant scent
1:14	“Engedi”	a lush oasis just west of the Dead Sea
1:15; 4:1; 5:12	“eyes are doves”	beautiful, deep, smoke gray eyes of the dove

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 1:13 My beloved. The first of 24 appearances.

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 1:15 you are beautiful. Verbal affirmation fueled this romance. He used “beautiful” at least 10 times (1:15; 2:10, 13; 4:1, 7; 6:4, 10; 7:6). eyes are doves. She returned the compliment in 5:12, which is best understood as beautiful eyes representing a beautiful personality.

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 1:16–17 Actually an outdoor setting in the forest.

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 2:3–6 This scene pictures the loving desire of the Shulammite rather than her actual experience.

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 2:4 banqueting house. The scene continues in the outdoors. This "house of wine" symbolizes the vineyard, just as the beams and rafters of 1:17 refer to the forest. his banner. As a military flag indicates location or possession, so Solomon's love flew over his beloved one (cf. Num. 1:52; Ps. 20:5).

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 2:7 I adjure you. This refrain, which is repeated before the wedding (3:5) and also afterward (8:4), explicitly expresses her commitment to a chaste life before and during marriage. She invites accountability to the daughters of Jerusalem.

2:1	"rose of Sharon"	probably a bulb flower like crocus, narcissus, iris, or daffodil growing in the low country (plain of Sharon), south of Mount Carmel
2:1, 16	"lily of the valleys"	possibly a six petaled flower that grew in the fertile, watered areas
2:3, 5; 7:8; 8:5	"apple"	an aromatic, sweet fruit—possibly an apricot
2:5	"raisins"	a food associated with religious festivals, having possible erotic significance (cf. 2 Sam. 6:19; Hos. 3:1)
2:7, 9, 17; 3:5; 8:14	"gazelles"	graceful members of the antelope family
2:7; 3:5	"does"	female deer
2:9, 17; 8:14	"stag"	a male deer
2:14; 5:2; 6:9	"dove"	a common symbol of love
2:17	"cleft mountains"	a ravine or rugged hills in an unidentifiable location in Israel

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 2:11–13 Winter past, rains over, flowers appearing, and vines blooming use springtime as a picture of their robust, growing love for one another.

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 2:14 This is best taken as a continuation of what Solomon said as quoted by the Shulammite (vv. 10–15).

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 2:15 Catch the foxes. Perhaps, as she literally did in the vineyards, Solomon wanted her to do by analogy in their relationship, i.e., to remove those things in their relationship that would spoil their blossoming love. It could also be thought of as “Let us . . . .”

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 2:16 My beloved is mine, and I am his. This clearly expresses the sanctity of a monogamous relationship that is built on mutual love (cf. 6:3; 7:10).

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 3:1–4 As the wedding time approaches, the Shulammite’s expectations grew more intense. It’s best to understand this as her dream, rather than a historical remembrance.

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 3:1 whom my soul loves. She repeated this phrase once in each of the first four verses, expressing her exclusive love for Solomon.

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 3:3 watchmen. This imagined encounter resembles a later real experience (cf. 5:6–8).

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 3:4 The Shulammite finds Solomon in her dreams and brings him to where she actually resides—her mother’s house.

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 3:5 As in 2:7, the beloved knows that the intensity of her love for Solomon cannot yet be experienced until the wedding, so she invites the daughters of Jerusalem to keep her accountable regarding sexual purity. Up to this point, the escalating desire of the Shulammite for Solomon has been expressed in veiled and delicate ways as compared to the explicit and open expressions that follow, as would be totally appropriate for a married couple (cf. 4:1ff.).

3:6	“fragrant powders”	various spices
3:7, 9	“litter, carriage”	a chair that transported the king and his bride
3:9; 4:8, 11, 15; 5:15	“Lebanon”	a beautiful country, north of Israel on the coast, with rich natural resources

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 3:6–5:1 This second major section portrays the king actually coming for his bride and their return to Jerusalem (3:6–11), the wedding (4:1–7), and the couple’s consummation of their union (4:8–5:1). Unlike the previous section, Solomon does a majority of the speaking (15 of 23 verses).

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 3:6–11 This narrative would be better understood as spoken by the daughters of Jerusalem who are also called the “daughters of Zion” (v. 11).

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 4:1–5:1 Until 3:11, there has been no hint of a wedding or marriage; thus the scenario of events support the idea that 1:2–3:5 refers to premarital days, while 4:1ff. rehearses the wedding and their love life that followed. Several reasons support this explanation: 1) "wedding" is not mentioned before 3:11; 2) "bride" does not appear until 4:8, and then it is mentioned six times from 4:8 to 5:1; and 3) prior to 4:1 the beloved has a holy preoccupation with sexual restraint (cf. 2:7; 3:5), but not afterward in the holy bonds of matrimony.

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 4:1–15 Possibly Solomon speaks vv. 1–7 in public and the far more intimate words of vv. 8–15 in private as they prepare to consummate their marriage in v. 16 and 5:1.

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 4:1–7 For other specific descriptions of the Shulammite's beauty, see 6:4–9 and 7:1–7. He begins 4:1 and closes v. 7 with the same refrain, "you are beautiful, my love."

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 4:1, 3 veil. Not the veil of a prostitute (1:7), but rather the bride.

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 4:8 from Lebanon. This figuratively describes the distance that the couple had kept sexually, which is further described in v. 12 as a locked garden and a sealed spring.

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 4:9 my sister. A common ancient Near Eastern term of endearment by a husband for his wife, which expresses closeness and permanence of relationship (cf. 4:10, 12; 5:1–2).

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 4:15 a well of living water. Solomon testified that whereas she was closed to his physical love before marriage (vv. 8, 12), now she is appropriately open to it (cf. Prov. 5:15–20).

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 4:16 The Shulammite then portrays herself as an open garden, whereas before she was closed (4:12). She describes herself as "his garden" signifying voluntary sexual surrender (cf. 1 Cor. 7:3–5).

Local Color in the Song of Solomon

Local Color in the Song of Solomon
4:1; 6:5	"slopes of Gilead"	the high plateau east of Galilee and Samaria
4:4	"tower of David"	probably the armory tower of Neh. 3:19, 25
4:8	"peak of Amana"	the hill in which the Amana River has its source in Syria

4:8	“peak of Senir and Hermon”	the Amorite and Hebrew names for the tallest summit in northern Israel (over 9,200 ft., cf. Deut. 3:9)
4:10, 14, 16; 5:1, 13; 6:2; 8:14	“spices”	the sweet smelling oil from the balsam
4:14	“saffron”	the dried, powdered pistils and stamens of a small crocus
4:14	“calamus”	a wild grass with a gingery scent
4:14	“cinnamon”	a spice taken from the bark of a tree
4:14	“aloes”	a spicy drug with a strong scent

©1997 by Thomas Nelson, Inc.

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 5:1 I came. While the guests feasted, the couple consummated their marriage (cf. Gen. 29:23; Deut. 22:13–21) and Solomon announced the blessing (cf. Gen. 2:25). Eat, friends. Given the intimate and private nature of sexual union, it seems difficult to understand anyone but God speaking these words (cf. Prov. 5:21). This is the divine affirmation of sexual love between husband and wife as holy and beautiful.

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 5:2–8:14 This third major section features the couple’s first argument (5:2–6:3) and their reconciliation (6:4–8:14).

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 5:2–6:3 Inevitable discord comes to even the most idyllic marriage. The “little foxes” of 2:15 have visited the home in this segment.

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 5:2 I slept, but my heart was awake. Some have suggested the beloved dreams here, as in 3:1–4. However, she acknowledges “my heart was awake,” indicating that she was not sound asleep. To make this a dream would make the rest of the book a dream, which is highly unlikely. Open to me. It appears that Solomon returned home earlier than expected and wanted to give his bride a romantic surprise.

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 5:3 how could I . . . ? Her groggy response to Solomon.

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 5:4–6 By the time she awakens fully and opens the door, Solomon has departed.

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 5:7 Unlike what happened in her dream (3:3), the watchmen treat her badly. Between the darkness and the unfamiliar features of the new bride, this could easily have happened.

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 5:9 The wise daughters of Jerusalem twice ask a question that prompts this bride to recall the superlative features of her new husband in vv. 10–16.

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 5:10–16 She responds that he is "distinguished among ten thousand" which is another way to say "he is the best of the best."

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 6:1 Having established why they should look (5:9), the daughters ask where they should look.

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 6:2–3 She believed Solomon had gone back to the garden and reaffirmed her exclusive love (cf. 2:16; 7:10).

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 6:4–8:4 The couple works through their difficulties and rekindles their love.

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 6:4–9 Apparently a reunion has occurred, and Solomon once again assured her of his love.

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 6:4 lovely as Jerusalem. The nation's capital city was known as "the perfection of beauty, the joy of all the earth" (cf. Lam. 2:15; Ps. 48:1–2).

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 6:8–9 Solomon reaches new heights in telling his bride she remains the best of the best (cf. 2:2; 4:7; 5:2).

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 6:8 queens . . . concubines . . . virgins. Are these Solomon's other women? There is no language of ownership or relationship. The numerical progression from 60 to 80 to "without number" points to the use of various categories for effect only. Solomon tells his beloved that she stands above all women.

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 6:10 This is better understood as being said by the daughters of Jerusalem as the third question in a series of three (cf. 5:9;

6:1). This time they exalt the Shulammite as one who ranks with the great beauties of God's creation.

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 6:11–13 This represents the most difficult portion to interpret in the entire song.

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 6:11–12 This is best understood as being spoken by the beloved. Solomon acknowledges that when he left home hastily (cf. 5:2–6), he returned to agricultural (6:11) and military (v. 12) matters.

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 6:13 Return, return. This is best understood as being spoken by the daughters of Jerusalem. In effect, they beckon the bride back to the royal palace. Shulammite. A resident of Shunem, a part of the land allotted to Issachar (cf. Josh. 19:18). Why should you look. This is best understood as being spoken by the beloved. This probably refers to some form of marital dance associated with the city of Mahanaim which would be inappropriate for anyone other than Solomon to witness.

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 7:1–5 It is better to understand this as the friends answering Solomon. Verses 1 and 5 fit far better this way.

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 7:1 O noble daughter! She appeared by beauty and dress to be of royal lineage, although she really came from a humble background.

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 7:6–9a Solomon and his bride start all over again. He picked up where he left off at 5:2.

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 7:9b–8:4 Unlike the response in 5:3, this time Solomon's beloved one responded with reciprocal love.

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 7:10 I am my beloved's. She expressed her loyal love for the third time (cf. 2:16; 6:3).

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 8:1 like a brother to me. This way she could have publicly bestowed her affection without embarrassment.

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 8:3–4 It will be just like it was when they courted (cf. 2:6–7). This time the restraint involves waiting for lovemaking until they are in private circumstances rather than public.

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 8:5–14 This final scene portrays the original "marriage encounter" where they reaffirm their love for one another.

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 8:5b I awakened you. This is better understood as being spoken by Solomon. The Shulammite's dream of 3:4 has actually been realized now in their marriage. mother. This is the sixth reference to the Shulammite's mother (cf. 1:6; 3:4; 6:9; 8:1; 8:2). In contrast, Solomon's mother Bathsheba is mentioned only once (cf. 3:11).

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 8:6 seal. The Shulammite is the seal and Solomon would do the sealing. This represents their publicly declared mutual love for one another.

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 8:6–7 for love. This represents the 1 Cor. 13:1–8 of the OT. Four qualities of love appear: 1) love is unyielding in marriage, as death is to life; 2) love is intense like the brightest flame, perhaps as bright as the glory of the Lord; 3) love is invincible or unquenchable, even when flooded by difficulty; and 4) love is so priceless that it cannot be bought, only given away.

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 8:8–9 The bride's brothers reminded everyone that they did their brotherly duty of keeping their sister pure before marriage (cf. the brothers of Rebekah in Gen. 24:50–60; Dinah in Gen. 34:13–27; and Tamar in 2 Sam. 13:1–22). The same standard of purity is taught in the NT (cf. 1 Thess. 4:1–8).

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 8:9 wall . . . door. Wall represents sexual purity; door portrays an openness to immorality.

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 8:10 wall. She reaffirmed that she lived a premarital life of a wall, successfully rebuffing all attempts on her honor. Thus her husband took great delight and contentment in her moral purity.

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 8:11–12 While Solomon might have leased out his real vineyard for profit, she gave the vineyard of her love to Solomon.

SONG OF SOLOMON—NOTE ON 8:13 companions. These could be 1) Solomon's shepherd companions (cf. 1:7), 2) the daughters of Jerusalem (cf. 6:13), or 3) those who escorted the bride to Jerusalem (cf. 3:7).

Introduction to Isaiah

Title

The book derives its title from the author, whose name means “The Lord is salvation,” and is similar to the names Joshua, Elisha, and Jesus. Isaiah is quoted directly in the NT over 65 times, far more than any other OT prophet, and mentioned by name over 20 times.

Author and Date

Isaiah, the son of Amoz, ministered in and around Jerusalem as a prophet to Judah during the reigns of four kings of Judah: Uzziah (called “Azariah” in 2 Kings), Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah (Isa. 1:1), from c. 739–686 B.C. He evidently came from a family of some rank, because he had easy access to the king (7:3). He was married and had two sons who bore symbolic names: “Shear-jashub” (“a remnant shall return,” 7:3) and “Maher-shalal-hash-baz” (“the spoil speeds, the prey hastens,” 8:3). When called by God to prophesy, in the year of King Uzziah’s death (c. 739 B.C.), he responded with a cheerful readiness, though he knew from the beginning that his ministry would be one of fruitless warning and exhortation (6:9–13). Having been reared in Jerusalem, he was an appropriate choice as a political and religious counselor to the nation.

Isaiah was a contemporary of Hosea and Micah. His writing style has no rival in its versatility of expression, brilliance of imagery, and richness of vocabulary. The early church father Jerome likened him to Demosthenes, the legendary Greek orator. His writing features a range of 2,186 different words, compared to 1,535 in Ezekiel, 1,653 in Jeremiah, and 2,170 in the Psalms. Second Chronicles 32:32 records that he wrote a biography of King Hezekiah also. The prophet lived until at least 681 B.C. when he penned the account of Sennacherib’s death (cf. 37:38). Tradition has it that he met his death under King Manasseh (c. 695–642 B.C.) by being cut in two with a wooden saw (cf. Heb. 11:37).

Background and Setting

During Uzziah's prosperous 52-year reign (c. 790–739 B.C.), Judah developed into a strong commercial and military state with a port for commerce on the Red Sea and the construction of walls, towers, and fortifications (2 Chron. 26:3–5, 8–10, 13–15). Yet the period witnessed a decline in Judah's spiritual status. Uzziah's downfall resulted from his attempt to assume the privileges of a priest and burn incense on the altar (2 Kings 15:3–4; 2 Chron. 26:16–19). He was judged with leprosy, from which he never recovered (2 Kings 15:5; 2 Chron. 26:20–21).

His son Jotham (c. 750–731 B.C.) had to take over the duties of king before his father's death. Assyria began to emerge as a new international power under Tiglath-pileser (c. 745–727 B.C.) while Jotham was king (2 Kings 15:19). Judah also began to incur opposition from Israel and Syria to her north during his reign (2 Kings 15:37). Jotham was a builder and a fighter like his father, but spiritual corruption still existed in the land (2 Kings 15:34–35; 2 Chron. 27:1–2).

Ahaz was 25 when he began to reign in Judah, and he reigned until age 41 (2 Chron. 28:1, 8; c. 735–715 B.C.). Israel and Syria formed an alliance to combat the rising Assyrian threat from the east, but Ahaz refused to bring Judah into the alliance (2 Kings 16:5; Isa. 7:6). For this, the northern neighbors threatened to dethrone him, and war resulted (734 B.C.). In panic, Ahaz sent to the Assyrian king for help (2 Kings 16:7) and the Assyrian king gladly responded, sacking Gaza, carrying all of Galilee and Gilead into captivity, and finally capturing Damascus (732 B.C.). Ahaz's alliance with Assyria led to his introduction of a heathen altar, which he set up in Solomon's temple (2 Kings 16:10–16; 2 Chron. 28:3). During his reign (722 B.C.), Assyria captured Samaria, capital of the northern kingdom, and carried many of Israel's most capable people into captivity (2 Kings 17:6, 24).

Hezekiah began his reign over Judah in 715 B.C. and continued for 29 years to c. 686 B.C. (2 Kings 18:1–2). Reformation was a priority when he became king (2 Kings 18:4, 22; 2 Chron. 30:1). The threat of an Assyrian invasion forced Judah to promise heavy tribute to that eastern power. In 701 B.C. Hezekiah became very ill with a life-threatening disease, but he prayed and God graciously extended his life for 15 years (2 Kings 20; Isa. 38) until 686 B.C. The ruler of Babylon used the opportunity of his illness and recovery to send congratulations to him, probably seeking to form an alliance with Judah against Assyria at the same time (2 Kings 20:12ff.; Isa. 39). When Assyria became weak through internal strife, Hezekiah refused to pay any further tribute to that power (2 Kings 18:7). So in 701 B.C. Sennacherib, the Assyrian king, invaded the coastal areas of Israel, marching toward Egypt on Israel's southern flank. In the process he overran many Judean towns, looting and carrying many people back to Assyria. While besieging Lachish, he sent a contingent of forces to besiege Jerusalem (2 Kings 18:17–19:8; Isa. 36:2–37:8). The side-expedition failed, however, so in a second attempt he sent messengers to Jerusalem demanding an immediate surrender of the city (2 Kings 19:9ff.; Isa. 37:9ff.). With Isaiah's encouragement, Hezekiah refused to surrender, and when Sennacherib's army fell prey to a sudden disaster, he returned to Nineveh and never threatened Judah again.

Historical and Theological Themes

Isaiah prophesied during the period of the divided kingdom, directing the major thrust of his message to the southern kingdom of Judah. He condemned the empty ritualism of his day (e.g., 1:10–15) and the idolatry into which so many of the people had fallen (e.g., 40:18–20). He foresaw the coming Babylonian captivity of Judah because of this departure from the Lord (39:6–7).

Fulfillment of some of his prophecies in his own lifetime provided his credentials for the prophetic office. Sennacherib's effort to take Jerusalem failed, just as Isaiah had said it would (37:6–7, 36–38). The Lord healed Hezekiah's critical illness, as Isaiah had predicted (38:5; 2 Kings 20:7). Long before Cyrus, king of Persia appeared on the scene, Isaiah named him as Judah's deliverer from the Babylonian captivity (Isa. 44:28; 45:1). Fulfillment of his prophecies of Christ's first coming have given Isaiah further vindication (e.g., 7:14). The pattern of literal fulfillment of his already-fulfilled prophecies gives assurance that prophecies of Christ's second coming will also see literal fulfillment.

Isaiah provides data on the future day of the Lord and the time following. He details numerous aspects of Israel's future kingdom on earth not found elsewhere in the OT or NT, including changes in nature, the animal world, Jerusalem's status among the nations, the Suffering Servant's leadership, and others.

Through a literary device called "prophetic foreshortening," Isaiah predicted future events without delineating exact sequences of the events or time intervals separating them. For example, nothing in Isaiah reveals the extended period separating the two comings of the Messiah. Also, he does not provide as clear a distinction between the future temporal kingdom and the eternal kingdom as John does in Rev. 20:1–10; 21:1–22:5. In God's program of progressive revelation, details of these relationships awaited a prophetic spokesman of a later time.

Also known as the “evangelical Prophet,” Isaiah spoke much about the grace of God toward Israel, particularly in his last 27 chapters. The centerpiece is Isaiah’s unrivaled ch. 53, portraying Christ as the slain Lamb of God.

Interpretive Challenges

Interpretive challenges in a long and significant book such as Isaiah are numerous. The most critical of them focuses on whether Isaiah's prophecies will receive literal fulfillment or not, and on whether the Lord, in his program, has abandoned national Israel and permanently replaced the nation with the church, so that there is no future for national Israel.

On the latter issue, numerous portions of Isaiah support the position that God has not replaced ethnic Israel with an alleged "new Israel." Isaiah has too much to say about God's faithfulness to Israel, that he would not reject the people whom he has created and chosen (43:1). The nation is on the palms of his hands, and Jerusalem's walls are ever before his eyes (49:16). He is bound by his own word to fulfill the promises he has made to bring them back to himself and bless them in that future day (55:10–12).

On the former issue, literal fulfillment of many of Isaiah's prophecies has already occurred, as illustrated in Introduction: Historical and Theological Themes. To contend that those yet unfulfilled will see non-literal fulfillment is biblically groundless. This fact disqualifies the case for proposing that the church receives some of the promises made originally to Israel. The kingdom promised to David belongs to Israel, not the church. The future exaltation of Jerusalem will be on earth, not in heaven. Christ will reign personally on this earth as we know it, as well as in the new heavens and new earth (Rev. 22:1, 3).

Isaiah

ISAIAH 1 †The vision of Isaiah the son of Amoz, which he saw concerning Judah and Jerusalem in the days of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judah.

The Wickedness of Judah

[2]††Hear, O heavens, and give ear, O earth;
for the LORD has spoken:
“Children [1] have I reared and brought up,
but they have rebelled against me.
[3]†The ox knows its owner,
and the donkey its master's crib,
but Israel does not know,
my people do not understand.”
[4]†Ah, sinful nation,
a people laden with iniquity,
offspring of evildoers,
children who deal corruptly!
They have forsaken the LORD,
they have despised the Holy One of Israel,
they are utterly estranged.
[5]†Why will you still be struck down?
Why will you continue to rebel?
The whole head is sick,
and the whole heart faint.
[6]From the sole of the foot even to the head,
there is no soundness in it,
but bruises and sores
and raw wounds;
they are not pressed out or bound up or softened with oil.
[7]Your country lies desolate;
your cities are burned with fire;

in your very presence
foreigners devour your land;
it is desolate, as overthrown by foreigners.
[8]†And the daughter of Zion is left like a booth in a vineyard,
like a lodge in a cucumber field,
like a besieged city.
[9]†If the LORD of hosts
had not left us a few survivors,
we should have been like Sodom,
and become like Gomorrah.
[10]‡Hear the word of the LORD,
you rulers of Sodom!
Give ear to the teaching [2] of our God,
you people of Gomorrah!
[11]†“What to me is the multitude of your sacrifices?
says the LORD;
I have had enough of burnt offerings of rams and the fat of well-fed beasts;
I do not delight in the blood of bulls,
or of lambs, or of goats.
[12]“When you come to appear before me,
who has required of you
this trampling of my courts?
[13]‡Bring no more vain offerings;
incense is an abomination to me.
New moon and Sabbath and the calling of convocations—
I cannot endure iniquity and solemn assembly.
[14]†Your new moons and your appointed feasts
my soul hates;
they have become a burden to me;
I am weary of bearing them.
[15]When you spread out your hands,
I will hide my eyes from you;
even though you make many prayers,
I will not listen;
your hands are full of blood.

[16]‡Wash yourselves; make yourselves clean;
remove the evil of your deeds from before my eyes;
cease to do evil,
[17]†learn to do good;
seek justice,
correct oppression;
bring justice to the fatherless,
plead the widow's cause.
[18]‡†“Come now, let us reason [3] together, says the LORD:
though your sins are like scarlet,
they shall be as white as snow;
though they are red like crimson,
they shall become like wool.
[19]‡If you are willing and obedient,
you shall eat the good of the land;
[20]but if you refuse and rebel,
you shall be eaten by the sword;
for the mouth of the LORD has spoken.”

The Unfaithful City

[21]‡†How the faithful city has become a whore, [4]
she who was full of justice!
Righteousness lodged in her,
but now murderers.
[22]Your silver has become dross,
your best wine mixed with water.
[23]Your princes are rebels and companions of thieves.
Everyone loves a bribe
and runs after gifts.
They do not bring justice to the fatherless,
and the widow's cause does not come to them.
[24]†Therefore the Lord declares,
the LORD of hosts,
the Mighty One of Israel:

“Ah, I will get relief from my enemies and avenge myself on my foes.
[25]†I will turn my hand against you and will smelt away your dross as with lye and remove all your alloy.
[26]And I will restore your judges as at the first,
    and your counselors as at the beginning.
Afterward you shall be called the city of righteousness,
    the faithful city.”
[27]†Zion shall be redeemed by justice,
    and those in her who repent, by righteousness.
[28]†But rebels and sinners shall be broken together,
    and those who forsake the LORD shall be consumed.
[29]†For they [5] shall be ashamed of the oaks
    that you desired;
and you shall blush for the gardens
    that you have chosen.
[30]For you shall be like an oak whose leaf withers,
    and like a garden without water.
[31]†And the strong shall become tinder,
    and his work a spark,
and both of them shall burn together,
    with none to quench them.

The Mountain of the LORD

ISAIAH 2 ‡‡The word that Isaiah the son of Amoz saw concerning Judah and Jerusalem.

[2]‡†It shall come to pass in the latter days that the mountain of the house of the LORD shall be established as the highest of the mountains,
and shall be lifted up above the hills;
and all the nations shall flow to it,
[3]†and many peoples shall come, and say:
“Come, let us go up to the mountain of the LORD,
to the house of the God of Jacob,
that he may teach us his ways
and that we may walk in his paths.”
For out of Zion shall go the law, [1]
and the word of the LORD from Jerusalem.
[4]†He shall judge between the nations,
and shall decide disputes for many peoples;
and they shall beat their swords into plowshares,
and their spears into pruning hooks;
nation shall not lift up sword against nation,
neither shall they learn war anymore.
[5]O house of Jacob,
come, let us walk
in the light of the LORD.

The Day of the LORD

[6]‡‡†For you have rejected your people,
the house of Jacob,
because they are full of things from the east and of fortune-tellers like the Philistines,
and they strike hands with the children of foreigners.
[7]Their land is filled with silver and gold,

and there is no end to their treasures;
their land is filled with horses,
and there is no end to their chariots.
[8]†Their land is filled with idols;
they bow down to the work of their hands,
to what their own fingers have made.
[9]So man is humbled,
and each one is brought low—
do not forgive them!
[10]‡Enter into the rock
and hide in the dust
from before the terror of the LORD,
and from the splendor of his majesty.
[11]The haughty looks of man shall be brought low,
and the lofty pride of men shall be humbled,
and the LORD alone will be exalted in that day.
[12]†For the LORD of hosts has a day against all that is proud and lofty, against all that is lifted up—and it shall be brought low; [13]†against all the cedars of Lebanon,
lofty and lifted up;
and against all the oaks of Bashan;
[14]against all the lofty mountains,
and against all the uplifted hills;
[15]against every high tower,
and against every fortified wall;
[16]against all the ships of Tarshish,
and against all the beautiful craft.
[17]And the haughtiness of man shall be humbled,
and the lofty pride of men shall be brought low,
and the LORD alone will be exalted in that day.
[18]And the idols shall utterly pass away.
[19]†And people shall enter the caves of the rocks and the holes of the ground, [2]
from before the terror of the LORD,
and from the splendor of his majesty,
when he rises to terrify the earth.

[20]In that day mankind will cast away their idols of silver and their idols of gold, which they made for themselves to worship,
to the moles and to the bats, [21]to enter the caverns of the rocks
and the clefts of the cliffs,
from before the terror of the LORD,
and from the splendor of his majesty,
when he rises to terrify the earth.
[22]†Stop regarding man
in whose nostrils is breath,
for of what account is he?

Judgment on Judah and Jerusalem

ISAIAH 3 ‡‡†For behold, the Lord GOD of hosts is taking away from Jerusalem and from Judah support and supply, [1]
all support of bread,
and all support of water;
[2]the mighty man and the soldier,
the judge and the prophet,
the diviner and the elder,
[3]the captain of fifty
and the man of rank,
the counselor and the skillful magician
and the expert in charms.
[4]‡And I will make boys their princes, and infants [2] shall rule over them.
[5]And the people will oppress one another,
every one his fellow
and every one his neighbor;
the youth will be insolent to the elder,
and the despised to the honorable.
[6]‡For a man will take hold of his brother in the house of his father, saying:
“You have a cloak;
you shall be our leader,
and this heap of ruins
shall be under your rule”;
[7]in that day he will speak out, saying:
“I will not be a healer; [3]
in my house there is neither bread nor cloak;
you shall not make me
leader of the people.”
[8]†For Jerusalem has stumbled,
and Judah has fallen,
because their speech and their deeds are against the LORD,

defying his glorious presence. [4] [9]For the look on their faces bears witness against them;
they proclaim their sin like Sodom;
they do not hide it.
Woe to them!
For they have brought evil on themselves.
[10]Tell the righteous that it shall be well with them,
for they shall eat the fruit of their deeds.
[11]Woe to the wicked! It shall be ill with him, for what his hands have dealt out shall be done to him.
[12]†My people—infants are their oppressors,
and women rule over them.
O my people, your guides mislead you and they have swallowed up [5] the course of your paths.
[13]The LORD has taken his place to contend;
he stands to judge peoples.
[14]†The LORD will enter into judgment with the elders and princes of his people:
"It is you who have devoured [6] the vineyard,
the spoil of the poor is in your houses.
[15]What do you mean by crushing my people,
by grinding the face of the poor?"
declares the Lord GOD of hosts.
[16]†The LORD said:
Because the daughters of Zion are haughty and walk with outstretched necks, glancing wantonly with their eyes,
mincing along as they go,
tinkling with their feet,
[17]therefore the Lord will strike with a scab
the heads of the daughters of Zion, and the LORD will lay bare their secret parts.

[18]In that day the Lord will take away the finery of the anklets, the headbands, and the crescents; [19]the pendants, the bracelets, and the scarves; [20]the headdresses, the armlets, the sashes, the perfume boxes, and the amulets; [21]the signet rings and nose rings; [22]the festal robes, the mantles, the cloaks, and the handbags; [23]the mirrors, the linen garments, the turbans, and the veils.

[24]Instead of perfume there will be rottenness;
    and instead of a belt, a rope;
and instead of well-set hair, baldness;
    and instead of a rich robe, a skirt of sackcloth;
    and branding instead of beauty.
[25]Your men shall fall by the sword and your mighty men in battle.
[26]And her gates shall lament and mourn;
    empty, she shall sit on the ground.

ISAIAH 4 †And seven women shall take hold of one man in that day, saying, “We will eat our own bread and wear our own clothes, only let us be called by your name; take away our reproach.”

The Branch of the LORD Glorified

[2]††In that day the branch of the LORD shall be beautiful and glorious, and the fruit of the land shall be the pride and honor of the survivors of Israel. [3]†And he who is left in Zion and remains in Jerusalem will be called holy, everyone who has been recorded for life in Jerusalem, [4]†when the Lord shall have washed away the filth of the daughters of Zion and cleansed the bloodstains of Jerusalem from its midst by a spirit of judgment and by a spirit of burning. [1] [5]†Then the LORD will create over the whole site of Mount Zion and over her assemblies a cloud by day, and smoke and the shining of a flaming fire by night; for over all the glory there will be a canopy. [6]There will be a booth for shade by day from the heat, and for a refuge and a shelter from the storm and rain.

The Vineyard of the LORD Destroyed

ISAIAH 5 ‡†Let me sing for my beloved my love song concerning his vineyard:
My beloved had a vineyard
on a very fertile hill.
[2]†He dug it and cleared it of stones,
and planted it with choice vines;
he built a watchtower in the midst of it,
and hewed out a wine vat in it;
and he looked for it to yield grapes,
but it yielded wild grapes.
[3]And now, O inhabitants of Jerusalem and men of Judah,
judge between me and my vineyard.
[4]What more was there to do for my vineyard,
that I have not done in it?
When I looked for it to yield grapes,
why did it yield wild grapes?
[5]†And now I will tell you what I will do to my vineyard.
I will remove its hedge,
and it shall be devoured; [1]
I will break down its wall,
and it shall be trampled down.
[6]I will make it a waste;
it shall not be pruned or hoed,
and briers and thorns shall grow up;
I will also command the clouds
that they rain no rain upon it.
[7]†For the vineyard of the LORD of hosts is the house of Israel, and the men of Judah
are his pleasant planting;
and he looked for justice,

but behold, bloodshed; [2]
for righteousness,
but behold, an outcry! [3]

Woe to the Wicked

[8]‡‡†Woe to those who join house to house,
who add field to field,
until there is no more room,
and you are made to dwell alone
in the midst of the land.
[9]The LORD of hosts has sworn in my hearing:
“Surely many houses shall be desolate,
large and beautiful houses, without inhabitant.
[10]†For ten acres [4] of vineyard shall yield but one bath, and a homer of seed shall yield but an ephah.” [5] [11]‡Woe to those who rise early in the morning, that they may run after strong drink,
who tarry late into the evening
as wine inflames them!
[12]They have lyre and harp,
tambourine and flute and wine at their feasts,
but they do not regard the deeds of the LORD,
or see the work of his hands.
[13]Therefore my people go into exile for lack of knowledge; [6]
their honored men go hungry, [7]
and their multitude is parched with thirst.
[14]†Therefore Sheol has enlarged its appetite and opened its mouth beyond measure, and the nobility of Jerusalem [8] and her multitude will go down,
her revelers and he who exults in her.
[15]Man is humbled, and each one is brought low,
and the eyes of the haughty [9] are brought low.
[16]But the LORD of hosts is exalted [10] in justice, and the Holy God shows himself holy in righteousness.
[17]Then shall the lambs graze as in their pasture, and nomads shall eat among the ruins of the rich.

[18]‡Woe to those who draw iniquity with cords of falsehood, who draw sin as with cart ropes, [19]†who say: “Let him be quick, let him speed his work
that we may see it;
let the counsel of the Holy One of Israel draw near,
and let it come, that we may know it!”
[20]†Woe to those who call evil good and good evil,
who put darkness for light
and light for darkness,
who put bitter for sweet
and sweet for bitter!
[21]†Woe to those who are wise in their own eyes,
and shrewd in their own sight!
[22]‡Woe to those who are heroes at drinking wine,
and valiant men in mixing strong drink, [23]who acquit the guilty for a bribe,
and deprive the innocent of his right!
[24]‡Therefore, as the tongue of fire devours the stubble,
and as dry grass sinks down in the flame,
so their root will be as rottenness,
and their blossom go up like dust;
for they have rejected the law of the LORD of hosts,
and have despised the word of the Holy One of Israel.
[25]Therefore the anger of the LORD was kindled against his people, and he stretched out his hand against them and struck them,
and the mountains quaked;
and their corpses were as refuse
in the midst of the streets.
For all this his anger has not turned away,
and his hand is stretched out still.
[26]†He will raise a signal for nations far away,
and whistle for them from the ends of the earth;
and behold, quickly, speedily they come!
[27]None is weary, none stumbles,

none slumbers or sleeps,
not a waistband is loose,
not a sandal strap broken; [28]their arrows are sharp,
all their bows bent,
their horses' hoofs seem like flint,
and their wheels like the whirlwind.
[29]Their roaring is like a lion,
like young lions they roar;
they growl and seize their prey;
they carry it off, and none can rescue.
[30][†]They will growl over it on that day,
like the growling of the sea.
And if one looks to the land,
behold, darkness and distress;
and the light is darkened by its clouds.

Isaiah's Vision of the Lord

ISAIAH 6 ‡†In the year that King Uzziah died I saw the Lord sitting upon a throne, high and lifted up; and the train [1] of his robe filled the temple. [2]†Above him stood the seraphim. Each had six wings: with two he covered his face, and with two he covered his feet, and with two he flew. [3]†And one called to another and said:

> “Holy, holy, holy is the LORD of hosts;
> the whole earth is full of his glory!” [2]

[4]†And the foundations of the thresholds shook at the voice of him who called, and the house was filled with smoke. [5]†And I said: “Woe is me! For I am lost; for I am a man of unclean lips, and I dwell in the midst of a people of unclean lips; for my eyes have seen the King, the LORD of hosts!”

[6]‡†Then one of the seraphim flew to me, having in his hand a burning coal that he had taken with tongs from the altar. [7]†And he touched my mouth and said: “Behold, this has touched your lips; your guilt is taken away, and your sin atoned for.”

Isaiah's Commission from the LORD

[8]†And I heard the voice of the Lord saying, “Whom shall I send, and who will go for us?” Then I said, “Here am I! Send me.” [9]‡And he said, “Go, and say to this people:

> “‘Keep on hearing, [3] but do not understand;
> keep on seeing, [4] but do not perceive.’ > [10]Make the heart of this people dull, [5]
> and their ears heavy,
> and blind their eyes;
> lest they see with their eyes,
> and hear with their ears,
> and understand with their hearts,
> and turn and be healed.”

[11]‡Then I said, “How long, O Lord?”
And he said:
“Until cities lie waste
without inhabitant,
and houses without people,
and the land is a desolate waste, [12]and the LORD removes people far away,
and the forsaken places are many in the midst of the land.
[13]†And though a tenth remain in it,
it will be burned [6] again,
like a terebinth or an oak,
whose stump remains
when it is felled.”
The holy seed [7] is its stump.

Isaiah Sent to King Ahaz

ISAIAH 7 ‡In the days of Ahaz the son of Jotham, son of Uzziah, king of Judah, Rezin the king of Syria and Pekah the son of Remaliah the king of Israel came up to Jerusalem to wage war against it, but could not yet mount an attack against it. [2]†When the house of David was told, “Syria is in league with [1] Ephraim,” the heart of Ahaz [2] and the heart of his people shook as the trees of the forest shake before the wind.

[3]†And the LORD said to Isaiah, “Go out to meet Ahaz, you and Shear-jashub [3] your son, at the end of the conduit of the upper pool on the highway to the Washer's Field. [4]†And say to him, ‘Be careful, be quiet, do not fear, and do not let your heart be faint because of these two smoldering stumps of firebrands, at the fierce anger of Rezin and Syria and the son of Remaliah. [5]Because Syria, with Ephraim and the son of Remaliah, has devised evil against you, saying, [6]“‘Let us go up against Judah and terrify it, and let us conquer it [4] for ourselves, and set up the son of Tabeel as king in the midst of it,” [7]thus says the Lord GOD:

“‘It shall not stand,
    and it shall not come to pass.
[8]†For the head of Syria is Damascus,
    and the head of Damascus is Rezin.
And within sixty-five years
    Ephraim will be shattered from being a people.
[9]†And the head of Ephraim is Samaria, and the head of Samaria is the son of Remaliah.
If you [5] are not firm in faith,
    you will not be firm at all.’”

The Sign of Immanuel

[10]Again the LORD spoke to Ahaz, [11]†“Ask a sign of the LORD your [6] God; let it be deep as Sheol or high as heaven.” [12]But Ahaz said, “I will not ask, and I will not put the LORD to the test.” [13]†And he [7] said, “Hear then, O house of David! Is it too little for you to weary men, that you weary my God also? [14]†Therefore the Lord himself will give you a sign. Behold, the virgin shall conceive and bear a son, and shall call his name Immanuel. [8] [15]†He shall eat curds and honey when he knows how to refuse the evil and choose the good. [16]†For before the boy knows how to refuse the evil and choose the good, the land whose two kings you dread will be deserted. [17]†The LORD will bring upon you and upon your people and upon your father's house such days as have not come since the day that Ephraim departed from Judah—the king of Assyria.”

[18]‡†In that day the LORD will whistle for the fly that is at the end of the streams of Egypt, and for the bee that is in the land of Assyria. [19]†And they will all come and settle in the steep ravines, and in the clefts of the rocks, and on all the thornbushes, and on all the pastures. [9]

[20]†In that day the Lord will shave with a razor that is hired beyond the River—with the king of Assyria—the head and the hair of the feet, and it will sweep away the beard also.

[21]‡In that day a man will keep alive a young cow and two sheep, [22]and because of the abundance of milk that they give, he will eat curds, for everyone who is left in the land will eat curds and honey.

[23]‡In that day every place where there used to be a thousand vines, worth a thousand shekels [10] of silver, will become briers and thorns. [24]With bow and arrows a man will come there, for all the land will be briers and thorns. [25]And as for all the hills that used to be hoed with a hoe, you will not come there for fear of briers and thorns, but they will become a place where cattle are let loose and where sheep tread.

The Coming Assyrian Invasion

ISAIAH 8 †Then the LORD said to me, “Take a large tablet and write on it in common characters, [1] ‘Belonging to Maher-shalal-hash-baz.’ [2] [2]†And I will get reliable witnesses, Uriah the priest and Zechariah the son of Jeberechiah, to attest for me.”

[3]†And I went to the prophetess, and she conceived and bore a son. Then the LORD said to me, “Call his name Maher-shalal-hash-baz; [4]†for before the boy knows how to cry ‘My father’ or ‘My mother,’ the wealth of Damascus and the spoil of Samaria will be carried away before the king of Assyria.”

[5]The LORD spoke to me again: [6]†“Because this people has refused the waters of Shiloah that flow gently, and rejoice over Rezin and the son of Remaliah, [7]†therefore, behold, the Lord is bringing up against them the waters of the River, mighty and many, the king of Assyria and all his glory. And it will rise over all its channels and go over all its banks, [8]†and it will sweep on into Judah, it will overflow and pass on, reaching even to the neck, and its outspread wings will fill the breadth of your land, O Immanuel.”

[9]†Be broken, [3] you peoples, and be shattered; [4]
give ear, all you far countries;
strap on your armor and be shattered;
strap on your armor and be shattered.
[10]†Take counsel together, but it will come to nothing;
speak a word, but it will not stand,
for God is with us. [5]

Fear God, Wait for the LORD

[11]†For the LORD spoke thus to me with his strong hand upon me, and warned me not to walk in the way of this people, saying: [12]†“Do not call conspiracy all that this people calls conspiracy, and do not fear what they fear, nor be in dread. [13]But the LORD of hosts, him you shall honor as holy. Let him be your fear, and let him be your dread. [14]†And he will become a sanctuary and a stone of offense and a rock of stumbling to both houses of Israel, a trap and a snare to the inhabitants of Jerusalem. [15]†And many shall stumble on it. They shall fall and be broken; they shall be snared and taken.”

[16]†Bind up the testimony; seal the teaching [6] among my disciples. [17]†I will wait for the LORD, who is hiding his face from the house of Jacob, and I will hope in him. [18]†Behold, I and the children whom the LORD has given me are signs and portents in Israel from the LORD of hosts, who dwells on Mount Zion. [19]†And when they say to you, “Inquire of the mediums and the necromancers who chirp and mutter,” should not a people inquire of their God? Should they inquire of the dead on behalf of the living? [20]†To the teaching and to the testimony! If they will not speak according to this word, it is because they have no dawn. [21]‡They will pass through the land, [7] greatly distressed and hungry. And when they are hungry, they will be enraged and will speak contemptuously against [8] their king and their God, and turn their faces upward. [22]And they will look to the earth, but behold, distress and darkness, the gloom of anguish. And they will be thrust into thick darkness.

For to Us a Child Is Born

ISAIAH 9 † [1] But there will be no gloom for her who was in anguish. In the former time he brought into contempt the land of Zebulun and the land of Naphtali, but in the latter time he has made glorious the way of the sea, the land beyond the Jordan, Galilee of the nations. [2]

[2]† [3] The people who walked in darkness have seen a great light;
those who dwelt in a land of deep darkness,
on them has light shined.
[3]†You have multiplied the nation;
you have increased its joy;
they rejoice before you
as with joy at the harvest,
as they are glad when they divide the spoil.
[4]†For the yoke of his burden,
and the staff for his shoulder,
the rod of his oppressor,
you have broken as on the day of Midian.
[5]†For every boot of the tramping warrior in battle tumult and every garment rolled in blood will be burned as fuel for the fire.
[6]†For to us a child is born,
to us a son is given;
and the government shall be upon [4] his shoulder,
and his name shall be called [5]
Wonderful Counselor, Mighty God,
Everlasting Father, Prince of Peace.
[7]†Of the increase of his government and of peace
there will be no end,
on the throne of David and over his kingdom,
to establish it and to uphold it with justice and with righteousness
from this time forth and forevermore.
The zeal of the LORD of hosts will do this.

Judgment on Arrogance and Oppression

[8]†The Lord has sent a word against Jacob,
and it will fall on Israel;
[9]†and all the people will know,
Ephraim and the inhabitants of Samaria,
who say in pride and in arrogance of heart:
[10]“The bricks have fallen,
but we will build with dressed stones;
the sycamores have been cut down,
but we will put cedars in their place.”
[11]†But the LORD raises the adversaries of Rezin against him,
and stirs up his enemies.
[12]†The Syrians on the east and the Philistines on the west devour Israel with open mouth.
For all this his anger has not turned away,
and his hand is stretched out still.
[13]The people did not turn to him who struck them,
nor inquire of the LORD of hosts.
[14]So the LORD cut off from Israel head and tail, palm branch and reed in one day—[15]the elder and honored man is the head,
and the prophet who teaches lies is the tail;
[16]†for those who guide this people have been leading them astray, and those who are guided by them are swallowed up.
[17]Therefore the Lord does not rejoice over their young men,
and has no compassion on their fatherless and widows;
for everyone is godless and an evildoer,
and every mouth speaks folly. [6]
For all this his anger has not turned away,
and his hand is stretched out still.
[18]For wickedness burns like a fire;
it consumes briers and thorns;
it kindles the thickets of the forest,
and they roll upward in a column of smoke.
[19]†Through the wrath of the LORD of hosts

the land is scorched,
and the people are like fuel for the fire;
no one spares another.
[20]They slice meat on the right, but are still hungry,
and they devour on the left, but are not satisfied;
each devours the flesh of his own arm, [21][†]Manasseh devours Ephraim, and Ephraim devours Manasseh;
together they are against Judah.
For all this his anger has not turned away,
and his hand is stretched out still.

ISAIAH 10 ‡Woe to those who decree iniquitous decrees,
and the writers who keep writing oppression,
[2]‡to turn aside the needy from justice and to rob the poor of my people of their right, that widows may be their spoil,
and that they may make the fatherless their prey!
[3]‡What will you do on the day of punishment,
in the ruin that will come from afar?
To whom will you flee for help,
and where will you leave your wealth?
[4]Nothing remains but to crouch among the prisoners or fall among the slain.
For all this his anger has not turned away,
and his hand is stretched out still.

Judgment on Arrogant Assyria

[5]‡Ah, Assyria, the rod of my anger;
the staff in their hands is my fury!
[6]‡Against a godless nation I send him,
and against the people of my wrath I command him,
to take spoil and seize plunder,
and to tread them down like the mire of the streets.
[7]‡But he does not so intend,
and his heart does not so think;
but it is in his heart to destroy,
and to cut off nations not a few;
[8]for he says:
“Are not my commanders all kings?
[9]‡Is not Calno like Carchemish?
Is not Hamath like Arpad?
Is not Samaria like Damascus?
[10]‡As my hand has reached to the kingdoms of the idols, whose carved images were greater than those of Jerusalem and Samaria, [11]shall I not do to Jerusalem and her idols

as I have done to Samaria and her images?”

[12]‡When the Lord has finished all his work on Mount Zion and on Jerusalem, he [1] will punish the speech of the arrogant heart of the king of Assyria and the boastful look in his eyes. [13]‡For he says:

“By the strength of my hand I have done it,
and by my wisdom, for I have understanding;
I remove the boundaries of peoples,
and plunder their treasures;
like a bull I bring down those who sit on thrones.
[14]My hand has found like a nest
the wealth of the peoples;
and as one gathers eggs that have been forsaken,
so I have gathered all the earth;
and there was none that moved a wing or opened the mouth or chirped.”
[15]‡Shall the axe boast over him who hews with it,
or the saw magnify itself against him who wields it?
As if a rod should wield him who lifts it,
or as if a staff should lift him who is not wood!
[16]‡Therefore the Lord GOD of hosts will send wasting sickness among his stout warriors, and under his glory a burning will be kindled,
like the burning of fire.
[17]The light of Israel will become a fire,
and his Holy One a flame,
and it will burn and devour
his thorns and briers in one day.
[18]The glory of his forest and of his fruitful land
the LORD will destroy, both soul and body,
and it will be as when a sick man wastes away.
[19]The remnant of the trees of his forest will be so few that a child can write them down.

The Remnant of Israel Will Return

[20]†In that day the remnant of Israel and the survivors of the house of Jacob will no more lean on him who struck them, but will lean on the LORD, the Holy One of Israel, in truth. [21]A remnant will return, the remnant of Jacob, to the mighty God. [22]†For though your people Israel be as the sand of the sea, only a remnant of them will return. Destruction is decreed, overflowing with righteousness. [23]†For the Lord GOD of hosts will make a full end, as decreed, in the midst of all the earth.

[24]Therefore thus says the Lord GOD of hosts: “O my people, who dwell in Zion, be not afraid of the Assyrians when they strike with the rod and lift up their staff against you as the Egyptians did. [25]†For in a very little while my fury will come to an end, and my anger will be directed to their destruction. [26]†And the LORD of hosts will wield against them a whip, as when he struck Midian at the rock of Oreb. And his staff will be over the sea, and he will lift it as he did in Egypt. [27]†And in that day his burden will depart from your shoulder, and his yoke from your neck; and the yoke will be broken because of the fat.” [2]

[28]†He has come to Aiath;
he has passed through Migron;
at Michmash he stores his baggage;
[29]they have crossed over the pass;
at Geba they lodge for the night;
Ramah trembles;
Gibeah of Saul has fled.
[30]Cry aloud, O daughter of Gallim!
Give attention, O Laishah!
O poor Anathoth!
[31]Madmenah is in flight;
the inhabitants of Gebim flee for safety.
[32]This very day he will halt at Nob;
he will shake his fist
at the mount of the daughter of Zion,
the hill of Jerusalem.
[33]†Behold, the Lord GOD of hosts will lop the boughs with terrifying power;
the great in height will be hewn down,

and the lofty will be brought low.
[34][†]He will cut down the thickets of the forest with an axe, and Lebanon will fall by the Majestic One.

The Righteous Reign of the Branch

ISAIAH 11 †There shall come forth a shoot from the stump of Jesse,
and a branch from his roots shall bear fruit.
[2]†And the Spirit of the LORD shall rest upon him,
the Spirit of wisdom and understanding,
the Spirit of counsel and might,
the Spirit of knowledge and the fear of the LORD.
[3]†And his delight shall be in the fear of the LORD.
He shall not judge by what his eyes see,
or decide disputes by what his ears hear, [4]†but with righteousness he shall judge the poor,
and decide with equity for the meek of the earth;
and he shall strike the earth with the rod of his mouth,
and with the breath of his lips he shall kill the wicked.
[5]†Righteousness shall be the belt of his waist,
and faithfulness the belt of his loins.
[6]†The wolf shall dwell with the lamb,
and the leopard shall lie down with the young goat,
and the calf and the lion and the fattened calf together;
and a little child shall lead them.
[7]The cow and the bear shall graze;
their young shall lie down together;
and the lion shall eat straw like the ox.
[8]The nursing child shall play over the hole of the cobra, and the weaned child shall put his hand on the adder's den.
[9]†They shall not hurt or destroy
in all my holy mountain;
for the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the LORD
as the waters cover the sea.

[10]†In that day the root of Jesse, who shall stand as a signal for the peoples—of him shall the nations inquire, and his resting place shall be glorious.

[11]†In that day the Lord will extend his hand yet a second time to recover the remnant that remains of his people, from Assyria, from Egypt, from Pathros, from Cush, [1] from Elam, from Shinar, from Hamath, and from the coastlands of the sea.

[12]†He will raise a signal for the nations and will assemble the banished of Israel, and gather the dispersed of Judah
from the four corners of the earth.
[13]†The jealousy of Ephraim shall depart,
and those who harass Judah shall be cut off;
Ephraim shall not be jealous of Judah,
and Judah shall not harass Ephraim.
[14]†But they shall swoop down on the shoulder of the Philistines in the west, and together they shall plunder the people of the east.
They shall put out their hand against Edom and Moab,
and the Ammonites shall obey them.
[15]†And the LORD will utterly destroy [2]
the tongue of the Sea of Egypt, and will wave his hand over the River with his scorching breath, [3]
and strike it into seven channels,
and he will lead people across in sandals.
[16]†And there will be a highway from Assyria for the remnant that remains of his people, as there was for Israel
when they came up from the land of Egypt.

The LORD Is My Strength and My Song

ISAIAH 12 ‡†You [1] will say in that day:
“I will give thanks to you, O LORD,
    for though you were angry with me,
your anger turned away,
    that you might comfort me.
[2]†“Behold, God is my salvation;
    I will trust, and will not be afraid;
for the LORD GOD [2] is my strength and my song,
    and he has become my salvation.”

[3]†With joy you [3] will draw water from the wells of salvation. [4]‡And you will say in that day:

“Give thanks to the LORD,
    call upon his name,
make known his deeds among the peoples,
    proclaim that his name is exalted.
[5]“Sing praises to the LORD, for he has done gloriously;
    let this be made known [4] in all the earth.
[6]†Shout, and sing for joy, O inhabitant of Zion, for great in your [5] midst is the Holy One of Israel.”

The Judgment of Babylon

ISAIAH 13 ‡‡‡The oracle concerning Babylon which Isaiah the son of Amoz saw.

[2]†On a bare hill raise a signal;
    cry aloud to them;
wave the hand for them to enter
    the gates of the nobles.
[3]†I myself have commanded my consecrated ones,
    and have summoned my mighty men to execute my anger,
    my proudly exulting ones. [1] [4]†The sound of a tumult is on the mountains
    as of a great multitude!
The sound of an uproar of kingdoms,
    of nations gathering together!
The LORD of hosts is mustering
    a host for battle.
[5]†They come from a distant land,
    from the end of the heavens,
the LORD and the weapons of his indignation,
    to destroy the whole land. [2] [6]†Wail, for the day of the LORD is near;
    as destruction from the Almighty [3] it will come!
[7]†Therefore all hands will be feeble,
    and every human heart will melt.
[8]†They will be dismayed:
    pangs and agony will seize them;
    they will be in anguish like a woman in labor.
They will look aghast at one another;
    their faces will be aflame.
[9]†Behold, the day of the LORD comes,
    cruel, with wrath and fierce anger,
to make the land a desolation
    and to destroy its sinners from it.
[10]†For the stars of the heavens and their constellations will not give their light;

the sun will be dark at its rising,
and the moon will not shed its light.
[11]†I will punish the world for its evil,
and the wicked for their iniquity;
I will put an end to the pomp of the arrogant,
and lay low the pompous pride of the ruthless.
[12]†I will make people more rare than fine gold,
and mankind than the gold of Ophir.
[13]†Therefore I will make the heavens tremble,
and the earth will be shaken out of its place,
at the wrath of the LORD of hosts
in the day of his fierce anger.
[14]†And like a hunted gazelle,
or like sheep with none to gather them,
each will turn to his own people,
and each will flee to his own land.
[15]‡Whoever is found will be thrust through,
and whoever is caught will fall by the sword.
[16]Their infants will be dashed in pieces
before their eyes;
their houses will be plundered
and their wives ravished.
[17]†Behold, I am stirring up the Medes against them, who have no regard for silver and do not delight in gold.
[18]Their bows will slaughter [4] the young men;
they will have no mercy on the fruit of the womb;
their eyes will not pity children.
[19]‡†And Babylon, the glory of kingdoms,
the splendor and pomp of the Chaldeans, will be like Sodom and Gomorrah
when God overthrew them.
[20]†It will never be inhabited or lived in for all generations;
no Arab will pitch his tent there;
no shepherds will make their flocks lie down there.

[21]‡But wild animals will lie down there,
and their houses will be full of howling creatures;
there ostriches [5] will dwell,
and there wild goats will dance.
[22]†Hyenas [6] will cry in its towers,
and jackals in the pleasant palaces;
its time is close at hand
and its days will not be prolonged.

The Restoration of Jacob

ISAIAH 14 ‡†For the LORD will have compassion on Jacob and will again choose Israel, and will set them in their own land, and sojourners will join them and will attach themselves to the house of Jacob. [2]†And the peoples will take them and bring them to their place, and the house of Israel will possess them in the LORD's land as male and female slaves. They will take captive those who were their captors, and rule over those who oppressed them.

Israel's Remnant Taunts Babylon

[3]†When the LORD has given you rest from your pain and turmoil and the hard service with which you were made to serve, [4]†you will take up this taunt against the king of Babylon:

> “How the oppressor has ceased,
> the insolent fury [1] ceased!
> [5]The LORD has broken the staff of the wicked,
> the scepter of rulers,
> [6]†that struck the peoples in wrath
> with unceasing blows,
> that ruled the nations in anger
> with unrelenting persecution.
> [7]†The whole earth is at rest and quiet;
> they break forth into singing.
> [8]The cypresses rejoice at you,
> the cedars of Lebanon, saying, > ‘Since you were laid low,
> no woodcutter comes up against us.’
> [9]‡Sheol beneath is stirred up > to meet you when you come;
> it rouses the shades to greet you,
> all who were leaders of the earth;
> it raises from their thrones

all who were kings of the nations.
[10]†All of them will answer
and say to you:
‘You too have become as weak as we!
You have become like us!’
[11]†Your pomp is brought down to Sheol,
the sound of your harps;
maggots are laid as a bed beneath you,
and worms are your covers.
[12]‡†“How you are fallen from heaven,
O Day Star, son of Dawn!
How you are cut down to the ground,
you who laid the nations low!
[13]‡†You said in your heart,
‘I will ascend to heaven;
above the stars of God
I will set my throne on high;
I will sit on the mount of assembly in the far reaches of the north; [2] [14]I will ascend above the heights of the clouds;
I will make myself like the Most High.’
[15]†But you are brought down to Sheol,
to the far reaches of the pit.
[16]‡†Those who see you will stare at you
and ponder over you:
‘Is this the man who made the earth tremble,
who shook kingdoms,
[17]who made the world like a desert
and overthrew its cities,
who did not let his prisoners go home?’
[18]†All the kings of the nations lie in glory,
each in his own tomb; [3] [19]†but you are cast out, away from your grave,
like a loathed branch,
clothed with the slain, those pierced by the sword,
who go down to the stones of the pit,
like a dead body trampled underfoot.

[20]†You will not be joined with them in burial,
because you have destroyed your land,
you have slain your people.
“May the offspring of evildoers nevermore be named!
[21]Prepare slaughter for his sons
because of the guilt of their fathers, lest they rise and possess the earth,
and fill the face of the world with cities.”

[22]†“I will rise up against them,” declares the LORD of hosts, “and will cut off from Babylon name and remnant, descendants and posterity,” declares the LORD. [23]“And I will make it a possession of the hedgehog, [4] and pools of water, and I will sweep it with the broom of destruction,” declares the LORD of hosts.

An Oracle Concerning Assyria

[24]The LORD of hosts has sworn:
“As I have planned,
so shall it be,
and as I have purposed,
so shall it stand,
[25]that I will break the Assyrian in my land,
and on my mountains trample him underfoot;
and his yoke shall depart from them,
and his burden from their shoulder.”
[26]†This is the purpose that is purposed concerning the whole earth, and this is the hand that is stretched out over all the nations.
[27]For the LORD of hosts has purposed,
and who will annul it?
His hand is stretched out,
and who will turn it back?

An Oracle Concerning Philistia

[28][†]In the year that King Ahaz died came this oracle:

[29][†]Rejoice not, O Philistia, all of you,
that the rod that struck you is broken,
for from the serpent's root will come forth an adder,
and its fruit will be a flying fiery serpent.
[30][‡]And the firstborn of the poor will graze,
and the needy lie down in safety;
but I will kill your root with famine,
and your remnant it will slay.
[31]Wail, O gate; cry out, O city;
melt in fear, O Philistia, all of you!
For smoke comes out of the north,
and there is no straggler in his ranks.
[32][†]What will one answer the messengers of the nation?
“The LORD has founded Zion, and in her the afflicted of his people find refuge.”

An Oracle Concerning Moab

ISAIAH 15 ‡†An oracle concerning Moab.

Because Ar of Moab is laid waste in a night,
    Moab is undone;
because Kir of Moab is laid waste in a night,
    Moab is undone.
[2]†He has gone up to the temple, [1] and to Dibon, to the high places [2] to weep;
over Nebo and over Medeba Moab wails.
On every head is baldness;
    every beard is shorn;
[3]†in the streets they wear sackcloth;
    on the housetops and in the squares
    everyone wails and melts in tears.
[4]†Heshbon and Elealeh cry out;
    their voice is heard as far as Jahaz;
therefore the armed men of Moab cry aloud;
    his soul trembles.
[5]†My heart cries out for Moab;
    her fugitives flee to Zoar,
    to Eglath-shelishiyah.
For at the ascent of Luhith
    they go up weeping;
on the road to Horonaim
    they raise a cry of destruction;
[6]†the waters of Nimrim
    are a desolation;
the grass is withered, the vegetation fails,
    the greenery is no more.
[7]†Therefore the abundance they have gained and what they have laid up they carry away
    over the Brook of the Willows.

[8]†For a cry has gone around the land of Moab;
her wailing reaches to Eglaim;
her wailing reaches to Beer-elim.
[9]†For the waters of Dibon [3] are full of blood;
for I will bring upon Dibon even more,
a lion for those of Moab who escape,
for the remnant of the land.

ISAIAH 16 †Send the lamb to the ruler of the land, from Sela, by way of the desert,
to the mount of the daughter of Zion.
[2]†Like fleeing birds,
like a scattered nest,
so are the daughters of Moab
at the fords of the Arnon.
[3]†“Give counsel;
grant justice;
make your shade like night
at the height of noon;
shelter the outcasts;
do not reveal the fugitive;
[4]†let the outcasts of Moab sojourn among you;
be a shelter to them [1]
from the destroyer.
When the oppressor is no more,
and destruction has ceased,
and he who tramples underfoot has vanished from the land, [5]†then a throne will be established in steadfast love,
and on it will sit in faithfulness
in the tent of David
one who judges and seeks justice and is swift to do righteousness.”
[6]†We have heard of the pride of Moab—
how proud he is!—
of his arrogance, his pride, and his insolence;
in his idle boasting he is not right.
[7]†Therefore let Moab wail for Moab,
let everyone wail.
Mourn, utterly stricken,
for the raisin cakes of Kir-hareseth.
[8]†For the fields of Heshbon languish,
and the vine of Sibmah;
the lords of the nations
have struck down its branches, which reached to Jazer

    and strayed to the desert;
its shoots spread abroad
    and passed over the sea.
[9]†Therefore I weep with the weeping of Jazer
    for the vine of Sibmah;
I drench you with my tears,
    O Heshbon and Elealeh;
for over your summer fruit and your harvest
    the shout has ceased.
[10]†And joy and gladness are taken away from the fruitful field,
and in the vineyards no songs are sung,
    no cheers are raised;
no treader treads out wine in the presses;
    I have put an end to the shouting.
[11]†Therefore my inner parts moan like a lyre for Moab, and my inmost self for Kir-hareseth.

[12]†And when Moab presents himself, when he wearies himself on the high place, when he comes to his sanctuary to pray, he will not prevail.

[13]This is the word that the LORD spoke concerning Moab in the past. [14]†But now the LORD has spoken, saying, “In three years, like the years of a hired worker, the glory of Moab will be brought into contempt, in spite of all his great multitude, and those who remain will be very few and feeble.”

An Oracle Concerning Damascus

ISAIAH 17 †An oracle concerning Damascus.

Behold, Damascus will cease to be a city
and will become a heap of ruins.
[2]†The cities of Aroer are deserted;
they will be for flocks,
which will lie down, and none will make them afraid.
[3]†The fortress will disappear from Ephraim,
and the kingdom from Damascus;
and the remnant of Syria will be like the glory of the children of Israel,
declares the LORD of hosts.
[4]†And in that day the glory of Jacob will be brought low,
and the fat of his flesh will grow lean.
[5]†And it shall be as when the reaper gathers standing grain and his arm harvests the ears, and as when one gleans the ears of grain
in the Valley of Rephaim.
[6]†Gleanings will be left in it,
as when an olive tree is beaten—
two or three berries
in the top of the highest bough, four or five
on the branches of a fruit tree, declares the LORD God of Israel.

[7]†In that day man will look to his Maker, and his eyes will look on the Holy One of Israel. [8]†He will not look to the altars, the work of his hands, and he will not look on what his own fingers have made, either the Asherim or the altars of incense.

[9]In that day their strong cities will be like the deserted places of the wooded heights and the hilltops, which they deserted because of the children of Israel, and there will be desolation.

[10]†For you have forgotten the God of your salvation and have not remembered the Rock of your refuge;
therefore, though you plant pleasant plants
and sow the vine-branch of a stranger, [11]†though you make them grow [1] on the day that you plant them,
and make them blossom in the morning that you sow,
yet the harvest will flee away [2]
in a day of grief and incurable pain.
[12]†Ah, the thunder of many peoples;
they thunder like the thundering of the sea!
Ah, the roar of nations;
they roar like the roaring of mighty waters!
[13]†The nations roar like the roaring of many waters,
but he will rebuke them, and they will flee far away,
chased like chaff on the mountains before the wind and whirling dust before the storm.
[14]†At evening time, behold, terror!
Before morning, they are no more!
This is the portion of those who loot us,
and the lot of those who plunder us.

An Oracle Concerning Cush

ISAIAH 18 †Ah, land of whirring wings that is beyond the rivers of Cush, [1] [2]†which sends ambassadors by the sea,
in vessels of papyrus on the waters!
Go, you swift messengers,
to a nation, tall and smooth,
to a people feared near and far,
a nation mighty and conquering,
whose land the rivers divide.
[3]†All you inhabitants of the world,
you who dwell on the earth,
when a signal is raised on the mountains, look!
When a trumpet is blown, hear!
[4]†For thus the LORD said to me:
"I will quietly look from my dwelling like clear heat in sunshine,
like a cloud of dew in the heat of harvest."
[5]†For before the harvest, when the blossom is over,
and the flower becomes a ripening grape,
he cuts off the shoots with pruning hooks,
and the spreading branches he lops off and clears away.
[6]†They shall all of them be left to the birds of prey of the mountains and to the beasts of the earth.
And the birds of prey will summer on them,
and all the beasts of the earth will winter on them.

[7]†At that time tribute will be brought to the LORD of hosts from a people tall and smooth,

from a people feared near and far,
a nation mighty and conquering,
whose land the rivers divide,

to Mount Zion, the place of the name of the LORD of hosts.

An Oracle Concerning Egypt

ISAIAH 19 ‡†An oracle concerning Egypt.

Behold, the LORD is riding on a swift cloud and comes to Egypt;
and the idols of Egypt will tremble at his presence,
and the heart of the Egyptians will melt within them.
[2]†And I will stir up Egyptians against Egyptians, and they will fight, each against another and each against his neighbor,
city against city, kingdom against kingdom;
[3]†and the spirit of the Egyptians within them will be emptied out,
and I will confound [1] their counsel;
and they will inquire of the idols and the sorcerers,
and the mediums and the necromancers;
[4]†and I will give over the Egyptians into the hand of a hard master,
and a fierce king will rule over them,
declares the Lord GOD of hosts.
[5]‡†And the waters of the sea will be dried up,
and the river will be dry and parched, [6]and its canals will become foul,
and the branches of Egypt's Nile will diminish and dry up,
reeds and rushes will rot away.
[7]†There will be bare places by the Nile,
on the brink of the Nile,
and all that is sown by the Nile will be parched,
will be driven away, and will be no more.
[8]†The fishermen will mourn and lament,
all who cast a hook in the Nile;
and they will languish
who spread nets on the water.
[9]†The workers in combed flax will be in despair,
and the weavers of white cotton.
[10]†Those who are the pillars of the land will be crushed,

and all who work for pay will be grieved.
[11]‡‡†The princes of Zoan are utterly foolish;
the wisest counselors of Pharaoh give stupid counsel.
How can you say to Pharaoh,
“I am a son of the wise,
a son of ancient kings”?
[12]Where then are your wise men?
Let them tell you that they might know what the LORD of hosts has purposed against Egypt.
[13]†The princes of Zoan have become fools,
and the princes of Memphis are deluded;
those who are the cornerstones of her tribes
have made Egypt stagger.
[14]‡The LORD has mingled within her a spirit of confusion, and they will make Egypt stagger in all its deeds,
as a drunken man staggers in his vomit.
[15]And there will be nothing for Egypt that head or tail, palm branch or reed, may do.

Egypt, Assyria, Israel Blessed

[16]‡†In that day the Egyptians will be like women, and tremble with fear before the hand that the LORD of hosts shakes over them. [17]†And the land of Judah will become a terror to the Egyptians. Everyone to whom it is mentioned will fear because of the purpose that the LORD of hosts has purposed against them.

[18]†In that day there will be five cities in the land of Egypt that speak the language of Canaan and swear allegiance to the LORD of hosts. One of these will be called the City of Destruction. [2]

[19]†In that day there will be an altar to the LORD in the midst of the land of Egypt, and a pillar to the LORD at its border. [20]†It will be a sign and a witness to the LORD of hosts in the land of Egypt. When they cry to the LORD because of oppressors, he will send them a savior and defender, and deliver them. [21]†And the LORD will make himself known to the Egyptians, and the Egyptians will know the LORD in that day and worship with sacrifice and offering, and they will make vows to the LORD and perform them. [22]†And the LORD will strike Egypt, striking and healing, and they will return to the LORD, and he will listen to their pleas for mercy and heal them.

[23]†In that day there will be a highway from Egypt to Assyria, and Assyria will come into Egypt, and Egypt into Assyria, and the Egyptians will worship with the Assyrians.

[24]†In that day Israel will be the third with Egypt and Assyria, a blessing in the midst of the earth, [25]†whom the LORD of hosts has blessed, saying, “Blessed be Egypt my people, and Assyria the work of my hands, and Israel my inheritance.”

A Sign Against Egypt and Cush

ISAIAH 20 †In the year that the commander in chief, who was sent by Sargon the king of Assyria, came to Ashdod and fought against it and captured it— [2]†at that time the LORD spoke by Isaiah the son of Amoz, saying, “Go, and loose the sackcloth from your waist and take off your sandals from your feet,” and he did so, walking naked and barefoot.

[3]†Then the LORD said, “As my servant Isaiah has walked naked and barefoot for three years as a sign and a portent against Egypt and Cush, [1] [4]†so shall the king of Assyria lead away the Egyptian captives and the Cushite exiles, both the young and the old, naked and barefoot, with buttocks uncovered, the nakedness of Egypt. [5]Then they shall be dismayed and ashamed because of Cush their hope and of Egypt their boast. [6]†And the inhabitants of this coastland will say in that day, ‘Behold, this is what has happened to those in whom we hoped and to whom we fled for help to be delivered from the king of Assyria! And we, how shall we escape?’”

Fallen, Fallen Is Babylon

ISAIAH 21 ‡The oracle concerning the wilderness of the sea.

As whirlwinds in the Negeb sweep on,
    it comes from the wilderness,
    from a terrible land.
[2]‡A stern vision is told to me;
    the traitor betrays,
    and the destroyer destroys.
Go up, O Elam;
    lay siege, O Media;
all the sighing she has caused
    I bring to an end.
[3]‡Therefore my loins are filled with anguish;
    pangs have seized me,
    like the pangs of a woman in labor;
I am bowed down so that I cannot hear;
    I am dismayed so that I cannot see.
[4]My heart staggers; horror has appalled me;
    the twilight I longed for
    has been turned for me into trembling.
[5]‡They prepare the table,
    they spread the rugs, [1]
    they eat, they drink.
Arise, O princes;
    oil the shield!
[6]‡For thus the Lord said to me:
“Go, set a watchman;
    let him announce what he sees.
[7]‡When he sees riders, horsemen in pairs, riders on donkeys, riders on camels,
let him listen diligently,
    very diligently.”
[8]‡Then he who saw cried out: [2]
“Upon a watchtower I stand, O Lord, continually by day,

and at my post I am stationed whole nights.
[9]†And behold, here come riders, horsemen in pairs!”
And he answered,
“Fallen, fallen is Babylon;
and all the carved images of her gods
he has shattered to the ground.”
[10]†O my threshed and winnowed one,
what I have heard from the LORD of hosts,
the God of Israel, I announce to you.

[11]†The oracle concerning Dumah.

One is calling to me from Seir,
“Watchman, what time of the night?
Watchman, what time of the night?”
[12]†The watchman says:
“Morning comes, and also the night.
If you will inquire, inquire;
come back again.”

[13]†The oracle concerning Arabia.

In the thickets in Arabia you will lodge,
O caravans of Dedanites.
[14]†To the thirsty bring water;
meet the fugitive with bread,
O inhabitants of the land of Tema.
[15]†For they have fled from the swords,
from the drawn sword,
from the bent bow,
and from the press of battle.

[16]†For thus the Lord said to me, “Within a year, according to the years of a hired worker, all the glory of Kedar will come to an end. [17]And the remainder of the archers of the mighty men of the sons of Kedar will be few, for the LORD, the God of Israel, has spoken.”

An Oracle Concerning Jerusalem

ISAIAH 22 †The oracle concerning the valley of vision.

What do you mean that you have gone up,
all of you, to the housetops,
[2]†you who are full of shoutings, tumultuous city, exultant town?
Your slain are not slain with the sword or dead in battle.
[3]†All your leaders have fled together;
without the bow they were captured.
All of you who were found were captured,
though they had fled far away.
[4]†Therefore I said:
“Look away from me;
let me weep bitter tears;
do not labor to comfort me concerning the destruction of the daughter of my people.”
[5]†For the Lord GOD of hosts has a day of tumult and trampling and confusion in the valley of vision,
a battering down of walls
and a shouting to the mountains.
[6]†And Elam bore the quiver with chariots and horsemen, and Kir uncovered the shield.
[7]†Your choicest valleys were full of chariots,
and the horsemen took their stand at the gates.
[8]†He has taken away the covering of Judah.

In that day you looked to the weapons of the House of the Forest, [9]†and you saw that the breaches of the city of David were many. You collected the waters of the lower pool, [10]†and you counted the houses of Jerusalem, and you broke down the houses to fortify the wall. [11]†You made a reservoir between the two walls for the water of the old pool. But you did not look to him who did it, or see him who planned it long ago.

[12]†In that day the Lord GOD of hosts called for weeping and mourning,
for baldness and wearing sackcloth;
[13]†and behold, joy and gladness, killing oxen and slaughtering sheep,
eating flesh and drinking wine.
“Let us eat and drink,
for tomorrow we die.”
[14]†The LORD of hosts has revealed himself in my ears:
“Surely this iniquity will not be atoned for you until you die,” says the Lord GOD of hosts.

[15]†Thus says the Lord GOD of hosts, “Come, go to this steward, to Shebna, who is over the household, and say to him: [16]†What have you to do here, and whom have you here, that you have cut out here a tomb for yourself, you who cut out a tomb on the height and carve a dwelling for yourself in the rock? [17]†Behold, the LORD will hurl you away violently, O you strong man. He will seize firm hold on you [18]†and whirl you around and around, and throw you like a ball into a wide land. There you shall die, and there shall be your glorious chariots, you shame of your master's house. [19]†I will thrust you from your office, and you will be pulled down from your station. [20]†In that day I will call my servant Eliakim the son of Hilkiah, [21]†and I will clothe him with your robe, and will bind your sash on him, and will commit your authority to his hand. And he shall be a father to the inhabitants of Jerusalem and to the house of Judah. [22]†And I will place on his shoulder the key of the house of David. He shall open, and none shall shut; and he shall shut, and none shall open. [23]†And I will fasten him like a peg in a secure place, and he will become a throne of honor to his father's house. [24]†And they will hang on him the whole honor of his father's house, the offspring and issue, every small vessel, from the cups to all the flagons. [25]†In that day, declares the LORD of hosts, the peg that was fastened in a secure place will give way, and it will be cut down and fall, and the load that was on it will be cut off, for the LORD has spoken.”

An Oracle Concerning Tyre and Sidon

ISAIAH 23 †The oracle concerning Tyre.

Wail, O ships of Tarshish,
for Tyre is laid waste, without house or harbor!
From the land of Cyprus [1]
it is revealed to them.
[2]†Be still, O inhabitants of the coast;
the merchants of Sidon, who cross the sea, have filled you.
[3]†And on many waters
your revenue was the grain of Shihor,
the harvest of the Nile;
you were the merchant of the nations.
[4]†Be ashamed, O Sidon, for the sea has spoken,
the stronghold of the sea, saying:
“I have neither labored nor given birth,
I have neither reared young men
nor brought up young women.”
[5]When the report comes to Egypt, they will be in anguish [2] over the report about Tyre.
[6]‡Cross over to Tarshish;
wail, O inhabitants of the coast!
[7]†Is this your exultant city whose origin is from days of old, whose feet carried her
to settle far away?
[8]†Who has purposed this against Tyre, the bestower of crowns, whose merchants were princes,
whose traders were the honored of the earth?
[9]†The Lord of hosts has purposed it,
to defile the pompous pride of all glory, [3]
to dishonor all the honored of the earth.
[10]†Cross over your land like the Nile,
O daughter of Tarshish;

there is no restraint anymore.
[11]†He has stretched out his hand over the sea;
he has shaken the kingdoms;
the LORD has given command concerning Canaan to destroy its strongholds.
[12]†And he said:
“You will no more exult,
O oppressed virgin daughter of Sidon;
arise, cross over to Cyprus,
even there you will have no rest.”

[13]†Behold the land of the Chaldeans! This is the people that was not; [4] Assyria destined it for wild beasts. They erected their siege towers, they stripped her palaces bare, they made her a ruin.

[14]Wail, O ships of Tarshish,
for your stronghold is laid waste.

[15]‡†In that day Tyre will be forgotten for seventy years, like the days [5] of one king. At the end of seventy years, it will happen to Tyre as in the song of the prostitute:

[16]“Take a harp;
go about the city,
O forgotten prostitute!
Make sweet melody;
sing many songs,
that you may be remembered.”

[17]†At the end of seventy years, the LORD will visit Tyre, and she will return to her wages and will prostitute herself with all the kingdoms of the world on the face of the earth. [18]†Her merchandise and her wages will be holy to the LORD. It will not be stored or hoarded, but her merchandise will supply abundant food and fine clothing for those who dwell before the LORD.

Judgment on the Whole Earth

ISAIAH 24 ‡†Behold, the LORD will empty the earth [1] and make it desolate, and he will twist its surface and scatter its inhabitants.
[2]†And it shall be, as with the people, so with the priest;
as with the slave, so with his master;
as with the maid, so with her mistress;
as with the buyer, so with the seller;
as with the lender, so with the borrower;
as with the creditor, so with the debtor.
[3]†The earth shall be utterly empty and utterly plundered;
for the LORD has spoken this word.
[4]†The earth mourns and withers;
the world languishes and withers;
the highest people of the earth languish.
[5]†The earth lies defiled
under its inhabitants;
for they have transgressed the laws,
violated the statutes,
broken the everlasting covenant.
[6]†Therefore a curse devours the earth,
and its inhabitants suffer for their guilt;
therefore the inhabitants of the earth are scorched,
and few men are left.
[7]‡The wine mourns,
the vine languishes,
all the merry-hearted sigh.
[8]The mirth of the tambourines is stilled,
the noise of the jubilant has ceased,
the mirth of the lyre is stilled.
[9]No more do they drink wine with singing;
strong drink is bitter to those who drink it.
[10]†The wasted city is broken down;
every house is shut up so that none can enter.

[11]There is an outcry in the streets for lack of wine;
all joy has grown dark;
the gladness of the earth is banished.
[12]Desolation is left in the city;
the gates are battered into ruins.
[13]†For thus it shall be in the midst of the earth
among the nations,
as when an olive tree is beaten,
as at the gleaning when the grape harvest is done.
[14]†They lift up their voices, they sing for joy;
over the majesty of the LORD they shout from the west. [2] [15]†Therefore in the east [3] give glory to the LORD;
in the coastlands of the sea, give glory to the name of the LORD,
the God of Israel.
[16]†From the ends of the earth we hear songs of praise, of glory to the Righteous One.
But I say, “I waste away,
I waste away. Woe is me!
For the traitors have betrayed,
with betrayal the traitors have betrayed.”
[17]‡Terror and the pit and the snare [4]
are upon you, O inhabitant of the earth!
[18]†He who flees at the sound of the terror
shall fall into the pit,
and he who climbs out of the pit
shall be caught in the snare.
For the windows of heaven are opened,
and the foundations of the earth tremble.
[19]The earth is utterly broken,
the earth is split apart,
the earth is violently shaken.
[20]†The earth staggers like a drunken man;
it sways like a hut;
its transgression lies heavy upon it,
and it falls, and will not rise again.
[21]†On that day the LORD will punish the host of heaven, in heaven,

and the kings of the earth, on the earth.
[22]†They will be gathered together
as prisoners in a pit;
they will be shut up in a prison,
and after many days they will be punished.
[23]†Then the moon will be confounded and the sun ashamed, for the LORD of hosts reigns on Mount Zion and in Jerusalem, and his glory will be before his elders.

God Will Swallow Up Death Forever

ISAIAH 25 †O LORD, you are my God;
I will exalt you; I will praise your name,
for you have done wonderful things,
plans formed of old, faithful and sure.
[2]†For you have made the city a heap,
the fortified city a ruin;
the foreigners' palace is a city no more;
it will never be rebuilt.
[3]†Therefore strong peoples will glorify you;
cities of ruthless nations will fear you.
[4]††For you have been a stronghold to the poor,
a stronghold to the needy in his distress,
a shelter from the storm and a shade from the heat;
for the breath of the ruthless is like a storm against a wall, [5]like heat in a dry place.
You subdue the noise of the foreigners;
as heat by the shade of a cloud,
so the song of the ruthless is put down.
[6]†On this mountain the LORD of hosts will make for all peoples a feast of rich food, a feast of well-aged wine, of rich food full of marrow, of aged wine well refined.
[7]†And he will swallow up on this mountain
the covering that is cast over all peoples,
the veil that is spread over all nations.
[8]†He will swallow up death forever;
and the Lord GOD will wipe away tears from all faces, and the reproach of his people he will take away from all the earth,
for the LORD has spoken.
[9]†It will be said on that day,
“Behold, this is our God; we have waited for him, that he might save us.
This is the LORD; we have waited for him;

let us be glad and rejoice in his salvation."
[10]†For the hand of the LORD will rest on this mountain, and Moab shall be trampled down in his place,
as straw is trampled down in a dunghill. [1] [11]And he will spread out his hands in the midst of it as a swimmer spreads his hands out to swim, but the LORD will lay low his pompous pride together with the skill [2] of his hands.
[12]†And the high fortifications of his walls he will bring down, lay low, and cast to the ground, to the dust.

You Keep Him in Perfect Peace

ISAIAH 26 ‡†In that day this song will be sung in the land of Judah:

“We have a strong city;
he sets up salvation
as walls and bulwarks.
[2]†Open the gates,
that the righteous nation that keeps faith may enter in.
[3]†You keep him in perfect peace
whose mind is stayed on you,
because he trusts in you.
[4]†Trust in the LORD forever,
for the LORD GOD is an everlasting rock.
[5]‡For he has humbled
the inhabitants of the height,
the lofty city.
He lays it low, lays it low to the ground,
casts it to the dust.
[6]The foot tramples it,
the feet of the poor,
the steps of the needy.”
[7]†The path of the righteous is level;
you make level the way of the righteous.
[8]†In the path of your judgments,
O LORD, we wait for you;
your name and remembrance
are the desire of our soul.
[9]†My soul yearns for you in the night;
my spirit within me earnestly seeks you.
For when your judgments are in the earth,
the inhabitants of the world learn righteousness.
[10]†If favor is shown to the wicked,
he does not learn righteousness;
in the land of uprightness he deals corruptly
and does not see the majesty of the LORD.

[11]†O LORD, your hand is lifted up,
but they do not see it.
Let them see your zeal for your people, and be ashamed.
Let the fire for your adversaries consume them.
[12]†O LORD, you will ordain peace for us,
for you have indeed done for us all our works.
[13]†O LORD our God,
other lords besides you have ruled over us,
but your name alone we bring to remembrance.
[14]†They are dead, they will not live;
they are shades, they will not arise;
to that end you have visited them with destruction
and wiped out all remembrance of them.
[15]†But you have increased the nation, O LORD,
you have increased the nation; you are glorified;
you have enlarged all the borders of the land.
[16]†O LORD, in distress they sought you;
they poured out a whispered prayer
when your discipline was upon them.
[17]†Like a pregnant woman who writhes and cries out in her pangs
when she is near to giving birth,
so were we because of you, O LORD; [18]†we were pregnant, we writhed,
but we have given birth to wind.
We have accomplished no deliverance in the earth,
and the inhabitants of the world have not fallen.
[19]†Your dead shall live; their bodies shall rise.
You who dwell in the dust, awake and sing for joy!
For your dew is a dew of light,
and the earth will give birth to the dead.
[20]†Come, my people, enter your chambers,
and shut your doors behind you;
hide yourselves for a little while until the fury has passed by.
[21]†For behold, the LORD is coming out from his place
to punish the inhabitants of the earth for their iniquity,

and the earth will disclose the blood shed on it,
    and will no more cover its slain.

The Redemption of Israel

ISAIAH 27 ‡In that day the LORD with his hard and great and strong sword will punish Leviathan the fleeing serpent, Leviathan the twisting serpent, and he will slay the dragon that is in the sea.

[2]‡‡In that day,
“A pleasant vineyard, [1] sing of it!
[3]‡I, the LORD, am its keeper;
every moment I water it.
Lest anyone punish it,
I keep it night and day;
[4]‡I have no wrath.
Would that I had thorns and briers to battle!
I would march against them,
I would burn them up together.
[5]‡Or let them lay hold of my protection,
let them make peace with me,
let them make peace with me.”
[6]‡In days to come [2] Jacob shall take root, Israel shall blossom and put forth shoots
and fill the whole world with fruit.
[7]‡Has he struck them as he struck those who struck them?
Or have they been slain as their slayers were slain?
[8]‡Measure by measure, [3] by exile you contended with them;
he removed them with his fierce breath [4] in the day of the east wind.
[9]‡Therefore by this the guilt of Jacob will be atoned for,
and this will be the full fruit of the removal of his sin: [5]
when he makes all the stones of the altars like chalkstones crushed to pieces,
no Asherim or incense altars will remain standing.
[10]‡For the fortified city is solitary,
a habitation deserted and forsaken, like the wilderness;
there the calf grazes;
there it lies down and strips its branches.

[11]†When its boughs are dry, they are broken;
women come and make a fire of them.
For this is a people without discernment;
therefore he who made them will not have compassion on them;
he who formed them will show them no favor.

[12]†In that day from the river Euphrates to the Brook of Egypt the LORD will thresh out the grain, and you will be gleaned one by one, O people of Israel. [13]†And in that day a great trumpet will be blown, and those who were lost in the land of Assyria and those who were driven out to the land of Egypt will come and worship the LORD on the holy mountain at Jerusalem.

Judgment on Ephraim and Jerusalem

ISAIAH 28 ‡Ah, the proud crown of the drunkards of Ephraim,
and the fading flower of its glorious beauty,
which is on the head of the rich valley of those overcome with wine!
[2]‡Behold, the Lord has one who is mighty and strong;
like a storm of hail, a destroying tempest,
like a storm of mighty, overflowing waters,
he casts down to the earth with his hand.
[3]The proud crown of the drunkards of Ephraim will be trodden underfoot;
[4]‡and the fading flower of its glorious beauty,
which is on the head of the rich valley,
will be like a first-ripe fig before the summer:
when someone sees it, he swallows it
as soon as it is in his hand.
[5]‡In that day the LORD of hosts will be a crown of glory, [1]
and a diadem of beauty, to the remnant of his people, [6]‡and a spirit of justice to him who sits in judgment, and strength to those who turn back the battle at the gate.
[7]‡These also reel with wine and stagger with strong drink;
the priest and the prophet reel with strong drink,
they are swallowed by [2] wine,
they stagger with strong drink,
they reel in vision,
they stumble in giving judgment.
[8]‡For all tables are full of filthy vomit,
with no space left.
[9]‡“To whom will he teach knowledge,
and to whom will he explain the message?
Those who are weaned from the milk,
those taken from the breast?
[10]‡For it is precept upon precept, precept upon precept, line upon line, line upon line,

here a little, there a little.”
[11]†For by people of strange lips and with a foreign tongue
the LORD will speak to this people, [12]†to whom he has said,
“This is rest;
give rest to the weary;
and this is repose”;
yet they would not hear.
[13]†And the word of the LORD will be to them precept upon precept, precept upon precept,
line upon line, line upon line,
here a little, there a little,
that they may go, and fall backward,
and be broken, and snared, and taken.

A Cornerstone in Zion

[14]†Therefore hear the word of the LORD, you scoffers, who rule this people in Jerusalem!
[15]†Because you have said, “We have made a covenant with death,
and with Sheol we have an agreement, when the overwhelming whip passes through
it will not come to us,
for we have made lies our refuge,
and in falsehood we have taken shelter”;
[16]†therefore thus says the Lord GOD, “Behold, I am the one who has laid [3] as a foundation in Zion,
a stone, a tested stone,
a precious cornerstone, of a sure foundation:
‘Whoever believes will not be in haste.’
[17]†And I will make justice the line,
and righteousness the plumb line;
and hail will sweep away the refuge of lies,
and waters will overwhelm the shelter.”
[18]†Then your covenant with death will be annulled, and your agreement with Sheol will not stand;

when the overwhelming scourge passes through,
you will be beaten down by it.
[19]†As often as it passes through it will take you;
for morning by morning it will pass through,
by day and by night;
and it will be sheer terror to understand the message.
[20]†For the bed is too short to stretch oneself on,
and the covering too narrow to wrap oneself in.
[21]†For the LORD will rise up as on Mount Perazim;
as in the Valley of Gibeon he will be roused;
to do his deed—strange is his deed!
and to work his work—alien is his work!
[22]†Now therefore do not scoff, lest your bonds be made strong;
for I have heard a decree of destruction
from the Lord GOD of hosts against the whole land.
[23]†Give ear, and hear my voice;
give attention, and hear my speech.
[24]†Does he who plows for sowing plow continually?
Does he continually open and harrow his ground?
[25]†When he has leveled its surface,
does he not scatter dill, sow cumin,
and put in wheat in rows
and barley in its proper place,
and emmer [4] as the border?
[26]†For he is rightly instructed;
his God teaches him.
[27]†Dill is not threshed with a threshing sledge,
nor is a cart wheel rolled over cumin,
but dill is beaten out with a stick,
and cumin with a rod.
[28]Does one crush grain for bread?
No, he does not thresh it forever; [5]
when he drives his cart wheel over it with his horses, he does not crush it.
[29]†This also comes from the LORD of hosts;

he is wonderful in counsel
and excellent in wisdom.

The Siege of Jerusalem

ISAIAH 29 †Ah, Ariel, Ariel,
the city where David encamped!
Add year to year;
let the feasts run their round.
[2]Yet I will distress Ariel, and there shall be moaning and lamentation,
and she shall be to me like an Ariel. [1] [3]†And I will encamp against you all around,
and will besiege you with towers
and I will raise siegeworks against you.
[4]†And you will be brought low; from the earth you shall speak,
and from the dust your speech will be bowed down;
your voice shall come from the ground like the voice of a ghost,
and from the dust your speech shall whisper.
[5]‡†But the multitude of your foreign foes shall be like small dust,
and the multitude of the ruthless like passing chaff.
And in an instant, suddenly,
[6]†you will be visited by the LORD of hosts with thunder and with earthquake and great noise, with whirlwind and tempest, and the flame of a devouring fire.
[7]†And the multitude of all the nations that fight against Ariel, all that fight against her and her stronghold and distress her,
shall be like a dream, a vision of the night.
[8]†As when a hungry man dreams he is eating and awakes with his hunger not satisfied, or as when a thirsty man dreams he is drinking and awakes faint, with his thirst not quenched, so shall the multitude of all the nations be that fight against Mount Zion.
[9]‡†Astonish yourselves [2] and be astonished;
blind yourselves and be blind!
Be drunk, but not with wine;
stagger, but not with strong drink!

[10]†For the LORD has poured out upon you
a spirit of deep sleep,
and has closed your eyes (the prophets),
and covered your heads (the seers).

[11]†And the vision of all this has become to you like the words of a book that is sealed. When men give it to one who can read, saying, “Read this,” he says, “I cannot, for it is sealed.” [12]†And when they give the book to one who cannot read, saying, “Read this,” he says, “I cannot read.”

[13]†And the Lord said:
“Because this people draw near with their mouth and honor me with their lips,
while their hearts are far from me,
and their fear of me is a commandment taught by men, [14]†therefore, behold, I will again
do wonderful things with this people,
with wonder upon wonder;
and the wisdom of their wise men shall perish,
and the discernment of their discerning men shall be hidden.” [15]†Ah, you who hide deep from the LORD your counsel, whose deeds are in the dark,
and who say, “Who sees us? Who knows us?”
[16]†You turn things upside down!
Shall the potter be regarded as the clay,
that the thing made should say of its maker,
“He did not make me”;
or the thing formed say of him who formed it,
“He has no understanding”?
[17]†Is it not yet a very little while until Lebanon shall be turned into a fruitful field,
and the fruitful field shall be regarded as a forest?
[18]†In that day the deaf shall hear
the words of a book,
and out of their gloom and darkness
the eyes of the blind shall see.
[19]†The meek shall obtain fresh joy in the LORD, and the poor among mankind shall exult in the Holy One of Israel.

[20]For the ruthless shall come to nothing and the scoffer cease,
and all who watch to do evil shall be cut off, [21]†who by a word make a man out to be an offender,
and lay a snare for him who reproves in the gate,
and with an empty plea turn aside him who is in the right.

[22]†Therefore thus says the Lord, who redeemed Abraham, concerning the house of Jacob:

“Jacob shall no more be ashamed,
no more shall his face grow pale.
[23]†For when he sees his children,
the work of my hands, in his midst,
they will sanctify my name;
they will sanctify the Holy One of Jacob and will stand in awe of the God of Israel.
[24]†And those who go astray in spirit will come to understanding, and those who murmur will accept instruction.”

Do Not Go Down to Egypt

ISAIAH 30 †“Ah, stubborn children,” declares the LORD, “who carry out a plan, but not mine,
and who make an alliance, [1] but not of my Spirit,
that they may add sin to sin;
[2]†who set out to go down to Egypt,
without asking for my direction,
to take refuge in the protection of Pharaoh
and to seek shelter in the shadow of Egypt!
[3]†Therefore shall the protection of Pharaoh turn to your shame, and the shelter in the shadow of Egypt to your humiliation.
[4]†For though his officials are at Zoan
and his envoys reach Hanes, [5]everyone comes to shame
through a people that cannot profit them, that brings neither help nor profit,
but shame and disgrace.”

[6]†An oracle on the beasts of the Negeb.

Through a land of trouble and anguish,
from where come the lioness and the lion,
the adder and the flying fiery serpent,
they carry their riches on the backs of donkeys,
and their treasures on the humps of camels,
to a people that cannot profit them.
[7]†Egypt's help is worthless and empty;
therefore I have called her “Rahab who sits still.”

A Rebellious People

[8]†And now, go, write it before them on a tablet and inscribe it in a book, that it may be for the time to come

as a witness forever. [2] [9]†For they are a rebellious people, lying children,
children unwilling to hear the instruction of the LORD;
[10]‡who say to the seers, “Do not see,”
and to the prophets, “Do not prophesy to us what is right;
speak to us smooth things,
prophesy illusions,
[11]leave the way, turn aside from the path,
let us hear no more about the Holy One of Israel.”
[12]‡†Therefore thus says the Holy One of Israel, “Because you despise this word and trust in oppression and perverseness and rely on them,
[13]‡therefore this iniquity shall be to you like a breach in a high wall, bulging out, and about to collapse, whose breaking comes suddenly, in an instant;
[14]and its breaking is like that of a potter's vessel that is smashed so ruthlessly that among its fragments not a shard is found with which to take fire from the hearth, or to dip up water out of the cistern.”
[15]†For thus said the Lord GOD, the Holy One of Israel,
“In returning [3] and rest you shall be saved;
in quietness and in trust shall be your strength.”
But you were unwilling, [16]†and you said, “No! We will flee upon horses”;
therefore you shall flee away;
and, “We will ride upon swift steeds”;
therefore your pursuers shall be swift.
[17]†A thousand shall flee at the threat of one;
at the threat of five you shall flee, till you are left
like a flagstaff on the top of a mountain,
like a signal on a hill.

The LORD Will Be Gracious

[18]‡Therefore the LORD waits to be gracious to you,
 and therefore he exalts himself to show mercy to you.
For the LORD is a God of justice;
 blessed are all those who wait for him.

[19]‡For a people shall dwell in Zion, in Jerusalem; you shall weep no more. He will surely be gracious to you at the sound of your cry. As soon as he hears it, he answers you. [20]‡And though the Lord give you the bread of adversity and the water of affliction, yet your Teacher will not hide himself anymore, but your eyes shall see your Teacher. [21]‡And your ears shall hear a word behind you, saying, “This is the way, walk in it,” when you turn to the right or when you turn to the left. [22]‡Then you will defile your carved idols overlaid with silver and your gold-plated metal images. You will scatter them as unclean things. You will say to them, “Be gone!”

[23]‡And he will give rain for the seed with which you sow the ground, and bread, the produce of the ground, which will be rich and plenteous. In that day your livestock will graze in large pastures, [24]and the oxen and the donkeys that work the ground will eat seasoned fodder, which has been winnowed with shovel and fork. [25]‡And on every lofty mountain and every high hill there will be brooks running with water, in the day of the great slaughter, when the towers fall. [26]‡Moreover, the light of the moon will be as the light of the sun, and the light of the sun will be sevenfold, as the light of seven days, in the day when the LORD binds up the brokenness of his people, and heals the wounds inflicted by his blow.

[27]‡‡‡Behold, the name of the LORD comes from afar, burning with his anger, and in thick rising smoke; [4]
his lips are full of fury,
 and his tongue is like a devouring fire;
[28]his breath is like an overflowing stream that reaches up to the neck;
to sift the nations with the sieve of destruction,
 and to place on the jaws of the peoples a bridle that leads astray.

[29]†You shall have a song as in the night when a holy feast is kept, and gladness of heart, as when one sets out to the sound of the flute to go to the mountain of the LORD, to the Rock of Israel. [30]‡And the LORD will cause his majestic voice to be heard and the descending blow of his arm to be seen, in furious anger and a flame of devouring fire, with a cloudburst and storm and hailstones. [31]The Assyrians will be terror-stricken at the voice of the LORD, when he strikes with his rod. [32]†And every stroke of the appointed staff that the LORD lays on them will be to the sound of tambourines and lyres. Battling with brandished arm, he will fight with them. [33]†For a burning place [5] has long been prepared; indeed, for the king it is made ready, its pyre made deep and wide, with fire and wood in abundance; the breath of the LORD, like a stream of sulfur, kindles it.

Woe to Those Who Go Down to Egypt

ISAIAH 31 †Woe to those who go down to Egypt for help and rely on horses,
who trust in chariots because they are many
and in horsemen because they are very strong, but do not look to the Holy One of Israel
or consult the LORD!
[2]†And yet he is wise and brings disaster;
he does not call back his words,
but will arise against the house of the evildoers
and against the helpers of those who work iniquity.
[3]†The Egyptians are man, and not God,
and their horses are flesh, and not spirit.
When the LORD stretches out his hand,
the helper will stumble, and he who is helped will fall,
and they will all perish together.
[4]†For thus the LORD said to me,
“As a lion or a young lion growls over his prey, and when a band of shepherds is called out against him he is not terrified by their shouting or daunted at their noise,
so the LORD of hosts will come down to fight [1] on Mount Zion and on its hill.
[5]†Like birds hovering, so the LORD of hosts will protect Jerusalem;
he will protect and deliver it;
he will spare and rescue it.”

[6]†Turn to him from whom people [2] have deeply revolted, O children of Israel. [7]†For in that day everyone shall cast away his idols of silver and his idols of gold, which your hands have sinfully made for you.

[8]†“And the Assyrian shall fall by a sword, not of man;
and a sword, not of man, shall devour him;
and he shall flee from the sword,

and his young men shall be put to forced labor.
[9]†His rock shall pass away in terror,
and his officers desert the standard in panic,” declares the LORD, whose fire is in Zion,
and whose furnace is in Jerusalem.

A King Will Reign in Righteousness

ISAIAH 32 †Behold, a king will reign in righteousness, and princes will rule in justice.
[2]†Each will be like a hiding place from the wind,
a shelter from the storm,
like streams of water in a dry place,
like the shade of a great rock in a weary land.
[3]†Then the eyes of those who see will not be closed,
and the ears of those who hear will give attention.
[4]†The heart of the hasty will understand and know,
and the tongue of the stammerers will hasten to speak distinctly.
[5]†The fool will no more be called noble,
nor the scoundrel said to be honorable.
[6]‡For the fool speaks folly,
and his heart is busy with iniquity,
to practice ungodliness,
to utter error concerning the LORD,
to leave the craving of the hungry unsatisfied,
and to deprive the thirsty of drink.
[7]As for the scoundrel—his devices are evil;
he plans wicked schemes
to ruin the poor with lying words,
even when the plea of the needy is right.
[8]But he who is noble plans noble things,
and on noble things he stands.

Complacent Women Warned of Disaster

[9]‡†Rise up, you women who are at ease, hear my voice;
you complacent daughters, give ear to my speech.
[10]†In little more than a year
you will shudder, you complacent women;
for the grape harvest fails,
the fruit harvest will not come.

[11]‡Tremble, you women who are at ease, shudder, you complacent ones;
strip, and make yourselves bare,
and tie sackcloth around your waist.
[12]Beat your breasts for the pleasant fields,
for the fruitful vine,
[13]†for the soil of my people growing up in thorns and briers, yes, for all the joyous houses
in the exultant city.
[14]†For the palace is forsaken,
the populous city deserted;
the hill and the watchtower
will become dens forever,
a joy of wild donkeys,
a pasture of flocks;
[15]‡†until the Spirit is poured upon us from on high,
and the wilderness becomes a fruitful field,
and the fruitful field is deemed a forest.
[16]†Then justice will dwell in the wilderness,
and righteousness abide in the fruitful field.
[17]And the effect of righteousness will be peace,
and the result of righteousness, quietness and trust [1] forever.
[18]†My people will abide in a peaceful habitation,
in secure dwellings, and in quiet resting places.
[19]†And it will hail when the forest falls down,
and the city will be utterly laid low.
[20]†Happy are you who sow beside all waters,
who let the feet of the ox and the donkey range free.

O LORD, Be Gracious to Us

ISAIAH 33 †Ah, you destroyer, who yourself have not been destroyed,
you traitor,
whom none has betrayed!
When you have ceased to destroy,
you will be destroyed;
and when you have finished betraying,
they will betray you.
[2]†O LORD, be gracious to us; we wait for you.
Be our arm every morning,
our salvation in the time of trouble.
[3]‡At the tumultuous noise peoples flee;
when you lift yourself up, nations are scattered,
[4]and your spoil is gathered as the caterpillar gathers;
as locusts leap, it is leapt upon.
[5]The LORD is exalted, for he dwells on high;
he will fill Zion with justice and righteousness, [6]†and he will be the stability of your times,
abundance of salvation, wisdom, and knowledge;
the fear of the LORD is Zion's [1] treasure.
[7]‡†Behold, their heroes cry in the streets;
the envoys of peace weep bitterly.
[8]†The highways lie waste;
the traveler ceases.
Covenants are broken;
cities [2] are despised;
there is no regard for man.
[9]†The land mourns and languishes;
Lebanon is confounded and withers away;
Sharon is like a desert,
and Bashan and Carmel shake off their leaves.
[10]†“Now I will arise,” says the LORD,
“now I will lift myself up;

now I will be exalted.
[11]†You conceive chaff; you give birth to stubble;
your breath is a fire that will consume you.
[12]†And the peoples will be as if burned to lime,
like thorns cut down, that are burned in the fire.”
[13]†Hear, you who are far off, what I have done;
and you who are near, acknowledge my might.
[14]†The sinners in Zion are afraid;
trembling has seized the godless:
“Who among us can dwell with the consuming fire?
Who among us can dwell with everlasting burnings?”
[15]†He who walks righteously and speaks uprightly, who despises the gain of oppressions,
who shakes his hands, lest they hold a bribe,
who stops his ears from hearing of bloodshed
and shuts his eyes from looking on evil, [16]†he will dwell on the heights;
his place of defense will be the fortresses of rocks;
his bread will be given him; his water will be sure.
[17]†Your eyes will behold the king in his beauty;
they will see a land that stretches afar.
[18]†Your heart will muse on the terror:
“Where is he who counted, where is he who weighed the tribute?
Where is he who counted the towers?”
[19]You will see no more the insolent people,
the people of an obscure speech that you cannot comprehend, stammering in a tongue that you cannot understand.
[20]†Behold Zion, the city of our appointed feasts!
Your eyes will see Jerusalem,
an untroubled habitation, an immovable tent,
whose stakes will never be plucked up,
nor will any of its cords be broken.
[21]†But there the LORD in majesty will be for us
a place of broad rivers and streams, where no galley with oars can go,
nor majestic ship can pass.
[22]†For the LORD is our judge; the LORD is our lawgiver;

the LORD is our king; he will save us.
[23]†Your cords hang loose;
they cannot hold the mast firm in its place
or keep the sail spread out.
Then prey and spoil in abundance will be divided;
even the lame will take the prey.
[24]†And no inhabitant will say, “I am sick”;
the people who dwell there will be forgiven their iniquity.

Judgment on the Nations

ISAIAH 34 †Draw near, O nations, to hear, and give attention, O peoples!
Let the earth hear, and all that fills it;
the world, and all that comes from it.
[2]For the LORD is enraged against all the nations,
and furious against all their host;
he has devoted them to destruction, [1] has given them over for slaughter.
[3]†Their slain shall be cast out,
and the stench of their corpses shall rise;
the mountains shall flow with their blood.
[4]†All the host of heaven shall rot away,
and the skies roll up like a scroll.
All their host shall fall,
as leaves fall from the vine,
like leaves falling from the fig tree.
[5]†For my sword has drunk its fill in the heavens;
behold, it descends for judgment upon Edom,
upon the people I have devoted to destruction.
[6]‡†The LORD has a sword; it is sated with blood;
it is gorged with fat,
with the blood of lambs and goats,
with the fat of the kidneys of rams.
For the LORD has a sacrifice in Bozrah,
a great slaughter in the land of Edom.
[7]Wild oxen shall fall with them,
and young steers with the mighty bulls.
Their land shall drink its fill of blood,
and their soil shall be gorged with fat.
[8]†For the LORD has a day of vengeance,
a year of recompense for the cause of Zion.
[9]‡†And the streams of Edom [2] shall be turned into pitch,
and her soil into sulfur;

her land shall become burning pitch.
[10]‡Night and day it shall not be quenched;
its smoke shall go up forever.
From generation to generation it shall lie waste;
none shall pass through it forever and ever.
[11]‡‡But the hawk and the porcupine [3] shall possess it,
the owl and the raven shall dwell in it.
He shall stretch the line of confusion [4] over it,
and the plumb line of emptiness.
[12]Its nobles—there is no one there to call it a kingdom,
and all its princes shall be nothing.
[13]Thorns shall grow over its strongholds,
nettles and thistles in its fortresses.
It shall be the haunt of jackals,
an abode for ostriches. [5] [14]And wild animals shall meet with hyenas;
the wild goat shall cry to his fellow;
indeed, there the night bird [6] settles
and finds for herself a resting place.
[15]There the owl nests and lays and hatches and gathers her young in her shadow;
indeed, there the hawks are gathered,
each one with her mate.
[16]‡Seek and read from the book of the Lord:
Not one of these shall be missing;
none shall be without her mate.
For the mouth of the Lord has commanded,
and his Spirit has gathered them.
[17]‡He has cast the lot for them;
his hand has portioned it out to them with the line;
they shall possess it forever;
from generation to generation they shall dwell in it.

The Ransomed Shall Return

ISAIAH 35 ‡†The wilderness and the dry land shall be glad;
the desert shall rejoice and blossom like the crocus;
[2]†it shall blossom abundantly and rejoice with joy and singing.
The glory of Lebanon shall be given to it,
the majesty of Carmel and Sharon.
They shall see the glory of the Lord,
the majesty of our God.
[3]†Strengthen the weak hands,
and make firm the feeble knees.
[4]†Say to those who have an anxious heart,
“Be strong; fear not!
Behold, your God
will come with vengeance,
with the recompense of God.
He will come and save you.”
[5]†Then the eyes of the blind shall be opened,
and the ears of the deaf unstopped;
[6]‡†then shall the lame man leap like a deer,
and the tongue of the mute sing for joy.
For waters break forth in the wilderness,
and streams in the desert;
[7]†the burning sand shall become a pool,
and the thirsty ground springs of water;
in the haunt of jackals, where they lie down,
the grass shall become reeds and rushes.
[8]†And a highway shall be there,
and it shall be called the Way of Holiness;
the unclean shall not pass over it.
It shall belong to those who walk on the way;
even if they are fools, they shall not go astray. [1] [9]†No lion shall be there,
nor shall any ravenous beast come up on it;

they shall not be found there,
    but the redeemed shall walk there.
[10] †And the ransomed of the LORD shall return
    and come to Zion with singing;
everlasting joy shall be upon their heads;
    they shall obtain gladness and joy,
    and sorrow and sighing shall flee away.

Sennacherib Invades Judah

ISAIAH 36 ‡†In the fourteenth year of King Hezekiah, Sennacherib king of Assyria came up against all the fortified cities of Judah and took them. [2]†And the king of Assyria sent the Rabshakeh [1] from Lachish to King Hezekiah at Jerusalem, with a great army. And he stood by the conduit of the upper pool on the highway to the Washer's Field. [3]†And there came out to him Eliakim the son of Hilkiah, who was over the household, and Shebna the secretary, and Joah the son of Asaph, the recorder.

[4]‡†And the Rabshakeh said to them, “Say to Hezekiah, ‘Thus says the great king, the king of Assyria: On what do you rest this trust of yours? [5]†Do you think that mere words are strategy and power for war? In whom do you now trust, that you have rebelled against me? [6]†Behold, you are trusting in Egypt, that broken reed of a staff, which will pierce the hand of any man who leans on it. Such is Pharaoh king of Egypt to all who trust in him. [7]†But if you say to me, “We trust in the Lord our God,” is it not he whose high places and altars Hezekiah has removed, saying to Judah and to Jerusalem, “You shall worship before this altar”? [8]‡Come now, make a wager with my master the king of Assyria: I will give you two thousand horses, if you are able on your part to set riders on them. [9]How then can you repulse a single captain among the least of my master's servants, when you trust in Egypt for chariots and for horsemen? [10]†Moreover, is it without the Lord that I have come up against this land to destroy it? The Lord said to me, Go up against this land and destroy it.’”

[11]†Then Eliakim, Shebna, and Joah said to the Rabshakeh, “Please speak to your servants in Aramaic, for we understand it. Do not speak to us in the language of Judah within the hearing of the people who are on the wall.” [12]†But the Rabshakeh said, “Has my master sent me to speak these words to your master and to you, and not to the men sitting on the wall, who are doomed with you to eat their own dung and drink their own urine?”

[13]‡Then the Rabshakeh stood and called out in a loud voice in the language of Judah: “Hear the words of the great king, the king of Assyria! [14]Thus says the king: ‘Do not let Hezekiah deceive you, for he will not be able to deliver you. [15]Do not let Hezekiah make you trust in the LORD by saying, “The LORD will surely deliver us. This city will not be given into the hand of the king of Assyria.” [16]†Do not listen to Hezekiah. For thus says the king of Assyria: Make your peace with me [2] and come out to me. Then each one of you will eat of his own vine, and each one of his own fig tree, and each one of you will drink the water of his own cistern, [17]†until I come and take you away to a land like your own land, a land of grain and wine, a land of bread and vineyards. [18]‡Beware lest Hezekiah mislead you by saying, “The LORD will deliver us.” Has any of the gods of the nations delivered his land out of the hand of the king of Assyria? [19]Where are the gods of Hamath and Arpad? Where are the gods of Sepharvaim? Have they delivered Samaria out of my hand? [20]Who among all the gods of these lands have delivered their lands out of my hand, that the LORD should deliver Jerusalem out of my hand?’”

[21]†But they were silent and answered him not a word, for the king's command was, “Do not answer him.” [22]†Then Eliakim the son of Hilkiah, who was over the household, and Shebna the secretary, and Joah the son of Asaph, the recorder, came to Hezekiah with their clothes torn, and told him the words of the Rabshakeh.

Hezekiah Seeks Isaiah's Help

ISAIAH 37 ‡As soon as King Hezekiah heard it, he tore his clothes and covered himself with sackcloth and went into the house of the LORD. [2]‡And he sent Eliakim, who was over the household, and Shebna the secretary, and the senior priests, covered with sackcloth, to the prophet Isaiah the son of Amoz. [3]‡They said to him, “Thus says Hezekiah, ‘This day is a day of distress, of rebuke, and of disgrace; children have come to the point of birth, and there is no strength to bring them forth. [4]‡It may be that the LORD your God will hear the words of the Rabshakeh, whom his master the king of Assyria has sent to mock the living God, and will rebuke the words that the LORD your God has heard; therefore lift up your prayer for the remnant that is left.’”

[5]When the servants of King Hezekiah came to Isaiah, [6]‡Isaiah said to them, “Say to your master, ‘Thus says the LORD: Do not be afraid because of the words that you have heard, with which the young men of the king of Assyria have reviled me. [7]‡Behold, I will put a spirit in him, so that he shall hear a rumor and return to his own land, and I will make him fall by the sword in his own land.’”

[8]‡The Rabshakeh returned, and found the king of Assyria fighting against Libnah, for he had heard that the king had left Lachish. [9]‡Now the king heard concerning Tirhakah king of Cush, [1] “He has set out to fight against you.” And when he heard it, he sent messengers to Hezekiah, saying, [10]‡‡“Thus shall you speak to Hezekiah king of Judah: ‘Do not let your God in whom you trust deceive you by promising that Jerusalem will not be given into the hand of the king of Assyria. [11]‡Behold, you have heard what the kings of Assyria have done to all lands, devoting them to destruction. And shall you be delivered? [12]‡Have the gods of the nations delivered them, the nations that my fathers destroyed, Gozan, Haran, Rezeph, and the people of Eden who were in Telassar? [13]‡Where is the king of Hamath, the king of Arpad, the king of the city of Sepharvaim, the king of Hena, or the king of Ivvah?’”

Hezekiah's Prayer for Deliverance

[14]†Hezekiah received the letter from the hand of the messengers, and read it; and Hezekiah went up to the house of the LORD, and spread it before the LORD. [15]And Hezekiah prayed to the LORD: [16]†“O LORD of hosts, God of Israel, enthroned above the cherubim, you are the God, you alone, of all the kingdoms of the earth; you have made heaven and earth. [17]†Incline your ear, O LORD, and hear; open your eyes, O LORD, and see; and hear all the words of Sennacherib, which he has sent to mock the living God. [18]‡Truly, O LORD, the kings of Assyria have laid waste all the nations and their lands, [19]and have cast their gods into the fire. For they were no gods, but the work of men's hands, wood and stone. Therefore they were destroyed. [20]†So now, O LORD our God, save us from his hand, that all the kingdoms of the earth may know that you alone are the LORD.”

Sennacherib's Fall

[21]†Then Isaiah the son of Amoz sent to Hezekiah, saying, “Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel: Because you have prayed to me concerning Sennacherib king of Assyria, [22]†this is the word that the LORD has spoken concerning him:

“‘She despises you, she scorns you—
the virgin daughter of Zion;
she wags her head behind you—
the daughter of Jerusalem.
[23]†“‘Whom have you mocked and reviled?
Against whom have you raised your voice
and lifted your eyes to the heights?
Against the Holy One of Israel!
[24]‡By your servants you have mocked the Lord,
and you have said, With my many chariots
I have gone up the heights of the mountains, to the far recesses of Lebanon,
to cut down its tallest cedars,
its choicest cypresses,

to come to its remotest height,
its most fruitful forest.
[25]I dug wells
and drank waters,
to dry up with the sole of my foot
all the streams of Egypt.
[26]†“‘Have you not heard that I determined it long ago?
I planned from days of old
what now I bring to pass,
that you should make fortified cities
crash into heaps of ruins, [27]†while their inhabitants, shorn of strength,
are dismayed and confounded,
and have become like plants of the field
and like tender grass,
like grass on the housetops,
blighted [2] before it is grown.
[28]†“‘I know your sitting down and your going out and coming in,
and your raging against me.
[29]†Because you have raged against me
and your complacency has come to my ears,
I will put my hook in your nose
and my bit in your mouth, and I will turn you back on the way
by which you came.’

[30]†“And this shall be the sign for you: this year you shall eat what grows of itself, and in the second year what springs from that. Then in the third year sow and reap, and plant vineyards, and eat their fruit. [31]‡And the surviving remnant of the house of Judah shall again take root downward and bear fruit upward. [32]†For out of Jerusalem shall go a remnant, and out of Mount Zion a band of survivors. The zeal of the LORD of hosts will do this.

[33]†“Therefore thus says the LORD concerning the king of Assyria: He shall not come into this city or shoot an arrow there or come before it with a shield or cast up a siege mound against it. [34]†By the way that he came, by the same he shall return, and he shall not come into this city, declares the LORD. [35]†For I will defend this city to save it, for my own sake and for the sake of my servant David.”

[36]†And the angel of the LORD went out and struck down a hundred and eighty-five thousand in the camp of the Assyrians. And when people arose early in the morning, behold, these were all dead bodies. [37]†Then Sennacherib king of Assyria departed and returned home and lived at Nineveh. [38]†And as he was worshiping in the house of Nisroch his god, Adrammelech and Sharezer, his sons, struck him down with the sword. And after they escaped into the land of Ararat, Esarhaddon his son reigned in his place.

Hezekiah's Sickness and Recovery

ISAIAH 38 ‡In those days Hezekiah became sick and was at the point of death. And Isaiah the prophet the son of Amoz came to him, and said to him, “Thus says the LORD: Set your house in order, for you shall die, you shall not recover.” [1] [2]‡Then Hezekiah turned his face to the wall and prayed to the LORD, [3]‡and said, “Please, O LORD, remember how I have walked before you in faithfulness and with a whole heart, and have done what is good in your sight.” And Hezekiah wept bitterly.

[4]Then the word of the LORD came to Isaiah: [5]‡“Go and say to Hezekiah, Thus says the LORD, the God of David your father: I have heard your prayer; I have seen your tears. Behold, I will add fifteen years to your life. [2] [6]‡I will deliver you and this city out of the hand of the king of Assyria, and will defend this city.

[7]‡“This shall be the sign to you from the LORD, that the LORD will do this thing that he has promised: [8]Behold, I will make the shadow cast by the declining sun on the dial of Ahaz turn back ten steps.” So the sun turned back on the dial the ten steps by which it had declined. [3]

[9]‡A writing of Hezekiah king of Judah, after he had been sick and had recovered from his sickness:

[10]‡I said, In the middle [4] of my days
    I must depart;
I am consigned to the gates of Sheol
    for the rest of my years.
[11]‡I said, I shall not see the LORD,
    the LORD in the land of the living;
I shall look on man no more
    among the inhabitants of the world.
[12]‡My dwelling is plucked up and removed from me
    like a shepherd's tent;
like a weaver I have rolled up my life;
    he cuts me off from the loom;

from day to night you bring me to an end;
[13]I calmed myself [5] until morning;
like a lion he breaks all my bones;
from day to night you bring me to an end.
[14]†Like a swallow or a crane I chirp;
I moan like a dove.
My eyes are weary with looking upward.
O Lord, I am oppressed; be my pledge of safety!
[15]†What shall I say? For he has spoken to me, and he himself has done it.
I walk slowly all my years
because of the bitterness of my soul.
[16]†O Lord, by these things men live,
and in all these is the life of my spirit.
Oh restore me to health and make me live!
[17]†Behold, it was for my welfare that I had great bitterness;
but in love you have delivered my life
from the pit of destruction, for you have cast all my sins
behind your back.
[18]†For Sheol does not thank you;
death does not praise you;
those who go down to the pit do not hope
for your faithfulness.
[19]†The living, the living, he thanks you,
as I do this day;
the father makes known to the children
your faithfulness.
[20]†The LORD will save me,
and we will play my music on stringed instruments
all the days of our lives,
at the house of the LORD.

[21]††Now Isaiah had said, “Let them take a cake of figs and apply it to the boil, that he may recover.” [22]†Hezekiah also had said, “What is the sign that I shall go up to the house of the LORD?”

Envoys from Babylon

ISAIAH 39 †At that time Merodach-baladan the son of Baladan, king of Babylon, sent envoys with letters and a present to Hezekiah, for he heard that he had been sick and had recovered. [2]†And Hezekiah welcomed them gladly. And he showed them his treasure house, the silver, the gold, the spices, the precious oil, his whole armory, all that was found in his storehouses. There was nothing in his house or in all his realm that Hezekiah did not show them. [3]†Then Isaiah the prophet came to King Hezekiah, and said to him, “What did these men say? And from where did they come to you?” Hezekiah said, “They have come to me from a far country, from Babylon.” [4]He said, “What have they seen in your house?” Hezekiah answered, “They have seen all that is in my house. There is nothing in my storehouses that I did not show them.”

[5]†Then Isaiah said to Hezekiah, “Hear the word of the LORD of hosts: [6]†Behold, the days are coming, when all that is in your house, and that which your fathers have stored up till this day, shall be carried to Babylon. Nothing shall be left, says the LORD. [7]†And some of your own sons, who will come from you, whom you will father, shall be taken away, and they shall be eunuchs in the palace of the king of Babylon.” [8]†Then said Hezekiah to Isaiah, “The word of the LORD that you have spoken is good.” For he thought, “There will be peace and security in my days.”

Comfort for God's People

ISAIAH 40 ‡‡‡Comfort, comfort my people, says your God.
[2]‡Speak tenderly to Jerusalem, and cry to her
that her warfare [1] is ended,
that her iniquity is pardoned,
that she has received from the LORD's hand
double for all her sins.
[3]‡‡A voice cries: [2]
“In the wilderness prepare the way of the LORD;
make straight in the desert a highway for our God.
[4]Every valley shall be lifted up,
and every mountain and hill be made low;
the uneven ground shall become level,
and the rough places a plain.
[5]‡And the glory of the LORD shall be revealed,
and all flesh shall see it together,
for the mouth of the LORD has spoken.”

The Word of God Stands Forever

[6]‡A voice says, “Cry!”
And I said, [3] “What shall I cry?”
All flesh is grass,
and all its beauty [4] is like the flower of the field.
[7]The grass withers, the flower fades
when the breath of the LORD blows on it;
surely the people are grass.
[8]‡The grass withers, the flower fades,
but the word of our God will stand forever.

The Greatness of God

[9]‡Get you up to a high mountain,

O Zion, herald of good news; [5]
lift up your voice with strength, O Jerusalem, herald of good news; [6]
lift it up, fear not;
say to the cities of Judah,
“Behold your God!”
[10]†Behold, the Lord GOD comes with might,
and his arm rules for him;
behold, his reward is with him,
and his recompense before him.
[11]‡He will tend his flock like a shepherd;
he will gather the lambs in his arms;
he will carry them in his bosom,
and gently lead those that are with young.
[12]‡†Who has measured the waters in the hollow of his hand and marked off the heavens with a span, enclosed the dust of the earth in a measure and weighed the mountains in scales and the hills in a balance?
[13]‡Who has measured [7] the Spirit of the LORD, or what man shows him his counsel?
[14]Whom did he consult,
and who made him understand?
Who taught him the path of justice,
and taught him knowledge,
and showed him the way of understanding?
[15]‡Behold, the nations are like a drop from a bucket,
and are accounted as the dust on the scales;
behold, he takes up the coastlands like fine dust.
[16]†Lebanon would not suffice for fuel,
nor are its beasts enough for a burnt offering.
[17]All the nations are as nothing before him,
they are accounted by him as less than nothing and emptiness.
[18]‡To whom then will you liken God,
or what likeness compare with him?
[19]An idol! A craftsman casts it, and a goldsmith overlays it with gold and casts for it silver chains.

[20]He who is too impoverished for an offering chooses wood [8] that will not rot;
he seeks out a skillful craftsman
to set up an idol that will not move.
[21]‡†Do you not know? Do you not hear?
Has it not been told you from the beginning?
Have you not understood from the foundations of the earth?
[22]†It is he who sits above the circle of the earth,
and its inhabitants are like grasshoppers;
who stretches out the heavens like a curtain,
and spreads them like a tent to dwell in;
[23]†who brings princes to nothing,
and makes the rulers of the earth as emptiness.
[24]Scarcely are they planted, scarcely sown, scarcely has their stem taken root in the earth,
when he blows on them, and they wither,
and the tempest carries them off like stubble.
[25]†To whom then will you compare me,
that I should be like him? says the Holy One.
[26]†Lift up your eyes on high and see:
who created these?
He who brings out their host by number,
calling them all by name,
by the greatness of his might,
and because he is strong in power
not one is missing.
[27]‡†Why do you say, O Jacob,
and speak, O Israel,
“My way is hidden from the LORD,
and my right is disregarded by my God”?
[28]†Have you not known? Have you not heard?
The LORD is the everlasting God,
the Creator of the ends of the earth.
He does not faint or grow weary;
his understanding is unsearchable.
[29]He gives power to the faint,

and to him who has no might he increases strength.
[30]Even youths shall faint and be weary,
and young men shall fall exhausted;
[31]†but they who wait for the LORD shall renew their strength;
they shall mount up with wings like eagles;
they shall run and not be weary;
they shall walk and not faint.

Fear Not, For I Am with You

ISAIAH 41 †Listen to me in silence,
O coastlands;
let the peoples renew their strength;
let them approach, then let them speak;
let us together draw near for judgment.
[2]†Who stirred up one from the east whom victory meets at every step? [1]
He gives up nations before him,
so that he tramples kings underfoot;
he makes them like dust with his sword,
like driven stubble with his bow.
[3]†He pursues them and passes on safely,
by paths his feet have not trod.
[4]†Who has performed and done this,
calling the generations from the beginning?
I, the LORD, the first,
and with the last; I am he.
[5]†The coastlands have seen and are afraid;
the ends of the earth tremble;
they have drawn near and come.
[6]Everyone helps his neighbor and says to his brother, "Be strong!"
[7]The craftsman strengthens the goldsmith, and he who smooths with the hammer him who strikes the anvil, saying of the soldering, "It is good";
and they strengthen it with nails so that it cannot be moved.
[8]†But you, Israel, my servant,
Jacob, whom I have chosen,
the offspring of Abraham, my friend;
[9]†you whom I took from the ends of the earth,
and called from its farthest corners,
saying to you, "You are my servant,
I have chosen you and not cast you off";

[10]†fear not, for I am with you;
be not dismayed, for I am your God;
I will strengthen you, I will help you,
I will uphold you with my righteous right hand.
[11]‡Behold, all who are incensed against you shall be put to shame and confounded;
those who strive against you shall be as nothing and shall perish.
[12]You shall seek those who contend with you,
but you shall not find them;
those who war against you shall be as nothing at all.
[13]For I, the LORD your God, hold your right hand;
it is I who say to you, “Fear not,
I am the one who helps you.”
[14]†Fear not, you worm Jacob,
you men of Israel!
I am the one who helps you, declares the LORD;
your Redeemer is the Holy One of Israel.
[15]‡Behold, I make of you a threshing sledge,
new, sharp, and having teeth;
you shall thresh the mountains and crush them,
and you shall make the hills like chaff;
[16]you shall winnow them, and the wind shall carry them away,
and the tempest shall scatter them.
And you shall rejoice in the LORD;
in the Holy One of Israel you shall glory.
[17]‡When the poor and needy seek water,
and there is none,
and their tongue is parched with thirst,
I the LORD will answer them;
I the God of Israel will not forsake them.
[18]I will open rivers on the bare heights,
and fountains in the midst of the valleys.
I will make the wilderness a pool of water,
and the dry land springs of water.

[19]†I will put in the wilderness the cedar,
the acacia, the myrtle, and the olive.
I will set in the desert the cypress,
the plane and the pine together, [20]that they may see and know,
may consider and understand together,
that the hand of the LORD has done this,
the Holy One of Israel has created it.

The Futility of Idols

[21]Set forth your case, says the LORD;
bring your proofs, says the King of Jacob.
[22]‡Let them bring them, and tell us
what is to happen.
Tell us the former things, what they are,
that we may consider them,
that we may know their outcome;
or declare to us the things to come.
[23]†Tell us what is to come hereafter, that we may know that you are gods;
do good, or do harm,
that we may be dismayed and terrified. [2] [24]†Behold, you are nothing, and your work is less than nothing;
an abomination is he who chooses you.
[25]†I stirred up one from the north, and he has come, from the rising of the sun, and he shall call upon my name;
he shall trample on rulers as on mortar,
as the potter treads clay.
[26]†Who declared it from the beginning, that we might know, and beforehand, that we might say, “He is right”?
There was none who declared it, none who proclaimed,
none who heard your words.
[27]‡I was the first to say [3] to Zion, “Behold, here they are!”
and I give to Jerusalem a herald of good news.
[28]But when I look, there is no one;

among these there is no counselor who, when I ask, gives an answer.
[29]Behold, they are all a delusion;
their works are nothing;
their metal images are empty wind.

The LORD's Chosen Servant

ISAIAH 42 ‡†Behold my servant, whom I uphold,
my chosen, in whom my soul delights;
I have put my Spirit upon him;
he will bring forth justice to the nations.
[2]†He will not cry aloud or lift up his voice,
or make it heard in the street;
[3]†a bruised reed he will not break,
and a faintly burning wick he will not quench;
he will faithfully bring forth justice.
[4]†He will not grow faint or be discouraged [1]
till he has established justice in the earth;
and the coastlands wait for his law.
[5]†Thus says God, the LORD,
who created the heavens and stretched them out,
who spread out the earth and what comes from it,
who gives breath to the people on it
and spirit to those who walk in it:
[6]†“I am the LORD; I have called you in righteousness;
I will take you by the hand and keep you;
I will give you as a covenant for the people,
a light for the nations,
[7]†to open the eyes that are blind,
to bring out the prisoners from the dungeon,
from the prison those who sit in darkness.
[8]I am the LORD; that is my name;
my glory I give to no other,
nor my praise to carved idols.
[9]†Behold, the former things have come to pass,
and new things I now declare;
before they spring forth
I tell you of them.”

Sing to the LORD a New Song

[10]†Sing to the LORD a new song,
his praise from the end of the earth,
you who go down to the sea, and all that fills it,
the coastlands and their inhabitants.
[11]†Let the desert and its cities lift up their voice,
the villages that Kedar inhabits;
let the habitants of Sela sing for joy,
let them shout from the top of the mountains.
[12]Let them give glory to the LORD,
and declare his praise in the coastlands.
[13]†The LORD goes out like a mighty man, like a man of war he stirs up his zeal;
he cries out, he shouts aloud,
he shows himself mighty against his foes.
[14]†For a long time I have held my peace;
I have kept still and restrained myself;
now I will cry out like a woman in labor;
I will gasp and pant.
[15]†I will lay waste mountains and hills,
and dry up all their vegetation;
I will turn the rivers into islands, [2]
and dry up the pools.
[16]†And I will lead the blind
in a way that they do not know,
in paths that they have not known
I will guide them.
I will turn the darkness before them into light,
the rough places into level ground.
These are the things I do,
and I do not forsake them.
[17]†They are turned back and utterly put to shame,
who trust in carved idols,
who say to metal images,
“You are our gods.”

Israel's Failure to Hear and See

[18]‡‡Hear, you deaf,
and look, you blind, that you may see!
[19]Who is blind but my servant,
or deaf as my messenger whom I send?
Who is blind as my dedicated one, [3]
or blind as the servant of the LORD?
[20]He sees many things, but does not observe them;
his ears are open, but he does not hear.
[21]†The LORD was pleased, for his righteousness' sake, to magnify his law and make it glorious.
[22]†But this is a people plundered and looted;
they are all of them trapped in holes
and hidden in prisons;
they have become plunder with none to rescue, spoil with none to say, “Restore!”
[23]Who among you will give ear to this,
will attend and listen for the time to come?
[24]†Who gave up Jacob to the looter,
and Israel to the plunderers?
Was it not the LORD, against whom we have sinned,
in whose ways they would not walk,
and whose law they would not obey?
[25]†So he poured on him the heat of his anger
and the might of battle;
it set him on fire all around, but he did not understand;
it burned him up, but he did not take it to heart.

Israel's Only Savior

ISAIAH 43 †But now thus says the Lord,
he who created you, O Jacob,
    he who formed you, O Israel:
“Fear not, for I have redeemed you;
    I have called you by name, you are mine.
[2]†When you pass through the waters, I will be with you;
    and through the rivers, they shall not overwhelm you;
when you walk through fire you shall not be burned,
    and the flame shall not consume you.
[3]†For I am the Lord your God,
    the Holy One of Israel, your Savior.
I give Egypt as your ransom,
    Cush and Seba in exchange for you.
[4]Because you are precious in my eyes,
    and honored, and I love you,
I give men in return for you,
    peoples in exchange for your life.
[5]†Fear not, for I am with you;
    I will bring your offspring from the east,
    and from the west I will gather you.
[6]I will say to the north, Give up,
    and to the south, Do not withhold;
bring my sons from afar
    and my daughters from the end of the earth, [7]†everyone who is called by my name,
    whom I created for my glory, whom I formed and made.”
[8]†Bring out the people who are blind, yet have eyes, who are deaf, yet have ears!
[9]†All the nations gather together,
    and the peoples assemble.
Who among them can declare this,
    and show us the former things?

Let them bring their witnesses to prove them right,
and let them hear and say, It is true.
[10]†“You are my witnesses,” declares the LORD,
“and my servant whom I have chosen,
that you may know and believe me
and understand that I am he.
Before me no god was formed,
nor shall there be any after me.
[11]I, I am the LORD,
and besides me there is no savior.
[12]†I declared and saved and proclaimed,
when there was no strange god among you;
and you are my witnesses,” declares the LORD, “and I am God.
[13]†Also henceforth I am he;
there is none who can deliver from my hand;
I work, and who can turn it back?”
[14]†Thus says the LORD,
your Redeemer, the Holy One of Israel:
“For your sake I send to Babylon and bring them all down as fugitives,
even the Chaldeans, in the ships in which they rejoice.
[15]†I am the LORD, your Holy One,
the Creator of Israel, your King.”
[16]‡Thus says the LORD,
who makes a way in the sea,
a path in the mighty waters, [17]who brings forth chariot and horse,
army and warrior;
they lie down, they cannot rise,
they are extinguished, quenched like a wick:
[18]‡“Remember not the former things,
nor consider the things of old.
[19]‡Behold, I am doing a new thing;
now it springs forth, do you not perceive it?
I will make a way in the wilderness
and rivers in the desert.
[20]The wild beasts will honor me,

the jackals and the ostriches,
for I give water in the wilderness,
rivers in the desert,
to give drink to my chosen people, [21]†the people whom I formed for myself that they might declare my praise.
[22]†“Yet you did not call upon me, O Jacob;
but you have been weary of me, O Israel!
[23]You have not brought me your sheep for burnt offerings, or honored me with your sacrifices.
I have not burdened you with offerings,
or wearied you with frankincense.
[24]You have not bought me sweet cane with money,
or satisfied me with the fat of your sacrifices.
But you have burdened me with your sins;
you have wearied me with your iniquities.
[25]†“I, I am he who blots out your transgressions for my own sake,
and I will not remember your sins.
[26]†Put me in remembrance; let us argue together;
set forth your case, that you may be proved right.
[27]†Your first father sinned,
and your mediators transgressed against me.
[28]†Therefore I will profane the princes of the sanctuary, and deliver Jacob to utter destruction and Israel to reviling.

Israel the LORD's Chosen

ISAIAH 44 ‡‡“But now hear, O Jacob my servant,
Israel whom I have chosen!
[2]†Thus says the LORD who made you,
who formed you from the womb and will help you:
Fear not, O Jacob my servant,
Jeshurun whom I have chosen.
[3]†For I will pour water on the thirsty land,
and streams on the dry ground;
I will pour my Spirit upon your offspring,
and my blessing on your descendants.
[4]They shall spring up among the grass like willows by flowing streams.
[5]†This one will say, ‘I am the LORD's,’
another will call on the name of Jacob,
and another will write on his hand, ‘The LORD's,’
and name himself by the name of Israel.”

Besides Me There Is No God

[6]†Thus says the LORD, the King of Israel and his Redeemer, the LORD of hosts:
“I am the first and I am the last;
besides me there is no god.
[7]†Who is like me? Let him proclaim it. [1]
Let him declare and set it before me,
since I appointed an ancient people.
Let them declare what is to come, and what will happen.
[8]Fear not, nor be afraid;
have I not told you from of old and declared it?
And you are my witnesses!
Is there a God besides me?
There is no Rock; I know not any.”

The Folly of Idolatry

[9]‡All who fashion idols are nothing, and the things they delight in do not profit. Their witnesses neither see nor know, that they may be put to shame. [10]Who fashions a god or casts an idol that is profitable for nothing? [11]Behold, all his companions shall be put to shame, and the craftsmen are only human. Let them all assemble, let them stand forth. They shall be terrified; they shall be put to shame together.

[12]‡The ironsmith takes a cutting tool and works it over the coals. He fashions it with hammers and works it with his strong arm. He becomes hungry, and his strength fails; he drinks no water and is faint. [13]The carpenter stretches a line; he marks it out with a pencil. He shapes it with planes and marks it with a compass. He shapes it into the figure of a man, with the beauty of a man, to dwell in a house. [14]He cuts down cedars, or he chooses a cypress tree or an oak and lets it grow strong among the trees of the forest. He plants a cedar and the rain nourishes it. [15]Then it becomes fuel for a man. He takes a part of it and warms himself; he kindles a fire and bakes bread. Also he makes a god and worships it; he makes it an idol and falls down before it. [16]Half of it he burns in the fire. Over the half he eats meat; he roasts it and is satisfied. Also he warms himself and says, “Aha, I am warm, I have seen the fire!” [17]And the rest of it he makes into a god, his idol, and falls down to it and worships it. He prays to it and says, “Deliver me, for you are my god!”

[18]They know not, nor do they discern, for he has shut their eyes, so that they cannot see, and their hearts, so that they cannot understand. [19]No one considers, nor is there knowledge or discernment to say, “Half of it I burned in the fire; I also baked bread on its coals; I roasted meat and have eaten. And shall I make the rest of it an abomination? Shall I fall down before a block of wood?” [20]†He feeds on ashes; a deluded heart has led him astray, and he cannot deliver himself or say, “Is there not a lie in my right hand?”

The LORD Redeems Israel

[21]Remember these things, O Jacob,

and Israel, for you are my servant;
I formed you; you are my servant;
O Israel, you will not be forgotten by me.
[22]†I have blotted out your transgressions like a cloud
and your sins like mist;
return to me, for I have redeemed you.
[23]†Sing, O heavens, for the LORD has done it;
shout, O depths of the earth;
break forth into singing, O mountains,
O forest, and every tree in it!
For the LORD has redeemed Jacob,
and will be glorified [2] in Israel.
[24]Thus says the LORD, your Redeemer, who formed you from the womb:
“I am the LORD, who made all things,
who alone stretched out the heavens,
who spread out the earth by myself, [25]†who frustrates the signs of liars and makes fools of diviners, who turns wise men back
and makes their knowledge foolish, [26]†who confirms the word of his servant
and fulfills the counsel of his messengers, who says of Jerusalem, ‘She shall be inhabited,’
and of the cities of Judah, ‘They shall be built,
and I will raise up their ruins’;
[27]†who says to the deep, ‘Be dry;
I will dry up your rivers’;
[28]†who says of Cyrus, ‘He is my shepherd,
and he shall fulfill all my purpose’;
saying of Jerusalem, ‘She shall be built,’
and of the temple, ‘Your foundation shall be laid.’”

Cyrus, God's Instrument

ISAIAH 45 ‡†Thus says the LORD to his anointed, to Cyrus, whose right hand I have grasped,
to subdue nations before him
and to loose the belts of kings, to open doors before him
that gates may not be closed:
[2]"I will go before you
and level the exalted places, [1]
I will break in pieces the doors of bronze and cut through the bars of iron, [3]†I will give you the treasures of darkness and the hoards in secret places,
that you may know that it is I, the LORD,
the God of Israel, who call you by your name.
[4]†For the sake of my servant Jacob,
and Israel my chosen,
I call you by your name,
I name you, though you do not know me.
[5]I am the LORD, and there is no other,
besides me there is no God;
I equip you, though you do not know me,
[6]†that people may know, from the rising of the sun
and from the west, that there is none besides me;
I am the LORD, and there is no other.
[7]I form light and create darkness,
I make well-being and create calamity,
I am the LORD, who does all these things.
[8]†"Shower, O heavens, from above,
and let the clouds rain down righteousness;
let the earth open, that salvation and righteousness may bear fruit;
let the earth cause them both to sprout;
I the LORD have created it.
[9]‡"Woe to him who strives with him who formed him,

a pot among earthen pots!
Does the clay say to him who forms it, ‘What are you making?’
or ‘Your work has no handles’?
[10]Woe to him who says to a father, ‘What are you begetting?’
or to a woman, ‘With what are you in labor?’”
[11]†Thus says the LORD,
the Holy One of Israel, and the one who formed him:
“Ask me of things to come;
will you command me concerning my children and the work of my hands? [2] [12]‡I made the earth and created man on it;
it was my hands that stretched out the heavens,
and I commanded all their host.
[13]I have stirred him up in righteousness, and I will make all his ways level;
he shall build my city
and set my exiles free,
not for price or reward,”
says the LORD of hosts.

The LORD, the Only Savior

[14]†Thus says the LORD:
“The wealth of Egypt and the merchandise of Cush,
and the Sabeans, men of stature,
shall come over to you and be yours;
they shall follow you;
they shall come over in chains and bow down to you.
They will plead with you, saying:
‘Surely God is in you, and there is no other,
no god besides him.’”
[15]†Truly, you are a God who hides himself,
O God of Israel, the Savior.
[16]‡All of them are put to shame and confounded;
the makers of idols go in confusion together.
[17]But Israel is saved by the LORD

with everlasting salvation;
you shall not be put to shame or confounded to all eternity.
[18]For thus says the LORD,
who created the heavens
(he is God!),
who formed the earth and made it (he established it;
he did not create it empty,
he formed it to be inhabited!):
“I am the LORD, and there is no other.
[19]†I did not speak in secret,
in a land of darkness;
I did not say to the offspring of Jacob,
‘Seek me in vain.’ [3]
I the LORD speak the truth;
I declare what is right.
[20]“Assemble yourselves and come;
draw near together,
you survivors of the nations!
They have no knowledge
who carry about their wooden idols, and keep on praying to a god
that cannot save.
[21]†Declare and present your case;
let them take counsel together!
Who told this long ago?
Who declared it of old?
Was it not I, the LORD?
And there is no other god besides me,
a righteous God and a Savior;
there is none besides me.
[22]†“Turn to me and be saved,
all the ends of the earth!
For I am God, and there is no other.
[23]†By myself I have sworn;
from my mouth has gone out in righteousness

a word that shall not return:
‘To me every knee shall bow,
every tongue shall swear allegiance.’ [4] [24]“Only in the LORD, it shall be said of me, are righteousness and strength;
to him shall come and be ashamed
all who were incensed against him.
[25]†In the LORD all the offspring of Israel shall be justified and shall glory.”

The Idols of Babylon and the One True God

ISAIAH 46 †Bel bows down; Nebo stoops;
    their idols are on beasts and livestock;
these things you carry are borne
    as burdens on weary beasts.
[2]†They stoop; they bow down together;
    they cannot save the burden,
    but themselves go into captivity.
[3]†“Listen to me, O house of Jacob,
    all the remnant of the house of Israel,
who have been borne by me from before your birth,
    carried from the womb;
[4]even to your old age I am he,
    and to gray hairs I will carry you.
I have made, and I will bear;
    I will carry and will save.
[5]†“To whom will you liken me and make me equal,
    and compare me, that we may be alike?
[6]Those who lavish gold from the purse,
    and weigh out silver in the scales,
hire a goldsmith, and he makes it into a god;
    then they fall down and worship!
[7]They lift it to their shoulders, they carry it,
    they set it in its place, and it stands there;
    it cannot move from its place.
If one cries to it, it does not answer or save him from his trouble.
[8]“Remember this and stand firm,
    recall it to mind, you transgressors, [9]†remember the former things of old;
for I am God, and there is no other;
    I am God, and there is none like me,
[10]declaring the end from the beginning and from ancient times things not yet done, saying, ‘My counsel shall stand,

  and I will accomplish all my purpose,’ [11]†calling a bird of prey from the east,
  the man of my counsel from a far country.
I have spoken, and I will bring it to pass;
  I have purposed, and I will do it.
[12]“Listen to me, you stubborn of heart,
  you who are far from righteousness:
[13]†I bring near my righteousness; it is not far off,
  and my salvation will not delay;
I will put salvation in Zion,
  for Israel my glory.”

The Humiliation of Babylon

ISAIAH 47 ‡Come down and sit in the dust,
O virgin daughter of Babylon;
sit on the ground without a throne,
O daughter of the Chaldeans!
For you shall no more be called tender and delicate.
[2]Take the millstones and grind flour,
put off your veil,
strip off your robe, uncover your legs,
pass through the rivers.
[3]Your nakedness shall be uncovered,
and your disgrace shall be seen.
I will take vengeance,
and I will spare no one.
[4]Our Redeemer—the LORD of hosts is his name—is the Holy One of Israel.
[5]†Sit in silence, and go into darkness,
O daughter of the Chaldeans;
for you shall no more be called
the mistress of kingdoms.
[6]†I was angry with my people;
I profaned my heritage;
I gave them into your hand;
you showed them no mercy;
on the aged you made your yoke exceedingly heavy.
[7]‡You said, “I shall be mistress forever,” so that you did not lay these things to heart or remember their end.
[8]†Now therefore hear this, you lover of pleasures,
who sit securely,
who say in your heart,
“I am, and there is no one besides me;
I shall not sit as a widow or know the loss of children”:

[9]†These two things shall come to you
in a moment, in one day;
the loss of children and widowhood shall come upon you in full measure, in spite of your many sorceries
and the great power of your enchantments.
[10]†You felt secure in your wickedness,
you said, “No one sees me”;
your wisdom and your knowledge led you astray,
and you said in your heart,
“I am, and there is no one besides me.”
[11]†But evil shall come upon you,
which you will not know how to charm away;
disaster shall fall upon you,
for which you will not be able to atone;
and ruin shall come upon you suddenly,
of which you know nothing.
[12]†Stand fast in your enchantments
and your many sorceries,
with which you have labored from your youth;
perhaps you may be able to succeed;
perhaps you may inspire terror.
[13]†You are wearied with your many counsels;
let them stand forth and save you,
those who divide the heavens,
who gaze at the stars,
who at the new moons make known
what shall come upon you.
[14]†Behold, they are like stubble;
the fire consumes them;
they cannot deliver themselves
from the power of the flame.
No coal for warming oneself is this,
no fire to sit before!
[15]†Such to you are those with whom you have labored,
who have done business with you from your youth;

they wander about, each in his own direction;
    there is no one to save you.

Israel Refined for God's Glory

ISAIAH 48 ‡Hear this, O house of Jacob, who are called by the name of Israel,
and who came from the waters of Judah,
who swear by the name of the Lord and confess the God of Israel,
but not in truth or right.
[2]For they call themselves after the holy city,
and stay themselves on the God of Israel;
the Lord of hosts is his name.
[3]‡†“The former things I declared of old;
they went out from my mouth, and I announced them;
then suddenly I did them, and they came to pass.
[4]Because I know that you are obstinate,
and your neck is an iron sinew
and your forehead brass, [5]I declared them to you from of old,
before they came to pass I announced them to you,
lest you should say, ‘My idol did them,
my carved image and my metal image commanded them.’
[6]†“You have heard; now see all this;
and will you not declare it?
From this time forth I announce to you new things,
hidden things that you have not known.
[7]They are created now, not long ago;
before today you have never heard of them,
lest you should say, ‘Behold, I knew them.’
[8]You have never heard, you have never known,
from of old your ear has not been opened.
For I knew that you would surely deal treacherously,
and that from before birth you were called a rebel.
[9]†“For my name's sake I defer my anger, for the sake of my praise I restrain it for you,
that I may not cut you off.

[10]‡Behold, I have refined you, but not as silver;
I have tried [1] you in the furnace of affliction.
[11]For my own sake, for my own sake, I do it,
for how should my name [2] be profaned?
My glory I will not give to another.

The LORD's Call to Israel

[12]“Listen to me, O Jacob, and Israel, whom I called!
I am he; I am the first,
and I am the last.
[13]My hand laid the foundation of the earth,
and my right hand spread out the heavens;
when I call to them,
they stand forth together.
[14]‡“Assemble, all of you, and listen!
Who among them has declared these things?
The LORD loves him;
he shall perform his purpose on Babylon,
and his arm shall be against the Chaldeans.
[15]I, even I, have spoken and called him;
I have brought him, and he will prosper in his way.
[16]‡Draw near to me, hear this:
from the beginning I have not spoken in secret,
from the time it came to be I have been there.”
And now the Lord GOD has sent me, and his Spirit.
[17]‡Thus says the LORD,
your Redeemer, the Holy One of Israel:
“I am the LORD your God,
who teaches you to profit,
who leads you in the way you should go.
[18]Oh that you had paid attention to my commandments!
Then your peace would have been like a river,
and your righteousness like the waves of the sea;
[19]‡your offspring would have been like the sand,
and your descendants like its grains;

their name would never be cut off or destroyed from before me.”
[20]†Go out from Babylon, flee from Chaldea, declare this with a shout of joy, proclaim it,
send it out to the end of the earth;
say, “The LORD has redeemed his servant Jacob!” [21]†They did not thirst when he led them through the deserts;
he made water flow for them from the rock;
he split the rock and the water gushed out.
[22]†“There is no peace,” says the LORD, “for the wicked.”

The Servant of the LORD

ISAIAH 49 ‡‡†Listen to me, O coastlands, and give attention, you peoples from afar.
The LORD called me from the womb,
from the body of my mother he named my name.
[2]†He made my mouth like a sharp sword;
in the shadow of his hand he hid me;
he made me a polished arrow;
in his quiver he hid me away.
[3]†And he said to me, “You are my servant,
Israel, in whom I will be glorified.” [1]
[4]†But I said, “I have labored in vain;
I have spent my strength for nothing and vanity;
yet surely my right is with the LORD,
and my recompense with my God.”
[5]†And now the LORD says,
he who formed me from the womb to be his servant,
to bring Jacob back to him;
and that Israel might be gathered to him—
for I am honored in the eyes of the LORD, and my God has become my strength—
[6]†he says:
“It is too light a thing that you should be my servant
to raise up the tribes of Jacob and to bring back the preserved of Israel;
I will make you as a light for the nations,
that my salvation may reach to the end of the earth.”
[7]†Thus says the LORD,
the Redeemer of Israel and his Holy One,
to one deeply despised, abhorred by the nation,
the servant of rulers:
“Kings shall see and arise;
princes, and they shall prostrate themselves;
because of the LORD, who is faithful,

the Holy One of Israel, who has chosen you.”

The Restoration of Israel

[8]†Thus says the LORD:
“In a time of favor I have answered you;
in a day of salvation I have helped you;
I will keep you and give you
as a covenant to the people,
to establish the land,
to apportion the desolate heritages, [9]‡saying to the prisoners, ‘Come out,’
to those who are in darkness, ‘Appear.’
They shall feed along the ways;
on all bare heights shall be their pasture;
[10]they shall not hunger or thirst,
neither scorching wind nor sun shall strike them,
for he who has pity on them will lead them,
and by springs of water will guide them.
[11]And I will make all my mountains a road,
and my highways shall be raised up.
[12]†Behold, these shall come from afar, and behold, these from the north and from the west, [2]
and these from the land of Syene.” [3] [13]†Sing for joy, O heavens, and exult, O earth;
break forth, O mountains, into singing!
For the LORD has comforted his people
and will have compassion on his afflicted.
[14]†But Zion said, “The LORD has forsaken me;
my Lord has forgotten me.”
[15]“Can a woman forget her nursing child, that she should have no compassion on the son of her womb?
Even these may forget,
yet I will not forget you.
[16]†Behold, I have engraved you on the palms of my hands;
your walls are continually before me.
[17]‡Your builders make haste; [4]

your destroyers and those who laid you waste go out from you.
[18]Lift up your eyes around and see;
they all gather, they come to you.
As I live, declares the LORD,
you shall put them all on as an ornament;
you shall bind them on as a bride does.
[19]†“Surely your waste and your desolate places and your devastated land—
surely now you will be too narrow for your inhabitants, and those who swallowed you up will be far away.
[20]The children of your bereavement will yet say in your ears:
‘The place is too narrow for me;
make room for me to dwell in.’
[21]Then you will say in your heart:
‘Who has borne me these?
I was bereaved and barren,
exiled and put away,
but who has brought up these?
Behold, I was left alone;
from where have these come?’”
[22]†Thus says the Lord GOD:
“Behold, I will lift up my hand to the nations,
and raise my signal to the peoples;
and they shall bring your sons in their bosom,
and your daughters shall be carried on their shoulders.
[23]Kings shall be your foster fathers,
and their queens your nursing mothers.
With their faces to the ground they shall bow down to you,
and lick the dust of your feet.
Then you will know that I am the LORD;
those who wait for me shall not be put to shame.”
[24]†Can the prey be taken from the mighty,
or the captives of a tyrant [5] be rescued?
[25]†For thus says the LORD:
“Even the captives of the mighty shall be taken,
and the prey of the tyrant be rescued,

for I will contend with those who contend with you,
and I will save your children.
[26]†I will make your oppressors eat their own flesh,
and they shall be drunk with their own blood as with wine.
Then all flesh shall know that I am the LORD your Savior,
and your Redeemer, the Mighty One of Jacob.”

Israel's Sin and the Servant's Obedience

ISAIAH 50 ‡Thus says the LORD:
“Where is your mother's certificate of divorce,
with which I sent her away?
Or which of my creditors is it to whom I have sold you?
Behold, for your iniquities you were sold,
and for your transgressions your mother was sent away.
[2]‡Why, when I came, was there no man;
why, when I called, was there no one to answer?
Is my hand shortened, that it cannot redeem?
Or have I no power to deliver?
Behold, by my rebuke I dry up the sea,
I make the rivers a desert;
their fish stink for lack of water
and die of thirst.
[3]I clothe the heavens with blackness and make sackcloth their covering.”
[4]‡The Lord GOD has given me
the tongue of those who are taught, that I may know how to sustain with a word
him who is weary.
Morning by morning he awakens;
he awakens my ear
to hear as those who are taught.
[5]The Lord GOD has opened my ear,
and I was not rebellious;
I turned not backward.
[6]‡I gave my back to those who strike,
and my cheeks to those who pull out the beard;
I hid not my face
from disgrace and spitting.
[7]‡But the Lord GOD helps me;
therefore I have not been disgraced;

therefore I have set my face like a flint,
and I know that I shall not be put to shame.
[8]‡He who vindicates me is near.
Who will contend with me?
Let us stand up together.
Who is my adversary?
Let him come near to me.
[9]Behold, the Lord GOD helps me;
who will declare me guilty?
Behold, all of them will wear out like a garment;
the moth will eat them up.
[10]‡Who among you fears the LORD and obeys the voice of his servant?
Let him who walks in darkness and has no light trust in the name of the LORD and rely on his God.
[11]Behold, all you who kindle a fire,
who equip yourselves with burning torches!
Walk by the light of your fire,
and by the torches that you have kindled!
This you have from my hand:
you shall lie down in torment.

The LORD's Comfort for Zion

ISAIAH 51 ‡“Listen to me, you who pursue righteousness, you who seek the LORD:
look to the rock from which you were hewn,
and to the quarry from which you were dug.
[2]Look to Abraham your father and to Sarah who bore you;
for he was but one when I called him,
that I might bless him and multiply him.
[3]†For the LORD comforts Zion;
he comforts all her waste places and makes her wilderness like Eden,
her desert like the garden of the LORD;
joy and gladness will be found in her,
thanksgiving and the voice of song.
[4]‡“Give attention to me, my people,
and give ear to me, my nation;
for a law [1] will go out from me,
and I will set my justice for a light to the peoples.
[5]†My righteousness draws near,
my salvation has gone out,
and my arms will judge the peoples;
the coastlands hope for me,
and for my arm they wait.
[6]†Lift up your eyes to the heavens,
and look at the earth beneath;
for the heavens vanish like smoke,
the earth will wear out like a garment,
and they who dwell in it will die in like manner; [2]
but my salvation will be forever,
and my righteousness will never be dismayed.
[7]‡“Listen to me, you who know righteousness,
the people in whose heart is my law;
fear not the reproach of man,

nor be dismayed at their revilings.
[8]For the moth will eat them up like a garment,
and the worm will eat them like wool;
but my righteousness will be forever,
and my salvation to all generations.”
[9]‡Awake, awake, put on strength,
O arm of the LORD;
awake, as in days of old,
the generations of long ago.
Was it not you who cut Rahab in pieces,
who pierced the dragon?
[10]Was it not you who dried up the sea,
the waters of the great deep,
who made the depths of the sea a way
for the redeemed to pass over?
[11]‡And the ransomed of the LORD shall return
and come to Zion with singing;
everlasting joy shall be upon their heads;
they shall obtain gladness and joy,
and sorrow and sighing shall flee away.
[12]“I, I am he who comforts you;
who are you that you are afraid of man who dies,
of the son of man who is made like grass, [13]and have forgotten the LORD, your Maker, who stretched out the heavens
and laid the foundations of the earth, and you fear continually all the day
because of the wrath of the oppressor,
when he sets himself to destroy?
And where is the wrath of the oppressor?
[14]He who is bowed down shall speedily be released;
he shall not die and go down to the pit,
neither shall his bread be lacking.
[15]I am the LORD your God,
who stirs up the sea so that its waves roar—
the LORD of hosts is his name.
[16]‡And I have put my words in your mouth and covered you in the shadow of my hand, establishing [3] the heavens

and laying the foundations of the earth, and saying to Zion, ‘You are my people.’” [17]‡Wake yourself, wake yourself, stand up, O Jerusalem,
you who have drunk from the hand of the LORD
the cup of his wrath,
who have drunk to the dregs
the bowl, the cup of staggering.
[18]There is none to guide her among all the sons she has borne;
there is none to take her by the hand
among all the sons she has brought up.
[19]†These two things have happened to you—who will console you?—
devastation and destruction, famine and sword;
who will comfort you? [4] [20]†Your sons have fainted;
they lie at the head of every street
like an antelope in a net;
they are full of the wrath of the LORD,
the rebuke of your God.
[21]‡Therefore hear this, you who are afflicted,
who are drunk, but not with wine:
[22]Thus says your Lord, the LORD, your God who pleads the cause of his people:
“Behold, I have taken from your hand the cup of staggering;
the bowl of my wrath you shall drink no more;
[23]and I will put it into the hand of your tormentors,
who have said to you,
‘Bow down, that we may pass over’;
and you have made your back like the ground and like the street for them to pass over.”

The LORD's Coming Salvation

ISAIAH 52 ‡Awake, awake, put on your strength, O Zion;
put on your beautiful garments,
O Jerusalem, the holy city;
for there shall no more come into you
the uncircumcised and the unclean.
[2]Shake yourself from the dust and arise;
be seated, O Jerusalem;
loose the bonds from your neck,
O captive daughter of Zion.

[3]†For thus says the LORD: “You were sold for nothing, and you shall be redeemed without money.” [4]For thus says the Lord GOD: “My people went down at the first into Egypt to sojourn there, and the Assyrian oppressed them for nothing. [5]†Now therefore what have I here,” declares the LORD, “seeing that my people are taken away for nothing? Their rulers wail,” declares the LORD, “and continually all the day my name is despised. [6]†Therefore my people shall know my name. Therefore in that day they shall know that it is I who speak; here am I.”

[7]†How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him who brings good news, who publishes peace, who brings good news of happiness,
who publishes salvation,
who says to Zion, “Your God reigns.”
[8]†The voice of your watchmen—they lift up their voice;
together they sing for joy;
for eye to eye they see the return of the LORD to Zion.
[9]‡Break forth together into singing,
you waste places of Jerusalem,
for the LORD has comforted his people;
he has redeemed Jerusalem.
[10]The LORD has bared his holy arm

before the eyes of all the nations, and all the ends of the earth shall see
the salvation of our God.
[11]†Depart, depart, go out from there;
touch no unclean thing;
go out from the midst of her; purify yourselves,
you who bear the vessels of the LORD.
[12]†For you shall not go out in haste,
and you shall not go in flight,
for the LORD will go before you,
and the God of Israel will be your rear guard.

He Was Wounded for Our Transgressions

[13]‡‡†Behold, my servant shall act wisely; [1]
he shall be high and lifted up,
and shall be exalted.
[14]†As many were astonished at you—
his appearance was so marred, beyond human semblance,
and his form beyond that of the children of mankind—[15]†so shall he sprinkle [2] many nations;
kings shall shut their mouths because of him;
for that which has not been told them they see,
and that which they have not heard they understand.

ISAIAH 53 †Who has believed what he has heard from us? [1]
And to whom has the arm of the LORD been revealed?
[2]†For he grew up before him like a young plant,
and like a root out of dry ground;
he had no form or majesty that we should look at him,
and no beauty that we should desire him.
[3]†He was despised and rejected [2] by men;
a man of sorrows, [3] and acquainted with [4] grief; [5]
and as one from whom men hide their faces [6]
he was despised, and we esteemed him not.
[4]†Surely he has borne our griefs
and carried our sorrows;
yet we esteemed him stricken,
smitten by God, and afflicted.
[5]†But he was wounded for our transgressions;
he was crushed for our iniquities;
upon him was the chastisement that brought us peace,
and with his stripes we are healed.
[6]†All we like sheep have gone astray;
we have turned—every one—to his own way;
and the LORD has laid on him
the iniquity of us all.
[7]††He was oppressed, and he was afflicted,
yet he opened not his mouth;
like a lamb that is led to the slaughter,
and like a sheep that before its shearers is silent,
so he opened not his mouth.
[8]†By oppression and judgment he was taken away;
and as for his generation, who considered that he was cut off out of the land of the living, stricken for the transgression of my people?
[9]†And they made his grave with the wicked and with a rich man in his death,
although he had done no violence,
and there was no deceit in his mouth.
[10]†Yet it was the will of the LORD to crush him;
he has put him to grief; [7]

when his soul makes [8] an offering for guilt,
he shall see his offspring; he shall prolong his days;
the will of the LORD shall prosper in his hand.
11 †Out of the anguish of his soul he shall see [9] and be satisfied;
by his knowledge shall the righteous one, my servant,
make many to be accounted righteous,
and he shall bear their iniquities.
12 †Therefore I will divide him a portion with the many, [10]
and he shall divide the spoil with the strong, [11]
because he poured out his soul to death and was numbered with the transgressors;
yet he bore the sin of many,
and makes intercession for the transgressors.

The Eternal Covenant of Peace

ISAIAH 54 ‡“Sing, O barren one, who did not bear;
break forth into singing and cry aloud,
you who have not been in labor!
For the children of the desolate one will be more than the children of her who is married,” says the Lord.
[2]‡“Enlarge the place of your tent,
and let the curtains of your habitations be stretched out;
do not hold back; lengthen your cords
and strengthen your stakes.
[3]‡For you will spread abroad to the right and to the left,
and your offspring will possess the nations
and will people the desolate cities.
[4]‡“Fear not, for you will not be ashamed;
be not confounded, for you will not be disgraced;
for you will forget the shame of your youth,
and the reproach of your widowhood you will remember no more.
[5]‡For your Maker is your husband,
the Lord of hosts is his name;
and the Holy One of Israel is your Redeemer,
the God of the whole earth he is called.
[6]‡For the Lord has called you like a wife deserted and grieved in spirit, like a wife of youth when she is cast off,
says your God.
[7]For a brief moment I deserted you,
but with great compassion I will gather you.
[8]In overflowing anger for a moment
I hid my face from you,
but with everlasting love I will have compassion on you,”
says the Lord, your Redeemer.
[9]‡“This is like the days of Noah [1] to me:
as I swore that the waters of Noah should no more go over the earth,

so I have sworn that I will not be angry with you,
and will not rebuke you.
[10]‡For the mountains may depart and the hills be removed,
but my steadfast love shall not depart from you,
and my covenant of peace shall not be removed,”
says the LORD, who has compassion on you.
[11]‡“O afflicted one, storm-tossed and not comforted, behold, I will set your stones in antimony,
and lay your foundations with sapphires. [2] [12]I will make your pinnacles of agate, [3]
your gates of carbuncles, [4]
and all your wall of precious stones.
[13]All your children shall be taught by the LORD,
and great shall be the peace of your children.
[14]In righteousness you shall be established;
you shall be far from oppression, for you shall not fear;
and from terror, for it shall not come near you.
[15]‡If anyone stirs up strife,
it is not from me;
whoever stirs up strife with you shall fall because of you.
[16]Behold, I have created the smith who blows the fire of coals and produces a weapon for its purpose.
I have also created the ravager to destroy;
[17]no weapon that is fashioned against you shall succeed,
and you shall confute every tongue that rises against you in judgment.
This is the heritage of the servants of the LORD and their vindication [5] from me, declares the LORD.”

The Compassion of the LORD

ISAIAH 55 ‡“Come, everyone who thirsts, come to the waters;
and he who has no money,
come, buy and eat!
Come, buy wine and milk
without money and without price.
[2]‡Why do you spend your money for that which is not bread,
and your labor for that which does not satisfy?
Listen diligently to me, and eat what is good,
and delight yourselves in rich food.
[3]‡Incline your ear, and come to me;
hear, that your soul may live;
and I will make with you an everlasting covenant,
my steadfast, sure love for David.
[4]Behold, I made him a witness to the peoples,
a leader and commander for the peoples.
[5]Behold, you shall call a nation that you do not know,
and a nation that did not know you shall run to you, because of the LORD your God, and of the Holy One of Israel,
for he has glorified you.
[6]‡“Seek the LORD while he may be found;
call upon him while he is near;
[7]‡let the wicked forsake his way,
and the unrighteous man his thoughts;
let him return to the LORD, that he may have compassion on him,
and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon.
[8]‡For my thoughts are not your thoughts,
neither are your ways my ways, declares the LORD.
[9]For as the heavens are higher than the earth,
so are my ways higher than your ways and my thoughts than your thoughts.
[10]‡“For as the rain and the snow come down from heaven and do not return there but water the earth, making it bring forth and sprout,

giving seed to the sower and bread to the eater, [11]so shall my word be that goes out from my mouth;
it shall not return to me empty,
but it shall accomplish that which I purpose,
and shall succeed in the thing for which I sent it.
[12]†“For you shall go out in joy and be led forth in peace;
the mountains and the hills before you shall break forth into singing, and all the trees of the field shall clap their hands.
[13]†Instead of the thorn shall come up the cypress;
instead of the brier shall come up the myrtle;
and it shall make a name for the LORD,
an everlasting sign that shall not be cut off.”

Salvation for Foreigners

ISAIAH 56 †Thus says the LORD:
“Keep justice, and do righteousness,
for soon my salvation will come,
and my deliverance be revealed.
[2]†Blessed is the man who does this,
and the son of man who holds it fast,
who keeps the Sabbath, not profaning it,
and keeps his hand from doing any evil.”
[3]†Let not the foreigner who has joined himself to the LORD say,
“The LORD will surely separate me from his people”;
and let not the eunuch say, “Behold, I am a dry tree.”
[4]‡For thus says the LORD:
“To the eunuchs who keep my Sabbaths, who choose the things that please me
and hold fast my covenant, [5]I will give in my house and within my walls
a monument and a name better than sons and daughters;
I will give them an everlasting name
that shall not be cut off.
[6]‡“And the foreigners who join themselves to the LORD, to minister to him, to love the name of the LORD,
and to be his servants,
everyone who keeps the Sabbath and does not profane it,
and holds fast my covenant—
[7]†these I will bring to my holy mountain, and make them joyful in my house of prayer;
their burnt offerings and their sacrifices will be accepted on my altar;
for my house shall be called a house of prayer for all peoples.”
[8]†The Lord GOD,

who gathers the outcasts of Israel, declares, “I will gather yet others to him besides those already gathered.”

Israel's Irresponsible Leaders

[9]‡‡All you beasts of the field, come to devour—
all you beasts in the forest.
[10]His watchmen are blind;
they are all without knowledge;
they are all silent dogs;
they cannot bark,
dreaming, lying down,
loving to slumber.
[11]The dogs have a mighty appetite;
they never have enough.
But they are shepherds who have no understanding;
they have all turned to their own way,
each to his own gain, one and all.
[12]‡“Come,” they say, “let me get wine;
let us fill ourselves with strong drink;
and tomorrow will be like this day,
great beyond measure.”

Israel's Futile Idolatry

ISAIAH 57 ‡The righteous man perishes, and no one lays it to heart;
devout men are taken away,
while no one understands.
For the righteous man is taken away from calamity;
[2]he enters into peace;
they rest in their beds
who walk in their uprightness.
[3]†But you, draw near,
sons of the sorceress,
offspring of the adulterer and the loose woman.
[4]†Whom are you mocking?
Against whom do you open your mouth wide
and stick out your tongue?
Are you not children of transgression,
the offspring of deceit,
[5]‡you who burn with lust among the oaks, [1]
under every green tree,
who slaughter your children in the valleys,
under the clefts of the rocks?
[6]Among the smooth stones of the valley is your portion;
they, they, are your lot;
to them you have poured out a drink offering,
you have brought a grain offering.
Shall I relent for these things?
[7]‡On a high and lofty mountain
you have set your bed,
and there you went up to offer sacrifice.
[8]Behind the door and the doorpost
you have set up your memorial;
for, deserting me, you have uncovered your bed,
you have gone up to it,
you have made it wide;

and you have made a covenant for yourself with them,
you have loved their bed,
you have looked on nakedness. [2] [9]†You journeyed to the king with oil and multiplied your perfumes;
you sent your envoys far off,
and sent down even to Sheol.
[10]†You were wearied with the length of your way,
but you did not say, “It is hopeless”;
you found new life for your strength,
and so you were not faint. [3] [11]†Whom did you dread and fear,
so that you lied,
and did not remember me,
did not lay it to heart?
Have I not held my peace, even for a long time,
and you do not fear me?
[12]‡I will declare your righteousness and your deeds,
but they will not profit you.
[13]When you cry out, let your collection of idols deliver you!
The wind will carry them off,
a breath will take them away.
But he who takes refuge in me shall possess the land and shall inherit my holy mountain.

Comfort for the Contrite

[14]‡†And it shall be said, “Build up, build up, prepare the way,
remove every obstruction from my people's way.” [15]‡For thus says the One who is high and lifted up, who inhabits eternity, whose name is Holy:
“I dwell in the high and holy place,
and also with him who is of a contrite and lowly spirit,
to revive the spirit of the lowly,
and to revive the heart of the contrite.
[16]For I will not contend forever,

nor will I always be angry;
for the spirit would grow faint before me,
and the breath of life that I made.
[17]†Because of the iniquity of his unjust gain I was angry,
I struck him; I hid my face and was angry,
but he went on backsliding in the way of his own heart.
[18]I have seen his ways, but I will heal him;
I will lead him and restore comfort to him and his mourners, [19]†creating the fruit of the lips.
Peace, peace, to the far and to the near,” says the LORD,
“and I will heal him.
[20]†But the wicked are like the tossing sea;
for it cannot be quiet,
and its waters toss up mire and dirt.
[21]There is no peace,” says my God, “for the wicked.”

True and False Fasting

ISAIAH 58 ‡‡†“Cry aloud; do not hold back;
lift up your voice like a trumpet;
declare to my people their transgression,
to the house of Jacob their sins.
[2]†Yet they seek me daily and delight to know my ways,
as if they were a nation that did righteousness and did not forsake the judgment of their God;
they ask of me righteous judgments;
they delight to draw near to God.
[3]‡‘Why have we fasted, and you see it not?
Why have we humbled ourselves, and you take no knowledge of it?’
Behold, in the day of your fast you seek your own pleasure, [1]
and oppress all your workers.
[4]Behold, you fast only to quarrel and to fight and to hit with a wicked fist.
Fasting like yours this day will not make your voice to be heard on high.
[5]Is such the fast that I choose,
a day for a person to humble himself?
Is it to bow down his head like a reed,
and to spread sackcloth and ashes under him?
Will you call this a fast,
and a day acceptable to the LORD?
[6]“Is not this the fast that I choose:
to loose the bonds of wickedness,
to undo the straps of the yoke,
to let the oppressed [2] go free,
and to break every yoke?
[7]Is it not to share your bread with the hungry and bring the homeless poor into your house;
when you see the naked, to cover him,

and not to hide yourself from your own flesh?
[8]†Then shall your light break forth like the dawn,
and your healing shall spring up speedily;
your righteousness shall go before you;
the glory of the LORD shall be your rear guard.
[9]†Then you shall call, and the LORD will answer;
you shall cry, and he will say, ‘Here I am.’
If you take away the yoke from your midst,
the pointing of the finger, and speaking wickedness, [10]if you pour yourself out for the hungry and satisfy the desire of the afflicted, then shall your light rise in the darkness
and your gloom be as the noonday.
[11]And the LORD will guide you continually and satisfy your desire in scorched places and make your bones strong;
and you shall be like a watered garden,
like a spring of water,
whose waters do not fail.
[12]†And your ancient ruins shall be rebuilt;
you shall raise up the foundations of many generations;
you shall be called the repairer of the breach,
the restorer of streets to dwell in.
[13]†“If you turn back your foot from the Sabbath, from doing your pleasure [3] on my holy day,
and call the Sabbath a delight and the holy day of the LORD honorable;
if you honor it, not going your own ways,
or seeking your own pleasure, [4] or talking idly; [5] [14]†then you shall take delight in the LORD, and I will make you ride on the heights of the earth; [6]
I will feed you with the heritage of Jacob your father,
for the mouth of the LORD has spoken.”

Evil and Oppression

ISAIAH 59 ‡Behold, the LORD's hand is not shortened, that it cannot save,
or his ear dull, that it cannot hear;
[2]‡but your iniquities have made a separation between you and your God,
and your sins have hidden his face from you
so that he does not hear.
[3]For your hands are defiled with blood and your fingers with iniquity;
your lips have spoken lies;
your tongue mutters wickedness.
[4]No one enters suit justly;
no one goes to law honestly;
they rely on empty pleas, they speak lies,
they conceive mischief and give birth to iniquity.
[5]‡They hatch adders' eggs;
they weave the spider's web;
he who eats their eggs dies,
and from one that is crushed a viper is hatched.
[6]‡Their webs will not serve as clothing;
men will not cover themselves with what they make.
Their works are works of iniquity,
and deeds of violence are in their hands.
[7]‡Their feet run to evil,
and they are swift to shed innocent blood;
their thoughts are thoughts of iniquity;
desolation and destruction are in their highways.
[8]The way of peace they do not know,
and there is no justice in their paths;
they have made their roads crooked;
no one who treads on them knows peace.
[9]Therefore justice is far from us,
and righteousness does not overtake us;

we hope for light, and behold, darkness,
and for brightness, but we walk in gloom.
[10]‡We grope for the wall like the blind;
we grope like those who have no eyes;
we stumble at noon as in the twilight,
among those in full vigor we are like dead men.
[11]We all growl like bears;
we moan and moan like doves;
we hope for justice, but there is none;
for salvation, but it is far from us.
[12]‡For our transgressions are multiplied before you,
and our sins testify against us;
for our transgressions are with us,
and we know our iniquities:
[13]transgressing, and denying the LORD,
and turning back from following our God,
speaking oppression and revolt,
conceiving and uttering from the heart lying words.
[14]Justice is turned back,
and righteousness stands far away;
for truth has stumbled in the public squares,
and uprightness cannot enter.
[15]‡†Truth is lacking,
and he who departs from evil makes himself a prey.

Judgment and Redemption

The LORD saw it, and it displeased him [1]
that there was no justice.
[16]He saw that there was no man,
and wondered that there was no one to intercede;
then his own arm brought him salvation,
and his righteousness upheld him.
[17]‡†He put on righteousness as a breastplate, and a helmet of salvation on his head;
he put on garments of vengeance for clothing,
and wrapped himself in zeal as a cloak.

[18]According to their deeds, so will he repay, wrath to his adversaries, repayment to his enemies;
to the coastlands he will render repayment.
[19]†So they shall fear the name of the Lord from the west,
and his glory from the rising of the sun;
for he will come like a rushing stream, [2]
which the wind of the Lord drives.
[20]‡“And a Redeemer will come to Zion, to those in Jacob who turn from transgression,” declares the Lord.

[21]†“And as for me, this is my covenant with them,” says the Lord: “My Spirit that is upon you, and my words that I have put in your mouth, shall not depart out of your mouth, or out of the mouth of your offspring, or out of the mouth of your children's offspring,” says the Lord, “from this time forth and forevermore.”

The Future Glory of Israel

ISAIAH 60 ‡Arise, shine, for your light has come,
and the glory of the LORD has risen upon you.
[2]For behold, darkness shall cover the earth,
and thick darkness the peoples;
but the LORD will arise upon you,
and his glory will be seen upon you.
[3]†And nations shall come to your light,
and kings to the brightness of your rising.
[4]†Lift up your eyes all around, and see;
they all gather together, they come to you;
your sons shall come from afar,
and your daughters shall be carried on the hip.
[5]†Then you shall see and be radiant;
your heart shall thrill and exult, [1]
because the abundance of the sea shall be turned to you,
the wealth of the nations shall come to you.
[6]†A multitude of camels shall cover you,
the young camels of Midian and Ephah;
all those from Sheba shall come.
They shall bring gold and frankincense,
and shall bring good news, the praises of the LORD.
[7]†All the flocks of Kedar shall be gathered to you;
the rams of Nebaioth shall minister to you;
they shall come up with acceptance on my altar,
and I will beautify my beautiful house.
[8]†Who are these that fly like a cloud,
and like doves to their windows?
[9]†For the coastlands shall hope for me,
the ships of Tarshish first,
to bring your children from afar,
their silver and gold with them,
for the name of the LORD your God,
and for the Holy One of Israel,

because he has made you beautiful.
[10]†Foreigners shall build up your walls,
and their kings shall minister to you;
for in my wrath I struck you,
but in my favor I have had mercy on you.
[11]†Your gates shall be open continually;
day and night they shall not be shut,
that people may bring to you the wealth of the nations,
with their kings led in procession.
[12]†For the nation and kingdom that will not serve you shall perish;
those nations shall be utterly laid waste.
[13]†The glory of Lebanon shall come to you,
the cypress, the plane, and the pine,
to beautify the place of my sanctuary,
and I will make the place of my feet glorious.
[14]†The sons of those who afflicted you shall come bending low to you,
and all who despised you shall bow down at your feet;
they shall call you the City of the LORD,
the Zion of the Holy One of Israel.
[15]†Whereas you have been forsaken and hated,
with no one passing through,
I will make you majestic forever,
a joy from age to age.
[16]†You shall suck the milk of nations;
you shall nurse at the breast of kings;
and you shall know that I, the LORD, am your Savior
and your Redeemer, the Mighty One of Jacob.
[17]†Instead of bronze I will bring gold,
and instead of iron I will bring silver;
instead of wood, bronze,
instead of stones, iron.
I will make your overseers peace
and your taskmasters righteousness.
[18]†Violence shall no more be heard in your land, devastation or destruction within your borders;

you shall call your walls Salvation,
and your gates Praise.
[19]†The sun shall be no more your light by day,
nor for brightness shall the moon
give you light; [2]
but the LORD will be your everlasting light, and your God will be your glory. [3] [20]†Your sun shall no more go down, nor your moon withdraw itself;
for the LORD will be your everlasting light,
and your days of mourning shall be ended.
[21]†Your people shall all be righteous;
they shall possess the land forever,
the branch of my planting, the work of my hands,
that I might be glorified. [4] [22]†The least one shall become a clan, and the smallest one a mighty nation;
I am the LORD;
in its time I will hasten it.

The Year of the LORD's Favor

ISAIAH 61 ‡†The Spirit of the Lord GOD is upon me, because the LORD has anointed me
to bring good news to the poor; [1]
he has sent me to bind up the brokenhearted, to proclaim liberty to the captives,
and the opening of the prison to those who are bound; [2] 2 †to proclaim the year of the LORD's favor, and the day of vengeance of our God;
to comfort all who mourn;
3 †to grant to those who mourn in Zion—
to give them a beautiful headdress instead of ashes,
the oil of gladness instead of mourning,
the garment of praise instead of a faint spirit;
that they may be called oaks of righteousness,
the planting of the LORD, that he may be glorified. [3] 4 †They shall build up the ancient ruins;
they shall raise up the former devastations;
they shall repair the ruined cities,
the devastations of many generations.
5 Strangers shall stand and tend your flocks;
foreigners shall be your plowmen and vinedressers;
6 †but you shall be called the priests of the LORD;
they shall speak of you as the ministers of our God;
you shall eat the wealth of the nations,
and in their glory you shall boast.
7 †Instead of your shame there shall be a double portion;
instead of dishonor they shall rejoice in their lot;
therefore in their land they shall possess a double portion;
they shall have everlasting joy.
8 †For I the LORD love justice;
I hate robbery and wrong; [4]
I will faithfully give them their recompense, and I will make an everlasting covenant with them.

[9]Their offspring shall be known among the nations,
and their descendants in the midst of the peoples;
all who see them shall acknowledge them,
that they are an offspring the LORD has blessed.
[10]†I will greatly rejoice in the LORD;
my soul shall exult in my God,
for he has clothed me with the garments of salvation;
he has covered me with the robe of righteousness,
as a bridegroom decks himself like a priest with a beautiful headdress,
and as a bride adorns herself with her jewels.
[11]For as the earth brings forth its sprouts,
and as a garden causes what is sown in it to sprout up,
so the Lord GOD will cause righteousness and praise to sprout up before all the nations.

Zion's Coming Salvation

ISAIAH 62 ‡For Zion's sake I will not keep silent, and for Jerusalem's sake I will not be quiet,
until her righteousness goes forth as brightness,
and her salvation as a burning torch.
[2]‡The nations shall see your righteousness,
and all the kings your glory,
and you shall be called by a new name that the mouth of the LORD will give.
[3]You shall be a crown of beauty in the hand of the LORD,
and a royal diadem in the hand of your God.
[4]‡You shall no more be termed Forsaken, [1]
and your land shall no more be termed Desolate, [2] but you shall be called My Delight Is in Her, [3] and your land Married; [4]
for the LORD delights in you,
and your land shall be married.
[5]‡For as a young man marries a young woman,
so shall your sons marry you,
and as the bridegroom rejoices over the bride,
so shall your God rejoice over you.
[6]‡On your walls, O Jerusalem,
I have set watchmen;
all the day and all the night
they shall never be silent.
You who put the LORD in remembrance,
take no rest,
[7]and give him no rest until he establishes Jerusalem and makes it a praise in the earth.
[8]‡The LORD has sworn by his right hand
and by his mighty arm:
“I will not again give your grain
to be food for your enemies, and foreigners shall not drink your wine

for which you have labored;
[9]†but those who garner it shall eat it and praise the LORD,
and those who gather it shall drink it
in the courts of my sanctuary.” [5] [10]†Go through, go through the gates;
prepare the way for the people;
build up, build up the highway;
clear it of stones;
lift up a signal over the peoples.
[11]†Behold, the LORD has proclaimed
to the end of the earth:
Say to the daughter of Zion, “Behold, your salvation comes;
behold, his reward is with him,
and his recompense before him.”
[12]†And they shall be called The Holy People,
The Redeemed of the LORD;
and you shall be called Sought Out,
A City Not Forsaken.

The LORD's Day of Vengeance

ISAIAH 63 ‡Who is this who comes from Edom, in crimsoned garments from Bozrah,
he who is splendid in his apparel,
marching in the greatness of his strength?
“It is I, speaking in righteousness, mighty to save.”
[2]Why is your apparel red,
and your garments like his who treads in the winepress?
[3]‡“I have trodden the winepress alone,
and from the peoples no one was with me;
I trod them in my anger
and trampled them in my wrath;
their lifeblood [1] spattered on my garments,
and stained all my apparel.
[4]‡For the day of vengeance was in my heart,
and my year of redemption [2] had come.
[5]‡I looked, but there was no one to help;
I was appalled, but there was no one to uphold;
so my own arm brought me salvation,
and my wrath upheld me.
[6]‡I trampled down the peoples in my anger;
I made them drunk in my wrath,
and I poured out their lifeblood on the earth.”

The LORD's Mercy Remembered

[7]‡‡‡I will recount the steadfast love of the LORD,
the praises of the LORD,
according to all that the LORD has granted us,
and the great goodness to the house of Israel
that he has granted them according to his compassion,
according to the abundance of his steadfast love.
[8]For he said, “Surely they are my people,

children who will not deal falsely.”
And he became their Savior.
[9]†In all their affliction he was afflicted, [3]
and the angel of his presence saved them;
in his love and in his pity he redeemed them;
he lifted them up and carried them all the days of old.
[10]†But they rebelled and grieved his Holy Spirit;
therefore he turned to be their enemy,
and himself fought against them.
[11]‡Then he remembered the days of old,
of Moses and his people. [4]
Where is he who brought them up out of the sea with the shepherds of his flock?
Where is he who put in the midst of them
his Holy Spirit,
[12]who caused his glorious arm to go at the right hand of Moses, who divided the waters before them
to make for himself an everlasting name, [13]who led them through the depths?
Like a horse in the desert,
they did not stumble.
[14]†Like livestock that go down into the valley,
the Spirit of the Lord gave them rest.
So you led your people,
to make for yourself a glorious name.

Prayer for Mercy

[15]‡†Look down from heaven and see,
from your holy and beautiful [5] habitation.
Where are your zeal and your might?
The stirring of your inner parts and your compassion are held back from me.
[16]†For you are our Father, though Abraham does not know us,

and Israel does not acknowledge us;
you, O LORD, are our Father,
our Redeemer from of old is your name.
17 †O LORD, why do you make us wander from your ways and harden our heart, so that we fear you not?
Return for the sake of your servants,
the tribes of your heritage.
18 †Your holy people held possession for a little while; [6]
our adversaries have trampled down your sanctuary.
19 †We have become like those over whom you have never ruled,
like those who are not called by your name.

ISAIAH 64 ‡‡Oh that you would rend the heavens and come down, that the mountains might quake at your presence—2 [1] as when fire kindles brushwood and the fire causes water to boil—
to make your name known to your adversaries,
and that the nations might tremble at your presence!
3†When you did awesome things that we did not look for,
you came down, the mountains quaked at your presence.
4†From of old no one has heard or perceived by the ear,
no eye has seen a God besides you,
who acts for those who wait for him.
5†You meet him who joyfully works righteousness,
those who remember you in your ways.
Behold, you were angry, and we sinned;
in our sins we have been a long time, and shall we be saved? [2] 6†We have all become like one who is unclean, and all our righteous deeds are like a polluted garment.
We all fade like a leaf,
and our iniquities, like the wind, take us away.
7‡There is no one who calls upon your name,
who rouses himself to take hold of you;
for you have hidden your face from us,
and have made us melt in [3] the hand of our iniquities.
8But now, O LORD, you are our Father;
we are the clay, and you are our potter;
we are all the work of your hand.
9Be not so terribly angry, O LORD,
and remember not iniquity forever.
Behold, please look, we are all your people.
10Your holy cities have become a wilderness;
Zion has become a wilderness,
Jerusalem a desolation.
11†Our holy and beautiful [4] house,
where our fathers praised you,
has been burned by fire,
and all our pleasant places have become ruins.

[12]Will you restrain yourself at these things, O LORD?
Will you keep silent, and afflict us so terribly?

Judgment and Salvation

ISAIAH 65 ‡†I was ready to be sought by those who did not ask for me;
I was ready to be found by those who did not seek me.
I said, “Here am I, here am I,”
to a nation that was not called by [1] my name.
[2]†I spread out my hands all the day
to a rebellious people,
who walk in a way that is not good,
following their own devices;
[3]‡a people who provoke me
to my face continually, sacrificing in gardens
and making offerings on bricks;
[4]who sit in tombs,
and spend the night in secret places;
who eat pig's flesh,
and broth of tainted meat is in their vessels;
[5]†who say, “Keep to yourself,
do not come near me, for I am too holy for you.”
These are a smoke in my nostrils,
a fire that burns all the day.
[6]†Behold, it is written before me:
“I will not keep silent, but I will repay;
I will indeed repay into their bosom
[7]both your iniquities and your fathers' iniquities together,
says the LORD;
because they made offerings on the mountains
and insulted me on the hills,
I will measure into their bosom payment for their former deeds.” [2]
[8]‡Thus says the LORD:
“As the new wine is found in the cluster,
and they say, ‘Do not destroy it,

for there is a blessing in it,’
so I will do for my servants' sake,
and not destroy them all.
[9]I will bring forth offspring from Jacob,
and from Judah possessors of my mountains;
my chosen shall possess it,
and my servants shall dwell there.
[10]†Sharon shall become a pasture for flocks,
and the Valley of Achor a place for herds to lie down,
for my people who have sought me.
[11]‡But you who forsake the LORD,
who forget my holy mountain, who set a table for Fortune
and fill cups of mixed wine for Destiny, [12]I will destine you to the sword,
and all of you shall bow down to the slaughter,
because, when I called, you did not answer;
when I spoke, you did not listen,
but you did what was evil in my eyes and chose what I did not delight in.”
[13]‡Therefore thus says the Lord GOD:
“Behold, my servants shall eat,
but you shall be hungry;
behold, my servants shall drink,
but you shall be thirsty;
behold, my servants shall rejoice,
but you shall be put to shame;
[14]behold, my servants shall sing for gladness of heart, but you shall cry out for pain of heart and shall wail for breaking of spirit.
[15]†You shall leave your name to my chosen for a curse,
and the Lord GOD will put you to death,
but his servants he will call by another name.
[16]†So that he who blesses himself in the land shall bless himself by the God of truth, and he who takes an oath in the land shall swear by the God of truth;

because the former troubles are forgotten
and are hidden from my eyes.

New Heavens and a New Earth

[17]††“For behold, I create new heavens and a new earth,
and the former things shall not be remembered
or come into mind.
[18]But be glad and rejoice forever
in that which I create;
for behold, I create Jerusalem to be a joy,
and her people to be a gladness.
[19]I will rejoice in Jerusalem and be glad in my people;
no more shall be heard in it the sound of weeping
and the cry of distress.
[20]†No more shall there be in it an infant who lives but a few days, or an old man who does not fill out his days,
for the young man shall die a hundred years old,
and the sinner a hundred years old shall be accursed.
[21]†They shall build houses and inhabit them;
they shall plant vineyards and eat their fruit.
[22]They shall not build and another inhabit;
they shall not plant and another eat;
for like the days of a tree shall the days of my people be,
and my chosen shall long enjoy [3] the work of their hands.
[23]†They shall not labor in vain or bear children for calamity, [4] for they shall be the offspring of the blessed of the LORD, and their descendants with them.
[24]†Before they call I will answer;
while they are yet speaking I will hear.
[25]†The wolf and the lamb shall graze together;
the lion shall eat straw like the ox,
and dust shall be the serpent's food.

They shall not hurt or destroy
        in all my holy mountain,”
says the LORD.

The Humble and Contrite in Spirit

ISAIAH 66 ‡Thus says the LORD:
“Heaven is my throne,
and the earth is my footstool;
what is the house that you would build for me,
and what is the place of my rest?
[2]All these things my hand has made,
and so all these things came to be,
declares the LORD.
But this is the one to whom I will look:
he who is humble and contrite in spirit
and trembles at my word.
[3]†“He who slaughters an ox is like one who kills a man;
he who sacrifices a lamb, like one who breaks a dog's neck;
he who presents a grain offering, like one who offers pig's blood;
he who makes a memorial offering of frankincense, like one who blesses an idol.
These have chosen their own ways,
and their soul delights in their abominations;
[4]I also will choose harsh treatment for them
and bring their fears upon them,
because when I called, no one answered,
when I spoke, they did not listen;
but they did what was evil in my eyes and chose that in which I did not delight.”
[5]†Hear the word of the LORD,
you who tremble at his word:
“Your brothers who hate you and cast you out for my name's sake have said, ‘Let the LORD be glorified, that we may see your joy’;
but it is they who shall be put to shame.
[6]“The sound of an uproar from the city!
A sound from the temple!

The sound of the LORD,
rendering recompense to his enemies!

Rejoice with Jerusalem

[7]†“Before she was in labor
she gave birth;
before her pain came upon her
she delivered a son.
[8]Who has heard such a thing?
Who has seen such things?
Shall a land be born in one day?
Shall a nation be brought forth in one moment?
For as soon as Zion was in labor
she brought forth her children.
[9]Shall I bring to the point of birth and not cause to bring forth?”
says the LORD;
“shall I, who cause to bring forth, shut the womb?”
says your God.
[10]“Rejoice with Jerusalem, and be glad for her,
all you who love her;
rejoice with her in joy,
all you who mourn over her;
[11]†that you may nurse and be satisfied
from her consoling breast;
that you may drink deeply with delight from her glorious abundance.” [1]
[12]†For thus says the LORD:
“Behold, I will extend peace to her like a river,
and the glory of the nations like an overflowing stream;
and you shall nurse, you shall be carried upon her hip,
and bounced upon her knees.
[13]As one whom his mother comforts,
so I will comfort you;
you shall be comforted in Jerusalem.
[14]†You shall see, and your heart shall rejoice;
your bones shall flourish like the grass;

and the hand of the LORD shall be known to his servants,
and he shall show his indignation against his enemies.

Final Judgment and Glory of the LORD

[15]†“For behold, the LORD will come in fire, and his chariots like the whirlwind,
to render his anger in fury,
and his rebuke with flames of fire.
[16]†For by fire will the LORD enter into judgment,
and by his sword, with all flesh;
and those slain by the LORD shall be many.

[17]†“Those who sanctify and purify themselves to go into the gardens, following one in the midst, eating pig's flesh and the abomination and mice, shall come to an end together, declares the LORD.

[18]†“For I know [2] their works and their thoughts, and the time is coming [3] to gather all nations and tongues. And they shall come and shall see my glory, [19]†and I will set a sign among them. And from them I will send survivors to the nations, to Tarshish, Pul, and Lud, who draw the bow, to Tubal and Javan, to the coastlands far away, that have not heard my fame or seen my glory. And they shall declare my glory among the nations. [20]†And they shall bring all your brothers from all the nations as an offering to the LORD, on horses and in chariots and in litters and on mules and on dromedaries, to my holy mountain Jerusalem, says the LORD, just as the Israelites bring their grain offering in a clean vessel to the house of the LORD. [21]†And some of them also I will take for priests and for Levites, says the LORD.

[22]†“For as the new heavens and the new earth that I make shall remain before me, says the LORD,
so shall your offspring and your name remain.
[23]†From new moon to new moon,
and from Sabbath to Sabbath,
all flesh shall come to worship before me,
declares the LORD.

[24] [†]“And they shall go out and look on the dead bodies of the men who have rebelled against me. For their worm shall not die, their fire shall not be quenched, and they shall be an abhorrence to all flesh.”

Study Notes

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 1:1 See Introduction: Title; Author and Date.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 1:2–9 This is a courtroom scene in which the Lord is the plaintiff and the nation of Israel is the defendant. Instead of responding to God's ultimate care and provision for them, these people have failed to give him the loving obedience that is his due.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 1:2 heavens . . . earth. God intended Israel to be a channel of blessing to the nations (19:24–25; 42:6; Gen. 12:2–3), but instead he must call the nations to look on Israel's shame. Children. The physical descendants of Abraham are God's chosen people, in spite of their disobedience (cf. Gen. 18:18–19).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 1:3 ox . . . donkey. Animals appear to have more powers of reason than God's people who break fellowship with him.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 1:4 the Holy One of Israel. This is Isaiah's special title for God, found 25 times in this book (1:4; 5:19, 24; 10:20; 12:6; 17:7; 29:19; 30:11, 12, 15; 31:1; 37:23; 41:14, 16, 20; 43:3, 14; 45:11; 47:4; 48:17; 49:7; 54:5; 55:5; 60:9, 14), but only six times in the rest of the OT (2 Kings 19:22; Ps. 71:22; 78:41; 89:18; Jer. 50:29; 51:5). Isaiah also uses "Holy One" as a title four times (10:17; 40:25; 43:15; 49:7) and "Holy One of Jacob" once (29:23). In many contexts the name contrasts the holiness of God with the sinfulness of Israel.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 1:5 Why . . . struck down? Already in ruins because of rebellion against God (vv. 7–8), the nation behaved irrationally by continuing their rebellion.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 1:8 daughter of Zion. The phrase occurs 28 times in the OT, six of which are in Isaiah (1:8; 10:32; 16:1; 37:22; 52:2; 62:11). It is a personification of Jerusalem, standing in this case for all of Judah.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 1:9 Lord of hosts. Isaiah used this title or the similar "Lord God of hosts" 60 times. It pictured God as a mighty warrior, a leader of armies, capable of conquering all of Israel's enemies and providing for her survival. survivors. Sometimes rendered "remnant," this term designated the faithful among the Israelites. Paul cited this verse to prove the ongoing existence of faithful Israelites even in his day (Rom. 9:29). Such a remnant will constitute the nucleus of returning Israelites in the nation's regathering when the Messiah returns to earth. See Isa. 10:20–22; Hos. 1:10–11. Sodom . . . Gomorrah. In destroying them, God rained brimstone and fire on these two Canaanite cities because of their aggravated sinfulness (Gen. 18:20; 19:24–28). The two thereby became a proverbial expression for the ultimate in God's temporal judgment against any people (e.g., Isa. 13:19; Deut. 29:23; Jer. 23:14; 49:18; 50:40; Amos 4:11; Zeph. 2:9; Matt. 10:15; 2 Pet. 2:6; Jude 7). Had God's grace not intervened, he would have judged Israel in the same way.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 1:10–17 The prophet applied the names of the sinful cities, Sodom and Gomorrah, to Judah and Jerusalem in decrying their empty formalism in worship. God found their activities utterly repulsive when they engaged in the rituals prescribed by Moses, because when doing so they persisted in iniquity.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 1:11 I have had enough . . . I do not delight. Cf. 1 Sam. 15:22–23. God found all sacrifices meaningless and even abhorrent if the offerer failed in obedience to his laws. Rebellion is equated to the sin of witchcraft and stubbornness to iniquity and idolatry.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 1:13–14 New moon and Sabbath and the calling of convocations . . . appointed feasts. These were all occasions prescribed by the law of Moses (cf. Ex. 12:16; Lev. 23; Num. 10:10; 28:11–29:40; Deut. 16:1–17).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 1:14 my soul hates. It is impossible to doubt the Lord's total aversion toward hypocritical religion. Other practices God hates include robbery for burnt offering (61:8), serving other gods (Jer. 44:4), harboring evil against a neighbor and love for a false oath (Zech. 8:16), divorce (Mal. 2:16), and the one who loves violence (Ps. 11:5).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 1:16–17 remove the evil . . . seek justice. The outward evidence of the emptiness of Jerusalem's ritualism was the presence of evil works and the absence of good works.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 1:17 the fatherless . . . the widow's. Illustrative of good works are deeds done on behalf of those in need (v. 23; Deut. 10:17–18; 14:29; 24:17–21; 26:12–13; 27:19; James 1:27).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 1:18–20 In developing his call for cleanliness in v. 16, the Lord pardoned the guilty who desire forgiveness and obedience. This section previews the last 27 chapters of Isaiah, which focus more on grace and forgiveness than on judgment.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 1:18 scarlet . . . crimson. The two colors speak of the guilt of those whose hands were "full of blood" (v. 15). Being covered with blood speaks of extreme iniquity and perversity (cf. 59:3; Ezek. 9:9–10; 23:37, 45). white as snow . . . like wool. Snow and wool are substances that are naturally white, and therefore portray what is clean, the blood-guilt (Isa. 1:15) having been removed (cf. Ps. 51:7). Isaiah was a prophet of grace, but forgiveness is not unconditional. It comes through repentance as Isa. 1:19 indicates.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 1:19–20 willing and obedient . . . refuse and rebel. The prophet offered his readers the same choice God gave Moses in Deut. 28, a choice between a blessing and a curse. They may choose repentance and obedience and reap the benefits of the land or refuse to do so and become victims of foreign oppressors. eat . . . be eaten. To accentuate the opposite outcomes, the Lord used the same Hebrew word to depict both destinies. On one hand, they may eat the fruit of the land; on the other, they may be eaten by conquering powers.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 1:21–31 Verses 21–23 recount Jerusalem's current disobedience, with an account of God's actions to purge her in vv. 24–31.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 1:21 whore. Often in the OT, spiritual harlotry pictured the idolatry of God's people (e.g., Jer. 2:20; 3:1; Hos. 2:2; 3:1; Ezek. 16:22–37). In this instance, however, Jerusalem's unfaithfulness incorporated a wider range of wrongs, including murders and general corruption (Isa.

1:21–23). justice . . . Righteousness. As Isaiah prophesied, ethical depravity had replaced the city’s former virtues.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 1:24 the Lord of hosts, the Mighty One of Israel. These titles of God emphasized his role as the rightful judge of his sinful people. “The Mighty One of Israel” occurs only here in the Bible, though “the Mighty One of Jacob” appears five times (49:26; 60:16; Gen. 49:24; Ps. 132:2, 5).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 1:25–26 I will . . . smelt away . . . I will restore. God’s judgment of his people has future restoration as its goal. They were subsequently restored from the Babylonian captivity (Jer. 29:10), but this promise has in view a greater and more lasting restoration. It anticipates a complete and permanent restoration, which will make Jerusalem supreme among the nations (Jer. 3:17; Ezek. 5:5; Mic. 4:2; Zech. 8:22; 14:16). The only such purging and restoration in Scripture is that spoken of in conjunction with the yet-future “time of distress for Jacob” (Jer. 30:6–7; i.e., Daniel’s seventieth week, cf. Dan. 9:24–27) and the second advent of the Messiah (Zech. 14:4).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 1:27 Zion. Originally a designation for the hill Ophel, this name became a synonym for the entire city of Jerusalem. Isaiah always uses it that way. be redeemed . . . those . . . who repent. That remnant of the city who repented of their sins would find redemption in conjunction with God’s future restoration of Israel’s prosperity (cf. 59:20).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 1:28 rebels . . . sinners . . . those who forsake. Concurrent with the future blessing of the faithful remnant, the Lord will relegate the unrepentant to destruction. This is the only way Zion can become pure.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 1:29 oaks . . . gardens. These were settings where Israel practiced idolatrous worship. It is ironic that the Lord had chosen Israel while some citizens of Jerusalem have chosen the “gardens.” When God calls them to account for their rebellious choice, they will be ashamed and embarrassed.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 1:31 burn together . . . none to quench. Both the rebel and his works will perish. This is final judgment, not merely another captivity.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 2:1–5:30 Chapters 2–5 comprise a single connected discourse.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 2:1–5 The first of three pictures of Zion (Jerusalem) in this discourse that depicts her future exaltation.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 2:2–4 The book of Micah contains this portion of Isaiah's prophecy almost word for word (Mic. 4:1–3), indicating that the younger contemporary of Isaiah may have obtained the words from him. Both passages present a prophetic picture of Zion in the future messianic kingdom when all people will recognize Jerusalem as the capital of the world.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 2:2 in the latter days. The "latter days" is a time designation looking forward to the messianic era (Ezek. 38:16; Hos. 3:5; Mic. 4:1). The NT applied the expression to the period beginning with the first advent of Jesus Christ (Acts 2:17; 2 Tim. 3:1; Heb. 1:2; James 5:3; 2 Pet. 3:3). Old Testament prophets, being without a clear word regarding the time between the Messiah's two advents, linked the expression to the Messiah's return to establish his earthly kingdom, i.e., the millennial kingdom spoken about in Rev. 20:1–10. the mountain of the house of the Lord. The reference is to Mount Zion, the location of the temple in Jerusalem. The expression occurs two other times in the OT (2 Chron. 33:15; Mic. 4:1).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 2:3 mountain of the Lord. Isaiah frequently calls Mount Zion the "holy mountain" (11:9; 27:13; 56:7; 57:13; 65:11, 25; 66:20).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 2:4 swords into plowshares . . . spears into pruning hooks. With the Messiah on his throne in Jerusalem, the world will enjoy uninterrupted peaceful conditions. Warfare will continue to characterize human history until the Prince of Peace (9:6) returns to earth to put an end to it.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 2:6–4:1 After a glimpse of Judah's glorious future (2:1–5), the prophet returned to the present for a scathing rebuke of her idolatry and the judgment of God it evokes.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 2:6–9 Isaiah stated the Lord's formal charge against the people of Jerusalem.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 2:6 things from the east. Through caravans from the east, an influx of religious superstitions had filled Jerusalem and its environs.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 2:8 filled with idols. Jotham and Ahaz, two of the kings under whom Isaiah prophesied, failed to remove the idolatrous high places from the land (2 Kings 15:35; 16:4).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 2:10–22 This section pictures conditions during the future day of the Lord. Though some elements of the description could fit what Judah experienced in the Babylonian captivity, the intensity of judgment predicted here could not have found fulfillment at that time. The tribulation period before Christ's return will be the time for these judgmental horrors.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 2:12 Lord of hosts has a day. The phrase "day [of reckoning]" or "day of the Lord" appears 19 times in the OT (Obad. 15; Joel 1:15; 2:1, 11, 31; 3:14; Amos 5:18, 20; Isa. 2:12; 13:6, 9; Zeph. 1:7, 14; Ezek. 13:5; 30:3; Zech. 14:1; Mal. 4:5) and four times in the NT (Acts 2:20; 1 Thess. 5:2; 2 Thess. 2:2; 2 Pet. 3:10) to express the time of God's extreme wrath. The "day" (of reckoning) can refer to a near future judgment (Ezek. 13:5; 30:3) or a far future judgment (Zech. 14:1; 2 Thess. 2:2). Two "day of the Lord" expressions remain to be fulfilled: 1) at the end of Daniel's seventieth week (see Joel 3:14; Mal. 4:5; 1 Thess. 5:2) and 2) at the end of the millennium (see 2 Pet. 3:10). The day of reckoning can occur through providential means (Ezek. 30:3) or directly at the hand of God (2 Pet. 3:10). At times, the near fulfillment (Joel 1:15) prefigures the far fulfillment (Joel 3:14); on other occasions, both kinds of fulfillment are included in one passage (Isa. 13:6, 9; Zeph. 1:7, 14). Here Isaiah looks to the far fulfillment at the end of the time of Jacob's trouble (Jer. 30:7).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 2:13 cedars of Lebanon . . . oaks of Bashan. The cedars and oaks were objects of great admiration to people of OT times (Ps. 92:12; 104:16; Ezek. 27:6; 31:3). Yet even these impressive created objects would face destruction because of human rebellion.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 2:19 caves of the rocks . . . holes of the ground. Revelation 6:12, 15, 16 uses this passage and Isa. 2:21 to describe man’s flight from the terrors of tribulation during the period before Christ’s personal return to earth. This shows that the final fulfillment of this prophecy will be during Daniel’s seventieth week.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 2:22 Stop regarding man. This calls readers to stop depending on other humans and to trust only in God, who alone is worthy.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 3:1–4:1 The Lord’s indictment against and judgment of Jerusalem and Judah continued.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 3:1 the Lord God of hosts. Emphasizing his ultimate authority, God refers to himself by the title Adonai (“the Lord”), the sovereign Lord of all, and by the mighty and warlike “God of hosts.”

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 3:1–3 taking away . . . diviner. God’s judgment was to include a removal of the people’s leadership.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 3:4–5 infants . . . honorable. Inexperience in government was to lead to degeneration and irresponsibility at every level of national life.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 3:6–7 this heap of ruins . . . leader of the people. Conditions of anarchy were to be so bad that no one would accept a position of authority over the people.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 3:8 Jerusalem . . . Judah. The fall of Jerusalem in 586 B.C. was only a partial fulfillment of this prophecy. The final fulfillment awaits the times just prior to Christ’s second coming. against the Lord. The root of Zion’s problem surfaces: overt rebellion against the Lord. The people sinned shamelessly; they made no effort to conceal it (3:9).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 3:12 infants . . . women. Children and women were considered ill-suited for governmental leadership, so they figuratively depicted the incompetent rulers.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 3:14 vineyard. The spoiling of the vineyard by the leaders amounts to their inequities in ruling the nation. Isaiah gave a more detailed comparison of God’s people to a vineyard in 5:1–7.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 3:16 daughters of Zion. When women cultivate beauty for beauty’s sake, they thereby reflect the moral decay of the nations and detract from the glory of God. Rather than emphasizing outward apparel and activities (vv. 16–24), ladies should cultivate the beauty of the inner person (1 Tim. 2:9–10; 1 Pet. 3:3–4). mincing along. Ornamental chains about the ankles necessitated shorter steps and produced tinkling sounds to attract attention.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 4:1 seven women . . . one man. In the day of reckoning, or the day of the Lord (see note on 2:12), he will judge wicked women indirectly by allowing a slaughtering of males, thereby producing a shortage of husbands.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 4:2–6 The third picture of Zion resembles the first (2:1–5): an eventual purification and prosperity in the land.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 4:2 branch. This messianic title occurs also in Jer. 23:5; 33:15; Zech. 3:8; 6:12. The thought behind the title relates to 2 Sam. 23:5, that of growth. The life of the branch will bear spiritual fruit (cf. John 15:4–5).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 4:3 he who is left . . . holy. “Holy” or “set apart” is another way of describing the remnant who will inherit God’s prosperity in that day (cf. 1:9, 27; 3:10).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 4:4 spirit of burning. For other instances of purging by burning, see 1:25 and 6:6–7.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 4:5–6 canopy . . . shelter. The future inhabitants of Jerusalem will enjoy the Lord’s protective covering over the glory on Mount Zion. This recalls Ezekiel’s prophecy of the return of the Shekinah to the temple (Ezek. 43:2–5).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 5:1–30 The conclusion of the extended discourse begun at 2:1 comes by way of a comparison of God’s people to a vineyard that he cultivated, but that did not bear fruit.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 5:1 beloved. The Lord is the friend who is beloved by Isaiah. The vineyard belongs to him (v. 7).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 5:2 grapes . . . wild grapes. The owner made every conceivable provision for the vine’s productivity and protection, illustrating the Lord’s purely gracious choice of Israel. Justifiably, he expected a good yield from his investment, but the vine’s produce was “sour berries,” inedible and fit only for dumping.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 5:5 devoured . . . trampled down. As punishment for her unfruitfulness, Israel became desolate and accessible to any nation wishing to invade her, such as happened in the Babylonian invasion of 586 B.C., and will happen repeatedly until her national repentance at the second coming of the Messiah.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 5:7 justice . . . bloodshed . . . righteousness . . . outcry. The English words “equity . . . iniquity . . . right . . . riot” illustrate the effective play on words in the underlying Hebrew behind v. 7.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 5:8–23 The prophet pronounced six woes (judgments) against the unresponsive people of Israel.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 5:8–10 The first woe was against real estate owners because of their greedy materialism.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 5:8 house to house . . . field to field. God gave the land to the Israelites with the intention that the original allocation remain with each family (Lev. 25:23–25). By Isaiah’s time, land speculators had begun putting together huge estates (Mic. 2:2, 9), and the powerful rich used legal processes to deprive the poor of what was rightfully theirs (Amos 2:6–7).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 5:10 one bath . . . an ephah. God judged the greedy rich by reducing the productivity of their land to a small fraction of what it would have been normally. One bath was roughly equivalent to 6 gallons. About one-half bushel would be produced from about 6 bushels of planted seed. Such amounts indicate famine conditions.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 5:11–12 The second woe addressed the drunkards for their neglect of the Lord's work of judgment and redemption, and their devotion to pleasure.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 5:14 Sheol. This term in this context pictures death as a great monster with wide-open jaws, ready to receive its victims. Such was to be the fate of those who perish in the captivity God will send to punish the people's sinfulness.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 5:18–19 The third woe was against those who defied the Lord and ridiculed his prophet.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 5:19 Let him be quick. The taunting unbelievers said, "Where is the judgment of which you have spoken, Isaiah? Bring it on. We will believe it when we see it." This challenge for God to hasten his judgment represented their disbelief that the Holy One of Israel would judge the people. See Isaiah's response in the naming of his son: "the spoil speeds, the prey hastens" (8:1; cf. 5:26).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 5:20 evil good and good evil. The fourth woe condemned the reversal of morality that dominated the nation. They utterly confused all moral distinctions.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 5:21 wise in their own eyes. The object of the fifth woe was the people's arrogance. "Pride goes before destruction . . . " (Prov. 16:18).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 5:22–23 acquit the guilty. The sixth woe pointed to the unjust sentences passed by drunken and bribed judges.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 5:24–30 The conclusion of the discourse announced God's action in sending a mighty army against Judah to conquer and leave the land in darkness and distress.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 5:26 nations far away. Principal among the nations God would bring against Israel were: 1) Assyria, which conquered the northern kingdom in 722 B.C., and 2) Babylon, which completed its invasion of Jerusalem in 586 B.C. and destroyed the temple.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 5:30 darkness. God's wrath against the people was to eliminate light (8:22; 42:7), but his promised deliverance of the remnant will ultimately turn that darkness into light at the coming of the Messiah (9:2; 42:16; 58:10; 60:2).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 6:1–5 In preparation for calling Isaiah to be the prophet who would proclaim the coming judgment, God gave him a vision of his majestic holiness so overwhelming that it devastated him and made him realize his own sinfulness.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 6:1 King Uzziah died. After his 52 years of reigning, leprosy caused the death of Uzziah in 739 B.C. (cf. 2 Chron. 26:16–23). Isaiah began his prophetic ministry that year. He received the prophecies of the first five chapters after his call, but at 6:1 he returns to authenticate what he has already written by describing how he was called. I saw. The prophet became unconscious of the outside world and with his inner eye saw what God revealed to him. This experience recalls the experience of John's prophetic vision in Rev. 4:1–11. high and lifted up. The throne was greatly elevated, emphasizing the Most High God. train. This refers to the hem or fringe of the Lord's glorious robe that filled the temple. temple. Though Isaiah may have been at the earthly temple, this describes a vision that transcends the earthly. The throne of God is in the heavenly temple (Rev. 4:1–6; 5:1–7; 11:19; 15:5–8).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 6:2 seraphim. The seraphim are an order of angelic creatures who bear a similarity to the four living creatures of Rev. 4:6, which in turn resemble the cherubim of Ezek. 10:1ff. six wings. Two wings covered the faces of the seraphim because they dared not gaze directly at God's glory. Two covered their feet, acknowledging their lowliness even though engaged in divine service. With two they flew in serving the One on the throne. Thus, four wings related to worship, emphasizing the priority of praise.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 6:3 called to another. The seraphs were speaking to each other in antiphonal praise. Holy, holy, holy. The primary thrust of the threefold repetition of God's holiness (called the trihagion) is to emphasize God's separateness from and independence of his fallen creation, though it implies secondarily that God is three Persons. See Rev. 4:8, where the four living creatures utter the trihagion. full of his glory. The earth is the worldwide display of his immeasurable glory, perfections, and attributes as seen in creation (see Rom. 1:20). Fallen man has nevertheless refused to glorify him as God (Rom. 1:23).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 6:4 shook . . . smoke. The trembling and smoke symbolize God's holiness as it relates to his wrath and judgment (cf. Ex. 19:16–20; Rev. 15:8).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 6:5 unclean lips. If the lips are unclean, so is the heart. This vision of God's holiness vividly reminded the prophet of his own unworthiness, which deserved judgment. Job (Job 42:6) and Peter (Luke 5:8) came to the same realization about themselves when confronted with the presence of the Lord (cf. Ezek. 1:28–2:7; Rev. 1:17).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 6:6–13 Isaiah's vision has made him painfully aware of his sin and has broken him (cf. 66:2, 5); in this way God has prepared him for his cleansing and his commission.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 6:6 coal . . . altar. The hot coal taken from the altar of incense in heaven (cf. Rev. 8:3–5) is emblematic of God's purifying work. Repentance is painful.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 6:7 taken away . . . atoned for. Spiritual cleansing for special service to the Lord, not salvation, is in view.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 6:8 us. This plural pronoun does not prove the doctrine of the Trinity, but does strongly imply it (see Gen. 1:26). Here am I! Send me. This response evidenced the humble readiness of complete trust. Though profoundly aware of his sin, he was available.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 6:9–10 do not understand . . . do not perceive. Isaiah’s message was to be God’s instrument for hiding the truth from an unreceptive people. Centuries later, Jesus’ parables were to do the same (Matt. 13:14–15; Mark 4:12; Luke 8:10; cf. Isa. 29:9–10; 42:18; 43:8; Deut. 29:4; John 12:40; Acts 28:26–27; Rom. 11:8).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 6:11–12 How long. Because of such rejection from his people, the prophet asked how long he should preach this message of divine judgment. God replied that it must continue until the cities are desolate (v. 11) and the people have gone into exile (v. 12).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 6:13 a tenth. Though most will reject God, the tenth, also called “stump” and “holy seed,” represents the faithful remnant in Israel who will be the nucleus who hear and believe.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 7:1–2 An unsuccessful invasion of Judah by Aram, or Syria, and Israel (i.e., the northern 10 tribes) led to a continued presence of King Tiglath-pileser's Assyrian forces in Israel. Shortly after Ahaz assumed the throne (c. 735 B.C.), this threat to Judah's security brought great fear to the king and the people of Judah. See 2 Chron. 28:5–8, 17–19.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 7:2 house of David. This expression refers to the Davidic dynasty, personified in the current king, Ahaz.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 7:3 Shear-jashub. The name means "a remnant shall return." The presence of Isaiah's son is an object lesson of God's faithfulness to believers among the people.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 7:4 do not fear. Isaiah's message to Ahaz is one of reassurance. The two invading kings will not prevail.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 7:8 Ephraim will be shattered. This tribe represented all the northern 10 tribes. The prophet predicted the coming demise because of idolatry (cf. Hos. 4:17). In 65 years they would cease to be a people, first through the captivity of most of them in 722 B.C. (2 Kings 17:6) and then with the importation of foreign settlers into the land in c. 670 B.C. (2 Kings 17:24; 2 Chron. 33:11; Ezra 4:2).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 7:9 not firm in faith . . . not be firm at all. The choice belonged to Ahaz. He could trust the Lord's word or fall into the enemy's hands or, even worse, experience a final heart-hardening (6:9–10).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 7:11 a sign. To encourage his faith, the Lord offered Ahaz a sign, but Ahaz feigned humility in refusing the sign (v. 12).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 7:13 house of David. Upon hearing Ahaz's refusal, the prophet broadened his audience beyond Ahaz (see v. 2) to include the whole faithless house of David. The nation was guilty of wearying God (1:14).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 7:14 a sign. Since Ahaz refused to choose a sign (vv. 11–12), the Lord chose his own sign, whose implementation would occur far beyond Ahaz's lifetime. the virgin. This prophecy reached forward to the virgin birth of the Messiah, as the NT notes (Matt. 1:23). The Hebrew word refers to an unmarried woman and means “virgin” (Gen. 24:43; Prov. 30:19; Song 1:3; 6:8), so the birth of Isaiah’s own son (Isa. 8:3) could not have fully satisified the prophecy. Cf. Gen. 3:15. Immanuel. The title, applied to Jesus in Matt. 1:23, means “God with us.”

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 7:15 curds and honey. Curds result from coagulated milk, something like cottage cheese. This diet indicated the scarcity of provisions that characterized the period after foreign invaders had decimated the land.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 7:16 refuse the evil. Before the promised son of Isaiah was old enough to make moral choices, the kings of Aram, or Syria, and Ephraim were to meet their doom at the hands of the Assyrians.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 7:17 bring upon you . . . the king of Assyria. Not only did the Lord use the Assyrians to judge the northern kingdom, he also used them to invade Ahaz’s domain of Judah. This coming of the Assyrian king was the beginning of the end for the nation and eventually led to her captivity in Babylon.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 7:18–25 The desolation prophesied in this section began in the days of Ahaz and reached its climax when the Babylonians conquered Judah. Its results continue to the time when the Messiah will return to deliver Israel and establish his kingdom on earth.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 7:18 fly . . . bee. Egypt was full of flies, and Assyria was a country noted for beekeeping. These insects represented the armies from the powerful countries that the Lord would summon to overrun Judah and take the people into exile.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 7:19 steep ravines . . . clefts of the rocks. Not even inaccessible areas of the land were free from the invading armies.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 7:20 razor . . . hired. The Assyrians were the Lord’s hired blade to shave and disgrace the entire body of Judah (cf. 1:6).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 7:21–22 a young cow and two sheep. The foreign invasion would cause a change from an agricultural economy to a pastoral one. Not enough men would remain in the land to farm. It was to be a time of great poverty.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 7:23–25 briers and thorns. The presence of these uncultivated growths was a sign of desolation, as in 5:6.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 8:1 large tablet. Isaiah was to prepare a large placard for public display. That placard reiterated, from another perspective, the prophecies just concluded in 7:18–25.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 8:2 reliable witnesses. After the prophecy's fulfillment, the respected leaders Uriah and Zechariah verified to the people that Isaiah had spoken it on a given date before the Assyrian invasion. This verification accredited the Lord's word and upheld his honor (Deut. 18:21–22; Jer. 28:9).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 8:3 prophetess. Isaiah's wife was called a prophetess because the son to whom she gave birth was prophetic of the Assyrian conquest. Maher-shalal-hash-baz. Maher-shalal ("the spoil speeds") told the Assyrian invaders with no doubt as to who was to win the battle. Hash-baz ("the prey hastens") told them to reap the benefits of the conquered land quickly (5:26).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 8:4 before the boy. The time before the plunder of Aram, or Syria, and the northern kingdom of Israel began was very short. The Assyrians initiated their invasion before Isaiah's child learned to talk. That prophetic limit resembled the one set in 7:16, but there the prophecy was more far-reaching. Fulfillment of the closer prophecy verified the one relating to the distant future.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 8:6 this people. These were the people of Judah (cf. 6:9), but perhaps secondarily the whole nation of Israel. Ahaz had called on Assyria for help rather than relying on the Lord. waters of Shiloah. This was the stream from the Gihon Spring outside Jerusalem's city wall flowing to the Pool of Siloam inside the city, which supplied the city's water (see 7:3). It symbolized the city's dependence on the Lord and his defense of the city, if they were to survive. First, the northern 10 tribes refused that dependence; later, King Ahaz of Judah in the south did the same.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 8:7 waters of the River. In place of the waters of Shiloah, the waters of the River Euphrates were to overflow its banks and flood all the way to and including Judah. In other words, the King of Assyria was to sweep through the land with his devastating destruction. Though outwardly Ahaz's submission to the Assyrians brought peace to Judah (2 Kings 16:7–18), Isaiah saw the reality that David's throne was merely a hollow sham.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 8:8 O Immanuel. Because of the Assyrian onslaught, the land of Immanuel (7:14) was to be stripped of all its earthly glory. What a pity that he who owns and will someday possess the land must see it in such a devastated condition!

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 8:9 Be broken. Lest Assyria and other foreign powers think they conquered in their own strength, the prophet reminded them that they were only instruments for the Lord's use and would eventually come to nothing.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 8:10 God is with us. The Hebrew is Immanuel. The name of the virgin's child (7:14) guaranteed the eventual triumph of the faithful remnant of Israel.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 8:11 with his strong hand. God inspired Isaiah with compelling power to speak a message that by its nature distanced him from the people he ministered to.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 8:12 conspiracy. Many in Israel considered Isaiah, Jeremiah, and other prophets to be servants of the enemy when they advocated a policy of nonreliance on foreign powers and complete dependence on the Lord alone (see Jer. 37:13–15).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 8:14 sanctuary . . . rock of stumbling. Isaiah found encouragement in the Lord as his holy place of protection from his accusers. The NT applies this verse to corporate Israel in her ongoing rejection of Jesus as Messiah (Luke 2:34; Rom. 9:32–33; 1 Pet. 2:8). both houses of Israel. They will be collapsed until the return of the Messiah to the earth restores them.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 8:15 many shall stumble. Another prediction anticipated the stumbling of Israel, which included her rejection of her Messiah at his first advent (Luke 20:18; Rom. 9:32; cf. Isa. 28:16).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 8:16 my disciples. These were God's faithful remnant, and hence disciples of Isaiah in a secondary sense. They had the responsibility of maintaining written records of his prophecies so that they could become public after the prophesied Assyrian invasion (see 8:2).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 8:17 I will wait . . . hope in him. The speaker is Isaiah, whose disposition was to await the Lord's deliverance, the national salvation promised to the faithful remnant (40:31; 49:23). See note on Heb. 2:13.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 8:18 I and the children. In their historical setting, the words refer to Isaiah and his two sons, whose names had prophetic significance (i.e., as "signs and wonders"). See note on Heb. 2:13.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 8:19 inquire of the dead. People of Isaiah's day were using spiritualists to communicate with the dead as King Saul did through the medium at En-dor (1 Sam. 28:8–19). The law strictly forbade such consultations (Lev. 19:26; Deut. 18:10–11).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 8:20 teaching . . . testimony! See v. 16. Light came through the prophecies of God's spokesman, Isaiah.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 8:21–22 This is a dismal picture of those who were frustrated, desperate, and angry even to the point of cursing God, all because they refused to accept the truthfulness of what Isaiah had predicted regarding the nation's future hardships.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 9:1 Zebulun . . . Naphtali . . . Galilee. Zebulun and Naphtali on the northern border in northeast Galilee west of the Jordan River were the first to suffer from the invasion by the Assyrian king (2 Kings 15:29), marking the beginning of dark days for Israel. has made glorious. "In the former time" the days were to be full of gloom, but "in the latter time" God would transform that gloom into honor. The NT applies this prophecy of Galilee's honor to the time of Jesus Christ's first advent (Matt. 4:12–16). Matthew 4:15–16 quotes Isa. 9:1–2 directly. Ultimately, its fulfillment will come at his second advent when the area is freed from the yoke of foreign invaders.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 9:2 a great light . . . light. The coming of the Messiah is synonymous with the coming of light to remove the darkness of captivity (42:16; 49:6; 58:8; 60:1, 19–20).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 9:3 multiplied the nation. Once again the Lord confirmed his covenant with Abraham to multiply his physical descendants as the sands of the seashore (Gen. 22:17).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 9:4 the yoke . . . you have broken. Eventually the Lord will free national Israel from bondage to Assyria, Babylon, and every other foreign power that has oppressed her.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 9:5 burned as fuel for the fire. The world will no longer need the accessories of warfare because a time of universal peace will follow the return of Christ.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 9:6 child . . . son. These terms elaborate further on Immanuel, the child to be born to the virgin (7:14). The virgin's child will also be the royal Son of David, with rights to the Davidic throne (9:7; cf. Matt. 1:21; Luke 1:31–33; 2:7, 11). government. In fulfillment of this verse and Ps. 2:9, the Son will rule the nations of the world (Rev. 2:27; 19:15). Wonderful Counselor. In contrast to Ahaz, this King will implement supernatural wisdom in discharging his office (cf. 2 Sam. 16:23; 1 Kings 3:28). Mighty God. As a powerful warrior, the Messiah will accomplish the military exploits mentioned in Isa. 9:3–5 (cf. 10:21; Deut. 10:17; Neh. 9:32). Everlasting Father. The Messiah will be a Father to his people eternally. As Davidic King, he will compassionately care for and discipline them (Isa. 40:11; 63:16; 64:8; Ps. 68:5–6; 103:13; Prov. 3:12). Prince of Peace. The government of Immanuel will procure and perpetuate peace among the nations of the world (Isa. 2:4; 11:6–9; Mic. 4:3).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 9:7 throne of David. The virgin's Son will be the rightful heir to David's throne and will inherit the promises of the Davidic Covenant (2 Sam. 7:12–16; cf. Ps. 89:1–37; Matt. 1:1).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 9:8–10:4 This poem tells of great warning calamities sent by the Lord that have gone unheeded by Israel. The same refrain recurs four times (9:12, 17, 21; 10:4), dividing it into four strophes.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 9:9 pride and in arrogance. Israel's downfall was her feeling of self-sufficiency whereby she thought she could handle any eventuality (v. 10).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 9:11 adversaries of Rezin. The Aramean, or Syrian, king's enemies were the Assyrians.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 9:12 his hand is stretched out still. The outstretched hand will punish (cf. 5:25) beyond what the people had already experienced.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 9:16 those who guide . . . those who are guided. The aggravated wickedness of Israel extended to all classes, even the fatherless and widows (v. 17) who often were the objects of special mercy (1:17).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 9:19 no one spares another. God's wrath allowed wickedness to cause the society to self-destruct. A senseless mutual exploitation resulted in anarchy and confusion (v. 20).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 9:21 Manasseh . . . Ephraim . . . Judah. Descendants of Joseph's two sons (Manasseh and Ephraim) had engaged in civil war with one another before (see Judg. 12:4) and unite only in their opposition to Judah.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 10:1–2 iniquitous decrees . . . turn aside the needy. The prophet returned to assign reasons for God’s wrath again: 1) inequities in administering the laws, and 2) harsh treatment of those in need.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 10:2 widows . . . fatherless. See 1:17.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 10:3 day of punishment. The Assyrians were the first to invade, then Babylon and other foreign powers followed.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 10:5 rod of my anger. God used Assyria as his instrument of judgment against Israel and Judah. He did the same with Babylon against Judah later on (Hab. 1:6).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 10:6 a godless nation. “My people” (v. 2), the people of Israel and Judah.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 10:7 he does not so intend. Assyria did not realize that she was the Lord’s instrument, but thought her conquests were the result of her own power.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 10:9 Calno . . . Damascus. These cities and territories all capitulated to the Assyrian invaders.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 10:10–11 shall I not do to Jerusalem. Proud Assyria warned Jerusalem that she would overcome that city just as she had been the instrument used by God against other nations.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 10:12 punish . . . the king of Assyria. The Lord expressed his intention of punishing proud Assyria after he had finished using that nation to punish Jerusalem.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 10:13–14 The prophet proved the Assyrian king’s pride by reiterating his boast (cf. vv. 8–11).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 10:15 axe . . . saw . . . rod . . . staff. Nothing more than an instrument of the Lord (vv. 5, 24), Assyria had no power or wisdom of her own.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 10:16–19 burning . . . fire . . . flame . . . burn . . . devour. When he had finished using Assyria as his instrument, the Lord terminated the kingdom's existence (see v. 12).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 10:20 the remnant of Israel. Cf. 1:9. A small nucleus of God's people, preserved by his sovereign grace, form this righteous remnant in the midst of national apostasy. There were always the obedient few who preserved, obeyed, and passed on God's law. There will always be a remnant because God will never forsake the Abrahamic Covenant (cf. Mic. 2:12–13; Rom. 9:27; 11:5).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 10:22 sand of the sea. Cf. Gen. 22:17.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 10:23 will make a full end. They must face the wrath of God. See Paul's use of this verse in Rom. 9:28.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 10:25 my fury. The indignation covers the entire period of Israel's exile (26:20; Dan. 11:36). Here is the promise that it will end with the return of the Messiah (Isa. 11:1–16).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 10:26 Midian . . . Egypt. Isaiah selected two examples from the past to illustrate the Lord's future deliverance of Israel: Gideon's victory over the Midianites (Judg. 7:25) and the slaughter of the Egyptians who pursued the Israelites through the Red Sea (Ex. 14:16, 26–27).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 10:27 burden . . . yoke. The removal of this yoke speaks of the future freeing of Israel from compulsion to render service to foreign oppressors.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 10:28–32 Isaiah visualized the Assyrian army approaching Jerusalem from the north. The place names grew closer to Jerusalem as his vision progressed.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 10:33 lop . . . hewn down . . . brought low. Though the Assyrian army reached the walls of Jerusalem, the sovereign Lord, the Lord of hosts, intervened and sent them away in defeat. Later Isaiah recorded the literal fulfillment of this prophecy (37:24, 36–38; cf. 2 Kings 19:35–37; 2 Chron. 32:21).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 10:34 Lebanon. The OT equates Assyria to Lebanon (Ezek. 31:3; cf. Isa. 2:13; 37:24).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 11:1 stump . . . roots. With the Babylonian captivity of 586 B.C., the Davidic dynasty appeared as decimated as the Assyrian army. A major difference between the two was the life remaining in the stump and roots of the Davidic line. That life was to manifest itself in new growth in the form of the rod and branch. Jesse. Jesse was David's father through whose line the messianic king was to come (Ruth 4:22; 1 Sam. 16:1, 12–13). branch. This is a title for the Messiah (see Isa. 4:2).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 11:2 the Spirit of the Lord. As the Spirit of the Lord came upon David when he was anointed king (1 Sam. 16:13; Ps. 51:11), so he will rest upon David's descendant, Christ, who will rule the world. Spirit . . . the Lord . . . him. This verse refers to the three persons of the Holy Trinity (see Isa. 6:3). wisdom and understanding . . . counsel and might . . . knowledge . . . fear of the Lord. These are Spirit-imparted qualifications that will enable the Messiah to rule justly and effectively. Compare the sevenfold Spirit in Rev. 1:4.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 11:3 what his eyes see . . . what his ears hear. These are ordinary avenues for a king to obtain information needed to govern, but the future King will have supernatural perception beyond these usual sources.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 11:4 poor . . . meek. The Messiah will reverse Israel's earlier dealings with the underprivileged (3:14–15; 10:2). rod of his mouth. The Branch's rule over the nations will be forceful. The NT uses equivalent terminology to describe the Warrior-King at his triumphant return to earth (Rev. 19:15; cf. Isa. 49:2; Ps. 2:9). breath of his lips. This is another figure for the Messiah's means of inflicting physical harm. Paul draws upon this to tell of the destruction of the man of lawlessness at Christ's second advent (2 Thess. 2:8).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 11:5 belt . . . belt. The belt, which gathered the loose garments together, is figurative for the Messiah's readiness for conflict. Righteousness and faithfulness are his preparation. Cf. Eph. 6:14.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 11:6–9 Conditions of peace will prevail to the extent that all enmity among men, among animals—rapacious or otherwise—and between men and animals will disappear. Such will characterize the future millennial kingdom in which the Prince of Peace (9:6) will reign.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 11:9 full of the knowledge of the Lord. Everyone will know the Lord when he returns to fulfill his New Covenant with Israel (Jer. 31:34).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 11:10 In that day. The time of universal peace will come in the future reign of the Lord. a signal for the peoples. The root of Jesse will also attract non-Jews who inhabit the future kingdom (49:6; 52:10; 60:3; 66:18). Paul saw God's ministry to Gentiles during the church age as an additional implication of this verse (Rom. 15:12).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 11:11 second time. The first return of Israel to her land was from Egyptian captivity (Ex. 14:26–29). The second will be from her worldwide dispersion (Isa. 51:9–11; see note on 10:20).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 11:12 four corners of the earth. This figurative expression depicts the whole world (Rev. 20:8). The faithful remnant of Israel will return from a worldwide dispersion to their land.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 11:13 Ephraim . . . Judah. These were the two major divisions of Israel after the schism under Jeroboam (1 Kings 12:16–20). Ephraim was the name representing the northern 10 tribes, and Judah the southern two. When the Messiah returns, they will reunite in a lasting peace.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 11:14 west . . . east. In that day Israel will be free from all foreign oppression and will be the dominant political force.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 11:15 the River. Just as he dried up the Red Sea in the deliverance from Egypt, the Lord will in the future dry up the Euphrates in connection with the final deliverance of his people. See note on Rev. 16:12.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 11:16 highway. Isaiah has much to say about a way for the remnant returning to Jerusalem (35:8–9; 42:16; 43:19; 48:21; 49:11; 57:14; 62:10).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 12:1–6 Two brief songs of praise (vv. 1–3, 4–6) that redeemed Israel will sing at the outset of the millennial kingdom. They are the earthly counterpart to the heavenly doxology in Rev. 19:6–7.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 12:1 your anger turned away. For the future remnant who will recognize the substitutionary death of Christ for their sins, Christ bore God's anger in their place. Otherwise, that anger against them would remain.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 12:2 God is my salvation. God will deliver the faithful of Israel from both their political opponents and the spiritual consequences of their sins. Lord God. The doubling of the personal name of God serves to emphasize his role as the covenant-keeping One. my strength and my song . . . my salvation. Moses and the Israelites sang a similar song to celebrate their deliverance from the Egyptians (Ex. 15:2; cf. Ps. 118:14).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 12:3 water . . . wells. Isaiah's readers doubtless thought of how God satisfied the physical thirst of their ancestors in the Wilderness of Sin (Ex. 17:1–7). The same provision will apply for their descendants when the Messiah comes to deliver the nation (Isa. 41:17–18; cf. 30:25; 35:6–7; 43:19; Ps. 107:35). The NT amplifies this provision to include the supply of spiritual water for the thirsty soul (John 4:10, 14; 7:37; Rev. 7:16–17; 21:6; 22:17).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 12:4–5 among the peoples . . . all the earth. Following the future day of the Lord, Israel will testify to the rest of the world about his greatness and majesty. This was his purpose for his earthly people from the beginning.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 12:6 O inhabitant of Zion. The Hebrew of this verse personifies Zion as a woman by commanding her to "cry aloud and shout" in celebration of the Lord's greatness.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 13:1–23:18 These 11 chapters group together prophecies against foreign nations, much the same as those in Jer. 46–51 and Ezek. 25–32.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 13:1–14:27 The section 13:1–14:24 deals specifically with Babylon and 14:25–27 with Assyria, though Babylon was not yet a world power at the time of this prophecy. Isaiah foresaw a time when Babylon would overthrow the current dominant nation Assyria and be an international force.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 13:1 oracle. In the sense of his having heavy responsibility to deliver the message. It is used 15 other times in the OT in superscriptions like this (14:28; 15:1; 17:1; 19:1; 21:1, 11, 13; 22:1; 23:1; Lam. 2:14; Nah. 1:1; Hab. 1:1; Zech. 9:1; 12:1; Mal. 1:1). Babylon . . . Isaiah . . . saw. This chapter foretold the city's destruction. Even during the Assyrian Empire the city of Babylon was formidable and stood at the head in the list of Israel's enemies to be conquered.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 13:2 raise a signal. As in 5:26, the Lord summoned foreign armies to conquer Babylon in all her greatness.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 13:3 I myself have commanded . . . summoned. The Lord told of his gathering of armies to overcome Babylon. my anger. God's anger had turned away from Israel (12:1) and toward this oppressive foreign power.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 13:4 The Lord of hosts is mustering a host. Lit., "the Lord of armies musters the army." See note at 1:9. This anticipated the end-time coming of the Lord to crush the final Babylon and to dash his enemies in pieces and establish a kingdom over all nations (Rev. 19:11–16).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 13:5 from the end of the heavens. The fall of Babylon to the Medes was merely a short-term glimpse of the ultimate fall of Babylon at the hands of the universal forces of God (Rev. 18:2).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 13:6 the day of the Lord is near. The prophecy looked beyond the more immediate conquest of the city by the Medes to a greater day of the Lord and anticipated the final destruction of Babylon by the personal intervention of the Messiah. See note on 2:12.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 13:7 heart will melt. Courage was to vanish (19:1; Ezek. 21:7; Nah. 2:10).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 13:8 like a woman in labor. The comparison of labor pains is often a figure to describe human sufferings in the period just before the final deliverance of Israel (21:3; 26:17–18; 66:7ff.; Jer. 4:31; 13:21; 22:23; Hos. 13:13; Mic. 4:10; 5:2–3; Matt. 24:8; 1 Thess. 5:3). Usually, it was the suffering of Israel, but here it pictured the misery of Babylon.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 13:9 destroy its sinners. This occurs when Messiah returns in judgment of all living on earth. In this case the prophet moves forward to the Babylon that is the final evil world city to be destroyed with all its inhabitants (see Rev. 17–18).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 13:10 stars . . . sun . . . moon. Scripture frequently associates cosmic upheavals with the period of tribulation just before Christ's return (24:23; Ezek. 32:7–8; Joel 2:10, 30–31; Amos 8:9; Matt. 24:29; Mark 13:24–25; Luke 21:25; Rev. 6:12–14).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 13:11 arrogant. The same sin of pride that led to Israel's judgment (5:21; 9:9) will cause Babylon's downfall (47:5–8; Rev. 18:7).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 13:12 more rare. Because of this visitation human mortality will be extremely high, but not complete. God will spare a faithful remnant.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 13:13 make the heavens tremble . . . earth will be shaken. These upheavals are associated with the ones in v. 10 (Joel 2:10; Hag. 2:6; Rev. 6:12–14; cf. Isa. 2:19, 21; 24:1, 19–20; 34:4; 51:6).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 13:14 gazelle . . . sheep. Humans are frightening to the shy gazelle, but indispensable to the helpless sheep. The Babylonians will find the Lord as their enemy and lose him as their shepherd. All they can do is flee the land.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 13:15–16 thrust through . . . caught . . . dashed in pieces . . . plundered . . . ravished. The prophet for the moment returned to the immediate future, when the Medes committed all those cruel atrocities in captured Babylon. For more brutal acts, see v. 18.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 13:17 Medes. This people from an area southwest of the Caspian Sea, north of Persia, east of Assyria, and northeast of Babylon later allied themselves with the Babylonians to conquer Assyria c. 610 B.C. and later with the Persians to cause the fall of Babylon (539 B.C.).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 13:19–22 From the near future, Isaiah returned to the distant future. The ultimate fulfillment of these prophecies of Babylon’s desolation will come in conjunction with Babylon’s rebuilding and utter destruction when Christ returns (Rev. 14:8; 18:2). Obviously, Isaiah was unable to see the many centuries that separated Babylon’s fall to the Medes from the destruction of the final Babylon by God (see Rev. 17–18).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 13:19 Sodom and Gomorrah. God will overthrow rebuilt Babylon in the same supernatural way he did these two ancient cities (Gen. 19:24; Rev. 18:8).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 13:20 never be inhabited. Though nothing like its glorious past, the site of Babylon has never been void of inhabitants. A city or town of one type or another has always existed there, so this prophecy must point toward a yet future desolation.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 13:21–22 wild animals . . . jackals. This is the utter devastation referred to in 21:9 and further described in Rev. 18:2 (cf. Isa. 34:11–17; Jer. 51:37).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 13:22 time is close at hand. As already noted in v. 6, once Babylon becomes great, her days are numbered.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 14:1–3 While having some reference to the release from Babylonian captivity, the primary view in this chapter is identified in these opening verses. The prophet looked at the final Babylon at the end of the tribulation. The language is that which characterizes conditions during the millennial kingdom after the judgment of the final Babylon. The destruction of future Babylon is integrally connected with the deliverance of Israel from bondage. Babylon must perish so that the Lord may exalt his people. God's compassion for physical Israel receives fuller development in chs. 40–46.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 14:1 sojourners. These are Jewish proselytes who join themselves to the nation in the final earthly kingdom of Christ.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 14:2 take captive those who were their captors. Here is the great role reversal. Instead of their miserable state of captivity, endured in the tribulation under Antichrist, the Israelites will be the rulers of those nations that once dominated them.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 14:3 rest. The future earthly kingdom of Messiah is in view. Cf. Acts 3:19–21.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 14:4 you will take up this taunt. The prophet instructed the delivered nation to sing the song of vv. 4–21, celebrating the downfall of the king of Babylon. the king of Babylon. This could refer to the final Antichrist, who will rule Babylon, which will rule the earth (cf. Rev. 17:17–18) oppressor has ceased. The nation that made life bitter for God's people disappeared.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 14:6 struck the peoples . . . ruled the nations. These picture the tyranny of the Babylonian king.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 14:7 The whole earth is at rest and quiet. With the tyrant off the throne, the whole world will have peace. This has to be millennial.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 14:9–11 Sheol. Those kings of the nations already in the place of the dead stage a welcome party for the arriving king of Babylon.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 14:10 You have become like us! The kings mock the king of Babylon, reminding him that human distinctions are meaningless among the dead.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 14:11 maggots. Human pride vanishes for a rotting corpse covered with worms.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 14:12–14 fallen from heaven . . . make myself like the Most High. Jesus' use of v. 12 to describe Satan's fall (Luke 10:18; cf. Rev. 12:8–10) has led many to see more than a reference to the king of Babylon. Just as the Lord addressed Satan in his words to the serpent (Gen. 3:14–15), this inspired dirge speaks to the king of Babylon and to the devil who energized him. See Ezek. 28:12–17 for similar language to the king of Tyre and Satan behind him.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 14:12 heaven. The scene suddenly shifts from the underworld to heaven to emphasize the unbridled pride of the king and Satan energizing him. O Day Star. Tradition of the time saw the stars as representing gods battling among themselves for places of preeminence.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 14:13–14 I will. Five "I wills" emphasize the arrogance of the king of Babylon, and of Satan, from whom he takes his cue.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 14:13 mount of assembly. This was a mountain in northern Syria, according to local tradition, where the Canaanite gods assembled. The human king aspired to kingship over those gods.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 14:15 Sheol . . . the pit. Death awaits those who try to be like God (cf. vv. 9, 11; Gen. 3:5, 22).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 14:16–21 The final section of the dirge elaborates on the disgrace of the king, on display before all as an unburied corpse.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 14:16 Is this the man . . . ? The complete role reversal from the most powerful to utter humiliation will provoke universal amazement.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 14:18 All the kings . . . lie in glory. The king of Babylon is the sole exception. The rest of the kings received honorable burials.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 14:19 dead body trampled. Among the ancients, this was the deepest degradation. See note on Eccles. 6:3–6.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 14:20 nevermore be named! Because the king of Babylon was an evildoer, he had no monument or posterity to keep his memory alive.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 14:22 cut off. Israel will have a remnant, but not Babylon, according to the Lord’s promise in vv. 22–23. Cf. Rev. 18:2, 21.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 14:26 purpose that is purposed. The scope of this judgment against the whole earth represents God’s final wrath against the ungodly in Israel (5:25; 9:17) and the nations (23:11).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 14:28 Ahaz died. The year of Ahaz’s death is uncertain. It came when Hezekiah began his reign, either 727 B.C. (2 Kings 18:1, 9–10) or 716/15 B.C. (2 Kings 18:13).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 14:29 Philistia. Israel need not think an alliance with the Philistines would save them from the Assyrians, since Assyria would conquer this neighbor of Israel too. rod . . . broken. The prophet pictured the Assyrian weakness, their conquest of Philistia notwithstanding.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 14:30–32 needy. The poor of Judah who depend on the Lord are to find him to be a refuge, but the Philistine oppressors are to meet their doom.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 14:32 messengers. These were the Philistine envoys who sought an alliance with Israel. Isaiah's answer saw the Lord as Zion's only security.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 15:1–16:14 The demise of Moab taught Israel not to depend on that nation any more than others, but to depend on the Lord.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 15:1 Moab. Moab was a country about 30 miles square, east of the Dead Sea, south of the Arnon River, and north of the Zered River. Ar . . . Kir. These were the two major cities of Moab.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 15:2 Dibon. Moab chose the temple of the Moabite god Chemosh—3 miles north of the Arnon—as the place of weeping because that god had failed to deliver the nation. Nebo . . . Medeba. Nebo is the mountain at the north end of the Dead Sea where the Lord took Moses to view the Promised Land (Deut. 34:1). Medeba is 5 miles southeast of Nebo. baldness . . . every beard. Shaving heads and beards expressed disgrace and humiliation (Isa. 22:12; Lev. 21:5; Jer. 41:5; 48:37).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 15:3 sackcloth. Wearing of sackcloth occurs 46 times in the Bible as a sign of mourning.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 15:4 Heshbon . . . Elealeh . . . Jahaz. The city Heshbon was just under 20 miles east of the northern end of the Dead Sea in a territory claimed by both Israel and Moab (Deut. 2:32–33). Elealeh was about a mile away from Heshbon. The location of Jahaz was over 10 miles south of Heshbon.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 15:5 My heart cries out. The prophecy expresses much greater sympathy for Moab's plight than for the other nations to be judged, even allowing for a surviving remnant (16:11, 14). Eglath-shelishiyah. A city of unknown location. Luhith . . . Horonaim. These are two more cities whose locations are unknown.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 15:6 Nimrim. This is possibly the Wadi Numeira, the drying up of whose waters, along with the dead grass, pictures widespread devastation in Moab.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 15:7 Brook of the Willows. Probably the Zered River; the refugees from Moab had to cross this to pass over into Edom to escape their invaders.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 15:8 Eglaim . . . Beer-elim. The shouts of the fugitives reached all the way from the northern part of Edom (Eglaim) to its southern extremity (Beer-elim).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 15:9 Dibon. This religious center of heathendom is appropriate as a closing representation of the whole land of Moab. lion. Flight from invading armies would not bring security, but new dangers from the beasts of the wilderness.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 16:1 Send the lamb. This was an action showing submission to an overlord, as Mesha did to Omri, king of Israel (2 Kings 3:4). Sela. This was a place in Edom not far from Petra (2 Kings 14:7), from which fugitives of Moab were to send to Judah for help. mount of the daughter of Zion. This speaks figuratively of Jerusalem and her inhabitants.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 16:2 fords of the Arnon. The fugitives fled to the south to escape the Assyrians entering Moab from the north.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 16:3 night at the height of noon. Moab asked Judah for shade from the wilting noonday sun, i.e., from their invaders.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 16:4 a shelter. Moab continued its plea to Judah for refuge. destruction has ceased. The prophet anticipated the day when the oppression by the Assyrians would be no more.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 16:5 throne . . . tent of David. The Davidic king will some day sit on his throne in Zion (Amos 9:11–12), ending all injustices such as those committed by the Assyrians.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 16:6 pride of Moab . . . pride. Though a small nation, Moab's pride was well known (25:10–11; Jer. 48:29, 42).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 16:7 Kir-hareseth. This is probably the same city called Kir in 15:1.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 16:8 Sibmah. Sibmah was a suburb of Heshbon (cf. Jer. 48:32). Jazer . . . sea. Moab's vines, rather than being on stakes, ran along the ground to Moab's extreme northern border, stretching from the desert on the east to the Dead Sea on the west. This perhaps signified the export of raisins and wine to Judah.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 16:9 I weep with the weeping. Isaiah displayed genuine emotion over the destruction of so rich an agricultural resource. This reflected the Lord's response too.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 16:10 joy and gladness. The normal celebration at harvest time is not to take place.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 16:11 my inner parts . . . my inmost self. The prophet and the Lord reflected deeply felt sorrow over this necessary judgment of Moab.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 16:12 wearies himself on the high place. Moab's religion had utterly failed. Rather than deliverance, the nation found weariness in their repeated rituals to their national god.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 16:14 In three years. Moab had three more years of "glory," perhaps till c. 715 B.C., when the Assyrian king, Sargon, overran the country. those who remain. Assyria was not to completely obliterate Moab. Babylon received no such promise.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 17:1 Damascus. This city served as the capital of Aram, or Syria. Its location northeast of Mount Hermon on the main land route between Mesopotamia and Egypt made it very influential. Its destruction by the Assyrians in 732 B.C. is the subject of this chapter.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 17:2 Aroer. Aram's, or Syria's, domain extended as far south as Aroer east of the Dead Sea, on the Arnon River (2 Kings 10:32–33).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 17:3 Ephraim. The northern 10 tribes, also known as "Israel," joined with Syria as objects of this oracle. They formed an alliance with Syria to combat the Assyrians, but many of their cites fell victim to the campaign in which Syria fell (see v. 1). remnant of Syria. Syria, or Aram, was to have a remnant, but not a kingdom, left after the Assyrian onslaught.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 17:4 glory of Jacob. The waning of this glory pictured the judgment of God against the northern 10 tribes, descendants of Jacob.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 17:5 Valley of Rephaim. As harvesters stripped bare that fertile valley west of Jerusalem, so God's judgment would leave nothing fruitful in the northern kingdom.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 17:6 two or three . . . four or five. God's judgment against Ephraim was to leave only sparse pieces of her original abundance of olives.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 17:7 look to his Maker. In the future, severe judgments are to awaken a remnant of Ephraim to their failure to depend on the Lord. Then they will repent.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 17:8 work of his hands. Repentance is to lead to the forsaking of idolatry, which for so long beset the nation (see 2:6–22; 44:9–18).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 17:10 forgotten the God of your salvation. Failure to remember God had left Israel unprotected.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 17:11 that you plant. The prophet reminded his readers of the futility of trying to meet their needs without the Lord's help.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 17:12 many peoples. The prophet turned his attention to the coming armies of Judah's enemies and pronounced a "woe" upon them.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 17:13 he will rebuke them. God's rebuke put those enemies to flight.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 17:14 they are no more! When morning came, the invading force had disappeared. God protects his people.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 18:1 whirring wings. These may speak of Ethiopia's strong armada of ships. Cush. The Hebrew word for Ethiopia. The country was south of Egypt, including territory belonging to modern Ethiopia.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 18:2 sea . . . waters . . . rivers. These all apparently refer to the Nile River and its tributaries.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 18:3 All you inhabitants . . . you who dwell. The prophet calls upon the whole human race to be alert for the signals that God is at work in the world.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 18:4 I will quietly look from my dwelling. The Lord will wait patiently until the appropriate time to intervene in human affairs, until sunshine and dew have built to an opportune climactic moment.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 18:5 cuts off . . . lops off and clears away. As an all-wise farmer, God's pruning activity (i.e., his direct intervention) will be neither too early nor too late.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 18:6 birds of prey. Dropping his metaphorical language, Isaiah describes in grotesque language the fallen carcasses of the victims of God's judgment.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 18:7 place of the name of the Lord of hosts. Jerusalem was and remains the location on earth where the Lord has chosen to dwell (Deut. 12:5). Isaiah's prediction here extends to the future bringing of tribute to Jerusalem in the Messiah's kingdom.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 19:1–4 Disunity and internal strife because of idolatry are to spell the end of Egypt’s greatness.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 19:1 riding on a swift cloud. Clouds are vehicles for the Lord’s coming to execute judgment elsewhere (Ps. 18:10–11; 104:3; Dan. 7:13).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 19:2 Egyptians against Egyptians. Noted for its internal strife through the centuries, the nation will experience even worse under God’s judgment.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 19:3 mediums and the necromancers. Internal strife will lead to disorientation and depression. With nowhere else to turn, the Egyptians will consult spiritists. Israelites of Isaiah’s day did the same (8:19).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 19:4 fierce king. Egypt was subject to foreign rule beginning with the Assyrian conquest of the middle-seventh century B.C.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 19:5–10 A disruption of the Nile River will wreak havoc in Egypt.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 19:5–6 dry and parched . . . dry up. God will act to take away the country’s only water resource, the Nile and its tributaries.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 19:7 sown by the Nile. The alluvial deposits left by the flooding of the Nile yielded rich agricultural crops, permitting Egypt to export grain to the rest of the world.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 19:8 cast a hook . . . spread nets. The loss of the Nile’s important fishing business would mean a great loss to Egypt’s population.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 19:9 combed flax . . . white cotton. Egypt was famous for its production of linen from flax. Both the growth of the plant and the manufacture of the cloth depended on water.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 19:10 pillars. God was to remove the foundations, or “pillars,” on which the working class depended. The word refers either generally to the economic structure of the society or specifically to the upper class, which organized the businesses of the land.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 19:11–15 God’s judgment was to confound Egypt’s famed wisdom (cf. 1 Kings 4:30).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 19:11 Zoan. This major city of northern Egypt east of the Nile Delta region was the first large city a Semite would encounter in traveling toward the Nile. “Tanis” was also a name of this city that was a capital of northern Egypt at one point when the country split into two parts.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 19:11–12 counselors . . . stupid. Whatever wisdom Egypt’s experts may have possessed formerly, they were helpless to deal with the crisis because they were ignorant of the Lord’s judgment against the land.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 19:13 Memphis. The capital of northern Egypt at one time. This city had leaders who were in a state of confusion regarding a true perspective on Egypt’s crisis. cornerstones of her tribes. If the cornerstones of a society suffer from delusion, they can do nothing else than delude the people they lead.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 19:14–15 The Lord has mingled. The Lord had caused dizziness that resulted in a complete loss of productivity, when the invaders came.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 19:16–24 Turning from Egypt’s destitution just described in vv. 1–15, the prophet proceeds to describe Egypt’s eventual turning to the true God, “in that day” (v. 16), referring to the time of the millennial rule of Christ. These features have not been true of Egypt yet.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 19:16 women . . . tremble with fear. God’s judgment will immobilize mighty Egypt to the point that the nation realizes it is defenseless and helpless.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 19:17 Judah . . . a terror to the Egyptians. Instead of Judah fearing Egypt, the reverse will be true. God’s great power on behalf of Israel will cause this to happen (cf. Ex. 10:7; 12:33). Such will occur at Christ's second advent.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 19:18 five cities. Humanly speaking, the chances of even one Egyptian city turning to the Lord were remote, but divinely speaking, there will be five times that many. language of Canaan. Egypt is to speak the language of Judah. Not only are they to fear Judah (v. 17), they are also to convert to Judah's form of worship. swear allegiance to the Lord of hosts. Egypt will "in that day" turn to God in a dramatic way. This prophecy anticipates the personal reign of the Davidic King on earth. City of Destruction. More probably this was the "City of the Sun," i.e., Heliopolis, which was the home of the Egyptian sun-god (Jer. 43:12–13).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 19:19 altar . . . pillar. These speak figuratively of Egypt's conversion to the Lord "in that day" of the Messiah's reign on earth (cf. Gen. 28:22).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 19:20 savior. God is to act on behalf of Egypt as he did earlier in delivering Israel (Judg. 2:18; 3:9, 15; 6:7–9; 10:11–12).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 19:21 know the Lord in that day. The future kingdom will be a time when everyone will know the Lord, because the New Covenant will dominate (Jer. 31:31–34: Heb. 8:11; cf. Isa. 11:9; Hab. 2:14).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 19:22 striking . . . healing. Just as a parent disciplines a child for purposes of betterment, so the Lord had dealt and would deal with Egypt (cf. Hos. 6:1).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 19:23 a highway from Egypt to Assyria. The two great warring nations of Isaiah's time are to reach a lasting peace with each other during "that day" of Christ's reign (27:13; cf. 2:2–4).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 19:24 a blessing in the midst of the earth. Israel "in that day" will become what God intended her to be—a blessing to the rest of the world (Gen. 12:3; 42:6; contra Isa. 1:2).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 19:25 my people . . . the work of my hands. Elsewhere Scripture uses these epithets to speak only of Israel (10:24; 29:23; 43:6–7; 45:11; 60:21; 64:8; Ps. 100:3; 110:3; 138:8; Jer. 11:4; Hos. 1:10; 2:23). In the future kingdom, Israel is to be God’s instrument for drawing other nations into his fold.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 20:1 Sargon . . . Ashdod. Ashdod was one of the five largest Philistine cities, all located southwest of Jerusalem. Sargon, mentioned only here in the Bible, was Sargon II, king of Assyria from c. 722–705 B.C. captured it. The Assyrians captured Ashdod in 711 B.C., and so frightened the Egyptians that they backed away, thus teaching Judah the folly of reliance on a foreign power such as Egypt for protection.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 20:2 at that time. Isaiah began his object lesson three years (v. 3) before his speech in vv. 3–6, which came just prior to the Assyrian attack in 711 B.C. sackcloth. This apparel may denote Isaiah's mourning (Gen. 37:34; 2 Kings 6:30) or it may signify his prophetic office (2 Kings 1:8; Matt. 3:4). naked and barefoot. The Lord commanded stripping off all of his outer garments as an act denoting disgrace and humiliation.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 20:3 my servant. This designation places Isaiah among a select group: Others include: Abraham (Gen. 26:24); Moses (Num. 12:7–8; Josh. 1:2, 7; 2 Kings 21:8; Mal. 4:4); Caleb (Num. 14:24); David (2 Sam. 3:18; 7:5, 8; 1 Kings 11:32, 34, 36, 38; 14:8; 2 Kings 19:34; 20:6; 1 Chron. 17:4, 7; Ps. 89:3; Isa. 37:35; Jer. 33:21–22, 26; Ezek. 34:23–24; 37:24–25); Job (Job 1:8; 2:3; 42:7–8); Eliakim (Isa. 22:20); the Servant of the Lord (42:1; 49:5–7; 52:13; 53:11; Zech. 3:8; Matt. 12:18); Israel (Isa. 41:8–9; 42:19; 43:10; 44:1–2, 21, 26; 44:21; 45:4; 48:20; 50:10; Jer. 30:10; 46:27–28; Ezek. 28:25; 37:25); Nebuchadnezzar (Jer. 25:9; 27:6; 43:10); Zerubbabel (Hag. 2:23); and Christ's follower (John 12:26). sign . . . portent. Isaiah's nakedness and bare feet symbolized the coming desolation and shame of Egypt and Ethiopia at the hands of the Assyrians (cf. Isa. 19:4).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 20:4 captives . . . exiles. Esarhaddon, king of Assyria, fulfilled this prophecy in 671 B.C. (cf. 37:38; 2 Kings 19:37; Ezra 4:2). Far from being a suitable object of Judah's trust, mighty Egypt will go off in shame.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 20:6 how shall we escape? "We" refers to the people of Judah. Trust in Egypt has proven itself misplaced. Is there any adequate source of help?

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 21:1 wilderness of the sea. The prophet referred to an area of southern Babylon near the Persian Gulf known for its fertility. As whirlwinds in the Negeb. The simile drew from the suddenness with which storm winds come from the Negeb and sweep through the land of Israel. So sudden is to be Babylon's overthrow.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 21:2 Elam . . . Media. The Elamites and Medes were part of the Persian army that defeated Babylon in 539 B.C.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 21:3–4 anguish . . . pangs . . . bowed down . . . dismayed. The severity of the violence about which Isaiah must prophesy caused him extreme agitation.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 21:5 eat . . . drink . . . oil the shield! This part of the oracle recalled Belshazzar's feast in Dan. 5, when amid the celebration came a call to fight the attacking enemy invading the city.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 21:6 Go, set a watchman. Isaiah stationed a watchman on the city walls.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 21:7 horsemen . . . donkeys . . . camels. Isaiah heard the watchman warn of an approaching military force.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 21:8 he who saw cried out . . . "O Lord." The Dead Sea Scrolls correctly read, "the watchman cried, my Lord." The watchman whom Isaiah had stationed (v. 6) continued his report.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 21:9 Fallen, fallen is Babylon. The watchman proclaimed the tragic end of mighty Babylon, which initially fell to the Assyrians in 689 B.C. and again to the Persians in 539 B.C. Yet Isaiah's prediction looked forward to the ultimate fall of the great enemy of God, as verified by John's citation of this verse in Rev. 14:8; 18:2 (cf. Jer. 50:2; 51:8, 49).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 21:10 my threshed . . . winnowed one. The violent threshing of grain portrayed Babylon's oppression of Israel, and the resultant grain was Israel's deliverance by God. The concise saying offered God's people hope.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 21:11 Seir. Another name for Edom—located south of the Dead Sea and the home of Esau's descendants—this is the source of an inquiry directed to Isaiah. what time of the night? How long was the Assyrian oppression to last?

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 21:12 Morning . . . night. The prophet promises a short-lived deliverance from Assyrian oppression, but quickly added the threat of Babylonian domination to follow soon.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 21:13 Dedanites. Dedan was on the route to the Red Sea about 290 miles southeast of Dumah, in the northwestern part of the Arabian desert.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 21:14 water . . . bread. The prophet indicated that those fleeing the Assyrian army will need supplies. Tema. Tema was on the Red Sea route about 200 miles southeast of Dumah, in the northwestern part of the Arabian desert.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 21:15 they have fled. The interior area of Arabia was a place of refuge for fugitives fleeing from the sophisticated armament of the Assyrians.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 21:16 Kedar. Kedar covers the area in the northwestern part of the Arabian desert. glory of Kedar will come to an end. This prophecy anticipated the conquest of the region by Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon (Jer. 49:28).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 22:1 valley of vision. This referred to Israel, since God often revealed himself to Jerusalem in visions. However, the unrepentant inhabitants displayed a marked lack of vision in their oblivion to the destruction that awaited them. What do you mean . . . ? The prophet reproached the people for celebrating with wild parties when they should have been in deep repentance because of their sins. Apparently he anticipated a condition that arose in conjunction with Jerusalem's fall to the Babylonians in 586 B.C. But similar incursions by the Assyrians in either 711 or 701 B.C., from which the Lord delivered the city, had prompted the revelry among the people.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 22:2 sword . . . battle. Death came through starvation or disease as the Babylonians besieged the city.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 22:3 leaders have fled. Rather than defend the city the way they ought, the leaders fled to save their own necks and in doing so, were captured (2 Kings 25:4–7).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 22:4 weep bitter tears. Isaiah's pain was deep. He could not participate in the revelry because he saw the reality of the spiritual issues.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 22:5 Lord God of hosts has a day. On a former occasion when the city was about to fall, terror had reigned among the citizens. It was to occur again, leaving no room for merriment.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 22:6 Elam . . . Kir. These lands had representatives in the Assyrian army that besieged Jerusalem.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 22:7 choicest valleys. Valleys lying both in and around Jerusalem are to be full of enemy troops.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 22:8 House of the Forest. Constructed by Solomon out of cedars (1 Kings 7:2–6), the structure housed weaponry (1 Kings 10:17) and other valuables (2 Chron. 9:20; Isa. 39:2).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 22:9 city of David. Jerusalem bore this name (2 Sam. 5:6–7, 9). See note on Jer. 29:1. lower pool. The pool of Siloam furnished the city's water supply. Hezekiah's lengthy underground conduit fed the pool from the Gihon Spring.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 22:10 fortify the wall. Hezekiah rebuilt the damaged wall (2 Chron. 32:5), but did so while trusting God. His faith contrasts with that of the people Isaiah currently addresses (Isa. 22:11b).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 22:11 old pool. This refers to the Gihon Spring, which the prophet sometimes referred to as the "upper pool" (7:3; 36:2; cf. 2 Kings 18:17). did not look to him who did it. Preparations for the city's defense were purely external. The people gave no thought to the Creator of the city, the pool, or the present crisis (cf. Isa. 31:1), against whom their physical defenses were useless.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 22:12–13 sackcloth . . . joy and gladness. In the face of a crisis that required genuine repentance, the people responded with hilarity and self-indulgence. Contrast this spirit with the legitimate joy and gladness of God’s people in 35:10 and 51:11.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 22:13 Let us eat and drink, for tomorrow we die. Paul cites the same philosophy (1 Cor. 15:32): If there is no resurrection, enjoyment in this life is all that matters. It utterly disregards God’s eternal values.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 22:14 will not be atoned for. The Lord’s prediction about the outcome of Isaiah’s ministry (6:9–10) found fulfillment.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 22:15 Shebna, who is over the household. Possibly of Egyptian extraction, this man was second in authority only to the king. Other OT references to Shebna refer to him as a “secretary” (36:22; 37:2; 2 Kings 18:37; 19:2), his position after his demotion from steward as prophesied by Isaiah (see Isa. 22:19).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 22:16 cut out a tomb. Shebna arranged construction of a tomb fit for a king as a memorial for himself, when he should have been attending to the spiritual affairs of Judah. The prophet condemns his arrogance.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 22:17 O you strong man. Lit., mighty or valiant man. Isaiah referred to Shebna’s glorious estimate of himself.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 22:18 wide land . . . die . . . shame. Far from receiving a luxurious burial in Jerusalem, Shebna died a shameful death in a foreign country.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 22:19 thrust you from your office. Arrogance caused Shebna’s demotion from steward to secretary some time later in Hezekiah’s reign but before 701 B.C. (36:1–2).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 22:20 my servant Eliakim. Eliakim, who replaced Shebna as steward or prime minister, was highly honored in being called "my servant" (see note on 20:3).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 22:21 father . . . Judah. The steward had supreme authority under the king's oversight.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 22:22 key of the house of David. This authority to admit or refuse admittance into the king's presence evidenced the king's great confidence in Eliakim. Jesus applied this terminology to himself as one who could determine who would enter his future Davidic kingdom (Rev. 3:7).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 22:23 throne of honor. The "throne" symbolized the honor Eliakim was to bring to his family.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 22:24 hang on him. Returning to the figure of a peg (v. 23), Isaiah noted how Eliakim's posterity will use him to gain glory for themselves.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 22:25 peg . . . give way. After a time of faithful service, Eliakim faltered and fell, and all "hanging" on him fell as well.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 23:1 Tyre. A Phoenician seaport on the Mediterranean Sea, located about 35 miles north of Mount Carmel and 28 miles west of Mount Hermon, Tyre supplied lumber for King Solomon's temple (1 Kings 5:1, 7–12) and sailors for his navy (1 Kings 9:26–27). ships of Tarshish. Tarshish was most likely in Spain, so "ships of Tarshish" were large trading vessels capable of making distant voyages on the open sea all the way to the port of Tyre. The OT refers to them frequently (Isa. 2:16; 60:9; 1 Kings 10:22; 22:48; Ps. 48:7; Ezek. 27:25; Jonah 1:3). laid waste. Tyre was under siege five times between this prophecy and 332 B.C. Only the last of these attacks (in 332 B.C., by Alexander the Great) completely leveled and subdued the city. Ezekiel prophesied this destruction in Ezek. 26:3–27:36. without house or harbor! Weary from their long, difficult journey, sailors would find no customary haven of rest upon arrival at their destination, Tyre. Cyprus. Upon reaching this island in the eastern Mediterranean, the seamen would learn of Tyre's overthrow.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 23:2 Sidon. Sidon was the other important Phoenician seaport, along with Tyre. Here it represented the rest of Phoenicia as reflecting the country's response to Tyre's overthrow.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 23:3 harvest of the Nile. Phoenicians carried much grain grown in Egypt aboard their ships. They also bought and sold much of the commodity.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 23:4 neither labored nor given birth. Isaiah spoke of barrenness, labor, and childbirth frequently (7:14; 8:3; 9:6; 26:16–18; 37:3; 44:3–5; 45:10–11; 47:8; 49:21; 54:1–3; 66:9). Here the figure described Tyre, "the stronghold of the sea," bemoaning her desolate condition.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 23:6–7 Tarshish . . . far away. Tyre's refugees had traveled throughout the Mediterranean world (see v. 1). They too lamented the city's fall.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 23:7 from days of old. Tyre was a very old city, dating from about two millennia before Christ.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 23:8 bestower of crowns . . . princes . . . honored. Tyre had very high international prestige.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 23:9 pride of all glory. This furnished the reason the Lord of hosts brought the overthrow of Tyre—their arrogance stemming from the city's prestige. They were foolish to rely on human glory.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 23:10 no restraint. The oracle invited the colonies of Tyre to exercise their freedom in taking advantage of the city's fall.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 23:11 the Lord has given command concerning Canaan. The Lord had caused the downfall of the territory of Canaan, which included Tyre and Sidon.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 23:12 virgin daughter of Sidon. A city once noted for its freshness and revelry (cf. v. 7) will become like a used-up old woman, piecing together what is left. God used the Assyrians to crush her (contrast the virgin daughter of Zion in 37:22).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 23:13 Chaldeans . . . Assyria. The example of the Chaldeans, another name for the Babylonians, reminded Tyre of their hopelessness against Assyria. Assyria ravaged Babylon in 689 B.C.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 23:15 seventy years. The devastation of Tyre was not permanent. A little village remains on the site of the ancient city to the present day. The time frame of the 70 years is obscure.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 23:15–16 song of the prostitute . . . forgotten . . . remembered. Harlots sang to draw attention to themselves, attention not so hard to obtain in ancient days. Like those harlots, the people of Tyre were invited to sing songs drawing attention to their earlier prosperity.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 23:17 the Lord will visit. With God's help, the city was to return.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 23:18 be holy to the Lord. Even Tyre's sinful gain was to support Judah as her colonies once supported her.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 24:1–27:13 These four chapters give praise to God for his future victory over all enemies and the final deliverance of Israel in the day of the Lord. The judgments in this chapter (ch. 24) look forward to the tribulation as described in Rev. 6ff.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 24:1 desolate . . . twist . . . scatter. The prophet generalized and broadened the destruction about which he had written more specifically in chs. 13–23. The Lord is to deal with the whole earth more severely than he did at the tower of Babel or through the Noahic flood.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 24:2 people . . . priest . . . creditor . . . debtor. Neither rank, wealth, nor power were able to deliver from God's judgment.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 24:3 the Lord has spoken. Isaiah used this expression or a comparable one nine other times to emphasize the certainty of his predictions (1:20; 21:17; 22:25; 25:8; 37:22; 38:7; 38:15; 40:5; 58:14).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 24:4 highest people. The prophet again called attention to pride as the reason for God's judgment (cf. 23:9).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 24:5 everlasting covenant. Likely, this referred to the Abrahamic Covenant, frequently referred to as "everlasting" (cf. Gen. 17:7, 13, 19; 1 Chron. 16:15, 17; Ps. 105:8, 10; 111:5, 9), which contained devotion to God's moral law and salvation by faith in him.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 24:6 few men are left. This Gentile remnant differed from that of Israel. Presumably they will join in support of Israel when the Messiah returns.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 24:7–9 merry-hearted sigh. The future day of judgment will terminate all merriment derived from natural sources. Cf. Rev. 18:22.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 24:10 every house. Houses normally provided security from outside harm, but they became inaccessible.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 24:13 an olive tree is beaten. The same figure spoke of leanness in the judgment against Ephraim in 17:6.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 24:14 lift up their voices . . . shout. The songs of the godly remnant (cf. v. 6), celebrating God's righteous judgment, replace the drunken music (cf. v. 9).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 24:15 give glory to the Lord. This call summoned all people worldwide to attribute to the Lord what was due him.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 24:16 glory to the Righteous One. This refers to God. But I. Isaiah could not yet join in the celebration of God's glory because he pondered the grief and corruption in the world before that final celebration of God's victory.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 24:17–18 pit . . . snare. The figure of an animal caught in a trap set by humans frequently symbolized the principle that life is a series of inescapable traps (2 Sam. 22:6; Job 18:8–10; 22:10; Ps. 18:5; 64:5; 106:36; 124:7; Jer. 48:43–44; Lam. 3:47; Amos 5:19).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 24:18 windows of heaven. In Noah's day, God judged with a flood (Gen. 7:11). He will judge again from heaven, but not with a flood. Cf. Rev. 6:13–14; 8:3–13; 16:1–21. foundations of the earth.

Unparalleled earthquakes will mark the future visitation during and after the fulfillment of Daniel’s 70-week prophecy (see note on Isa. 13:13; cf. Matt. 24:7; Rev. 6:12, 14; 8:5; 11:19; 16:18).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 24:20 drunken man . . . hut. Two more comparisons picture the ultimate collapse of the presumably strong and dependable planet earth: a staggering drunkard and a flimsy lean-to shack.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 24:21 the host of heaven, in heaven . . . kings. In the climactic phase of the day of the Lord, he will strike against rebelling forces, both angelic (Eph. 6:12) and human. See note on Isa. 2:12.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 24:22 shut up in a prison. The NT teaches more about the imprisonment of fallen angels before their final assignment to the lake of fire (2 Pet. 2:4; Jude 6; Rev. 9:2–3, 11; 11:7; 17:8; 20:1–10). It does the same regarding unbelieving humans (Luke 16:19–31; Rev. 20:11–15).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 24:23 moon . . . confounded . . . sun ashamed. In the eternal state after Christ’s millennial reign, the glory of God and of the Lamb will replace the sun and moon as sources of light (Rev. 21:23). reigns . . . in Jerusalem. In Rev. 11:15–17; 19:6, 16 (cf. Luke 1:31–33), John confirmed this clear prophecy of Messiah’s future earthly reign in Jerusalem.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 25:1 wonderful things, plans formed of old. Isaiah responded to God’s final judgment of the world (ch. 24) with praise to him for planning his actions long before their implementation.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 25:2 city a heap . . . never be rebuilt. The prophet did not stipulate which city, but a prophecy of Babylon’s final destruction is in keeping with the context (21:9; cf. Jer. 51:37; Rev. 18).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 25:3 strong peoples . . . ruthless nations. When Christ reigns on earth, nations from the whole world will glorify and fear him (see 24:14–16).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 25:4 poor . . . needy. Another indicator of God’s worthiness to be glorified is his upholding of the oppressed (cf. 11:4; 14:32).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 25:4–5 storm . . . heat. Two weather extremes of Judah's climate illustrate how God will harbor the poor and needy: the sudden thunderstorm and the relentless heat.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 25:6 this mountain. In the kingdom the Lord will host his great banquet on Mount Zion for the faithful remnant (see notes on 1:27; 2:2).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 25:7 covering . . . veil. God will remove the death shrouds from those in attendance at his banquet.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 25:8 swallow up death. God will swallow up death, which itself functions as a swallower of human beings (5:14; Prov. 1:12). Paul notes the fulfillment of this promise in the resurrection of believers (1 Cor. 15:54). wipe away tears. The Lord God will remove the sorrow associated with death (cf. Isa. 65:19). Revelation alludes to the tender action of this verse twice—once in 7:17 to describe the bliss of the redeemed in heaven, and once in 21:4 to describe ideal conditions in the new Jerusalem. the reproach . . . he will take away. Israel will be the head of the nations and no longer the tail (Deut. 28:13).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 25:9 Lordwe have waited for him. To wait for God entails an ultimate trust in him, not becoming impatient when his timetable for final salvation differs from ours (cf. 26:8; 33:2; 40:31).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 25:10 Moab. Moab represented the rest of the nations as does Edom elsewhere (34:5–15; 63:1–6; Obad. 1–9).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 25:12 fortifications . . . walls. Moabite cities had highly fortified and elevated walls. Even these will not withstand God's judgment.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 26:1–4 The redeemed remnant will sing praise to God over their impregnable city, Jerusalem.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 26:1 strong city. In contrast to the typical city of confusion (24:10; 25:2; 26:5) that was doomed, God has a future city of prominence, the millennial Jerusalem (Zech. 14:11).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 26:2 Open the gates. Isaiah envisions the future Jerusalem, where only righteous Israel may enter. The redeemed remnant from other nations will come periodically to worship (Zech. 14:16–19).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 26:3 perfect peace . . . trusts in you. A fixed disposition of trust in the Lord brings a peace that the wicked can never know (48:22; 57:21). Such reliance precludes double mindedness (James 1:6–8) and serving two masters (Matt. 6:24).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 26:4 everlasting rock. Lit., the expression is “Rock of Ages,” a rocky cliff where the trusting one may find shelter from attackers (cf. 12:2).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 26:5–6 the inhabitants of the height . . . lays it low. The arrogant inhabit the lofty city during its overthrow; the humble inhabit the strong city (v. 1) in its exaltation (cf. James 1:9–10; 1 Pet. 5:5).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 26:7 path of the righteous is level. In a land of hilly, twisting roads, Isaiah spoke of a straight and level path for the feet of the poor and needy (cf. 40:3–4; 42:16; 45:13).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 26:8 we wait for you. The future remnant divulges the key to its redemption—their complete dependence on the Lord, not humanly devised schemes.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 26:9 in the night. The pious long for God at all times. judgments . . . learn righteousness. God’s punishing hand benefits sinners in leading them to repentance.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 26:10 not learn righteousness. God evidences his love and mercy toward other wicked ones, but they turn their back on it.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 26:11 they do not see . . . Let them see. The wicked, who are blind to God’s authority and imminent judgment upon them, will be conscious of his compassion for his people Israel, to their own shame.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 26:12 will ordain peace. Though Israel's immediate future looks bleak, Isaiah expresses strong confidence that the nation will ultimately prosper.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 26:13 lords besides you. Israel's history was replete with periods of foreign domination by the likes of Egypt and Assyria.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 26:14 shades, they will not arise. These foreign overlords are to be a thing of the past; they are not to appear again on the earthly scene.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 26:15 have increased the nation. With prophetic certainty from the perspective of Israel's future restoration, Isaiah saw the expansion of Israel's borders as an accomplished fact.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 26:16 distress . . . discipline. The hard experiences of Israel's history drove her to call on God.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 26:17–18 pregnant woman. Israel's tumultuous history is compared to a pregnant woman in labor.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 26:18 accomplished no deliverance. All the nation's effort was to no avail because they did not depend on the Lord.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 26:19 dead shall live. This speaks of the raising of corporate Israel to participate in the great future banquet (cf. Ezek. 37). Daniel 12:2 speaks of the resurrection of individual OT saints.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 26:20 for a little while. Israel's final restoration was not immediately at hand. Hence she had to continue praying in solitude for that restoration until the time of God's indignation would pass.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 26:21 disclose the blood shed. The innocent killed by their oppressors are to come to life (cf. v. 19) and testify against their murderers.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 27:1 Leviathan. See note on Job 41:1.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 27:2–6 This vineyard of the Lord contrasts sharply with the one in 5:1–7. Far from a disappointment to the vinekeeper, this one bore abundant fruit (27:6).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 27:2 vineyard. Verse 6 identifies this vineyard as Israel.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 27:3 I keep it night and day. God's future provisions for restored Israel will be complete.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 27:4 I have no wrath. The time for Israel's punishment by God will pass. thorns and briers . . . burn them. I.e., the enemies of his people.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 27:5 make peace with me. The enemies of Israel may make peace with God.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 27:6 fill the whole world. In the future kingdom of the Messiah, restored Israel will rule with him and fill the earth with the fruit of righteousness and peace.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 27:7 struck . . . struck. God has tempered his dealings with Israel, but not so with those he used to punish Israel. His compassion for the other nations has come to an end.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 27:8 removed them. The Lord sent Judah into captivity to awaken the nation to trust in him.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 27:9 guilt . . . will be atoned for. Jacob atoned for his iniquity by undergoing punishment from God.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 27:10 fortified city. The city symbolized Judah's oppressors (cf. 24:10; 25:2; 26:5).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 27:11 will not have compassion on them. In contrast with his dealings with Israel, the Creator will deal a fatal blow to her enemies.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 27:12 gleaned one by one. After the judgment of her enemies at the end of Daniel's seventieth week, the faithful remnant of Israelites will return to their land (Matt. 24:31).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 27:13 worship the Lord . . . at Jerusalem. The prophet reiterates one of his great themes: future worship of regathered Israel on Mount Zion (24:23; 25:6–7, 10).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 28:1 Ah. The prominent thought in this word is impending disaster. crown. The walls of Samaria were the "crown" of a beautiful hill overlooking a lush valley leading toward the Mediterranean coast. Ephraim. The northern kingdom of Israel had fallen to the Assyrians, leaving a lesson for Jerusalem under similar circumstances to learn about foreign alliances. overcome with wine! Licentious living prevailed in Ephraim before her fall (vv. 3, 7; Amos 4:1; 6:1, 6).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 28:2 a storm of mighty . . . waters. Isaiah drew on forceful figures of speech to wake his readers from their lethargy in the face of the awfulness of an impending Assyrian invasion.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 28:4 first-ripe fig before the summer. Figs ripened before the end-of-summer harvest were devoured immediately. So the Assyrian conquest of Ephraim would be rapid.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 28:5 crown of glory. The true crown will replace the fraudulent "proud crown" (v. 1). remnant of his people. Isaiah again sounded the note of a faithful remnant in the day of the Lord (cf. 10:20–22; 11:11, 16; 37:31–32; 46:3).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 28:6 spirit of justice. In that day of Messiah's reign, the empowering Spirit will prevail in bringing justice to the world (cf. 11:2).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 28:7 priest . . . prophet . . . stagger. Drunkenness had infected even the religious leadership of the nation, resulting in false spiritual guidance of the people.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 28:8 with no space left. When leaders wallowed in filth, what hope did the nation have?

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 28:9 weaned from the milk. The drunken leaders resented it when Isaiah and other true prophets treated them as toddlers, by reminding them of elementary truths of right and wrong.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 28:10 precept upon precept . . . there a little. This is the drunkard's sarcastically mocking response to corrective advice from the prophet. Transliterated, the Hebrew monosyllables are Sav lasav, sav lasav, Kav lakav, kav lakav, Ze'er sham, ze'er sham. These imitations of a young child's babbling ridicule Isaiah's preaching.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 28:11 foreign tongue. Since the drunkards would not listen to God's prophet, he responded to them by predicting their subservience to Assyrian taskmasters, who would give them instructions in a foreign language. The NT divulges an additional meaning of this verse that anticipates God's use of the miraculous gift of tongues as a credential of his NT messengers (see notes on 1 Cor. 14:21–22; cf. Deut. 28:49; Jer. 5:15; 1 Cor. 14:21).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 28:12 This is rest . . . repose . . . not hear. In simple language they could understand, God offered them relief from their oppressors, but they would not listen.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 28:13 precept upon precept . . . there a little. In light of their rejection, the Lord imitated the mockery of the drunkards in jabber they could not understand (see v. 10).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 28:14 Therefore. In light of the tragedies that had befallen Ephraim (vv. 1–13), the scornful leaders in Jerusalem needed to steer a course different from relying on foreign powers for deliverance.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 28:15 covenant with death. Scornful leaders in Jerusalem had made an agreement with Egypt to help defend themselves against the Assyrians. overwhelming whip. Combining images of an overflowing river and a whip, the people bragged about their invincibility to foreign invasion. lies . . . falsehood. Jerusalem's leaders yielded to expediency for the sake of security. Without directly admitting it, they had taken refuge in deceit and falsehood.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 28:16 cornerstone, of a sure foundation. The Lord God contrasted the only sure refuge with the false refuge of relying on foreigners (v. 15). This directly prophesied the coming of the Messiah (Matt. 21:42; Mark 12:10; Luke 20:17; Acts 4:11; Rom. 9:33; Eph. 2:20; 1 Pet. 2:6–8; cf. Isa. 8:14–15; Ps. 118:22). haste. The Hebrew word is “hurry.” The Greek OT interprets this Hebrew verb for “hurry” in the sense of “put to shame,” furnishing the basis of the NT citations of this verse (Rom. 9:33; 10:11; 1 Pet. 2:6).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 28:17 justice the line. When the Messiah rules his kingdom, the system of justice will contrast strongly with the refuge of lies in which Jerusalem’s leaders engaged (see v. 15).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 28:18 covenant with death . . . will not stand. Trusting in foreign deliverers will utterly fail (see. v. 15).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 28:19 morning by morning. The Assyrians repeatedly plundered the area around Jerusalem, provoking great terror among the city’s inhabitants.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 28:20 bed is too short . . . covering too narrow. A proverbial expression about short beds and narrow sheets, telling Jerusalem that foreign alliances are inadequate preparations for the defense of the city.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 28:21 Mount Perazim . . . Valley of Gibeon. Just as the Lord defeated the Philistines at Mount Perazim (2 Sam. 5:19–20; 1 Chron. 14:10–11) and the Canaanites in the Valley of Gibeon (Josh. 10:6–11), he will do so against any who mock him, even Jerusalemites.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 28:22 decree of destruction. God had decreed something unusual (v. 21), the destruction of his own wicked people. Yet, they could escape if they repented.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 28:23 Give ear. The parable of a farmer underlined the lessons of judgment threats in vv. 18–22. As the farmer does his different tasks, each in the right season and proportion, so God adopts his measures to his purposes: now mercy, then judgment; punishing sooner, then later, his purpose was not to destroy his people, any more than the farmer's object in his threshing or plowing is to destroy his crop.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 28:24 plow continually . . . continually open. No ordinary farmer plows and turns the soil endlessly. He sows also in accord with what is proper.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 28:25 scatter . . . sow . . . put. After preparing the soil, the farmer carefully plants the seed.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 28:26 God teaches him. Farming intelligently is a God-given instinct.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 28:27–28 God-given understanding prevails in the threshing of various types of grain.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 28:29 wonderful in counsel. If God's way in the physical realm of farming is best, why did Jerusalem persist in refusing to accept his spiritual guidance?

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 29:1 Ariel. The word means "lion of God," referring to the city's strength, and perhaps "hearth of God," referring to the place where the altar of God always burns. Verses 7–8 show this to be a name for Jerusalem, and the chapter looks to the invasion of Jerusalem because of unbelief. where David encamped! David named Jerusalem "the city of David" (22:9; 2 Sam. 5:7, 9; cf. 2 Sam. 6:10, 12, 16; 1 Kings 2:10; 3:1; 8:1; 9:24; 14:31; 15:8; 2 Kings 8:24; 9:28; 12:21; 14:20; 15:7, 38; 16:20; 1 Chron. 11:5, 7; 13:13; 15:1, 29; 2 Chron. 5:2; 8:11; 12:16; 14:1; 16:14; 21:1, 20; 24:16, 25; 27:9; 32:5, 30; 33:14; Neh. 3:15; 12:37; Luke 2:4, 11). feasts. Jerusalem's cycle of religious ceremonies was meaningless to God.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 29:3 raise siegeworks. God encamped against Jerusalem through his instruments, first the Assyrians (701 B.C.) and then the Babylonians (586 B.C.).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 29:4 from the earth . . . from the dust. Jerusalem will be like a captive, humbled to the dust. Her voice will come from the earth like that of a medium spirit, like the voice of the dead was supposed to be. This would be fitting for her sins of necromancy.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 29:5–8 In God’s time, after Jerusalem’s punishment, those who fought against the city will themselves come under God’s judgment.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 29:5 instant, suddenly. God’s demolition of Israel’s enemies will be very abrupt, as was the repulsion of the Assyrians from Jerusalem in 701 B.C.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 29:6 thunder and with earthquake and great noise. This terminology points to the storm theophany marking the termination of the seals, trumpets, and bowls in Revelation (Rev. 8:5; 11:19; 16:18).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 29:7 dream. All the threat to the city from enemy nations will fade like a bad dream when one awakens.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 29:8 not satisfied . . . faint. Jerusalem’s attackers will frustrate themselves, as a dreamer who has the illusion that he eats and drinks, but awakens to find himself still hungry and thirsty.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 29:9–14 The prophet returned to the theme of the blindness of mechanical religion.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 29:9 blind . . . drunk. The blindness and drunkenness came from the people’s inability to comprehend Isaiah’s message about trusting God instead of Egypt.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 29:10 spirit of deep sleep. Because Israel refused to hear her true prophets initially, their ability to hear has been impaired. God gave them up judicially to their own hardness of heart. Paul applied this verse specifically to the general condition of Israel’s blindness during the age of the church (Rom. 11:8). prophets . . . seers. False prophets and seers have blinded their listeners with their false prophecies.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 29:11 one who can read. Those with ability to read could not do so because they had surrendered their spiritual sensitivity (cf. 6:9–10; Matt. 13:10–17).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 29:12 one who cannot read. The uneducated had two reasons for not knowing the book's contents: 1) the book was sealed, and 2) he could not read it even if it were not. It is deplorable when no one is capable of receiving God's rich revelation.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 29:13 hearts are far from me. Empty ritualism does not bring closeness to God. Jesus used this verse to describe the Judaism of his day (Matt. 15:7–9; Mark 7:6–7).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 29:14 wisdom . . . perish . . . discernment . . . hidden. The principle of resorting to human wisdom rather than divine wisdom was the spiritual plague of Jerusalem. The same principle was the downfall of the Greek world in Paul's day (1 Cor. 1:19).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 29:15 hide . . . from the Lord. The prophet probably referred to a secret plan of the leaders to join with Egypt to combat the Assyrians. The Lord had counseled otherwise, so they hid their strategy from him.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 29:16 He did not make me. For man to make plans on his own without God is a rejection of God as Creator. Paul reasons that it is also a questioning of the sovereignty of God (Rom. 9:19–21). Does the clay think itself equal to the potter?

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 29:17 fruitful field . . . a forest. In the future, a reversal of roles between the mighty and the weak will transpire, when God intervenes to bless Jerusalem. The moral change in the Jewish nation will be as great as if the usually forested Lebanon were turned into a field and vice versa.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 29:18 deaf shall hear . . . blind shall see. The spiritual blindness of Israel will no longer exist. Jesus gives the words an additional meaning, applying it to his ministry of physical healing for the deaf and blind (Matt. 11:5; cf. Isa. 35:5).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 29:19–20 obtain fresh joy . . . cut off. The future messianic age will bring a reversal of status. Rejoicing will replace the hardships of the oppressed; the oppressors' dominance will end.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 29:21 by a word . . . empty plea. Those with political and judicial authority are no longer to misuse their power to oppress.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 29:22 redeemed Abraham. God delivered Abraham from his pagan background when he brought him from beyond the Euphrates River into the land of Canaan (Josh. 24:2–3). Paul elaborates on this theme in Rom. 4:1–22. no more be ashamed. Israel in her history had frequently suffered disgrace, but the personal presence of the Messiah is to change that (Isa. 45:17; 49:23; 50:7; 54:4). After the salvation of Israel in the end time, the children of Jacob will no longer cause their forefathers to blush over their wickedness.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 29:23 sanctify . . . stand in awe. Jacob's descendants will marvel at the strong deliverance of the Lord and set him apart as the only one worthy of utmost respect. God will cleanse Israel (cf. 54:13–14).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 29:24 go astray . . . murmur. With their newfound respect for God, the formerly wayward ones were to gain the capacity for spiritual perception.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 30:1 not mine . . . not of my Spirit. Hezekiah's advisers urged him to turn to the Egyptians, not to God, for help against the invading Assyrians. Isaiah denounced this reliance on Egypt rather than God, who had forbidden such alliances.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 30:2 without asking for my direction. They had failed to consult God's prophet. Egypt . . . Pharaoh . . . Egypt! The Lord had warned Israel against returning to Egypt (Deut. 17:16). Now he warns them against an alliance with Egypt (Isa. 31:1). Note the similar advice from the Assyrian Rabshakeh, while laying siege to Jerusalem (36:9).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 30:3 shame . . . humiliation. The Assyrians had already defeated the Egyptian army only 100 miles from the Egyptian border.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 30:4 Zoan . . . Hanes. Judah's emissaries had penetrated from Zoan in the northeast of Egypt to Hanes 50 miles south of Memphis.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 30:6 land of trouble and anguish . . . humps of camels. Isaiah pictured a rich caravan, trudging slowly through rugged territory fraught with dangers, on its way to Egypt to purchase assistance.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 30:7 help is worthless . . . Rahab. Egypt was unwilling to help so the prophet calls the powerful Egypt "Rahab," meaning "strength," or "sitting idle" (Hebrew). "Rahab" is used of Egypt in Ps. 87:4 and 89:10.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 30:8 time to come. The Lord's instruction to Isaiah was to make a permanent written record so that future generations could learn Israel's folly of trusting in Egypt instead of in the Lord.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 30:9 rebellious people, lying children. The people's unwillingness to obey the Lord necessitated the keeping of a permanent record of their misdeeds.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 30:10–11 prophesy illusions . . . turn aside from the path. Isaiah's listeners tired of hearing counsel that was contrary to the path they desired to follow and wanted him to change his message to accommodate them.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 30:12–14 Since the people opted not to hear the word of the Lord's prophet, they will hear from the Lord's judgment.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 30:12 this word. The reference is to the instruction of the Lord through Isaiah.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 30:13–14 high wall . . . potter's vessel. Two comparisons portrayed the coming sudden disaster to befall the rebels, a high wall that collapses suddenly and a clay jar that shatters into many pieces when dropped.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 30:15 rest . . . trust. The Israelite rebels refused the true avenue of salvation and strength, i.e., resting and confidence in the Lord.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 30:16 horses . . . swift steeds. The people put their trust in Egypt's horses instead of the Lord. No horse could deliver them from their God-appointed oppressors (cf. Deut. 17:16; Ps. 33:17; 147:10).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 30:17 A thousand . . . one. Similar figures elsewhere describe Israel's victories (Lev. 26:36; Josh. 23:10) and defeats (Deut. 32:30).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 30:18 the Lord waits. Since Judah would not wait on the Lord to deliver (25:9; 26:8; 33:2; cf. 30:15), he must wait to be gracious to the nation.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 30:19 dwell . . . in Jerusalem. The prophet emphatically pointed to a result of God's grace toward Israel—the survival of the city of Jerusalem as the center of her domain (65:9; Ezek. 37:25, 28).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 30:20 eyes shall see. After their period of judgment because of disobedience, God is to open Israel's eyes to the soundness of the message of his prophets (29:24).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 30:21 a word behind you. The teachers will be near and the pupils sensitive to the Lord’s prophets, in strong contrast to the callousness formerly manifest (29:10–11).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 30:22 scatter them. The Babylonian captivity rid Israel of her idolatry in fulfillment of this prophecy.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 30:23–25 In the messianic kingdom of that future day, agriculture, cattle raising, food production, and water resources will prosper. The prophet predicted the redemption of nature (cf. Rom. 8:19–21).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 30:25 towers fall. Powerful nations that oppress Israel will come to an end (contra. 29:17).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 30:26 light of the moon . . . light of the sun. The benefits from the natural bodies of light will be much greater. Increase in the intensity of their light will work to people’s advantage (60:19–20), not to their detriment as in Rev. 16:8–9.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 30:27–33 Isaiah followed the promise of Judah’s redemption (vv. 19–26) with a promise of Assyria’s destruction.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 30:27 the name of the Lord. His name focuses particularly on his revealed character as Sovereign and Savior (Deut. 12:5).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 30:27–28 comes from afar . . . overflowing stream. The Lord will come suddenly upon his enemies as a great storm with its accompanying flood, to overwhelm them.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 30:29 song . . . feast. While God’s judgment devastated the Assyrians, the people of Jerusalem conducted a time of joyful celebration as at one of their feasts, perhaps a Passover.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 30:30–31 Assyrians . . . terror-stricken. Assyria in particular, but in the long range, any enemy of God’s people will fall victim to divine storm and flood (vv. 27–28).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 30:32 appointed staff . . . tambourines and lyres. With each blow of punishment against the Assyrians will come joyful celebration in Jerusalem.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 30:33 burning place. Lit., a place of abomination. Idolatrous Israel had burned to death human victims in this valley just south of Jerusalem, an area sometimes called the Valley of Hinnom (2 Kings 23:10; see note on Jer. 19:6). Later it became known as Gehenna, the place of refuse for the city, with constantly burning fires, symbolizing hell. The defeat was to be so complete that the fire burns continually.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 31:1 horses . . . chariots. Egypt's horses and chariots were numerous (1 Kings 10:28–29). Its flat topography was well suited for chariotry. They would be useful to Israel against the Assyrian cavalry. or consult the Lord! What made Israel's turning to Egypt most despicable was her accompanying turning away from the Lord.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 31:2 yet he is wise. Sarcastically, Isaiah countered the unwise royal counselors who had advised dependence on Egypt. does not call back his words. The implied exception is, of course, when the sinful nation repented, as in the case of Nineveh (Jonah 3:5–10).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 31:3 flesh . . . spirit. For example, Hezekiah wisely chose to rely on the Lord, not on the arm of flesh (2 Chron. 32:8).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 31:4 not terrified . . . or daunted. In his defense of Jerusalem, the Lord is to be like a strong and determined lion, unafraid of shepherds summoned against him.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 31:5 birds hovering. The Lord is like a hovering mother bird with a strong attachment to her little ones and a willingness to do whatever is necessary for their safety.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 31:6 Turn to him. The prophet called rebellious Israel to repent in light of God's gracious dealings with them (vv. 4–5; cf. 30:18–19).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 31:7 cast away his idols. The obvious helplessness of the idols to deliver rendered them completely useless.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 31:8 Assyrian shall fall. The defeat of Assyria by other-than-human means matched this prophecy well (see 37:36–37), but other such foreign oppressors meet the same fate in the distant future of Israel, during the time of Jacob's trouble (cf. Jer. 30:7).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 31:9 fire is in Zion . . . furnace is in Jerusalem. Both in Isaiah's near future and in the distant future, Jerusalem will be God's headquarters for bringing judgment on foreign nations. God himself is the fire, waiting for all the enemies who attack Jerusalem.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 32:1 a king . . . princes. In contrast to bad leaders already discussed (e.g., 28:14–15; 29:15), the prophet turned to the messianic king and his governmental assistants during the future day of righteousness. These will be the apostles (Luke 22:30) and the saints (1 Cor. 6:2; 2 Tim. 2:12; Rev. 2:26–27; 3:21).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 32:2 shade . . . land. During the millennial reign of Christ, leaders will provide protection like "the shade of a great rock in a weary land," instead of posing threats to the people's well-being.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 32:3 eyes . . . not be closed . . . ears . . . give attention. A future generation of Israelites will experience a reversal of receptivity compared to Isaiah's generation (6:9–10; cf. 29:18, 24; 30:20).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 32:4 stammerers. The stammerers were former drunkards who uttered nonsense in their drunken stupor (28:7–8; 29:9).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 32:5 fool . . . noble . . . scoundrel . . . honorable. In the future earthly kingdom envisioned by Isaiah, false appraisals of leadership qualities will be impossible, because everyone will see and speak clearly.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 32:6–8 fool . . . noble. An unwillingness to care for the needy reflects the character of a fool, but the noble person in dependence on God provides for the poor. These qualities will be evident to all in the age to come.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 32:9–14 The prophet warns the women of Judah against complacency (cf. 3:16–4:1). God's eventual blessing on their nation gave no excuse for business as usual, i.e., dependence on Egypt instead of God.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 32:9 at ease . . . complacent. “At ease” translates the word rendered “quiet” and “complacent” the word rendered “secure” in v. 18. The difference between the bad senses here and the good senses in v. 18 is the object of trust, Egypt or God. Ease and security in God are proper.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 32:10 little more than a year. Perhaps specifying a time when the Assyrian army came and pillaged the land, the prophet warned of how God’s coming judgment was to spoil agricultural production.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 32:11–12 Tremble . . . Beat your breasts. Present satisfaction with the status quo shortly gave way to an entirely different set of emotions.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 32:13 thorns . . . briers. Without harmony with God, the land of God’s people became just as desolate as any other forsaken territory (1:7; 5:6; 7:23).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 32:14 populous city. Jerusalem too was to become desolate through the Lord’s purging judgments of the nation (Luke 21:24).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 32:15–20 The promised kingdom was to eventually come to Israel with its accompanying fruitfulness, peace, and security.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 32:15 the Spirit is poured upon us. The infusion of God’s Spirit was to transform the land into productive fruitfulness (Joel 2:28–3:1).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 32:16 justice . . . righteousness. Noble spiritual values were to thrive in the future messianic reign.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 32:18 My people . . . peaceful . . . secure . . . quiet. The people of Israel will enjoy lasting security with the Messiah personally present to ensure peace.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 32:19 city . . . laid low. Jerusalem must learn humility before the prophesied ideal conditions can become reality.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 32:20 Happy. As with the beatitudes of Christ (Matt. 5:3–12), Isaiah pronounced the blessedness of those who participate in the future glory of Christ's kingdom.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 33:1 destroyer. Though the immediate reference is to Assyria (2 Kings 18:13–16; 19:32–37), the prophecy looks beyond Assyria to any power that sets itself against Israel.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 33:2 we wait for you. Israel refused to do this earlier (30:15; 31:6), but had repented (25:9; 26:8; 33:2).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 33:3–4 Just as Sennacherib took flight suddenly (cf. 37:37; 2 Chron. 32:21), so the nations will scatter before the Lord, leaving their spoils behind.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 33:6 fear of the Lord. The same Spirit-imparted qualification possessed by the Messiah (11:2) will belong to his people when he returns.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 33:7–9 From the vision of future glory, Isaiah returns to the disastrous present. Jerusalem's situation was hopeless when in 701 B.C. the Assyrian army had the city surrounded and was ready to move in.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 33:7 heroes . . . envoys. Both men of war and diplomats had failed in their attempts to thwart the invaders.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 33:8 highways lie waste. The enemy surrounding the city had cut off all travel and trade with the outside world.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 33:9 Lebanon . . . Sharon . . . Bashan . . . Carmel. The enemy had spoiled places renowned for their lush fertility.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 33:10 Now I will arise. When the oppressor's power had reached its zenith, the time had arrived for the Lord to assert himself in judging the plunderer, in Isaiah's case the Assyrian troops.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 33:11 chaff . . . stubble. References to Assyria reaffirm that the plunderer is to be plundered (v. 1).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 33:12 lime . . . thorns. Burned limestone became dust; thorn bushes burned rapidly.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 33:13 far off . . . near. When God puts down the final enemies of Israel, he will receive worldwide acknowledgment of his might.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 33:14 afraid. When sinners (false professors among the elect) comprehend the might of God, fear takes hold of their lives (Acts 5:11; Heb. 12:29).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 33:15 walks righteously and speaks uprightly. The only survivors in the presence of mighty God will be the righteous (Ps. 15:1–5; 24:3–4).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 33:16 fortresses . . . bread . . . water. Those who are right with God will enjoy perfect security and ample provisions (32:15, 17–18).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 33:17 king in his beauty. The prophecy moves beyond Hezekiah in his sackcloth, oppressed by his enemy, to Messiah in his beauty. Seeing him in glory is another reward of the righteous. The near-future deliverance from Sennacherib anticipates a more distant wonder when the Messiah will sit on his throne.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 33:18–19 In that future day God’s people will remember past hardships under foreign domination.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 33:20 immovable tent. God’s presence is to permanently inhabit restored Jerusalem in the millennial kingdom.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 33:21 rivers and streams. God is to restore wide rivers and streams as a means of defending the city.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 33:22 he will save us. In explicit language, God, not the surrounding nations, is to deliver Israel.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 33:23 cords hang loose. In her own strength, Jerusalem is as helpless to defend herself as a ship deprived of its ropes and pulleys, that cannot sail. lame will take the prey. The weak city defeats the invaders with the Lord's enablement.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 33:24 forgiven their iniquity. When Christ returns to rule, Jerusalem will be free of physical and spiritual problems.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 34:1 Draw near. Isaiah invited the nations to approach to hear God's sentence of judgment against them.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 34:3 the stench. Prolonged exposure of dead corpses was and is repulsive and disgraceful (see 14:19).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 34:4 heaven . . . scroll. Not even the heavens are to escape the effects of God's wrath. Revelation 6:14 affirms the future fulfillment of this prophecy during Daniel's seventieth week (see Isa. 2:19; 13:10).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 34:5 Edom. The prophet selects Edom as a representative of the rest of the nations (cf. 63:1; Gen. 25:23; Num. 20:14–21; Ezek. 35:1–15; Obad. 1–14; Mal. 1:2–3; cf. Isa. 25:10). people . . . devoted to destruction. The expression's negative connotation stems from their involuntary devotion to God.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 34:6–7 lambs . . . goats . . . rams . . . Wild oxen . . . bulls. Since the nations had not repented and obeyed God's way of sacrifice for sins, they became the sacrificial penalty for their own sins.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 34:6 Bozrah. A chief city of Edom located about 20 miles southeast of the southern end of the Dead Sea.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 34:8 the Lord has a day of vengeance. See note on 2:10–22. God's day of vengeance on Edom (63:4) will be the same as on the rest of the nations (59:17–18; 61:2).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 34:9–10 God's judgment is to reduce the nations to a state of perpetual volcanic waste.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 34:9 sulfur . . . burning pitch. Genesis 19:24, 28 describes Sodom in similar terms (cf. 30:33; Deut. 29:23; Ps. 11:6; Jer. 49:18; Ezek. 38:22).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 34:10 smoke shall go up forever. Revelation forecasts this destiny for final Babylon, the great end-time world empire (Rev. 14:10–11; 18:18; 19:3).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 34:11–15 Various forms of animal and bird life symbolize the depopulated condition into which the nations fall after God's judgment upon them (13:21–22; 14:23).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 34:11, 13 hawk . . . owl . . . raven . . . ostriches. The presence of unclean birds was a sign of desolation and wilderness. Similar symbolism portrays the final state of Babylon in the future (Rev. 18:2; cf. Isa. 13:21; Jer. 50:39; Zeph. 2:13–14).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 34:16 the mouth . . . has commanded. The prophecies against the nation in vv. 1–15 were just as certain as God's sovereign command through his prophet.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 34:17 portioned it . . . with the line. God had partitioned off Edom just as he once did Canaan (Num. 26:55–56; Josh. 18:4–6) and allotted it to the wild animals listed in Isa. 34:11–15.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 35:1–4 In contrast to luxuriant Edom that is to become a desert (34:1–17), during Messiah's reign on earth the whole world is to become a flourishing garden, and this will offer encouragement to the weak.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 35:1 desert . . . like the crocus. Dramatic changes in the land are to come during the messianic age (see 30:23–25; 32:15–20).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 35:2 Lebanon . . . Carmel and Sharon. Areas near the sea noted for their agricultural fertility. They shall see. Israel is to recognize the earth's newfound fruitfulness as coming from the Lord and attribute to him the appropriate credit.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 35:3 weak . . . feeble. The future change in Israel's international role is to serve to encourage the discouraged among the people. The writer of Hebrews gave an additional application of this verse to strengthen endurance among Christians suffering persecution for their faith (Heb. 12:12).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 35:4 vengeance . . . save you. The vengeance of God (34:8) is to furnish the means to redeem his long-oppressed people of Israel.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 35:5 eyes . . . opened . . . ears . . . unstopped. This is to reverse the spiritual condition of the immediate objects of Isaiah's ministry (see 29:18; 32:3).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 35:6 lame . . . sing. God's restoration in the millennial age is to include physical restoration to the afflicted. Jesus' first coming gave a foretaste of that future day (Matt. 11:5; 12:22; Mark 7:37; Luke 7:21; Acts 3:8).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 35:6–7 streams in the desert . . . springs of water. Water was and is a precious commodity in Israel (41:18). In the millennium, there will be no scarcity.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 35:7 haunt of jackals. The rocky crags normally inhabited by jackals (34:13) are to become splashy meadows.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 35:8 Way of Holiness. This refers to the way leading the redeemed back to Jerusalem, the throne of Messiah, literally and spiritually. Christ himself is to be the leader on that way, called in 40:3, the "way of the Lord."

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 35:9 lion . . . ravenous beast. No ferocious beasts are to threaten the safety of those traveling the Way of Holiness. the redeemed. Mentioned only rarely in chs. 1–39 (1:27; 29:22) whose theme is judgment; terms for redemption occur frequently in chs. 40–66.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 35:10 the ransomed . . . flee away. See 51:11 where the words occur again. Gladness is to replace sadness across the board in the day of Israel's restoration.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 36:1–39:8 The four chapters duplicate almost verbatim 2 Kings 18:13–20:19 (cf. 2 Chron. 32:1–23). See 2 Kings notes for amplification. Isaiah added this material to make the references to Assyria more understandable. It is most probable that Isaiah is the author of this section, since 2 Chron. 32:32 says Isaiah also wrote the acts of Hezekiah. Isaiah's record was incorporated into 2 Kings by the author of that record. These chapters form the transition closing the first division of Isaiah's prophecy. Isaiah 36–37 are the historical consummation of chs. 1–35—Jerusalem's deliverance from Assyria—and chs. 38–39 the historical basis for chs. 40–66—a preview of the Babylonian captivity.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 36:1 fourteenth year of King Hezekiah. Since Sennacherib's attack came in 701 B.C., this places the beginning of Hezekiah's reign in 715 B.C. But since 2 Kings 18:1 says he began to reign in the third year of Hoshea, c. 729 B.C., Hezekiah served as co-regent with Ahaz (c. 729–716 B.C.) before assuming the throne exclusively. It was customary for the later kings of Israel to assume their sons into partnership in the government during their lives. Sennacherib. The king of Assyria (c. 705 to 681 B.C.). fortified cities. The discovery of the ancient Annals of Sennacherib reveals the cities he conquered in his campaign southward from Sidon on the Mediterranean coast.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 36:2 Rabshakeh. The spokesman for Sennacherib's three highest officials, who represented the king against Jerusalem on this occasion, according to 2 Kings 18:17. great army. This was a token force of the main army (Isa. 37:36), with which Sennacherib hoped to bluff Judah into submitting. Lachish. A city about 25 miles southwest of Jerusalem. Sennacherib's conquest of this city was in its closing phase when he sent the messengers. conduit of the upper pool. Isaiah met Ahaz at the same spot to try unsuccessfully to dissuade him from trusting in foreign powers (7:3).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 36:3 Eliakim . . . Shebna. See notes on 22:19–22. Joah . . . the recorder. The position was that of an intermediary between the king and the people.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 36:4–10 Rabshakeh's logic was twofold: 1) Egypt was unable to deliver Jerusalem (vv. 4–6, 8–9), and 2) the Lord had called on the Assyrians to destroy Judah (vv. 7, 10).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 36:4 the great king, the king of Assyria. The self-appropriated title of Assyrian kings. In contrast, Rabshakeh rudely omitted any title for Hezekiah (vv. 4, 14–16).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 36:5 mere words. Words amounted to nothing when it came to warfare. In other words, Judah was defenseless.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 36:6 broken reed . . . Egypt. The Assyrian's advice strongly resembled that of Isaiah (19:14–16; 30:7; 31:3).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 36:7 he whose high places and altars. Rabshakeh mistakenly thought Hezekiah's reforms in removing idols (2 Kings 18:4; 2 Chron. 31:1) had removed opportunities to worship the Lord. this altar. That all worship should center in Solomon's temple was utterly foreign to the polytheistic Assyrians.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 36:8–9 Rabshakeh taunted and minimized Judah's best defensive efforts, even with Egypt's help.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 36:10 The Lord said. Rabshakeh's boastful claim of the authority from Judah's God for his mission may have been a ploy on his part to get a surrender, but it aligned with Isaiah's prophecy that the Assyrians would be his instrument to punish his people (8:7–8; 10:5–6). The Assyrians may have heard this from partisans or may not have known this, but Judah did.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 36:11 Aramaic . . . Judah. Hezekiah's representatives, aware of the alarm created by the suggestion that the Lord was on the Assyrian side, asked Rabshakeh to change from Hebrew, or Judean, to Aramaic, the language of diplomacy, so the people on the wall could not understand his words and be terrified.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 36:12 men . . . on the wall. The foreign emissary continued his efforts to damage the city's morale by speaking of the horrors of famine that a long siege would entail.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 36:13–17 Rabshakeh spoke longer and louder, suggesting that Hezekiah could not save the city, but the great king, the king of Assyria, would fill the people with abundance (vv. 16–17).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 36:16 Make your peace. Lit., “Make a blessing with me.” The official invited the people to make a covenant with Assyria by surrendering.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 36:17 take you away. Rabshakeh did not hide Assyria’s well-known practice of deporting conquered peoples to distant places.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 36:18–20 In Rabshakeh’s eyes, the Lord was one of the many gods worshiped by nations conquered by the Assyrians (cf. 10:8–11).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 36:21 were silent. Hezekiah had apparently anticipated the ultimatum of the Assyrians and had told his representatives and the men on the wall not to respond.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 36:22 clothes torn. The king’s representatives reported to him in a state of grief and shock at the blasphemy they thought they had heard.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 37:1 tore . . . sackcloth. A reaction that symbolized Hezekiah’s grief, repentance and contrition. The nation was to repent and the king was to lead the way. house of the Lord. God designated the temple as his “house of prayer” (56:7; Matt. 21:13; Mark 11:17; Luke 19:46), so it was the proper place to go to confess sins and seek forgiveness (cf. Ps. 73:16–17).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 37:2 senior priests. Senior religious leaders in Israel.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 37:3 come to the point of birth . . . no strength. Hezekiah compared his dilemma with a mother in labor unable to deliver her child. Jerusalem had to be delivered, but he was helpless to make it happen.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 37:4 mock the living God. Hezekiah received a report of Rabshakeh’s belittling of the Lord by equating him with other gods and points out the distinction between God who is living and gods who are lifeless and helpless (40:18–20; 46:5–7). remnant that is left. Only Jerusalem remained unconquered. Hezekiah asked Isaiah's prayer for the city.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 37:6 Do not be afraid. The same assurance Isaiah had given Ahaz (7:4).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 37:7 spirit. The Lord promised to incline Sennacherib's attitude in such a way that he would leave Jerusalem unharmed and return home.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 37:8 Libnah. After conquering Lachish, Sennacherib moved on to this smaller town to the north of Lachish.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 37:9 Tirhakah king of Cush. Tirhakah did not become king of Cush, or Ethiopia (and Egypt), until 11 years after the 701 B.C. siege, so Isaiah's use of "king" anticipates his future title. At that moment, however, he represented a threat to Sennacherib from the south that caused him to renew his call for Jerusalem's surrender to the north.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 37:10–13 The king of Assyria sent messengers to summarize the arguments given in Rabshakeh's ultimatum of 36:4–19.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 37:10 deceive. The accusation of deception was first against Hezekiah (36:14), then against the Lord.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 37:11–13 The threat repeats the thrust of 36:18–20.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 37:12 The conquered cities mentioned here lay between the Tigris and Euphrates Rivers in Mesopotamia.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 37:13 These were cities of Syria that had fallen to the Assyrians recently.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 37:14 house of the Lord. Godly Hezekiah returned to the house of the Lord (cf. v. 1) as he should have, in contrast to Ahaz, who in a similar crisis refused even to ask a sign from the Lord (7:11–12).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 37:16 enthroned . . . made heaven and earth. The basis for Hezekiah's plea was God's role as the Sovereign and Creator of the universe, not Judah's worthiness to be delivered.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 37:17 hear . . . see . . . hear. In contrast to the gods of other nations (Ps. 115:4–7), the God of Israel heard and saw all.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 37:18–19 Hezekiah exploded the Assyrian theory that the Lord was no different from gods of the other nations that could not deliver their worshipers.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 37:20 you alone. Hezekiah displayed the highest motivation of all in requesting the salvation of Jerusalem: that the world may know that the Lord alone is God (cf. Dan. 9:16–19).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 37:21 Isaiah the son of Amoz. Immediately upon the conclusion of Hezekiah's prayer, Isaiah had a response from the Lord.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 37:22 scorns you. Jerusalem, portrayed as a virgin helpless before a would-be rapist, had the "last laugh" against Sennacherib.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 37:23 you mocked and reviled. The Lord had heard Sennacherib's reproach against him (v. 17).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 37:24–25 Even the servants of Sennacherib had bragged about Assyria's being unstoppable.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 37:26 I bring to pass. God corrected Sennacherib's vanity; he conquered nothing on his own, but was a mere instrument in the Lord's hand.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 37:27 dismayed. Assyria had utterly overwhelmed populations included in their conquests.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 37:28 your raging against me. Sennacherib's ignorance of being a mere tool in the Lord's hand was bad, but his belittling of God, the source of his life, was far worse.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 37:29 hook in your nose . . . bit in your mouth. In judging Sennacherib, the Lord treated him as an obstinate animal with a ring in his nose and/or a bit in his mouth. Some ancient sources indicate that captives were led before a king by a cord attached to a hook or ring through the upper lip and nose. Thus, he was to be brought back to his own country.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 37:30 sign. The two years in which they were sustained by the growth of the crops were the two in which Sennacherib ravaged them (cf. 32:10). He left immediately after the deliverance (37:37), so in the third year, the people left could plant again.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 37:31–32 remnant . . . remnant. From the remnant of survivors in Jerusalem came descendants who covered the land once again (1:9, 27; 3:10; 4:3; 6:13; 8:16–17; 10:20, 22; 11:12, 16; 26:1–4, 8; 27:12; 28:5; 37:4).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 37:32 zeal of the Lord of hosts. The same confirmation of God's promise in 9:7 assured the future establishment of the messianic kingdom. Deliverance from Sennacherib in Hezekiah's day was a down payment on the literal, final restoration of Israel.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 37:33 shall not come . . . cast up a siege mound. God promised that the Assyrians would not even pose a physical threat to Jerusalem. They came near, but never engaged in a true siege of the city.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 37:34 he shall return. In contrast with his arrival in Judah as an overbearing, invincible monarch, he returned to Assyria as a defeated, dejected "has been." In his own Annals he claimed only to have "shut up" Jerusalem, not to have conquered it.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 37:35 for my own sake. Since Sennacherib had directly challenged the Lord's faithfulness to his word (v. 10), the faithfulness of God was at stake in this contest with the Assyrians (cf. Ezek. 36:22–23). for the sake of my servant David. God pledged to perpetuate David's line on his throne (2 Sam. 7:16; cf. Isa. 9:6–7; 11:1; 55:3).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 37:36 the angel of the Lord. This was Isaiah's only use of a title that is frequent in the OT, one referring to the Lord himself. For identification, see note on Ex. 3:2. struck. Secular records also mention this massive slaughter of Assyrian troops, without noting its supernatural nature, of course (cf. Ex. 12:12, 29).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 37:37 Nineveh. The capital of Assyria.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 37:38 his god. The place of Sennacherib's death (c. 681 B.C.) recalled the impotence of his god, Nisroch, compared with the omnipotence of Hezekiah's God. struck him. Sennacherib's pitiful death came 20 years after his confrontation with the Lord regarding the fate of Jerusalem. Ararat. Mountain region north of Israel, west of Assyria (cf. Gen. 8:4; 2 Kings 19:37; Jer. 51:27). Esarhaddon. Successor to Sennacherib (c. 681–669 B.C.).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 38:1 In those days . . . sick. Hezekiah's sickness occurred before the Assyrian siege of Jerusalem described in chs. 36–37. Isaiah placed the description of that illness here, along with ch. 39, to introduce chs. 40–66. See note on 2 Kings 20:1. Set your house in order. An instruction telling Hezekiah to make his final will known to his family (cf. 2 Sam. 17:23; 1 Kings 2:1–9). you shall die, you shall not recover. The prediction sounded final, but Hezekiah knew God was willing to hear his appeal (cf. Ex. 32:7–14).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 38:2–3 prayed . . . wept bitterly. See note on 2 Kings 20:2–3.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 38:3 whole heart. Hezekiah based his implied request for an extension of his life on an undivided desire to please the Lord.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 38:5 fifteen years. The Lord's immediate (2 Kings 20:4) response granted the king's request. Having to reverse a prophecy so quickly did not alarm Isaiah as it did Jonah later on (Jonah 4:2–3). Isaiah resembled Nathan in this respect (2 Sam. 7:3–6).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 38:6 I will deliver . . . this city. The deliverance described in the previous chapter.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 38:7–8 sign . . . back ten steps. Here is the first biblical mention of any means of marking time. According to 2 Kings 20:8–10, Hezekiah requested this sign to confirm the Lord's promise of healing.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 38:9 writing of Hezekiah. In response to his healing, Hezekiah wrote the record of his helplessness when facing death (vv. 10–14) and told of God's response to his condition (vv. 15–20). This poetry is missing from the parallel account in 2 Kings.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 38:10 In the middle of my days. The king was probably in his thirties or forties when he fell sick.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 38:11 I shall not see. Hezekiah feared that death would terminate his fellowship with the Lord. Lord, the Lord. The Hebrew repeats the name: Yah, Yah. The KJV rendered it, "Lord, even the Lord." See 12:2 and 26:4 for other such repetitions.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 38:12 shepherd's tent . . . a weaver. Two comparisons with transient articles illustrate how death removes in a moment what may have seemed so permanent.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 38:14 I moan . . . be my pledge of safety! In his helplessness, Hezekiah pleaded with God to deliver him from impending death.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 38:15 he himself has done it. The king had complete confidence in God.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 38:16 restore me . . . make me live! The king's survival was God's accomplishment.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 38:17 my sins behind your back. Hezekiah felt his sickness was somehow related to his sinfulness. To be rid of the latter was to be rid of the former also.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 38:18 do not hope. Hezekiah's understanding of the resurrection of believers was incomplete. The same was true of others throughout much of the OT. But he was right in recognizing that death ended his opportunity for earthly praise and worship in the presence of men.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 38:19 father . . . children. Word about God's faithfulness passed from generation to generation (Deut. 4:9; 6:7; Ps. 78:3–4). If Hezekiah at this point had no heir, he had another reason for frustration over dying in the prime of life.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 38:20 play my music . . . at the house of the Lord. Hezekiah was so overwhelmed with gratitude to God that he felt compelled to express it appropriately throughout the 15 years he had left on earth.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 38:21–22 These two verses furnish background details of the account in vv. 1–8.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 38:21 cake of figs. The medicine for healing the king's sickness (2 Kings 20:7).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 38:22 sign. Hezekiah's request explained why the Lord gave him a sign that he would be healed (v. 7; cf. 2 Kings 20:8). the house of the Lord? Hezekiah went to the temple (Isa. 38:20) as Isaiah had instructed him to do (2 Kings 20:5, 8).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 39:1 At that time. Just after Hezekiah's sickness and recovery. Merodach-baladan. See note on 2 Kings 20:12.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 39:2 Hezekiah welcomed. The text does not say whether it was because of flattery or of a desire for help against the increasing Assyrian threat. Cf. 2 Kings 20:13. treasure house . . . storehouses. Doubtless to try and impress his visitors (2 Chron. 32:25), Hezekiah showed all he could contribute in an alliance against the Assyrians.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 39:3 Isaiah the prophet came. God's spokesman showed up without being invited to confront the king, as often happened (e.g., 7:3; 2 Sam. 12:1; 1 Kings 13:1; 18:16–17).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 39:5–6 word of the Lord . . . carried to Babylon. Isaiah predicted the Babylonian captivity that would come over a century later (586 B.C.), another prophecy historically fulfilled in all of its expected detail.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 39:6 Nothing shall be left. Hezekiah’s sin of parading his wealth before the visitors backfired, though this sin was only symptomatic of the ultimate reason for the captivity. The major cause was the corrupt leadership of Manasseh, Hezekiah’s son (2 Kings 21:11–15).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 39:7 sons, who will come from you. To a king without an heir, this was good news (that he would have one some day) and bad news (that his sons must go into captivity). See 2 Kings 24:12–16; 2 Chron. 33:11; Dan. 1:3–4, 6 for the prophecy’s fulfillment.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 39:8 word of the Lord . . . is good. A surprising response to the negative prophecy of vv. 5–7! It perhaps acknowledged Isaiah as God’s faithful messenger. peace and security in my days. Hezekiah perhaps reacted selfishly, or perhaps he looked for a bright spot to lighten the gloomy fate of his descendants.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 40:1–66:24 The prophecies of chs. 1–39 addressed Judah in her situation during Isaiah’s ministry (739 B.C. until c. 686 B.C.). The prophecies of chs. 40–66 address Judah as though the prophesied Babylonian captivity (39:5–7) were already a present reality, though that captivity did not begin until 605–586 B.C. The words “There is no peace . . . for the wicked” (48:22; 57:21) signal the divisions of this section into three parts: chs. 40–48; chs. 49–57; and chs. 58–66.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 40:1–48:22 This section looks at the hope and comfort of a blessed future subsequent to God’s judgment in the forthcoming Babylonian captivity.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 40:1–2 Comfort, comfort. The prophecy addressed God’s prophets, instructing them to emphasize the theme of comfort to a captive people in a foreign land many miles from their home city of Jerusalem. God has good plans for great blessing to Israel in the future because they are his covenant people, who are never to be permanently cast away (cf. Rom. 11:2).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 40:2 iniquity is pardoned . . . double for all her sins. Cruel slaughter and captivity at the hands of the Babylonians were sufficient payment for past sins; so someday after worldwide dispersion, Israel will return to her land in peace and in the glory of Messiah’s kingdom.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 40:3–5 A prophetic exhortation told Israel to prepare for the revelation of the Lord’s glory at the arrival of Messiah. Scripture sees John the Baptist in this role (Matt. 3:3; Mark 1:3; Luke 3:4–6; John 1:23). It likewise sees the future forerunner who is to be like Elijah preparing for Christ’s second coming (Mal. 3:1; 4:5–6).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 40:3–4 prepare the way. The remnant of Israel could remove obstacles from the coming Messiah’s path through repentance from their sins. John the Baptist reminded his listeners of this necessity (Matt. 3:2), as did Jesus (Matt. 4:17; Mark 1:15). These verses reflect the custom of some eastern monarchs to send heralds before them to clear away obstacles, make causeways, straighten crooked roads and valleys, and level hills (cf. Isa. 45:1–2). John had the task of getting people ready for Messiah's arrival.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 40:5 glory of the Lord . . . revealed. Jerusalem's misery is to end and the Lord's glory to replace it, so comfort will come to the city (v. 2), and every person will see God's glorious salvation (cf. 52:10) in Messiah's future kingdom (Hab. 2:14; Rev. 21:23; cf. Isa. 11:9). mouth of the Lord has spoken. Used for confirmations also in 1:20; 58:14; 62:2.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 40:6–8 All flesh . . . flower fades. Isaiah elaborated on how transitory humanity is: here today, gone tomorrow. People pass away like plants under the hot breath of the withering east wind. James used this illustration to teach the folly of trusting in material wealth (James 1:10–11). Peter used it to illustrate the passing nature of everything related to humanity (1 Pet. 1:24–25).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 40:8 the word of our God will stand forever. The permanence of God's word guarantees against any deviation from the divine plan (55:11). He has promised Jerusalem's deliverance (40:2) through his coming (vv. 3–5), so it must happen that way (cf. Matt. 5:18; Luke 16:17).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 40:9 Zion . . . good news . . . Jerusalem . . . good news. Like a messenger on a mountain, to be seen and heard by all, the prophet called on the city to proclaim loudly to the rest of Judah's cities the good news of God's presence there (cf. 2:3). Behold your God! The restoration of Israel to the land is to include the resumption of God's presence in Jerusalem after many centuries (Ezek. 43:1–7; Rev. 21:22–23; cf. Ezek. 11:22–23).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 40:10 the Lord God comes with might. At his second coming, Christ returns with power to defeat his enemies and gather the dispersed of Israel to their land (Matt. 24:31; Rev. 19:11–21).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 40:11 his arms. A picture of God's omnipotence. The same arm that powerfully scatters the Jews all over the earth in judgment is to overcome Israel's oppressors (v. 10) and to tenderly feed and lead his flock (Ps. 23:1–2; Jer. 31:10; Ezek. 34:11–16; Mic. 2:12).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 40:12–14 By a series of questions, to which the implied answer is "no one," the prophet emphasized the omnipotence and omniscience of God, the God whose coming is to bring comfort to Israel according to vv. 1–11.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 40:12 Who has measured . . . in a balance? God alone has power to create the physical universe and the earth in perfect balance, weighing mountains and seas perfectly, so that the earth moves perfectly in space. This matter of the amazing balance of our planet is called the science of isostasy.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 40:13–14 measured the Spirit of the Lord. Isaiah pointed to the incomparable wisdom of God. Paul alluded to this verse in connection with God's wisdom in dealing with Jews and Gentiles (Rom. 11:34) and with God's impartation of wisdom to the spiritual believer (1 Cor. 2:16).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 40:15–17 Since the surrounding nations who had oppressed Israel were utterly insignificant in comparison to the Lord's greatness and power, they could not prevent his purposes from being accomplished. His deliverance of Israel was certain.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 40:16 fuel . . . burnt offering. God is so great and worthy of so much worship, that even the large wood and animal resources of Lebanon were insufficient for appropriate offerings to him.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 40:18–20 The prophet sarcastically indicated the futility of trying to portray the immensity of God—his power, wisdom, and resources—in the form of a man-made idol, no matter how ornate, durable, and immovable.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 40:21–31 Isaiah extolled God as Creator, in whom the Jews were to put their full trust.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 40:21 told you . . . understood. Throughout human history people had heard by special revelation from God that the Lord, not idols, created all things. They had also understood it from natural revelation as reason looks at creation (cf. Rom. 1:20).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 40:22 sits above the circle of the earth. The word "circle" is applicable to the spherical form of the earth, above which he sits. This implies that God upholds and maintains his creation on a continuing basis (Col. 1:17; Heb. 1:3). As he looks down, men seem like insects to the One who has stretched and spread out the universal heavens.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 40:23 princes . . . rulers. God disposes of human leaders according to his will (34:12; Job 12:17–21; Ps. 107:40; Dan. 2:21). Isaiah 40:24 expands on how suddenly God removes them.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 40:25 compare me . . . like him. Israel was foolish to compare such a sovereign, almighty Lord with the gods of their Babylonian captors (see v. 18).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 40:26 created these. Rather than worshiping the stars (47:13; Deut. 4:19; Jer. 7:18; 8:2; 44:17), Israel should have seen in them the evidence of God's creatorship (Ps. 19:1). As innumerable as the stars are, he knows every one and named each. Not one of the stars runs astray, but all are held by the forces with which he has endowed the universe to keep them in their orbit and place.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 40:27–31 The prophet applied the comforting truths in vv. 1–26 about God to Israel's situation in Babylon during the coming captivity.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 40:27 Why do you say . . . ? In light of who God is, how could his people in exile have thought he had forgotten them or was ignorant of their condition?

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 40:28 does not faint or grow weary. God was not too weak to act on their behalf, nor was fatigue an obstacle for the Creator in caring for his people (cf. vv. 29–30). Though even the young and strong become tired and fall, the Ancient of Days never does. unsearchable. To the human mind, God's wisdom is not fully comprehensible in how he chooses to fulfill his promises to deliver Israel. Paul saw a further illustration of this truth in God's plan for the final restoration of Israel (Rom. 11:33; see Isa. 40:13).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 40:31 wait for the Lord. See 8:17 and 49:23. There is a general principle here that patient, praying believers are blessed by God with strength in their trials (cf. 2 Cor. 12:8–10). The Lord also expected his people to be patient and await his coming in glory at the end to fulfill the promises of national deliverance, when believing Israel would become stronger than they had ever been.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 41:1 coastlands. The coasts of lands around the Mediterranean Sea and the islands represent the nations. renew their strength. The Lord challenged the nations that refused to wait on him to be silent in awe and then move to renew their strength (cf. 40:31), meaning to collect their best arguments to plead their cause before him.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 41:2 one from the east. The Lord anointed Cyrus the Great, king of Persia, to accomplish his righteous will by conquering Babylon in 539 B.C. and allowing some of the Jewish exiles to return to Jerusalem (cf. 41:25; 44:28; 45:1). He founded the Persian Empire and ruled from c. 550 to 530 B.C.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 41:3 pursues . . . paths his feet. Cyrus accomplished his conquests with great ease in territories he had never before visited.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 41:4 first . . . last. He existed before history and will exist after it (cf. 44:6; 48:12; Rev. 1:17; 2:8; 22:13). I am he. It is legitimate to translate the two Hebrew words thus represented by "I am" (see also Isa. 42:8; 43:10, 13; 46:4), a messianic title appropriated by Jesus frequently as explicit testimony to his deity (e.g., Mark 13:6; 14:62; Luke 21:8; John 8:28, 58; 13:19). The title comes originally from the Lord's self-revelation to Moses in Ex. 3:14.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 41:5–7 Instead of turning to the Lord when they saw his anointed one, Cyrus, approaching, the nations turned to one another for help and made more idols. See 40:18–20 regarding Isaiah's description of idols and their makers.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 41:8 Israel, my servant. The faithful of the nation receive the honored corporate designation as the servant of the Lord (see note on 20:3). As his servant, they stood in bold contrast to the rest of the nations (41:5–7). Cf. Israel as the servant in 42:18–25. Abraham, my friend. “Friend” is an even higher designation than “servant” (John 15:14–15; cf. 2 Chron. 20:7; James 2:23) and speaks of a greater faithfulness.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 41:9 took from the ends of the earth. In the last days, God will regather Israel from her worldwide dispersion as he did from Egypt and Babylon because Israel is God’s chosen nation (cf. 45:4; Amos 3:2).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 41:10 fear not. Israel need not fear God’s destructive judgment, as the rest of the nations do (vv. 5, 13–14; 43:1, 5), because he is their God and faithful to his promise to restore the nation.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 41:11–13 Through the Lord’s help, the enemies of Israel were to be weakened and vanish (60:12; Zech. 12:3) while God strengthened Israel.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 41:14 worm. This refers to the contempt of Israel by the ungodly nations, and the same term is used similarly of the Messiah on the cross (Ps. 22:6). Redeemer is the Holy One of Israel. The Hebrew for “Redeemer” refers to a near relative who has the opportunity and responsibility to buy back what a relative has lost (see note on Ruth 2:20). The term occurs five more times in connection with the title “Holy One of Israel.” See notes on 43:14; 48:17–19; 49:7; 54:5. As the Lord purchased his people from the bondage of Egypt by the blood of the Passover lamb, he is to do the same from their worldwide exile by the blood of the true Lamb, Jesus Christ, when they turn to him in faith (cf. Zech. 12:10–13:1).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 41:15–16 mountains . . . hills. Figurative representations of foreign nations, whom Israel is to grind into nothingness in the time of her kingdom, when the Lord Jesus sets himself up as King in Jerusalem.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 41:17–18 poor and needy. Israel in her deprived state as a captive of foreign nations is spoken of as thirsty for blessing and joy. In the Messiah’s future kingdom, the land of Israel will be well-watered (cf. 12:2–3; 35:6–7; 43:19–20; 44:3–4; 48:20–21), a real physical blessing, but symbolizing here the spiritual quenching that will be Israel’s in the millennium.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 41:19 cedar . . . acacia . . . myrtle . . . olive . . . cypress. Luxuriant vegetation will enrich the land when God redeems his creation (35:1–2, 7; Rom. 8:19–21).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 41:22–23 what is to happen . . . to come. God challenged the idols to prove their competence by predicting future events, as the Lord has done regarding "the former things," i.e., the raising of Cyrus (v. 2), the repulsion of the Assyrians from Jerusalem (chs. 36–37), and the healing of Hezekiah (ch. 38).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 41:23 do good, or do harm. God invited the idols to proclaim and execute either deliverance or judgment, as he had done.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 41:24 nothing . . . nothing. The idols were not what humans claimed they were, because they could not predict the future, nor could they judge or deliver. They were useless (44:9; Ps. 115:2–8; 1 Cor. 8:4; 10:19; Gal. 4:8).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 41:25 from the north . . . from the rising of the sun. Cyrus, king of Persia, a land east of Babylon, approached Babylon from the north where he had conquered Media before coming to Babylon. call upon my name. Apparently fulfilled by Cyrus' proclamation in Ezra 1:1–4.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 41:26 none. No soothsayer had predicted future happenings as the Lord had.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 41:27–29 Idols were helpless in giving "good news" of future events (v. 27) and counsel to people (v. 28), and thus were useless.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 42:1–9 This is the first of four Servant-songs referring to Messiah (cf. 49:1–13; 50:4–11; 52:13–53:12). They speak of the Servant's gentle manner and worldwide mission. Isaiah 42:1–3 is applied to Jesus Christ at his first coming in Matt. 12:18–20.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 42:1 my servant. Others deserve the title "my servant" (see note on 20:3), but this personal Servant of the Lord is the Messiah, who was chosen (Luke 9:35; 1 Pet. 1:20; Rev. 13:8) because the Lord delights in him (Matt. 3:17; 17:5) and puts his Spirit upon him (Isa. 11:2; 59:21; Matt. 3:16; Luke 4:18). justice to the nations. At his second coming, Christ will rule over a kingdom in which justice prevails throughout the world. The millennial kingdom is not for Israel alone, though the Messiah will reign on the throne of David in Jerusalem, and Israel will be the glorious people. In fact, all the nations of the world will experience the righteousness and justice of the Messiah King.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 42:2 not cry aloud . . . in the street. The quiet and submissive demeanor of Christ at his first advent fulfilled this prophecy (Matt. 11:28–30; 1 Pet. 2:23).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 42:3 bruised reed . . . burning wick. The Servant will bring comfort and encouragement to the weak and oppressed. Cf. 40:11; 50:4; 61:1 and see notes on Matt. 12:18–20.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 42:4 justice in the earth. Isaiah looked beyond the first coming of Christ to his second coming. Jesus fulfilled vv. 1a, 2–3 at his first coming and will fulfill vv. 1b, and 4 at his second coming, when he rules the earth in perfect justice with "a rod of iron" (Ps. 2:8–9; Rev. 2:27).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 42:5 Thus says God, the Lord, who created . . . walk in it. Here God spoke directly to the Messiah, identified as "you" (v. 6). God's role as Creator of the universe (cf. 40:21–22) is the basis of certainty for the fulfilling of his will by his Servant the Messiah.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 42:6 I am the Lord. Beginning with 41:13, the Lord's self-identification is frequent (41:13; 42:6, 8; 43:3, 11, 15; 45:5–7, 18; 48:17; 49:23; 51:15). His personal name is the one he explained to Moses as specially symbolic of the unique relationship he bore to Israel (Ex. 3:15; 6:3). Here that covenant name guarantees his ministry through the Messiah-Servant. covenant for the people. The Servant is a covenant in that he personifies and provides the blessings of salvation to God's people Israel. He is the Mediator of a better covenant than the one with Moses, i.e., the New Covenant (Jer. 31:31–34; Heb. 8:6, 10–12). See note on Isa. 49:8. light for the nations. Simeon saw the beginning of this fulfillment at Christ's first coming (Luke 2:32). He came as the Messiah of Israel, yet the Savior of the world, who revealed himself to a non-Jewish immoral woman by the well in Samaria (cf. John 4:25–26) and commanded his followers to preach the gospel of salvation to everyone in the world (Matt. 28:19–20). Certainly the church, made up mostly of Gentiles grafted into the trunk of blessing (cf. Rom. 9:24–30; 11:11–24), fulfills this promise, as does the future kingdom on earth when the Servant will use Israel to shine and enlighten all the nations of the earth (Isa. 49:6; cf. 19:24).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 42:7 open the eyes that are blind . . . bring out the prisoners. Jesus fulfilled these words (9:1–2; Matt. 4:13–16) when he applied them to miracles of physical healing and freedom from spiritual bondage during his incarnation (Matt. 11:5; Luke 4:18). Under the Servant's millennial reign on earth, spiritual perception will replace Israel's spiritual blindness and her captives will receive their freedom (Isa. 29:18; 32:3; 35:5; 61:1).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 42:9 former things . . . new things. The "former things" are already fulfilled or about to be fulfilled prophecies of Isaiah (cf. 41:22). The "new things" pertain to the future accomplishments of the Lord through his Messiah-Servant when he comes.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 42:10 Sing . . . a new song, his praise. This "new song" never before sung, called for by new manifestations of God's grace, will match the newness of conditions created by the Servant's work of redemption in the kingdom, for which earth's inhabitants will also sing "his praise." Cf. 2:2; 26:1; Rev. 4:11; 5:9.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 42:11 Kedar . . . Sela. See 16:1 and 21:16.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 42:13 mighty man . . . man of war. As a mighty warrior, the Lord will work through his Servant to overcome all enemies (40:10; cf. 9:7; 37:32; 59:17).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 42:14 held my peace . . . kept still and restrained myself. From the beginning of creation God remained silent, until the time was ripe to intervene in human affairs. He has not been indifferent to wickedness in the world, but will send his Servant in "the fullness of time" (Gal. 4:4).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 42:15 lay waste . . . dry up . . . dry up. God's judgment through his Servant will wreak devastation on the earth (cf. Rev. 6–19). The reverse of that will be his blessing through the same Messiah subsequently in the millennial kingdom (see Isa. 35:1–4; 41:18).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 42:16 I will lead . . . guide . . . turn . . . do. God's sovereignty will be evident to all as he guides the blind over previously uncharted courses (cf. Ex. 13:21–22). The spiritually blind (Isa. 9:1–2) will see the way (see 42:7). Cf. Eph. 5:8.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 42:17 idols . . . metal images. God will utterly repudiate idolaters (cf. Ex. 32:4).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 42:18–24 The Lord charged Israel, his servant, with unfaithfulness. In an important comparison, positive qualities of the Servant (vv. 1–7) are personified into an individual, the Messiah, but terms of reproach toward God's servant (vv. 18–19, 22–24) are personified in the nation, Israel.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 42:18–20 deaf . . . blind. Though they are called "my servant" (41:8; 42:19; 44:21) and "my messenger" and were perfectly fitted with the truth, Isaiah's commission to prophesy highlighted the spiritual deafness and blindness of Israel (6:9–10; cf. 22:14; 29:11; 32:3). They were deaf to the voice of God and blind to spiritual reality and duty.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 42:21 his righteousness' sake. In spite of Israel's deafness, blindness, and defective righteousness (v. 24), God will staunchly uphold his principles of righteousness. Cf. 59:14–17.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 42:22 plundered and looted . . . trapped . . . hidden. Exiled and dispersed, Israel was like a caravan in the desert, attacked unmercifully by bandits and imprisoned in caves or dungeons, so that no human deliverer could restore them (cf. 63:5).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 42:24 Was it not the Lord . . . ? The nation went into Babylonian exile and worldwide dispersion as punishment by God for their rebellion against him (30:15; 57:17; 65:2).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 42:25 the heat of his anger. The fall of Jerusalem to Babylon in 586 B.C. did not result from the strength of Babylon. Rather, Israel had to taste the wrath of God because they paid no attention to the Lord (1:3; 5:13; 29:13; 47:7; 51:1; Hos. 7:9). set him on fire. Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, burned Jerusalem when he conquered the city (2 Kings 25:8–9).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 43:1 formed. The only explanation for the ongoing existence of the nation of Israel is God's sovereign grace, which brought her into existence from nothing (cf. Deut. 7:6–11) and sustains her. Since she was God's creation, she could find comfort in knowing that no one or nothing can destroy her, not even her own wickedness (cf. Isa. 43:18–25; Rom. 11:1–2, 25–27). Jacob . . . Israel. This double designation (cf. Gen. 32:28) for God's chosen nation is used by Isaiah 21 times, 16 of them in Isa. 40–49 (9:8; 10:20; 14:1; 27:6; 29:23; 40:27; 41:8, 14; 42:24; 43:1, 22, 28; 44:1, 21, 23; 45:4; 46:3; 48:1, 12; 49:5, 6). This speaks of the Lord's special attachment to Abraham's physical seed. Fear not. The Lord repeated his word, relieving Israel's fear (35:4; 41:10, 13–14; cf. 7:4). redeemed. God's redemption of his people from exile is not to be complete until his Servant returns to reign over the faithful remnant in the land of Israel who have believed on Jesus Christ (cf. Zech. 12:10–13:1; Rom. 11:25–27; Rev. 11:13). The limited return from Babylon only typified the final return. See note on Isa. 43:14.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 43:2 waters . . . rivers . . . fire . . . flame. Many perils symbolized by these words have confronted the Israelites through the centuries and will continue to do so until the nation's final redemption, but the Lord promises the nation survival through them all. The passage of Moses' and Joshua's generations through the Red Sea (Ex. 14:21–22) and the Jordan River (Josh. 3:14–17) and the preservation of Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego in the fiery furnace illustrate his care for Israel.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 43:3 your Savior. God is by nature a Savior (v. 11; 45:21), both temporally and eternally (see note on 1 Tim. 4:10; cf. Titus 1:3; 2:10; 3:4). God delivered Israel from Egypt and will deliver her from Babylon and all future exiles, as well as bring her to spiritual salvation (Zech. 12:10–13:1; Rom. 11:25–27). Cush. See Isa. 18:1. Seba. A country either in southern Arabia or across the Red Sea in northeast Africa, near Cush, or Ethiopia. Egypt, Cush, and Seba became a vicarious compensation so that God could spare Israel. “Sabeans” is another name for the inhabitants of Seba (cf. 45:14).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 43:5–6 east . . . west . . . north . . . south . . . end of the earth. The Lord will regather to the land of Israel the faithful remnant of his people from their worldwide dispersion in conjunction with the institution of the Messiah’s kingdom on earth (cf. 11:12).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 43:7 called by my name . . . created for my glory. The faithful remnant of Israel will bear the Lord’s name and exist for one primary purpose: to glorify him (44:23).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 43:8 blind . . . have eyes . . . deaf . . . have ears! Restored Israel (vv. 5–7) will have their spiritual eyesight and hearing restored (29:18; contra. 42:18–19).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 43:9 their witnesses. Who among the idolatrous soothsayers could predict Cyrus would deliver Israel from Babylon, or make prophecies of any kind that already were fulfilled? The gods of the nations showed no ability to reveal accurately “the former things” (41:21–23) as the Lord had. So the nations had no witnesses to accredit that their gods could speak prophetic truth.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 43:10 You are my witnesses . . . my servant. Israel’s God repeatedly predicted the future accurately, enabling Israel to witness to his truthful accuracy (v. 13), and thus the reality that he was the only eternal, living God. This witnessing they will do again in the millennial kingdom (cf. Joel 2:28–32).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 43:12 declared and saved and proclaimed. As in the deliverance from Egypt (Ex. 3–4), God declared in advance how he would redeem Israel from their captivity. Then came the actual events of the saving process, followed by the Lord’s proclamation of that deliverance by way of reminder. The people, on the basis of such omniscience and omnipotence, gave testimony to the true and only living God.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 43:13 henceforth. Before the first day of creation when time began and throughout all periods of history, God exists and manifests his will and purpose. none . . . my hand. The Hebrew behind this clause is identical with the comparable clause in Deut. 32:39. God's actions are irreversible and can never end in frustration.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 43:14 Redeemer, the Holy One of Israel. The former title characterizes the Lord's role in the salvation of his people in chs. 40–66 (41:14; 43:14; 44:6, 24; 47:4; 48:17; 49:7, 26; 54:5, 8; 59:20; 60:16; 63:16). The latter title represents his holiness throughout the book (see note on 1:4). The Lord's Servant retains his holiness in implementing his redemption of Israel. Chaldeans . . . the ships. When God sent a conqueror against Babylon (i.e., Cyrus, 45:1), the proud Babylonian fleet provided a means of flight for the country's fugitives. Babylon was accessible by ship through the Persian Gulf and the Tigris and Euphrates Rivers.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 43:15 your King. The Lord was King over Israel from her inception, but the people asked for a human king instead (1 Sam. 8:4–7). The restoration will put him back on the throne in the person of his Servant the Messiah (Luke 1:31–33; cf. Isa. 6:1; 41:21).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 43:16–17 sea . . . mighty waters . . . chariot and horse. To bring assurance of the greater future deliverance he will bring through his Servant, the Lord reminded Isaiah's readers of his deliverance of their ancestors from Egypt (Ex. 14:16, 21, 26–28; Josh. 3:13).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 43:18–19 former things . . . things of old . . . new thing. Deliverances of the nation in the past will pale into insignificance in comparison with the future deliverance the Lord will give his people (42:9; 48:6; Jer. 16:14–15).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 43:19–20 springs . . . way . . . rivers. In the Messiah's future kingdom, the barren places of Israel will be well-watered (41:18) and will supply refreshment for God's chosen people (43:1).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 43:21 declare my praise. In the messianic age, Israel will finally give the Lord the credit that is due him (contrast Jer. 13:11).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 43:22–24 Even though the Lord has chosen Israel, Israel throughout her history has not chosen him. Rather, they have wearied him with their iniquities and empty ritualism (1:11–15).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 43:25 I, I . . . will not remember your sins. This verse is probably the high point of grace in the OT. In spite of Israel’s utter unworthiness, the Lord in his grace has devised a way that he can forgive their sins and grant righteousness (see note on 61:10), without compromising his holiness. This he would accomplish through the work of his Servant (53:6). In spite of her failures, Israel will always be God’s chosen people.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 43:26 set forth your case. God gives the nation opportunity to come into the court and plead her case. The strongest plea is not to claim personal worthiness, but to confess their sin and repent, thus pleading for mercy and forgiveness based on God’s gracious promise in v. 25 and based on what Jesus Christ would do on the cross (cf. 55:6–7; Rom. 3:21–26).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 43:27 first father . . . mediators. Sins of even the respected patriarchal ancestors of the Jewish race, like Abraham, kept them from claiming personal merit (e.g., Gen. 12:11–13; 20:2). Even such honored intermediaries between God and Israel as the priests needed cleansing from sin (Isa. 6:5–7).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 43:28 Jacob to utter destruction . . . Israel to reviling. Even though God will forgive the nation in the messianic age, she still must suffer in the intervening interval.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 44:1–5 Under the shadow of more punishment to come (43:26–28), the prophet spoke of abundant blessing that was to be the nation’s portion during the millennium.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 44:1–2 my servant . . . whom I have chosen . . . made you . . . formed you. God has chosen his servant Israel to be his own eternally (43:1, 21, 25), and they need not fear abandonment.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 44:2 Jeshurun. An honored name for Israel whose root meaning is “right” or “straight,” in contrast to the root of “Jacob” which means “over-reacher” or “deceiver” (cf. Deut. 32:15).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 44:3 water . . . streams. The extensive blessing of physical conditions will favor the nation in the coming kingdom age (43:19–20); they were also symbolic of spiritual refreshment from the Holy Spirit and God himself (32:15; Joel 2:28–29).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 44:5 the Lord’s . . . name of Jacob . . . name of Israel. In the future golden age of Israel, belonging to the Lord and belonging to God’s chosen people will be synonymous, and it will be a badge of honor gladly worn without fear.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 44:6 King . . . Redeemer . . . Lord of hosts . . . first . . . last. The Lord identified himself as Israel’s King (43:15), Redeemer (43:14), and Eternal One (41:4; cf. 48:12). Jesus, in a direct affirmation of his deity, called himself the first and the last (cf. Rev. 1:17; 2:8; 22:13). besides me there is no god. God’s exclusive claim to deity prepared the way for another challenge to false gods in Isa. 44:7–20 (cf. 43:10).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 44:7 Let them declare. If idols can foretell “the things that are coming,” let them predict accurately, as the Lord has. Since the Jews have had predictions of the future ever since God chose them as his people, they are qualified to be his witnesses (v. 8).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 44:9–11 shame . . . shame . . . shame. The workmen who manufactured idols were mere men and could make nothing as good as or greater than man. They and others who put their trust in idols had ample reason to fear and be ashamed of such folly (v. 11; contra. v. 8).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 44:12–19 Human workers expended all their energy to produce a beautiful idol, but the best they could make was the likeness of a man (Deut. 4:15–18; Rom. 1:23), and that could not renew their strength. Yet they who wait on the Lord will renew their strength (Isa. 40:28–31). The same humanly nurtured trees used as fuel for fires to furnish warmth and to cook also provides wood for people to make idols, which they worship and to which they entrust their prayers and themselves. Nothing could be more foolish than worshiping as deity a piece of wood, while burning the same wood in a fire to keep warm. Idol-makers cannot comprehend the idiocy of creating gods from materials used for the most trivial domestic purposes. Cf. 6:9–10; Deut. 27:15.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 44:20 deluded heart . . . lie. Like eating ashes, which provide no nourishment, idolatry is a deception, from which the sinner gets nothing but judgment (cf. Prov. 15:14; Hos. 12:1).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 44:22 blotted out . . . your sins. Further reassurances of God's sovereign grace at work on behalf of Israel were given (43:25). God had blotted out their sins written in his book against them (cf. Rev. 20:12). As a person can't see what is ahead because it is blocked by a "cloud," so God obliterated the sins of those he redeemed. return to me. God has already provided for redemption, even before the cross, but based on it alone. For those who turn from sin and return to him, there is redemption (because the purchase price for the sinner was paid by the sacrifice of Christ). The Lord calls on his people to repent so they may receive the promised redemption (cf. Neh. 1:9; Jer. 4:1; 24:7; Joel 2:12; Zech. 1:3; Mal. 3:7; Matt. 3:2; 4:17; Rom. 3:25–26; Heb. 9:15).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 44:23 heavens . . . every tree . . . redeemed Jacob. The national redemption of Israel at Christ's second coming entails also the redemption of all nature (Rom. 8:19–22), so the prophet calls on the whole creation to rejoice.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 44:25 liars . . . diviners. False prophets must suffer the consequences of their deceptive counsel (47:12–14; Deut. 13:1–5; Josh. 13:22; Jer. 27:9; 29:8; 50:36; Mic. 3:7).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 44:26 his servant . . . his messengers. In contrast with his breaking the word of false prophets (v. 25), the Lord confirmed the word of his true prophets such as of Isaiah (Zech. 1:6). Most specially, God confirmed the word of the Messiah, who is the consummate embodiment of all the prophets and messengers of God (Mal. 3:1; Matt. 21:34, 36–37). raise up their ruins. The fall of Jerusalem came in 586 B.C. when the Babylonians invaded the land. God promised to restore the land to prosperity, the foretaste of restoration coming after 70 years with the help of the Persians (Isa. 41:2), but the greater restoration to come in Messiah’s kingdom.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 44:27 Be dry. The Lord demonstrated his power by drying up the Red Sea and the Jordan River when delivering his people from Egypt (43:2).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 44:28 Cyrus . . . my shepherd. The prophecy—given a century and a half before Cyrus lived and became king of Persia—predicted God’s use of the Persian king to gather the faithful remnant of Israel back to the land. In this role, Cyrus prefigured the Lord’s Servant, who will shepherd the sheep of Israel in their final regathering (Mic. 5:4). The title “shepherd” applied to kings as leaders of God’s people (2 Sam. 5:2; Jer. 3:15). In Acts 13:22, Paul compares David to the standard of Cyrus’ obedience. Jerusalem . . . the temple. In 538 B.C. Cyrus decreed the rebuilding of the temple (Ezra 1:1–2; 6:3), thus fulfilling Isaiah’s prophecy. The returning Jews completed the work in 516 B.C. (Ezra 6:15).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 45:1–2 doors . . . gates . . . doors of bronze. Probably this was a reference to the many gates in the city wall of Babylon that Cyrus entered with relative ease. The inner gates leading from the river to the city were left open, as were the palace doors. Herodotus, the Greek historian, reported that the openness of the city was so great that the Persians were taking prisoners as they moved to the palace in the center.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 45:1 his anointed. This word is the one translated from the Hebrew by the transliteration—“Messiah.” It is the word used for the messianic Redeemer King in Ps. 2:2 and Dan. 9:25–26, but here refers to Cyrus, as the king set apart by God’s providence for divine purposes. Though not a worshiper of the Lord, the Persian monarch played an unusual role as Israel’s shepherd (Isa. 44:28) and God’s anointed judge on nations.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 45:3 that you may know. God intended Cyrus to be aware that the God of the Jews was giving him victorious conquests. According to Josephus, the Jewish historian, who indicated that Daniel influenced Cyrus with the prophecy of Isaiah, the king did know that the God of Israel was with him.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 45:4 Jacob . . . do not know me. For his servant Israel's sake, the Lord raised up Cyrus, calling him by name, even though Cyrus did not have a personal relationship to him. At some point, Cyrus certainly became aware of the true God and his sovereign control over human affairs, perhaps through the influence of Daniel (cf. Ezra 1:1–4).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 45:6 from the rising of the sun and from the west. This expression, meaning the whole earth, points to the fact that through the eventual, final regathering of Israel (of which Cyrus' exploits were a foretaste), the whole earth will know the Lord alone is God (cf. 43:10; 44:6).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 45:8 righteousness . . . salvation . . . righteousness. Eventually the Lord will cause righteous goodness to prevail throughout the world, just as he has promised Israel that it would (v. 13; Hos. 10:12).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 45:9–10 Woe . . . Woe. Figures of the potter and the clay and of parent and child show how absurd it is to contend with God over his plans for the future. This anticipated the objections by the Jews against 1) their captivity and restoration by a pagan king, and 2) ultimately God's sovereign plan to redeem Gentiles as well as Jews worldwide (cf. Rom. 9:20–24).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 45:11 Ask me of things to come. The Lord commands Israel to seek information about what he will do for the nation in the future, for he will reveal it.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 45:12–13 I made . . . he shall build my city. As the omnipotent Creator, God can save the nation through Cyrus as he has promised.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 45:14 Egypt . . . Cush . . . Sabeans. Three countries to the south (cf. 43:3) illustrate the worldwide submission to Israel that will prevail during the messianic kingdom age. Surely God is in you. All nations will acknowledge the presence of the one true God among his people Israel (49:23; 60:14). Paul the apostle found a fuller sense in these words when he advised the Corinthians on exercising prophecy rather than tongues in their meetings. This brought an acknowledgment from visitors of God's presence among them (1 Cor. 14:25).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 45:15 hides himself. The contemporary situation hid God's purposes of mercy toward Israel, i.e., that they would repent and he would eventually regather them and make Jerusalem the center of world attention (cf. 8:17; 54:8; 57:17; Ps. 44:24).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 45:16–17 Israel is saved. Makers of idols are to find disillusionment because of the failure of their gods to deliver, but Israel is to find eternal salvation in the Lord (44:9–11; Rom. 11:25–27).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 45:19 not speak in secret. Unlike mysterious utterances of the false gods (8:19; 29:4), God's revelations through his true prophets are open and accessible.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 45:21 Who told this long ago? The Lord's case to prove he is the only true God is unanswerable; only he foretold the captivity of Judah and the deliverance from that captivity, as well as other future events that happened just as he had predicted. there is no other . . . there is none. The Lord restated the truth expressed by Moses in Deut. 4:35 (cf. Isa. 43:10; 44:6; 45:6). The scribe who asked Jesus about the greatest commandment cited this same principle in agreeing with Jesus' answer to his question (Mark 12:32).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 45:22 be saved, all the ends of the earth! When the Messiah sits on his throne in Jerusalem, all people will enjoy his temporal salvation in the physical blessings of the millennial earth and will have opportunity for spiritual salvation (49:6).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 45:23 every knee shall bow. In the kingdom age, all nations will worship the one true God of Israel. A further meaning, justified by the NT, applies this verse to believers' accountability to God when he evaluates their works (Rom. 14:11). In assigning the words another meaning, Paul relates the words to the coming universal acknowledgment that "Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father" (Phil. 2:10–11).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 45:25 all the offspring of Israel. Physical descent from Abraham alone cannot bring justification. Only the faithful remnant of Israel will be saved (v. 17; Rom. 11:25–27). “Justified” means to be declared righteous, to be treated as if one is not sinful, but holy through the application of Christ’s righteousness to the one who believes (cf. Isa. 61:10; 2 Cor. 5:21).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 46:1 Bel . . . Nebo. The two most prominent gods in Babylon. “Bel” is another spelling for “Baal,” the Phoenician chief god of Babylon. That “Nebo” was extensively worshiped is shown by the proper names compounded from his: Nebuchadnezzar, Nabopolassar, and Nebuzaradan.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 46:2 go into captivity. When Cyrus came, even the gods were taken into exile. These idols couldn’t save themselves from being laid down on the backs of beasts and hauled away, let alone save the people who worshiped them.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 46:3–4 all the remnant of the house of Israel. The God of Israel is not helpless like idols. In his strength he has sustained and will sustain helpless Israel through every circumstance. In v. 4, the Lord uses the first person pronoun six times to emphasize his personal involvement in delivering Israel.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 46:5–8 The human origin and utter impotence of idols renders them unfit for comparison with the God of Israel (40:18–20). In 46:8, the prophet calls on the readers to recall the impotence of the idols they worship in transgression of God’s law.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 46:9 remember the former things of old. The readers are to recall: 1) all the past history of fulfilled prophecies, as well as 2) miraculous deliverances such as that from Egypt, and 3) providential blessings Israel has experienced. All of these are ample evidence that he alone is God.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 46:11 man . . . from a far country. Cyrus was this man whom God summoned to conquer Babylon and return a remnant of Israel to end the 70-year captivity a century and a half after Isaiah wrote this prophecy (44:28; 45:1).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 46:13 righteousness . . . salvation in Zion. At God’s appointed time, the salvation of Israel will become reality and result in the Messiah’s righteous kingdom (61:3; 62:11; Joel 3:17; Zech. 12:10–13:1; Rom. 11:25–27).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 47:1–3 O virgin daughter of Babylon. The prophet depicted Babylon as a virgin in the sense of never before having been captured. Babylon sat like a royal virgin in the dust, experiencing complete humiliation. The “throne” was gone, taken by Persian power, and the empire never recovered from being robbed of its power, its people, and its name. The former royal virgin is depicted as a slave woman forced to exchange royal garments for working clothes, who must lift her garment to wade through the water as she serves like a slave traversing the river in her duties. Such duties in the east belonged to women of low rank, fitting imagery for Babylon’s fall into degradation.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 47:5 mistress of kingdoms. The title continues the analogy of v. 1 and speaks of the exalted position from which Babylon was to fall. She was mistress of the world, but would later become a slave woman (cf. v. 7), degraded by pride and false security (v. 8).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 47:6 showed them no mercy. Though God was punishing Israel in captivity, Babylon’s cruel oppression of the captive Israelites was cause for the kingdom’s overthrow. Cf. Jer. 50:17–18; 51:33–40; Zech. 1:15.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 47:7–9 In Rev. 18:7–8, 10, 16, 19, John alludes to these verses in describing the downfall of Babylon just before Christ’s return. Compare “mistress forever” with Rev. 18:7, “not sit as a widow” with Rev. 18:7, and “in one day” with Rev. 18:8.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 47:8 no one besides me. This pinnacle of Babylon’s pride was mockery of the true God in its frivolous presumption of deity (v. 10; cf. 44:6).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 47:9 in a moment, in one day. Babylon did not decay slowly, but went from being the wealthy lady, the unconquered virgin, the proud, invincible mother of many to a degraded, slave woman in the dust who lost her throne, her children, and her life. It happened in one night, suddenly and unexpectedly, when Cyrus and the Persian army entered the city (cf. Dan. 5:28, 30). loss of children and widowhood. Babylon did lose its inhabitants, many of whom were killed and taken captive under Cyrus. This prophecy was fulfilled again when Babylon revolted against Darius; and in order to hold out in the siege, each man chose one woman of his family and strangled the rest to save provisions. Darius impaled 3,000 of the revolters.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 47:10 Sinners foolishly think they are safe, and there is none to judge them. Cf. Ps. 10:11 and 94:7.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 47:11 evil . . . disaster . . . ruin. The Persians under Cyrus suddenly initiated (cf. v. 9) the visitation that ultimately obliterated Babylon. Its culmination is to come in conjunction with the destruction of a revived Babylon, the world headquarters of evil at the second coming of Christ (51:8; Rev. 18:2–24).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 47:12 enchantments . . . sorceries. The magical practices of Babylon, designed to aid against enemies (also v. 9), will characterize the Babylon of the future also (Rev. 18:23).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 47:13 let them . . . save you, those who divide the heavens. Babylon relied heavily on those who looked for combinations of stars, who watched conjunctions of heavenly bodies, who made much of months of birth, and who relied on the movements of stars to predict the future (Dan. 2:2, 10). The prophet sarcastically points out the futility of such trust. This ancient deception is still popular today in the widespread use of horoscopes.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 47:14 they cannot deliver themselves. The astrologers were helpless to save themselves, much less the Babylonians who depended on them, or anyone else. The divine fire that came was not to be a fire to warm them, but to consume them.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 47:15 no one to save you. When judgment comes, the astrologers with whom the people trafficked and spent their money, will run to their homes, unable to save themselves or anyone else.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 48:1–2 swear by the name of the Lord . . . not in truth. The people were nominally Israelites, but their hearts were far from God. This hypocrisy was common all through Israel's history, even to the time of the Lord Jesus. Cf. Matt. 23:3, 13–39.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 48:3–5 The Lord predicted events that have happened as he predicted them (41:2–4; 46:10), so the people would not ascribe these events to other gods.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 48:3 former things. See note on 46:9.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 48:6 new things. From this point onward, the prophecies of Messiah's first and second coming and the restoration of Israel have a new distinctiveness. Babylon becomes the Babylon of Revelation (v. 20), and God uses Isaiah to communicate truths about the messianic kingdom on earth and the new heavens and new earth that follow it (e.g., 11:1–5; 65:17). Verse 7 of ch. 48 indicates that God had never before revealed these features about the future.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 48:9 For my name's sake. The nation Israel had no merit to prompt God's favor toward them (v. 8). They deserved wrath and death, but his mercy toward them originates in his desire to be glorified and his desire to display the integrity of his own name.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 48:10–11 refined . . . tried. Since Isaiah's time, Israel's testings have included the Babylonian captivity and present worldwide dispersion from her land; unlike silver purged in the furnace, the purging of Israel is not complete, and they are not refined. But God keeps up the afflictions until they are, so his name is not defamed through the destruction of Israel. The nation will be purged (cf. Zech. 13:1). God's plan is such that he alone, not man or man-made idols, will receive credit for Israel's salvation (Isa. 42:8; cf. Rom. 11:25–27, 33–36). The adversaries of God are never to be given legitimate reasons for scoffing at God and his work.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 48:14–15 him . . . he . . . his arm . . . him . . . him . . . his way. Beginning with v. 6, the prophet began to write of the new things. Babylon is the final one of Rev. 18, and the instrument of God's judgment is Messiah. The pronouns refer to Jesus Christ whom the Lord will anoint to defeat the final Babylon at his second coming and bring Israel to her land and kingdom. That it is not Cyrus is also clear from the statement, "The Lord loves him," which is too strong to apply to the pagan king—but not to God's Beloved, the Lord Jesus.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 48:16 sent me. Here it was not the prophet who spoke, but the Messiah, the Servant of the Lord whom the Lord God and the Holy Spirit will send for the final regathering of Israel and establishment of his kingdom as described in 61:1–7.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 48:17–19 Chastisements of Israel by the Redeemer and Holy One of Israel are for discipline (42:18–43:13; cf. Heb. 12:10). Some day they will end, when Israel heeds the Lord's commandments and God's punishments will turn to prosperity. A future generation will do so and enjoy the refreshment of a continuous stream of God's peace and righteousness that rolls over them like the relentless sea (Isa. 65:18).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 48:19 like the sand . . . like its grains. Because of Israel's disobedience, God's promise to Abraham to multiply his descendants (Gen. 22:17) has not yet been finally fulfilled. Even though the nation was temporarily set aside during the Babylonian captivity and during the dispersion before A.D. 1948, and will suffer deadly assaults in the coming time of Jacob's trouble (cf. Jer. 30:7), God will be true to his promise.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 48:20 Go out from Babylon. The worldwide proclamation of deliverance, along with the statement that "the Lord has redeemed . . . Jacob" shows that it is not the return of a meager 50,000 Jews from historic Babylon while most stayed in that pagan land, but the final redemption of the nation as Zechariah spoke of it in Zech. 12:10–13:1 and Paul in Rom. 11:1–2, 25–27. A redeemed Israel is to make a complete separation from the final Babylon and its wicked system, and proclaim to the world the Lord's grace toward the nation. John repeats this command in Rev. 18:4.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 48:21 They did not thirst. Isaiah pointed to the way that God miraculously provided for Moses' generation, after he delivered them from Egypt (Ex. 17:6; cf. Isa. 41:17–18), as an illustration of how he will provide for redeemed Israel when they escape the final world empire of Babylon.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 48:22 no peace . . . for the wicked. Cf. 57:21. Not every Israelite will enjoy the Lord's salvation, but only the faithful remnant who have turned from their wicked ways. The wicked will be purged out before the kingdom of peace is established (cf. Zech. 13:7–9).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 49:1–57:21 This section defines the Messiah/Servant's prophetic and priestly functions, his equipment for his task, his sufferings and humiliation, and his final exaltation. The word "servant" occurs about 20 times in this portion, which magnifies Jesus Christ as the Lamb of God who was slain to redeem God's elect.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 49:1–13 The second of four Servant-songs (cf. 42:1–9; 50:4–11; 52:13–53:12). This one tells of the Servant's mission and spiritual success.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 49:1 from the womb . . . the body of my mother. The whole world, including Gentiles ("coastlands," "peoples from afar") are called to recognize two significant points: 1) the Messiah/Servant will be a human being, born as others are of a woman, yet virgin born (cf. 7:14; Luke 1:30–33), and 2) he will be an individual as distinct from a personified group such as the nation of Israel, which has also been called the Lord's servant (Isa. 41:8–9; 42:19; 43:10; 44:1–2, 21, 26; 45:4; 48:20; 50:10).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 49:2 my mouth like a sharp sword. The Lord has given power to his Servant to speak effectively and thereby to conquer his enemies (11:4; cf. Ps. 2:9; Rev. 1:16; 2:12, 16; 19:15). His word is always effective (Isa. 55:11; Eph. 6:17; Heb. 4:12) hid me. Messiah, before his appearing, was hidden with God, ready to be drawn out at the precise moment (cf. Gal. 4:4–5).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 49:3 You are my servant, Israel. That the Lord's use of the name Israel refers here to Messiah (42:1; 49:5–7; 52:13; 53:11) is explainable through the intimate relationship that exists between the nation and her King.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 49:4 in vain . . . for nothing and vanity. At his first coming, the Servant met with rejection by his nation. It may have appeared to some that his mission was a failure because of the suffering and rejection he endured (cf. John 1:9–11). The last two Servant-songs also emphasize the Servant's suffering (Isa. 50:4–11; 52:13–53:12). But, though rejected by men, the Servant expresses his strong assurance that he is doing God's work and will be rewarded with complete success.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 49:5 back to him . . . gathered to him. The Servant's mission will include the priority of bringing Israel to the Lord. Cf. Matt. 10:5–6; 15:24; Rom. 1:16; 11:25–27. He will complete this at his second advent (cf. Zech. 12:10–13:1).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 49:6 raise up the tribes of Jacob . . . my salvation may reach to the end of the earth. The Servant's goal is the salvation and restoration of Israel for the fulfillment of the covenant promise. But not limited to Israel, he is to function as a light bringing salvation to the Gentiles. Israel's mission had always been to bring the nations to God (19:24; 42:6). This she will finally do very effectively in the tribulation after the conversion of the 144,000 witnesses (Rev. 7:1–10; 14:1–5) and when she is restored to her land at the Servant's return to earth. Cf. Isa. 9:2; 11:10; 42:6; 45:22; Luke 2:32. Paul applied this verse to his ministry to the Gentiles on his first missionary journey (Acts 13:47).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 49:7 despised, abhorred. This speaks to the humiliating treatment of the Servant at his first advent, a theme emphasized by Isaiah (50:6–9; 52:14–15; 53:3). The "nation" is used collectively for all who reject him, particularly Gentiles, who are the rulers, kings, and princes referred to as someday giving exalted treatment to the Servant at his second advent. Former oppressors will bow down to him as in 52:15, because of the salvation of Israel.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 49:8 time of favor. . . day of salvation. Messiah is represented as asking for the grace of God to be given to sinners. God gives his favorable answer in a time of grace (cf. 61:1) when salvation's day comes to the world (cf. Gal. 4:4–5; Heb. 4:7). At his appointed time in the future, the Lord will, by his Servant, accomplish the final deliverance of Israel. Paul applied these words to his ministry of proclaiming the gospel of God’s grace to all people (2 Cor. 6:2). a covenant to the people. See note on Isa. 42:6. When the Lord saves and regathers Israel, they will return to the land, to which Joshua brought their ancestors after their exit from Egypt, now restored and glorious (44:26; Josh. 13:1–8).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 49:9–10 prisoners . . . darkness . . . feed . . . pasture. At the Messiah’s second advent, Israel’s condition will change from captivity and oppression to contentment and prosperity such as that enjoyed by a well-fed, protected, and watered flock of sheep. These ideal conditions will be enjoyed by the faithful remnant returning for their kingdom in Israel. John reveals that this condition is a foretaste of heaven (Rev. 7:16–17).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 49:12 come from afar. Israel’s regathering will be from a worldwide exile (43:5–6), even far away places like Sinim, probably an ancient name for what is China.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 49:13 Cf. Rev. 12:12.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 49:14 Here is the summary of the history of lament by the nation during its long period of suffering. Verses 15–23 follow with words of assurance responding to the despondency.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 49:16 The Lord is referring here to the Jews’ custom, perhaps drawn from Ex. 13:9, of puncturing their hands with a symbol of their city and temple, as a sign of devotion (cf. Song 8:6).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 49:17–18 Your builders . . . put them all on . . . ornament. Zion’s inhabitants will return as the city’s destroyers depart and will adorn the city. Israel will be the means of the conversion of the nations in the end (cf. Rom 11:11–12, 15).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 49:19–21 After the faithful remnant is regathered in salvation, and Gentiles come to faith in the kingdom through Jewish witnesses, millennial Jerusalem will not be large enough to contain all her inhabitants.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 49:22 nations . . . shall bring your sons . . . your daughters. The promise will find literal fulfillment as the nations of the world assist the faithful remnant of Israel to their land (14:2; 43:6; 60:4; 66:20). At the outset of the kingdom, when this regathering takes place, all the Gentiles will be believers in Jesus Christ who, by faith, escaped the wrath of the Lamb on the day of the Lord and entered the kingdom (see notes on Matt. 25:31–46). Nations and leaders, that in history oppressed Israel, will humble themselves before the redeemed people of God's covenant, and Israel will know that waiting on the Lord will not disappoint (Isa. 8:17; 40:31).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 49:24 prey be taken . . . captives . . . be rescued. As in v. 14, Isaiah speaks of Zion again expressing her despondency over her captivity and wondering about deliverance. The Lord replies again with encouraging words in vv. 25–26.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 49:25–26 eat their own flesh . . . drunk with their own blood. Strong language against Israel's enemies reassures her of eventual deliverance from her exile. The angel of the waters draws on this terminology in celebrating the third bowl judgment in Rev. 16:6. The destruction of Israel's enemies, led by Satan in the tribulation (cf. Rev. 12:15–16), also fulfills this pledge.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 49:26 all flesh shall know. God's deliverance of Israel will be so dramatic that the world will recognize that the Lord, the Savior, Redeemer, and Mighty One of Israel is the true God (11:9; 45:6; Ezek. 39:7; Hab. 2:14).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 50:1 certificate of divorce . . . my creditors. Though the sufferings of Judah were the necessary result of sin, no certificate of divorce or sale to creditors occurred because Zion's separation from the Lord was only temporary. In fact, God gave the non-Davidic northern kingdom a certificate of divorce (see note on Jer. 3:8). However, the unconditional promises of the Davidic Covenant (2 Sam. 7) precluded such a divorce for Judah, although there would be a time of separation (cf. Isa. 54:6–7).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 50:2 Why . . . ? God asked why no one was willing to believe and obey him, even after all had seen his redemptive power in Egypt, when he dried up the Red Sea (Ex. 14:21), opened the river Jordan by turning it into dry land (Josh. 4:23), and killed the fish in Egypt (Ex. 7:18–21). The Lord's power to redeem was indisputable (Isa. 59:1). He proved it by his deliverance from Egypt (43:16–17; 44:27; 46:9; 48:3, 21).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 50:4–11 This is the third of four Servant-songs (cf. 42:1–9; 49:1–13; 52:13–53:12), and it is Messiah's soliloquy about being perfected through obedience (50:4–5) and sufferings (v. 6). The apostle John writes much about Jesus' obedience to God in fulfilling his will (cf. John 5:19, 36; 6:38; 7:16, 29; 12:49–50). Cf. Phil. 2:8; Heb. 5:8; 10:7.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 50:6 my back . . . my cheeks . . . my face. The Servant remained obedient though provoked to rebel by excessively vile treatment. Jesus fulfilled this prophecy by remaining submissive to the Father's will (Matt. 26:67; 27:26, 30; Mark 14:65; 15:19; Luke 22:63; John 18:22).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 50:7 set my face like a flint. So sure was he of the Lord God's help that he resolutely determined to remain unswayed by whatever hardship might await him (cf. Ezek. 3:8–9). Jesus demonstrated this determination in setting his face to go to Jerusalem to be crucified (Luke 9:51).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 50:8–9 No matter how he was mistreated, mocked, and repudiated, the Servant had full confidence of the Lord God's support, so he welcomed an adversary to come.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 50:10–11 Here was a call to the unconverted to believe and be saved, along with a warning that those who tried to escape moral, spiritual darkness by lighting their own fire (man-made religion, works righteousness) were to end up in eternal torment.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 51:1–2 The prophet assured the nation of deliverance by pointing to God's past covenant with Abraham (Gen. 12:1–3), who was the rock in the quarry from which they were hewn as a people. Originally, Abraham was only one person, but God multiplied his descendants as he had promised (Gen. 13:16; 15:5; 17:5; 22:17).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 51:3 waste places . . . Eden . . . desert . . . garden of the Lord. The same God whose power fulfilled his promises to Abraham is to transform Israel's desolation into a primeval paradise, both nationally and spiritually, causing joy and songs of thanksgiving to ring from it.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 51:4 law . . . justice . . . light to the peoples. The Servant's rule over Israel's earthly kingdom is to cause righteousness to prevail for the benefit of all nations.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 51:5 near . . . gone out. The Servant's power to restore his people and bring justice, righteousness, and salvation to the world was at work, but God's perspective differs from man's reckoning of time. Though near by God's reckoning in timeless eternity, the fruition of his deliverance was still many centuries from Isaiah's day. The nations who survive judgment will trust in him and enter his kingdom.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 51:6 heavens vanish . . . earth will wear out. This begins to take place in the time of tribulation (cf. Rev. 6:12–14; 8:12–13; 16:8–10, 21), setting the stage, along with the earthly judgments on land, sea, and fresh water (cf. Rev. 6:14; 8:6–11; 16:3–5), for a renewed earth during the Millennium. The actual "uncreation" or destruction of the present universe, of which Peter wrote (2 Pet. 3:10–13), occurs at the end of Christ's millennial reign on the earth, when a new heaven and a new earth will replace the present creation (2 Pet. 3:10; Rev. 21:1).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 51:7–8 Israel's enemies will perish, but the Servant's salvation will be permanent.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 51:9–10 This prayer for deliverance in the future was based on times past when the Lord overcame Rahab, which was a term widely used to refer to things that wreak havoc, often, as in this case, Egypt (see Ps. 87:4).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 51:11–16 Again, Isaiah summarized a constant theme, that instead of hearing dying men (v. 12), Israel should trust the Creator of all things. He had delivered Israel in the past and is to do so permanently in the future before the nations can be destroyed (v. 14), so they have no need to fear oppressors. The blessing of restored Israel will be evidenced in the joy of v. 11.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 51:16 my words in your mouth. Israel had been the unfaithful depository of divine revelation (cf. Rom. 9:1–5), but the time is coming when God will put words into the mouths of his future faithful remnant (Isa. 59:21) when he sets up the kingdom of Messiah in Zion on a renewed earth. Cf. 51:6; 65:17; 66:22.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 51:17–18 Jerusalem . . . drunk . . . cup of his wrath. Jerusalem experienced the Lord’s anger through her extended subservience to foreign powers with no human to deliver her (v. 18), but the punishment will end (v. 22; 40:1–2; cf. 29:9). On the other hand, Babylon will drink from the cup of his anger forever (Rev. 14:8–11; 16:19).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 51:19 two things. The city of Jerusalem (v. 17) had suffered the twofold loss of property (“devastation and destruction”) and human life (“famine and sword”).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 51:20 Your sons have fainted. The city’s inhabitants lay helpless in the streets, having expended all their strength in fighting unsuccessfully against the Lord’s fury (40:30).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 51:21–22 drunk, but not with wine. Jerusalem was drunk through drinking the cup of God’s wrath (63:6). But, in contrast to Babylon, which drank the fury of God’s wrath to the last drop (51:17; Rev. 18:6), Israel will have the cup removed before all the wrath is consumed. It will be handed to Israel’s oppressors for them to drink the full fury (Isa. 49:26; Jer. 25:15, 26, 28; Zech. 12:2).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 52:1–2 your strength . . . beautiful garments. A call is given for Zion to awake from drunkenness and clothe herself in garments of honor and dignity provided by the Lord. Foreign invaders will no longer control the city at the time of her final restoration.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 52:3 sold for nothing . . . redeemed without money. The Jews became the servants of their foreign conquerors, who paid nothing for Israel, so the Lord will redeem Israel gratuitously from sin (45:13; 55:1).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 52:5 Their rulers. A reference to the Babylonians and their cruelty to captive Israelites. my name is despised. Foreign rulers despised the God of Israel as long as his people were in bondage. God delivered his people, not for their goodness, but for the sake of his holy name—to prove he was truthful, faithful, and powerful (Ezek. 20:9, 14). Paul cited the blasphemy to Israel's God that resulted from the hypocrisy of first-century Jews not applying to themselves the standards of God that they knew and taught others (Rom. 2:24).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 52:6 in that day . . . it is I. After the day of the Lord, when Israel experiences deliverance from her worldwide dispersion, she will recognize the fulfillment of prophecies through Isaiah and others and enjoy full assurance that the Lord had spoken and fulfilled his promises of deliverance. They will connect these events with the great "I am" (43:11; Ex. 3:13–15).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 52:7 How beautiful . . . good news. Messengers will traverse the mountains around Jerusalem to spread the good news of the return of redeemed Israel to the land (40:9; 61:1; Nah. 1:15). Paul broadened this millennial reference to the preaching of the gospel in the kingdom to include spreading the gospel of God's grace from the time of Jesus Christ on (Rom. 10:15; cf. Eph. 6:15). happiness . . . salvation . . . "Your God reigns." The good news pertains to the ideal conditions of Israel's golden age, during which Christ will reign personally over his kingdom (Isa. 24:23; Ps. 93:1).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 52:8 eye to eye. See Num. 14:14. This Hebrew expression portrayed two people so close to each other that they can look into one another's eyes. The point is that the messengers of the truth ("watchmen") will see the Lord return to Zion as vividly as they see each other looking eye to eye.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 52:9–10 comforted . . . redeemed. The ruined city will respond to the call to sing for joy because the Lord has provided comfort (40:1–2; 49:13; 51:12) and redemption (41:14; 43:1, 12, 14; 44:6, 23–24; 47:4).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 52:11 Depart, depart. The prophet commands the Israelites to leave the lands of their exiles to return to Jerusalem (48:20; Jer. 50:8; Zech. 2:6–7; Rev. 18:4). Under Cyrus there was only a limited return (50,000), but the final fulfillment in view here is in the future. touch no unclean thing . . . purify yourselves. Returning exiles were not to defile themselves by taking property home from their exile (cf. Josh. 6:18; 7:1). The NT gave these prophetic words an application in principle by using them as an exhortation forbidding Christians to involve themselves with spiritual ties to forces of heathendom (2 Cor. 6:17).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 52:12 not go out in haste. Delivered captives will not have to hurry in their return to Jerusalem, as their ancestors did when delivered from Egypt (Ex. 12:11, 33, 39; Deut. 16:3). They can move deliberately and safely, with the Messiah in front and God in back. Cf. Isa. 58:8.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 52:13–53:12 This is the last and most memorable of the four Messiah/Servant-songs (cf. 42:1–9; 49:1–13; 50:4–11). This section contains unarguable, incontrovertible proof that God is the author of Scripture and Jesus is the fulfillment of messianic prophecy. The details are so minute that no human could have predicted them by accident and no imposter fulfilled them by cunning. Clearly this refers to Messiah Jesus, as the NT attests (cf. Matt. 8:17; Mark 15:28; Luke 22:37; John 12:38; Acts 8:28–35; Rom. 10:16; 1 Pet. 2:21–25). It is often alluded to without being quoted (cf. Mark 9:12; Rom. 4:25; 1 Cor. 15:3; 2 Cor. 5:21; 1 Pet. 1:19; 1 John 3:5).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 52:13–15 Here is a summary and preview of the humiliation and exaltation of the Servant, described in more detail in 53:1–12. The details cover the work of Christ in his substitutionary death, his burial, his resurrection, his saving of sinners, his intercession, and his kingdom.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 52:13 high . . . lifted up . . . exalted. Ultimately, when the Servant rules over his kingdom, he will receive international recognition for the effectiveness of his reign (cf. Phil. 2:9).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 52:14 his appearance was so marred. The Servant must undergo inhuman cruelty to the point that he no longer looks like a human being. His appearance is so awful that people look at him in astonishment (53:2–3; Ps. 22:6; Matt. 26:67; 27:30; John 19:3).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 52:15 sprinkle many nations. In his disfigured state, the Servant will perform a priestly work of cleansing not just Israel, but many outside the nation (Ex. 29:21; Lev. 4:6; 8:11; 14:7; Num. 8:7; 19:18–19; Heb. 9:13). shut their mouths. At his exaltation, human leaders in the highest places will be speechless and in awe before the once-despised Servant (cf. Ps. 2). When he takes his throne, they will see the unfolding of power and glory such as they have never heard. Paul applied the principle in this verse to his apostolic mission of preaching the gospel of Christ where Christ was yet unknown (Rom. 15:21).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 53:1 Who has believed what he has heard from us? The question implied that, in spite of these and other prophecies, only a few would recognize the Servant when he appeared. This anticipation found literal fulfillment at Christ’s first advent. Israel did not welcome him at his first advent (John 1:9–11; 12:38). Paul applied the same prophecy to the world at large (Rom. 10:16). the arm of the Lord. At his first coming, the nation did not recognize the mighty, incarnate power of God in the person of Jesus, their Deliverer.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 53:2 before him. Though unrecognized by the world (v. 1), Messiah Jesus was observed carefully by God, who ordered every minute circumstance of his life. dry ground . . . no beauty that we should desire him. The Servant will arise in lowly conditions and wear none of the usual emblems of royalty, making his true identity visible only to the discerning eye of faith.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 53:3 despised . . . rejected . . . despised. The prophet foresees the hatred and rejection by mankind toward the Messiah/Servant, who suffered not only external abuse, but also internal grief over the lack of response from those he came to save (e.g., Matt. 23:37; Luke 13:34). hide their faces . . . esteemed him not. By using the first person, the prophet spoke for his unbelieving nation's aversion to a crucified Messiah and their lack of respect for the incarnate Son of God.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 53:4 borne . . . carried. Cf. vv. 11–12. Even though the verbs are past tense, they predict happenings future to Isaiah's time, i.e., "prophetic perfects" in Hebrew here and elsewhere in this Servant-song. Isaiah was saying that the Messiah would bear the consequences of the sins of men, namely the griefs and sorrows of life, though incredibly the Jews who watched him die thought he was being punished by God for his own sins. Matthew found an analogical fulfillment of these words in Jesus' healing ministry (see notes on Matt. 8:16–17), because sickness results from sin for which the Servant paid with his life (Isa. 53:7–8; cf. 1 Pet. 2:24). In eternity, all sickness will be removed, so ultimately it is included in the benefits of the atonement.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 53:5 wounded for our transgressions . . . crushed for our iniquities. This verse is filled with the language of substitution. The Servant suffered not for his own sin, since he was sinless (cf. Heb. 4:15; 7:26), but as the substitute for sinners. The emphasis here is on Christ being the substitute recipient of God's wrath on sinners (cf. 2 Cor. 5:21; Gal. 1:3–4; Heb. 10:9–10). chastisement that brought us peace. He suffered the chastisement of God in order to procure our peace with God. with his stripes we are healed. The stripe (the Hebrew noun is singular) that caused his death has brought salvation to those for whose sins he died. Peter confirms this in 1 Pet. 2:24.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 53:6 All we . . . every one . . . us all. Every person has sinned (Rom. 3:9, 23), but the Servant has sufficiently shouldered the consequences of sin and the righteous wrath deserved by sinners (cf. 1 Tim. 2:5–6; 4:10; 1 John 2:2). The manner in which God laid our iniquity on him was that God treated him as if he had committed every sin ever committed by every person who would ever believe, though he was perfectly innocent of any sin. God did so to him, so that wrath being spent and justice satisfied, God could then give to the account of sinners who believe, the righteousness of Christ, treating them as if they had done only the righteous acts of Christ. In both cases, this is substitution. See notes on 2 Cor. 5:21.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 53:7–8 This is the portion of Scripture read by the Ethiopian eunuch and subsequently explained to him by Philip as referring to Jesus (Acts 8:32–33).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 53:7 opened not his mouth. The Servant will utter no protest and will be utterly submissive to those who oppress him. Jesus fulfilled this (Matt. 26:63; 27:12–14; Mark 14:61; 15:5; Luke 23:9; John 19:9; 1 Pet. 2:23). lamb . . . led to the slaughter. The Servant was to assume the role of a sacrificial lamb (Ex. 12:3, 6). Jesus fulfilled this figurative role literally (John 1:29; 1 Pet. 1:18–19; Rev. 5:6).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 53:8 cut off . . . for the transgression of my people? The Servant lost his life to be the substitute object of wrath in the place of the Jews, who by that substitution will receive salvation and the righteousness of God imputed to them. Similar terminology applies to the Messiah in Dan. 9:26.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 53:9 with the wicked . . . with a rich man. Because of his disgraceful death, the Jews intended the Servant to have a disgraceful burial along with the thieves (cf. John 19:31), but instead he was buried with “a rich man” in an honorable burial through the donated tomb of Joseph of Arimathea (Matt. 27:57–60; Mark 15:42–46; Luke 23:50–53; John 19:38–40). no violence . . . deceit. The Servant’s innocence meant that his execution was totally undeserved. Peter notes the fulfillment of this in 1 Pet. 2:22.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 53:10 it was the will of the Lord. Though the Servant did not deserve to die, it was the Lord’s will for him to do so (Matt. 26:39; Luke 22:42; John 12:27; Acts 2:23). an offering for guilt. Fulfilled by the Servant as the Lamb of God (Isa. 53:7; John 1:29). Christ is the Christian’s Passover (1 Cor. 5:7). This conclusively eliminates the error that Christ’s atonement provides present-day healing for those who pray in faith. His death was an atonement for sin, not sickness. See note on Isa. 53:4. see his offspring . . . prolong his days. To see his offspring, the Servant must rise from the dead. He will do this and live to reign forever (2 Sam. 7:13, 16; Ps. 21:4; 89:4; 132:12).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 53:11 he shall . . . be satisfied. The one sacrifice of the Servant will provide complete satisfaction in settling the sin issue (1 John 2:2; cf. Isa. 1:11). by his knowledge. The Servant knew exactly what needed to be done to solve the sin problem. many to be accounted righteous. Through the divine "knowledge" of how to justify sinners, the plan was accomplished that by his one sacrifice he declared many righteous before God (Rom. 5:19; 2 Cor. 5:21).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 53:12 portion with the many . . . spoil with the strong. The Servant's reward for his work will be to enjoy the "booty" of his spiritual victories during his millennial reign. numbered with the transgressors. The Servant assumes a role among sinful human beings, fulfilled by Jesus when he was crucified between two criminals (Luke 22:37). makes intercession for the transgressors. This speaks of the office of intercessory high priest, which began on the cross (Luke 23:34) and continues in heaven (cf. Heb. 7:25; 9:24).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 54:1 barren . . . did not bear . . . have not been in labor . . . desolate. In her exile and dispersion, Israel has been destitute, disgraced as a woman who had borne no children (49:21). The prophet calls for singing, however, because of the Lord's promise of future fruitfulness for the nation (49:19–20). The NT supplies an additional application of the principle in this verse, citing it as evidence that the Jerusalem above, mother of the children of promise through Sarah, will enjoy great fruitfulness (Gal. 4:27).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 54:2 Enlarge . . . be stretched out . . . lengthen. The prophet commanded barren Israel to prepare for the day when her numerous inhabitants will require larger space to dwell in (26:15; 49:19–20).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 54:3 spread abroad . . . possess the nations. The Messiah's future kingdom is to be worldwide, far greater in extent than the former kingdoms of David and Solomon.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 54:4 shame of your youth . . . reproach of your widowhood. Israel's sins brought on the Egyptian captivity, the Babylonian exile, and her current dispersion, but the glories of the future kingdom will be so great that they will overshadow past failures.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 54:5 husband . . . Redeemer. The basis for forgetting past failures is Israel's relationship to the Lord as her husband (62:4–5) and Redeemer (41:14).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 54:6–8 deserted . . . grieved . . . cast off. Israel in exile and dispersion has been like a wife whose husband has rejected her. But this is only for a brief time compared to the everlasting kindness she will enjoy when the Messiah returns to gather the woeful wife (26:20).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 54:9 waters of Noah. Just as God swore he would never again judge the whole earth with a flood (Gen. 8:21; 9:11), so he has taken an oath never to be angry with his people again. He will fulfill this promise after their final restoration.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 54:10 mountains . . . hills . . . my steadfast love . . . my covenant. In the millennium (48:6–7; 51:6, 16) topography will change (see Ezek. 38:20; Mic. 1:4; Zech. 14:4, 10), but not God's pledge of well-being for Israel as a result of the New Covenant (Isa. 55:3; 59:21; 61:8).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 54:11–12 antimony . . . sapphires . . . agate . . . carbuncles . . . precious stones. The elaborate ornamentation will outfit Jerusalem to be the center of the future, eternal messianic reign following the millennium (Rev. 21:18–21). As magnificent as this is, it is not as important as the spiritual richness of the kingdom, when truth and peace (Isa. 54:13) prevail along with righteousness (v. 14). The Lord himself will teach everyone during the messianic kingdom, so everyone will know his righteousness (11:9; Jer. 31:34). Jesus gave this verse an additional focus, applying it to those with spiritual insight to come to him during his first advent (John 6:45).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 54:15–17 whoever stirs up strife . . . shall fall. In the millennial kingdom this will occur, as prophesied by John in Rev. 20:7–9. The Lord will burn up all Israel's enemies. The heritage of the Lord's servants in the Messiah’s kingdom will include his protection from would-be conquerors. It should be noted that after the Servant-song of Isa. 53, Israel is always referrred to as God’s “servants” (plural) rather than his servant (54:17; 56:6; 63:17; 65:8–9, 13–15; 66:14).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 55:1 everyone. The Servant’s redemptive work and glorious kingdom are for the benefit of all who are willing to come (53:6). The prophet invites his readers to participate in the benefits obtained by the suffering of the Servant in ch. 53 and described in ch. 54. no money . . . without money . . . without price. Benefits in the Servant’s kingdom will be free because of his redemptive work (53:6, 8, 11; Eph. 2:8–9). wine and milk. Symbols for abundance, satisfaction, and prosperity (Song 5:1; Joel 3:18).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 55:2 not bread. This is the “bread gained by deceit” (Prov. 20:17) and not the “bread of life” (John 6:32–35).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 55:3 everlasting covenant. The New Covenant that God will give to Israel (54:8; 61:8; Jer. 31:31–34; 32:40; 50:5; Ezek. 16:60; 37:26; Heb. 13:20). my steadfast, sure love for David. The Davidic Covenant promised David that his seed would be ruler over Israel in an everlasting kingdom (2 Sam. 7:8, 16; Ps. 89:27–29). Paul connected the resurrection of Christ with this promise (Acts 13:34), since it was an essential event in fulfilling this promise. If he had not fully satisfied God by his atoning death, he would not have risen; if he had not risen from the dead, he could not eventually sit on David’s earthly throne. But he did rise and will fulfill the kingly role (Isa. 55:4). Cf. Jer. 30:9; Ezek. 34:23–24; 37:24–25; Dan. 9:25; Hos. 3:5; Mic. 5:2. The whole world will come to him as the Great King (Isa. 55:5).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 55:6–7 Here is one of the clearest OT invitations to salvation now and kingdom blessing later. It gives an excellent example of how people were saved during the OT period. Salvation grace and mercy were available to the soul that was willing to 1) seek the Lord (Deut. 4:29; 2 Chron. 15:4) and 2) call on him while he is still available (Isa. 65:1; Ps. 32:6; Prov. 8:17; Matt. 25:1–13; John 7:34; 8:21; 2 Cor. 6:2; Heb. 2:3; 3:13, 15). Such true seeking in faith is accompanied by repentance, which is described as forsaking ways and thoughts and turning from sinful living to the Lord. A sinner must come, believing in God, recognizing his sin and desiring forgiveness and deliverance from that sin. At the same time he must recognize his own inability to be righteous or to satisfy God and cast himself on God's mercy. It is then that he receives a complete pardon. His sin has been covered by the substitution of the Messiah in his place (Isa. 53). This OT pattern of salvation is illustrated in Luke 18:9–14.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 55:7 forsake. An integral part of seeking the Lord (v. 6) is a turning from sin (1:16).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 55:8–9 my thoughts . . . my ways. Some may doubt such willingness as is described in v. 7, but God's grace is far beyond human comprehension, especially as manifested toward Israel.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 55:10–11 rain . . . snow . . . my word. Moisture from heaven invariably accomplishes its intended purpose in helping meet human physical needs. The word of God will likewise produce its intended results in fulfilling God's spiritual purposes, especially the establishment of the Davidic kingdom on earth (vv. 1–5).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 55:12 go out in joy . . . led forth in peace. Exiled Israel will return from her dispersion rejoicing in her deliverance and unbothered by her enemies.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 55:13 Instead of the thorn . . . myrtle. In the Davidic kingdom positive changes in nature, including the reverse of the curse (Gen. 3:17), will be an ongoing testimony to the Lord's redemption of his people (Isa. 44:23; Rom. 8:19–23).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 56:1 will come . . . revealed. Incentives to comply with 55:6–7 include the nearness of God's kingdom of salvation and righteousness (51:5).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 56:2 keeps the Sabbath, not profaning it. Sabbath observance, established after the deliverance from Egypt (Ex. 20:8–11), became a sign of fulfilling the covenant God made with Moses (Ex. 31:13–17).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 56:3 foreigner . . . eunuch. Such individuals, excluded from Israel by the law (Ex. 12:43; Deut. 23:1, 3, 7–8), will find in the coming of the messianic kingdom the removal of such exclusions.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 56:4–5 hold fast my covenant . . . an everlasting name. Eunuchs with hearts inclined to comply with the Mosaic Covenant may anticipate an endless posterity. It is never works that save (cf. Rom. 3:20; Eph. 2:8–9); rather, obeying God's law, doing what pleases him or desiring to keep the promises of obedience are the evidences that one has been saved, and will thus enjoy all salvation blessings.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 56:6–7 holds fast my covenant . . . will be accepted on my altar. The sacrifices of a foreigner who loves God, whose heart is inclined to serve him and obey the Mosaic law, will find his sacrifices welcome, in the coming kingdom as well.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 56:7 my house . . . for all peoples. In the kingdom of the Messiah, the Jerusalem temple will be the focal point for worship of the Lord by people of all ethnic backgrounds. Jesus cited a violation of this anticipation by his contemporaries in his second cleansing of the temple: Jewish leaders had made the temple a commercial venture (Matt. 21:13; Mark 11:17; Luke 19:46).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 56:8 others . . . those already gathered. Besides gathering Israel's exiles into his kingdom, the Lord will bring in non-Jews also (49:6).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 56:9–12 A commentary on Israel's false prophets and irresponsible leaders who led them astray.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 56:9–11 beasts . . . watchmen . . . shepherds. These titles identify the wicked; other prophets refer to Israel's enemies as beasts (Jer. 12:9; Ezek. 34:5, 8). Prophets, who should have been watchmen and warned Israel to repent, ignored their responsibility (cf. Ezek. 3:17). Priests also failed to lead Israel in paths of righteousness (Ezek. 34:1–6; Zech. 11:15–17).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 56:12 wine . . . strong drink. This is indicative of the self-indulgent irresponsibility of the leaders. Drunkenness completely obliterated any concern that leaders had for their people. See notes on Prov. 31:4–7.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 57:1–2 In contrast to the evil leaders, who were engaged in debauchery and self-indulgence, were the righteous who were removed from impending divine judgments. The righteous do suffer by oppression and distress at what is going on around them, but they die in faith and enjoy their eternal reward.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 57:3 sorceress . . . adulterer . . . loose woman. Sorcery and adultery were figurative designations for idolatry. God summoned the wicked to give an account.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 57:4 stick out your tongue. The ungodly blatantly ridiculed God’s messengers (e.g., 28:9–10).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 57:5–6 These verses feature elements of idolatry such as child sacrifice, which were a part of worshiping the Ammonite god Molech (Jer. 32:35; Ezek. 20:26, 31). In response to Israel’s offerings to idols, what was the Lord’s appropriate response—to be satisfied or to take vengeance? Jeremiah had the answer (Jer. 5:9, 29; 9:9).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 57:7–8 The location of idol altars where Israel committed spiritual adultery in offering sacrifices (Jer. 3:6; Ezek. 16:16) to Baal and Astarte.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 57:9 journeyed to the king. An example of this was Ahaz, who called on the king of Assyria for help and spared no expense in copying the idolatry of Assyria (2 Kings 16:7–18).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 57:10 found new life for your strength. Rather than recognizing the hopelessness of idolatry, and in spite of the weariness of idol worship, the Israelites found renewed strength to pursue their idolatrous course.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 57:11 you lied. These wicked people feared false gods more than the true God to whom they played the hypocrite, trading on God’s patience.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 57:12–13 I will declare your righteousness. God will break his silence by elaborating on Israel’s sham righteousness, a sarcastic way of saying they have no real righteousness. The folly of such devotion to non-existent gods will show up when judgment comes and they all are blown away, while the worshipers of the true God enjoy the blessings of the kingdom. See Ps. 37:11 and Matt. 5:5.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 57:14–20 In contrast with the threats of judgment for idolatry (vv. 3–13), vv. 14–20 give promises of blessing.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 57:14 remove every obstruction. The command is to remove all barriers to prepare the way for God’s people to return to him (62:10).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 57:15, 18 revive the spirit . . . revive the heart. The Lord sends true revival, which comes to the humble and contrite (61:1–3; contra. 57:10). After all the years of Israel’s sin and backsliding, and of Israel’s punishment, God’s grace will prevail (43:25) and spiritual healing and restoration will come.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 57:17 backsliding. See note on Prov. 14:14.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 57:19 fruit of the lips. According to Heb. 13:15, this phrase refers to praising and thanking God. Cf. Hos. 14:2. In this context, it is the voice crying “peace, peace” in a call to people far and near to come to the Lord and receive spiritual healing.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 57:20–21 like the tossing sea. In contrast to those in v. 19, the wicked enjoy anything but peace (Jude 13). Cf. Isa. 48:22.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 58:1–66:24 This section describes the future glory for God’s people Israel.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 58:1–5 A description of religious formalism that manifests itself in improper fasting.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 58:1 Cry aloud. The prophet was to tell the people of Israel in plain language those areas of their behavior with which the Lord was displeased.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 58:2 delight to draw near to God. Israel was merely “going through the motions.” Their appearance of righteousness was mere pretense (1:11).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 58:3–7 Why . . . ? The people complained when God did not recognize their religious actions, but God responded that their fastings had been only half-hearted. Hypocritical fasting resulted in contention, quarreling, and pretense, excluding the possibility of genuine prayer to God. Fasting consisted of more than just an outward ritual and a mock repentance, it involved penitence over sin and consequent humility, disconnecting from sin and oppression of others, feeding the hungry, and acting humanely toward those in need.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 58:8 your righteousness . . . rear guard. When Israel learned the proper way to fast, she would enjoy the blessings of salvation and the Messiah’s kingdom (52:12).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 58:9 Here I am. See 65:1. In contrast with the complaint of 58:3, a time will come when the Lord will be completely responsive to the prayers of his people (65:24). This will be done when they are converted and giving evidence of the transformation in the kind of works that reflect a truly repentant heart (58:9–10). At the time of Christ’s return, Israel will demonstrate true repentance and the fullness of blessing will be poured out (vv. 10b–11).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 58:12 ancient ruins shall be rebuilt. In view here is the final restoration of the millennial Jerusalem, of which Nehemiah’s rebuilding of the walls (Neh. 2:17) was only a foretaste (Isa. 61:4; Amos 9:11).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 58:13 turn back your foot . . . the Sabbath. The Sabbath was holy ground on which no one should walk. Keeping the Sabbath was symbolic of obedience to all the law of Moses (56:2). For the setting aside of Sabbath law in the NT, see notes on Rom. 14:5–6 and Col. 2:16–17.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 58:14 take delight in the Lord. Repentant people walking in fellowship with the Lord experience satisfaction of soul (Ps. 37:4). Their satisfaction will not come from material goods (contra. Isa. 55:2).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 59:1 Lord's hand . . . his ear. The Lord's strength is more than adequate to bring deliverance to captive Israel (50:2). His ear is attuned to the call of his repentant people (58:9; 65:24).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 59:2 iniquities . . . sins. Abraham's physical lineage had not yet experienced the Lord's deliverance because of the barrier created by their wrongdoing. This is a universal truth applying to all men—sin separates people from God (cf. Rom. 3:23).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 59:5 adders' eggs . . . spider's web. It is sad when people do evil, but even sadder when they delight in poisoning or ensnaring others with their evil habits (Rom. 1:32). Israel had reached this latter state.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 59:6 webs . . . works. Just as spiders' webs are too flimsy to serve as clothing, so were Israel's evil works. Spiritually, they did not suffice.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 59:7–8 Their feet . . . peace they do not know. From Isaiah's pen, the words focused on the national depravity of Israel that stood in the way of God's deliverance. Paul showed that what was true of sinful Israel is indicative of the depravity of all mankind (Rom. 3:15–17).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 59:10–11 grope . . . stumble. Here is a picture of men seeking unsuccessfully to escape their depraved condition through their own strength. They wind up growling and lamenting their inability to gain salvation (Deut. 28:29).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 59:12–14 transgressions . . . sins. The prophet supplies the answer to the nation's frustrations: their sins and transgressions remain as an obstacle to God's deliverance. Though their external rituals may be proper, the hindrance of impure motives remains between God and his people (Matt. 12:34; Mark 7:21–22). The presence of iniquity eliminates righteousness.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 59:15 makes himself a prey. In an environment where evil prevailed, anyone who departed from it became a victim of his environment because he did not fit in.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 59:15–16 The Lord saw . . . no one to intercede. The Lord was aware of Israel's tragic condition and of the absence of anyone to intervene on his behalf. The Lord took it on himself to change Israel's condition through the intervention of his Suffering Servant (53:12).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 59:17 righteousness as a breastplate . . . helmet of salvation. Figuratively speaking, the Lord armed himself for the deliverance of his people and for taking vengeance on enemies who would seek his destruction. Paul drew on this terminology in describing a believer's spiritual preparation for warding off the attacks of Satan (Eph. 6:14, 17; 1 Thess. 5:8).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 59:17–18 garments of vengeance . . . repayment to his enemies. In the process of delivering the faithful remnant of Israel, the Lord executes decisive judgment against all rebellious nations ("coastlands") as well as the wicked Israelites (63:1–6).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 59:19 they shall fear. All surviving peoples throughout the world are to have added reason to worship the Lord, seeing how he defeated all enemies by the power of his Spirit in bringing salvation to his people Israel. All over the earth, submission to him is to be the only path to survival in the coming kingdom.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 59:20–21 a Redeemer will come. The Messiah, the Suffering Servant, will redeem Zion and all faithful Israelites. This unalterable promise to the nation was the basis for Paul's reassurance of the future salvation of Israel (Rom. 11:26–27).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 59:21 my covenant . . . forevermore. Because God's New Covenant with Israel is "everlasting" (55:3; cf. Jer. 31:31–34), God's Spirit and his words are to remain objects of their attention continually.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 60:1–2 glory of the Lord . . . darkness . . . thick darkness . . . his glory. Addressing Zion (59:20; 60:14), Isaiah told the city and thus the nation Israel that her light has come, putting her in contrast with the rest of the darkened world. This expressed the glory of Jerusalem during the millennial kingdom.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 60:3 nations shall come. Jerusalem's light will attract other nations seeking relief from their darkness (2:3). Only believing Jews and Gentiles will enter the earthly kingdom after the day of the Lord, but as the 1,000 years goes along children will be born and nations will become populated by those who reject Jesus Christ. The glory of the King in Jerusalem, and his mighty power will draw those Gentiles to his light.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 60:4 gather . . . sons . . . daughters. Another promise of the regathering of Israel's faithful remnant (49:18, 22).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 60:5 be radiant . . . wealth. Two more benefits of Israel's future kingdom will be rejoicing and an abundance of material possessions as symbolized in vv. 6–7 (23:18; 24:14; 61:6).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 60:6 Midian . . . Ephah . . . Sheba. The descendants of Midian, Abraham's son through Keturah (Gen. 25:1–2), inhabited the desert areas east of the Jordan River. Ephah was one of the sons of Midian (Gen. 25:4) whose descendants settled on the east coast of the Elanitic Gulf. Sheba was a district in Arabia noted for its wealth (1 Kings 10:1–2).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 60:7 Kedar . . . Nebaioth. The descendants of Kedar, a son of Ishmael (Gen. 25:13), lived in the desert between Syria and Mesopotamia. The Nabateans, inhabitants of the Arabian city Petra, were probably the descendants of Nebaioth, the oldest son of Ishmael (Gen. 25:13). acceptance on my altar. Animal sacrifices brought by other nations during the millennial kingdom will glorify the house of God's glory even more (Isa. 60:13). See notes on Ezek. 40–48 for the description of the operation of sacrifices in the millennial temple.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 60:8 fly like a cloud . . . doves. Figurative language to describe the rapid influx of Gentiles into Jerusalem.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 60:9 coastlands . . . ships of Tarshish . . . your children . . . silver and gold. Because of the Lord's favor toward Zion, the city will attract worldwide attention (23:1; 41:1). Trading vessels will return Israel's faithful remnant as they bring rich treasures to Jerusalem.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 60:10 build up your walls. The rebuilding of Jerusalem's walls, helped by Persian kings, was merely a foretaste of the final rebuilding of the city assisted by Gentiles when Christ returns to earth. in my wrath . . . in my favor. God's past dealings with Israel have been largely in wrath, but his future merciful work will demonstrate his favor.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 60:11 gates . . . open continually. Unrestricted access to Jerusalem will prevail in the future kingdom (26:2; 62:10; Rev. 21:25–26).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 60:12 nation . . . perish. Survival in the future kingdom will be impossible for those nations who do not come to terms with Israel (11:13–14; 14:2; 49:23). The Lord will rule the nations with a rod of iron (cf. Ps. 2:7–12).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 60:13 glory of Lebanon. Timber was Lebanon's claim to fame. As in Solomon's temple (1 Kings 5:10, 18), but even more so, the timber taken from Lebanon's forests will enrich the Lord's temple in Jerusalem.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 60:14 the City of the Lord. Nations that formerly were oppressors of Israel will acknowledge Zion's supremacy as the city that belongs to the Lord.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 60:15 forsaken and hated . . . majestic forever. Jerusalem will switch roles from having been despised to being exalted forever.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 60:16 milk . . . breast. As a mother feeds her infant, so Gentiles and kings will provide wealth and power to Zion. The city will recognize the Lord as her Savior and Redeemer, "the Mighty One of Jacob," as will "all flesh" (49:26).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 60:17 gold . . . silver . . . peace . . . righteousness. Jerusalem in the future kingdom will be a place of beauty and peace where right will prevail.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 60:18 Salvation . . . Praise. The walls and gates of the city that will take on those names refer to the divine protection the Lord provides from any form of violence or destruction.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 60:19 The sun shall be no more . . . everlasting light. Isaiah, looking beyond the millennial kingdom, sees a view of the new Jerusalem following the millennium (Rev. 21:23; 22:5). His prophetic perspective did not allow him to distinguish the eternal phase of the future kingdom from the temporal one, just as the OT prophets could not distinguish between the first and second advent of Christ (cf. 1 Pet. 1:10–11).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 60:20 mourning shall be ended. In the eternal kingdom of the new creation, subjects will shed no more tears (Rev. 21:4).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 60:21 possess the land forever. Israel will inherit the land promised to Abraham (Gen. 12:1, 7; 13:15; 15:18). During the millennial kingdom, that will be the land of Israel as we know it today. In the eternal kingdom, it will be the new Jerusalem, capital of the new creation. I might be glorified. The ultimate mission of Israel is to glorify the Lord (Isa. 49:3; 61:3).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 60:22 smallest one . . . mighty nation. Israel's great increase in numbers and power resulting from the Lord's working will bring them into never-before-experienced world prominence.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 61:1–2a The Spirit . . . year of the Lord's favor. The Servant of the Lord (42:1) will be the ultimate Preacher and the Redeemer of Israel who rescues them. Jesus speaks of the initial fulfillment of this promise, referring it to his ministry of providing salvation's comfort to the spiritually oppressed (Luke 4:18–19). He says specifically, "Today this Scripture has been fulfilled in your hearing" (Luke 4:21). The Jews that were saved during Christ's ministry, and those being saved during this church age, still do not fulfill the promise of the salvation of the nation to come in the end time (cf. Zech. 12:10–13:1; Rom. 11:25–27).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 61:1 Spirit . . . Lord God . . . me. The three persons of the Holy Trinity function together in this verse (6:8; cf. Matt. 3:16–17). liberty to the captives. The "captives" are Israelites remaining in the dispersion following the Babylonian captivity (Isa. 42:7).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 61:2 year . . . favor. The same as "a day of salvation" (49:8) and "my year of redemption" (63:4). This is where Jesus stopped reading in the synagogue (Luke 4:19), indicating that the subsequent writing in the rest of the chapter (Isa. 61:2b–11) awaited the second coming of Christ. day of vengeance. As part of his deliverance of Israel, the Lord will pour out wrath on all who oppose him (59:17–18). Cf. Rev. 6–19.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 61:3 grant . . . glorified. The purpose of the Lord's consolation of the mourners after centuries of suffering (60:20) will be to glorify himself (60:21).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 61:4 build. The rebuilding of Israel's cities is part of God's future plan for the nation (49:8; 58:12; 60:10).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 61:6 priests of the Lord. In fulfillment of Ex. 19:6, Israel will be a kingdom of priests when Christ establishes his kingdom. In the meantime, Peter applied the same terminology to the church (1 Pet. 2:9).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 61:7 double portion. Israel will receive double portions of blessing to replace the double punishment of her exile (40:2).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 61:8 everlasting covenant. This refers to the New Covenant. See note on 55:3.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 61:10 clothed me . . . covered me. Here is the OT picture of imputed righteousness, the essential heart of the New Covenant. When a penitent sinner recognizes he can't achieve his own righteousness by works (see notes on Rom. 3:19–22; 2 Cor. 5:21; Phil. 3:8–9), and repents and calls on the mercy of God, the Lord covers him with his own divine righteousness by grace through his faith.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 62:1 not keep silent . . . not be quiet. The Lord expresses his determination to make Jerusalem a lighthouse for the world (58:8; 60:1–3).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 62:2 new name. Jerusalem's new name will reflect Israel's new favored status (vv. 4, 12; 65:15).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 62:4 My Delight Is in Her . . . Married. These terms reflect a full restored relationship with the Lord.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 62:5 sons marry you. "Marry" in the sense of occupying and possessing the city.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 62:6–7 never be silent . . . give him no rest. The prophets of Israel issued constant warnings about lurking enemies and prayed for Jerusalem to be "Praise" (60:18; 61:11). There will be more prophets in the kingdom who continually proclaim the honor of the Lord.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 62:8–9 The Lord has sworn. The end of foreign domination over Jerusalem is as certain as the oath of God.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 62:9 courts of my sanctuary. This refers to the millennial temple (cf. Ezek. 40–46).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 62:10 prepare the way. This and the accompanying commands prepare the people for the exaltation of Zion and the manifestation of her salvation (11:12; 40:3; 57:14).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 62:11 Say to the daughter . . . Behold. Matthew may also have alluded to these words when he was quoting from Zech. 9:9 as it related to Jesus' triumphal entry into Jerusalem (see Matt. 21:5). his reward . . . his recompense. See Isa. 40:9–10.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 62:12 A City Not Forsaken. See v. 4 and cf. Zion's complaint in 49:14.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 63:1 Edom . . . Bozrah. Edom represents a God-hating world (34:5). Bozrah was a capital city in Edom at one time (34:6).

Messiah, coming as the avenger approaching Jerusalem to reign after having avenged his people on his and their enemies, is presented in imagery taken from the destruction of Edom, the representative in this picture of the last and most bitter foes of God and his people. He alone is "mighty to save."

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 63:3 anger . . . wrath . . . lifeblood. The Savior explains the red coloring of his clothing (v. 2) as resulting from his judgmental activity against Israel's enemies (61:2). The splattered grape juice staining his clothing is, in reality, "blood" from those destroyed in judgment. John alludes to 63:1–3 in describing the second coming of Christ, the Warrior-King. See notes on Rev. 19:13, 15.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 63:4 day of vengeance . . . my year of redemption. The Messiah's future reckoning with the wicked will coincide with his redemption of Israel (61:2).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 63:5 no one to help . . . my own arm. The future salvation of Israel will be a singlehanded accomplishment of the Lord (v. 3; 59:15–16).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 63:6 made them drunk. See 51:17, 21–23. Revelation compares God's wrath to wine several times (e.g., Rev. 14:10, 19; 16:19; 19:15).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 63:7–64:12 As one of Israel's watchmen, Isaiah, on behalf of the faithful remnant, prays this penitential confession and prayer for Israel's restoration (cf. 62:6–7).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 63:7–14 The prayer reviews God's compassionate acts toward his people in spite of their unfaithfulness to him.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 63:7–8 steadfast love . . . steadfast love. All the plurals in this verse imply that language is inadequate to recite all the goodness and undeserved mercies God has showered on the nation time after time because of his everlasting covenant with them. By his elective choice, they became his people and he their Savior (43:1, 3); this guarantees that they will not always be false, but someday true and faithful to God because of his sovereign election of them. Cf. Eph. 1:3–4.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 63:9 angel of his presence. The angel, who delivered the Israelites from Egypt, was none other than the Lord himself (Ex. 14:19; 23:20–23; 33:12, 14, 15; Num. 20:16). He is sometimes identified as the angel of the Lord. He was close enough to his people that he felt their afflictions as if they were his own. See note on Ex. 3:2.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 63:10 rebelled . . . grieved his Holy Spirit. In spite of the Lord's loving choice and sympathy, Israel continually turned their backs on him and spurned his lovingkindnesses toward them (Num. 20:10; Ps. 78:40; 106:33; Acts 7:51; cf. Eph. 4:30). Here is an illustration of the reality that the Holy Spirit is a Person, since only a person can be grieved.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 63:11–13 remembered . . . his people . . . did not stumble. The Lord, in spite of their perversity, did not forget his covenant nor fully forsake them (Lev. 26:40–45; Ps. 106:45–46). In contrasting their present state of destitution with that of blessing experienced by Moses' generation, the people of Israel lamented the loss of God's mighty works on their behalf and pleaded with the Lord that he would not forsake them. brought them up out of the sea . . . put in the midst of them his Holy Spirit . . . divided the waters. Letting the people pass through the sea on dry ground was a typical mighty work of God (Ex. 14:29–30), and the Holy Spirit ministered among them (Num. 11:17, 25, 29). Another reference is made to the miracle of the Red Sea (Ex. 14:21–22).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 63:14 make for yourself a glorious name. The Lord's purpose for Israel was and is to make them great so as to magnify his name in the world. Cf. v. 12.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 63:15–19 After having extolled God's goodness (vv. 7–9) and rehearsed God's past faithfulness to Israel for the sake of his glory (vv. 11–13), the prophet offered a prayer of repentance by the nation in its desolate condition.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 63:15 your compassion . . . from me. On behalf of the people, Isaiah asked if God had changed how he felt about Israel and prayed for new mercies such as he had exhibited toward the nation in the past.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 63:16 Abraham . . . Israel. The nation's physical ancestors, Abraham and Jacob (Israel) played a crucial role in Jewish thinking. It had been the besetting temptation and sin of the Jews to rest on the mere privilege of descent from Abraham and Jacob (cf. Matt. 3:9; John 4:12; 8:39), but at last they renounce that to trust God alone as Father.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 63:17 make us wander . . . harden our heart. The sense is that God allowed them to stray and be burdened in their hearts. They were not denying their own guilt, but confessing that because of it, God gave them up to the consequences of their iniquitous choices. Cf. 6:9–10; Ps. 81:11–12; Hos. 4:17; Rom. 1:24–28.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 63:18 trampled down your sanctuary. The Babylonians, among others, had possessed the land given to Israel and desecrated God's sanctuary (Ps. 74:3–7).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 63:19 never . . . not called. Israel's complaint was that her desolate condition was comparable to that of nations who had no unique relationship with the Lord.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 64:1–5 A plea for the Lord to demonstrate his power as he did in earlier days.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 64:1–2 rend the heavens . . . quake at your presence. Israel's response to her own complaint (63:19) was a plea that God would burst forth to execute vengeance suddenly on his people's foes (cf. Ps. 18:7–9; 144:5; Hab. 3:5–6), manifesting himself in judgment again as he did at Mount Sinai (Ex. 19:18; Judg. 5:5; Ps. 68:8; Heb. 12:18–20). As God's name is to receive glory through his redemption of Israel (Isa. 63:14), it also is to have widespread recognition because of his judgment against Israel's enemies (Ps. 99:1).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 64:3 awesome things. Another reference to God's acts at Sinai (Deut. 10:21).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 64:4 ear . . . eye. God's judgmental manifestations are unique. No one has witnessed the likes of his awesome works on behalf of his own. Paul adapts words from this verse to speak of direct revelation of God imparted to his apostles and prophets and pertaining to mysteries hidden from mankind before the birth of the church (1 Cor. 2:9).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 64:5 shall we be saved? Direct exposure to the awesome character of God's judgment brings a realization of sinners' need of salvation (cf. Acts 16:26–30).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 64:6 unclean . . . polluted garment. As in 53:6, the prophet included himself among those confessing their utter unworthiness to be in God's presence. Isaiah employed the imagery of menstrual cloths used during a woman's period to picture uncleanness (cf. Lev. 15:19–24). This is true of the best behavior of unbelievers (cf. Phil. 3:5–8).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 64:7–9 no one who calls. The prophet finds no exception among a people whose iniquities had separated them from God. See notes on Rom. 3:10–18. Such seeking and calling on the Lord as Isaiah describes in Isa. 55:6–7 cannot occur apart from the powerful conviction and awakening of the sinful heart by the Holy Spirit. Thus the prayer recognizes God as a potter in control of clay and pleads for him to do a saving work (64:8). Cf. 45:9–10; 60:21; 63:16. Such a work is what God promised to end his fury (54:7–8) and his memory of sin (64:9; 43:25).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 64:11 burned by fire . . . become ruins. Through prophetic revelation Isaiah uttered these words many years before the fall of Jerusalem and the destruction of the temple in 586 B.C. Yet, he lamented over the fallen state as though it had already occurred. God's people were in desperate straits and their prayers urgent and persistent: "How can you stand by when your people and your land are so barren?"

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 65:1–7 In response to the prayer of 63:7–64:12, the Lord repeated the warnings of his judgment.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 65:1 not ask . . . not seek . . . not called. Though Israel sought the Lord, they did so only superficially. They did not genuinely seek him. The NT assigns an additional sense to the words in Rom. 10:20, applying them to Gentiles who find him through the work of his sovereign grace.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 65:2 I spread out . . . rebellious people. God had continually taken the initiative in inviting his people Israel to walk in his ways, but time after time they rebuffed him. Using this verse, Paul concurred in citing the rebelliousness of his fellow Jews (Rom. 10:21).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 65:3–4 Here Isaiah gave more references to Israel's sin, such as defiance in practicing idolatry, communing with the spirits of the dead (a forbidden practice according to Deut. 18:10–11), eating in ways forbidden by the Mosaic law (Lev. 11:7–8), consuming food connected with idol sacrifices, and the arrogance of self-righteousness (cf. Matt. 9:11; Luke 5:30; 18:11).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 65:5 smoke in my nostrils. This alluded to the smoke of their self-righteous sacrifices, an endless irritation to God who responds in judgment.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 65:6 I will not keep silent. The Lord's response to the prayer asking him not to restrain himself in granting deliverance (64:12) was that he will act in judgment, not deliverance, to punish sin (65:7).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 65:8–10 In the midst of the final fury of judgment when the time of Jacob's trouble comes (cf. Jer. 30:7) and God purges out the rebels in Israel (cf. Ezek. 20:38), there will also be the restoration of the faithful remnant to the land. Though judgment comes to the nation as a whole, God will spare and save (cf. Zech. 12:10–13:1; Rom. 11:25–27) the faithful remnant, "survivors" (Isa. 1:9), in the future kingdom. This will include a physical return of God's elect, believing Jews, to the land of Israel (57:13).

Isaiah's Description of Israel's Future Kingdom

Isaiah's Description of Israel's Future Kingdom
Description	Isaiah passages

1. The Lord will restore the faithful remnant of Israel to the land to inhabit the kingdom at its beginning.	1:9, 25–27; 3:10; 4:3; 6:13; 8:10; 9:1; 10:20, 22, 25, 27; 11:11–12, 16; 14:1–2, 22, 26; 26:1–4; 27:12; 28:5; 35:9; 37:4, 31–32; 40:2–3; 41:9; 43:5–6; 46:3–4; 49:5, 8, 12, 22; 51:11; 54:7–10; 55:12; 57:13, 18; 60:4, 9; 61:1–4, 7; 65:8–10; 66:8–9, 19
2. As the Lord defeats Israel’s enemies, he will provide protection for his people.	4:5–6; 9:1, 4; 12:1–6; 13:4; 14:2; 21:9; 26:4–5; 27:1–4; 30:30–31; 32:2; 33:16, 22; 35:4; 49:8–9, 17–18; 52:6; 54:9–10; 55:10–11; 58:12; 60:10, 12, 18; 62:9; 66:16
3. In her kingdom, Israel will enjoy great prosperity of many kinds.	22:22–23; 26:15, 19; 27:2, 13; 29:18–20; 30:20; 32:3, 15–20; 33:6, 24; 35:3, 5–6, 8–10; 40:11; 42:6–7, 16; 43:5–6, 8, 10, 21; 44:5, 14; 46:13; 48:6; 49:10; 52:9; 54:2–3; 55:1, 12; 58:9, 14; 60:5, 16, 21; 61:4, 6–10; 62:5; 65:13–15, 18, 24; 66:21–22
4. The city of Jerusalem will rise to world preeminence in the kingdom.	2:2–4; 18:7; 25:6; 40:5, 9; 49:19–21; 60:1–5, 13–15, 17; 62:3–4
5. Israel will be the center of world attention in the kingdom.	23:18; 54:1–3; 55:5; 56:6–8; 60:5–9; 66:18–21
6. Israel’s mission in the kingdom will be to glorify the Lord.	60:21; 61:3
7. Gentiles in the kingdom will receive blessing through the channel of faithful Israel.	11:10; 19:18, 24–25; 42:6; 45:22–23; 49:6; 51:5; 56:3, 6–8; 60:3, 7–8; 61:5; 66:19
8. Worldwide peace will prevail in the kingdom under the rule of the Prince of Peace.	2:4; 9:5–6; 11:10; 19:23; 26:12; 32:18; 54:14; 57:19; 66:12
9. Moral and spiritual conditions in the kingdom will reach their highest plane since the fall of Adam.	27:6; 28:6, 17; 32:16; 42:7; 44:3; 45:8; 51:4; 61:11; 65:21–22
10. Governmental leadership in the kingdom will be superlative with the Messiah heading it up.	9:6–7; 11:2–3; 16:5; 24:23; 25:3; 32:1, 5; 33:22; 42:1, 4; 43:15; 52:13; 53:12; 55:3–5
11. Humans will enjoy long life in the kingdom.	65:20, 22
12. Knowledge of the Lord will be universal in the kingdom.	11:9; 19:21; 33:13; 40:5; 41:20; 45:6, 14; 49:26; 52:10, 13, 15; 54:13; 66:23
13. The world of nature will enjoy a great renewal in the kingdom.	12:3; 30:23–26; 32:15; 35:1–4, 6–7; 41:18–19; 43:19–20; 44:3, 23; 55:1–2, 13; 58:10–11
14. “Wild” animals will be tame in the kingdom.	11:6–9; 35:9; 65:25
15. Sorrow and mourning will not exist in the kingdom.	25:8; 60:20
16. An eternal kingdom, as a part of God’s new creation, will follow the millennial kingdom.	24:23; 51:6, 16; 54:11–12; 60:11, 19; 65:17
17. The King will judge overt sin in the kingdom.	66:24

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 65:10 Sharon . . . Valley of Achor. Sharon was the western fertile territory on the Mediterranean coast, south of Mount Carmel (35:2). The eastern Valley of Achor was near Jericho and the Jordan River (Josh. 7:24–26). Together they represented the whole land.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 65:11–12 Another pronouncement of judgment was given on the rebellious Israelites, who resorted to the worship of pagan gods, like Fortune (Hebrew Gad) and Destiny (Hebrew Meni), and had no one to blame but themselves for the sword of damnation that fell on them.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 65:13–14 Continuing to address the rebel idolaters, the Lord himself gave contrasts between the faithful and unfaithful of Israel.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 65:15 your name . . . for a curse . . . another name. Israel's new name was to reflect her favored status among the nations (62:2–4). Delinquent Israelites, on the other hand, were to endure the reproach of men, so that the very name "Jew" would be disclaimed.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 65:16 God of truth. Lit., this is "God of Amen," referring to the very God, the true God, who will honor his promises to Israel, thus vindicating himself in the eyes of all people. Someday the rebels will be purged out and the redeemed remnant will be left. In that time, all blessing and swearing will be by the one and only true God, because all idols will be vanquished and forgotten in the glory of the kingdom of Messiah.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 65:17–25 The blessings of faithful Israel in the coming kingdom are described.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 65:17 new heavens and a new earth. Israel's future kingdom will include a temporal kingdom of a thousand years (see notes on Rev. 20:1–10) and an eternal kingdom in God's new creation (Isa. 51:6, 16; 54:10; 66:22; cf. Rev. 21:1–8). The prophet uses the eternal kingdom here as a reference point for both. Isaiah's prophecy does not make clear the relationship between the kingdom's two aspects as does later prophecy (Rev. 20:1–21:8). This is similar to the compression of Christ's first and second advents, so that in places they are indistinguishable (cf. Isa. 61:1–2).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 65:20 No more shall . . . an infant . . . or an old man. Long life will prevail in the millennial kingdom. In the temporal phase of the kingdom, death will happen, but not nearly so early as in the time of Isaiah. accursed. In the millennial phase of Israel's kingdom, a sinful person may die at age 100, but will be considered a mere youth at the time of his premature death. Having died an untimely death at such a youthful time, it will be assumed that God has taken his life for sin. The curse will be reversed in the millennium, but it will not be removed until the eternal state (cf. Rev. 22:3).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 65:21–22 build . . . inhabit . . . plant . . . eat. Social justice will prevail in Israel's kingdom. No enemies will deprive people of what is rightfully theirs (contra. Deut. 28:30).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 65:23 for calamity. Lit., this means "for sudden death." Subjects in the kingdom will enjoy freedom from ordinary misfortunes related to the premature death of infants. There will be the lowest infant mortality rate ever. Along with longer life (v. 20), this means the earth will be greatly populated at an exponential rate of reproduction. Cf. Rev. 20:7–9 for the massive collection of people at the end of the kingdom who come against Christ.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 65:24 Before they call . . . while they are yet speaking. Relationship with the Lord will be so close that he will anticipate and provide for every need (58:9).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 65:25 wolf . . . lamb . . . lion . . . ox . . . serpent's. Dangers from the animal world will be nonexistent during the reign of the Servant of the Lord (11:6–9).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 66:1–2 Isaiah began the final summary of his prophecy with a reminder that God is not looking for a temple of stone, since as Creator of all things, the whole universe is his dwelling place. Stephen cited this passage before the Sanhedrin to point out their error in limiting God to a temple made with hands (Acts 7:49–50). On the contrary, God is looking for a heart to dwell in, a heart that is tender and broken, not one concerned with the externalities of religion (cf. Matt. 5:3–9). God is looking to dwell in the heart of a person who takes his word seriously (cf. Isa. 66:5; John 14:23).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 66:3 like one who kills a man. God loathes even the sacrifices of the wicked (cf. Prov. 15:8; 28:9). They often killed children to offer in sacrifice (cf. Ezek. 23:39). Some of the Jews were offering bulls as sacrifices with the same empty heartedness as the pagans offering “a man” on the altar. breaks a dog’s neck. This refers to offering dogs in sacrifice, which, as unclean (Jer. 15:3; cf. 56:10–11), are associated with swine (Matt. 7:6; 2 Pet. 2:22). To sacrifice a lamb with an attitude no different than if it were a dog betrayed the empty heartedness of the offerer. All of these images are meant to illustrate the shallow hypocrisy of one who makes an offering to God, but with no more heartbrokenness than a pagan who kills a child, offers a dog, sacrifices pig’s blood, blesses an idol, and loves such abominations. God will judge such (Isa. 66:4).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 66:5 Your brothers who hate you. The apostate Israelites intensified their rivalry with the faithful remnant (65:11–15) and blasphemously said, “Let the Lord be glorified,” words uttered in the sarcastic spirit of 5:19 by these apostates. In the end, “it is they who shall be put to shame” because God’s judgment will fall.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 66:7–9 Here is another comparison with the human birth process (see 13:8), this time to teach two lessons: 1) no birth can come until labor pains have occurred (66:7–8); and 2) when labor occurs, birth will surely follow (v. 9). Cf. Jer. 30:6–7; Matt. 24:8; 1 Thess. 5:3. The point is that Israel’s suffering will end with a delivery! The Lord will not impose travail on the remnant without bringing them to the kingdom (Isa. 66:10).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 66:11 nurse and be satisfied. The prophet compares Jerusalem to a nursing mother.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 66:12 peace . . . like a river. The picture is of abundant peace that compares to a wadi filled with a rushing torrent of water.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 66:14 to his servants . . . against his enemies. Prosperity will belong to the faithful remnant, but wrath to those who oppose the Lord.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 66:15 whirlwind . . . flames of fire. That the wrath of God will come to the rebels is expressed in language describing the end-time judgment (cf. 29:6).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 66:16 slain . . . shall be many. The many who fight against the Lord when he comes to establish his kingdom will die (34:6–7; Rev. 19:21).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 66:17 sanctify and purify themselves. Sanctification and purification for right purposes are right, but when done for purposes of idol worship, will draw judgment from the one true God.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 66:18 their works and their thoughts. The Lord was aware of the motivations behind the actions of apostate Israelites (v. 17). gather all nations and tongues. See 2:2–4. Jerusalem will be the center of world attention because of the presence of the Messiah there.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 66:19 survivors. The faithful remnant of Israel are in view, who had escaped both the persecutions of their enemies and the judgment of God against those enemies (v. 16). Tarshish, Pul, and Lud . . . Tubal and Javan. Tarshish was possibly in Spain, Pul and Lud in North Africa, Tubal in northeast Asia Minor, and Javan in Greece. These were representative Gentile populations that will hear of God’s glory through the faithful remnant.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 66:20 bring all your brothers. As their offering to the Lord, the Gentiles who hear of God’s glory will expedite the return of Israel’s faithful remnant (43:6; 49:22).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 66:21 for priests and for Levites. Some of the returning remnant will function in these specialized roles in the services of the millennial temple and memorial sacrifices (cf. Ezek. 44–46).

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 66:22 your offspring . . . remain. National Israel will have a never-ending existence through the millennium, and on into the new heavens and the new earth throughout eternity.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 66:23 all flesh . . . worship before me. All humanity will participate in worshiping the Lord at stipulated times during the temporal phase of the messianic kingdom.

ISAIAH—NOTE ON 66:24 worm shall not die . . . fire shall not be quenched. The corpses of those enduring everlasting torment will serve as a vivid reminder to all of the grievous nature and terrible consequences of rebellion against God. In referring to this verse, Jesus referred to the Valley of Hinnom—i.e., Gehenna—where a continually burning trash-heap pictured the never-ending pain of the lost (Mark 9:47–48). See note on Jer. 19:6.

Introduction to Jeremiah

Title

This book gains its title from the human author, who begins with “the words of Jeremiah . . . ” (1:1). Jeremiah recounts more of his own life than any other prophet, telling of his ministry, the reactions of his audiences, testings, and his personal feelings. His name means “Jehovah throws,” in the sense of laying down a foundation, or “Jehovah establishes, appoints, or sends.”

Seven other Jeremiahs appear in Scripture (2 Kings 23:31; 1 Chron. 5:24; 12:4, 10, 13; Neh. 10:2; 12:1), and Jeremiah the prophet is named at least nine times outside of his book (cf. 2 Chron. 35:25; 36:12, 21–22; Ezra 1:1; Dan. 9:2; Matt. 2:17; 16:14; 27:9). The Old and New Testaments quote Jeremiah at least seven times: 1) Dan. 9:2 (Jer. 25:11–12; 29:10); 2) Matt. 2:18 (Jer. 31:15); 3) Matt. 27:9 (Jer. 18:2; 19:2, 11; 32:6–9); 4) 1 Cor. 1:31 (Jer. 9:24); 5) 2 Cor. 10:17 (Jer. 9:24); 6) Heb. 8:8–12 (Jer. 31:31–34); and 7) Heb. 10:16–17 (Jer. 31:33–34).

Jeremiah, who served as both a priest and a prophet, was the son of a priest named Hilkiah (not the high priest of 2 Kings 22:8 who discovered the book of the law). He was from the small village of Anathoth (Jer. 1:1), today called Anata, about 3 miles northeast of Jerusalem in Benjamin's tribal inheritance. As an object lesson to Judah, Jeremiah remained unmarried (16:1–4). He was assisted in ministry by a scribe, named Baruch, to whom Jeremiah dictated and who copied and had custody over the writings compiled from the prophet's messages (36:4, 32; 45:1). Jeremiah has been known as "the weeping prophet" (cf. 9:1; 13:17; 14:17), living a life of conflict because of his predictions of judgment by the invading Babylonians. He was threatened, tried for his life, put in stocks, forced to flee from Jehoiakim, publicly humiliated by a false prophet, and thrown into a pit.

Jeremiah carried out a ministry directed mostly to his own people in Judah, but which expanded to other nations at times. He appealed to his countrymen to repent and avoid God's judgment via an invader (chs. 7; 26). Once invasion was certain after Judah refused to repent, he pled with them not to resist the Babylonian conqueror in order to prevent total destruction (ch. 27). He also called on delegates of other nations to heed his counsel and submit to Babylon (ch. 27), and he predicted judgments from God on various nations (25:12–38; chs. 46–51).

The dates of his ministry, which spanned five decades, are from the Judean king Josiah's thirteenth year, noted in 1:2 (627 B.C.), to beyond the fall of Jerusalem to Babylon in 586 B.C. (Jer. 39; 40; 52). After 586 B.C., Jeremiah was forced to go with a fleeing remnant of Judah to Egypt (Jer. 43–44). He was possibly still ministering in 570 B.C. (see note on 44:29–30). A rabbinic note claims that when Babylon invaded Egypt in 568/67 B.C. Jeremiah was taken captive to Babylon. He could have lived even to pen the book's closing scene c. 561 B.C. in Babylon, when Judah's king Jehoiachin, captive in Babylon since 597 B.C., was allowed liberties in his last days (52:31–34). Jeremiah, if still alive at that time, was between 85 and 90 years old.

Background and Setting

Background details of Jeremiah’s times are portrayed in 2 Kings 22–25 and 2 Chron. 34–36. Jeremiah’s messages paint pictures of: 1) his people’s sin; 2) the invader God would send; 3) the rigors of siege; and 4) calamities of destruction. Jeremiah’s message of impending judgment for idolatry and other sins was preached over a period of 40 years (c. 627–586 B.C. and beyond). His prophecy took place during the reigns of Judah’s final five kings (Josiah 640–609 B.C., Jehoahaz 609 B.C., Jehoiakim 609–598 B.C., Jehoiachin 598–597 B.C., and Zedekiah 597–586 B.C.).

The spiritual condition of Judah was one of flagrant idol worship (cf. Jer. 2). King Ahaz, preceding his son Hezekiah long before Jeremiah in Isaiah’s day, had set up a system of sacrificing children to the god Molech in the Valley of Hinnom just outside Jerusalem (735–715 B.C.). Hezekiah led in reforms and clean-up (Isa. 36:7), but his son Manasseh continued to foster child sacrifice along with gross idolatry, which continued into Jeremiah’s time (Jer. 7:31; 19:5; 32:35). Many also worshiped the “queen of heaven” (7:18; 44:19). Josiah’s reforms, reaching their apex in 622 B.C., forced a repressing of the worst practices outwardly, but the deadly cancer of sin was deep and flourished quickly again after a shallow revival. Religious insincerity, dishonesty, adultery, injustice, tyranny against the helpless, and slander prevailed as the norm not the exception.

Politically momentous events occurred in Jeremiah’s day. Assyria saw its power wane gradually; then Ashurbanipal died in 626 B.C. Assyria grew so feeble that in 612 B.C. her seemingly invincible capital, Nineveh, was destroyed (cf. the book of Nahum). The Neo-Babylonian empire under Nabopolassar (625–605 B.C.) became dominant militarily with victories against Assyria (612 B.C.), Egypt (609–605 B.C.), and Israel in three phases (605 B.C., as in Dan. 1; 597 B.C., as in 2 Kings 24:10–16; and 586 B.C., as in Jer. 39; 40; 52).

While Joel and Micah had earlier prophesied of Judah’s judgment, during Josiah’s reign, God’s leading prophets were Jeremiah, Habakkuk, and Zephaniah. Later, Jeremiah’s contemporaries, Ezekiel and Daniel, played prominent prophetic roles.

Historical and Theological Themes

The main theme of Jeremiah is judgment upon Judah (chs. 1–29) with restoration in the future messianic kingdom (23:3–8; 30–33). Whereas Isaiah devoted many chapters to a future glory for Israel (Isa. 40–66), Jeremiah gave far less space to this subject. Since God's judgment was imminent he concentrated on current problems as he sought to turn the nation back from the point of no return.

A secondary theme is God's willingness to spare and bless the nation only if the people repent. Though this is a frequent emphasis, it is most graphically portrayed at the potter's shop (Jer. 18:1–11). A further focus is God's plan for Jeremiah's life, both in his proclamation of God's message and in his commitment to fulfill all of his will (1:5–19; 15:19–21). Other themes include: 1) God's longing for Israel to be tender toward him, as in the days of first love (2:1–3); 2) Jeremiah's servant tears, as "the weeping prophet" (9:1; 14:17); 3) the close, intimate relationship God had with Israel and that he yearned to keep (13:11); 4) suffering, as in Jeremiah's trials (11:18–23; 20:1–18) and God's sufficiency in all trouble (20:11–13); 5) the vital role that God's word can play in life (15:16); 6) the place of faith in expecting restoration from the God for whom nothing is too difficult (ch. 32, especially vv. 17, 27); and 7) prayer for the coordination of God's will with God's action in restoring Israel to its land (33:3, 6–18).

Interpretive Challenges

A number of questions arise, such as: 1) How can one explain God’s forbidding prayer for the Jews (7:16) and saying that even Moses’ and Samuel’s advocacy could not avert judgment (15:1)? 2) Did Jeremiah make an actual trek of several hundred miles to the Euphrates River, or did he bury his loin cloth nearby (13:4–7)? 3) How could he utter such severe things about the man who announced his birth (20:14–18)? 4) Does the curse on Jeconiah’s kingly line relate to Christ (22:30)? 5) How is one to interpret the promises of Israel’s return to its ancient land (chs. 30–33)? and 6) How will God fulfill the New Covenant in relation to Israel and the church (31:31–34)? The answers to these will be included in the study notes at the appropriate passages.

A frequent challenge is to understand the prophet’s messages in their right time setting, since the book of Jeremiah is not always chronological, but loosely arranged, moving back and forth in time for thematic effect. Ezekiel, by contrast, usually places his material in chronological order.

Jeremiah

JEREMIAH 1 †The words of Jeremiah, the son of Hilkiah, one of the priests who were in Anathoth in the land of Benjamin, [2]†to whom the word of the LORD came in the days of Josiah the son of Amon, king of Judah, in the thirteenth year of his reign. [3]†It came also in the days of Jehoiakim the son of Josiah, king of Judah, and until the end of the eleventh year of Zedekiah, the son of Josiah, king of Judah, until the captivity of Jerusalem in the fifth month.

The Call of Jeremiah

[4]Now the word of the LORD came to me, saying,

> [5]†"Before I formed you in the womb I knew you,
> and before you were born I consecrated you;
> I appointed you a prophet to the nations."

[6]†Then I said, "Ah, Lord GOD! Behold, I do not know how to speak, for I am only a youth." [7]†But the LORD said to me,

> "Do not say, 'I am only a youth';
> for to all to whom I send you, you shall go,
> and whatever I command you, you shall speak.
> [8]Do not be afraid of them,
> for I am with you to deliver you,
> declares the LORD."

[9]†Then the LORD put out his hand and touched my mouth. And the LORD said to me,

> "Behold, I have put my words in your mouth.
> [10]†See, I have set you this day over nations and over kingdoms, > to pluck up and to break down,
> to destroy and to overthrow,
> to build and to plant."

[11]‡And the word of the LORD came to me, saying, “Jeremiah, what do you see?” And I said, “I see an almond [1] branch.” [12]Then the LORD said to me, “You have seen well, for I am watching over my word to perform it.”

[13]The word of the LORD came to me a second time, saying, “What do you see?” And I said, “I see a boiling pot, facing away from the north.” [14]Then the LORD said to me, “Out of the north disaster [2] shall be let loose upon all the inhabitants of the land. [15]For behold, I am calling all the tribes of the kingdoms of the north, declares the LORD, and they shall come, and every one shall set his throne at the entrance of the gates of Jerusalem, against all its walls all around and against all the cities of Judah. [16]And I will declare my judgments against them, for all their evil in forsaking me. They have made offerings to other gods and worshiped the works of their own hands. [17]‡But you, dress yourself for work; [3] arise, and say to them everything that I command you. Do not be dismayed by them, lest I dismay you before them. [18]And I, behold, I make you this day a fortified city, an iron pillar, and bronze walls, against the whole land, against the kings of Judah, its officials, its priests, and the people of the land. [19]They will fight against you, but they shall not prevail against you, for I am with you, declares the LORD, to deliver you.”

Israel Forsakes the LORD

JEREMIAH 2 ‡The word of the LORD came to me, saying, [2]“Go and proclaim in the hearing of Jerusalem, Thus says the LORD,

“I remember the devotion of your youth,
your love as a bride,
how you followed me in the wilderness,
in a land not sown.
[3]†Israel was holy to the LORD,
the firstfruits of his harvest.
All who ate of it incurred guilt;
disaster came upon them,
declares the LORD.”

[4]Hear the word of the LORD, O house of Jacob, and all the clans of the house of Israel. [5]Thus says the LORD:

“What wrong did your fathers find in me that they went far from me,
and went after worthlessness, and became worthless?
[6]They did not say, ‘Where is the LORD who brought us up from the land of Egypt,
who led us in the wilderness,
in a land of deserts and pits,
in a land of drought and deep darkness,
in a land that none passes through,
where no man dwells?’
[7]And I brought you into a plentiful land to enjoy its fruits and its good things.
But when you came in, you defiled my land
and made my heritage an abomination.
[8]†The priests did not say, ‘Where is the LORD?’
Those who handle the law did not know me;
the shepherds [1] transgressed against me;
the prophets prophesied by Baal

and went after things that do not profit.
[9]“Therefore I still contend with you,
declares the LORD,
and with your children's children I will contend.
[10]For cross to the coasts of Cyprus and see,
or send to Kedar and examine with care;
see if there has been such a thing.
[11]Has a nation changed its gods,
even though they are no gods?
But my people have changed their glory
for that which does not profit.
[12]Be appalled, O heavens, at this;
be shocked, be utterly desolate,
declares the LORD,
[13]†for my people have committed two evils:
they have forsaken me,
the fountain of living waters,
and hewed out cisterns for themselves,
broken cisterns that can hold no water.
[14]†“Is Israel a slave? Is he a homeborn servant?
Why then has he become a prey?
[15]†The lions have roared against him;
they have roared loudly.
They have made his land a waste;
his cities are in ruins, without inhabitant.
[16]†Moreover, the men of Memphis and Tahpanhes have shaved [2] the crown of your head.
[17]Have you not brought this upon yourself
by forsaking the LORD your God,
when he led you in the way?
[18]†And now what do you gain by going to Egypt to drink the waters of the Nile?
Or what do you gain by going to Assyria to drink the waters of the Euphrates?
[19]†Your evil will chastise you,
and your apostasy will reprove you.
Know and see that it is evil and bitter for you to forsake the LORD your God;

the fear of me is not in you,
declares the Lord GOD of hosts.
[20]“For long ago I broke your yoke
and burst your bonds;
but you said, ‘I will not serve.’
Yes, on every high hill and under every green tree
you bowed down like a whore.
[21]Yet I planted you a choice vine, wholly of pure seed.
How then have you turned degenerate
and become a wild vine?
[22]Though you wash yourself with lye
and use much soap,
the stain of your guilt is still before me,
declares the Lord GOD.
[23]†How can you say, ‘I am not unclean,
I have not gone after the Baals’?
Look at your way in the valley;
know what you have done—
a restless young camel running here and there, [24]a wild donkey used to the wilderness,
in her heat sniffing the wind!
Who can restrain her lust?
None who seek her need weary themselves;
in her month they will find her.
[25]Keep your feet from going unshod
and your throat from thirst.
But you said, ‘It is hopeless,
for I have loved foreigners,
and after them I will go.’
[26]“As a thief is shamed when caught,
so the house of Israel shall be shamed:
they, their kings, their officials,
their priests, and their prophets, [27]who say to a tree, ‘You are my father,’

and to a stone, ‘You gave me birth.’
For they have turned their back to me,
and not their face.
But in the time of their trouble they say,
‘Arise and save us!’
[28]But where are your gods
that you made for yourself?
Let them arise, if they can save you,
in your time of trouble;
for as many as your cities
are your gods, O Judah.
[29]“Why do you contend with me?
You have all transgressed against me,
declares the LORD.
[30]In vain have I struck your children;
they took no correction;
your own sword devoured your prophets
like a ravening lion.
[31]And you, O generation, behold the word of the LORD.
Have I been a wilderness to Israel,
or a land of thick darkness?
Why then do my people say, ‘We are free,
we will come no more to you’?
[32]Can a virgin forget her ornaments,
or a bride her attire?
Yet my people have forgotten me
days without number.
[33]“How well you direct your course
to seek love!
So that even to wicked women
you have taught your ways.
[34]Also on your skirts is found the lifeblood of the guiltless poor;
you did not find them breaking in.
Yet in spite of all these things [35]you say, ‘I am innocent;
surely his anger has turned from me.’

Behold, I will bring you to judgment for saying, ‘I have not sinned.’ [36]How much you go about, changing your way!
You shall be put to shame by Egypt
as you were put to shame by Assyria.
[37]From it too you will come away with your hands on your head,
for the LORD has rejected those in whom you trust,
and you will not prosper by them.

JEREMIAH 3 †“If [1] a man divorces his wife and she goes from him
and becomes another man's wife,
    will he return to her?
Would not that land be greatly polluted?
You have played the whore with many lovers;
    and would you return to me?
declares the LORD.
[2]Lift up your eyes to the bare heights, and see!
    Where have you not been ravished?
By the waysides you have sat awaiting lovers
    like an Arab in the wilderness.
You have polluted the land
    with your vile whoredom.
[3]Therefore the showers have been withheld,
    and the spring rain has not come;
yet you have the forehead of a whore;
    you refuse to be ashamed.
[4]Have you not just now called to me,
    ‘My father, you are the friend of my youth—
[5]will he be angry forever, will he be indignant to the end?’
Behold, you have spoken,
    but you have done all the evil that you could.”

Faithless Israel Called to Repentance

[6]†The LORD said to me in the days of King Josiah: “Have you seen what she did, that faithless one, Israel, how she went up on every high hill and under every green tree, and there played the whore? [7]And I thought, ‘After she has done all this she will return to me,’ but she did not return, and her treacherous sister Judah saw it. [8]†She saw that for all the adulteries of that faithless one, Israel, I had sent her away with a decree of divorce. Yet her treacherous sister Judah did not fear, but she too went and played the whore. [9]Because she took her whoredom lightly, she polluted the land, committing adultery with stone and tree. [10]Yet for all this her treacherous sister Judah did not return to me with her whole heart, but in pretense, declares the LORD.”

[11]And the LORD said to me, “Faithless Israel has shown herself more righteous than treacherous Judah. [12]Go, and proclaim these words toward the north, and say, “‘Return, faithless Israel,

declares the LORD.
I will not look on you in anger,
for I am merciful,
declares the LORD;
I will not be angry forever.
[13]Only acknowledge your guilt,
that you rebelled against the LORD your God
and scattered your favors among foreigners under every green tree, and that you have not obeyed my voice,
declares the LORD.
[14]†Return, O faithless children,
declares the LORD;
for I am your master;
I will take you, one from a city and two from a family,
and I will bring you to Zion.

[15]†“‘And I will give you shepherds after my own heart, who will feed you with knowledge and understanding. [16]And when you have multiplied and increased in the land, in those days, declares the LORD, they shall no more say, “The ark of the covenant of the LORD.” It shall not come to mind or be remembered or missed; it shall not be made again. [17]At that time Jerusalem shall be called the throne of the LORD, and all nations shall gather to it, to the presence of the LORD in Jerusalem, and they shall no more stubbornly follow their own evil heart. [18]In those days the house of Judah shall join the house of Israel, and together they shall come from the land of the north to the land that I gave your fathers for a heritage.

[19]†“‘I said,
How I would set you among my sons,
and give you a pleasant land,

a heritage most beautiful of all nations.
And I thought you would call me, My Father,
and would not turn from following me.
[20]†Surely, as a treacherous wife leaves her husband, so have you been treacherous to me, O house of Israel,
declares the LORD.'"
[21]A voice on the bare heights is heard,
the weeping and pleading of Israel's sons
because they have perverted their way;
they have forgotten the LORD their God.
[22]"Return, O faithless sons;
I will heal your faithlessness."
"Behold, we come to you,
for you are the LORD our God.
[23]Truly the hills are a delusion,
the orgies [2] on the mountains.
Truly in the LORD our God is the salvation of Israel.

[24]"But from our youth the shameful thing has devoured all for which our fathers labored, their flocks and their herds, their sons and their daughters. [25]Let us lie down in our shame, and let our dishonor cover us. For we have sinned against the LORD our God, we and our fathers, from our youth even to this day, and we have not obeyed the voice of the LORD our God."

JEREMIAH 4 “If you return, O Israel,
declares the LORD,
to me you should return.
If you remove your detestable things from my presence,
and do not waver,
[2]and if you swear, ‘As the LORD lives,’
in truth, in justice, and in righteousness,
then nations shall bless themselves in him,
and in him shall they glory.”

[3]‡For thus says the LORD to the men of Judah and Jerusalem:

“Break up your fallow ground,
and sow not among thorns.
[4]‡Circumcise yourselves to the LORD;
remove the foreskin of your hearts,
O men of Judah and inhabitants of Jerusalem;
lest my wrath go forth like fire,
and burn with none to quench it,
because of the evil of your deeds.”

Disaster from the North

[5]Declare in Judah, and proclaim in Jerusalem, and say, “Blow the trumpet through the land;

cry aloud and say,
‘Assemble, and let us go into the fortified cities!’
[6]‡Raise a standard toward Zion, flee for safety, stay not,
for I bring disaster from the north,
and great destruction.
[7]A lion has gone up from his thicket,
a destroyer of nations has set out;
he has gone out from his place
to make your land a waste;

your cities will be ruins
without inhabitant.
[8]For this put on sackcloth,
lament and wail,
for the fierce anger of the LORD has not turned back from us."

[9]"In that day, declares the LORD, courage shall fail both king and officials. The priests shall be appalled and the prophets astounded." [10]†Then I said, "Ah, Lord GOD, surely you have utterly deceived this people and Jerusalem, saying, 'It shall be well with you,' whereas the sword has reached their very life."

[11]At that time it will be said to this people and to Jerusalem, "A hot wind from the bare heights in the desert toward the daughter of my people, not to winnow or cleanse, [12]a wind too full for this comes for me. Now it is I who speak in judgment upon them."

[13]Behold, he comes up like clouds;
his chariots like the whirlwind;
his horses are swifter than eagles—
woe to us, for we are ruined!
[14]†O Jerusalem, wash your heart from evil,
that you may be saved.
How long shall your wicked thoughts lodge within you?
[15]For a voice declares from Dan and proclaims trouble from Mount Ephraim.
[16]Warn the nations that he is coming;
announce to Jerusalem,
"Besiegers come from a distant land;
they shout against the cities of Judah.
[17]Like keepers of a field are they against her all around,
because she has rebelled against me,
declares the LORD.
[18]Your ways and your deeds
have brought this upon you.
This is your doom, and it is bitter;

it has reached your very heart.”

Anguish over Judah's Desolation

[19]My anguish, my anguish! I writhe in pain!
Oh the walls of my heart!
My heart is beating wildly;
I cannot keep silent,
for I hear the sound of the trumpet,
the alarm of war.
[20]Crash follows hard on crash;
the whole land is laid waste.
Suddenly my tents are laid waste,
my curtains in a moment.
[21]How long must I see the standard and hear the sound of the trumpet?
[22]†“For my people are foolish;
they know me not;
they are stupid children;
they have no understanding.
They are ‘wise’—in doing evil!
But how to do good they know not.”
[23]†I looked on the earth, and behold, it was without form and void;
and to the heavens, and they had no light.
[24]I looked on the mountains, and behold, they were quaking,
and all the hills moved to and fro.
[25]I looked, and behold, there was no man,
and all the birds of the air had fled.
[26]I looked, and behold, the fruitful land was a desert,
and all its cities were laid in ruins
before the Lord, before his fierce anger.

[27]For thus says the Lord, “The whole land shall be a desolation; yet I will not make a full end.

[28]“For this the earth shall mourn, and the heavens above be dark;
for I have spoken; I have purposed;

I have not relented, nor will I turn back.”
[29]At the noise of horseman and archer
every city takes to flight;
they enter thickets; they climb among rocks;
all the cities are forsaken,
and no man dwells in them.
[30]And you, O desolate one,
what do you mean that you dress in scarlet,
that you adorn yourself with ornaments of gold,
that you enlarge your eyes with paint?
In vain you beautify yourself.
Your lovers despise you;
they seek your life.
[31]For I heard a cry as of a woman in labor, anguish as of one giving birth to her first child,
the cry of the daughter of Zion gasping for breath,
stretching out her hands,
“Woe is me! I am fainting before murderers.”

Jerusalem Refused to Repent

JEREMIAH 5 †Run to and fro through the streets of Jerusalem, look and take note!
Search her squares to see
if you can find a man,
one who does justice
and seeks truth,
that I may pardon her.
[2]Though they say, “As the LORD lives,” yet they swear falsely.
[3]O LORD, do not your eyes look for truth?
You have struck them down,
but they felt no anguish;
you have consumed them,
but they refused to take correction.
They have made their faces harder than rock;
they have refused to repent.
[4]Then I said, “These are only the poor;
they have no sense;
for they do not know the way of the LORD,
the justice of their God.
[5]I will go to the great and will speak to them,
for they know the way of the LORD,
the justice of their God.”
But they all alike had broken the yoke;
they had burst the bonds.
[6]†Therefore a lion from the forest shall strike them down;
a wolf from the desert shall devastate them.
A leopard is watching their cities;
everyone who goes out of them shall be torn in pieces,
because their transgressions are many,
their apostasies are great.
[7]†“How can I pardon you?

Your children have forsaken me
and have sworn by those who are no gods.
When I fed them to the full,
they committed adultery
and trooped to the houses of whores.
[8]They were well-fed, lusty stallions,
each neighing for his neighbor's wife.
[9]Shall I not punish them for these things?
declares the LORD;
and shall I not avenge myself
on a nation such as this?
[10]†“Go up through her vine rows and destroy,
but make not a full end;
strip away her branches,
for they are not the LORD's.
[11]For the house of Israel and the house of Judah have been utterly treacherous to me,
declares the LORD.
[12]They have spoken falsely of the LORD and have said, ‘He will do nothing;
no disaster will come upon us,
nor shall we see sword or famine.
[13]The prophets will become wind;
the word is not in them.
Thus shall it be done to them!’”

The LORD Proclaims Judgment

[14]†Therefore thus says the LORD, the God of hosts:
“Because you have spoken this word, behold, I am making my words in your mouth a fire,
and this people wood, and the fire shall consume them.
[15]Behold, I am bringing against you a nation from afar, O house of Israel,
declares the LORD.
It is an enduring nation;
it is an ancient nation,

a nation whose language you do not know,
nor can you understand what they say.
[16]Their quiver is like an open tomb;
they are all mighty warriors.
[17]They shall eat up your harvest and your food;
they shall eat up your sons and your daughters;
they shall eat up your flocks and your herds;
they shall eat up your vines and your fig trees;
your fortified cities in which you trust
they shall beat down with the sword.”

[18]“But even in those days, declares the LORD, I will not make a full end of you. [19]And when your people say, ‘Why has the LORD our God done all these things to us?’ you shall say to them, ‘As you have forsaken me and served foreign gods in your land, so you shall serve foreigners in a land that is not yours.’”

[20]Declare this in the house of Jacob;
proclaim it in Judah:
[21]“Hear this, O foolish and senseless people, who have eyes, but see not,
who have ears, but hear not.
[22][†]Do you not fear me? declares the LORD.
Do you not tremble before me?
I placed the sand as the boundary for the sea,
a perpetual barrier that it cannot pass;
though the waves toss, they cannot prevail;
though they roar, they cannot pass over it.
[23]But this people has a stubborn and rebellious heart;
they have turned aside and gone away.
[24]They do not say in their hearts,
‘Let us fear the LORD our God,
who gives the rain in its season,
the autumn rain and the spring rain,
and keeps for us
the weeks appointed for the harvest.’
[25]Your iniquities have turned these away,
and your sins have kept good from you.

[26]For wicked men are found among my people;
they lurk like fowlers lying in wait. [1]
They set a trap;
they catch men.
[27]Like a cage full of birds,
their houses are full of deceit;
therefore they have become great and rich;
[28]they have grown fat and sleek.
They know no bounds in deeds of evil;
they judge not with justice
the cause of the fatherless, to make it prosper,
and they do not defend the rights of the needy.
[29]Shall I not punish them for these things?
declares the LORD,
and shall I not avenge myself
on a nation such as this?”
[30]An appalling and horrible thing
has happened in the land:
[31]†the prophets prophesy falsely,
and the priests rule at their direction;
my people love to have it so,
but what will you do when the end comes?

Impending Disaster for Jerusalem

JEREMIAH 6 †Flee for safety, O people of Benjamin, from the midst of Jerusalem!
Blow the trumpet in Tekoa,
and raise a signal on Beth-haccherem,
for disaster looms out of the north,
and great destruction.
[2]The lovely and delicately bred I will destroy,
the daughter of Zion. [1] [3]†Shepherds with their flocks shall come against her;
they shall pitch their tents around her;
they shall pasture, each in his place.
[4]"Prepare war against her;
arise, and let us attack at noon!
Woe to us, for the day declines,
for the shadows of evening lengthen!
[5]Arise, and let us attack by night
and destroy her palaces!"
[6]†For thus says the LORD of hosts:
"Cut down her trees;
cast up a siege mound against Jerusalem.
This is the city that must be punished;
there is nothing but oppression within her.
[7]As a well keeps its water fresh,
so she keeps fresh her evil;
violence and destruction are heard within her;
sickness and wounds are ever before me.
[8]Be warned, O Jerusalem, lest I turn from you in disgust,
lest I make you a desolation,
an uninhabited land."
[9]†Thus says the LORD of hosts:
"They shall glean thoroughly as a vine
the remnant of Israel;

like a grape-gatherer pass your hand again
over its branches.”
[10]To whom shall I speak and give warning,
that they may hear?
Behold, their ears are uncircumcised,
they cannot listen;
behold, the word of the LORD is to them an object of scorn;
they take no pleasure in it.
[11]Therefore I am full of the wrath of the LORD;
I am weary of holding it in.
“Pour it out upon the children in the street,
and upon the gatherings of young men, also;
both husband and wife shall be taken,
the elderly and the very aged.
[12]Their houses shall be turned over to others,
their fields and wives together,
for I will stretch out my hand against the inhabitants of the land,”
declares the LORD.
[13]“For from the least to the greatest of them,
everyone is greedy for unjust gain;
and from prophet to priest,
everyone deals falsely.
[14]†They have healed the wound of my people lightly,
saying, ‘Peace, peace,’
when there is no peace.
[15]Were they ashamed when they committed abomination?
No, they were not at all ashamed;
they did not know how to blush.
Therefore they shall fall among those who fall;
at the time that I punish them, they shall be overthrown,”
says the LORD.
[16]†Thus says the LORD:
“Stand by the roads, and look,
and ask for the ancient paths,
where the good way is; and walk in it,
and find rest for your souls.

But they said, ‘We will not walk in it.’
[17]‡I set watchmen over you, saying,
  ‘Pay attention to the sound of the trumpet!’
But they said, ‘We will not pay attention.’
[18]Therefore hear, O nations, and know, O congregation, what will happen to them.
[19]Hear, O earth; behold, I am bringing disaster upon this people,
  the fruit of their devices,
because they have not paid attention to my words;
  and as for my law, they have rejected it.
[20]‡What use to me is frankincense that comes from Sheba, or sweet cane from a distant land?
Your burnt offerings are not acceptable,
  nor your sacrifices pleasing to me.
[21]‡Therefore thus says the LORD:
‘Behold, I will lay before this people stumbling blocks against which they shall stumble;
fathers and sons together,
  neighbor and friend shall perish.’”
[22]‡Thus says the LORD:
“Behold, a people is coming from the north country,
  a great nation is stirring from the farthest parts of the earth.
[23]They lay hold on bow and javelin;
  they are cruel and have no mercy;
  the sound of them is like the roaring sea;
they ride on horses,
  set in array as a man for battle, against you, O daughter of Zion!”
[24]We have heard the report of it;
  our hands fall helpless;
anguish has taken hold of us,
  pain as of a woman in labor.
[25]Go not out into the field,
  nor walk on the road,
for the enemy has a sword;
  terror is on every side.
[26]O daughter of my people, put on sackcloth, and roll in ashes;

make mourning as for an only son,
most bitter lamentation,
for suddenly the destroyer
will come upon us.
[27]‡“I have made you a tester of metals among my people,
that you may know and test their ways.
[28]They are all stubbornly rebellious, going about with slanders;
they are bronze and iron;
all of them act corruptly.
[29]The bellows blow fiercely;
the lead is consumed by the fire;
in vain the refining goes on,
for the wicked are not removed.
[30]Rejected silver they are called,
for the LORD has rejected them.”

Evil in the Land

JEREMIAH 7 ‡The word that came to Jeremiah from the LORD: [2]“Stand in the gate of the LORD's house, and proclaim there this word, and say, Hear the word of the LORD, all you men of Judah who enter these gates to worship the LORD. [3]Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: Amend your ways and your deeds, and I will let you dwell in this place. [4]Do not trust in these deceptive words: ‘This is the temple of the LORD, the temple of the LORD, the temple of the LORD.’

[5]“For if you truly amend your ways and your deeds, if you truly execute justice one with another, [6]if you do not oppress the sojourner, the fatherless, or the widow, or shed innocent blood in this place, and if you do not go after other gods to your own harm, [7]‡then I will let you dwell in this place, in the land that I gave of old to your fathers forever.

[8]“Behold, you trust in deceptive words to no avail. [9]Will you steal, murder, commit adultery, swear falsely, make offerings to Baal, and go after other gods that you have not known, [10]and then come and stand before me in this house, which is called by my name, and say, ‘We are delivered!’—only to go on doing all these abominations? [11]Has this house, which is called by my name, become a den of robbers in your eyes? Behold, I myself have seen it, declares the LORD. [12]‡Go now to my place that was in Shiloh, where I made my name dwell at first, and see what I did to it because of the evil of my people Israel. [13]‡And now, because you have done all these things, declares the LORD, and when I spoke to you persistently you did not listen, and when I called you, you did not answer, [14]therefore I will do to the house that is called by my name, and in which you trust, and to the place that I gave to you and to your fathers, as I did to Shiloh. [15]‡And I will cast you out of my sight, as I cast out all your kinsmen, all the offspring of Ephraim.

[16]‡“As for you, do not pray for this people, or lift up a cry or prayer for them, and do not intercede with me, for I will not hear you. [17]Do you not see what they are doing in the cities of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem? [18]‡The children gather wood, the fathers kindle fire, and the women knead dough, to make cakes for the queen of heaven. And they pour out drink offerings to other gods, to provoke me to anger. [19]Is it I whom they provoke? declares the LORD. Is it not themselves, to their own shame? [20]Therefore thus says the Lord GOD: behold, my anger and my wrath will be poured out on this place, upon man and beast, upon the trees of the field and the fruit of the ground; it will burn and not be quenched.”

[21]Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: “Add your burnt offerings to your sacrifices, and eat the flesh. [22]‡†For in the day that I brought them out of the land of Egypt, I did not speak to your fathers or command them concerning burnt offerings and sacrifices. [23]But this command I gave them: ‘Obey my voice, and I will be your God, and you shall be my people. And walk in all the way that I command you, that it may be well with you.’ [24]But they did not obey or incline their ear, but walked in their own counsels and the stubbornness of their evil hearts, and went backward and not forward. [25]†From the day that your fathers came out of the land of Egypt to this day, I have persistently sent all my servants the prophets to them, day after day. [26]Yet they did not listen to me or incline their ear, but stiffened their neck. They did worse than their fathers.

[27]“So you shall speak all these words to them, but they will not listen to you. You shall call to them, but they will not answer you. [28]And you shall say to them, ‘This is the nation that did not obey the voice of the LORD their God, and did not accept discipline; truth has perished; it is cut off from their lips.

> [29]†“‘Cut off your hair and cast it away;
> raise a lamentation on the bare heights,
> for the LORD has rejected and forsaken > the generation of his wrath.’

The Valley of Slaughter

[30]“For the sons of Judah have done evil in my sight, declares the LORD. They have set their detestable things in the house that is called by my name, to defile it. [31]†And they have built the high places of Topheth, which is in the Valley of the Son of Hinnom, to burn their sons and their daughters in the fire, which I did not command, nor did it come into my mind.

[32][†]Therefore, behold, the days are coming, declares the LORD, when it will no more be called Topheth, or the Valley of the Son of Hinnom, but the Valley of Slaughter; for they will bury in Topheth, because there is no room elsewhere. [33]And the dead bodies of this people will be food for the birds of the air, and for the beasts of the earth, and none will frighten them away. [34]And I will silence in the cities of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem the voice of mirth and the voice of gladness, the voice of the bridegroom and the voice of the bride, for the land shall become a waste.

JEREMIAH 8 †“At that time, declares the LORD, the bones of the kings of Judah, the bones of its officials, the bones of the priests, the bones of the prophets, and the bones of the inhabitants of Jerusalem shall be brought out of their tombs. [2]And they shall be spread before the sun and the moon and all the host of heaven, which they have loved and served, which they have gone after, and which they have sought and worshiped. And they shall not be gathered or buried. They shall be as dung on the surface of the ground. [3]Death shall be preferred to life by all the remnant that remains of this evil family in all the places where I have driven them, declares the LORD of hosts.

Sin and Treachery

[4]†“You shall say to them, Thus says the LORD:
When men fall, do they not rise again?
If one turns away, does he not return?
[5]†Why then has this people turned away
in perpetual backsliding?
They hold fast to deceit;
they refuse to return.
[6]I have paid attention and listened,
but they have not spoken rightly;
no man relents of his evil,
saying, ‘What have I done?’
Everyone turns to his own course,
like a horse plunging headlong into battle.
[7]†Even the stork in the heavens knows her times,
and the turtledove, swallow, and crane [1]
keep the time of their coming, but my people know not
the rules [2] of the LORD.
[8]“How can you say, ‘We are wise,
and the law of the LORD is with us’?
But behold, the lying pen of the scribes

has made it into a lie.
[9]The wise men shall be put to shame;
they shall be dismayed and taken;
behold, they have rejected the word of the LORD,
so what wisdom is in them?
[10]Therefore I will give their wives to others and their fields to conquerors, because from the least to the greatest
everyone is greedy for unjust gain;
from prophet to priest,
everyone deals falsely.
[11]†They have healed the wound of my people lightly,
saying, ‘Peace, peace,’
when there is no peace.
[12]Were they ashamed when they committed abomination?
No, they were not at all ashamed;
they did not know how to blush.
Therefore they shall fall among the fallen;
when I punish them, they shall be overthrown,
says the LORD.
[13]When I would gather them, declares the LORD,
there are no grapes on the vine,
nor figs on the fig tree;
even the leaves are withered,
and what I gave them has passed away from them.” [3] [14]Why do we sit still?
Gather together; let us go into the fortified cities
and perish there,
for the LORD our God has doomed us to perish
and has given us poisoned water to drink,
because we have sinned against the LORD.
[15]We looked for peace, but no good came;
for a time of healing, but behold, terror.
[16]†“The snorting of their horses is heard from Dan;
at the sound of the neighing of their stallions
the whole land quakes.
They come and devour the land and all that fills it,

the city and those who dwell in it.
[17]†For behold, I am sending among you serpents, adders that cannot be charmed,
and they shall bite you,”
declares the LORD.

Jeremiah Grieves for His People

[18]My joy is gone; grief is upon me; [4]
my heart is sick within me.
[19]†Behold, the cry of the daughter of my people from the length and breadth of the land:
“Is the LORD not in Zion?
Is her King not in her?”
“Why have they provoked me to anger with their carved images and with their foreign idols?” [20]†“The harvest is past, the summer is ended, and we are not saved.”
[21]For the wound of the daughter of my people is my heart wounded;
I mourn, and dismay has taken hold on me.
[22]Is there no balm in Gilead?
Is there no physician there?
Why then has the health of the daughter of my people not been restored?

JEREMIAH 9 † [1] Oh that my head were waters,
and my eyes a fountain of tears,
that I might weep day and night
for the slain of the daughter of my people!
[2]† [2] Oh that I had in the desert
a travelers' lodging place, that I might leave my people
and go away from them!
For they are all adulterers,
a company of treacherous men.
[3]†They bend their tongue like a bow;
falsehood and not truth has grown strong [3] in the land;
for they proceed from evil to evil,
and they do not know me, declares the LORD.
[4]Let everyone beware of his neighbor,
and put no trust in any brother,
for every brother is a deceiver,
and every neighbor goes about as a slanderer.
[5]Everyone deceives his neighbor,
and no one speaks the truth;
they have taught their tongue to speak lies;
they weary themselves committing iniquity.
[6]Heaping oppression upon oppression, and deceit upon deceit,
they refuse to know me, declares the LORD.
[7]Therefore thus says the LORD of hosts:
“Behold, I will refine them and test them,
for what else can I do, because of my people?
[8]Their tongue is a deadly arrow;
it speaks deceitfully;
with his mouth each speaks peace to his neighbor,
but in his heart he plans an ambush for him.
[9]Shall I not punish them for these things? declares the LORD,
and shall I not avenge myself
on a nation such as this?
[10]“I will take up weeping and wailing for the mountains,
and a lamentation for the pastures of the wilderness, because they are laid waste so that no one passes through,

    and the lowing of cattle is not heard;
both the birds of the air and the beasts
    have fled and are gone.
[11]I will make Jerusalem a heap of ruins,
    a lair of jackals,
and I will make the cities of Judah a desolation,
    without inhabitant.”

[12]Who is the man so wise that he can understand this? To whom has the mouth of the LORD spoken, that he may declare it? Why is the land ruined and laid waste like a wilderness, so that no one passes through? [13]And the LORD says: “Because they have forsaken my law that I set before them, and have not obeyed my voice or walked in accord with it, [14]but have stubbornly followed their own hearts and have gone after the Baals, as their fathers taught them. [15]‡Therefore thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: Behold, I will feed this people with bitter food, and give them poisonous water to drink. [16]I will scatter them among the nations whom neither they nor their fathers have known, and I will send the sword after them, until I have consumed them.”

[17]Thus says the LORD of hosts:
“Consider, and call for the mourning women to come;
    send for the skillful women to come;
[18]let them make haste and raise a wailing over us,
    that our eyes may run down with tears
    and our eyelids flow with water.
[19]For a sound of wailing is heard from Zion:
    ‘How we are ruined!
    We are utterly shamed,
because we have left the land,
    because they have cast down our dwellings.’” [20]Hear, O women, the word of the LORD,
    and let your ear receive the word of his mouth;
teach to your daughters a lament,
    and each to her neighbor a dirge.
[21]For death has come up into our windows;
    it has entered our palaces,
cutting off the children from the streets and the young men from the squares.

[22]†Speak, “Thus declares the LORD:
‘The dead bodies of men shall fall like dung upon the open field, like sheaves after the reaper,
and none shall gather them.’”

[23]Thus says the LORD: “Let not the wise man boast in his wisdom, let not the mighty man boast in his might, let not the rich man boast in his riches, [24]†but let him who boasts boast in this, that he understands and knows me, that I am the LORD who practices steadfast love, justice, and righteousness in the earth. For in these things I delight, declares the LORD.”

[25]“Behold, the days are coming, declares the LORD, when I will punish all those who are circumcised merely in the flesh— [26]†Egypt, Judah, Edom, the sons of Ammon, Moab, and all who dwell in the desert who cut the corners of their hair, for all these nations are uncircumcised, and all the house of Israel are uncircumcised in heart.”

Idols and the Living God

JEREMIAH 10 Hear the word that the LORD speaks to you, O house of Israel.
[2]†Thus says the LORD:

“Learn not the way of the nations,
nor be dismayed at the signs of the heavens
because the nations are dismayed at them,
[3]for the customs of the peoples are vanity. [1]
A tree from the forest is cut down and worked with an axe by the hands of a craftsman.
[4]†They decorate it with silver and gold;
they fasten it with hammer and nails
so that it cannot move.
[5]Their idols [2] are like scarecrows in a cucumber field,
and they cannot speak;
they have to be carried,
for they cannot walk.
Do not be afraid of them,
for they cannot do evil,
neither is it in them to do good.”
[6]There is none like you, O LORD;
you are great, and your name is great in might.
[7]†Who would not fear you, O King of the nations?
For this is your due;
for among all the wise ones of the nations and in all their kingdoms
there is none like you.
[8]They are both stupid and foolish;
the instruction of idols is but wood!
[9]†Beaten silver is brought from Tarshish, and gold from Uphaz.
They are the work of the craftsman and of the hands of the goldsmith;
their clothing is violet and purple;
they are all the work of skilled men.
[10]But the LORD is the true God;

he is the living God and the everlasting King.
At his wrath the earth quakes,
and the nations cannot endure his indignation.

[11]‡Thus shall you say to them: “The gods who did not make the heavens and the earth shall perish from the earth and from under the heavens.” [3]

[12]It is he who made the earth by his power,
who established the world by his wisdom,
and by his understanding stretched out the heavens.
[13]When he utters his voice, there is a tumult of waters in the heavens,
and he makes the mist rise from the ends of the earth.
He makes lightning for the rain,
and he brings forth the wind from his storehouses.
[14]Every man is stupid and without knowledge;
every goldsmith is put to shame by his idols,
for his images are false,
and there is no breath in them.
[15]They are worthless, a work of delusion;
at the time of their punishment they shall perish.
[16]‡Not like these is he who is the portion of Jacob,
for he is the one who formed all things,
and Israel is the tribe of his inheritance;
the LORD of hosts is his name.
[17]Gather up your bundle from the ground,
O you who dwell under siege!
[18]For thus says the LORD:
“Behold, I am slinging out the inhabitants of the land
at this time,
and I will bring distress on them,
that they may feel it.”
[19]Woe is me because of my hurt!
My wound is grievous.
But I said, “Truly this is an affliction,
and I must bear it.”
[20]‡My tent is destroyed,
and all my cords are broken;
my children have gone from me,

and they are not;
there is no one to spread my tent again
and to set up my curtains.
[21]For the shepherds are stupid and do not inquire of the LORD;
therefore they have not prospered,
and all their flock is scattered.
[22]A voice, a rumor! Behold, it comes!— a great commotion out of the north country to make the cities of Judah a desolation,
a lair of jackals.
[23]†I know, O LORD, that the way of man is not in himself, that it is not in man who walks to direct his steps.
[24]‡Correct me, O LORD, but in justice;
not in your anger, lest you bring me to nothing.
[25]Pour out your wrath on the nations that know you not,
and on the peoples that call not on your name,
for they have devoured Jacob;
they have devoured him and consumed him,
and have laid waste his habitation.

The Broken Covenant

JEREMIAH 11 The word that came to Jeremiah from the LORD: [2]†“Hear the words of this covenant, and speak to the men of Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem. [3]You shall say to them, Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel: Cursed be the man who does not hear the words of this covenant [4]†that I commanded your fathers when I brought them out of the land of Egypt, from the iron furnace, saying, Listen to my voice, and do all that I command you. So shall you be my people, and I will be your God, [5]that I may confirm the oath that I swore to your fathers, to give them a land flowing with milk and honey, as at this day.” Then I answered, “So be it, LORD.”

[6]And the LORD said to me, “Proclaim all these words in the cities of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem: Hear the words of this covenant and do them. [7]For I solemnly warned your fathers when I brought them up out of the land of Egypt, warning them persistently, even to this day, saying, Obey my voice. [8]Yet they did not obey or incline their ear, but everyone walked in the stubbornness of his evil heart. Therefore I brought upon them all the words of this covenant, which I commanded them to do, but they did not.”

[9]†Again the LORD said to me, “A conspiracy exists among the men of Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem. [10]They have turned back to the iniquities of their forefathers, who refused to hear my words. They have gone after other gods to serve them. The house of Israel and the house of Judah have broken my covenant that I made with their fathers. [11]Therefore, thus says the LORD, Behold, I am bringing disaster upon them that they cannot escape. Though they cry to me, I will not listen to them. [12]Then the cities of Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem will go and cry to the gods to whom they make offerings, but they cannot save them in the time of their trouble. [13]†For your gods have become as many as your cities, O Judah, and as many as the streets of Jerusalem are the altars you have set up to shame, altars to make offerings to Baal.

[14]†“Therefore do not pray for this people, or lift up a cry or prayer on their behalf, for I will not listen when they call to me in the time of their trouble.

[15]‡What right has my beloved in my house, when she has done many vile deeds? Can even sacrificial flesh avert your doom? Can you then exult? [16]‡The LORD once called you ‘a green olive tree, beautiful with good fruit.’ But with the roar of a great tempest he will set fire to it, and its branches will be consumed. [17]The LORD of hosts, who planted you, has decreed disaster against you, because of the evil that the house of Israel and the house of Judah have done, provoking me to anger by making offerings to Baal.”

[18]‡The LORD made it known to me and I knew;
then you showed me their deeds.
[19]But I was like a gentle lamb led to the slaughter.
I did not know it was against me
they devised schemes, saying, “Let us destroy the tree with its fruit,
let us cut him off from the land of the living,
that his name be remembered no more.”
[20]‡But, O LORD of hosts, who judges righteously, who tests the heart and the mind,
let me see your vengeance upon them,
for to you have I committed my cause.

[21]Therefore thus says the LORD concerning the men of Anathoth, who seek your life, and say, “Do not prophesy in the name of the LORD, or you will die by our hand”— [22]therefore thus says the LORD of hosts: “Behold, I will punish them. The young men shall die by the sword, their sons and their daughters shall die by famine, [23]and none of them shall be left. For I will bring disaster upon the men of Anathoth, the year of their punishment.”

Jeremiah's Complaint

JEREMIAH 12 †Righteous are you, O LORD,
when I complain to you;
yet I would plead my case before you.
Why does the way of the wicked prosper?
Why do all who are treacherous thrive?
[2]You plant them, and they take root;
they grow and produce fruit;
you are near in their mouth
and far from their heart.
[3]†But you, O LORD, know me;
you see me, and test my heart toward you.
Pull them out like sheep for the slaughter,
and set them apart for the day of slaughter.
[4]†How long will the land mourn
and the grass of every field wither?
For the evil of those who dwell in it
the beasts and the birds are swept away, because they said, “He will not see our latter end.”

The LORD Answers Jeremiah

[5]†“If you have raced with men on foot, and they have wearied you, how will you compete with horses?
And if in a safe land you are so trusting,
what will you do in the thicket of the Jordan?
[6]†For even your brothers and the house of your father,
even they have dealt treacherously with you;
they are in full cry after you;
do not believe them,
though they speak friendly words to you.”
[7]“I have forsaken my house;
I have abandoned my heritage;
I have given the beloved of my soul

into the hands of her enemies.
[8]†My heritage has become to me
like a lion in the forest;
she has lifted up her voice against me;
therefore I hate her.
[9]†Is my heritage to me like a hyena's lair?
Are the birds of prey against her all around?
Go, assemble all the wild beasts;
bring them to devour.
[10]Many shepherds have destroyed my vineyard;
they have trampled down my portion;
they have made my pleasant portion a desolate wilderness.
[11]They have made it a desolation;
desolate, it mourns to me.
The whole land is made desolate,
but no man lays it to heart.
[12]†Upon all the bare heights in the desert destroyers have come,
for the sword of the LORD devours from one end of the land to the other;
no flesh has peace.
[13]They have sown wheat and have reaped thorns;
they have tired themselves out but profit nothing.
They shall be ashamed of their [1] harvests
because of the fierce anger of the LORD.”

[14]†Thus says the LORD concerning all my evil neighbors who touch the heritage that I have given my people Israel to inherit: “Behold, I will pluck them up from their land, and I will pluck up the house of Judah from among them. [15]†And after I have plucked them up, I will again have compassion on them, and I will bring them again each to his heritage and each to his land. [16]And it shall come to pass, if they will diligently learn the ways of my people, to swear by my name, ‘As the LORD lives,’ even as they taught my people to swear by Baal, then they shall be built up in the midst of my people. [17]But if any nation will not listen, then I will utterly pluck it up and destroy it, declares the LORD.”

The Ruined Loincloth

JEREMIAH 13 ‡Thus says the LORD to me, “Go and buy a linen loincloth and put it around your waist, and do not dip it in water.” [2]So I bought a loincloth according to the word of the LORD, and put it around my waist. [3]And the word of the LORD came to me a second time, [4]‡“Take the loincloth that you have bought, which is around your waist, and arise, go to the Euphrates and hide it there in a cleft of the rock.” [5]So I went and hid it by the Euphrates, as the LORD commanded me. [6]And after many days the LORD said to me, “Arise, go to the Euphrates, and take from there the loincloth that I commanded you to hide there.” [7]Then I went to the Euphrates, and dug, and I took the loincloth from the place where I had hidden it. And behold, the loincloth was spoiled; it was good for nothing.

[8]Then the word of the LORD came to me: [9]“Thus says the LORD: Even so will I spoil the pride of Judah and the great pride of Jerusalem. [10]This evil people, who refuse to hear my words, who stubbornly follow their own heart and have gone after other gods to serve them and worship them, shall be like this loincloth, which is good for nothing. [11]For as the loincloth clings to the waist of a man, so I made the whole house of Israel and the whole house of Judah cling to me, declares the LORD, that they might be for me a people, a name, a praise, and a glory, but they would not listen.

The Jars Filled with Wine

[12]‡“You shall speak to them this word: ‘Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel, “Every jar shall be filled with wine.”’ And they will say to you, ‘Do we not indeed know that every jar will be filled with wine?’ [13]Then you shall say to them, ‘Thus says the LORD: Behold, I will fill with drunkenness all the inhabitants of this land: the kings who sit on David's throne, the priests, the prophets, and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem. [14]And I will dash them one against another, fathers and sons together, declares the LORD. I will not pity or spare or have compassion, that I should not destroy them.’”

Exile Threatened

[15]Hear and give ear; be not proud,
for the LORD has spoken.
[16]†Give glory to the LORD your God before he brings darkness, before your feet stumble
on the twilight mountains, and while you look for light
he turns it into gloom
and makes it deep darkness.
[17]But if you will not listen,
my soul will weep in secret for your pride;
my eyes will weep bitterly and run down with tears,
because the LORD's flock has been taken captive.
[18]†Say to the king and the queen mother:
“Take a lowly seat,
for your beautiful crown
has come down from your head.” [19]†The cities of the Negeb are shut up,
with none to open them;
all Judah is taken into exile,
wholly taken into exile.
[20]“Lift up your eyes and see those who come from the north.
Where is the flock that was given you,
your beautiful flock?
[21]What will you say when they set as head over you those whom you yourself have taught to be friends to you?
Will not pangs take hold of you like those of a woman in labor?
[22]And if you say in your heart,
‘Why have these things come upon me?’
it is for the greatness of your iniquity that your skirts are lifted up
and you suffer violence.
[23]†Can the Ethiopian change his skin or the leopard his spots?
Then also you can do good

who are accustomed to do evil.
[24]I will scatter you [1] like chaff driven by the wind from the desert.
[25]This is your lot,
the portion I have measured out to you, declares the LORD, because you have forgotten me
and trusted in lies.
[26]†I myself will lift up your skirts over your face,
and your shame will be seen.
[27]†I have seen your abominations, your adulteries and neighings, your lewd whorings,
on the hills in the field.
Woe to you, O Jerusalem!
How long will it be before you are made clean?”

Famine, Sword, and Pestilence

JEREMIAH 14 †The word of the LORD that came to Jeremiah concerning the drought:

[2]†“Judah mourns,
and her gates languish;
her people lament on the ground,
and the cry of Jerusalem goes up.
[3]Her nobles send their servants for water;
they come to the cisterns;
they find no water;
they return with their vessels empty;
they are ashamed and confounded and cover their heads.
[4]Because of the ground that is dismayed,
since there is no rain on the land,
the farmers are ashamed;
they cover their heads.
[5]Even the doe in the field forsakes her newborn fawn because there is no grass.
[6]The wild donkeys stand on the bare heights;
they pant for air like jackals;
their eyes fail
because there is no vegetation.
[7]‡†“Though our iniquities testify against us, act, O LORD, for your name's sake;
for our backslidings are many;
we have sinned against you.
[8]O you hope of Israel,
its savior in time of trouble,
why should you be like a stranger in the land,
like a traveler who turns aside to tarry for a night?
[9]Why should you be like a man confused,
like a mighty warrior who cannot save?
Yet you, O LORD, are in the midst of us,

and we are called by your name;
do not leave us.”
[10]‡Thus says the LORD concerning this people:
“They have loved to wander thus;
they have not restrained their feet;
therefore the LORD does not accept them;
now he will remember their iniquity and punish their sins.”

[11]The LORD said to me: “Do not pray for the welfare of this people. [12]Though they fast, I will not hear their cry, and though they offer burnt offering and grain offering, I will not accept them. But I will consume them by the sword, by famine, and by pestilence.”

Lying Prophets

[13]†Then I said: “Ah, Lord GOD, behold, the prophets say to them, ‘You shall not see the sword, nor shall you have famine, but I will give you assured peace in this place.’” [14]‡And the LORD said to me: “The prophets are prophesying lies in my name. I did not send them, nor did I command them or speak to them. They are prophesying to you a lying vision, worthless divination, and the deceit of their own minds. [15]Therefore thus says the LORD concerning the prophets who prophesy in my name although I did not send them, and who say, ‘Sword and famine shall not come upon this land’: By sword and famine those prophets shall be consumed. [16]And the people to whom they prophesy shall be cast out in the streets of Jerusalem, victims of famine and sword, with none to bury them—them, their wives, their sons, and their daughters. For I will pour out their evil upon them.

[17]†“You shall say to them this word:
‘Let my eyes run down with tears night and day,
and let them not cease,
for the virgin daughter of my people is shattered with a great wound,
with a very grievous blow.
[18]†If I go out into the field, behold, those pierced by the sword!
And if I enter the city,

behold, the diseases of famine!
For both prophet and priest ply their trade through the land and have no knowledge.'"
[19]†Have you utterly rejected Judah?
Does your soul loathe Zion?
Why have you struck us down
so that there is no healing for us?
We looked for peace, but no good came;
for a time of healing, but behold, terror.
[20]We acknowledge our wickedness, O LORD,
and the iniquity of our fathers,
for we have sinned against you.
[21]†Do not spurn us, for your name's sake;
do not dishonor your glorious throne;
remember and do not break your covenant with us.
[22]Are there any among the false gods of the nations that can bring rain?
Or can the heavens give showers?
Are you not he, O LORD our God?
We set our hope on you,
for you do all these things.

The LORD Will Not Relent

JEREMIAH 15 ‡Then the LORD said to me, “Though Moses and Samuel stood before me, yet my heart would not turn toward this people. Send them out of my sight, and let them go! [2]And when they ask you, ‘Where shall we go?’ you shall say to them, ‘Thus says the LORD:

“‘Those who are for pestilence, to pestilence,
and those who are for the sword, to the sword;
those who are for famine, to famine,
and those who are for captivity, to captivity.’

[3]I will appoint over them four kinds of destroyers, declares the LORD: the sword to kill, the dogs to tear, and the birds of the air and the beasts of the earth to devour and destroy. [4]And I will make them a horror to all the kingdoms of the earth because of what Manasseh the son of Hezekiah, king of Judah, did in Jerusalem.

[5]“Who will have pity on you, O Jerusalem, or who will grieve for you?
Who will turn aside
to ask about your welfare?
[6]†You have rejected me, declares the LORD;
you keep going backward,
so I have stretched out my hand against you and destroyed you—
I am weary of relenting.
[7]I have winnowed them with a winnowing fork
in the gates of the land;
I have bereaved them; I have destroyed my people;
they did not turn from their ways.
[8]I have made their widows more in number than the sand of the seas;
I have brought against the mothers of young men
a destroyer at noonday;
I have made anguish and terror
fall upon them suddenly.

[9]†She who bore seven has grown feeble;
  she has fainted away;
her sun went down while it was yet day;
  she has been shamed and disgraced.
And the rest of them I will give to the sword
  before their enemies,
declares the LORD.”

Jeremiah's Complaint

[10]†Woe is me, my mother, that you bore me, a man of strife and contention to the whole land! I have not lent, nor have I borrowed, yet all of them curse me. [11]‡The LORD said, “Have I not [1] set you free for their good? Have I not pleaded for you before the enemy in the time of trouble and in the time of distress? [12]Can one break iron, iron from the north, and bronze?

[13]“Your wealth and your treasures I will give as spoil, without price, for all your sins, throughout all your territory. [14]I will make you serve your enemies in a land that you do not know, for in my anger a fire is kindled that shall burn forever.”

[15]‡O LORD, you know;
  remember me and visit me,
  and take vengeance for me on my persecutors.
In your forbearance take me not away;
  know that for your sake I bear reproach.
[16]Your words were found, and I ate them,
  and your words became to me a joy
  and the delight of my heart,
for I am called by your name,
  O LORD, God of hosts.
[17]I did not sit in the company of revelers,
  nor did I rejoice;
I sat alone, because your hand was upon me,
  for you had filled me with indignation.
[18]†Why is my pain unceasing,
  my wound incurable,

refusing to be healed?
Will you be to me like a deceitful brook,
like waters that fail?
[19]†Therefore thus says the Lord:
“If you return, I will restore you,
and you shall stand before me.
If you utter what is precious, and not what is worthless,
you shall be as my mouth.
They shall turn to you,
but you shall not turn to them.
[20]‡And I will make you to this people
a fortified wall of bronze;
they will fight against you,
but they shall not prevail over you,
for I am with you
to save you and deliver you,
declares the Lord.
[21]I will deliver you out of the hand of the wicked,
and redeem you from the grasp of the ruthless.”

Famine, Sword, and Death

JEREMIAH 16 The word of the LORD came to me: [2]†“You shall not take a wife, nor shall you have sons or daughters in this place. [3]For thus says the LORD concerning the sons and daughters who are born in this place, and concerning the mothers who bore them and the fathers who fathered them in this land: [4]They shall die of deadly diseases. They shall not be lamented, nor shall they be buried. They shall be as dung on the surface of the ground. They shall perish by the sword and by famine, and their dead bodies shall be food for the birds of the air and for the beasts of the earth.

[5]†“For thus says the LORD: Do not enter the house of mourning, or go to lament or grieve for them, for I have taken away my peace from this people, my steadfast love and mercy, declares the LORD. [6]†Both great and small shall die in this land. They shall not be buried, and no one shall lament for them or cut himself or make himself bald for them. [7]No one shall break bread for the mourner, to comfort him for the dead, nor shall anyone give him the cup of consolation to drink for his father or his mother. [8]You shall not go into the house of feasting to sit with them, to eat and drink. [9]For thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: Behold, I will silence in this place, before your eyes and in your days, the voice of mirth and the voice of gladness, the voice of the bridegroom and the voice of the bride.

[10]‡“And when you tell this people all these words, and they say to you, ‘Why has the LORD pronounced all this great evil against us? What is our iniquity? What is the sin that we have committed against the LORD our God?’ [11]then you shall say to them: ‘Because your fathers have forsaken me, declares the LORD, and have gone after other gods and have served and worshiped them, and have forsaken me and have not kept my law, [12]and because you have done worse than your fathers, for behold, every one of you follows his stubborn, evil will, refusing to listen to me. [13]Therefore I will hurl you out of this land into a land that neither you nor your fathers have known, and there you shall serve other gods day and night, for I will show you no favor.’

The LORD Will Restore Israel

[14]†“Therefore, behold, the days are coming, declares the LORD, when it shall no longer be said, ‘As the LORD lives who brought up the people of Israel out of the land of Egypt,’ [15]†but ‘As the LORD lives who brought up the people of Israel out of the north country and out of all the countries where he had driven them.’ For I will bring them back to their own land that I gave to their fathers.

[16]†“Behold, I am sending for many fishers, declares the LORD, and they shall catch them. And afterward I will send for many hunters, and they shall hunt them from every mountain and every hill, and out of the clefts of the rocks. [17]For my eyes are on all their ways. They are not hidden from me, nor is their iniquity concealed from my eyes. [18]†But first I will doubly repay their iniquity and their sin, because they have polluted my land with the carcasses of their detestable idols, and have filled my inheritance with their abominations.”

[19]†O LORD, my strength and my stronghold, my refuge in the day of trouble,
to you shall the nations come from the ends of the earth and say:
“Our fathers have inherited nothing but lies,
worthless things in which there is no profit.
[20]Can man make for himself gods?
Such are not gods!”

[21]“Therefore, behold, I will make them know, this once I will make them know my power and my might, and they shall know that my name is the LORD.”

The Sin of Judah

JEREMIAH 17 †“The sin of Judah is written with a pen of iron; with a point of diamond it is engraved on the tablet of their heart, and on the horns of their altars, [2]while their children remember their altars and their Asherim, beside every green tree and on the high hills, [3]†on the mountains in the open country. Your wealth and all your treasures I will give for spoil as the price of your high places for sin throughout all your territory. [4]†You shall loosen your hand from your heritage that I gave to you, and I will make you serve your enemies in a land that you do not know, for in my anger a fire is kindled that shall burn forever.”

[5]†Thus says the LORD:
“Cursed is the man who trusts in man and makes flesh his strength, [1]
whose heart turns away from the LORD.
[6]He is like a shrub in the desert,
and shall not see any good come.
He shall dwell in the parched places of the wilderness,
in an uninhabited salt land.
[7]“Blessed is the man who trusts in the LORD,
whose trust is the LORD.
[8]He is like a tree planted by water,
that sends out its roots by the stream,
and does not fear when heat comes,
for its leaves remain green,
and is not anxious in the year of drought,
for it does not cease to bear fruit.”
[9]The heart is deceitful above all things,
and desperately sick;
who can understand it?
[10]†“I the LORD search the heart and test the mind, [2]
to give every man according to his ways,
according to the fruit of his deeds.”
[11]†Like the partridge that gathers a brood that she did not hatch, so is he who gets riches but not by justice;

in the midst of his days they will leave him,
and at his end he will be a fool.
[12]A glorious throne set on high from the beginning is the place of our sanctuary.
[13]O LORD, the hope of Israel,
all who forsake you shall be put to shame;
those who turn away from you [3] shall be written in the earth,
for they have forsaken the LORD, the fountain of living water.

Jeremiah Prays for Deliverance

[14]‡Heal me, O LORD, and I shall be healed;
save me, and I shall be saved,
for you are my praise.
[15]Behold, they say to me,
“Where is the word of the LORD?
Let it come!”
[16]I have not run away from being your shepherd, nor have I desired the day of sickness.
You know what came out of my lips;
it was before your face.
[17]Be not a terror to me;
you are my refuge in the day of disaster.
[18]Let those be put to shame who persecute me,
but let me not be put to shame;
let them be dismayed,
but let me not be dismayed;
bring upon them the day of disaster;
destroy them with double destruction!

Keep the Sabbath Holy

[19]Thus said the LORD to me: “Go and stand in the People's Gate, by which the kings of Judah enter and by which they go out, and in all the gates of Jerusalem, [20]and say: ‘Hear the word of the LORD, you kings of Judah, and all Judah, and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, who enter by these gates.

[21]‡Thus says the LORD: Take care for the sake of your lives, and do not bear a burden on the Sabbath day or bring it in by the gates of Jerusalem. [22]And do not carry a burden out of your houses on the Sabbath or do any work, but keep the Sabbath day holy, as I commanded your fathers. [23]Yet they did not listen or incline their ear, but stiffened their neck, that they might not hear and receive instruction.

[24]“‘But if you listen to me, declares the LORD, and bring in no burden by the gates of this city on the Sabbath day, but keep the Sabbath day holy and do no work on it, [25]‡then there shall enter by the gates of this city kings and princes who sit on the throne of David, riding in chariots and on horses, they and their officials, the men of Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem. And this city shall be inhabited forever. [26]And people shall come from the cities of Judah and the places around Jerusalem, from the land of Benjamin, from the Shephelah, from the hill country, and from the Negeb, bringing burnt offerings and sacrifices, grain offerings and frankincense, and bringing thank offerings to the house of the LORD. [27]But if you do not listen to me, to keep the Sabbath day holy, and not to bear a burden and enter by the gates of Jerusalem on the Sabbath day, then I will kindle a fire in its gates, and it shall devour the palaces of Jerusalem and shall not be quenched.’”

The Potter and the Clay

JEREMIAH 18 ‡The word that came to Jeremiah from the LORD: [2]‡“Arise, and go down to the potter's house, and there I will let you hear my words.” [3]So I went down to the potter's house, and there he was working at his wheel. [4]And the vessel he was making of clay was spoiled in the potter's hand, and he reworked it into another vessel, as it seemed good to the potter to do.

[5]Then the word of the LORD came to me: [6]“O house of Israel, can I not do with you as this potter has done? declares the LORD. Behold, like the clay in the potter's hand, so are you in my hand, O house of Israel. [7]If at any time I declare concerning a nation or a kingdom, that I will pluck up and break down and destroy it, [8]‡and if that nation, concerning which I have spoken, turns from its evil, I will relent of the disaster that I intended to do to it. [9]And if at any time I declare concerning a nation or a kingdom that I will build and plant it, [10]and if it does evil in my sight, not listening to my voice, then I will relent of the good that I had intended to do to it. [11]Now, therefore, say to the men of Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem: ‘Thus says the LORD, Behold, I am shaping disaster against you and devising a plan against you. Return, every one from his evil way, and amend your ways and your deeds.’

[12]†“But they say, ‘That is in vain! We will follow our own plans, and will every one act according to the stubbornness of his evil heart.’

[13]†“Therefore thus says the LORD:
Ask among the nations,
Who has heard the like of this?
The virgin Israel
has done a very horrible thing.
[14]†Does the snow of Lebanon leave the crags of Sirion? [1]
Do the mountain waters run dry, [2]
the cold flowing streams?
[15]But my people have forgotten me;

they make offerings to false gods;
they made them stumble in their ways,
in the ancient roads,
and to walk into side roads,
not the highway,
[16]making their land a horror,
a thing to be hissed at forever.
Everyone who passes by it is horrified and shakes his head.
[17]Like the east wind I will scatter them
before the enemy.
I will show them my back, not my face,
in the day of their calamity.”

[18]†Then they said, “Come, let us make plots against Jeremiah, for the law shall not perish from the priest, nor counsel from the wise, nor the word from the prophet. Come, let us strike him with the tongue, and let us not pay attention to any of his words.”

[19]‡Hear me, O LORD,
and listen to the voice of my adversaries.
[20]Should good be repaid with evil?
Yet they have dug a pit for my life.
Remember how I stood before you
to speak good for them,
to turn away your wrath from them.
[21]Therefore deliver up their children to famine;
give them over to the power of the sword;
let their wives become childless and widowed.
May their men meet death by pestilence,
their youths be struck down by the sword in battle.
[22]†May a cry be heard from their houses,
when you bring the plunderer suddenly upon them!
For they have dug a pit to take me
and laid snares for my feet.
[23]Yet you, O LORD, know
all their plotting to kill me.
Forgive not their iniquity,

nor blot out their sin from your sight.
Let them be overthrown before you;
deal with them in the time of your anger.

The Broken Flask

JEREMIAH 19 ‡Thus says the LORD, “Go, buy a potter's earthenware flask, and take some of the elders of the people and some of the elders of the priests, [2]‡and go out to the Valley of the Son of Hinnom at the entry of the Potsherd Gate, and proclaim there the words that I tell you. [3]You shall say, ‘Hear the word of the LORD, O kings of Judah and inhabitants of Jerusalem. Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: Behold, I am bringing such disaster upon this place that the ears of everyone who hears of it will tingle. [4]Because the people have forsaken me and have profaned this place by making offerings in it to other gods whom neither they nor their fathers nor the kings of Judah have known; and because they have filled this place with the blood of innocents, [5]and have built the high places of Baal to burn their sons in the fire as burnt offerings to Baal, which I did not command or decree, nor did it come into my mind— [6]‡therefore, behold, days are coming, declares the LORD, when this place shall no more be called Topheth, or the Valley of the Son of Hinnom, but the Valley of Slaughter. [7]And in this place I will make void the plans of Judah and Jerusalem, and will cause their people to fall by the sword before their enemies, and by the hand of those who seek their life. I will give their dead bodies for food to the birds of the air and to the beasts of the earth. [8]And I will make this city a horror, a thing to be hissed at. Everyone who passes by it will be horrified and will hiss because of all its wounds. [9]‡And I will make them eat the flesh of their sons and their daughters, and everyone shall eat the flesh of his neighbor in the siege and in the distress, with which their enemies and those who seek their life afflict them.’

[10]‡“Then you shall break the flask in the sight of the men who go with you, [11]and shall say to them, ‘Thus says the LORD of hosts: So will I break this people and this city, as one breaks a potter's vessel, so that it can never be mended. Men shall bury in Topheth because there will be no place else to bury. [12]Thus will I do to this place, declares the LORD, and to its inhabitants, making this city like Topheth. [13]‡The houses of Jerusalem and the houses of the kings of Judah—all the houses on whose roofs offerings have been offered to all the host of heaven, and drink offerings have been poured out to other gods—shall be defiled like the place of Topheth.’”

[14]Then Jeremiah came from Topheth, where the LORD had sent him to prophesy, and he stood in the court of the LORD's house and said to all the people: [15]“Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, behold, I am bringing upon this city and upon all its towns all the disaster that I have pronounced against it, because they have stiffened their neck, refusing to hear my words.”

Jeremiah Persecuted by Pashhur

JEREMIAH 20 †Now Pashhur the priest, the son of Immer, who was chief officer in the house of the LORD, heard Jeremiah prophesying these things. [2]†Then Pashhur beat Jeremiah the prophet, and put him in the stocks that were in the upper Benjamin Gate of the house of the LORD. [3]†The next day, when Pashhur released Jeremiah from the stocks, Jeremiah said to him, “The LORD does not call your name Pashhur, but Terror On Every Side. [4]†For thus says the LORD: Behold, I will make you a terror to yourself and to all your friends. They shall fall by the sword of their enemies while you look on. And I will give all Judah into the hand of the king of Babylon. He shall carry them captive to Babylon, and shall strike them down with the sword. [5]Moreover, I will give all the wealth of the city, all its gains, all its prized belongings, and all the treasures of the kings of Judah into the hand of their enemies, who shall plunder them and seize them and carry them to Babylon. [6]And you, Pashhur, and all who dwell in your house, shall go into captivity. To Babylon you shall go, and there you shall die, and there you shall be buried, you and all your friends, to whom you have prophesied falsely.”

[7]O LORD, you have deceived me,
  and I was deceived;
you are stronger than I,
  and you have prevailed.
I have become a laughingstock all the day;
  everyone mocks me.
[8]†For whenever I speak, I cry out,
  I shout, “Violence and destruction!”
For the word of the LORD has become for me
  a reproach and derision all day long.
[9]†If I say, “I will not mention him, or speak any more in his name,”
there is in my heart as it were a burning fire shut up in my bones,
and I am weary with holding it in,
  and I cannot.

[10]For I hear many whispering.
Terror is on every side!
“Denounce him! Let us denounce him!”
say all my close friends,
watching for my fall.
“Perhaps he will be deceived;
then we can overcome him
and take our revenge on him.”
[11]But the LORD is with me as a dread warrior;
therefore my persecutors will stumble;
they will not overcome me.
They will be greatly shamed,
for they will not succeed.
Their eternal dishonor
will never be forgotten.
[12]O LORD of hosts, who tests the righteous, who sees the heart and the mind, [1]
let me see your vengeance upon them,
for to you have I committed my cause.
[13]Sing to the LORD;
praise the LORD!
For he has delivered the life of the needy
from the hand of evildoers.
[14]†Cursed be the day
on which I was born!
The day when my mother bore me,
let it not be blessed!
[15]†Cursed be the man who brought the news to my father,
“A son is born to you,”
making him very glad.
[16]†Let that man be like the cities that the LORD overthrew without pity;
let him hear a cry in the morning
and an alarm at noon, [17]because he did not kill me in the womb;
so my mother would have been my grave,
and her womb forever great.

[18]Why did I come out from the womb
to see toil and sorrow,
and spend my days in shame?

Jerusalem Will Fall to Nebuchadnezzar

JEREMIAH 21 †This is the word that came to Jeremiah from the LORD, when King Zedekiah sent to him Pashhur the son of Malchiah and Zephaniah the priest, the son of Maaseiah, saying, [2]†“Inquire of the LORD for us, for Nebuchadnezzar [1] king of Babylon is making war against us. Perhaps the LORD will deal with us according to all his wonderful deeds and will make him withdraw from us.”

[3]Then Jeremiah said to them: [4]†“Thus you shall say to Zedekiah, ‘Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel: Behold, I will turn back the weapons of war that are in your hands and with which you are fighting against the king of Babylon and against the Chaldeans who are besieging you outside the walls. And I will bring them together into the midst of this city. [5]†I myself will fight against you with outstretched hand and strong arm, in anger and in fury and in great wrath. [6]And I will strike down the inhabitants of this city, both man and beast. They shall die of a great pestilence. [7]†Afterward, declares the LORD, I will give Zedekiah king of Judah and his servants and the people in this city who survive the pestilence, sword, and famine into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon and into the hand of their enemies, into the hand of those who seek their lives. He shall strike them down with the edge of the sword. He shall not pity them or spare them or have compassion.’

[8]†“And to this people you shall say: ‘Thus says the LORD: Behold, I set before you the way of life and the way of death. [9]He who stays in this city shall die by the sword, by famine, and by pestilence, but he who goes out and surrenders to the Chaldeans who are besieging you shall live and shall have his life as a prize of war. [10]For I have set my face against this city for harm and not for good, declares the LORD: it shall be given into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he shall burn it with fire.’

Message to the House of David

[11]“And to the house of the king of Judah say, ‘Hear the word of the LORD, [12]†O house of David! Thus says the LORD:

“‘Execute justice in the morning,
    and deliver from the hand of the oppressor
    him who has been robbed,
lest my wrath go forth like fire,
    and burn with none to quench it,
    because of your evil deeds.’” [13]†“Behold, I am against you, O inhabitant of the valley, O rock of the plain,
declares the LORD;
you who say, ‘Who shall come down against us,
    or who shall enter our habitations?’
[14]†I will punish you according to the fruit of your deeds,
declares the LORD;
    I will kindle a fire in her forest,
    and it shall devour all that is around her.”

JEREMIAH 22 Thus says the LORD: “Go down to the house of the king of Judah and speak there this word, [2]‡and say, ‘Hear the word of the LORD, O king of Judah, who sits on the throne of David, you, and your servants, and your people who enter these gates. [3]Thus says the LORD: Do justice and righteousness, and deliver from the hand of the oppressor him who has been robbed. And do no wrong or violence to the resident alien, the fatherless, and the widow, nor shed innocent blood in this place. [4]For if you will indeed obey this word, then there shall enter the gates of this house kings who sit on the throne of David, riding in chariots and on horses, they and their servants and their people. [5]But if you will not obey these words, I swear by myself, declares the LORD, that this house shall become a desolation. [6]†For thus says the LORD concerning the house of the king of Judah:

“‘You are like Gilead to me,
    like the summit of Lebanon,
yet surely I will make you a desert,
    an uninhabited city. [1] [7]†I will prepare destroyers against you,
    each with his weapons,
and they shall cut down your choicest cedars
    and cast them into the fire.

[8]“‘And many nations will pass by this city, and every man will say to his neighbor, “Why has the LORD dealt thus with this great city?” [9]And they will answer, “Because they have forsaken the covenant of the LORD their God and worshiped other gods and served them.”’”

[10]†Weep not for him who is dead,
    nor grieve for him,
but weep bitterly for him who goes away,
    for he shall return no more to see his native land.

Message to the Sons of Josiah

[11]‡For thus says the LORD concerning Shallum the son of Josiah, king of Judah, who reigned instead of Josiah his father, and who went away from this place: “He shall return here no more, [12]but in the place where they have carried him captive, there shall he die, and he shall never see this land again.”

[13]‡“Woe to him who builds his house by unrighteousness, and his upper rooms by injustice,
who makes his neighbor serve him for nothing
and does not give him his wages, [14]who says, ‘I will build myself a great house with spacious upper rooms,’ who cuts out windows for it, paneling it with cedar
and painting it with vermilion.
[15]Do you think you are a king
because you compete in cedar?
Did not your father eat and drink and do justice and righteousness?
Then it was well with him.
[16]He judged the cause of the poor and needy;
then it was well.
Is not this to know me?
declares the LORD.
[17]But you have eyes and heart
only for your dishonest gain,
for shedding innocent blood,
and for practicing oppression and violence.”

[18]‡Therefore thus says the LORD concerning Jehoiakim the son of Josiah, king of Judah:

“They shall not lament for him, saying,
‘Ah, my brother!’ or ‘Ah, sister!’
They shall not lament for him, saying,
‘Ah, lord!’ or ‘Ah, his majesty!’
[19]With the burial of a donkey he shall be buried, dragged and dumped beyond the gates of Jerusalem.”

[20]†“Go up to Lebanon, and cry out, and lift up your voice in Bashan;
cry out from Abarim,
for all your lovers are destroyed.
[21]I spoke to you in your prosperity,
but you said, ‘I will not listen.’
This has been your way from your youth,
that you have not obeyed my voice.
[22]The wind shall shepherd all your shepherds,
and your lovers shall go into captivity;
then you will be ashamed and confounded because of all your evil.
[23]O inhabitant of Lebanon, nested among the cedars,
how you will be pitied when pangs come upon you,
pain as of a woman in labor!”

[24]‡†“As I live, declares the LORD, though Coniah the son of Jehoiakim, king of Judah, were the signet ring on my right hand, yet I would tear you off [25]and give you into the hand of those who seek your life, into the hand of those of whom you are afraid, even into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon and into the hand of the Chaldeans. [26]I will hurl you and the mother who bore you into another country, where you were not born, and there you shall die. [27]But to the land to which they will long to return, there they shall not return.”

[28]†Is this man Coniah a despised, broken pot,
a vessel no one cares for?
Why are he and his children hurled and cast into a land that they do not know?
[29]O land, land, land,
hear the word of the LORD!
[30]†Thus says the LORD:
“Write this man down as childless,
a man who shall not succeed in his days,
for none of his offspring shall succeed in sitting on the throne of David and ruling again in Judah.”

The Righteous Branch

JEREMIAH 23 ‡“Woe to the shepherds who destroy and scatter the sheep of my pasture!” declares the LORD. [2]Therefore thus says the LORD, the God of Israel, concerning the shepherds who care for my people: “You have scattered my flock and have driven them away, and you have not attended to them. Behold, I will attend to you for your evil deeds, declares the LORD. [3]‡Then I will gather the remnant of my flock out of all the countries where I have driven them, and I will bring them back to their fold, and they shall be fruitful and multiply. [4]‡I will set shepherds over them who will care for them, and they shall fear no more, nor be dismayed, neither shall any be missing, declares the LORD.

[5]‡“Behold, the days are coming, declares the LORD, when I will raise up for David a righteous Branch, and he shall reign as king and deal wisely, and shall execute justice and righteousness in the land. [6]‡In his days Judah will be saved, and Israel will dwell securely. And this is the name by which he will be called: ‘The LORD is our righteousness.’

[7]‡“Therefore, behold, the days are coming, declares the LORD, when they shall no longer say, ‘As the LORD lives who brought up the people of Israel out of the land of Egypt,’ [8]but ‘As the LORD lives who brought up and led the offspring of the house of Israel out of the north country and out of all the countries where he [1] had driven them.’ Then they shall dwell in their own land.”

Lying Prophets

[9]Concerning the prophets:

My heart is broken within me;
  all my bones shake;
I am like a drunken man,
  like a man overcome by wine,
because of the LORD

and because of his holy words.
[10]For the land is full of adulterers;
because of the curse the land mourns,
and the pastures of the wilderness are dried up.
Their course is evil,
and their might is not right.
[11]“Both prophet and priest are ungodly;
even in my house I have found their evil,
declares the LORD.
[12]Therefore their way shall be to them
like slippery paths in the darkness, into which they shall be driven and fall,
for I will bring disaster upon them
in the year of their punishment,
declares the LORD.
[13]‡In the prophets of Samaria
I saw an unsavory thing:
they prophesied by Baal
and led my people Israel astray.
[14]†But in the prophets of Jerusalem
I have seen a horrible thing:
they commit adultery and walk in lies;
they strengthen the hands of evildoers,
so that no one turns from his evil;
all of them have become like Sodom to me,
and its inhabitants like Gomorrah.”
[15]Therefore thus says the LORD of hosts concerning the prophets:
“Behold, I will feed them with bitter food and give them poisoned water to drink, for from the prophets of Jerusalem
ungodliness has gone out into all the land.”

[16]Thus says the LORD of hosts: “Do not listen to the words of the prophets who prophesy to you, filling you with vain hopes. They speak visions of their own minds, not from the mouth of the LORD. [17]They say continually to those who despise the word of the LORD, ‘It shall be well with you’; and to everyone who stubbornly follows his own heart, they say, ‘No disaster shall come upon you.’”

[18]‡For who among them has stood in the council of the LORD to see and to hear his word,
or who has paid attention to his word and listened?
[19]Behold, the storm of the LORD!
Wrath has gone forth,
a whirling tempest;
it will burst upon the head of the wicked.
[20]‡The anger of the LORD will not turn back until he has executed and accomplished
the intents of his heart.
In the latter days you will understand it clearly.
[21]‡“I did not send the prophets,
yet they ran;
I did not speak to them,
yet they prophesied.
[22]But if they had stood in my council,
then they would have proclaimed my words to my people,
and they would have turned them from their evil way,
and from the evil of their deeds.

[23]‡“Am I a God at hand, declares the LORD, and not a God far away? [24]Can a man hide himself in secret places so that I cannot see him? declares the LORD. Do I not fill heaven and earth? declares the LORD. [25]‡I have heard what the prophets have said who prophesy lies in my name, saying, ‘I have dreamed, I have dreamed!’ [26]How long shall there be lies in the heart of the prophets who prophesy lies, and who prophesy the deceit of their own heart, [27]who think to make my people forget my name by their dreams that they tell one another, even as their fathers forgot my name for Baal? [28]Let the prophet who has a dream tell the dream, but let him who has my word speak my word faithfully. What has straw in common with wheat? declares the LORD. [29]‡Is not my word like fire, declares the LORD, and like a hammer that breaks the rock in pieces? [30]Therefore, behold, I am against the prophets, declares the LORD, who steal my words from one another. [31]Behold, I am against the prophets, declares the LORD, who use their tongues and declare, ‘declares the LORD.’ [32]Behold, I am against those who prophesy lying dreams, declares the LORD, and who tell them and lead my people astray by their lies and their recklessness, when I did not send them or charge them. So they do not profit this people at all, declares the LORD.

[33]†“When one of this people, or a prophet or a priest asks you, ‘What is the burden of the LORD?’ you shall say to them, ‘You are the burden, [2] and I will cast you off, declares the LORD.’ [34]‡And as for the prophet, priest, or one of the people who says, ‘The burden of the LORD,’ I will punish that man and his household. [35]Thus shall you say, every one to his neighbor and every one to his brother, ‘What has the LORD answered?’ or ‘What has the LORD spoken?’ [36]But ‘the burden of the LORD’ you shall mention no more, for the burden is every man's own word, and you pervert the words of the living God, the LORD of hosts, our God. [37]Thus you shall say to the prophet, ‘What has the LORD answered you?’ or ‘What has the LORD spoken?’ [38]But if you say, ‘The burden of the LORD,’ thus says the LORD, ‘Because you have said these words, “The burden of the LORD,” when I sent to you, saying, “You shall not say, ‘The burden of the LORD,’” [39]therefore, behold, I will surely lift you up and cast you away from my presence, you and the city that I gave to you and your fathers. [40]And I will bring upon you everlasting reproach and perpetual shame, which shall not be forgotten.’”

The Good Figs and the Bad Figs

JEREMIAH 24 ‡After Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon had taken into exile from Jerusalem Jeconiah the son of Jehoiakim, king of Judah, together with the officials of Judah, the craftsmen, and the metal workers, and had brought them to Babylon, the LORD showed me this vision: behold, two baskets of figs placed before the temple of the LORD. [2]One basket had very good figs, like first-ripe figs, but the other basket had very bad figs, so bad that they could not be eaten. [3]And the LORD said to me, “What do you see, Jeremiah?” I said, “Figs, the good figs very good, and the bad figs very bad, so bad that they cannot be eaten.”

[4]Then the word of the LORD came to me: [5]‡“Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel: Like these good figs, so I will regard as good the exiles from Judah, whom I have sent away from this place to the land of the Chaldeans. [6]‡I will set my eyes on them for good, and I will bring them back to this land. I will build them up, and not tear them down; I will plant them, and not uproot them. [7]I will give them a heart to know that I am the LORD, and they shall be my people and I will be their God, for they shall return to me with their whole heart.

[8]‡“But thus says the LORD: Like the bad figs that are so bad they cannot be eaten, so will I treat Zedekiah the king of Judah, his officials, the remnant of Jerusalem who remain in this land, and those who dwell in the land of Egypt. [9]I will make them a horror [1] to all the kingdoms of the earth, to be a reproach, a byword, a taunt, and a curse in all the places where I shall drive them. [10]And I will send sword, famine, and pestilence upon them, until they shall be utterly destroyed from the land that I gave to them and their fathers.”

Seventy Years of Captivity

JEREMIAH 25 ‡The word that came to Jeremiah concerning all the people of Judah, in the fourth year of Jehoiakim the son of Josiah, king of Judah (that was the first year of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon), [2]which Jeremiah the prophet spoke to all the people of Judah and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem: [3]‡“For twenty-three years, from the thirteenth year of Josiah the son of Amon, king of Judah, to this day, the word of the LORD has come to me, and I have spoken persistently to you, but you have not listened. [4]You have neither listened nor inclined your ears to hear, although the LORD persistently sent to you all his servants the prophets, [5]saying, ‘Turn now, every one of you, from his evil way and evil deeds, and dwell upon the land that the LORD has given to you and your fathers from of old and forever. [6]Do not go after other gods to serve and worship them, or provoke me to anger with the work of your hands. Then I will do you no harm.’ [7]Yet you have not listened to me, declares the LORD, that you might provoke me to anger with the work of your hands to your own harm.

[8]“Therefore thus says the LORD of hosts: Because you have not obeyed my words, [9]‡behold, I will send for all the tribes of the north, declares the LORD, and for Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon, my servant, and I will bring them against this land and its inhabitants, and against all these surrounding nations. I will devote them to destruction, and make them a horror, a hissing, and an everlasting desolation. [10]‡Moreover, I will banish from them the voice of mirth and the voice of gladness, the voice of the bridegroom and the voice of the bride, the grinding of the millstones and the light of the lamp. [11]‡This whole land shall become a ruin and a waste, and these nations shall serve the king of Babylon seventy years. [12]Then after seventy years are completed, I will punish the king of Babylon and that nation, the land of the Chaldeans, for their iniquity, declares the LORD, making the land an everlasting waste. [13]‡I will bring upon that land all the words that I have uttered against it, everything written in this book, which Jeremiah prophesied against all the nations. [14]‡For many nations and great kings shall make slaves even of them, and I will recompense them according to their deeds and the work of their hands.”

The Cup of the LORD's Wrath

[15]†Thus the LORD, the God of Israel, said to me: “Take from my hand this cup of the wine of wrath, and make all the nations to whom I send you drink it. [16]They shall drink and stagger and be crazed because of the sword that I am sending among them.”

[17]†So I took the cup from the LORD's hand, and made all the nations to whom the LORD sent me drink it: [18]Jerusalem and the cities of Judah, its kings and officials, to make them a desolation and a waste, a hissing and a curse, as at this day; [19]Pharaoh king of Egypt, his servants, his officials, all his people, [20]and all the mixed tribes among them; all the kings of the land of Uz and all the kings of the land of the Philistines (Ashkelon, Gaza, Ekron, and the remnant of Ashdod); [21]Edom, Moab, and the sons of Ammon; [22]all the kings of Tyre, all the kings of Sidon, and the kings of the coastland across the sea; [23]Dedan, Tema, Buz, and all who cut the corners of their hair; [24]all the kings of Arabia and all the kings of the mixed tribes who dwell in the desert; [25]all the kings of Zimri, all the kings of Elam, and all the kings of Media; [26]all the kings of the north, far and near, one after another, and all the kingdoms of the world that are on the face of the earth. And after them the king of Babylon [1] shall drink.

[27]“Then you shall say to them, ‘Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: Drink, be drunk and vomit, fall and rise no more, because of the sword that I am sending among you.’

[28]“And if they refuse to accept the cup from your hand to drink, then you shall say to them, ‘Thus says the LORD of hosts: You must drink! [29]†For behold, I begin to work disaster at the city that is called by my name, and shall you go unpunished? You shall not go unpunished, for I am summoning a sword against all the inhabitants of the earth, declares the LORD of hosts.’

[30]†“You, therefore, shall prophesy against them all these words, and say to them:

> “‘The LORD will roar from on high,
>   and from his holy habitation utter his voice;

he will roar mightily against his fold,
and shout, like those who tread grapes,
against all the inhabitants of the earth.
[31]The clamor will resound to the ends of the earth,
for the LORD has an indictment against the nations;
he is entering into judgment with all flesh,
and the wicked he will put to the sword,
declares the LORD.'
[32]"Thus says the LORD of hosts:
Behold, disaster is going forth
from nation to nation,
and a great tempest is stirring from the farthest parts of the earth!

[33]"And those pierced by the LORD on that day shall extend from one end of the earth to the other. They shall not be lamented, or gathered, or buried; they shall be dung on the surface of the ground.

[34]"Wail, you shepherds, and cry out,
and roll in ashes, you lords of the flock,
for the days of your slaughter and dispersion have come,
and you shall fall like a choice vessel.
[35]No refuge will remain for the shepherds,
nor escape for the lords of the flock.
[36]A voice—the cry of the shepherds,
and the wail of the lords of the flock!
For the LORD is laying waste their pasture, [37]and the peaceful folds are devastated
because of the fierce anger of the LORD.
[38]Like a lion he has left his lair,
for their land has become a waste
because of the sword of the oppressor,
and because of his fierce anger."

Jeremiah Threatened with Death

JEREMIAH 26 †In the beginning of the reign of Jehoiakim the son of Josiah, king of Judah, this word came from the LORD: [2]†“Thus says the LORD: Stand in the court of the LORD's house, and speak to all the cities of Judah that come to worship in the house of the LORD all the words that I command you to speak to them; do not hold back a word. [3]It may be they will listen, and every one turn from his evil way, that I may relent of the disaster that I intend to do to them because of their evil deeds. [4]You shall say to them, ‘Thus says the LORD: If you will not listen to me, to walk in my law that I have set before you, [5]and to listen to the words of my servants the prophets whom I send to you urgently, though you have not listened, [6]†then I will make this house like Shiloh, and I will make this city a curse for all the nations of the earth.’”

[7]The priests and the prophets and all the people heard Jeremiah speaking these words in the house of the LORD. [8]And when Jeremiah had finished speaking all that the LORD had commanded him to speak to all the people, then the priests and the prophets and all the people laid hold of him, saying, “You shall die! [9]Why have you prophesied in the name of the LORD, saying, ‘This house shall be like Shiloh, and this city shall be desolate, without inhabitant’?” And all the people gathered around Jeremiah in the house of the LORD.

[10]When the officials of Judah heard these things, they came up from the king's house to the house of the LORD and took their seat in the entry of the New Gate of the house of the LORD. [11]†Then the priests and the prophets said to the officials and to all the people, “This man deserves the sentence of death, because he has prophesied against this city, as you have heard with your own ears.”

[12]†Then Jeremiah spoke to all the officials and all the people, saying, “The LORD sent me to prophesy against this house and this city all the words you have heard. [13]Now therefore mend your ways and your deeds, and obey the voice of the LORD your God, and the LORD will relent of the disaster that he has pronounced against you. [14]But as for me, behold, I am in your hands.

Do with me as seems good and right to you. [15]†Only know for certain that if you put me to death, you will bring innocent blood upon yourselves and upon this city and its inhabitants, for in truth the LORD sent me to you to speak all these words in your ears.”

Jeremiah Spared from Death

[16]Then the officials and all the people said to the priests and the prophets, “This man does not deserve the sentence of death, for he has spoken to us in the name of the LORD our God.” [17]†And certain of the elders of the land arose and spoke to all the assembled people, saying, [18]“Micah of Moresheth prophesied in the days of Hezekiah king of Judah, and said to all the people of Judah: ‘Thus says the LORD of hosts, > “‘Zion shall be plowed as a field;

>   Jerusalem shall become a heap of ruins,
>   and the mountain of the house a wooded height.’

[19]Did Hezekiah king of Judah and all Judah put him to death? Did he not fear the LORD and entreat the favor of the LORD, and did not the LORD relent of the disaster that he had pronounced against them? But we are about to bring great disaster upon ourselves.”

[20]†There was another man who prophesied in the name of the LORD, Uriah the son of Shemaiah from Kiriath-jearim. He prophesied against this city and against this land in words like those of Jeremiah. [21]And when King Jehoiakim, with all his warriors and all the officials, heard his words, the king sought to put him to death. But when Uriah heard of it, he was afraid and fled and escaped to Egypt. [22]†Then King Jehoiakim sent to Egypt certain men, Elnathan the son of Achbor and others with him, [23]†and they took Uriah from Egypt and brought him to King Jehoiakim, who struck him down with the sword and dumped his dead body into the burial place of the common people.

[24]†But the hand of Ahikam the son of Shaphan was with Jeremiah so that he was not given over to the people to be put to death.

The Yoke of Nebuchadnezzar

JEREMIAH 27 †In the beginning of the reign of Zedekiah [1] the son of Josiah, king of Judah, this word came to Jeremiah from the LORD. [2]†Thus the LORD said to me: “Make yourself straps and yoke-bars, and put them on your neck. [3]Send word [2] to the king of Edom, the king of Moab, the king of the sons of Ammon, the king of Tyre, and the king of Sidon by the hand of the envoys who have come to Jerusalem to Zedekiah king of Judah. [4]Give them this charge for their masters: ‘Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: This is what you shall say to your masters: [5]“It is I who by my great power and my outstretched arm have made the earth, with the men and animals that are on the earth, and I give it to whomever it seems right to me. [6]Now I have given all these lands into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, my servant, and I have given him also the beasts of the field to serve him. [7]†All the nations shall serve him and his son and his grandson, until the time of his own land comes. Then many nations and great kings shall make him their slave.

[8]†“““But if any nation or kingdom will not serve this Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, and put its neck under the yoke of the king of Babylon, I will punish that nation with the sword, with famine, and with pestilence, declares the LORD, until I have consumed it by his hand. [9]So do not listen to your prophets, your diviners, your dreamers, your fortune-tellers, or your sorcerers, who are saying to you, ‘You shall not serve the king of Babylon.’ [10]For it is a lie that they are prophesying to you, with the result that you will be removed far from your land, and I will drive you out, and you will perish. [11]But any nation that will bring its neck under the yoke of the king of Babylon and serve him, I will leave on its own land, to work it and dwell there, declares the LORD.”””

[12]To Zedekiah king of Judah I spoke in like manner: “Bring your necks under the yoke of the king of Babylon, and serve him and his people and live. [13]Why will you and your people die by the sword, by famine, and by pestilence, as the LORD has spoken concerning any nation that will not serve the king of Babylon? [14]Do not listen to the words of the prophets who are saying to you, ‘You shall not serve the king of Babylon,’ for it is a lie that they are prophesying to you. [15]I have not sent them, declares the LORD, but they are prophesying falsely in my name, with the result that I will drive you out and you will perish, you and the prophets who are prophesying to you.”

[16]Then I spoke to the priests and to all this people, saying, “Thus says the LORD: Do not listen to the words of your prophets who are prophesying to you, saying, ‘Behold, the vessels of the LORD's house will now shortly be brought back from Babylon,’ for it is a lie that they are prophesying to you. [17]Do not listen to them; serve the king of Babylon and live. Why should this city become a desolation? [18]†If they are prophets, and if the word of the LORD is with them, then let them intercede with the LORD of hosts, that the vessels that are left in the house of the LORD, in the house of the king of Judah, and in Jerusalem may not go to Babylon. [19]For thus says the LORD of hosts concerning the pillars, the sea, the stands, and the rest of the vessels that are left in this city, [20]†which Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon did not take away, when he took into exile from Jerusalem to Babylon Jeconiah the son of Jehoiakim, king of Judah, and all the nobles of Judah and Jerusalem — [21]†thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, concerning the vessels that are left in the house of the LORD, in the house of the king of Judah, and in Jerusalem: [22]They shall be carried to Babylon and remain there until the day when I visit them, declares the LORD. Then I will bring them back and restore them to this place.”

Hananiah the False Prophet

JEREMIAH 28 †In that same year, at the beginning of the reign of Zedekiah king of Judah, in the fifth month of the fourth year, Hananiah the son of Azzur, the prophet from Gibeon, spoke to me in the house of the LORD, in the presence of the priests and all the people, saying, [2]†"Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: I have broken the yoke of the king of Babylon. [3]Within two years I will bring back to this place all the vessels of the LORD's house, which Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon took away from this place and carried to Babylon. [4]†I will also bring back to this place Jeconiah the son of Jehoiakim, king of Judah, and all the exiles from Judah who went to Babylon, declares the LORD, for I will break the yoke of the king of Babylon."

[5]Then the prophet Jeremiah spoke to Hananiah the prophet in the presence of the priests and all the people who were standing in the house of the LORD, [6]and the prophet Jeremiah said, "Amen! May the LORD do so; may the LORD make the words that you have prophesied come true, and bring back to this place from Babylon the vessels of the house of the LORD, and all the exiles. [7]Yet hear now this word that I speak in your hearing and in the hearing of all the people. [8]The prophets who preceded you and me from ancient times prophesied war, famine, and pestilence against many countries and great kingdoms. [9]As for the prophet who prophesies peace, when the word of that prophet comes to pass, then it will be known that the LORD has truly sent the prophet."

[10]†Then the prophet Hananiah took the yoke-bars from the neck of Jeremiah the prophet and broke them. [11]And Hananiah spoke in the presence of all the people, saying, "Thus says the LORD: Even so will I break the yoke of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon from the neck of all the nations within two years." But Jeremiah the prophet went his way.

[12]Sometime after the prophet Hananiah had broken the yoke-bars from off the neck of Jeremiah the prophet, the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah: [13]†"Go, tell Hananiah, 'Thus says the LORD: You have broken wooden bars, but you have made in their place bars of iron. [14]For thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: I have put upon the neck of all these nations an iron yoke to serve Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, and they shall serve him, for I have given to him even the beasts of the field.’” [15]‡And Jeremiah the prophet said to the prophet Hananiah, “Listen, Hananiah, the LORD has not sent you, and you have made this people trust in a lie. [16]Therefore thus says the LORD: ‘Behold, I will remove you from the face of the earth. This year you shall die, because you have uttered rebellion against the LORD.’”

[17]In that same year, in the seventh month, the prophet Hananiah died.

Jeremiah's Letter to the Exiles

JEREMIAH 29 ‡These are the words of the letter that Jeremiah the prophet sent from Jerusalem to the surviving elders of the exiles, and to the priests, the prophets, and all the people, whom Nebuchadnezzar had taken into exile from Jerusalem to Babylon. [2]This was after King Jeconiah and the queen mother, the eunuchs, the officials of Judah and Jerusalem, the craftsmen, and the metal workers had departed from Jerusalem. [3]The letter was sent by the hand of Elasah the son of Shaphan and Gemariah the son of Hilkiah, whom Zedekiah king of Judah sent to Babylon to Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon. It said: [4]‡"Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, to all the exiles whom I have sent into exile from Jerusalem to Babylon: [5]Build houses and live in them; plant gardens and eat their produce. [6]Take wives and have sons and daughters; take wives for your sons, and give your daughters in marriage, that they may bear sons and daughters; multiply there, and do not decrease. [7]But seek the welfare of the city where I have sent you into exile, and pray to the LORD on its behalf, for in its welfare you will find your welfare. [8]For thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: Do not let your prophets and your diviners who are among you deceive you, and do not listen to the dreams that they dream, [1] [9]for it is a lie that they are prophesying to you in my name; I did not send them, declares the LORD.

[10]"For thus says the LORD: When seventy years are completed for Babylon, I will visit you, and I will fulfill to you my promise and bring you back to this place. [11]‡For I know the plans I have for you, declares the LORD, plans for welfare [2] and not for evil, to give you a future and a hope. [12]‡Then you will call upon me and come and pray to me, and I will hear you. [13]You will seek me and find me, when you seek me with all your heart. [14]‡I will be found by you, declares the LORD, and I will restore your fortunes and gather you from all the nations and all the places where I have driven you, declares the LORD, and I will bring you back to the place from which I sent you into exile.

[15]‡"Because you have said, 'The LORD has raised up prophets for us in Babylon,' [16]thus says the LORD concerning the king who sits on the throne of David, and concerning all the people who dwell in this city, your kinsmen who did not go out with you into exile: [17]†‘Thus says the Lord of hosts, behold, I am sending on them sword, famine, and pestilence, and I will make them like vile figs that are so rotten they cannot be eaten. [18]I will pursue them with sword, famine, and pestilence, and will make them a horror to all the kingdoms of the earth, to be a curse, a terror, a hissing, and a reproach among all the nations where I have driven them, [19]because they did not pay attention to my words, declares the Lord, that I persistently sent to you by my servants the prophets, but you would not listen, declares the Lord.’ [20]Hear the word of the Lord, all you exiles whom I sent away from Jerusalem to Babylon: [21]‡‘Thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel, concerning Ahab the son of Kolaiah and Zedekiah the son of Maaseiah, who are prophesying a lie to you in my name: Behold, I will deliver them into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, and he shall strike them down before your eyes. [22]Because of them this curse shall be used by all the exiles from Judah in Babylon: “The Lord make you like Zedekiah and Ahab, whom the king of Babylon roasted in the fire,” [23]because they have done an outrageous thing in Israel, they have committed adultery with their neighbors' wives, and they have spoken in my name lying words that I did not command them. I am the one who knows, and I am witness, declares the Lord.’”

Shemaiah's False Prophecy

[24]‡To Shemaiah of Nehelam you shall say: [25]“Thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: You have sent letters in your name to all the people who are in Jerusalem, and to Zephaniah the son of Maaseiah the priest, and to all the priests, saying, [26]‘The Lord has made you priest instead of Jehoiada the priest, to have charge in the house of the Lord over every madman who prophesies, to put him in the stocks and neck irons. [27]Now why have you not rebuked Jeremiah of Anathoth who is prophesying to you? [28]†For he has sent to us in Babylon, saying, “Your exile will be long; build houses and live in them, and plant gardens and eat their produce.”’”

[29]Zephaniah the priest read this letter in the hearing of Jeremiah the prophet. [30]Then the word of the Lord came to Jeremiah: [31]“Send to all the exiles, saying, ‘Thus says the Lord concerning Shemaiah of Nehelam: Because Shemaiah had prophesied to you when I did not send him, and has made you trust in a lie, [32]therefore thus says the LORD: Behold, I will punish Shemaiah of Nehelam and his descendants. He shall not have anyone living among this people, and he shall not see the good that I will do to my people, declares the LORD, for he has spoken rebellion against the LORD.’”

Restoration for Israel and Judah

JEREMIAH 30 The word that came to Jeremiah from the LORD: [2]“Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel: Write in a book all the words that I have spoken to you. [3]†For behold, days are coming, declares the LORD, when I will restore the fortunes of my people, Israel and Judah, says the LORD, and I will bring them back to the land that I gave to their fathers, and they shall take possession of it.”

[4]These are the words that the LORD spoke concerning Israel and Judah:

[5]“Thus says the LORD:
We have heard a cry of panic,
of terror, and no peace.
[6]Ask now, and see,
can a man bear a child?
Why then do I see every man
with his hands on his stomach like a woman in labor?
Why has every face turned pale?
[7]†Alas! That day is so great
there is none like it;
it is a time of distress for Jacob;
yet he shall be saved out of it.

[8]“And it shall come to pass in that day, declares the LORD of hosts, that I will break his yoke from off your neck, and I will burst your bonds, and foreigners shall no more make a servant of him. [1] [9]†But they shall serve the LORD their God and David their king, whom I will raise up for them.

[10]“Then fear not, O Jacob my servant, declares the LORD,
nor be dismayed, O Israel;
for behold, I will save you from far away,
and your offspring from the land of their captivity.
Jacob shall return and have quiet and ease,
and none shall make him afraid.
[11]†For I am with you to save you,

declares the LORD;
I will make a full end of all the nations
among whom I scattered you,
but of you I will not make a full end.
I will discipline you in just measure,
and I will by no means leave you unpunished.
[12]‡“For thus says the LORD:
Your hurt is incurable,
and your wound is grievous.
[13]There is none to uphold your cause,
no medicine for your wound,
no healing for you.
[14]All your lovers have forgotten you;
they care nothing for you;
for I have dealt you the blow of an enemy,
the punishment of a merciless foe,
because your guilt is great,
because your sins are flagrant.
[15]Why do you cry out over your hurt?
Your pain is incurable.
Because your guilt is great,
because your sins are flagrant,
I have done these things to you.
[16]‡Therefore all who devour you shall be devoured,
and all your foes, every one of them, shall go into captivity;
those who plunder you shall be plundered,
and all who prey on you I will make a prey.
[17]For I will restore health to you,
and your wounds I will heal,
declares the LORD,
because they have called you an outcast:
‘It is Zion, for whom no one cares!’
[18]“Thus says the LORD:
Behold, I will restore the fortunes of the tents of Jacob and have compassion on his dwellings;
the city shall be rebuilt on its mound,
and the palace shall stand where it used to be.

[19]Out of them shall come songs of thanksgiving,
    and the voices of those who celebrate.
I will multiply them, and they shall not be few;
    I will make them honored, and they shall not be small.
[20]Their children shall be as they were of old,
    and their congregation shall be established before me,
    and I will punish all who oppress them.
[21][†]Their prince shall be one of themselves;
    their ruler shall come out from their midst;
I will make him draw near, and he shall approach me,
    for who would dare of himself to approach me?
declares the LORD.
[22]And you shall be my people,
    and I will be your God."
[23]Behold the storm of the LORD!
    Wrath has gone forth,
a whirling tempest;
    it will burst upon the head of the wicked.
[24]The fierce anger of the LORD will not turn back
    until he has executed and accomplished
    the intentions of his mind.
In the latter days you will understand this.

The LORD Will Turn Mourning to Joy

JEREMIAH 31 ‡“At that time, declares the LORD, I will be the God of all the clans of Israel, and they shall be my people.”

[2]‡Thus says the LORD:
“The people who survived the sword found grace in the wilderness;
when Israel sought for rest,
[3]the LORD appeared to him [1] from far away.
I have loved you with an everlasting love;
therefore I have continued my faithfulness to you.
[4]Again I will build you, and you shall be built,
O virgin Israel!
Again you shall adorn yourself with tambourines
and shall go forth in the dance of the merrymakers.
[5]Again you shall plant vineyards on the mountains of Samaria;
the planters shall plant
and shall enjoy the fruit.
[6]For there shall be a day when watchmen will call in the hill country of Ephraim:
‘Arise, and let us go up to Zion,
to the LORD our God.’”
[7]For thus says the LORD:
“Sing aloud with gladness for Jacob,
and raise shouts for the chief of the nations;
proclaim, give praise, and say, ‘O LORD, save your people,
the remnant of Israel.’
[8]Behold, I will bring them from the north country and gather them from the farthest parts of the earth, among them the blind and the lame,
the pregnant woman and she who is in labor, together;
a great company, they shall return here.
[9]With weeping they shall come,

and with pleas for mercy I will lead them back,
I will make them walk by brooks of water,
in a straight path in which they shall not stumble,
for I am a father to Israel,
and Ephraim is my firstborn.
[10]“Hear the word of the LORD, O nations,
and declare it in the coastlands far away;
say, ‘He who scattered Israel will gather him,
and will keep him as a shepherd keeps his flock.’
[11]For the LORD has ransomed Jacob and has redeemed him from hands too strong for him.
[12]They shall come and sing aloud on the height of Zion, and they shall be radiant over the goodness of the LORD,
over the grain, the wine, and the oil,
and over the young of the flock and the herd;
their life shall be like a watered garden,
and they shall languish no more.
[13]Then shall the young women rejoice in the dance,
and the young men and the old shall be merry.
I will turn their mourning into joy;
I will comfort them, and give them gladness for sorrow.
[14]I will feast the soul of the priests with abundance, and my people shall be satisfied with my goodness,
declares the LORD.”
[15]†Thus says the LORD:
“A voice is heard in Ramah,
lamentation and bitter weeping.
Rachel is weeping for her children;
she refuses to be comforted for her children,
because they are no more.”
[16]Thus says the LORD:
“Keep your voice from weeping,
and your eyes from tears,
for there is a reward for your work,
declares the LORD,
and they shall come back from the land of the enemy.
[17]There is hope for your future,

declares the LORD,
and your children shall come back to their own country.
[18]‡I have heard Ephraim grieving,
‘You have disciplined me, and I was disciplined,
like an untrained calf;
bring me back that I may be restored,
for you are the LORD my God.
[19]For after I had turned away, I relented,
and after I was instructed, I struck my thigh;
I was ashamed, and I was confounded,
because I bore the disgrace of my youth.’
[20]Is Ephraim my dear son?
Is he my darling child?
For as often as I speak against him,
I do remember him still.
Therefore my heart [2] yearns for him;
I will surely have mercy on him,
declares the LORD.
[21]“Set up road markers for yourself;
make yourself guideposts;
consider well the highway,
the road by which you went.
Return, O virgin Israel, return to these your cities.
[22]†How long will you waver,
O faithless daughter?
For the LORD has created a new thing on the earth:
a woman encircles a man.”

[23]Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: “Once more they shall use these words in the land of Judah and in its cities, when I restore their fortunes:

“‘The LORD bless you, O habitation of righteousness,
O holy hill!’

[24]And Judah and all its cities shall dwell there together, and the farmers and those who wander with their flocks. [25]For I will satisfy the weary soul, and every languishing soul I will replenish.”

[26]†At this I awoke and looked, and my sleep was pleasant to me.

[27]“Behold, the days are coming, declares the LORD, when I will sow the house of Israel and the house of Judah with the seed of man and the seed of beast. [28]†And it shall come to pass that as I have watched over them to pluck up and break down, to overthrow, destroy, and bring harm, so I will watch over them to build and to plant, declares the LORD. [29]†In those days they shall no longer say:

> “‘The fathers have eaten sour grapes,
> and the children's teeth are set on edge.’

[30]But everyone shall die for his own sin. Each man who eats sour grapes, his teeth shall be set on edge.

The New Covenant

[31]†“Behold, the days are coming, declares the LORD, when I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel and the house of Judah, [32]not like the covenant that I made with their fathers on the day when I took them by the hand to bring them out of the land of Egypt, my covenant that they broke, though I was their husband, declares the LORD. [33]But this is the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel after those days, declares the LORD: I will put my law within them, and I will write it on their hearts. And I will be their God, and they shall be my people. [34]And no longer shall each one teach his neighbor and each his brother, saying, ‘Know the LORD,’ for they shall all know me, from the least of them to the greatest, declares the LORD. For I will forgive their iniquity, and I will remember their sin no more.”

> [35]†Thus says the LORD,
> who gives the sun for light by day > and the fixed order of the moon and the stars for light by night,
> who stirs up the sea so that its waves roar—
> the LORD of hosts is his name:
> [36]“If this fixed order departs > from before me, declares the LORD,

then shall the offspring of Israel cease from being a nation before me forever.”
[37]Thus says the LORD:
“If the heavens above can be measured,
and the foundations of the earth below can be explored,
then I will cast off all the offspring of Israel
for all that they have done,
declares the LORD.”

[38]‡“Behold, the days are coming, declares the LORD, when the city shall be rebuilt for the LORD from the Tower of Hananel to the Corner Gate. [39]And the measuring line shall go out farther, straight to the hill Gareb, and shall then turn to Goah. [40]The whole valley of the dead bodies and the ashes, and all the fields as far as the brook Kidron, to the corner of the Horse Gate toward the east, shall be sacred to the LORD. It shall not be uprooted or overthrown anymore forever.”

Jeremiah Buys a Field During the Siege

JEREMIAH 32 †The word that came to Jeremiah from the LORD in the tenth year of Zedekiah king of Judah, which was the eighteenth year of Nebuchadnezzar. [2]‡†At that time the army of the king of Babylon was besieging Jerusalem, and Jeremiah the prophet was shut up in the court of the guard that was in the palace of the king of Judah. [3]For Zedekiah king of Judah had imprisoned him, saying, “Why do you prophesy and say, ‘Thus says the LORD: Behold, I am giving this city into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he shall capture it; [4]Zedekiah king of Judah shall not escape out of the hand of the Chaldeans, but shall surely be given into the hand of the king of Babylon, and shall speak with him face to face and see him eye to eye. [5]And he shall take Zedekiah to Babylon, and there he shall remain until I visit him, declares the LORD. Though you fight against the Chaldeans, you shall not succeed’?”

[6]Jeremiah said, “The word of the LORD came to me: [7]Behold, Hanamel the son of Shallum your uncle will come to you and say, ‘Buy my field that is at Anathoth, for the right of redemption by purchase is yours.’ [8]†Then Hanamel my cousin came to me in the court of the guard, in accordance with the word of the LORD, and said to me, ‘Buy my field that is at Anathoth in the land of Benjamin, for the right of possession and redemption is yours; buy it for yourself.’ Then I knew that this was the word of the LORD.

[9]“And I bought the field at Anathoth from Hanamel my cousin, and weighed out the money to him, seventeen shekels of silver. [10]I signed the deed, sealed it, got witnesses, and weighed the money on scales. [11]Then I took the sealed deed of purchase, containing the terms and conditions and the open copy. [12]And I gave the deed of purchase to Baruch the son of Neriah son of Mahseiah, in the presence of Hanamel my cousin, in the presence of the witnesses who signed the deed of purchase, and in the presence of all the Judeans who were sitting in the court of the guard. [13]I charged Baruch in their presence, saying, [14]†‘Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: Take these deeds, both this sealed deed of purchase and this open deed, and put them in an earthenware vessel, that they may last for a long time. [15]For thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: Houses and fields and vineyards shall again be bought in this land.’

Jeremiah Prays for Understanding

[16]‡“After I had given the deed of purchase to Baruch the son of Neriah, I prayed to the LORD, saying: [17]‘Ah, Lord GOD! It is you who have made the heavens and the earth by your great power and by your outstretched arm! Nothing is too hard for you. [18]You show steadfast love to thousands, but you repay the guilt of fathers to their children after them, O great and mighty God, whose name is the LORD of hosts, [19]great in counsel and mighty in deed, whose eyes are open to all the ways of the children of man, rewarding each one according to his ways and according to the fruit of his deeds. [20]You have shown signs and wonders in the land of Egypt, and to this day in Israel and among all mankind, and have made a name for yourself, as at this day. [21]You brought your people Israel out of the land of Egypt with signs and wonders, with a strong hand and outstretched arm, and with great terror. [22]And you gave them this land, which you swore to their fathers to give them, a land flowing with milk and honey. [23]And they entered and took possession of it. But they did not obey your voice or walk in your law. They did nothing of all you commanded them to do. Therefore you have made all this disaster come upon them. [24]Behold, the siege mounds have come up to the city to take it, and because of sword and famine and pestilence the city is given into the hands of the Chaldeans who are fighting against it. What you spoke has come to pass, and behold, you see it. [25]Yet you, O Lord GOD, have said to me, “Buy the field for money and get witnesses”—though the city is given into the hands of the Chaldeans.’”

[26]‡The word of the LORD came to Jeremiah: [27]“Behold, I am the LORD, the God of all flesh. Is anything too hard for me? [28]Therefore, thus says the LORD: Behold, I am giving this city into the hands of the Chaldeans and into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, and he shall capture it. [29]The Chaldeans who are fighting against this city shall come and set this city on fire and burn it, with the houses on whose roofs offerings have been made to Baal and drink offerings have been poured out to other gods, to provoke me to anger. [30]For the children of Israel and the children of Judah have done nothing but evil in my sight from their youth. The children of Israel have done nothing but provoke me to anger by the work of their hands, declares the LORD. [31]This city has aroused my anger and wrath, from the day it was built to this day, so that I will remove it from my sight [32]because of all the evil of the children of Israel and the children of Judah that they did to provoke me to anger—their kings and their officials, their priests and their prophets, the men of Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem. [33]They have turned to me their back and not their face. And though I have taught them persistently, they have not listened to receive instruction. [34]They set up their abominations in the house that is called by my name, to defile it. [35]They built the high places of Baal in the Valley of the Son of Hinnom, to offer up their sons and daughters to Molech, though I did not command them, nor did it enter into my mind, that they should do this abomination, to cause Judah to sin.

They Shall Be My People; I Will Be Their God

[36]‡“Now therefore thus says the LORD, the God of Israel, concerning this city of which you say, ‘It is given into the hand of the king of Babylon by sword, by famine, and by pestilence’: [37]‡Behold, I will gather them from all the countries to which I drove them in my anger and my wrath and in great indignation. I will bring them back to this place, and I will make them dwell in safety. [38]‡And they shall be my people, and I will be their God. [39]I will give them one heart and one way, that they may fear me forever, for their own good and the good of their children after them. [40]‡I will make with them an everlasting covenant, that I will not turn away from doing good to them. And I will put the fear of me in their hearts, that they may not turn from me. [41]I will rejoice in doing them good, and I will plant them in this land in faithfulness, with all my heart and all my soul.

[42]‡“For thus says the LORD: Just as I have brought all this great disaster upon this people, so I will bring upon them all the good that I promise them. [43]Fields shall be bought in this land of which you are saying, ‘It is a desolation, without man or beast; it is given into the hand of the Chaldeans.’ [44]Fields shall be bought for money, and deeds shall be signed and sealed and witnessed, in the land of Benjamin, in the places about Jerusalem, and in the cities of Judah, in the cities of the hill country, in the cities of the Shephelah, and in the cities of the Negeb; for I will restore their fortunes, declares the LORD.”

The LORD Promises Peace

JEREMIAH 33 The word of the LORD came to Jeremiah a second time, while he was still shut up in the court of the guard: [2]“Thus says the LORD who made the earth, [1] the LORD who formed it to establish it—the LORD is his name: [3]†Call to me and I will answer you, and will tell you great and hidden things that you have not known. [4]For thus says the LORD, the God of Israel, concerning the houses of this city and the houses of the kings of Judah that were torn down to make a defense against the siege mounds and against the sword: [5]They are coming in to fight against the Chaldeans and to fill them [2] with the dead bodies of men whom I shall strike down in my anger and my wrath, for I have hidden my face from this city because of all their evil. [6]Behold, I will bring to it health and healing, and I will heal them and reveal to them abundance of prosperity and security. [7]I will restore the fortunes of Judah and the fortunes of Israel, and rebuild them as they were at first. [8]†I will cleanse them from all the guilt of their sin against me, and I will forgive all the guilt of their sin and rebellion against me. [9]And this city [3] shall be to me a name of joy, a praise and a glory before all the nations of the earth who shall hear of all the good that I do for them. They shall fear and tremble because of all the good and all the prosperity I provide for it.

[10]“Thus says the LORD: In this place of which you say, ‘It is a waste without man or beast,’ in the cities of Judah and the streets of Jerusalem that are desolate, without man or inhabitant or beast, there shall be heard again [11]†the voice of mirth and the voice of gladness, the voice of the bridegroom and the voice of the bride, the voices of those who sing, as they bring thank offerings to the house of the LORD:

> “‘Give thanks to the LORD of hosts,
>   for the LORD is good,
>   for his steadfast love endures forever!’

For I will restore the fortunes of the land as at first, says the LORD.

[12]“Thus says the LORD of hosts: In this place that is waste, without man or beast, and in all of its cities, there shall again be habitations of shepherds resting their flocks. [13]In the cities of the hill country, in the cities of the Shephelah, and in the cities of the Negeb, in the land of Benjamin, the places about Jerusalem, and in the cities of Judah, flocks shall again pass under the hands of the one who counts them, says the LORD.

The LORD's Eternal Covenant with David

[14]“Behold, the days are coming, declares the LORD, when I will fulfill the promise I made to the house of Israel and the house of Judah. [15]‡In those days and at that time I will cause a righteous Branch to spring up for David, and he shall execute justice and righteousness in the land. [16]In those days Judah will be saved, and Jerusalem will dwell securely. And this is the name by which it will be called: ‘The LORD is our righteousness.’

[17]‡“For thus says the LORD: David shall never lack a man to sit on the throne of the house of Israel, [18]and the Levitical priests shall never lack a man in my presence to offer burnt offerings, to burn grain offerings, and to make sacrifices forever.”

[19]The word of the LORD came to Jeremiah: [20]“Thus says the LORD: If you can break my covenant with the day and my covenant with the night, so that day and night will not come at their appointed time, [21]then also my covenant with David my servant may be broken, so that he shall not have a son to reign on his throne, and my covenant with the Levitical priests my ministers. [22]As the host of heaven cannot be numbered and the sands of the sea cannot be measured, so I will multiply the offspring of David my servant, and the Levitical priests who minister to me.”

[23]The word of the LORD came to Jeremiah: [24]‡“Have you not observed that these people are saying, ‘The LORD has rejected the two clans that he chose’? Thus they have despised my people so that they are no longer a nation in their sight. [25]Thus says the LORD: If I have not established my covenant with day and night and the fixed order of heaven and earth, [26]then I will reject the offspring of Jacob and David my servant and will not choose one of his offspring to rule over the offspring of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. For I will restore their fortunes and will have mercy on them.”

Zedekiah to Die in Babylon

JEREMIAH 34 †The word that came to Jeremiah from the LORD, when Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon and all his army and all the kingdoms of the earth under his dominion and all the peoples were fighting against Jerusalem and all of its cities: [2]“Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel: Go and speak to Zedekiah king of Judah and say to him, ‘Thus says the LORD: Behold, I am giving this city into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he shall burn it with fire. [3]†You shall not escape from his hand but shall surely be captured and delivered into his hand. You shall see the king of Babylon eye to eye and speak with him face to face. And you shall go to Babylon.’ [4]Yet hear the word of the LORD, O Zedekiah king of Judah! Thus says the LORD concerning you: ‘You shall not die by the sword. [5]You shall die in peace. And as spices were burned for your fathers, the former kings who were before you, so people shall burn spices for you and lament for you, saying, “Alas, lord!”’ For I have spoken the word, declares the LORD.”

[6]Then Jeremiah the prophet spoke all these words to Zedekiah king of Judah, in Jerusalem, [7]when the army of the king of Babylon was fighting against Jerusalem and against all the cities of Judah that were left, Lachish and Azekah, for these were the only fortified cities of Judah that remained.

[8]‡The word that came to Jeremiah from the LORD, after King Zedekiah had made a covenant with all the people in Jerusalem to make a proclamation of liberty to them, [9]that everyone should set free his Hebrew slaves, male and female, so that no one should enslave a Jew, his brother. [10]And they obeyed, all the officials and all the people who had entered into the covenant that everyone would set free his slave, male or female, so that they would not be enslaved again. They obeyed and set them free. [11]†But afterward they turned around and took back the male and female slaves they had set free, and brought them into subjection as slaves. [12]‡The word of the LORD came to Jeremiah from the LORD: [13]“Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel: I myself made a covenant with your fathers when I brought them out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of bondage, saying, [14]‘At the end of seven years each of you must set free the fellow Hebrew who has been sold to you and has served you six years; you must set him free from your service.’ But your fathers did not listen to me or incline their ears to me. [15]You recently repented and did what was right in my eyes by proclaiming liberty, each to his neighbor, and you made a covenant before me in the house that is called by my name, [16]but then you turned around and profaned my name when each of you took back his male and female slaves, whom you had set free according to their desire, and you brought them into subjection to be your slaves.

[17]‡“Therefore, thus says the LORD: You have not obeyed me by proclaiming liberty, every one to his brother and to his neighbor; behold, I proclaim to you liberty to the sword, to pestilence, and to famine, declares the LORD. I will make you a horror to all the kingdoms of the earth. [18]‡And the men who transgressed my covenant and did not keep the terms of the covenant that they made before me, I will make them like [1] the calf that they cut in two and passed between its parts— [19]the officials of Judah, the officials of Jerusalem, the eunuchs, the priests, and all the people of the land who passed between the parts of the calf. [20]And I will give them into the hand of their enemies and into the hand of those who seek their lives. Their dead bodies shall be food for the birds of the air and the beasts of the earth. [21]And Zedekiah king of Judah and his officials I will give into the hand of their enemies and into the hand of those who seek their lives, into the hand of the army of the king of Babylon which has withdrawn from you. [22]Behold, I will command, declares the LORD, and will bring them back to this city. And they will fight against it and take it and burn it with fire. I will make the cities of Judah a desolation without inhabitant.”

The Obedience of the Rechabites

JEREMIAH 35 ‡†The word that came to Jeremiah from the LORD in the days of Jehoiakim the son of Josiah, king of Judah: [2]†“Go to the house of the Rechabites and speak with them and bring them to the house of the LORD, into one of the chambers; then offer them wine to drink.” [3]So I took Jaazaniah the son of Jeremiah, son of Habazziniah and his brothers and all his sons and the whole house of the Rechabites. [4]I brought them to the house of the LORD into the chamber of the sons of Hanan the son of Igdaliah, the man of God, which was near the chamber of the officials, above the chamber of Maaseiah the son of Shallum, keeper of the threshold. [5]Then I set before the Rechabites pitchers full of wine, and cups, and I said to them, “Drink wine.” [6]But they answered, “We will drink no wine, for Jonadab the son of Rechab, our father, commanded us, ‘You shall not drink wine, neither you nor your sons forever. [7]You shall not build a house; you shall not sow seed; you shall not plant or have a vineyard; but you shall live in tents all your days, that you may live many days in the land where you sojourn.’ [8]†We have obeyed the voice of Jonadab the son of Rechab, our father, in all that he commanded us, to drink no wine all our days, ourselves, our wives, our sons, or our daughters, [9]and not to build houses to dwell in. We have no vineyard or field or seed, [10]but we have lived in tents and have obeyed and done all that Jonadab our father commanded us. [11]But when Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon came up against the land, we said, ‘Come, and let us go to Jerusalem for fear of the army of the Chaldeans and the army of the Syrians.’ So we are living in Jerusalem.”

[12]Then the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah: [13]‡“Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: Go and say to the people of Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, Will you not receive instruction and listen to my words? declares the LORD. [14]The command that Jonadab the son of Rechab gave to his sons, to drink no wine, has been kept, and they drink none to this day, for they have obeyed their father's command. I have spoken to you persistently, but you have not listened to me. [15]I have sent to you all my servants the prophets, sending them persistently, saying, ‘Turn now every one of you from his evil way, and amend your deeds, and do not go after other gods to serve them, and then you shall dwell in the land that I gave to you and your fathers.’ But you did not incline your ear or listen to me. [16]The sons of Jonadab the son of Rechab have kept the command that their father gave them, but this people has not obeyed me. [17]Therefore, thus says the LORD, the God of hosts, the God of Israel: Behold, I am bringing upon Judah and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem all the disaster that I have pronounced against them, because I have spoken to them and they have not listened, I have called to them and they have not answered.”

[18]‡But to the house of the Rechabites Jeremiah said, “Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: Because you have obeyed the command of Jonadab your father and kept all his precepts and done all that he commanded you, [19]therefore thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: Jonadab the son of Rechab shall never lack a man to stand before me.”

Jehoiakim Burns Jeremiah's Scroll

JEREMIAH 36 †In the fourth year of Jehoiakim the son of Josiah, king of Judah, this word came to Jeremiah from the LORD: [2]†"Take a scroll and write on it all the words that I have spoken to you against Israel and Judah and all the nations, from the day I spoke to you, from the days of Josiah until today. [3]It may be that the house of Judah will hear all the disaster that I intend to do to them, so that every one may turn from his evil way, and that I may forgive their iniquity and their sin."

[4]†Then Jeremiah called Baruch the son of Neriah, and Baruch wrote on a scroll at the dictation of Jeremiah all the words of the LORD that he had spoken to him. [5]†And Jeremiah ordered Baruch, saying, "I am banned from going to the house of the LORD, [6]†so you are to go, and on a day of fasting in the hearing of all the people in the LORD's house you shall read the words of the LORD from the scroll that you have written at my dictation. You shall read them also in the hearing of all the men of Judah who come out of their cities. [7]It may be that their plea for mercy will come before the LORD, and that every one will turn from his evil way, for great is the anger and wrath that the LORD has pronounced against this people." [8]And Baruch the son of Neriah did all that Jeremiah the prophet ordered him about reading from the scroll the words of the LORD in the LORD's house.

[9]†In the fifth year of Jehoiakim the son of Josiah, king of Judah, in the ninth month, all the people in Jerusalem and all the people who came from the cities of Judah to Jerusalem proclaimed a fast before the LORD. [10]†Then, in the hearing of all the people, Baruch read the words of Jeremiah from the scroll, in the house of the LORD, in the chamber of Gemariah the son of Shaphan the secretary, which was in the upper court, at the entry of the New Gate of the LORD's house.

[11]When Micaiah the son of Gemariah, son of Shaphan, heard all the words of the LORD from the scroll, [12]he went down to the king's house, into the secretary's chamber, and all the officials were sitting there: Elishama the secretary, Delaiah the son of Shemaiah, Elnathan the son of Achbor, Gemariah the son of Shaphan, Zedekiah the son of Hananiah, and all the officials. [13]And Micaiah told them all the words that he had heard, when Baruch read the scroll in the hearing of the people. [14]Then all the officials sent Jehudi the son of Nethaniah, son of Shelemiah, son of Cushi, to say to Baruch, “Take in your hand the scroll that you read in the hearing of the people, and come.” So Baruch the son of Neriah took the scroll in his hand and came to them. [15]And they said to him, “Sit down and read it.” So Baruch read it to them. [16]When they heard all the words, they turned one to another in fear. And they said to Baruch, “We must report all these words to the king.” [17]‡Then they asked Baruch, “Tell us, please, how did you write all these words? Was it at his dictation?” [18]Baruch answered them, “He dictated all these words to me, while I wrote them with ink on the scroll.” [19]Then the officials said to Baruch, “Go and hide, you and Jeremiah, and let no one know where you are.”

[20]So they went into the court to the king, having put the scroll in the chamber of Elishama the secretary, and they reported all the words to the king. [21]Then the king sent Jehudi to get the scroll, and he took it from the chamber of Elishama the secretary. And Jehudi read it to the king and all the officials who stood beside the king. [22]It was the ninth month, and the king was sitting in the winter house, and there was a fire burning in the fire pot before him. [23]†As Jehudi read three or four columns, the king would cut them off with a knife and throw them into the fire in the fire pot, until the entire scroll was consumed in the fire that was in the fire pot. [24]†Yet neither the king nor any of his servants who heard all these words was afraid, nor did they tear their garments. [25]Even when Elnathan and Delaiah and Gemariah urged the king not to burn the scroll, he would not listen to them. [26]†And the king commanded Jerahmeel the king's son and Seraiah the son of Azriel and Shelemiah the son of Abdeel to seize Baruch the secretary and Jeremiah the prophet, but the LORD hid them.

[27]†Now after the king had burned the scroll with the words that Baruch wrote at Jeremiah's dictation, the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah: [28]“Take another scroll and write on it all the former words that were in the first scroll, which Jehoiakim the king of Judah has burned. [29]And concerning Jehoiakim king of Judah you shall say, ‘Thus says the LORD, You have burned this scroll, saying, “Why have you written in it that the king of Babylon will certainly come and destroy this land, and will cut off from it man and beast?” [30]Therefore thus says the LORD concerning Jehoiakim king of Judah: He shall have none to sit on the throne of David, and his dead body shall be cast out to the heat by day and the frost by night. [31]†And I will punish him and his offspring and his servants for their iniquity. I will bring upon them and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem and upon the people of Judah all the disaster that I have pronounced against them, but they would not hear.’”

[32]Then Jeremiah took another scroll and gave it to Baruch the scribe, the son of Neriah, who wrote on it at the dictation of Jeremiah all the words of the scroll that Jehoiakim king of Judah had burned in the fire. And many similar words were added to them.

Jeremiah Warns Zedekiah

JEREMIAH 37 ‡Zedekiah the son of Josiah, whom Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon made king in the land of Judah, reigned instead of Coniah the son of Jehoiakim. [2]But neither he nor his servants nor the people of the land listened to the words of the LORD that he spoke through Jeremiah the prophet.

[3]King Zedekiah sent Jehucal the son of Shelemiah, and Zephaniah the priest, the son of Maaseiah, to Jeremiah the prophet, saying, “Please pray for us to the LORD our God.” [4]‡Now Jeremiah was still going in and out among the people, for he had not yet been put in prison. [5]The army of Pharaoh had come out of Egypt. And when the Chaldeans who were besieging Jerusalem heard news about them, they withdrew from Jerusalem.

[6]Then the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah the prophet: [7]‡“Thus says the LORD, God of Israel: Thus shall you say to the king of Judah who sent you to me to inquire of me, ‘Behold, Pharaoh's army that came to help you is about to return to Egypt, to its own land. [8]And the Chaldeans shall come back and fight against this city. They shall capture it and burn it with fire. [9]Thus says the LORD, Do not deceive yourselves, saying, “The Chaldeans will surely go away from us,” for they will not go away. [10]For even if you should defeat the whole army of Chaldeans who are fighting against you, and there remained of them only wounded men, every man in his tent, they would rise up and burn this city with fire.’”

Jeremiah Imprisoned

[11]Now when the Chaldean army had withdrawn from Jerusalem at the approach of Pharaoh's army, [12]‡Jeremiah set out from Jerusalem to go to the land of Benjamin to receive his portion there among the people. [13]‡When he was at the Benjamin Gate, a sentry there named Irijah the son of Shelemiah, son of Hananiah, seized Jeremiah the prophet, saying, “You are deserting to the Chaldeans.” [14]And Jeremiah said, “It is a lie; I am not deserting to the Chaldeans.” But Irijah would not listen to him, and seized Jeremiah and brought him to the officials. [15]†And the officials were enraged at Jeremiah, and they beat him and imprisoned him in the house of Jonathan the secretary, for it had been made a prison.

[16]When Jeremiah had come to the dungeon cells and remained there many days, [17]†King Zedekiah sent for him and received him. The king questioned him secretly in his house and said, “Is there any word from the LORD?” Jeremiah said, “There is.” Then he said, “You shall be delivered into the hand of the king of Babylon.” [18]Jeremiah also said to King Zedekiah, “What wrong have I done to you or your servants or this people, that you have put me in prison? [19]†Where are your prophets who prophesied to you, saying, ‘The king of Babylon will not come against you and against this land’? [20]Now hear, please, O my lord the king: let my humble plea come before you and do not send me back to the house of Jonathan the secretary, lest I die there.” [21]†So King Zedekiah gave orders, and they committed Jeremiah to the court of the guard. And a loaf of bread was given him daily from the bakers' street, until all the bread of the city was gone. So Jeremiah remained in the court of the guard.

Jeremiah Cast into the Cistern

JEREMIAH 38 Now Shephatiah the son of Mattan, Gedaliah the son of Pashhur, Jucal the son of Shelemiah, and Pashhur the son of Malchiah heard the words that Jeremiah was saying to all the people, [2]"Thus says the LORD: He who stays in this city shall die by the sword, by famine, and by pestilence, but he who goes out to the Chaldeans shall live. He shall have his life as a prize of war, and live. [3]Thus says the LORD: This city shall surely be given into the hand of the army of the king of Babylon and be taken." [4]†Then the officials said to the king, "Let this man be put to death, for he is weakening the hands of the soldiers who are left in this city, and the hands of all the people, by speaking such words to them. For this man is not seeking the welfare of this people, but their harm." [5]†King Zedekiah said, "Behold, he is in your hands, for the king can do nothing against you." [6]†So they took Jeremiah and cast him into the cistern of Malchiah, the king's son, which was in the court of the guard, letting Jeremiah down by ropes. And there was no water in the cistern, but only mud, and Jeremiah sank in the mud.

Jeremiah Rescued from the Cistern

[7]‡When Ebed-melech the Ethiopian, a eunuch who was in the king's house, heard that they had put Jeremiah into the cistern—the king was sitting in the Benjamin Gate— [8]Ebed-melech went from the king's house and said to the king, [9]"My lord the king, these men have done evil in all that they did to Jeremiah the prophet by casting him into the cistern, and he will die there of hunger, for there is no bread left in the city." [10]Then the king commanded Ebed-melech the Ethiopian, "Take thirty men with you from here, and lift Jeremiah the prophet out of the cistern before he dies." [11]So Ebed-melech took the men with him and went to the house of the king, to a wardrobe in the storehouse, and took from there old rags and worn-out clothes, which he let down to Jeremiah in the cistern by ropes. [12]Then Ebed-melech the Ethiopian said to Jeremiah, "Put the rags and clothes between your armpits and the ropes." Jeremiah did so. [13]Then they drew Jeremiah up with ropes and lifted him out of the cistern. And Jeremiah remained in the court of the guard.

Jeremiah Warns Zedekiah Again

[14]‡King Zedekiah sent for Jeremiah the prophet and received him at the third entrance of the temple of the LORD. The king said to Jeremiah, “I will ask you a question; hide nothing from me.” [15]Jeremiah said to Zedekiah, “If I tell you, will you not surely put me to death? And if I give you counsel, you will not listen to me.” [16]Then King Zedekiah swore secretly to Jeremiah, “As the LORD lives, who made our souls, I will not put you to death or deliver you into the hand of these men who seek your life.”

[17]Then Jeremiah said to Zedekiah, “Thus says the LORD, the God of hosts, the God of Israel: If you will surrender to the officials of the king of Babylon, then your life shall be spared, and this city shall not be burned with fire, and you and your house shall live. [18]But if you do not surrender to the officials of the king of Babylon, then this city shall be given into the hand of the Chaldeans, and they shall burn it with fire, and you shall not escape from their hand.” [19]King Zedekiah said to Jeremiah, “I am afraid of the Judeans who have deserted to the Chaldeans, lest I be handed over to them and they deal cruelly with me.” [20]Jeremiah said, “You shall not be given to them. Obey now the voice of the LORD in what I say to you, and it shall be well with you, and your life shall be spared. [21]But if you refuse to surrender, this is the vision which the LORD has shown to me: [22]‡Behold, all the women left in the house of the king of Judah were being led out to the officials of the king of Babylon and were saying,

“‘Your trusted friends have deceived you and prevailed against you;
now that your feet are sunk in the mud,
    they turn away from you.’

[23]All your wives and your sons shall be led out to the Chaldeans, and you yourself shall not escape from their hand, but shall be seized by the king of Babylon, and this city shall be burned with fire.”

[24]Then Zedekiah said to Jeremiah, “Let no one know of these words, and you shall not die. [25]If the officials hear that I have spoken with you and come to you and say to you, ‘Tell us what you said to the king and what the king said to you; hide nothing from us and we will not put you to death,’ [26]then you shall say to them, ‘I made a humble plea to the king that he would not send me back to the house of Jonathan to die there.’” [27]†Then all the officials came to Jeremiah and asked him, and he answered them as the king had instructed him. So they stopped speaking with him, for the conversation had not been overheard. [28]And Jeremiah remained in the court of the guard until the day that Jerusalem was taken.

The Fall of Jerusalem

JEREMIAH 39 ‡In the ninth year of Zedekiah king of Judah, in the tenth month, Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon and all his army came against Jerusalem and besieged it. [2]In the eleventh year of Zedekiah, in the fourth month, on the ninth day of the month, a breach was made in the city. [3]†Then all the officials of the king of Babylon came and sat in the middle gate: Nergal-sar-ezer, Samgar-nebu, Sar-sekim the Rab-saris, Nergal-sar-ezer the Rab-mag, with all the rest of the officers of the king of Babylon. [4]When Zedekiah king of Judah and all the soldiers saw them, they fled, going out of the city at night by way of the king's garden through the gate between the two walls; and they went toward the Arabah. [5]†But the army of the Chaldeans pursued them and overtook Zedekiah in the plains of Jericho. And when they had taken him, they brought him up to Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, at Riblah, in the land of Hamath; and he passed sentence on him. [6]‡The king of Babylon slaughtered the sons of Zedekiah at Riblah before his eyes, and the king of Babylon slaughtered all the nobles of Judah. [7]†He put out the eyes of Zedekiah and bound him in chains to take him to Babylon. [8]The Chaldeans burned the king's house and the house of the people, and broke down the walls of Jerusalem. [9]Then Nebuzaradan, the captain of the guard, carried into exile to Babylon the rest of the people who were left in the city, those who had deserted to him, and the people who remained. [10]Nebuzaradan, the captain of the guard, left in the land of Judah some of the poor people who owned nothing, and gave them vineyards and fields at the same time.

The LORD Delivers Jeremiah

[11]‡Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon gave command concerning Jeremiah through Nebuzaradan, the captain of the guard, saying, [12]"Take him, look after him well, and do him no harm, but deal with him as he tells you." [13]So Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard, Nebushazban the Rab-saris, Nergal-sar-ezer the Rab-mag, and all the chief officers of the king of Babylon [14]†sent and took Jeremiah from the court of the guard. They entrusted him to Gedaliah the son of Ahikam, son of Shaphan, that he should take him home. So he lived among the people.

[15]‡The word of the LORD came to Jeremiah while he was shut up in the court of the guard: [16]“Go, and say to Ebed-melech the Ethiopian, ‘Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: Behold, I will fulfill my words against this city for harm and not for good, and they shall be accomplished before you on that day. [17]But I will deliver you on that day, declares the LORD, and you shall not be given into the hand of the men of whom you are afraid. [18]For I will surely save you, and you shall not fall by the sword, but you shall have your life as a prize of war, because you have put your trust in me, declares the LORD.’”

Jeremiah Remains in Judah

JEREMIAH 40 The word that came to Jeremiah from the LORD after Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard had let him go from Ramah, when he took him bound in chains along with all the captives of Jerusalem and Judah who were being exiled to Babylon. [2]‡The captain of the guard took Jeremiah and said to him, “The LORD your God pronounced this disaster against this place. [3]The LORD has brought it about, and has done as he said. Because you sinned against the LORD and did not obey his voice, this thing has come upon you. [4]‡Now, behold, I release you today from the chains on your hands. If it seems good to you to come with me to Babylon, come, and I will look after you well, but if it seems wrong to you to come with me to Babylon, do not come. See, the whole land is before you; go wherever you think it good and right to go. [5]‡If you remain, [1] then return to Gedaliah the son of Ahikam, son of Shaphan, whom the king of Babylon appointed governor of the cities of Judah, and dwell with him among the people. Or go wherever you think it right to go.” So the captain of the guard gave him an allowance of food and a present, and let him go. [6]Then Jeremiah went to Gedaliah the son of Ahikam, at Mizpah, and lived with him among the people who were left in the land.

[7]‡When all the captains of the forces in the open country and their men heard that the king of Babylon had appointed Gedaliah the son of Ahikam governor in the land and had committed to him men, women, and children, those of the poorest of the land who had not been taken into exile to Babylon, [8]they went to Gedaliah at Mizpah—Ishmael the son of Nethaniah, Johanan the son of Kareah, Seraiah the son of Tanhumeth, the sons of Ephai the Netophathite, Jezaniah the son of the Maacathite, they and their men. [9]‡Gedaliah the son of Ahikam, son of Shaphan, swore to them and their men, saying, “Do not be afraid to serve the Chaldeans. Dwell in the land and serve the king of Babylon, and it shall be well with you. [10]As for me, I will dwell at Mizpah, to represent you before the Chaldeans who will come to us. But as for you, gather wine and summer fruits and oil, and store them in your vessels, and dwell in your cities that you have taken.” [11]Likewise, when all the Judeans who were in Moab and among the Ammonites and in Edom and in other lands heard that the king of Babylon had left a remnant in Judah and had appointed Gedaliah the son of Ahikam, son of Shaphan, as governor over them, [12]then all the Judeans returned from all the places to which they had been driven and came to the land of Judah, to Gedaliah at Mizpah. And they gathered wine and summer fruits in great abundance.

[13]‡Now Johanan the son of Kareah and all the leaders of the forces in the open country came to Gedaliah at Mizpah [14]and said to him, “Do you know that Baalis the king of the Ammonites has sent Ishmael the son of Nethaniah to take your life?” But Gedaliah the son of Ahikam would not believe them. [15]Then Johanan the son of Kareah spoke secretly to Gedaliah at Mizpah, “Please let me go and strike down Ishmael the son of Nethaniah, and no one will know it. Why should he take your life, so that all the Judeans who are gathered about you would be scattered, and the remnant of Judah would perish?” [16]But Gedaliah the son of Ahikam said to Johanan the son of Kareah, “You shall not do this thing, for you are speaking falsely of Ishmael.”

Gedaliah Murdered

JEREMIAH 41 ‡In the seventh month, Ishmael the son of Nethaniah, son of Elishama, of the royal family, one of the chief officers of the king, came with ten men to Gedaliah the son of Ahikam, at Mizpah. As they ate bread together there at Mizpah, [2]Ishmael the son of Nethaniah and the ten men with him rose up and struck down Gedaliah the son of Ahikam, son of Shaphan, with the sword, and killed him, whom the king of Babylon had appointed governor in the land. [3]Ishmael also struck down all the Judeans who were with Gedaliah at Mizpah, and the Chaldean soldiers who happened to be there.

[4]On the day after the murder of Gedaliah, before anyone knew of it, [5]†eighty men arrived from Shechem and Shiloh and Samaria, with their beards shaved and their clothes torn, and their bodies gashed, bringing grain offerings and incense to present at the temple of the LORD. [6]And Ishmael the son of Nethaniah came out from Mizpah to meet them, weeping as he came. As he met them, he said to them, “Come in to Gedaliah the son of Ahikam.” [7]When they came into the city, Ishmael the son of Nethaniah and the men with him slaughtered them and cast them into a cistern. [8]But there were ten men among them who said to Ishmael, “Do not put us to death, for we have stores of wheat, barley, oil, and honey hidden in the fields.” So he refrained and did not put them to death with their companions.

[9]†Now the cistern into which Ishmael had thrown all the bodies of the men whom he had struck down along with [1] Gedaliah was the large cistern that King Asa had made for defense against Baasha king of Israel; Ishmael the son of Nethaniah filled it with the slain. [10]Then Ishmael took captive all the rest of the people who were in Mizpah, the king's daughters and all the people who were left at Mizpah, whom Nebuzaradan, the captain of the guard, had committed to Gedaliah the son of Ahikam. Ishmael the son of Nethaniah took them captive and set out to cross over to the Ammonites.

[11]But when Johanan the son of Kareah and all the leaders of the forces with him heard of all the evil that Ishmael the son of Nethaniah had done, [12]‡†they took all their men and went to fight against Ishmael the son of Nethaniah. They came upon him at the great pool that is in Gibeon. [13]And when all the people who were with Ishmael saw Johanan the son of Kareah and all the leaders of the forces with him, they rejoiced. [14]So all the people whom Ishmael had carried away captive from Mizpah turned around and came back, and went to Johanan the son of Kareah. [15]But Ishmael the son of Nethaniah escaped from Johanan with eight men, and went to the Ammonites. [16]Then Johanan the son of Kareah and all the leaders of the forces with him took from Mizpah all the rest of the people whom he had recovered from Ishmael the son of Nethaniah, after he had struck down Gedaliah the son of Ahikam—soldiers, women, children, and eunuchs, whom Johanan brought back from Gibeon. [17]And they went and stayed at Geruth Chimham near Bethlehem, intending to go to Egypt [18]because of the Chaldeans. For they were afraid of them, because Ishmael the son of Nethaniah had struck down Gedaliah the son of Ahikam, whom the king of Babylon had made governor over the land.

Warning Against Going to Egypt

JEREMIAH 42 ‡‡Then all the commanders of the forces, and Johanan the son of Kareah and Jezaniah the son of Hoshaiah, and all the people from the least to the greatest, came near [2]and said to Jeremiah the prophet, “Let our plea for mercy come before you, and pray to the LORD your God for us, for all this remnant—because we are left with but a few, as your eyes see us—[3]that the LORD your God may show us the way we should go, and the thing that we should do.” [4]Jeremiah the prophet said to them, “I have heard you. Behold, I will pray to the LORD your God according to your request, and whatever the LORD answers you I will tell you. I will keep nothing back from you.” [5]Then they said to Jeremiah, “May the LORD be a true and faithful witness against us if we do not act according to all the word with which the LORD your God sends you to us. [6]Whether it is good or bad, we will obey the voice of the LORD our God to whom we are sending you, that it may be well with us when we obey the voice of the LORD our God.”

[7]‡At the end of ten days the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah. [8]Then he summoned Johanan the son of Kareah and all the commanders of the forces who were with him, and all the people from the least to the greatest, [9]and said to them, “Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel, to whom you sent me to present your plea for mercy before him: [10]†If you will remain in this land, then I will build you up and not pull you down; I will plant you, and not pluck you up; for I relent of the disaster that I did to you. [11]Do not fear the king of Babylon, of whom you are afraid. Do not fear him, declares the LORD, for I am with you, to save you and to deliver you from his hand. [12]I will grant you mercy, that he may have mercy on you and let you remain in your own land. [13]‡But if you say, ‘We will not remain in this land,’ disobeying the voice of the LORD your God [14]and saying, ‘No, we will go to the land of Egypt, where we shall not see war or hear the sound of the trumpet or be hungry for bread, and we will dwell there,’ [15]then hear the word of the LORD, O remnant of Judah. Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: If you set your faces to enter Egypt and go to live there, [16]then the sword that you fear shall overtake you there in the land of Egypt, and the famine of which you are afraid shall follow close after you to Egypt, and there you shall die. [17]All the men who set their faces to go to Egypt to live there shall die by the sword, by famine, and by pestilence. They shall have no remnant or survivor from the disaster that I will bring upon them.

[18]"For thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: As my anger and my wrath were poured out on the inhabitants of Jerusalem, so my wrath will be poured out on you when you go to Egypt. You shall become an execration, a horror, a curse, and a taunt. You shall see this place no more. [19]The LORD has said to you, O remnant of Judah, 'Do not go to Egypt.' Know for a certainty that I have warned you this day [20][†]that you have gone astray at the cost of your lives. For you sent me to the LORD your God, saying, 'Pray for us to the LORD our God, and whatever the LORD our God says declare to us and we will do it.' [21]And I have this day declared it to you, but you have not obeyed the voice of the LORD your God in anything that he sent me to tell you. [22]Now therefore know for a certainty that you shall die by the sword, by famine, and by pestilence in the place where you desire to go to live."

Jeremiah Taken to Egypt

JEREMIAH 43 ‡When Jeremiah finished speaking to all the people all these words of the LORD their God, with which the LORD their God had sent him to them, [2]Azariah the son of Hoshaiah and Johanan the son of Kareah and all the insolent men said to Jeremiah, “You are telling a lie. The LORD our God did not send you to say, ‘Do not go to Egypt to live there,’ [3]‡but Baruch the son of Neriah has set you against us, to deliver us into the hand of the Chaldeans, that they may kill us or take us into exile in Babylon.” [4]So Johanan the son of Kareah and all the commanders of the forces and all the people did not obey the voice of the LORD, to remain in the land of Judah. [5]But Johanan the son of Kareah and all the commanders of the forces took all the remnant of Judah who had returned to live in the land of Judah from all the nations to which they had been driven— [6]the men, the women, the children, the princesses, and every person whom Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard had left with Gedaliah the son of Ahikam, son of Shaphan; also Jeremiah the prophet and Baruch the son of Neriah. [7]†And they came into the land of Egypt, for they did not obey the voice of the LORD. And they arrived at Tahpanhes.

[8]Then the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah in Tahpanhes: [9]‡“Take in your hands large stones and hide them in the mortar in the pavement that is at the entrance to Pharaoh's palace in Tahpanhes, in the sight of the men of Judah, [10]and say to them, ‘Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: Behold, I will send and take Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon, my servant, and I will set his throne above these stones that I have hidden, and he will spread his royal canopy over them. [11]He shall come and strike the land of Egypt, giving over to the pestilence those who are doomed to the pestilence, to captivity those who are doomed to captivity, and to the sword those who are doomed to the sword. [12]†I shall kindle a fire in the temples of the gods of Egypt, and he shall burn them and carry them away captive. And he shall clean the land of Egypt as a shepherd cleans his cloak of vermin, and he shall go away from there in peace. [13]†He shall break the obelisks of Heliopolis, which is in the land of Egypt, and the temples of the gods of Egypt he shall burn with fire.’”

Judgment for Idolatry

JEREMIAH 44 ‡The word that came to Jeremiah concerning all the Judeans who lived in the land of Egypt, at Migdol, at Tahpanhes, at Memphis, and in the land of Pathros, [2]‡“Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: You have seen all the disaster that I brought upon Jerusalem and upon all the cities of Judah. Behold, this day they are a desolation, and no one dwells in them, [3]because of the evil that they committed, provoking me to anger, in that they went to make offerings and serve other gods that they knew not, neither they, nor you, nor your fathers. [4]Yet I persistently sent to you all my servants the prophets, saying, ‘Oh, do not do this abomination that I hate!’ [5]But they did not listen or incline their ear, to turn from their evil and make no offerings to other gods. [6]Therefore my wrath and my anger were poured out and kindled in the cities of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem, and they became a waste and a desolation, as at this day. [7]‡And now thus says the LORD God of hosts, the God of Israel: Why do you commit this great evil against yourselves, to cut off from you man and woman, infant and child, from the midst of Judah, leaving you no remnant? [8]Why do you provoke me to anger with the works of your hands, making offerings to other gods in the land of Egypt where you have come to live, so that you may be cut off and become a curse and a taunt among all the nations of the earth? [9]Have you forgotten the evil of your fathers, the evil of the kings of Judah, the evil of their [1] wives, your own evil, and the evil of your wives, which they committed in the land of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem? [10]They have not humbled themselves even to this day, nor have they feared, nor walked in my law and my statutes that I set before you and before your fathers.

[11]‡“Therefore thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: Behold, I will set my face against you for harm, to cut off all Judah. [12]I will take the remnant of Judah who have set their faces to come to the land of Egypt to live, and they shall all be consumed. In the land of Egypt they shall fall; by the sword and by famine they shall be consumed. From the least to the greatest, they shall die by the sword and by famine, and they shall become an oath, a horror, a curse, and a taunt. [13]I will punish those who dwell in the land of Egypt, as I have punished Jerusalem, with the sword, with famine, and with pestilence, [14]‡so that none of the remnant of Judah who have come to live in the land of Egypt shall escape or survive or return to the land of Judah, to which they desire to return to dwell there. For they shall not return, except some fugitives.”

[15]‡Then all the men who knew that their wives had made offerings to other gods, and all the women who stood by, a great assembly, all the people who lived in Pathros in the land of Egypt, answered Jeremiah: [16]“As for the word that you have spoken to us in the name of the LORD, we will not listen to you. [17]‡But we will do everything that we have vowed, make offerings to the queen of heaven and pour out drink offerings to her, as we did, both we and our fathers, our kings and our officials, in the cities of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem. For then we had plenty of food, and prospered, and saw no disaster. [18]But since we left off making offerings to the queen of heaven and pouring out drink offerings to her, we have lacked everything and have been consumed by the sword and by famine.” [19]And the women said, [2] “When we made offerings to the queen of heaven and poured out drink offerings to her, was it without our husbands' approval that we made cakes for her bearing her image and poured out drink offerings to her?”

[20]‡Then Jeremiah said to all the people, men and women, all the people who had given him this answer: [21]“As for the offerings that you offered in the cities of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem, you and your fathers, your kings and your officials, and the people of the land, did not the LORD remember them? Did it not come into his mind? [22]The LORD could no longer bear your evil deeds and the abominations that you committed. Therefore your land has become a desolation and a waste and a curse, without inhabitant, as it is this day. [23]It is because you made offerings and because you sinned against the LORD and did not obey the voice of the LORD or walk in his law and in his statutes and in his testimonies that this disaster has happened to you, as at this day.”

[24]‡Jeremiah said to all the people and all the women, “Hear the word of the LORD, all you of Judah who are in the land of Egypt. [25]Thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: You and your wives have declared with your mouths, and have fulfilled it with your hands, saying, ‘We will surely perform our vows that we have made, to make offerings to the queen of heaven and to pour out drink offerings to her.’ Then confirm your vows and perform your vows! [26]Therefore hear the word of the LORD, all you of Judah who dwell in the land of Egypt: Behold, I have sworn by my great name, says the LORD, that my name shall no more be invoked by the mouth of any man of Judah in all the land of Egypt, saying, ‘As the Lord GOD lives.’ [27]Behold, I am watching over them for disaster and not for good. All the men of Judah who are in the land of Egypt shall be consumed by the sword and by famine, until there is an end of them. [28]And those who escape the sword shall return from the land of Egypt to the land of Judah, few in number; and all the remnant of Judah, who came to the land of Egypt to live, shall know whose word will stand, mine or theirs. [29]‡This shall be the sign to you, declares the LORD, that I will punish you in this place, in order that you may know that my words will surely stand against you for harm: [30]Thus says the LORD, Behold, I will give Pharaoh Hophra king of Egypt into the hand of his enemies and into the hand of those who seek his life, as I gave Zedekiah king of Judah into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, who was his enemy and sought his life.”

Message to Baruch

JEREMIAH 45 †The word that Jeremiah the prophet spoke to Baruch the son of Neriah, when he wrote these words in a book at the dictation of Jeremiah, in the fourth year of Jehoiakim the son of Josiah, king of Judah: [2]“Thus says the LORD, the God of Israel, to you, O Baruch: [3]†You said, ‘Woe is me! For the LORD has added sorrow to my pain. I am weary with my groaning, and I find no rest.’ [4]†Thus shall you say to him, Thus says the LORD: Behold, what I have built I am breaking down, and what I have planted I am plucking up—that is, the whole land. [5]†And do you seek great things for yourself? Seek them not, for behold, I am bringing disaster upon all flesh, declares the LORD. But I will give you your life as a prize of war in all places to which you may go.”

Judgment on Egypt

JEREMIAH 46 ‡The word of the LORD that came to Jeremiah the prophet concerning the nations.

[2]‡About Egypt. Concerning the army of Pharaoh Neco, king of Egypt, which was by the river Euphrates at Carchemish and which Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon defeated in the fourth year of Jehoiakim the son of Josiah, king of Judah:

[3]‡“Prepare buckler and shield,
and advance for battle!
[4]Harness the horses;
mount, O horsemen!
Take your stations with your helmets,
polish your spears,
put on your armor!
[5]Why have I seen it?
They are dismayed
and have turned backward.
Their warriors are beaten down
and have fled in haste;
they look not back—
terror on every side!
declares the LORD.
[6]“The swift cannot flee away,
nor the warrior escape;
in the north by the river Euphrates
they have stumbled and fallen.
[7]“Who is this, rising like the Nile,
like rivers whose waters surge?
[8]Egypt rises like the Nile,
like rivers whose waters surge.
He said, ‘I will rise, I will cover the earth,
I will destroy cities and their inhabitants.’
[9]Advance, O horses, and rage, O chariots!

Let the warriors go out:
men of Cush and Put who handle the shield,
men of Lud, skilled in handling the bow.
[10]‡That day is the day of the Lord GOD of hosts,
a day of vengeance,
to avenge himself on his foes.
The sword shall devour and be sated
and drink its fill of their blood.
For the Lord GOD of hosts holds a sacrifice
in the north country by the river Euphrates.
[11]‡Go up to Gilead, and take balm,
O virgin daughter of Egypt!
In vain you have used many medicines;
there is no healing for you.
[12]The nations have heard of your shame,
and the earth is full of your cry;
for warrior has stumbled against warrior;
they have both fallen together.”

[13]‡The word that the LORD spoke to Jeremiah the prophet about the coming of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon to strike the land of Egypt:

[14]“Declare in Egypt, and proclaim in Migdol; proclaim in Memphis and Tahpanhes;
say, ‘Stand ready and be prepared,
for the sword shall devour around you.’
[15]Why are your mighty ones face down?
They do not stand [1]
because the LORD thrust them down.
[16]He made many stumble, and they fell,
and they said one to another, ‘Arise, and let us go back to our own people
and to the land of our birth,
because of the sword of the oppressor.’
[17]Call the name of Pharaoh, king of Egypt, ‘Noisy one who lets the hour go by.’
[18]‡“As I live, declares the King, whose name is the LORD of hosts,

like Tabor among the mountains and like Carmel by the sea, shall one come.
[19]Prepare yourselves baggage for exile,
O inhabitants of Egypt!
For Memphis shall become a waste,
a ruin, without inhabitant.
[20]‡“A beautiful heifer is Egypt,
but a biting fly from the north has come upon her.
[21]Even her hired soldiers in her midst
are like fattened calves;
yes, they have turned and fled together;
they did not stand,
for the day of their calamity has come upon them,
the time of their punishment.
[22]“She makes a sound like a serpent gliding away;
for her enemies march in force and come against her with axes
like those who fell trees.
[23]They shall cut down her forest,
declares the LORD,
though it is impenetrable,
because they are more numerous than locusts;
they are without number.
[24]The daughter of Egypt shall be put to shame;
she shall be delivered into the hand of a people from the north.”

[25]The LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, said: “Behold, I am bringing punishment upon Amon of Thebes, and Pharaoh and Egypt and her gods and her kings, upon Pharaoh and those who trust in him. [26]‡I will deliver them into the hand of those who seek their life, into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon and his officers. Afterward Egypt shall be inhabited as in the days of old, declares the LORD.

[27]‡“But fear not, O Jacob my servant,
nor be dismayed, O Israel,
for behold, I will save you from far away,
and your offspring from the land of their captivity.

Jacob shall return and have quiet and ease,
    and none shall make him afraid.
[28]Fear not, O Jacob my servant,
declares the LORD,
    for I am with you.
I will make a full end of all the nations
    to which I have driven you,
    but of you I will not make a full end.
I will discipline you in just measure,
    and I will by no means leave you unpunished.”

Judgment on the Philistines

JEREMIAH 47 ‡The word of the LORD that came to Jeremiah the prophet concerning the Philistines, before Pharaoh struck down Gaza.

[2]“Thus says the LORD:
Behold, waters are rising out of the north,
and shall become an overflowing torrent;
they shall overflow the land and all that fills it,
the city and those who dwell in it.
Men shall cry out,
and every inhabitant of the land shall wail.
[3]At the noise of the stamping of the hoofs of his stallions, at the rushing of his chariots, at the rumbling of their wheels,
the fathers look not back to their children,
so feeble are their hands,
[4]because of the day that is coming to destroy all the Philistines, to cut off from Tyre and Sidon
every helper that remains.
For the LORD is destroying the Philistines,
the remnant of the coastland of Caphtor.
[5]Baldness has come upon Gaza;
Ashkelon has perished.
O remnant of their valley,
how long will you gash yourselves?
[6]‡Ah, sword of the LORD!
How long till you are quiet?
Put yourself into your scabbard;
rest and be still!
[7]How can it [1] be quiet
when the LORD has given it a charge?
Against Ashkelon and against the seashore
he has appointed it.”

Judgment on Moab

JEREMIAH 48 †Concerning Moab.

Thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel:

“Woe to Nebo, for it is laid waste!
Kiriathaim is put to shame, it is taken;
the fortress is put to shame and broken down;
[2]the renown of Moab is no more.
In Heshbon they planned disaster against her:
‘Come, let us cut her off from being a nation!’
You also, O Madmen, shall be brought to silence;
the sword shall pursue you.
[3]“A voice! A cry from Horonaim, ‘Desolation and great destruction!’
[4]Moab is destroyed;
her little ones have made a cry.
[5]For at the ascent of Luhith
they go up weeping; [1]
for at the descent of Horonaim
they have heard the distressed cry [2] of destruction.
[6]Flee! Save yourselves!
You will be like a juniper in the desert!
[7]†For, because you trusted in your works and your treasures,
you also shall be taken;
and Chemosh shall go into exile
with his priests and his officials.
[8]The destroyer shall come upon every city,
and no city shall escape;
the valley shall perish,
and the plain shall be destroyed,
as the Lord has spoken.
[9]“Give wings to Moab,
for she would fly away;
her cities shall become a desolation,

with no inhabitant in them.

[10]†“Cursed is he who does the work of the LORD with slackness, and cursed is he who keeps back his sword from bloodshed.

[11]‡“Moab has been at ease from his youth and has settled on his dregs;
he has not been emptied from vessel to vessel,
nor has he gone into exile;
so his taste remains in him,
and his scent is not changed.

[12]“Therefore, behold, the days are coming, declares the LORD, when I shall send to him pourers who will pour him, and empty his vessels and break his [3] jars in pieces. [13]Then Moab shall be ashamed of Chemosh, as the house of Israel was ashamed of Bethel, their confidence.

[14]“How do you say, ‘We are heroes and mighty men of war’?
[15]The destroyer of Moab and his cities has come up, and the choicest of his young men have gone down to slaughter,
declares the King, whose name is the LORD of hosts.
[16]The calamity of Moab is near at hand,
and his affliction hastens swiftly.
[17]Grieve for him, all you who are around him,
and all who know his name;
say, ‘How the mighty scepter is broken,
the glorious staff.’
[18]‡“Come down from your glory,
and sit on the parched ground,
O inhabitant of Dibon!
For the destroyer of Moab has come up against you;
he has destroyed your strongholds.
[19]Stand by the way and watch,
O inhabitant of Aroer!
Ask him who flees and her who escapes;
say, ‘What has happened?’
[20]Moab is put to shame, for it is broken;

wail and cry!
Tell it beside the Arnon,
that Moab is laid waste.

[21]“Judgment has come upon the tableland, upon Holon, and Jahzah, and Mephaath, [22]and Dibon, and Nebo, and Beth-diblathaim, [23]and Kiriathaim, and Beth-gamul, and Beth-meon, [24]†and Kerioth, and Bozrah, and all the cities of the land of Moab, far and near. [25]†The horn of Moab is cut off, and his arm is broken, declares the LORD.

[26]†“Make him drunk, because he magnified himself against the LORD, so that Moab shall wallow in his vomit, and he too shall be held in derision. [27]Was not Israel a derision to you? Was he found among thieves, that whenever you spoke of him you wagged your head?

[28]“Leave the cities, and dwell in the rock,
O inhabitants of Moab!
Be like the dove that nests
in the sides of the mouth of a gorge.
[29]†We have heard of the pride of Moab—
he is very proud—
of his loftiness, his pride, and his arrogance,
and the haughtiness of his heart.
[30]I know his insolence, declares the LORD;
his boasts are false,
his deeds are false.
[31]Therefore I wail for Moab;
I cry out for all Moab;
for the men of Kir-hareseth I mourn.
[32]More than for Jazer I weep for you,
O vine of Sibmah!
Your branches passed over the sea,
reached to the Sea of Jazer;
on your summer fruits and your grapes
the destroyer has fallen.
[33]Gladness and joy have been taken away from the fruitful land of Moab;
I have made the wine cease from the winepresses;

no one treads them with shouts of joy;
the shouting is not the shout of joy.

[34]“From the outcry at Heshbon even to Elealeh, as far as Jahaz they utter their voice, from Zoar to Horonaim and Eglath-shelishiyah. For the waters of Nimrim also have become desolate. [35]And I will bring to an end in Moab, declares the LORD, him who offers sacrifice in the high place and makes offerings to his god. [36]Therefore my heart moans for Moab like a flute, and my heart moans like a flute for the men of Kir-hareseth. Therefore the riches they gained have perished.

[37]“For every head is shaved and every beard cut off. On all the hands are gashes, and around the waist is sackcloth. [38]On all the housetops of Moab and in the squares there is nothing but lamentation, for I have broken Moab like a vessel for which no one cares, declares the LORD. [39]How it is broken! How they wail! How Moab has turned his back in shame! So Moab has become a derision and a horror to all that are around him.”

[40]For thus says the LORD:
“Behold, one shall fly swiftly like an eagle and spread his wings against Moab; [41]the cities shall be taken and the strongholds seized.
The heart of the warriors of Moab shall be in that day
like the heart of a woman in her birth pains; [42]Moab shall be destroyed and be no longer a people, because he magnified himself against the LORD.
[43]Terror, pit, and snare are before you, O inhabitant of Moab!
declares the LORD.
[44]He who flees from the terror
shall fall into the pit,
and he who climbs out of the pit
shall be caught in the snare.
For I will bring these things upon Moab,
the year of their punishment,
declares the LORD.
[45]“In the shadow of Heshbon fugitives stop without strength, for fire came out from Heshbon,

flame from the house of Sihon;
it has destroyed the forehead of Moab,
the crown of the sons of tumult.
46Woe to you, O Moab!
The people of Chemosh are undone,
for your sons have been taken captive,
and your daughters into captivity.
47†Yet I will restore the fortunes of Moab
in the latter days, declares the LORD.”
Thus far is the judgment on Moab.

Judgment on Ammon

JEREMIAH 49 †Concerning the Ammonites.

Thus says the LORD:

“Has Israel no sons?
Has he no heir?
Why then has Milcom dispossessed Gad,
and his people settled in its cities?
[2]†Therefore, behold, the days are coming,
declares the LORD,
when I will cause the battle cry to be heard against Rabbah of the Ammonites;
it shall become a desolate mound,
and its villages shall be burned with fire;
then Israel shall dispossess those who dispossessed him,
says the LORD.
[3]“Wail, O Heshbon, for Ai is laid waste!
Cry out, O daughters of Rabbah!
Put on sackcloth,
lament, and run to and fro among the hedges!
For Milcom shall go into exile,
with his priests and his officials.
[4]†Why do you boast of your valleys, [1]
O faithless daughter,
who trusted in her treasures, saying,
‘Who will come against me?’
[5]Behold, I will bring terror upon you,
declares the Lord GOD of hosts,
from all who are around you,
and you shall be driven out, every man straight before him,
with none to gather the fugitives.

[6]†“But afterward I will restore the fortunes of the Ammonites, declares the LORD.”

Judgment on Edom

[7]†Concerning Edom.

Thus says the LORD of hosts:

“Is wisdom no more in Teman?
Has counsel perished from the prudent?
Has their wisdom vanished?
[8]†Flee, turn back, dwell in the depths,
O inhabitants of Dedan!
For I will bring the calamity of Esau upon him,
the time when I punish him.
[9]†If grape-gatherers came to you,
would they not leave gleanings?
If thieves came by night,
would they not destroy only enough for themselves?
[10]†But I have stripped Esau bare;
I have uncovered his hiding places,
and he is not able to conceal himself.
His children are destroyed, and his brothers,
and his neighbors; and he is no more.
[11]†Leave your fatherless children; I will keep them alive;
and let your widows trust in me.”

[12]†For thus says the LORD: “If those who did not deserve to drink the cup must drink it, will you go unpunished? You shall not go unpunished, but you must drink. [13]For I have sworn by myself, declares the LORD, that Bozrah shall become a horror, a taunt, a waste, and a curse, and all her cities shall be perpetual wastes.”

[14]I have heard a message from the LORD,
and an envoy has been sent among the nations:
“Gather yourselves together and come against her,
and rise up for battle!
[15]For behold, I will make you small among the nations, despised among mankind.

[16]‡The horror you inspire has deceived you,
and the pride of your heart,
you who live in the clefts of the rock, [2]
who hold the height of the hill.
Though you make your nest as high as the eagle's,
I will bring you down from there,
declares the Lord.

[17]“Edom shall become a horror. Everyone who passes by it will be horrified and will hiss because of all its disasters. [18]As when Sodom and Gomorrah and their neighboring cities were overthrown, says the Lord, no man shall dwell there, no man shall sojourn in her. [19]‡Behold, like a lion coming up from the jungle of the Jordan against a perennial pasture, I will suddenly make him [3] run away from her. And I will appoint over her whomever I choose. For who is like me? Who will summon me? What shepherd can stand before me? [20]‡Therefore hear the plan that the Lord has made against Edom and the purposes that he has formed against the inhabitants of Teman: Even the little ones of the flock shall be dragged away. Surely their fold shall be appalled at their fate. [21]At the sound of their fall the earth shall tremble; the sound of their cry shall be heard at the Red Sea. [22]Behold, one shall mount up and fly swiftly like an eagle and spread his wings against Bozrah, and the heart of the warriors of Edom shall be in that day like the heart of a woman in her birth pains.”

Judgment on Damascus

[23]‡Concerning Damascus:

“Hamath and Arpad are confounded,
for they have heard bad news;
they melt in fear,
they are troubled like the sea that cannot be quiet.
[24]Damascus has become feeble, she turned to flee,
and panic seized her;
anguish and sorrows have taken hold of her,
as of a woman in labor.
[25]‡How is the famous city not forsaken,

the city of my joy?
[26]Therefore her young men shall fall in her squares,
and all her soldiers shall be destroyed in that day,
declares the LORD of hosts.
[27]†And I will kindle a fire in the wall of Damascus, and it shall devour the strongholds of Ben-hadad.”

Judgment on Kedar and Hazor

[28]‡Concerning Kedar and the kingdoms of Hazor that Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon struck down.

Thus says the LORD:
“Rise up, advance against Kedar!
Destroy the people of the east!
[29]Their tents and their flocks shall be taken,
their curtains and all their goods;
their camels shall be led away from them,
and men shall cry to them: ‘Terror on every side!’
[30]Flee, wander far away, dwell in the depths,
O inhabitants of Hazor!
declares the LORD.
For Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon has made a plan against you
and formed a purpose against you.
[31]†“Rise up, advance against a nation at ease,
that dwells securely,
declares the LORD,
that has no gates or bars,
that dwells alone.
[32]Their camels shall become plunder,
their herds of livestock a spoil.
I will scatter to every wind
those who cut the corners of their hair, and I will bring their calamity
from every side of them,
declares the LORD.

[33]Hazor shall become a haunt of jackals,
    an everlasting waste;
no man shall dwell there;
    no man shall sojourn in her.”

Judgment on Elam

[34]††The word of the LORD that came to Jeremiah the prophet concerning Elam, in the beginning of the reign of Zedekiah king of Judah.

[35]†Thus says the LORD of hosts: “Behold, I will break the bow of Elam, the mainstay of their might. [36]And I will bring upon Elam the four winds from the four quarters of heaven. And I will scatter them to all those winds, and there shall be no nation to which those driven out of Elam shall not come. [37]I will terrify Elam before their enemies and before those who seek their life. I will bring disaster upon them, my fierce anger, declares the LORD. I will send the sword after them, until I have consumed them, [38]and I will set my throne in Elam and destroy their king and officials, declares the LORD.

[39]†“But in the latter days I will restore the fortunes of Elam, declares the LORD.”

Judgment on Babylon

JEREMIAH 50 ‡The word that the LORD spoke concerning Babylon, concerning the land of the Chaldeans, by Jeremiah the prophet:

[2]‡“Declare among the nations and proclaim,
set up a banner and proclaim,
conceal it not, and say:
‘Babylon is taken,
Bel is put to shame,
Merodach is dismayed.
Her images are put to shame,
her idols are dismayed.’

[3]‡“For out of the north a nation has come up against her, which shall make her land a desolation, and none shall dwell in it; both man and beast shall flee away.

[4]‡“In those days and in that time, declares the LORD, the people of Israel and the people of Judah shall come together, weeping as they come, and they shall seek the LORD their God. [5]‡They shall ask the way to Zion, with faces turned toward it, saying, ‘Come, let us join ourselves to the LORD in an everlasting covenant that will never be forgotten.’

[6]“My people have been lost sheep. Their shepherds have led them astray, turning them away on the mountains. From mountain to hill they have gone. They have forgotten their fold. [7]All who found them have devoured them, and their enemies have said, ‘We are not guilty, for they have sinned against the LORD, their habitation of righteousness, the LORD, the hope of their fathers.’

[8]“Flee from the midst of Babylon, and go out of the land of the Chaldeans, and be as male goats before the flock. [9]For behold, I am stirring up and bringing against Babylon a gathering of great nations, from the north country. And they shall array themselves against her. From there she shall be taken. Their arrows are like a skilled warrior who does not return empty-handed. [10]Chaldea shall be plundered; all who plunder her shall be sated, declares the LORD.

[11]‡“Though you rejoice, though you exult,
O plunderers of my heritage,
though you frolic like a heifer in the pasture,
and neigh like stallions, [12]your mother shall be utterly shamed,
and she who bore you shall be disgraced.
Behold, she shall be the last of the nations,
a wilderness, a dry land, and a desert.
[13]Because of the wrath of the LORD she shall not be inhabited but shall be an utter desolation;
everyone who passes by Babylon shall be appalled,
and hiss because of all her wounds.
[14]Set yourselves in array against Babylon all around,
all you who bend the bow;
shoot at her, spare no arrows,
for she has sinned against the LORD.
[15]Raise a shout against her all around;
she has surrendered;
her bulwarks have fallen;
her walls are thrown down.
For this is the vengeance of the LORD:
take vengeance on her;
do to her as she has done.
[16]Cut off from Babylon the sower, and the one who handles the sickle in time of harvest;
because of the sword of the oppressor,
every one shall turn to his own people,
and every one shall flee to his own land.

[17]‡“Israel is a hunted sheep driven away by lions. First the king of Assyria devoured him, and now at last Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon has gnawed his bones. [18]Therefore, thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel: Behold, I am bringing punishment on the king of Babylon and his land, as I punished the king of Assyria. [19]I will restore Israel to his pasture, and he shall feed on Carmel and in Bashan, and his desire shall be satisfied on the hills of Ephraim and in Gilead. [20]In those days and in that time, declares the LORD, iniquity shall be sought in Israel, and there shall be none, and sin in Judah, and none shall be found, for I will pardon those whom I leave as a remnant.

[21]†“Go up against the land of Merathaim, [1]
    and against the inhabitants of Pekod. [2] Kill, and devote them to destruction, [3]
declares the LORD,
    and do all that I have commanded you.
[22]The noise of battle is in the land,
    and great destruction!
[23]†How the hammer of the whole earth
    is cut down and broken!
How Babylon has become
    a horror among the nations!
[24]I set a snare for you and you were taken, O Babylon,
    and you did not know it;
you were found and caught,
    because you opposed the LORD.
[25]The LORD has opened his armory and brought out the weapons of his wrath, for the Lord GOD of hosts has a work to do in the land of the Chaldeans.
[26]Come against her from every quarter;
    open her granaries;
pile her up like heaps of grain, and devote her to destruction;
    let nothing be left of her.
[27]Kill all her bulls;
    let them go down to the slaughter.
Woe to them, for their day has come,
    the time of their punishment.

[28]†“A voice! They flee and escape from the land of Babylon, to declare in Zion the vengeance of the LORD our God, vengeance for his temple.

[29]†“Summon archers against Babylon, all those who bend the bow. Encamp around her; let no one escape. Repay her according to her deeds; do to her according to all that she has done. For she has proudly defied the LORD, the Holy One of Israel. [30]Therefore her young men shall fall in her squares, and all her soldiers shall be destroyed on that day, declares the LORD.

[31]“Behold, I am against you, O proud one,
declares the Lord GOD of hosts,
for your day has come,
the time when I will punish you.
[32]The proud one shall stumble and fall,
with none to raise him up,
and I will kindle a fire in his cities,
and it will devour all that is around him.

[33]“Thus says the LORD of hosts: The people of Israel are oppressed, and the people of Judah with them. All who took them captive have held them fast; they refuse to let them go. [34]‡Their Redeemer is strong; the LORD of hosts is his name. He will surely plead their cause, that he may give rest to the earth, but unrest to the inhabitants of Babylon.

[35]‡“A sword against the Chaldeans, declares the LORD, and against the inhabitants of Babylon,
and against her officials and her wise men!
[36]A sword against the diviners,
that they may become fools!
A sword against her warriors,
that they may be destroyed!
[37]A sword against her horses and against her chariots,
and against all the foreign troops in her midst,
that they may become women!
A sword against all her treasures,
that they may be plundered!
[38]A drought against her waters,
that they may be dried up!
For it is a land of images,
and they are mad over idols.

[39]“Therefore wild beasts shall dwell with hyenas in Babylon, and ostriches shall dwell in her. She shall never again have people, nor be inhabited for all generations. [40]†As when God overthrew Sodom and Gomorrah and their neighboring cities, declares the LORD, so no man shall dwell there, and no son of man shall sojourn in her.

[41]‡†“Behold, a people comes from the north;
a mighty nation and many kings
are stirring from the farthest parts of the earth.
[42]They lay hold of bow and spear;
they are cruel and have no mercy.
The sound of them is like the roaring of the sea;
they ride on horses,
arrayed as a man for battle against you, O daughter of Babylon!
[43]“The king of Babylon heard the report of them,
and his hands fell helpless;
anguish seized him,
pain as of a woman in labor.

[44]“Behold, like a lion coming up from the thicket of the Jordan against a perennial pasture, I will suddenly make them run away from her, and I will appoint over her whomever I choose. For who is like me? Who will summon me? What shepherd can stand before me? [45]Therefore hear the plan that the LORD has made against Babylon, and the purposes that he has formed against the land of the Chaldeans: Surely the little ones of their flock shall be dragged away; surely their fold shall be appalled at their fate. [46]At the sound of the capture of Babylon the earth shall tremble, and her cry shall be heard among the nations.”

The Utter Destruction of Babylon

JEREMIAH 51 ‡Thus says the Lord: “Behold, I will stir up the spirit of a destroyer against Babylon,
against the inhabitants of Leb-kamai, [1] [2]and I will send to Babylon winnowers, and they shall winnow her,
and they shall empty her land,
when they come against her from every side
on the day of trouble.
[3]Let not the archer bend his bow,
and let him not stand up in his armor.
Spare not her young men;
devote to destruction [2] all her army.
[4]They shall fall down slain in the land of the Chaldeans, and wounded in her streets.
[5]†For Israel and Judah have not been forsaken by their God, the Lord of hosts, but the land of the Chaldeans [3] is full of guilt
against the Holy One of Israel.
[6]“Flee from the midst of Babylon;
let every one save his life!
Be not cut off in her punishment,
for this is the time of the Lord's vengeance,
the repayment he is rendering her.
[7]Babylon was a golden cup in the Lord's hand, making all the earth drunken;
the nations drank of her wine;
therefore the nations went mad.
[8]†Suddenly Babylon has fallen and been broken;
wail for her!
Take balm for her pain;
perhaps she may be healed.
[9]We would have healed Babylon,

but she was not healed.
Forsake her, and let us go
each to his own country,
for her judgment has reached up to heaven
and has been lifted up even to the skies.
[10]The LORD has brought about our vindication; come, let us declare in Zion
the work of the LORD our God.
[11]†“Sharpen the arrows!
Take up the shields!

The LORD has stirred up the spirit of the kings of the Medes, because his purpose concerning Babylon is to destroy it, for that is the vengeance of the LORD, the vengeance for his temple.

[12]“Set up a standard against the walls of Babylon;
make the watch strong;
set up watchmen;
prepare the ambushes;
for the LORD has both planned and done
what he spoke concerning the inhabitants of Babylon.
[13]O you who dwell by many waters,
rich in treasures,
your end has come;
the thread of your life is cut.
[14]The LORD of hosts has sworn by himself:
Surely I will fill you with men, as many as locusts,
and they shall raise the shout of victory over you.
[15]†“It is he who made the earth by his power,
who established the world by his wisdom,
and by his understanding stretched out the heavens.
[16]When he utters his voice there is a tumult of waters in the heavens,
and he makes the mist rise from the ends of the earth.
He makes lightning for the rain,
and he brings forth the wind from his storehouses.
[17]Every man is stupid and without knowledge;
every goldsmith is put to shame by his idols,
for his images are false,

and there is no breath in them.
[18]They are worthless, a work of delusion;
at the time of their punishment they shall perish.
[19]Not like these is he who is the portion of Jacob,
for he is the one who formed all things,
and Israel is the tribe of his inheritance;
the LORD of hosts is his name.
[20]‡“You are my hammer and weapon of war:
with you I break nations in pieces;
with you I destroy kingdoms;
[21]with you I break in pieces the horse and his rider;
with you I break in pieces the chariot and the charioteer;
[22]with you I break in pieces man and woman;
with you I break in pieces the old man and the youth;
with you I break in pieces the young man and the young woman;
[23]with you I break in pieces the shepherd and his flock;
with you I break in pieces the farmer and his team;
with you I break in pieces governors and commanders.

[24]“I will repay Babylon and all the inhabitants of Chaldea before your very eyes for all the evil that they have done in Zion, declares the LORD.

[25]†“Behold, I am against you, O destroying mountain,
declares the LORD,
which destroys the whole earth;
I will stretch out my hand against you,
and roll you down from the crags,
and make you a burnt mountain.
[26]No stone shall be taken from you for a corner and no stone for a foundation, but you shall be a perpetual waste,
declares the LORD.
[27]†“Set up a standard on the earth;
blow the trumpet among the nations;
prepare the nations for war against her;
summon against her the kingdoms, Ararat, Minni, and Ashkenaz;
appoint a marshal against her;

bring up horses like bristling locusts.
[28]Prepare the nations for war against her,
the kings of the Medes, with their governors and deputies,
and every land under their dominion.
[29]The land trembles and writhes in pain,
for the LORD's purposes against Babylon stand,
to make the land of Babylon a desolation,
without inhabitant.
[30]The warriors of Babylon have ceased fighting;
they remain in their strongholds;
their strength has failed;
they have become women;
her dwellings are on fire;
her bars are broken.
[31][†]One runner runs to meet another,
and one messenger to meet another,
to tell the king of Babylon
that his city is taken on every side; [32][†]the fords have been seized,
the marshes are burned with fire,
and the soldiers are in panic.
[33]For thus says the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel:
The daughter of Babylon is like a threshing floor
at the time when it is trodden;
yet a little while
and the time of her harvest will come.” [34]“Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon has devoured me;
he has crushed me;
he has made me an empty vessel;
he has swallowed me like a monster;
he has filled his stomach with my delicacies;
he has rinsed me out. [4] [35]The violence done to me and to my kinsmen be upon Babylon,” let the inhabitant of Zion say.
“My blood be upon the inhabitants of Chaldea,” let Jerusalem say.
[36]Therefore thus says the LORD:

“Behold, I will plead your cause and take vengeance for you.
I will dry up her sea
and make her fountain dry, [37]and Babylon shall become a heap of ruins,
the haunt of jackals,
a horror and a hissing,
without inhabitant.
[38]“They shall roar together like lions;
they shall growl like lions' cubs.
[39]†While they are inflamed I will prepare them a feast and make them drunk, that they may become merry, then sleep a perpetual sleep and not wake, declares the LORD.
[40]I will bring them down like lambs to the slaughter,
like rams and male goats.
[41]“How Babylon [5] is taken,
the praise of the whole earth seized!
How Babylon has become
a horror among the nations!
[42]The sea has come up on Babylon;
she is covered with its tumultuous waves.
[43]Her cities have become a horror,
a land of drought and a desert,
a land in which no one dwells,
and through which no son of man passes.
[44]And I will punish Bel in Babylon, and take out of his mouth what he has swallowed.
The nations shall no longer flow to him;
the wall of Babylon has fallen.
[45]‡“Go out of the midst of her, my people!
Let every one save his life
from the fierce anger of the LORD!
[46]Let not your heart faint, and be not fearful
at the report heard in the land,
when a report comes in one year
and afterward a report in another year,

and violence is in the land,
    and ruler is against ruler.
[47]“Therefore, behold, the days are coming
    when I will punish the images of Babylon;
her whole land shall be put to shame,
    and all her slain shall fall in the midst of her.
[48]Then the heavens and the earth,
    and all that is in them,
shall sing for joy over Babylon,
    for the destroyers shall come against them out of the north,
declares the LORD.
[49]Babylon must fall for the slain of Israel,
    just as for Babylon have fallen the slain of all the earth.
[50]“You who have escaped from the sword,
    go, do not stand still!
Remember the LORD from far away,
    and let Jerusalem come into your mind:
[51]‘We are put to shame, for we have heard reproach;
    dishonor has covered our face,
for foreigners have come into the holy places of the LORD's house.’ [52]“Therefore, behold, the days are coming, declares the LORD, when I will execute judgment upon her images,
and through all her land
    the wounded shall groan.
[53]Though Babylon should mount up to heaven,
    and though she should fortify her strong height,
yet destroyers would come from me against her,
    declares the LORD.
[54]“A voice! A cry from Babylon!
    The noise of great destruction from the land of the Chaldeans!
[55]For the LORD is laying Babylon waste and stilling her mighty voice.
Their waves roar like many waters;
    the noise of their voice is raised, [56]for a destroyer has come upon her,
    upon Babylon;

her warriors are taken;
their bows are broken in pieces,
for the LORD is a God of recompense;
he will surely repay.
[57]I will make drunk her officials and her wise men,
her governors, her commanders, and her warriors;
they shall sleep a perpetual sleep and not wake,
declares the King, whose name is the LORD of hosts.
[58]†“Thus says the LORD of hosts:
The broad wall of Babylon shall be leveled to the ground, and her high gates
shall be burned with fire.
The peoples labor for nothing,
and the nations weary themselves only for fire.”

[59]†The word that Jeremiah the prophet commanded Seraiah the son of Neriah, son of Mahseiah, when he went with Zedekiah king of Judah to Babylon, in the fourth year of his reign. Seraiah was the quartermaster. [60]‡Jeremiah wrote in a book all the disaster that should come upon Babylon, all these words that are written concerning Babylon. [61]And Jeremiah said to Seraiah: “When you come to Babylon, see that you read all these words, [62]and say, ‘O LORD, you have said concerning this place that you will cut it off, so that nothing shall dwell in it, neither man nor beast, and it shall be desolate forever.’ [63]When you finish reading this book, tie a stone to it and cast it into the midst of the Euphrates, [64]and say, ‘Thus shall Babylon sink, to rise no more, because of the disaster that I am bringing upon her, and they shall become exhausted.’”

Thus far are the words of Jeremiah.

The Fall of Jerusalem Recounted

JEREMIAH 52 ‡†Zedekiah was twenty-one years old when he became king; and he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem. His mother's name was Hamutal the daughter of Jeremiah of Libnah. [2]And he did what was evil in the sight of the LORD, according to all that Jehoiakim had done. [3]For because of the anger of the LORD things came to the point in Jerusalem and Judah that he cast them out from his presence.

And Zedekiah rebelled against the king of Babylon. [4]‡†And in the ninth year of his reign, in the tenth month, on the tenth day of the month, Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon came with all his army against Jerusalem, and laid siege to it. And they built siegeworks all around it. [5]So the city was besieged till the eleventh year of King Zedekiah. [6]On the ninth day of the fourth month the famine was so severe in the city that there was no food for the people of the land. [7]Then a breach was made in the city, and all the men of war fled and went out from the city by night by the way of a gate between the two walls, by the king's garden, while the Chaldeans were around the city. And they went in the direction of the Arabah. [8]But the army of the Chaldeans pursued the king and overtook Zedekiah in the plains of Jericho. And all his army was scattered from him. [9]Then they captured the king and brought him up to the king of Babylon at Riblah in the land of Hamath, and he passed sentence on him. [10]The king of Babylon slaughtered the sons of Zedekiah before his eyes, and also slaughtered all the officials of Judah at Riblah. [11]He put out the eyes of Zedekiah, and bound him in chains, and the king of Babylon took him to Babylon, and put him in prison till the day of his death.

The Temple Burned

[12]†In the fifth month, on the tenth day of the month—that was the nineteenth year of King Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon—Nebuzaradan the captain of the bodyguard, who served the king of Babylon, entered Jerusalem. [13]And he burned the house of the LORD, and the king's house and all the houses of Jerusalem; every great house he burned down. [14]And all the army of the Chaldeans, who were with the captain of the guard, broke down all the walls around Jerusalem. [15]And Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard carried away captive some of the poorest of the people and the rest of the people who were left in the city and the deserters who had deserted to the king of Babylon, together with the rest of the artisans. [16]But Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard left some of the poorest of the land to be vinedressers and plowmen.

[17]And the pillars of bronze that were in the house of the LORD, and the stands and the bronze sea that were in the house of the LORD, the Chaldeans broke in pieces, and carried all the bronze to Babylon. [18]‡And they took away the pots and the shovels and the snuffers and the basins and the dishes for incense and all the vessels of bronze used in the temple service; [19]also the small bowls and the fire pans and the basins and the pots and the lampstands and the dishes for incense and the bowls for drink offerings. What was of gold the captain of the guard took away as gold, and what was of silver, as silver. [20]As for the two pillars, the one sea, the twelve bronze bulls that were under the sea, [1] and the stands, which Solomon the king had made for the house of the LORD, the bronze of all these things was beyond weight. [21]As for the pillars, the height of the one pillar was eighteen cubits, [2] its circumference was twelve cubits, and its thickness was four fingers, and it was hollow. [22]†On it was a capital of bronze. The height of the one capital was five cubits. A network and pomegranates, all of bronze, were around the capital. And the second pillar had the same, with pomegranates. [23]There were ninety-six pomegranates on the sides; all the pomegranates were a hundred upon the network all around.

The People Exiled to Babylon

[24]‡And the captain of the guard took Seraiah the chief priest, and Zephaniah the second priest, and the three keepers of the threshold; [25]†and from the city he took an officer who had been in command of the men of war, and seven men of the king's council, who were found in the city; and the secretary of the commander of the army who mustered the people of the land; and sixty men of the people of the land, who were found in the midst of the city. [26]And Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard took them and brought them to the king of Babylon at Riblah. [27]And the king of Babylon struck them down, and put them to death at Riblah in the land of Hamath. So Judah was taken into exile out of its land.

[28]‡This is the number of the people whom Nebuchadnezzar carried away captive: in the seventh year, 3,023 Judeans; [29]in the eighteenth year of Nebuchadnezzar he carried away captive from Jerusalem 832 persons; [30]in the twenty-third year of Nebuchadnezzar, Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard carried away captive of the Judeans 745 persons; all the persons were 4,600.

Jehoiachin Released from Prison

[31]‡†And in the thirty-seventh year of the exile of Jehoiachin king of Judah, in the twelfth month, on the twenty-fifth day of the month, Evil-merodach king of Babylon, in the year that he became king, graciously freed [3] Jehoiachin king of Judah and brought him out of prison. [32]And he spoke kindly to him, and gave him a seat above the seats of the kings who were with him in Babylon. [33]So Jehoiachin put off his prison garments. And every day of his life he dined regularly at the king's table, [34]and for his allowance, a regular allowance was given him by the king according to his daily need, until the day of his death, as long as he lived.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 1:1 Anathoth. A town in the territory of Benjamin, 3 miles north of Jerusalem, assigned to the Levites (cf. Josh. 21:18) where Abiathar had once lived (1 Kings 2:26).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 1:2 in the days of. Jeremiah’s ministry spanned at least five decades—from Judah’s king Josiah (thirteenth year, 627 B.C.) to the final king, Zedekiah, in his last year (586 B.C.).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 1:3 fifth month. Babylonian conquerors began deporting Judeans into captivity in the Hebrew month Ab (July/August) in 586 B.C. (52:12; 2 Kings 25:8–11), shortly after breaking into Jerusalem on the fourth month and ninth day (Jer. 39:2; 52:6).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 1:5 Before I formed you. This is not reincarnation; it is God’s all-knowing cognizance of Jeremiah and sovereign plan for him before he was conceived (cf. Paul's similar realization, Gal. 1:15).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 1:6 Jeremiah's response points out his inability and his inexperience. If as a young man he was 20–25 years old in 626 B.C., he was 60–65 in 586 B.C. when Jerusalem fell (ch. 39), and 85–90 if he lived to the time of 52:31–34 (c. 561 B.C.).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 1:7–10 The power backing Jeremiah's service was God's presence and provision (cf. 2 Cor. 3:5).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 1:9 my words in your mouth. God used him as his mouthpiece, speaking his message (15:19); thus, Jeremiah's fitting response was to receive God's word (15:16).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 1:10 set you . . . over. Because God spoke through Jeremiah, the message has divine authority.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 1:11–16 Illustrations of God's charge were twofold. First, there was the sign of the almond rod. The almond tree was literally "the wakeful tree," because it awakened from the sleep of winter earlier than the other trees, blooming in January. It was a symbol of God's early judgment, as Jeremiah announced (605–586 B.C.). Second, the boiling pot pictured the Babylonian invaders bringing judgment on Judah (cf. 20:4).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 1:17–19 Jeremiah's part was proclamation, as God's mouthpiece (v. 17); God's part was preservation in defending the prophet (vv. 18–19). God did protect him often, e.g., 11:18–23; 20:1ff.; and 38:7–13.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 2:1–3 Jerusalem . . . Israel. Jeremiah pointed to the sensitivity of the Lord and his care for them in the early history (v. 21). After centuries, many were: 1) far from God, whom they had forsaken (vv. 5, 31); 2) deep in idolatry (vv. 11, 27–28); and 3) without true salvation (v. 8; 5:10a).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 2:3 firstfruits of his harvest. Israel was first to worship the true God (Ex. 19:5–6) through his covenant with Abraham (Gen. 12:1–3), which also assured his intent to bless peoples from all nations (Jer. 16:19–21; Dan. 7:27).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 2:8 priests . . . prophets. Leaders, who did not really know the Lord, set the idolatrous pattern for others (cf. Hos. 4:6).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 2:13 two evils. First, Israel had abandoned the Lord, the source of spiritual salvation and sustenance (cf. 17:8; Ps. 36:9; John 4:14). Second, Israel turned to idolatrous objects of trust; Jeremiah compared these with underground water storage devices for rainwater, which were broken and let water seep out, thus proving useless.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 2:14 How is it that a people under God’s special care are left at the mercy of an enemy, like a worthless slave?

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 2:15 lions. The figure represents invading soldiers that burned cities (cf. 4:7), perhaps a reference to the disaster from the Babylonians during Jehoiakim’s fourth year, and again three years later when he relied on Egypt (cf. 20:4; 46:2; 2 Kings 24:1–2).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 2:16 Memphis . . . Tahpanhes. These two cities in Egypt stood for the country itself.

Major Trials of Jeremiah
1. Trial By Death Threats (11:18–23)
2. Trial By Isolation (15:15–21)
3. Trial By Stocks (19:14–20:18)
4. Trial By Arrest (26:7–24)
5. Trial By Challenge (28:10–16)
6. Trial By Destruction (36:1–32)
7. Trial By Violence and Imprisonment (37:15)

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 2:18 Dependence on alliances with Egypt and Assyria was part of national undoing, a source of shame (vv. 36–37).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 2:19 apostasy. Cf. 3:6, 8, 11–12, 14, 22; 8:5; 31:22; 49:4; Isa. 57:17; Hos. 11:7; 14:4. For clarification of the meaning, see note on Prov. 14:14.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 2:23 the Baals. An inclusive term referring collectively to false deities. camel. The nation, in chasing other idols, is depicted as a female camel pursuing its instinct, and as a wild donkey in heat sniffing the wind to find a mate, craving to attract others of its kind. Other pictures of Israel are that of a thief, who is ashamed when exposed (v. 26), and that of a virgin or a bride who forgets what beautifies her (v. 32).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 3:1 If a man divorces. Such a man was not to take that woman as his wife again, for this would defile her (Deut. 24:4) and be a scandal. Jeremiah used this analogy to picture Israel as a harlot in the spiritual realm, with many lovers, i.e., nations (Jer. 2:18, 25) and idols (2:23–25; 3:2, 6–9). Yet, the Lord would graciously receive Israel or Judah back as his wife if she would repent (3:12–14).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 3:6 faithless. Also vv. 8, 11–12, 14. See note on Prov. 14:14.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 3:8 I had sent her away with a decree of divorce. Though God hates divorce (Mal. 2:16), it is tolerated for unrepentant adultery (see notes on Matt. 5:32; 19:8–9), as indicated by this analogy of God's divorcing Israel for that continual sin in the spiritual realm. God had divorced Israel but not yet Judah (cf. Isa. 50:1). Cf. Ezra 10:3, where divorce is the right action of God's people to separate from idolatrous wives.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 3:14 I am your master. God pictured his covenant relationship with Israel as a marriage, and pleaded with mercy for Judah to repent and return. He will take her back. Cf. Hosea's restoration of Gomer as a picture of God taking back his wicked, adulterous people.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 3:15–18 In those days. When Israel repents (vv. 13–14, 22), which has not happened, but will in the millennial era of God's restoration that the prophets often describe (23:5–6; 30–33; Ezek. 36), God will bring these blessings: 1) shepherds to teach them the truth; 2) his own immediate presence on the throne in Jerusalem, not just the ark of his covenant; 3) allegiance even of Gentile nations; 4) righteousness; 5) genuineness in worship; 6) unity of Israel (north) and Judah (south) into one kingdom; and 7) reestablishment in their own Promised Land.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 3:19 set you among my sons. Here is a reference to adoption into God's family, when the people turn back from idols to acknowledge him as "Father."

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 3:20 a treacherous wife leaves. Hosea had earlier used this same imagery (c. 755–710 B.C.). Thus God had given the divorce because the spiritual adultery was unrepentant. But when repentance comes, he will take Israel back (cf. 3:1). O . . . Israel. Since the irretrievable dispersion of Israel in the north (722 B.C.) Judah alone was left to be called by the name Israel, as Jeremiah sometimes chose to do (e.g., 3:20–23).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 4:3 Break up. Jeremiah appealed for a spiritual turnabout from sinful, wasteful lives. He pictured this as the plowing of ground, formerly hard and unproductive due to weeds, in order to make it useful for sowing (cf. Matt. 13:18–23).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 4:4 Circumcise. This surgery (Gen. 17:10–14) was to cut away flesh that could hold disease in its folds and could pass the disease on to wives. It was important for the preservation of God's people physically. But it was also a symbol of the need for the heart to be cleansed from sin's deadly disease. The really essential surgery needed to happen on the inside, where God calls for taking away fleshly things that keep the heart from being spiritually devoted to him and from true faith in him and his will. Jeremiah later expanded on this theme (Jer. 31:31–34; cf. Deut. 10:16; 30:6; Rom. 2:29). God selected the reproductive organ as the location of the symbol for man's need of cleansing for sin, because it is the instrument most indicative of his depravity, since by it he reproduces generations of sinners.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 4:6–7 disaster from the north. This evil is Babylon's army, which would invade from that direction. The "lion" on the prowl fit Babylon because of its conquering power, and Babylon was symbolized by the winged lions guarding its royal court. Babylon is later identified in 20:4. Many details in ch. 4 graphically depict warriors in conquest (vv. 7, 13, 29).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 4:10 deceived. Like Habakkuk (1:12–17), Jeremiah was horrified at these words of judgment, contrasting the prevailing hope of peace. God is sometimes described as if doing a thing he merely permits, such as allowing false prophets who delude themselves to also deceive a sinful people into thinking peace would follow (cf. Jer. 6:14; 8:11; 1 Kings 22:21–24). God sees how people insist on their delusions, and lets it happen.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 4:14 wash. Jeremiah continued to appeal for a dealing with sin so that national destruction might be averted (v. 20), while there was still time to repent (cf. chs. 7; 26).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 4:22 'wise'—in doing evil! Israelites were wise or clever in doing evil but were dull in knowing to do the good, i.e., God's will. Paul, applying the principle but turning it to the positive, wanted the believers at Rome to be wise to do good but unlearned in the skill of doing evil (Rom. 16:19).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 4:23 without form. Jeremiah may be borrowing the language, but the description in its context is not of creation in Gen. 1:2, but of judgment on the land of Israel and its cities (Jer. 4:20). The invader left it desolate of the previous form and void of inhabitants due to slaying and flight (v. 25). The heavens gave no light, possibly due to smoke from fires that were destroying cities (vv. 7, 20).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 5:1 find a man. The city was too sinful to have even one man who, by truth and justice, could qualify to be an advocate to secure pardon for Judah. Refusal to repent was the norm (v. 3) for the common people (v. 4) and for the leaders (v. 5).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 5:6 lion. Three animals that tear and eat their victims represented the invader: the lion (see note on 4:6–7), the wolf, and the leopard, picturing vicious judgment on both poor (5:4) and great (v. 5).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 5:7 adultery. Often the idea of adultery is figurative for idolatry or political alliances (see note on 3:1), but the language here refers to physical adultery by men seeking out a prostitute or going to neighbors' wives (5:8), thus violating the seventh commandment (Ex. 20:14).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 5:10 not the Lord's. The people, depicted as vine branches to be destroyed (cf. 11:16–17), did not genuinely know the Lord in a saving relationship, but had forsaken him and given allegiance to other gods. The description of having eyes but not seeing, and ears but not hearing (5:21) is used by Isaiah (Isa. 6:9) and Jesus Christ (Matt. 13:13) for such false professors as these branches. Jesus also referred to false branches in John 15:2, 6 which were burned.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 5:14 my words . . . fire. The judgment of Judah prophesied in God's word by Jeremiah will bring destruction, but not elimination (v. 18), to the nation, cf. 23:29.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 5:22 sand . . . for the sea. God's providential acts in the natural world such as 1) creating the seashore to prevent flooding, 2) giving rain at the appropriate times (v. 24), and 3) providing time for harvest (v. 24) are witness enough to the Lord's reality and grace. As the nation turns away from God, he will take these unappreciated gifts away (v. 25).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 5:31 prophesy falsely. These included prophets with bogus messages, priests who asserted their own authority, and also followers who indulged such falseness. All are guilty before God.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 6:1 Tekoa . . . Beth-haccherem. Tekoa, the home of Amos, is 6 miles south of Bethlehem. The location of Beth-haccherem ("vineyard house") is unknown, but probably near Tekoa. As the enemy came from the north, the people would flee south. north. See note on 4:6–7.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 6:3 Shepherds. These were hostile leaders of the invading Babylonians, whose soldiers were compared with flocks.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 6:6 Cut down her trees. A besieging tactic is described in which trees were used to build up ramps against the city walls.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 6:9 glean thoroughly. Unlike the benevolent practice of leaving food in the field for the poor to glean (Lev. 19:9–10; Ruth 2:5–18), the Babylonians will leave no one when they "harvest" Judah.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 6:14 Peace, peace. Wicked leaders among the prophets and priests (v. 13) proclaimed peace falsely and gave weak and brief comfort. They provided no true healing from the spiritual wound, not having discernment to deal with the sin and its effects (v. 15). The need was to return to obedience (v. 16). Cf. 8:11.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 6:16 Here is the image of travelers who are lost, stopping to inquire about the right way they once knew before they wandered so far off it.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 6:17 watchmen. Prophets.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 6:20 not acceptable. Using imported fragrances in their offerings did not make them sweetly acceptable to God when the worshipers rejected his word (v. 19).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 6:21 stumbling blocks. Cf. Isa. 8:14; Matt. 21:44; 1 Pet. 2:8.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 6:22–23 A description of the Babylonians.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 6:27–30 I have made you. God placed Jeremiah as a kind of assayer to test the people's obedience. He also was a "tester" who works with metals. Their sin prevented them from being pure silver, but rather they were bronze, iron, lead, even impure silver, so that they failed the test.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 7:1 The word that came. This was Jeremiah's first temple sermon (v. 2); another is found in ch. 26. God was aroused against the sins he names (7:6, 19), especially at his temple becoming a den of robbers (v. 11). The point of this message, however, was that if Israel would repent, even at this late hour, God would still keep the conqueror from coming (vv. 3, 7). They must reject lies such as the false hope that peace is certain, based on the reasoning that the Lord would never bring calamity on his own temple (v. 4). They must turn from their sins (v. 3, 5, 9), and end their hypocrisy (v. 10).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 7:7 the land that I gave . . . forever. God refers to the unconditional element of the land promise in the Abrahamic Covenant (Gen. 12; 15; 17; 22).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 7:12 Go . . . to . . . Shiloh. God calls them to return to Shiloh where the tabernacle dwelt along with the ark of the covenant. He permitted the Philistines to devastate that place (1 Sam. 4), and he is ready to do similarly with Jerusalem, the place of his temple (Jer. 7:13–14).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 7:13 persistently. This describes the daily ministry of the prophets (cf. v. 25) through whom God spoke.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 7:15 as I cast out . . . Ephraim. Ephraim represents the northern kingdom of Israel, since it was the leading tribe (cf. 2 Kings 17:23). As God exiled them to Assyria (c. 722 B.C.), though they were more in number and power, so he will do to the southern kingdom.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 7:16 do not pray. God told his spokesman not to pray for the people (cf. 11:14). He did not find Judah inclined to repent. Instead, he found the glib use of self-deluding slogans, such as in 7:4, and flagrant idol worship in v. 18 from a people insistent on not hearing (v. 27; 19:15). Cf. 1 John 5:16.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 7:18 the queen of heaven. Cf. 44:17–19, 25. The Jews were worshiping Ishtar, an Assyrian and Babylonian goddess also called Ashtoreth and Astarte, the wife of Baal or Molech. Because these deities symbolized generative power, their worship involved prostitution.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 7:22 I did not . . . command. Bible writers sometimes use apparent negation to make a comparative emphasis. What God commanded his people at the exodus was not so much the offerings, as it was the heart obedience that prompted the offerings. See this comparative sense used elsewhere (Deut. 5:3; Hos. 6:6; 1 John 3:18).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 7:22–23 offerings . . . sacrifices . . . Obey. Here is a crucial emphasis on internal obedience. Cf. Josh. 1:8; 1 Sam. 15:22; Prov. 15:8; 21:3; Isa. 1:11–17; Hos. 6:6; Matt. 9:13.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 7:25 Cf. v. 13.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 7:29 Cut off your hair. This is a sign depicting God's cutting the nation off and casting them into exile. Ezekiel used a similar illustration by cutting his hair (Ezek. 5:1–4). God never casts away the genuinely saved from spiritual salvation (John 6:37; 10:28–29).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 7:31 burn their sons. Though God forbade this atrocity (Lev. 18:21; 20:2–5; Deut. 12:31), Israelites still offered babies as sacrifices at the high places of idol worship (Topheth) in the Valley of Hinnom (south end of Jerusalem). They offered them to the fire god Molech, under the delusion that this god would reward them. See note on Jer. 19:6.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 7:32 Valley of Slaughter. God renamed the place because great carnage would be forthcoming in the Babylonian invasion.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 8:1 bones . . . shall be brought out. Conquerors would ransack all the tombs to gain treasures and then humiliate the Jews by scattering the bones of the rich and honored in open spaces as a tribute to the superiority of their gods (v. 2).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 8:4 Jeremiah spoke of the natural instinct of one who falls, to get up, and one who leaves, to return, but Judah did not possess this instinct.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 8:5 backsliding. See note on 2:19.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 8:7 The instinct of the migratory birds leads them with unfailing regularity to return every spring from their winter homes. But God's people will not return, though the winter of divine wrath is arriving.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 8:11 Cf. 4:10 and 6:14.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 8:16 Dan. The territory of this tribe was on the northern border of the land, where the invasion would begin and sweep south.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 8:17 sending . . . serpents. This is a figurative picture of the Babylonian victors.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 8:19 from the length and breadth of the land. This is the cry of the exiled Jews that will come after they are taken captive into Babylon. They will wonder why God would let this happen to his land and people.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 8:20–22 we are not saved. The coming devastation is compared with the hopeless anguish when harvest time has passed but people are still in desperate need. Jeremiah identified with his people's suffering (v. 21) as a man of tears (cf. 9:1), but saw a doom so pronounced that there was no remedy to soothe. There was no healing balm, the kind in abundance in Gilead (east of the Sea of Galilee), and no physician to cure (cf. Gen. 37:25; 43:11).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 9:1 waters . . . tears. Jeremiah cared so deeply that he longed for the relief of flooding tears or a place of retreat to be free of the burden of Judah's sins for a while.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 9:2 a travelers' lodging place. Simple square buildings with an open court were built in remote areas to accommodate caravans. Though it would be lonely and filthy in the wilderness, Jeremiah preferred it to Jerusalem so as to be removed from the moral pollution of the people, which he described in vv. 3–8.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 9:3 do not know me. See note on 5:10.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 9:15 bitter food . . . poisonous water. The Lord pictured the awful suffering of the judgment as wormwood, which had very bitter leaves. Their food would be bitterness, and their water as foul as gall, a poisonous herb.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 9:22 How galling to the Jews to hear that their corpses will be trampled contemptuously.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 9:24 understands and knows me. Nothing but a true knowledge of God can save the nation. Paul refers to this passage twice (cf. 1 Cor. 1:31; 2 Cor. 10:17).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 9:26 Egypt . . . desert. A preview of God's judgment of the nations detailed in chs. 46–51. uncircumcised in heart. See note on 4:4.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 10:2 signs of the heavens. Gentiles worshiped celestial bodies, including the sun, moon, and stars.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 10:4 decorate. Idols were often carved from wood (v. 3) and ornamented with gold or silver (cf. v. 9). Some were molded from clay (Judg. 18:17; Isa. 42:17). The context points out the impossibility (Jer. 10:3–5) of such non-existent gods punishing or rewarding humans.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 10:7 King. God, who sovereignly created and controls all things (cf. vv. 12, 16; Deut. 4:35), is alone the eternal, living God (cf. Ps. 47; 145) worthy of trust. By contrast, earthly idols have to be fashioned by men (Jer. 10:9), and will perish (v. 15).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 10:9 Tarshish. Possibly a commercial port in southern Spain or on the island of Sardinia. Cf. Jonah 1:3. Uphaz. Location is uncertain.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 10:11–16 The true and living Creator God is again contrasted with dead idols.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 10:16 portion of Jacob. God is the all-sufficient source for his people (Num. 18:20), and he will not fail them as idols do (Jer. 11:12). Israel is the tribe of his inheritance. To this nation, God gave his inheritance in covenant love.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 10:20 My tent is destroyed. Jeremiah, using a nomadic metaphor, shifted into words that Israelites will speak when the invaders attack. They will feel despair and cry out over their homes being plundered and their children being killed or scattered to exile.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 10:23 the way of man is not in himself. Man is incapable of guiding his own life adequately. This prayer shifts to his need of God (Prov. 3:5–6; 16:9), who had a plan for Jeremiah before he was even born (Jer. 1:5).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 10:24–25 Jeremiah saw himself (“Correct me”) in solidarity with his people (cf. Dan. 9:1ff.) and understood the nation must be punished, but desired some mercy and moderation; he prayed that God's full fury would be poured on the nations that induced the Jews into idolatry.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 11:2 this covenant. The reference is to God's covenant, summarized in vv. 3–5, which promised curses for disobeying and blessings for obeying (cf. Deut. 27:26–28:68).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 11:4 the iron furnace. A metaphor for the hardship of Egyptian bondage hundreds of years earlier (cf. Ex. 1:8–14).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 11:9 A conspiracy. This refers to a deliberate resisting of God's appeals for repentance and an insistence upon trusting their own "peace" message and idols.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 11:13 Judah was so filled with idolatry that there were false deities for every city and a polluted altar on every street.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 11:14 do not pray. Cf. 7:16 and see note there. Their own prayers, as long as they rejected God, could not gain the answer they desired (11:11; Ps. 66:18), and the same was true of another's prayers for them.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 11:15 my beloved. A phrase showing God's sensitive regard for his relationship to Israel as a nation (cf. 2:2; 12:7). It does not carry the assumption, however, that every individual is spiritually saved (cf. 5:10a). vile deeds. Shameful idolatry that defiled all that befits true temple worship, such as the examples in Ezek. 8:6–13. These were gross violations of the first three commandments (cf. Ex. 20:2–7). sacrificial flesh. In some way, they corrupted the animal sacrifices by committing sin, which they enjoyed (cf. Jer. 7:10).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 11:16–17 green olive tree. Israel was pictured as a grapevine (2:21), then an olive tree meant to bear good fruit. However, they produced fruit that calls only for the fire of judgment (5:10).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 11:18–23 you showed me. Jeremiah's fellow townsmen from Anathoth, one of the 48 cities throughout the land dedicated to the Levites, plotted his death. Their words, “Let us destroy the tree,” indicate their desire to silence Jeremiah by murder.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 11:20 let me see your vengeance. Jeremiah pleaded for God’s defense on his behalf, actually guaranteed in 1:8, 18–19.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 12:1 Why . . . ? The issue of why the wicked escape for a time unscathed has often been raised by God’s people (cf. Ps. 73; Hab. 1:2–4).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 12:3 Pull them out . . . for the slaughter. The prophet here turned from the sadness of pleading for his people to calling on God to punish them. Such imprecatory prayers are similar to prayers throughout the Psalms.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 12:4 He will not see our latter end. Here is the foolish idea that Jeremiah was wrong and didn’t know how things would happen.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 12:5 If you have raced. The Lord replied to Jeremiah telling him that if he grew faint with lesser trials and felt like quitting, what would he do when the battle got even harder? thicket of the Jordan. The river in flood stage overflowed its banks into a plain that grew up as a thicket. The point is that Jeremiah needed to be ready to deal with tougher testings, pictured by the invader’s overwhelming the land like a flood, or posing high danger as in the Jordan thicket where concealed wild animals could terrify a person.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 12:6 even your brothers. Jeremiah met antagonism not only from fellow townsmen (cf. 11:18–23 and see note there), but from his own family! He was separated from them (12:7).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 12:8 like a lion. Jeremiah’s own people collectively are like a lion acting ferociously against him.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 12:9 birds of prey. God’s people, speckled with sin and compromise, are opposed by other birds of prey, i.e., enemy nations.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 12:12 sword of the Lord. God's strength can be for defending (cf. 47:6; Judg. 7:20) or in this case, condemning. The Babylonians were God's sword doing his will.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 12:14 evil neighbors. Other nations that hurt Israel will, in their turn, also receive judgment from the Lord (cf. 9:26; 25:14–32; chs. 46–51).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 12:15 bring them again. God will restore his people to the land of Israel in a future millennial day, as indicated in chs. 30–33.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 13:1 a linen loincloth. One of several signs Jeremiah enacted to illustrate God's message (cf. Introduction involved putting on a linen waistband (generally the inner garment against the skin). This depicted Israel's close intimacy with God in the covenant, so that they could glorify him (v. 11). do not dip it in water. Signified the moral filth of the nation. Buried and allowed time to rot (v. 7), the waistband pictured Israel as useless to God because of sin (v. 10). Hiding it by the Euphrates (v. 6) pointed to the land of Babylon, where God would exile Israel to deal with her pride (cf. v. 9).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 13:4 Euphrates. This refers literally to a site on the Euphrates River because: 1) the Euphrates is the area of exile (20:4); 2) "many days" fits the round trip of well over 1,000 miles (13:6); and 3) the ruining of the nation's pride (v. 9) relates to judgment by Babylon (vv. 10–11).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 13:12–14 Every jar. God pictured inhabitants of Israel in Babylon's invasion as jugs or skins of wine. As wine causes drunkenness, they will be dazed, stumbling in darkness (cf. v. 16), out of control, and victims of destruction (v. 14).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 13:16 Give glory to the Lord. Show by repentance and obedience to God that you respect his majesty.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 13:18 king . . . queen mother. Jehoiachin and Nehushta, c. 597 B.C. (cf. 22:24–26; 29:2; 2 Kings 24:8–17). Because the king was only 18 years old, she held the real power.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 13:19 wholly taken into exile. “All” and “wholly” do not require absolutely every individual, for Jeremiah elsewhere explains that some were to be slain and a remnant left in the land or fleeing to Egypt (chs. 39–44).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 13:23 Ethiopian . . . leopard. The vivid analogy assumes that sinners cannot change their sinful natures. Only God can change the heart (31:18, 31–34).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 13:26 lift up your skirts. This was done to shame captive women and prostitutes (cf. Nah. 3:5).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 13:27 adulteries and neighings. Refers to desire at an animal level, without conscience.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 14:1 drought. Jeremiah seems to actually give the prophecy of this chapter during a drought in Judah (vv. 2–6).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 14:2 gates languish. The “gates” were the place of public concourse, which during drought and consequent famine were empty or occupied by mourners.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 14:7 O Lord. Jeremiah from 14:7–15:21 pursues a series of prayers in which he dialogues with the Lord, who hears and responds (as 1:7; 12:5–17, etc.). Five rounds or exchanges occur (14:7–12; 14:13–18; 14:19–15:9; 15:10–14; 15:15–21).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 14:7–9 our backslidings. The prophet confesses Judah's guilt but reminds God that his reputation is tied up with what happens to his people (vv. 7, 9). He asks that the Lord be not indifferent as a stranger or overnight visitor (v. 8).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 14:10–12 God responded in this first exchange that 1) he must judge Judah for chronic sinfulness, and 2) Jeremiah is not to pray for the sparing of Judah nor will he respond to their prayers since unrepentance must be punished (cf. 11:14, and see note there).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 14:13 the prophets say to them. Jeremiah seemed to put forth the excuse that the people cannot help it since the false prophets deluded them with lying assurances of peace.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 14:14–18 The excuse was not valid. These were deceits spawned from the prophets' lying hearts. The prophets would suffer for their own sins (vv. 14–15), but so would the people for their "wickedness" (vv. 16–18; 5:31).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 14:17 virgin daughter. Judah is so called, having never before been under foreign bondage.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 14:18 the land and have no knowledge. Babylon.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 14:19–20 Have you utterly rejected Judah? Lest the Lord be casting Judah off forever, the prophet in deep contrition confesses the nation's sin (cf. Dan. 9:4ff.).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 14:21 your glorious throne. Jerusalem, place of the temple.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 15:1–9 It was ineffective at this point to intercede for the nation. Even prayers by Moses (cf. Num. 14:11–25) and Samuel (cf. 1 Sam. 12:19–25), eminent in intercession, would not defer judgment, where unrepentance persists (cf. Jer. 18:8; 26:3). Chief among things provoking judgment was the intense sin of King Manasseh (695–642 B.C.). Noted in Jer. 15:4., this provocation is recounted in 2 Kings 21:1–18, cf. 2 Kings 23:26, which says the Lord did not relent from his anger because of this (see also 2 Kings 24:3–4).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 15:6 I am weary of relenting. God often withholds the judgment he threatens (cf. 26:19; Ex. 32:14; 1 Chron. 21:15), sparing men so that his patience might lead them to repentance (cf. Rom. 2:4–5; 3:25).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 15:9 sun went down while it was yet day. Young mothers die in youth and their children are killed.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 15:10 Woe is me. Overcome by grief (cf. 9:1), Jeremiah wished that he had not been born (as 20:14–18). He had not been a bad or disagreeable creditor or debtor, either of whom kindle hatred. Yet his people cursed him, and he felt the sting.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 15:11–14 In the midst of judgment, the Lord promised protection for the obedient remnant in Judah (cf. Mal. 3:16–17). The Babylonians permitted some to stay in the land when they departed (Jer. 40:5–7). Jeremiah personally received kind treatment from the invader (40:1–6), and his enemies in Judah would later appeal to him (21:1–6; 37:3; 42:1–6). Ultimately, a band of renegade Judeans took Jeremiah to Egypt against God's will (cf. 43:1–7).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 15:15–18 O Lord you know. Jeremiah, in a mood of self-pity, reminded the Lord of his faithfulness in bearing reproach, his love for his word, and his separation from evil men to stand alone.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 15:18 a deceitful brook. He asked that the Lord not fail him like a wadi that has dried up (v. 18). The answer to this concern is in 2:13 (the Lord is his fountain), 15:19–21, and 17:5–8.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 15:19 The Lord reprimanded Jeremiah for self-pity and impatience. He had to have the proper posture before God and repent. If he did so, he would discern true values ("utter what is precious," a figure drawn from removing pure metal from dross), and have the further privilege of being God’s mouthpiece. Let sinners change to his values, but let him never compromise to theirs. As a man who is to assay and test others (6:27–30), he must first assay himself (cf. Moses, in Ex. 4:22–26).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 15:20–21 When Jeremiah repents, God will protect him (vv. 20–21, as 1:18–19).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 16:2 You shall not take a wife. Since destruction and exile are soon to fall on Judah, the prophet must not have a wife and family. God’s kindness will keep him from anxiety over them in the awful situation of suffering and death (v. 4). Cf. 15:9 and 1 Cor. 7:26.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 16:5 house of mourning. This was a home where friends prepared a meal for a bereaved family. Don’t mourn with them or rejoice, he is told (cf. v. 8).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 16:6 cut . . . make himself bald. These acts indicated extreme grief.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 16:10–13 Why . . . ? Jeremiah was to explain the reason for the judgment, i.e., their forsaking God and worshiping false gods (v. 11; 2:13). They would get their fill of idols in Babylon (16:13).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 16:14–15 no longer be said. In view of the Lord’s promise of restoration from Babylon, the proof of God’s redemptive power and faithfulness in the deliverance from Egypt would give way to a greater demonstration in the deliverance of his people from Babylon. That bondage was to be so severe that deliverance from Babylon was a greater relief than from Egypt.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 16:15 all the countries. This reference is extensive enough to be fully realized only in the final gathering into Messiah’s earthly kingdom.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 16:16 many fishers . . . hunters. These are references to Babylonian soldiers, who were doing God’s judgment work (v. 17).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 16:18 doubly repay. The word for “doubly” signified “full or complete,” a fitting punishment for such severe sins.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 16:19–21 The result of God’s judgment on the Jews will be the end of idolatry; even some Gentiles, witnessing the severity, will renounce idols. After the return from Babylon, this was partly fulfilled as the Jews entirely and permanently renounced idols, and many Gentiles turned from their idols to Jehovah. However, the complete fulfillment will come in the final restoration of Israel (cf. Isa. 2:1–4; 49:6; 60:3).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 17:1 The sin of Judah. Reasons for the judgment (ch. 16) continue here: 1) idolatry (17:1–4), 2) relying on the flesh (v. 5), and 3) dishonesty in amassing wealth (v. 11). pen of iron. The names of idols were engraved on the horns of their altars with such a tool. The idea is that Judah’s sin was permanent, etched in them as if into stone. How much different to have God’s word written on the heart (31:33).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 17:3 mountains in the open country. Jerusalem in Judah.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 17:4 land . . . you do not know. Babylon.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 17:5–8 Cursed is the man. Jeremiah contrasted the person who experiences barrenness (vv. 5–6) with the one who receives blessing (vv. 7–8). The difference in attitude is in “trust” placed in man or “trust” vested in the Lord (vv. 5, 7). And the contrast in vitality is between being like a parched dwarf juniper in the desert (v. 6) or a tree drawing sustenance from a stream to bear fruit (v. 8; cf. Ps. 1:1–3).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 17:10 I . . . search the heart. For the sin of man (vv. 1–4), for the barren man (vv. 5–6), or the blessed man (vv. 7–8), God is the final Judge and renders his judgment for their works (cf. Rev. 20:11–15). By him, actions are weighed (1 Sam. 2:3).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 17:11 the partridge. This referred to a sand grouse that invaded and brooded over a nest not its own, but was forced to leave before the eggs hatched. It depicted a person who unjustly took possession of things he had no right to take and couldn't enjoy the benefits, despite all the effort.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 17:14–18 Jeremiah voiced the prayerful cry that God would deliver him from his enemies (v. 14). Surrounded by ungodly people (vv. 1–6, 11, 13), he showed qualities of godliness: 1) God was his praise (v. 14); 2) he had a shepherd's heart to follow God (v. 16); 3) he was a man of prayer open to God's examination (v. 16); 4) God was his hope (v. 17); and 5) he trusted God's delivering faithfulness even in judgment (v. 18).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 17:21–24 Sabbath day. Not only had the Jews failed to observe Sabbath days, but also the required Sabbath year of rest for the land (Lev. 25:1–7) was regularly violated. God had warned that such disobedience would bring judgment (Lev. 26:34–35, 43; 2 Chron. 36:20–21). The 70-year captivity was correlated to the 490 years from Saul to the captivity, which included 70 Sabbath years. When the Jews were restored from captivity, special stress was placed on Sabbath faithfulness (cf. Neh. 13:19).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 17:25–27 For obedience, God would assure the dynasty of David perpetual rule in Jerusalem, safety for the city, and worship at the temple (vv. 25–26). Continued disobedience would meet with destruction of the city (v. 27).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 18:1–20:18 A close link exists between ch. 17 and chs. 18–20. Destruction is in view (ch. 17), but repentance can yet prevent that (18:7–8). However, repentance was not present (18:12), so Jeremiah's shattered jar illustrated God's dashing Israel in judgment (ch. 19). Then the rejection spirit (cf. 19:15) led to persecution against God's mouthpiece (ch. 20).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 18:2–6 potter's house. God sent Jeremiah to a potter, who gave him an illustration by shaping a vessel. The prophet secured a vessel and used it for his own illustration (19:1ff.). Jeremiah watched the potter at his wheel. The soft clay became misshapen, but the potter shaped it back into a good vessel. God will so do with Judah if she repents.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 18:8–10 Though he had announced impending judgment, the "spoiled" nation can be restored as a good vessel by God, who will hold off the judgment (vv. 8, 11). By contrast, if the nation followed sin, he would not bring the blessing desired (vv. 9–10).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 18:12 That is in vain! Jeremiah brought them to the point where they actually stated their condition honestly. The prophet's threats were useless because they were so far gone—abandoned to their sins and the penalty. All hypocrisy was abandoned in favor of honesty, without repentance. Repentance was not in Israel (as v. 18; 19:15). This explains a seeming paradox, that Israel can repent and avert judgment, yet Jeremiah is not to pray for Israel (7:16; 11:14). It would do no good to pray for their change since they steeled themselves against any change.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 18:13 virgin Israel. It enhanced their guilt that Israel was the virgin whom God had chosen (cf. 2 Kings 19:21).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 18:14 snow of Lebanon . . . cold flowing streams. No reasonable man would forsake such for "the crags of Sirion," perhaps a poetic term for Mount Lebanon, from which the high mountain streams flowed. Yet Israel forsook God, the fountain of living waters, for broken foreign cisterns (cf. 2:13).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 18:18 plots against Jeremiah. Plans to indict the prophet with their "tongues" and then to slay him (v. 23) were based on the premise that his message of doom was not true. The business of the priests, the wise, and the prophets continued as usual since God made them lasting institutions (cf. Lev. 6:18; 10:11).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 18:19–23 Hear me. This is one of many examples of prayer aligning with God's will as Jeremiah prays for God's work of judgment to be done (vv. 11, 15–17).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 18:22 dug a pit. Cf. 38:6.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 19:1 elders of the people . . . the elders of the priests. These were chosen to be credible witnesses of the symbolic action with the "earthenware flask," so no one could plead ignorance of the prophesy. The 72 elders who made up the Sanhedrin were partly from the "priests" and the other tribes ("people").

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 19:2 Valley of the Son of Hinnom. See note on 19:6. Potsherd Gate. The gate of "broken pottery" was on the south wall of Jerusalem where the potters formed pottery for use in the temple nearby.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 19:6 Topheth. Hebrew uses the word toph for "drum." This was another name for the Valley of Hinnom, an east-west valley at the south end of Jerusalem where, when children were burned in sacrifice to idols (cf. vv. 4–5), drums were beaten to drown their cries. Rubbish from Jerusalem was dumped there and continually burned. The place became a symbol for the burning fires of hell, called Gehenna (Matt. 5:22). Cf. Jer. 7:30–32 and Isa. 30:33. It was to become a place of massacre.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 19:9 eat the flesh. Desperate for food during a long siege, some would resort to cannibalism, eating family members and friends (Lam. 4:10).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 19:10 Cf. v. 1.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 19:13 defiled. Their houses were desecrated by idolatrous worship. offered to . . . host of heaven. Refers to worship of the sun, planets, and stars from flat housetops (cf. 32:29; 2 Kings 23:11–12; Zeph. 1:5).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 20:1 Pashhur. The meaning is either “ease,” or “deliverance is round about,” both in contrast to the new name God assigns him in v. 3. He was one of several men so named (cf. 21:1; 38:1). Immer. He was one of the original “governors of the sanctuary” (cf. 1 Chron. 24:14). chief officer. He was not the high priest, but the chief official in charge of temple police, who were to maintain order.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 20:2 beat Jeremiah. He or others acting on his authority, delivered 40 lashes (see Deut. 25:3) to the prophet. put him in the stocks. Hands, feet, and neck were fastened in holes, bending the body to a distorted posture, causing excruciating pain. upper Benjamin Gate. The northern gate of the upper temple court.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 20:3 Terror On Every Side. “Terror on every side” is the fitting name that the Lord reckons for the leader. The details of that terror are in vv. 4, 6 (cf. 6:25).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 20:4 Babylon. This was Jeremiah’s direct identification of the conqueror who would come out of the “north” (1:13), from “a distant land” (4:16).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 20:8 derision all day long. In vv. 7–18, Jeremiah prayerfully lamented the ridicule he was experiencing because of God’s role for his life. His feelings wavered between quitting (v. 9a), being encouraged (vv. 9c, 11), petitioning for help (v. 12), praise (v. 13), and waves of depression (vv. 14–18; cf. 11:18–23; 15:10, 15–18).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 20:9 I will not . . . speak any more. A surge of dejection swept over Jeremiah, making him long to say no more. But he was compelled inside (cf. Job 32:18–19; Ps. 39:3; Acts 18:5; 1 Cor. 9:16–17) because he did not want his enemies to see him fail (Jer. 20:10), he felt the powerful presence of the Lord (v. 11), and he remembered God’s previous deliverances (v. 13).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 20:14 Cursed be the day. Another tide of depression engulfed the prophet, perhaps when he was in the painful stocks (v. 2). His words are like Job’s (Job 3:3, 10–11).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 20:15 Cursed be the man. The servant of God fell into sinful despair, and he questioned the wisdom and purpose of God, for which he should have been thankful.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 20:16 the cities . . . the Lord overthrew. Sodom and Gomorrah (Gen. 19:25).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 21:1 King Zedekiah. Cf. 2 Kings 24:17–25:7 for details of his reign c. 597–586 B.C. Pashhur. This priest was different from the man by this name in Jer. 20:1–6. Cf. 38:1.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 21:2 making war against us. This was during the last siege by Babylon (v. 4), c. 587/86 B.C., resulting in the third deportation of Jews. Zedekiah hoped for God's intervention, such as Hezekiah received against Sennacherib (2 Kings 19:35–36).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 21:4 turn back the weapons. The Jews were already fighting the invaders by going outside the walls of the city to battle them on the hillsides and in the valleys as they approached. However, they would soon be driven back into the city where the enemy would collect all their weapons and execute many with those very weapons.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 21:5 I myself will fight. God used an invader as his judging instrument (v. 7). The Jews have not only the Babylonians as their enemy, but God.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 21:7 strike them . . . sword. This was the fate of Zedekiah's son and many nobles. Zedekiah died of grief (cf. 34:4; 2 Kings 25:6–8).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 21:8–9 life and . . . death. Since a persistent lack of repentance had led to the conquest, Jeremiah urged the Jews to submit and surrender to the besieger so as to be treated as captives of war and live rather than be killed.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 21:12 O house of David! The royal family and all connected were called to enact justice and righteousness promptly (“morning”). There was still time for them to escape the destruction if there was repentance.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 21:13 O inhabitant of the valley, O rock of the plain. Jerusalem personified, situated among rocks, hills, and valleys.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 21:14 I will punish. During the siege Jerusalem will be burned (v. 10), as will the land in general.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 22:2, 4 throne of David. Refers to the Davidic Covenant of 2 Sam. 7:3–17, in which God promised David that his heirs will rule over Israel.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 22:6 Gilead . . . Lebanon. The beautiful high mountains of the land.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 22:7 cut down . . . choicest cedars. This could primarily refer to the palaces and great houses built from such timber (cf. Song 1:17).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 22:10 dead. Probably a reference to Josiah, who died before the destruction (2 Kings 22:20; Isa. 57:1). Dying saints are to be envied, living sinners pitied. When Josiah died, and on each anniversary of his death, there was open public weeping in which Jeremiah participated (2 Chron. 35:24–25).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 22:11–12 Shallum. This is another name for King Jehoahaz (three-month reign, 609 B.C., 2 Kings 23:31) the fourth son of Josiah (cf. 1 Chron. 3:15). It was given to him in irony, because the people called him Shalom (“peace”), but Shallum means “retribution.”

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 22:13–17 Woe to him. This message indicted Jehoahaz (vv. 13–14, 17), who was unlike his father, the good king, Josiah (vv. 15–16).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 22:18–19 Jehoiakim. Ruling from 609 to 598 B.C., he was also wicked in taxing the people (2 Kings 23:35) and making them build his splendid palace without pay, violating God’s law in Lev. 19:13 and Deut. 24:14–15 (cf. Mic. 3:10; Hab. 2:9; James 5:4). He was slain in Babylon’s second siege and his corpse dishonored, being left like a dead donkey on the ground for scavengers to feed on.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 22:20 Go up to Lebanon. Sinners dwelling in the northwest in Lebanon’s cedar land and others to the northeast beyond the Sea of Galilee in Bashan will suffer in the invasion. The entirety of the land will come under judgment as Abarim in the southeast.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 22:24–26 Coniah. A short form of Jeconiah, perhaps used in contempt, who was also called Jehoiachin. He ruled only three months and 10 days (2 Chron. 36:9) in 598–597 B.C., and was taken into captivity, where he lived out his life.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 22:24 signet. A ring with a personal insignia on it (cf. Hag. 2:23).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 22:28 Questions the people who idolized Jeconiah were asking.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 22:30 Write . . . childless. Jeconiah did have offspring (1 Chron. 3:17–18), but he was reckoned childless in the sense that he had no sons who would reign (“sitting on the throne . . . ”). The curse continued in his descendants down to Joseph, the husband of Mary. How could Jesus then be the Messiah when his father was under this curse? It was because Joseph was not involved in the blood line of Jesus since Jesus was virgin born (Matt. 1:12). Jesus’ blood right to the throne of David came through Mary from Nathan, Solomon’s brother, not Solomon (Jeconiah’s line) thus bypassing this curse (Luke 3:31–32). Cf. Jer. 36:30.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 23:1–2 Woe to the shepherds. These were false leaders who failed in their duty to assure the people’s welfare (as v. 2), starting with the kings in ch. 22 and other civil heads, as well as prophets and priests (cf. 23:11). They stood in utter contrast to the shepherds God would later give the nation (v. 4; 3:15). Other significant chapters that condemn evil shepherds and false prophets include chs. 14; 27; 28; Isa. 28; Ezek. 13; 34; Mic. 3; Zech. 11.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 23:3–4 I will gather. God pledged to restore exiled Israelites to their ancient soil. Cf. similar promises in chs. 30–33, and 16:14–15. The land in view was lit. Palestine, being contrasted with all the other countries (23:3), thus assuring that the regathering would be as literal as the scattering. The restoration of Judah from Babylon is referred to in language that in its fullness can only refer to the final restoration of God’s people (“out of all the countries” and v. 8), under Messiah. “Neither shall any be missing” indicates that no one will be missing or detached. These are prophecies not yet fulfilled. Cf. 32:37–38; Isa. 60:21; Ezek. 34:11–16.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 23:4 shepherds . . . will care for them. Cf. Ezek. 34:23–31. Zerubbabel, Ezra, Nehemiah, and others were small fulfillments compared to the consummate shepherding of the Messiah Jesus.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 23:5 Branch. The Messiah is pictured as a branch (lit., “shoot”) out of David’s family tree (cf. 33:15–16; Isa. 4:2; 11:1–5; Zech. 3:8; 6:12–13), who will rule over God’s people in the future. Cf. Jer. 33:14–17 where the same promise is repeated.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 23:6 The Lord is our righteousness. This emphasis is stated three times in vv. 5–6. Messiah’s shepherding is contrasted with that of the false shepherds (vv. 1–2, 11, 14). Judah and Israel will be reunited (cf. Ezek. 37:15–23).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 23:7–8 See note on 16:14–15.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 23:13–14 Jerusalem and Judah were worse than Samaria and Israel.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 23:14 in the prophets . . . a horrible thing. The false shepherds told lies, committed adultery, and declared vain dreams (vv. 25, 27). They became like chaff rather than grain (v. 28), while promising peace (v. 17) to those whose sins provoke God to bring calamity, not comfort. The scene was like Sodom and Gomorrah, whose sin so grieved God that he destroyed them by fire (cf. Gen. 19:13, 24–25).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 23:18 Here was the reason not to listen to the false prophets (cf. v. 16)—they didn’t speak God’s word.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 23:20 latter days. They wouldn't listen, but the day would come (v. 12) when the judgment would fall and then they would "understand."

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 23:21–22 According to the Mosaic law, these false prophets should have been stoned (cf. Deut. 13:1–5; 18:20–22).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 23:23–24 God at hand . . . God far away. Let not false prophets think they can hide their devices from God, who declares himself omnipresent and omniscient, in both an immanent and transcendent sense.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 23:25 I have dreamed. Here was a claim to divine revelation through dreams (cf. Num. 12:6). But such claims were a deception (Jer. 23:26–27), utterly unequal in power to God's word (vv. 28–29).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 23:29 like fire . . . hammer. God's word has irresistible qualities to prevail over the deception in the shepherds' false messages.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 23:33 the burden of the Lord? The people asked, in mockery, for Jeremiah to give them his latest prophecy ("burden"). This ridicule of Jeremiah's faithful preaching demanded a response, and God told the prophet to repeat the question and reply simply "I will cast you off," meaning judgment from God was coming.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 23:34–40 The burden of the Lord. When a person falsely claimed to have a word from God, he would be punished for perverting God's truth. Claiming to have prophecies from God, when not true, is dangerous.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 24:1 After Nebuchadnezzar . . . had taken. Babylon's second deportation of Judeans in 597 B.C. (cf. 2 Kings 24:10–17).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 24:5 Like these good figs. The object lesson of v. 2 is explained. Deported Judeans, captive in Babylon, will have good treatment, not death as shown in 29:5–7, 10. They will be granted privileges as colonists rather than being enslaved as captives.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 24:6–7 While it is true that a remnant returned to Judah in 538 B.C., this promise had greater overtones in regard to the ultimate fulfillment of the Abrahamic (Gen. 12), Davidic (2 Sam. 7), and New (Jer. 31) Covenants in the day of Messiah's coming and kingdom (cf. 32:41; 33:7). Their conversion (24:7) from idolatry to the one true God is expressed in language which, in its fullness, applies to the complete conversion in the final Kingdom after the present dispersion (cf. Rom. 11:1–5, 25–27).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 24:8–10 Like the bad figs. Those remaining at Jerusalem during the 11 years (597–586 B.C.) of Zedekiah's vassal reign would soon face hardship from further scattering to other countries, violent death, famine, and disease; cf. 29:17. See 25:9 and note there. These verses quote the curses of Deut. 28:25, 37 (cf. Jer. 29:18, 22; Ps. 44:13–14) and are also fulfilled in the history of the long dispersion until Messiah returns.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 25:1 fourth year. The date is 605/604 B.C., as Jehoiakim reigned in 609–598 B.C. first year. Nebuchadnezzar reigned 605–562 B.C.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 25:3 thirteenth year. The time is c. 627/626 B.C. Josiah ruled in 640–609 B.C. twenty-three years. Jeremiah began his ministry in the thirteenth year of Josiah (cf. 1:2) and had been faithful to preach repentance and judgment for 23 years (c. 605/604 B.C.).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 25:9 my servant. God used a pagan king, Nebuchadnezzar, to accomplish his will (cf. Cyrus in Isa. 45:1).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 25:10 Cf. 7:34 and Rev. 18:23.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 25:11 seventy years. Here is the first specific statement on the length of the exile (cf. 29:10). This period probably began in the fourth year of Jehoiakim, when Jerusalem was first captured and the temple treasures were taken. It ends with the decree of Cyrus to let the Jews return, spanning from c. 605/604 B.C. to 536/535 B.C. The exact number of Sabbath years is 490 years, the period from Saul to the Babylonian captivity. This was retribution for their violation of the Sabbath law (cf. Lev. 26:34–35; 2 Chron. 36:21).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 25:13 all the nations. Jeremiah prophesied judgments on surrounding nations (cf. chs. 46–49), while Babylon is the focus of judgment in chs. 50–51.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 25:14 make slaves even of them. The Babylonians, who made other nations their slaves, would become the servants of nations.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 25:15 cup of the wine. A symbol for stupefying judgments (v. 16).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 25:17 made all the nations . . . drink. Obviously Jeremiah could not visit all the places listed from vv. 18–26, but in this vision he acted as if representatives from all those nations were present so he could make them drink in the message of wrath (v. 27), and understand there was no escape (vv. 28–29).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 25:29 city . . . called by my name. Jerusalem (cf. Dan. 9:18).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 25:30–33 While embracing the judgments soon to come to Judah and other nations, this has end-time language ("from the farthest parts of the earth") and must be ultimately fulfilled in the time of tribulation described in Rev. 6–19.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 26:1 In the beginning. The time was 609 B.C. The message is about four years earlier than that in 25:1 and about 11 years before 24:1.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 26:2 Stand in the court. This was the largest public gathering place at the temple.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 26:6 like Shiloh. The former dwelling place of God before Jerusalem. Cf. 7:12 and see note there.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 26:11 Jeremiah was accused of treason. Cf. Paul’s arrest in Acts 21:27–28.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 26:12 Jeremiah spoke. Leaders and people threatened to kill him (v. 8). The prophet defended himself while in extreme danger. He did not compromise, but displayed tremendous spiritual courage. He was ready to die (v. 14), yet warned the crowd that God would hold the guilty accountable (v. 15).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 26:15 put me to death. Cf. Matt. 23:31–37.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 26:17–19 elders . . . spoke. These spokesmen cited the prophet Micah (cf. Mic. 3:12), who before and during Hezekiah’s reign (c. 715–686 B.C.) prophesied the destruction of Jerusalem and its temple. They reasoned that because they didn’t kill Micah, God rescinded the judgment. They must not kill Jeremiah so God might change his mind. Micah’s prophecy and Jeremiah’s would come true in time.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 26:20–22 another man who prophesied. Uriah, like Micah and Jeremiah, had warned of doom on Jerusalem, speaking in Jehoiakim’s day only a bit earlier than Jeremiah’s present warning (609 B.C.). He was executed. The decision could have gone either way since there was precedent for killing and for sparing.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 26:22 Elnathan. A high-ranking official who on another occasion sided with Jeremiah (cf. 36:12, 25).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 26:23 the burial place. In the Kidron Valley, to the east of the temple (cf. 2 Kings 23:6).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 26:24 Ahikam. He used his strategic influence to spring Jeremiah free of the death threat. This civil leader under King Josiah (cf. 2 Kings 22:12, 14) and father of Gedaliah, was appointed governor over Judah by the Babylonians after Jerusalem’s final fall in 586 B.C. (39:14; 40:13–41:3).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 27:1 reign of Zedekiah. This may refer to Jehoiakim around 609/608 B.C. (as ch. 26; see esv footnote). Or, possibly, the correct reading is "Zedekiah" as in 27:3, 12, and 28:1, which would put the date at the outset of his 597–586 B.C. reign.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 27:2 Make . . . straps and yoke-bars. This object lesson symbolized bondage to Babylon. The yoke was bound on Jeremiah's neck to picture Judah's captivity (v. 12), then sent to six kings of nearby nations who would also be under Babylon's power (v. 3). Cf. Jer. 28:10–12.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 27:7 Cf. 25:13–14.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 27:8 yoke of . . . Babylon. The point of the object lesson is simple. Any nation that will serve Babylon willingly may stay in their own land, but nations that will not submit voluntarily to Babylon will suffer destruction. Consequently, Judah should submit and not be removed from the land (vv. 9–18).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 27:18 intercede with the Lord. God would not answer such a prayer, as proven by vv. 19–22. This revealed his indifference to the prayers of these false prophets.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 27:20 C. 597 B.C.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 27:21–22 vessels. Jeremiah revealed that Judah's temple vessels taken to Babylon (cf. 2 Kings 24:13; Dan. 1:1–2) would be restored to the temple. Fulfillment around 536 B.C. was spoken of in Ezra 5:13–15. About 516/515 B.C. these articles were placed in the rebuilt temple (Ezra 6:15).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 28:1 reign of Zedekiah. Cf. 27:1 and see note there. The fourth year would be about 593 B.C. Hananiah. This man was one of several by this name in Scripture, in this case a foe of God's true prophet, distinct from the loyal Hananiah of Dan. 1:6.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 28:2–3 I have broken the yoke. The false prophet, of the kind Jeremiah warned of in 27:14–16, boldly predicted victory over Babylon and the return of the temple vessels within two years. In actuality, Babylon achieved its third and final step in conquering Judah 11 years later (586 B.C.) as in chs. 39; 40; 52. As to the vessels, see note on 27:21–22.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 28:4 bring back . . . Jeconiah. This rash, false claim fell into ignominy. Jeconiah, soon taken to Babylon in 597 B.C., would live out his years there and not return to Jerusalem (52:31–34). Other captives either died in captivity, or didn't return until 61 years later. Cf. 22:24–26.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 28:10 took the yoke-bars . . . broke them. The phony prophet, in foolishness, removed the object lesson from the true spokesman and broke it as a sign of his own prediction coming true (cf. vv. 2–4, 11).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 28:13 Go, tell Hananiah. Jeremiah apparently left the meeting, and later God sent him back to confront the liar, likely wearing yokes of iron (which Hananiah could not break!) to replace the wooden ones (v. 14) and to illustrate his message.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 28:15–17 the Lord has not sent you. Jeremiah told Hananiah that 1) God had not approved his message; 2) he was guilty of encouraging the people to trust in a lie, even rebellion; and 3) God would require his life that very year, 597 B.C. The true prophet's word was authenticated by Hananiah's death in two months (cf. v. 17).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 29:1 the letter. Jeremiah, shortly after the 597 B.C. deportation of many countrymen (cf. v. 2), wrote to comfort them in exile.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 29:4–10 Jeremiah's counsel to Israelites in Babylon was to take all the steps in living as colonists planning to be there for a long time (70 years, 29:10, as 25:11). Further, they were to seek Babylon's peace and intercede in prayer for it, their own welfare being bound with it (29:7; cf. Ezra 6:10; 7:23).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 29:11 plans for welfare. This assured God's intentions to bring about blessing in Israel's future (cf. chs. 30–33).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 29:12–14 you will call. What God planned, he also gave the people opportunity to participate in by sincere (v. 13) prayer. Cf. 1 John 5:14–15.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 29:14 I will be found by you. The Lord would answer their prayer, by returning the Jews to their land, cf. Daniel's example and God’s response (Dan. 9:4–27). Fulfillment would occur in the era of Ezra and Nehemiah, and beyond this in even fuller measure after the second advent of their Messiah (cf. Dan. 2:35, 45; 7:13–14, 27; 12:1–3, 13).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 29:15–19 Because you have said. Amazingly still rejecting God’s true message, Jewish captives listened to false prophets among them (cf. vv. 8–9, 21–23). This was the very sin that would cause God to send a further deportation to those still in Judah (586 B.C.).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 29:17 like vile figs. Cf. the principle of Jer. 24.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 29:21–23 Ahab . . . Zedekiah. Two captive, false Israelite prophets, who had been misleading exiles in Babylon (v. 15), will stir up the wrath of their captor king, who will cast them into a furnace (as in Dan. 3). They aroused not only the Babylonian potentate’s enmity, but God’s also, because of prophecies against his word and physical adultery (cf. Jer. 5:7).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 29:24–32 The judgment against Shemaiah, the otherwise unknown prophet, who opposed Jeremiah, was similar to that experienced by Hananiah (cf. 28:15–17).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 29:28 This referred to Jeremiah’s letter mentioned in v. 5.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 30:3 I will bring them back. This theme verse gives in capsule form the pledge of chs. 30–33. God's restoration of the whole nation to their own land (cf. 29:10; Amos 9:14–15; Rom. 11:26) has in view a final regathering never to be removed again (see note on Jer. 16:15) and not just a return in the time of Ezra and Nehemiah (Jer. 30:8–9; 31:31ff.; 32:39–40; 33:8–9, 15–16). This verse is a summary of the prophecy given in Jer. 30:4–9.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 30:7 time of distress for Jacob. This period of unprecedented difficulty for Israel, as the verse defines, is set in a context of Israel's final restoration. It is best equated with the time of tribulation (cf. vv. 8–9) just before Christ's second advent, mentioned elsewhere (Dan. 12:1; Matt. 24:21–22) and described in detail by Rev. 6–19.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 30:9 David their king. The Messiah, the greater David in David's dynasty, ultimately fulfills this promise (2 Sam. 7:16). He is the great king often promised as Israel's hope (Jer. 23:5–6; Isa. 9:7; Ezek. 37:24–25; Dan. 2:35, 45; 7:13–14, 27; Matt. 25:34; 26:64; Luke 1:32; Rev. 17:14; 19:16). No king of David's seed has held the scepter since the captivity. Zerubbabel, of David's line, never claimed the title of king (cf. Hag. 2:2).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 30:11 not make a full end. Israel will endure as a people until Messiah's kingdom (cf. Rom. 11:1–29).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 30:12–15 Judah had no reason to complain.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 30:16–24 These absolute and extensive promises have yet to be fulfilled in history; they look forward to the reign of Christ, the greater David, in the millennial kingdom of the "latter days."

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 30:21 their ruler. This refers to the Messiah, the king of v. 9 and 23:5–6, springing up from within Israel (cf. Isa. 11:1), able to approach God as a priest.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 31:1 At that time. Equated with the latter days in 30:24. In this chapter, prophecies of the restoration of the nation are continued.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 31:2–14 Here are messianic kingdom conditions.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 31:15 A voice . . . in Ramah. The reflection, for a moment, is on the distress of an Israelite mother for her children slain in the Babylonian invasion. This was a backdrop for the many contrasting promises of restoration to a joyful time (as vv. 12–14, 16–17) in the messianic day. Matthew saw the same description of sadness as apt, in principle, to depict something of the similar weeping of Jewish mothers when King Herod had babies slain at Bethlehem in a bid to kill the Messiah as a child (Matt. 2:17–18).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 31:18–20 I may be restored. Jeremiah wrote of Israel (the 10 tribes called Ephraim) as finally recognizing, in humility, the need for the Lord to move them to repentance and forgiveness. Cf. Ps. 102:13–17 for the relation of Israel's restoration to their prayers; see also Jer. 24:6–7; Lam. 5:21; cf. John 6:44, 65.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 31:22 faithless. See note on 2:19. a woman encircles a man. Here is one of the most puzzling statements in Jeremiah. Some see the virgin birth of Christ (but "woman" means a woman, not a virgin, and "encircle" or "surround" does not suggest conceiving). Possibly it refers to the formerly virgin Israel (31:21), who is now a disgraced, divorced wife (v. 22; 3:8). She will one day in the future re-embrace her former husband, the Lord, and he will receive her back, fully forgiven. That would be "a new thing on the earth."

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 31:26 my sleep was pleasant. The hope of Israel's restoration brought a moment of peace in Jeremiah's otherwise tumultuous ministry.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 31:28 build and to plant. The Lord repeated what he at first told Jeremiah in 1:10 regarding his two works of judging and blessing. The latter is in two images, architectural (building) and agricultural (planting).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 31:29 eaten sour grapes. This was apparently a proverb among the exiles' children born in Babylon, to express that they suffered the consequences of their fathers' sins rather than their own (Lam. 5:7; Ezek. 18:2–3).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 31:31–34 a new covenant. In contrast to the Mosaic Covenant under which Israel failed, God promised a New Covenant with a spiritual, divine dynamic by which those who know him would participate in the blessings of salvation. The fulfillment was to individuals, yet also to Israel as a nation (v. 36; Rom. 11:16–27). It is set 1) in the framework of a reestablishment in their land (e.g., Jer. 30–33 and in 31:38–40) and 2) in the time after the ultimate difficulty (30:7). In principle, this covenant, also announced by Jesus Christ (Luke 22:20), begins to be exercised with spiritual aspects realized for Jewish and Gentile believers in the church era (1 Cor. 11:25; Heb. 8:7–13; 9:15; 10:14–17; 12:24; 13:20). It has already begun to take effect with "a remnant, chosen by grace" (Rom. 11:5). It will be also realized by the people of Israel in the last days, including the regathering to their ancient land, Palestine (Jer. 30–33). The streams of the Abrahamic, Davidic, and New Covenants find their confluence in the millennial kingdom ruled over by the Messiah.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 31:35–37 These verses emphasize the certainty with which Israel can expect God to fulfill the New Covenant (cf. 33:17–22, 25–26).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 31:38–40 The tower was in the northeast corner of the city (cf. Neh. 3:1; 12:39). When New Covenant promises are ultimately fulfilled to Israel in its regathering to its land, rebuilt Jerusalem will meet certain specifications. The "Corner Gate" is at the northwest corner (2 Kings 14:13; 2 Chron. 26:9). The "measuring line" marks out the area for rebuilding. It will point over the hill Gareb and then toward Goah; both places are impossible to identify today. The "valley of the dead bodies" is the Valley of Hinnom, a place of refuse and burning fires (cf. Jer. 7:31, and see note there). The "Horse Gate" was at the southeast corner of the temple courts (2 Kings 11:16; Neh. 3:28).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 32:1 tenth year. The time is 587 B.C., the tenth year in Zedekiah's reign (597–586 B.C.), the eighteenth of Nebuchadnezzar's rule, during Babylon’s siege of Jerusalem.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 32:2 army of . . . Babylon was beseiging. The siege, set up in the tenth month (January) of 588 B.C., lasted at least 30 months to the fourth month (July) of 586 B.C. (39:1–2). Cf. 34:1 and see note there. The events of the chapter occurred in this setting of Judah’s imminent loss of its land, only about a year before Babylon’s final takeover detailed in chs. 39; 40; 52.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 32:2–5 shut up in the court of the guard. Judah’s final king put Jeremiah into prison on the charge of preaching treason, against nation and king, whereas Zedekiah savored positive talk to spark new morale to hold out.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 32:8 the right of . . . redemption. A man facing hardship could sell property, and the right to redeem it until the jubilee year belonged to the closest blood relative. If a stranger had taken it due to unpaid debt, the relative could redeem it as a family possession (Lev. 25:25). Levite land could be sold only to a Levite (Lev. 25:32–34), such as Jeremiah. He did as the Lord told him (Jer. 32:9–12).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 32:14 Take these deeds. Title deeds to the land, kept for security reasons in a pottery jar, would attest in a future day to one’s claim of possession. Men of Anathoth did return to Jerusalem from Babylon (Ezra 2:23). Also, some of the poor of the land, left by the Babylonians (Jer. 39), could have included certain inhabitants of Anathoth. In a still future day, God will be able (32:17, 27) to make this land good to a resurrected Jeremiah and confirm to the right people that they are the prophet/priest’s descendants.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 32:16–25 With the immense sovereign power God possesses to do whatever he wishes in the present captivity and the future return, Jeremiah wondered why God had him redeem the field.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 32:26–35 God reviewed Judah’s sins and affirmed to Jeremiah that the Babylonians would prevail over Jerusalem (“this city” in v. 28, etc.).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 32:36–41 However, one day God will restore Israel to the land and provide the blessing of salvation.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 32:37 I will bring them back to this place. God pledged to restore Israelites to the very land of Israel (cf. v. 44). It is natural to expect his fulfillment of this blessing to be just as literal as the reverse—his scattering from the land (cf. v. 42).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 32:38–39 This speaks of spiritual salvation, i.e., the true knowledge and worship of God.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 32:40 an everlasting covenant. The ultimate fulfillment of a future in the land was not fulfilled in the Ezra/Nehemiah return. This occurs in the time when God gives the people of Israel a new heart in eternal salvation along with their return to the ancient land (cf. 33:8–9 and Ezek. 36:26).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 32:42–44 In the millennial kingdom, land will again be bought and sold in Israel.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 33:3 Call . . . I will answer. God invited Jeremiah’s prayer, which appeals to him to fulfill the aspects of his promises that he guarantees he will attend to (as in 29:11–14; Dan. 9:4–19; cf. John 15:7). His answer to the prayer was assured in Jer. 33:4–26 (cf. v. 14).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 33:8 Again the Lord emphasized the individual spiritual salvation associated with the New Covenant restoration to the land.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 33:11 bring thank offerings to the house of the Lord. These are the words of Ps. 136:1, actually used by the Jews at their return from Babylon (Ezra 3:11).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 33:15 a righteous Branch. This is the Messiah King in David’s lineage, as in 23:5–6. He is the King whose reign immediately follows the second coming when he appears in power (Dan. 2:35, 45; 7:13–14, 27; Matt. 16:27–28; 24:30; 26:64).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 33:17–22 God promised to fulfill the Davidic (2 Sam. 17) and Priestly/Levitical (Num. 25:10–13) Covenants without exception. The promise was as certain as the sure appearance of night and day and the incalculable number of stars or sand grains (cf. Jer. 31:35–37; 33:25–26).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 33:24 two clans. Judah and Israel. The Lord has rejected. Many, even today, believe Israel as a nation has no future. In vv. 25–26 God emphatically denies that notion (cf. 31:35–36; Ps. 74:16–17; Rom. 11:1–2).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 34:1 Nebuchadnezzar . . . fighting. The siege began c. January 15, 588 B.C. (39:1), and ended c. July 18, 586 (39:2; 52:5–6). This chapter was set in Zedekiah's reign, during the siege of 588–586 B.C., and was an amplification of 32:1–5, the message that resulted in Jeremiah's incarceration. against Jerusalem. Babylon's destruction of Jerusalem began August 14, 586 (2 Kings 25:8–9).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 34:3 This prophecy about Zedekiah (cf. 32:1–5) was fulfilled as reported in 2 Kings 25:6–7; Jer. 52:7–11.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 34:8–10 a covenant . . . to make a proclamation of liberty. Zedekiah's pact to free slaves or servants met with initial compliance. The covenant followed the law of release in Lev. 25:39–55; Deut. 15:12–18 in hopes of courting God's favor and ending his judgment.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 34:11 they turned around . . . took back. Former slave masters treacherously went back on their agreement and recalled their servants. Some suggest that this treachery came when the Egyptian army approached and Babylon's forces withdrew temporarily (37:5, 11) and the inhabitants believed that danger was past.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 34:12–16 The word . . . came. God reminded the unfaithful Jews of his own covenant, when he freed Israelites from Egyptian bondage (cf. Ex. 21:2; Deut. 15:12–15). He had commanded that Hebrew slaves should serve only six years, then be set free in the seventh (Jer. 34:13–14).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 34:17–22 You have not obeyed. Due to recent duplicity (v. 16), God promised only one kind of liberty to the offenders, liberty to judgment by sword, pestilence, and famine (v. 17).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 34:18, 21 calf that they cut in two. God will give the guilty over to death before the conqueror, for they denied the covenant ratified by blood (v. 21). In this custom, as in Gen. 15:8–17, two parties laid out parts of a sacrifice on two sides, then walked between the parts. By that symbolic action each pledged to fulfill his promise, agreeing in effect, “May my life (represented by the blood) be poured out if I fail to honor my part.”

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 35:1–19 This chapter provided a description of the commitment to obedience by a group of people to their father, in contrast to the Jews’ disobedience to God.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 35:1 days of Jehoiakim. 609–597 B.C. This backed up to several years before 34:1, possibly for a thematic reason—to cite a case of obedience after the episode of treachery in ch. 34.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 35:2 the Rechabites. These were a semi-nomadic Kenite group, related to Moses’ father-in-law (Judg. 1:16; 4:11), descended from those in 1 Chron. 2:55. The originator of their rules was Jonadab (Jer. 35:6, 14; 2 Kings 10:15, 23). They derived their name from Rechab (Jer. 35:8) and were not of Jacob’s seed, but “strangers” in Israel.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 35:8 obeyed. What was commended here was not the father’s specific commands about nomadic life, but the steadfast obedience of the sons. Their obedience was unreserved in all aspects, at all times, on the part of all, without exception; in all these respects Israel was lacking (v. 14).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 35:13–17 The prophet indicted the Jews for flagrant disobedience.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 35:18–19 Because you have obeyed. God will bless the Rechabites not in spiritually saving them all, but in preserving a posterity in which some can have a place in his service. A Rechabite still has a role in Neh. 3:14. Also, the title over Ps. 71 in the lxx (Greek translation of the OT) was addressed for use by the sons of Jonadab and the earliest captives.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 36:1 fourth year of Jehoiakim. This chapter, like ch. 35, goes back several years earlier than chs. 32–34, before or shortly after the first of three deportations from Jerusalem to Babylon in 605 B.C.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 36:2 write on it. The command was to record in one volume all the messages since the outset of Jeremiah's ministry in 627 B.C. (1:2) up to 605/604 B.C., to be read to the people in the temple (36:6).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 36:4 Baruch wrote. Jeremiah's recording secretary (cf. 32:12) wrote the prophet's messages (cf. 45:1), and penned them a second time after the first scroll was burned (cf. 36:32). He also read the messages in the temple (v. 10) and in the palace (v. 15). Later, Jehudi read a small part of the first scroll before King Jehoiakim (vv. 21–23).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 36:5 banned. The word means "confined, hindered, shut up," and is the same term used for imprisonment in 33:1 and 39:15. The fact that princes allowed Jeremiah to depart into hiding (36:19) may indicate that he was curtailed in some ways without being in prison. There is no record of his being imprisoned in Jehoiakim's rule.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 36:6 a day of fasting. Cf. v. 9. Here was a special fast day, appointed to avert the impending calamity, which would make the Jews more open to the message of the prophet (v. 7).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 36:9 fifth year. This year (604 B.C.) was the next year after that of v. 1, which may suggest that it took some part of a year to repeat and record the long series of messages so far given (cf. v. 18). ninth month. November/ December (cf. vv. 22–23).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 36:10 chamber. On the north side, above the wall overlooking the temple court, where the people gathered, Baruch read from a window or balcony.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 36:17–18 They asked if Baruch had written these words from memory or actual dictation from the inspired prophet. The latter was true. They were concerned it might be God’s word (cf. vv. 16, 25).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 36:23 cut them off. As often as Jehudi read “three or four columns,” the king cut it up, doing so all the way through the whole scroll because he rejected the message (cf. v. 29). Jehoiakim is the king who sent men to Egypt (ch. 26) to bring back God’s faithful prophet, Uriah, so that he could execute him.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 36:24 neither . . . afraid. The king’s servants were more hardened than the princes (v. 16).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 36:26 the Lord hid them. God, who guides (cf. 1:8, 19; 10:23), gave Jeremiah and Baruch safety (cf. 36:19; Ps. 32:8; Prov. 3:5–6).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 36:27 Cf. Isa. 40:18; 55:11; Matt. 5:18.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 36:31 I will punish him. Consequences followed Jehoiakim’s defiance. In 598 B.C. he met his own death (22:18–19; 2 Kings 23:36; 2 Chron. 36:5). He had none to occupy the throne (Jer. 36:30). Jehoiachin or Jeconiah (Coniah in 22:24), his son, did succeed him, but with virtually no rule at all, lasting only three months and 10 days in 597 B.C. (22:24–30; 2 Chron. 36:9–10). Babylon deported him for the rest of his life (cf. Jer. 52:31–34) and none of his descendants ruled (cf. 22:30, and see note there).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 37:1 Zedekiah . . . reigned. Zedekiah, an uncle of Jeconiah, was raised to the throne by Nebuchadnezzar in contempt for Jehoiakim and Jeconiah. His 11-year vassal rule was from 597–586 B.C. The message of the king to Jeremiah in this chapter is somewhat earlier than that in ch. 21, when Zedekiah was afraid of the Chaldean’s (Babylonian’s) defeating Egypt and returning to besiege Jerusalem (37:3, 5).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 37:4 The prophet was no longer in the prison court as he had been (32:2; 33:1).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 37:7–10 say to the king. Babylon, which temporarily ended the siege to deal with an Egyptian advance, would return and destroy Jerusalem.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 37:12 Jeremiah set out. He returned to his hometown to claim the property he had purchased in 32:6–12.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 37:13 Hananiah. Jeremiah had predicted his death (28:16), and thus the grandson took revenge with a false accusation (cf. 38:19; 52:15).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 37:15 beat him. Jeremiah often absorbed blows, threats, or other mistreatment for proclaiming the truth from God (11:21; 20:2; 26:8; 36:26; 38:6, 25).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 37:17 This showed Zedekiah's willful rejection. He knew Jeremiah spoke for God.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 37:19 prophets. They were shown to be liars who said the "king of Babylon" would not come. He had come and would return.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 37:21 bread. The king showed a measure of kindness by returning Jeremiah to "the court of the guard" (cf. 32:2; 33:1), promising "bread" as long as it lasted in the siege (cf. 38:9). He remained there until Jerusalem was taken soon after the food was gone (38:28), with only a brief trip to a pit (38:6–13).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 38:4 Let this man be put to death. Cf. 26:11 and see note there. he is weakening the hands of the soldiers. They charged that Jeremiah's urging to submit to Babylon (38:2) undermined the defenders' morale and will. By proclaiming Babylon's victory, he was viewed as a traitor to Judah.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 38:5 the king can do nothing. This is a spineless evasion of courage and decency by a leader who rejected God's word.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 38:6 no water . . . but only mud. The murderous princes (cf. v. 4) would let God's spokesman die of thirst, hunger, hypothermia, or suffocation if he sank too deeply into the bottom of the cistern. Cf. Ps. 69:2, 14, a reference to Messiah.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 38:7–13 Ebed-melech. An Ethiopian, Gentile stranger acted decisively to deliver Jeremiah from his own people who were seeking to kill him. Perhaps a keeper of the royal harem ("eunuch"), this man later received God's deliverance of his own life and his tribute for his faith (39:15–18).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 38:14–23 I will ask you a question. This is one of several queries as Zedekiah wanted to hear God's word but rejected it. God's word was surrender, and his answer for rejection was calamity for Jerusalem, capture of the king, and tragedy for his family plus others of the palace. For the fulfillment to Zedekiah, cf. 39:4–8.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 38:22 trusted friends have deceived you. Palace women, taken over by Babylonians, heaped cutting ridicule on Zedekiah for listening to friends whose counsel failed him, who left him helpless as one with his feet stuck in mire.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 38:27 answered . . . the king . . . instructed. Jeremiah did not fall into lying deception here. What he said was true though he did not divulge all details of the conversation, to which the princes had no right.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 39:1–2 In the ninth year . . . the eleventh year. Cf. 34:1, and see note there. Cf. 52:1–7; 2 Kings 25:1–4. This siege of 30 months involved the enemy's surrounding the city walls, cutting off all entrances and exits, all food supplies, and as much water as possible, so that famine, thirst, and disease would eventually weaken the beleaguered city dwellers and they could be easily conquered.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 39:3 sat in the middle gate. This expressed full military occupation of the city, since this gate was between the upper city (Mount Zion) and the lower city to the north.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 39:5 Riblah, in . . . Hamath. Nebuchadnezzar's command headquarters were 230 miles to the north of Jerusalem. passed sentence. He dealt with the king as a common criminal. The king had violated his oath (cf. 2 Chron. 36:13; Ezek. 17:13–19).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 39:6–10 Cf. 52:12–16 and 2 Kings 25:8–12.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 39:7 put out the eyes of Zedekiah. This reconciles 32:4 with Ezek. 12:13.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 39:11–12 Jeremiah's prophecies were known to Nebuchadnezzar through defectors (v. 9; 38:19), and also through Jews taken to Babylon with Jeconiah (cf. 40:2).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 39:14 took Jeremiah from the court. This was given as a general summary, whereas 40:1–6 gave more detail concerning the prophet who was first carried to Ramah (40:1) with the other captives before being released (40:2–5). "Gedaliah" was a former supporter of Jeremiah (26:24) and chief among the defectors, loyal to Nebuchadnezzar, so was made governor (40:5) over the remnant left in the land.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 39:15–18 Cf. 38:7–13, and see note there.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 40:2–3 The pagan captain understood the judgment of God better than the leaders of Judah.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 40:4–5 The captain did exactly as Nebuchadnezzar had told him in 39:12.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 40:5–6 Jeremiah chose to go to Gedaliah, the newly appointed governor at Mizpah several miles north of Jerusalem. Gedaliah was soon to be assassinated (cf. 41:1–3).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 40:7 captains . . . in the open country. The leaders of Judah's army scattered in fear.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 40:9–12 God had tempered the severity of judgment by allowing a remnant to prosper.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 40:13–16 Johanan. This man's fair warning to Gedaliah of Ishmael's death plot went unheeded.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 41:1–4 In the second month after the city of Jerusalem had been burned, the careless governor entertained Ishmael's group and invited a massacre.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 41:5 eighty men. Most likely, this group had come in mourning over the destruction of Jerusalem, and so were led to slaughter. Ishmael did amazing damage with only 10 men (v. 1). Eventually they must have acquired more to do what is described in v. 10.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 41:9 Asa. He ruled Judah (c. 911–873 B.C.). Cf. 1 Kings 15:16–22.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 41:12–15 went to fight against Ishmael. Johanan heard of Ishmael's murders and taking people captive, and brought men to stop him. They freed the captives (vv. 13–14), but Ishmael and his men escaped (v. 15).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 41:12 pool . . . Gibeon. Cf. 2 Sam. 2:13.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 42:1–2 Jeremiah. He probably was one carried off from Mizpah, freed, and dwelt with Johanan (41:16).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 42:1–6 pray . . . for us. The remnant in Judah asked Jeremiah to pray to God and find his will on what they should do. They promised to obey (v. 6).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 42:7–12 After 10 days of prayer Jeremiah reported God's word, telling them to remain in the land under God's protection (v. 10).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 42:10 I relent. By this God means "I am satisfied with the punishment inflicted if you do not add new offenses."

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 42:13–19 The prophet gave explicit warning (v. 19) not to go to Egypt, where they would be exposed to corrupting paganism.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 42:20 They were hypocrites who already desired Egypt.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 43:1–7 When Jeremiah finished speaking. The incorrigible, disobedient leaders accused him of deceit and forced Jeremiah and the remnant to go to Egypt, despite the fact that all his prophecies regarding Babylon had come to pass. In so doing, they went out of God's protection into his judgment, as all who are disobedient to his word do.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 43:3, 6 Baruch. The faithful recorder of ch. 36 was still with Jeremiah, kept safe as God promised him at least 20 years earlier (45:5; cf. 605 B.C. in v. 1).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 43:7 Tahpanhes. A location in the eastern delta region of Egypt.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 43:9–13 Take . . . large stones. Stones, placed in the mortar of the brick pavement in the courtyard entrance of the Pharaoh's house, signaled the place where the conquering king of Babylon would bring devastation on Egypt and establish his throne. This was fulfilled in an invasion c. 568/67 B.C.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 43:12 as a shepherd cleans his cloak. A very simple and easy task describes how quickly and easily Nebuchadnezzar will conquer Egypt.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 43:13 obelisks of Heliopolis. Hebrew “house of the sun.” This refers to a temple for the worship of the sun. Located north of Memphis, east of the Nile, these obelisks were said to be 60–100 feet high.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 44:1 The word that came. The unrelenting iniquity of the Jews called for yet another prophecy of judgment on them in Egypt.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 44:2–6 The prophet summarized what had occurred in Judah as a basis for what he predicted coming on the refugees in Egypt.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 44:7, 9–10 Incredibly, after being spared death in Judah, they pursued it by their sin in Egypt.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 44:11–14 Ironically, the Jews taken to Babylon were weaned from idolatry and restored to their land; those taken to Egypt for their obstinate idolatry, perished there.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 44:14 except some fugitives. A small number (v. 28) who fled before the arrival of Babylonian armies were spared.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 44:15 wives. The idolatry apparently began with the women.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 44:17–19 queen of heaven. See note on 7:18. This is a title Roman Catholicism erroneously attributes to Mary, the mother of Jesus, in a blending of Christianity with paganism. The Jews’ twisted thinking credits the idol with the prosperity of pre-captivity Judah, further mocking the goodness of God.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 44:20–23 Jeremiah set the record straight, saying the idol was not the source of their prosperity, but it was the cause of their calamity.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 44:24–28 Jeremiah repeated the doom stated in vv. 11–14.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 44:29–30 sign. The "sign" of punishment was described in v. 30 as the strangulation of Pharaoh Hophra in 570 B.C. by Amasis, which paved the way for Nebuchadnezzar's invasion in the twenty-third year of his reign (568/67 B.C.).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 45:1 fourth year of Jehoiakim. The year was 605 B.C. (ch. 36), when the recording of God's messages to Jeremiah was in view.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 45:3 Woe is me! Baruch felt anxiety as his own cherished plans of a bright future were apparently dashed; even death became a darkening peril (cf. v. 5). Also, he was possibly pressed by human questionings about God carrying through with such calamity (cf. v. 4). Jeremiah spoke to encourage him (v. 2).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 45:4 say to him. God will judge this whole nation (the Jews).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 45:5 do you seek great things . . . ? Baruch had his expectations far too high, and that made the disasters harder to bear. It is enough that he be content just to live. Jeremiah, who once also complained, learned by his own suffering to encourage complainers.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 46:1 concerning the nations. Jeremiah had already proclaimed that all the nations at some time are to "drink the cup" of God's wrath (25:15–26). In chs. 46–51 God selected certain nations and forecast their doom. Likely given to Jeremiah at different times, the prophecies were collected according to the nations, not the chronology.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 46:2–26 About Egypt. Cf. Isa. 19–20; Ezek. 29–32. Jeremiah 46:2–12 depicts Pharaoh Neco's overthrow by the Babylonians at Carchemish by the Euphrates River in 605 B.C., in which Egypt lost all its territory west of the river.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 46:3–6 Here was a derisive call to Egypt to ready itself for defeat.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 46:10 day is the day of the Lord. While this phrase often refers to an eschatological judgment on earth (such as in Zeph. 1:7; Mal. 4:5; 1 Thess. 5:2; 2 Pet. 3:10), it also may refer to a historical day. In this case it refers to the Egyptian defeat (cf. Lam. 2:22). See note on Isa. 2:12.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 46:11 Gilead. See note on 8:20–22.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 46:13–26 Babylon's invasion of Egypt, 15 or 16 years before the destruction of Jerusalem, is here detailed (601 B.C.; cf. v. 13). Having spent 13 years in a siege of Tyre, Nebuchadnezzar was promised Egypt as a reward for humbling Tyre (cf. Ezek. 29:17–20).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 46:18 Tabor . . . Carmel. As those two mountains rise above the hills of Palestine, so Nebuchadnezzar will be superior.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 46:20–21 A beautiful heifer . . . fattened calves. Fat and untamed, ready to kill.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 46:26 Afterward. Forty years after Nebuchadnezzar's conquest of Egypt, it threw off the Babylonian yoke but never regained its former glory (Ezek. 29:11–15).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 46:27–28 fear not . . . Jacob. Though Israel has been scattered to the nations, the nations will receive their judgments, and the Lord will restore Israel (repeated from 30:10–11) from dispersion to its own land (as in 23:5–8; 30–33). No matter what judgments fall on Israel, they will not be destroyed, as Paul reiterates in Rom. 11:1–2, 15, 25–27.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 47:1–5 concerning the Philistines. Cf. Isa. 14:29–32; Ezek. 25:15–17; Amos 1:6–8; Zeph. 2:4–7. Although Egypt's Pharaoh Hophra conquered the Philistines (who lived on the coastal plain of Palestine) in Gaza and Phoenicia around 587 B.C. (Jer. 47:1), Babylon appears to be the conqueror in this scene ("out of the north"), at the same time as the invasion of Judah (588–586 B.C.; cf. 39:1–2).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 47:6–7 sword of the Lord! Cf. Judg. 7:18, 20.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 48:1 Concerning Moab. Various sites of unknown location in Moab are to be destroyed (vv. 1–5). The judgment is framed in similar words or some of the same words as in other passages (Isa. 15:1–9; 16:6–14; 25:10–12; Ezek. 25:8–11; Amos 2:1–3; Zeph. 2:8–11). Desolation overtook different parts of Moab at various times, but Babylon in 588–586 B.C. or 582–581 B.C. is likely the main destroyer (cf. Jer. 48:40). The Moabites were Lot's descendants (cf. Gen. 19:37), who lived east of the Dead Sea and often fought with Israel.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 48:7 Chemosh. He was the leading god of Moab (cf. Num. 21:29; Judg. 11:24; 1 Kings 11:7; 2 Kings 23:13).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 48:10 Cursed is he. God's aim to judge Moab was so intense that he pronounced a curse on whatever instrument (army) he would use should they carry it out "with slackness," i.e., "carelessly," or "negligently."

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 48:11–12 This wine-making imagery is vivid. In the production of sweet wine, the juice was left in a wineskin until the sediment or dregs settled onto the bottom. Then it was poured into another skin until more dregs were separated. This process continued until the dregs were all removed and a pure, sweet wine obtained. Moab was not taken from suffering to suffering so that her bitter dregs would be removed through the purging of pain. Thus the nation was settled into the thickness and bitterness of its own sin. Judgment from God was coming to smash them.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 48:18–20 Dibon . . . Aroer! These places were on the Arnon River, but would be thirsty.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 48:24 Kerioth. Likely the city of Judas Iscariot. Cf. Josh. 15:25.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 48:25 horn . . . is cut off. An example of the OT use of "horn" as a symbol of military power, as an animal uses horns to hook, gouge, or ram. Moab is to be dehorned.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 48:26 Here is a vivid picture of humiliation.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 48:29 Suffering didn’t come to humble Moab (see note on vv. 11–12), so she remained proud.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 48:47 I will restore. God will allow a remnant of Moab to return to the land (cf. 12:14–17; 46:26; 48:47; 49:6, 39), through their descendants in the messianic era (“the latter days”).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 49:1–6 Concerning the Ammonites. Cf. Ezek. 25:1–7; Amos 1:13–15; Zeph. 2:8–11. These people descended from Lot (cf. Gen. 19:38) and lived north of Moab. Though Israel had people who were heirs to Transjordan, i.e., Gad, Reuben, and one half of Manasseh (cf. Josh. 22:1–9), the Ammonites, whose god was Milcham or Molech, were chided for having usurped the area (Jer. 49:1), when the northern kingdom was taken captive by Shalmaneser.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 49:2 battle cry. Nebuchadnezzar defeated Ammon in the fifth year after the destruction of Jerusalem, around 582/81 B.C.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 49:4 valleys. The Hebrew (see esv footnote) adds, “your valley flows,” i.e., with the blood of the slain. faithless. See note on Prov. 14:14.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 49:6 I will restore. As with Moab (cf. 48:47 and see note there), God promised that captives would have an opportunity to return. This was partially fulfilled under Cyrus, but will be more fully in the coming kingdom of Messiah (cf. 48:47).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 49:7–22 Concerning Edom. Cf. Isa. 21:11–12; Ezek. 25:12–14; Amos 1:11–12; Obad. 1. This prophecy is closely related to Obadiah. These people descended from Esau (cf. Gen. 36:1–19) and lived south of the Dead Sea. Perpetual desolation is ahead for Edom (Jer. 49:13). God will make it bare (vv. 10, 18). The destroyer is probably Babylon in 588–586 B.C. or 582–581 B.C. as v. 19 has descriptions used of Babylon against Judah (lion, 4:7; thicket of the Jordan, 12:5). Also “swiftly like an eagle” (49:22) is used of Babylon (Hab. 1:8). There is no prophecy of a future restoration.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 49:8 Esau. He was cursed for his godlessness and his punishment was perpetuated in his descendants (cf. Heb. 12:11, 17).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 49:9 See note on Obad. 5–6.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 49:10 he is no more. Edom was politically extinct after the Roman conquest.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 49:11 This was because no adult men will be left to care for them.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 49:12 those . . . not deserve to drink . . . must drink it. This refers to the Jews who had a covenant relation to God. What will happen to a nation that has no such pledge?

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 49:16–17 Edom was situated in high and rugged mountains and thus convinced it was invincible. But the ruin will come and be irreversible.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 49:19–21 These words are repeated in 50:44–46, where they refer to Babylon.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 49:20 the little ones of the flock. The weakest of the Chaldeans shall drag them away captive.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 49:23–27 Concerning Damascus. Cf. Isa. 17:1–3 and Amos 1:3–5. Hamath, a city on the Orontes River that marked the northern limit of Solomon’s rule (2 Chron. 8:4), 110 miles north of Damascus in southern Syria, and Arpad, 105 miles southwest of modern Aleppo in Northern Syria, were to fall, as well as Damascus, Syria’s capital. Nebuchadnezzar conquered them in 605 B.C.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 49:25 famous city . . . my joy. Could be translated, “the city of renown,” famous due to its situation in a spacious oasis and its trade, as in Ezek. 27:18.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 49:27 strongholds of Ben-hadad. Here was the place where so many cruel evils against Israel were devised, thus the reason for its overthrow. The name is common among Syrian kings, meaning Son of Hadad, an idol, so it does not refer to the Ben-hadad of 2 Kings 13:3 and Amos 1:4.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 49:28–33 Concerning Kedar . . . Hazor. Cf. Isa. 21:13–17. These areas in the Arabian desert east of Judah were to be laid waste (as a different Hazor was a few miles northwest of the Sea of Galilee). Kedar was an Ishmaelite tribe (cf. Gen. 25:13; Ezek. 27:21). The conqueror was Nebuchadnezzar in 599/98 B.C. as recounted in an ancient record, the Babylonian Chronicle. It was shortly after this that Babylon seized Jerusalem in 598/97 B.C.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 49:31 no gates or bars. These nomads were out of the way of contending powers in Asia and Africa.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 49:34–39 concerning Elam. As in 25:25, Elam (200 miles east of Babylon and west of the Tigris River) was to be subjugated. Babylon fulfilled this in 596 B.C. Later, Cyrus of Persia conquered Elam and incorporated Elamites into the Persian forces that conquered Babylon in 539 B.C. Its capital, Susa, was the residence of Darius and became the center of the Persian Empire (Neh. 1:1; Dan. 8:2).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 49:34 reign of Zedekiah. Jeremiah speaks of this judgment in 597 B.C.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 49:35 break the bow. Elamites were famous archers (cf. Isa. 22:6).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 49:39 I will restore. As with certain other peoples in this section of nations, God would allow Elamites to return to their homeland. In Acts 2:9, Elamites were among the group present at the Pentecost event. This has eschatological implications as well.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 50:1 concerning Babylon. The subject of chs. 50 and 51 (cf. Isa. 13:1–14:23; Hab. 2:6–17). Judgment focuses on Media Persia's conquest of Babylon in 539 B.C. The prediction of elements of violent overthrow, which was not the case when Cyrus conquered since there was not even a battle, points to greater fulfillment near the coming of Messiah in glory when events more fully satisfy the description (cf. Rev. 17–18).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 50:2 idols. First the idols of Babylon are discredited by Jeremiah's using an unusual word for idols, meaning in Hebrew "dung pellets."

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 50:3 none shall dwell. The far view in the v. 1 note cites this as not yet fulfilled in a sudden way (cf. 51:8). Media Persia came down from the north in 539 B.C. and armies in the years that followed, but only gradually brought the past Babylon to complete desolation (cf. 50:12–13).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 50:4–10 people of Israel . . . shall come. Jeremiah predicted a return for exiled Israel and Judah (vv. 17–20, as chs. 30–33) as the scattered and penitent people were given opportunity to escape Babylon's doom and return to Jerusalem and to the Lord in an eternal covenant (50:5).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 50:5 in an everlasting covenant. This is the New Covenant summarized in 31:31.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 50:11–16 Judgment on Babylon is the vengeance of God (v. 15) for her treatment of his people.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 50:17–20 This section summarized the divine interpretation of Israel's history: 1) suffering and judgment on her (v. 17); 2) judgment on those who afflicted Israel (v. 18); 3) her return in peace and plenty (v. 19); and 4) the pardon of her iniquity (v. 20) under Messiah.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 50:21 Merathaim . . . Pekod. This was a dramatic play on words emphasizing cause and effect. The first means "double rebellion" and named a region in southern Babylon near the Persian Gulf;

the latter, meaning “punishment,” was also in southern Babylon on the east bank of the Tigris River.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 50:23 hammer of the whole earth. The description was of Babylon’s former conquering force, and God’s breaking the “hammer” he had once used. The fact that God used Babylon as his executioner was no commendation of that nation (cf. Hab. 1:6–7).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 50:28 vengeance for his temple. This refers to their burning the temple in the destruction of Jerusalem (cf. 51:11).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 50:29 Repay her. God aimed to bless Israel and curse all who curse her (cf. Gen. 12:1–3, Abrahamic Covenant). The judgment on Babylon, as in Hab. 2, was a repayment in view of Babylon’s wrongs as God defends Israel’s case (Jer. 50:34; 51:36, 56), particularly God’s vengeance on her arrogance (“proud one” cf. 50:31–32).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 50:34 Redeemer. The OT concept of kinsmen redeemer included the protection of a relative’s person and property, the avenging of a relative’s murder, the purchase of alienated property, and even the marriage of his widow (cf. Lev. 25:25; Num. 35:21; Ruth 4:4).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 50:35–38 The “sword” is mentioned five times (cf. Ezek. 21).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 50:40 As when God overthrew Sodom. Cf. 50:1. What befell Sodom (cf. Gen. 19) was sudden and total destruction, not like the Media Persia takeover, but like an example for the future devastation that will overtake the final Babylon (cf. Rev. 17–18).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 50:41 from the north. Media Persia in 539 B.C.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 50:41–46 Cf. 6:22–24 and 49:19–21. The “lion” is Cyrus.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 51:1–4 the day of trouble. The coming of the northern invader is in view.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 51:5 Here is a reminder that God will not utterly forget or destroy his people. Cf. Rom. 11:1–2, 29.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 51:8 Suddenly . . . fallen. The focus was first on Babylon's sudden fall on one night in 539 B.C. (Dan. 5:30). The far view looks at the destruction of the final Babylon near the second advent when it will be absolutely sudden (Rev. 18).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 51:11 kings of the Medes. The aggressor was specifically identified (cf. v. 28) as the leader of the Medes, assisted by Persia (539 B.C.).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 51:15–19 he who made the earth. God's almighty power and wisdom in creation are evidences of his superiority to all idols (vv. 17–18), who along with their worshipers will all be destroyed by his mighty power (vv. 15–16, 19), as in Babylon's case.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 51:20–23 You are my hammer. Cyrus of Persia was God's war club. Ten times the phrase "with you" hits with the force of a hammer.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 51:25 destroying mountain. Though Babylon existed on a plain, this phrase was meant as a portrayal of Babylon's looming greatness and power in devastating nations (cf. also 50:23, and see note there). a burnt mountain. Babylon will be like a volcano that is extinct, never to be rebuilt (51:26).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 51:27 Here are listed the people north of Babylon who were conquered by the Medes early in the sixth century B.C. They assisted the Medes against Babylon.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 51:31 to tell the king of Babylon. Couriers brought the report of the city's fall. Since Belshazzar was slain in the city on the night of the fall (Dan. 5:30), reference may be to runners speeding the news to his co-ruler Nabonidus, who was away from Babylon or possibly to Daniel, the third ruler in the kingdom (Dan. 5:29).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 51:32 The method of capturing the city was to block off the Euphrates River and dry up the river bed under the city wall, then march in. The “fire” was set to frighten and it did.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 51:39 drunk. The allusion is possibly to Belshazzar’s drunken feast, recorded in Dan. 5:1–4 (cf. Jer. 51:57).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 51:45–50 Again the Lord’s people were warned to flee.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 51:58 labor for nothing. People from many nations enslaved in Babylon had built the wall for nothing.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 51:59 Seraiah was the quartermaster. This man looked after the comfort of the king. He may have been the brother of Baruch, Jeremiah’s secretary (cf. 32:12).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 51:60–63 This royal official carried the scroll (v. 60) to read (v. 61) in Babylon and then dramatically illustrated the coming destruction.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 52:1–34 This chapter is almost identical to 2 Kings 24:18–25:30, and it is a historical supplement detailing Jerusalem’s fall (as Jer. 39). It fittingly opens with her last king and his sin (597–586 B.C.). The purpose of this chapter is to show how accurate Jeremiah’s prophecies were concerning Jerusalem and Judah.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 52:1 Jeremiah. A different man from the author (cf. 1:1).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 52:4–11 See note on 34:1. This narrative rehearses the account of the fall of Jerusalem. So crucial was this event that the OT records it four times (see also 39:1–14; 2 Kings 25; 2 Chron. 36:11–21).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 52:4 ninth year . . . tenth month. For vv. 4–6, see notes on 34:1 and 39:1–2.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 52:12 tenth day. The parallel phrase in 2 Kings 25:8 reads “seventh day.” Nebuzaradan (v. 12), “captain of the bodyguard,” started from Riblah on the seventh day and arrived in Jerusalem on the tenth day. nineteenth year. 586 B.C.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 52:18–19 they took. The conquerors plundered the magnificent Solomonic temple and took the articles to Babylon. First Kings 6–8 describes these articles. Later, Belshazzar would use some of these at his immoral banquet, gloating over victory he wrongly attributed to his gods (Dan. 5; cf. Dan. 1:2).

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 52:22 five. Second Kings 25:17 reads “three.” There may have been two parts to the capitals, the lower part of two cubits and the upper part, carved ornately, of three cubits. The lower may be omitted in 2 Kings 25:17 as belonging to the shaft of the pillar.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 52:24–27 Babylon executed some Judean leaders as an act of power, of resentment over the 18-month resistance (cf. 52:4–6), and of intimidation to prevent future plots.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 52:25 seven. Second Kings 25:19 reads “five.”

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 52:28–30 carried away. The stages of deportation to Babylon are: 1) in 605 B.C. under Jehoiakim, which marked the beginning of the 70 years of exile, 2) in 597 B.C. under Jehoiachin, 3) in 586 B.C. under Zedekiah, and 4) a mopping up campaign in 582–81 B.C. The number may include only males.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 52:31–34 exile of Jehoiachin. A captive since 597 B.C., he appears here in 561 B.C., after Nebuchadnezzar’s death when Evil-merodach ruled Babylon. Though detained, the former king was kindly freed to enjoy previously denied privileges. The Lord did not forget the Davidic line even in exile.

JEREMIAH—NOTE ON 52:31 twenty-fifth. Second Kings 25:27 reads “twenty-seventh.” Probably the decree was on the twenty-fifth day and carried out on the twenty-seventh.

Introduction to Lamentations

Title

“Lamentations” was derived from a translation of the title as found in the Latin Vulgate (Vulgate) translation of the Greek OT, the Septuagint (lxx), and conveys the idea of “loud cries.” The Hebrew exclamation ‘ekah (“How,” which expresses “dismay”), used in 1:1; 2:1; 4:1, gives the book its Hebrew title. However, the rabbis began early to call the book “loud cries” or “lamentations” (cf. Jer. 7:29). No other entire OT book contains only laments, as does this distressful dirge, marking the funeral of the once beautiful city of Jerusalem (cf. Lam. 2:15). This book keeps alive the memory of that fall and teaches all believers how to deal with suffering.

Author and Date

The author of Lamentations is not named within the book, but there are internal and historical indications that it was Jeremiah. The lxx introduces Lam. 1:1, “And it came to pass, after Israel had been carried away captive . . . Jeremiah sat weeping [cf. 3:48–49, etc.] . . . lamented . . . and said . . . .” God had told Jeremiah to have Judah lament (Jer. 7:29), and Jeremiah also wrote laments for Josiah (2 Chron. 35:25).

Jeremiah wrote Lamentations as an eyewitness (cf. Lam. 1:13–15; 2:6, 9; 4:1–12), possibly with Baruch’s secretarial help (cf. Jer. 36:4; 45:1), during or soon after Jerusalem’s fall in 586 B.C. It was mid-July when the city fell and mid-August when the temple was burned. Likely, Jeremiah saw the destruction of walls, towers, homes, palace, and temple; he wrote while the event remained painfully fresh in his memory, but before his forced departure to Egypt c. 583 B.C. (cf. Jer. 43:1–7). The language used in Lamentations closely parallels that used by Jeremiah in his much larger prophetic book (cf. Lam. 1:2 with Jer. 30:14; Lam. 1:15 with Jer. 8:21; Lam. 1:6 and 2:11 with Jer. 9:1, 18; Lam. 2:22 with Jer. 6:25; Lam. 4:21 with Jer. 49:12).

Background and Setting

The prophetic seeds of Jerusalem’s destruction were sown through Joshua 800 years in advance (Josh. 23:15–16). Now, for over 40 years, Jeremiah had prophesied of coming judgment and been scorned by the people for preaching doom (c. 645–605 B.C.). When that judgment came on the disbelieving people from Nebuchadnezzar and the Babylonian army, Jeremiah still responded with great sorrow and compassion toward his suffering and obstinate people. Lamentations relates closely to the book of Jeremiah, describing the anguish over Jerusalem’s receiving God’s judgment for unrepentant sins. In the book that bears his name, Jeremiah had predicted the calamity in Jer. 1–29. In Lamentations, he concentrates in more detail on the bitter suffering and heartbreak that was felt over Jerusalem’s devastation (cf. Ps. 46:4–5). So critical was Jerusalem’s destruction, that the facts are recorded in four separate OT chapters: 2 Kings 25; Jer. 39:1–11; 52; and 2 Chron. 36:11–21.

All 154 verses have been recognized by the Jews as a part of their sacred canon. Along with Ruth, Esther, Song of Solomon, and Ecclesiastes, Lamentations is included among the OT books of the Megilloth, or “five scrolls,” which were read in the synagogue on special occasions. Lamentations is read on the ninth of Ab (July/August) to remember the date of Jerusalem’s destruction by Nebuchadnezzar. Interestingly, this same date later marked the destruction of Herod’s temple by the Romans in A.D. 70.

Historical and Theological Themes

The chief focus of Lamentations is on God's judgment in response to Judah's sin. This theme can be traced throughout the book (1:5, 8, 18, 20; 3:42; 4:6, 13, 22; 5:16). A second theme that surfaces is the hope found in God's compassion (as in 3:22–24, 31–33; cf. Ps. 30:3–5). Though the book deals with disgrace, it turns to God's great faithfulness (Lam. 3:22–25) and closes with grace as Jeremiah moves from lamentation to consolation (5:19–22).

God's sovereign judgment represents a third current in the book. His holiness was so offended by Judah's sin that he ultimately brought the destructive calamity. Babylon was chosen to be his human instrument of wrath (1:5, 12, 15; 2:1, 17; 3:37–38; cf. Jer. 50:23). Jeremiah mentions Babylon more than 150 times from Jer. 20:4 to 52:34, but in Lamentations he never once explicitly names Babylon or its king, Nebuchadnezzar. Only the Lord is identified as the One who dealt with Judah's sin.

Fourth, because the sweeping judgment seemed to be the end of every hope of Israel's salvation and the fulfillment of God's promises (cf. Lam. 3:18), much of the book appears in the mode of prayer: 1) 1:11, which represents a wailing confession of sin (cf. 1:18); 2) 3:8, with its anguish when God "shuts out my prayer" (cf. 3:43–54; Jer. 7:16); 3) Lam. 3:55–59, where Jeremiah cries to God for relief, or 3:60–66, where he seeks for recompense to the enemies (which Jer. 50–51 guarantees); and 4) Lam. 5:1–22, with its appeal to heaven for restored mercy (which Jer. 30–33 assures), based on the confidence that God is faithful (Lam. 3:23).

A fifth feature relates to Christ. Jeremiah's tears (3:48–49) compare with Jesus' weeping over the same city of Jerusalem (Matt. 23:37–39; Luke 19:41–44). Though God was the judge and executioner, it was a grief to him to bring this destruction. The statement "In all their affliction he [God] was afflicted" (Isa. 63:9) was true in principle. God will one day wipe away all tears (Isa. 25:8; Rev. 7:17; 21:4) when sin shall be no more.

A sixth theme is an implied warning to all who read this book. If God did not hesitate to judge his beloved people (Deut. 32:10), what will he do to the nations of the world who reject his word?

Interpretive Challenges

Certain details pose initial difficulties. Among them are: 1) imprecatory prayers for judgment on other sinners (1:21–22; 3:64–66); 2) the reason for God shutting out prayer (3:8); and 3) the necessity of judgment that is so severe (cf. 1:1, 14; 3:8).

Outline

In the first four chapters, each verse begins in an acrostic pattern, i.e., using the 22 letters of the Hebrew alphabet in sequence. Chapters 1; 2; and 4 have 22 verses corresponding to 22 letters, while ch. 3 employs each letter for three consecutive verses until there are 22 trios, or 66 verses. Chapter 5 is not written alphabetically, although it simulates the pattern in that it has 22 verses. An acrostic order, such as in Ps. 119 (where all 22 Hebrew letters are used in series of eight verses each), was used to aid memorization. The structure of the book ascends and descends from the great confession in Lam. 3:22–24, “great is your faithfulness,” which is the literary center of the book.

- I. The First Lament: Jerusalem’s Devastation (1:1–22)
  - A. Jeremiah’s Sorrow (1:1–11)
  - B. Jerusalem’s Sorrow (1:12–22)

  - A. The Lord’s Perspective (2:1–10)
  - B. A Human Perspective (2:11–19)
  - C. Jeremiah’s Prayer (2:20–22)
- III. The Third Lament: Jeremiah’s Griefs Expressed (3:1–66)
  - A. His Distress (3:1–20)
  - B. His Hope (3:21–38)
  - C. His Counsel/Prayer (3:39–66)
- IV. The Fourth Lament: God’s Wrath Detailed (4:1–22)
  - A. For Jerusalem (4:1–20)
  - B. For Edom (4:21–22)
- V. The Fifth Lament: The Remnant’s Prayers (5:1–22)
  - A. To Be Remembered by the Lord (5:1–18)
  - B. To Be Restored by the Lord (5:19–22)

Lamentations

How Lonely Sits the City

LAMENTATIONS 1 ‡†How lonely sits the city that was full of people!
How like a widow has she become,
she who was great among the nations!
She who was a princess among the provinces
has become a slave.
[2]†She weeps bitterly in the night,
with tears on her cheeks;
among all her lovers
she has none to comfort her;
all her friends have dealt treacherously with her;
they have become her enemies.
[3]†Judah has gone into exile because of affliction and hard servitude;
she dwells now among the nations,
but finds no resting place;
her pursuers have all overtaken her in the midst of her distress. [1] [4]†The roads to Zion mourn, for none come to the festival;
all her gates are desolate;
her priests groan;
her virgins have been afflicted, [2]
and she herself suffers bitterly.
[5]†Her foes have become the head;
her enemies prosper,
because the LORD has afflicted her for the multitude of her transgressions;
her children have gone away,
captives before the foe.

[6]From the daughter of Zion
all her majesty has departed.
Her princes have become like deer that find no pasture;
they fled without strength
before the pursuer.
[7]Jerusalem remembers
in the days of her affliction and wandering
all the precious things
that were hers from days of old.
When her people fell into the hand of the foe,
and there was none to help her,
her foes gloated over her;
they mocked at her downfall.
[8]†Jerusalem sinned grievously;
therefore she became filthy;
all who honored her despise her,
for they have seen her nakedness;
she herself groans
and turns her face away.
[9]†Her uncleanness was in her skirts;
she took no thought of her future; [3]
therefore her fall is terrible;
she has no comforter.
“O Lord, behold my affliction,
for the enemy has triumphed!”
[10]†The enemy has stretched out his hands over all her precious things;
for she has seen the nations
enter her sanctuary,
those whom you forbade
to enter your congregation.
[11]†All her people groan
as they search for bread;
they trade their treasures for food
to revive their strength.
“Look, O Lord, and see,

for I am despised.”
12†“Is it nothing to you, all you who pass by?
Look and see
if there is any sorrow like my sorrow,
which was brought upon me,
which the LORD inflicted on the day of his fierce anger.
13†“From on high he sent fire;
into my bones [4] he made it descend;
he spread a net for my feet;
he turned me back;
he has left me stunned,
faint all the day long.
14†“My transgressions were bound [5] into a yoke;
by his hand they were fastened together;
they were set upon my neck;
he caused my strength to fail;
the Lord gave me into the hands of those whom I cannot withstand.
15†“The Lord rejected
all my mighty men in my midst;
he summoned an assembly against me
to crush my young men;
the Lord has trodden as in a winepress
the virgin daughter of Judah.
16“For these things I weep;
my eyes flow with tears;
for a comforter is far from me,
one to revive my spirit;
my children are desolate,
for the enemy has prevailed.”
17†Zion stretches out her hands,
but there is none to comfort her;
the LORD has commanded against Jacob that his neighbors should be his foes; Jerusalem has become a filthy thing among them.

[18]†“The LORD is in the right,
for I have rebelled against his word;
but hear, all you peoples,
and see my suffering;
my young women and my young men
have gone into captivity.
[19]“I called to my lovers,
but they deceived me;
my priests and elders
perished in the city,
while they sought food
to revive their strength.
[20]“Look, O LORD, for I am in distress;
my stomach churns;
my heart is wrung within me,
because I have been very rebellious.
In the street the sword bereaves;
in the house it is like death.
[21]‡“They heard [6] my groaning,
yet there is no one to comfort me.
All my enemies have heard of my trouble;
they are glad that you have done it.
You have brought [7] the day you announced;
now let them be as I am.
[22]†“Let all their evildoing come before you,
and deal with them
as you have dealt with me
because of all my transgressions;
for my groans are many,
and my heart is faint.”

The Lord Has Destroyed Without Pity

LAMENTATIONS 2 †How the Lord in his anger has set the daughter of Zion under a cloud!
He has cast down from heaven to earth
the splendor of Israel;
he has not remembered his footstool
in the day of his anger.
[2]†The Lord has swallowed up without mercy
all the habitations of Jacob;
in his wrath he has broken down
the strongholds of the daughter of Judah;
he has brought down to the ground in dishonor
the kingdom and its rulers.
[3]He has cut down in fierce anger
all the might of Israel;
he has withdrawn from them his right hand
in the face of the enemy;
he has burned like a flaming fire in Jacob,
consuming all around.
[4]He has bent his bow like an enemy,
with his right hand set like a foe;
and he has killed all who were delightful in our eyes
in the tent of the daughter of Zion;
he has poured out his fury like fire.
[5]The Lord has become like an enemy;
he has swallowed up Israel;
he has swallowed up all its palaces;
he has laid in ruins its strongholds,
and he has multiplied in the daughter of Judah
mourning and lamentation.
[6]‡‡He has laid waste his booth like a garden,
laid in ruins his meeting place;
the LORD has made Zion forget festival and Sabbath,

and in his fierce indignation has spurned king and priest.
[7]‡The Lord has scorned his altar,
disowned his sanctuary;
he has delivered into the hand of the enemy
the walls of her palaces;
they raised a clamor in the house of the LORD
as on the day of festival.
[8]The LORD determined to lay in ruins
the wall of the daughter of Zion;
he stretched out the measuring line;
he did not restrain his hand from destroying;
he caused rampart and wall to lament;
they languished together.
[9]Her gates have sunk into the ground;
he has ruined and broken her bars;
her king and princes are among the nations;
the law is no more,
and her prophets find
no vision from the LORD.
[10]The elders of the daughter of Zion sit on the ground in silence;
they have thrown dust on their heads and put on sackcloth;
the young women of Jerusalem
have bowed their heads to the ground.
[11]‡My eyes are spent with weeping;
my stomach churns;
my bile is poured out to the ground
because of the destruction of the daughter of my people, because infants and babies faint
in the streets of the city.
[12]They cry to their mothers,
“Where is bread and wine?”
as they faint like a wounded man
in the streets of the city,
as their life is poured out
on their mothers' bosom.

[13]What can I say for you, to what compare you,
O daughter of Jerusalem?
What can I liken to you, that I may comfort you,
O virgin daughter of Zion?
For your ruin is vast as the sea;
who can heal you?
[14]†Your prophets have seen for you false and deceptive visions;
they have not exposed your iniquity
to restore your fortunes, but have seen for you oracles that are false and misleading.
[15]All who pass along the way
clap their hands at you;
they hiss and wag their heads
at the daughter of Jerusalem: “Is this the city that was called the perfection of beauty,
the joy of all the earth?”
[16]All your enemies
rail against you;
they hiss, they gnash their teeth,
they cry: “We have swallowed her!
Ah, this is the day we longed for;
now we have it; we see it!”
[17]†The LORD has done what he purposed;
he has carried out his word,
which he commanded long ago;
he has thrown down without pity;
he has made the enemy rejoice over you
and exalted the might of your foes.
[18]†Their heart cried to the Lord.
O wall of the daughter of Zion,
let tears stream down like a torrent
day and night!
Give yourself no rest,
your eyes no respite!

[19]“Arise, cry out in the night,
at the beginning of the night watches!
Pour out your heart like water
before the presence of the Lord!
Lift your hands to him
for the lives of your children, who faint for hunger
at the head of every street.”
[20]†Look, O LORD, and see!
With whom have you dealt thus?
Should women eat the fruit of their womb,
the children of their tender care?
Should priest and prophet be killed
in the sanctuary of the Lord?
[21]†In the dust of the streets lie the young and the old;
my young women and my young men
have fallen by the sword;
you have killed them in the day of your anger,
slaughtering without pity.
[22]You summoned as if to a festival day
my terrors on every side,
and on the day of the anger of the LORD
no one escaped or survived;
those whom I held and raised
my enemy destroyed.

Great Is Your Faithfulness

LAMENTATIONS 3 ‡I am the man who has seen affliction
under the rod of his wrath;
[2]he has driven and brought me into darkness without any light; [3]surely against me he turns his hand
again and again the whole day long.
[4]He has made my flesh and my skin waste away;
he has broken my bones;
[5]he has besieged and enveloped me with bitterness and tribulation;
[6]he has made me dwell in darkness
like the dead of long ago.
[7]He has walled me about so that I cannot escape;
he has made my chains heavy;
[8]†though I call and cry for help,
he shuts out my prayer;
[9]he has blocked my ways with blocks of stones;
he has made my paths crooked.
[10]He is a bear lying in wait for me,
a lion in hiding;
[11]he turned aside my steps and tore me to pieces;
he has made me desolate;
[12]he bent his bow and set me
as a target for his arrow.
[13]He drove into my kidneys
the arrows of his quiver;
[14]I have become the laughingstock of all peoples,
the object of their taunts all day long.
[15]He has filled me with bitterness;
he has sated me with wormwood.
[16]†He has made my teeth grind on gravel,
and made me cower in ashes;
[17]my soul is bereft of peace;

I have forgotten what happiness [1] is;
[18]so I say, “My endurance has perished;
so has my hope from the LORD.”
[19]Remember my affliction and my wanderings,
the wormwood and the gall!
[20]My soul continually remembers it
and is bowed down within me.
[21]‡†But this I call to mind,
and therefore I have hope:
[22]‡†The steadfast love of the LORD never ceases; [2]
his mercies never come to an end; [23]†they are new every morning;
great is your faithfulness.
[24]“The LORD is my portion,” says my soul,
“therefore I will hope in him.”
[25]The LORD is good to those who wait for him,
to the soul who seeks him.
[26]It is good that one should wait quietly
for the salvation of the LORD.
[27]†It is good for a man that he bear
the yoke in his youth.
[28]Let him sit alone in silence
when it is laid on him;
[29]†let him put his mouth in the dust—
there may yet be hope;
[30]†let him give his cheek to the one who strikes,
and let him be filled with insults.
[31]For the Lord will not cast off forever,
[32]but, though he cause grief, he will have compassion
according to the abundance of his steadfast love; [33]‡for he does not willingly afflict or grieve the children of men.
[34]To crush underfoot
all the prisoners of the earth, [35]to deny a man justice in the presence of the Most High,

[36]to subvert a man in his lawsuit,
the Lord does not approve.
[37]Who has spoken and it came to pass,
unless the Lord has commanded it?
[38]‡Is it not from the mouth of the Most High that good and bad come?
[39]Why should a living man complain,
a man, about the punishment of his sins?
[40]‡Let us test and examine our ways,
and return to the LORD!
[41]Let us lift up our hearts and hands
to God in heaven:
[42]‡“We have transgressed and rebelled,
and you have not forgiven.
[43]“You have wrapped yourself with anger and pursued us,
killing without pity;
[44]you have wrapped yourself with a cloud
so that no prayer can pass through.
[45]You have made us scum and garbage among the peoples.
[46]“All our enemies
open their mouths against us;
[47]panic and pitfall have come upon us,
devastation and destruction;
[48]‡my eyes flow with rivers of tears
because of the destruction of the daughter of my people.
[49]“My eyes will flow without ceasing,
without respite,
[50]until the LORD from heaven
looks down and sees;
[51]my eyes cause me grief
at the fate of all the daughters of my city.
[52]‡“I have been hunted like a bird
by those who were my enemies without cause; [53]they flung me alive into the pit
and cast stones on me;
[54]water closed over my head;

I said, ‘I am lost.’
[55]“I called on your name, O Lord,
from the depths of the pit;
[56]you heard my plea, ‘Do not close your ear to my cry for help!’
[57]You came near when I called on you;
you said, ‘Do not fear!’
[58]†“You have taken up my cause, O Lord;
you have redeemed my life.
[59]You have seen the wrong done to me, O Lord;
judge my cause.
[60]You have seen all their vengeance,
all their plots against me.
[61]“You have heard their taunts, O Lord,
all their plots against me.
[62]The lips and thoughts of my assailants are against me all the day long.
[63]Behold their sitting and their rising;
I am the object of their taunts.
[64]‡“You will repay them, [3] O Lord,
according to the work of their hands.
[65]You will give them [4] dullness of heart;
your curse will be [5] on them.
[66]You will pursue them [6] in anger and destroy them from under your heavens, O Lord.” [7]

The Holy Stones Lie Scattered

LAMENTATIONS 4 †How the gold has grown dim, how the pure gold is changed!
The holy stones lie scattered
at the head of every street.
[2]The precious sons of Zion, worth their weight in fine gold,
how they are regarded as earthen pots,
the work of a potter's hands!
[3]†Even jackals offer the breast;
they nurse their young,
but the daughter of my people has become cruel,
like the ostriches in the wilderness.
[4]The tongue of the nursing infant sticks to the roof of its mouth for thirst;
the children beg for food,
but no one gives to them.
[5]Those who once feasted on delicacies perish in the streets;
those who were brought up in purple embrace ash heaps.
[6]†For the chastisement [1] of the daughter of my people has been greater than the punishment [2] of Sodom, which was overthrown in a moment,
and no hands were wrung for her. [3] [7]†Her princes were purer than snow, whiter than milk;
their bodies were more ruddy than coral,
the beauty of their form [4] was like sapphire. [5] [8]Now their face is blacker than soot;
they are not recognized in the streets;
their skin has shriveled on their bones;
it has become as dry as wood.

[9]Happier were the victims of the sword than the victims of hunger, who wasted away, pierced
by lack of the fruits of the field.
[10]‡The hands of compassionate women have boiled their own children;
they became their food
during the destruction of the daughter of my people.
[11]The LORD gave full vent to his wrath;
he poured out his hot anger,
and he kindled a fire in Zion
that consumed its foundations.
[12]The kings of the earth did not believe,
nor any of the inhabitants of the world,
that foe or enemy could enter
the gates of Jerusalem.
[13]This was for the sins of her prophets and the iniquities of her priests, who shed in the midst of her
the blood of the righteous.
[14]They wandered, blind, through the streets;
they were so defiled with blood that no one was able to touch their garments.
[15]‡“Away! Unclean!” people cried at them.
“Away! Away! Do not touch!”
So they became fugitives and wanderers;
people said among the nations,
“They shall stay with us no longer.”
[16]‡The LORD himself [6] has scattered them;
he will regard them no more;
no honor was shown to the priests,
no favor to the elders.
[17]Our eyes failed, ever watching vainly for help;
in our watching we watched
for a nation which could not save.

[18]They dogged our steps
so that we could not walk in our streets;
our end drew near; our days were numbered,
for our end had come.
[19]Our pursuers were swifter than the eagles in the heavens;
they chased us on the mountains;
they lay in wait for us in the wilderness.
[20]†The breath of our nostrils, the LORD's anointed, was captured in their pits,
of whom we said, “Under his shadow
we shall live among the nations.”
[21]‡Rejoice and be glad, O daughter of Edom,
you who dwell in the land of Uz;
but to you also the cup shall pass;
you shall become drunk and strip yourself bare.
[22]The punishment of your iniquity, O daughter of Zion, is accomplished;
he will keep you in exile no longer; [7]
but your iniquity, O daughter of Edom, he will punish;
he will uncover your sins.

Restore Us to Yourself, O LORD

LAMENTATIONS 5 †Remember, O LORD, what has befallen us;
look, and see our disgrace!
[2]Our inheritance has been turned over to strangers,
our homes to foreigners.
[3]We have become orphans, fatherless;
our mothers are like widows.
[4]We must pay for the water we drink;
the wood we get must be bought.
[5]Our pursuers are at our necks; [1]
we are weary; we are given no rest.
[6]†We have given the hand to Egypt, and to Assyria, to get bread enough.
[7]†Our fathers sinned, and are no more;
and we bear their iniquities.
[8]‡Slaves rule over us;
there is none to deliver us from their hand.
[9]We get our bread at the peril of our lives,
because of the sword in the wilderness.
[10]Our skin is hot as an oven with the burning heat of famine.
[11]Women are raped in Zion,
young women in the towns of Judah.
[12]Princes are hung up by their hands;
no respect is shown to the elders.
[13]Young men are compelled to grind at the mill,
and boys stagger under loads of wood.
[14]The old men have left the city gate,
the young men their music.
[15]The joy of our hearts has ceased;
our dancing has been turned to mourning.
[16]†The crown has fallen from our head;
woe to us, for we have sinned!
[17]For this our heart has become sick,

for these things our eyes have grown dim, [18]for Mount Zion which lies desolate;
jackals prowl over it.
[19]†But you, O LORD, reign forever;
your throne endures to all generations.
[20]Why do you forget us forever,
why do you forsake us for so many days?
[21]‡†Restore us to yourself, O LORD, that we may be restored!
Renew our days as of old—[22]unless you have utterly rejected us,
and you remain exceedingly angry with us.

Second Kings, Jeremiah, and Lamentations Compared

Second Kings, Jeremiah, and Lamentations Compared
	2 Kings 25 (See also 2 Chron. 36:11–21)	Jeremiah	Lamentations
1. The siege of Jerusalem	1–2	39:1–3; 52:4–5	2:20–22; 3:5, 7
2. The famine in the city	3	37:21; 52:6	1:11, 19; 2:11–12, 19–20; 4:4–5, 9–10; 5:9–10
3. The flight of the army and the king	4–7	39:4–7; 52:8–11	1:3, 6; 2:2; 4:19–20
4. The burning of the palace, temple, and city	8–9	39:8; 52:13	2:3–5; 4:11; 5:18
5. The breaching of the city walls	10	33:4–5; 52:7	2:7–9
6. The exile of the populace	11–12	28:3–4, 14; 39:9–10	1:1, 4–5, 18; 2:9, 14; 3:2, 19; 4:22; 5:2
7. The looting of the temple	13–15	51:51	1:10; 2:6–7
8. The execution of the leaders	18–21	39:6	1:15; 2:2, 20
9. The vassal status of Judah	22–25	40:9	1:1; 5:8–9
10. The collapse of the expected foreign help	24:7	27:1–11; 37:5–10	4:17; 5:6

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 1:1–22 How lonely sits the city. Jerusalem was lonely, its people mourning (v. 2), forsaken by formerly friendly nations (v. 2), in captivity (v. 3), uprooted from their land (v. 3), their temple violated (v. 10). The multitude of sins (vv. 5, 8) had brought this judgment from the righteous God (v. 18).

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 1:1 like a widow. Verses 1–11 vividly portray the city like a bereft and desolate woman, as often in other Scriptures (cf. Ezek.

16; 23; Mic. 4:10, 13). a slave. Judah was taken captive to serve as slaves in Babylon.

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 1:2 she has none to comfort her. This ominous theme is mentioned four other times (vv. 9, 16–17, 21). lovers . . . friends . . . have become her enemies. This refers to the heathen nations allied to Judah, and their idols whom Judah "loved" (Jer. 2:20–25). Some later joined as enemies against her (2 Kings 24:2, 7; Ps. 137:7).

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 1:3 exile. C. 586 B.C. as in Jer. 39; 40; 52. There had been two deportations earlier, in 605 B.C. and 597 B.C. (cf. Introduction: Author and Date).

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 1:4 Zion. This represents the place where Jehovah dwells, the mount on which the temple was built. festival. Passover, Pentecost (Feast of Weeks), and Booths, or Tabernacles (cf. Ex. 23; Lev. 23). priests groan. These were among those left in Judah before fleeing to Egypt (Jer. 43), or possibly exiles in Babylon who mourned from afar (cf. Lam. 1:3).

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 1:5 the multitude of her transgressions. This was the cause of the judgment (cf. Jer. 40:3; Dan. 9:7, 16).

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 1:8 became filthy. This could refer to either the vile, wretched estate of continued sin and its ruinous consequences through judgment, or to being "moved, removed," as the lxx and Vulgate translate it. Probably the former is correct, as befits the third and fourth lines, i.e., a despised, shameful, naked condition in contrast to her former splendor (cf. v. 6b).

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 1:9 Her uncleanness was in her skirts. A graphic description of the flow of spiritual uncleanness reaching the bottom of her dress (cf. Lev. 15:19–33).

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 1:10 enter her sanctuary. This was true of the Ammonites and Moabites (Deut. 23:3; Neh. 13:1–2). If the heathen were not allowed to enter for worship, much less were they tolerated to loot and destroy. On a future day, the nations will come to worship (Zech. 14:16).

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 1:11 Look, O Lord. The description of the devastated widow ends with a plea for God's mercy.

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 1:12 all you who pass by? Here was the pathetic appeal of Jerusalem for some compassion even from strangers!

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 1:13 fire; into my bones. This emphasizes the penetrating depth of the judgment. turned me back. God's purpose was to bring repentance.

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 1:14 My transgressions were bound into a yoke; by his hand. Once the farmer had put the yoke on the animal's neck, he would control it with the reins in his hands. So God, who has brought Jerusalem under yoke-bondage to Babylon, still controlled his people.

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 1:15 an assembly against me. Not the usual assembly for a solemn feast; rather the army of Babylon for destruction. in a winepress. Speaks of forcing blood to burst forth like juice from crushed grapes. Comparable language is used in Rev. 14:20 and 19:15 in regard to God's final wrath.

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 1:17 filthy thing. This refers to a menstruous woman, shamed, separated from her husband and the temple (cf. vv. 8–9 and Lev. 15:19ff.).

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 1:18 The Lord is in the right . . . I have rebelled. The true sign of repentance was to justify God and condemn oneself.

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 1:21–22 brought the day. A prayer that God will likewise bring other ungodly people into judgment, especially Babylon (3:64–66; 4:21–22). Such prayers are acceptable against the enemies of God (cf. Ps. 109:14–15).

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 1:22 come before you. Cf. Rev. 16:19.

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 2:1 How the Lord. Much in ch. 2 depicts God's judgment in vivid portrayals. He covered the Judeans with a cloud (v. 1), withdrew his hand of protection (v. 3), bent his bow and had slain with his arrows (v. 4), and stretched out a surveyor's line to mark walls to be destroyed (v. 8). He will work a rebuilding of Jerusalem in the future kingdom (Zech. 2:1–13). the splendor of Israel. Likely refers to Mount Zion and the temple (cf. Ps. 48:2; 50:2; Isa. 60:13; 64:11; Ezek. 16:14; Dan. 11:45). his footstool. Refers to the ark of the covenant as indicated by 1 Chron. 28:2 and Ps. 99:5; 132:7.

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 2:2 he has broken down. The Lord had cast down the bastions of Judah's defense, as he told Jeremiah he would do from the outset of his ministry (Jer. 1:10).

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 2:6–11 Tragedy comes to everything and everyone through sin. The account mentions the temple or tabernacle where Israelites came to worship (v. 6), feasts and Sabbaths (v. 6), leaders such as the king and priests (v. 6), his altar and holy places (v. 7), city walls (v. 8), the law (v. 9), and children in the family (v. 11).

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 2:6–7 Cf. 1:4.

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 2:7 clamor in the house of the Lord . . . day of festival. A shout of triumph in the captured temple resembled the joyous celebrations in the same place at the solemn feasts.

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 2:11–12 This description of Babylon's invasion depicted the reality of a hungry child dying in its mother's arms as a result.

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 2:14 false and deceptive visions. As Jer. 23:16–17 indicates, these lies spoke of peace and comfort, not judgment. Cf. Jer. 23:30–40 to see how such lying led to destruction.

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 2:17 he has carried out his word. The enemy that gloats in vv. 15–16 should recognize that the destruction was the work of a sovereign God. This verse is the focal point of the chapter (cf. Jer. 51:12).

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 2:18 wall of the daughter of Zion. The penetrated walls of Jerusalem cried out in anguish that they had been broached by the Babylonians.

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 2:20 Look, O Lord, and see! The chapter closes by placing the issue before God. women eat the fruit of their womb. Hunger became so desperate in the 18-month siege that women resorted to the unbelievable—even eating their children (cf. 4:10; Lev. 26:29; Deut. 28:53, 56–57; Jer. 19:9).

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 2:21 the day of your anger. This describes the complete slaughter, as does 2 Chron. 36:17.

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 3:1–20 the man who has seen affliction. Jeremiah's distress in such tragedy comes from God, referred to as "he" throughout this section. Even the righteous experience "the rod of his wrath."

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 3:8 he shuts out my prayer. Cf. v. 44. God's non-response to Jeremiah's prayers was not because Jeremiah was guilty of personal sin (cf. Ps. 66:18); rather, it was due to Israel's perpetual sin without repentance (Jer. 19:15). God's righteousness to judge that sin must pursue its course (Jer. 7:16, and see note there; 11:14). Jeremiah knew that, yet prayed, wept (Lam. 3:48–51), and longed to see repentance.

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 3:16 my teeth grind on gravel. This refers to the grit that often mixed with bread baked in ashes as was common in the east (cf. Prov. 20:17).

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 3:21–33 The relentless sorrow over Judah’s judgment drove Jeremiah to consider the grace, mercy, and compassion of God. The tone of his thinking changed dramatically.

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 3:21 this I call. The prophet referred to what followed as he reviewed God’s character.

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 3:22 steadfast love. This Hebrew word, used about 250 times in the OT, refers to God’s gracious love. It is a comprehensive term that encompasses love, grace, mercy, goodness, forgiveness, truth, compassion, and faithfulness.

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 3:22–24 his mercies never come to an end. As bleak as the situation of judgment had become, God’s covenant lovingkindness was always present (cf. vv. 31–32), and his incredible faithfulness always endured so that Judah would not be destroyed forever (cf. Mal. 3:6).

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 3:23 great is your faithfulness. The bedrock of faith is the reality that God keeps all his promises according to his truthful, faithful character.

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 3:27 the yoke in his youth. This speaks of the duty from God, including disciplinary training, that Jeremiah received in his youth (cf. Jer. 1:6–7).

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 3:29 mouth in the dust. A term that pictures submission.

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 3:30 give his cheek. The Lord Jesus did this (cf. Isa. 50:6; 1 Pet. 2:23).

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 3:33–47 God had a just basis for judgment.

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 3:38 This contrasted God’s sovereign bestowal of judgment with blessing.

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 3:40–41 return to the Lord! The solution to Judah's judgment was to repent, looking to God for relief and restoration.

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 3:42 not forgiven. God judged their sin righteously.

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 3:48–51 My eyes. The summary of Jeremiah's sorrow.

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 3:52–63 my enemies. Jeremiah's description of persecution sounded much like the time when his enemies at the palace had cast him into a cistern (cf. v. 53; Jer. 38:4–6). God reassured him in answer to prayer (Lam. 3:57), and redeemed him (v. 58) by sending Ebed-melech to rescue him (cf. Jer. 38:7–13). Jeremiah pleads for justice to be rendered on those enemies (Lam. 3:59–63).

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 3:58 you have redeemed my life. Jeremiah said this to encourage others to trust God.

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 3:64–66 repay them. This imprecatory prayer for divine vengeance would be answered in Babylon's fall (cf. Isa. 46–47; Jer. 50–51; Dan. 5). It would also have its ultimate answer at the great white throne (Rev. 20:11–15).

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 4:1 How the gold has grown dim. The gold adornment of the temple, looted by the conquerors, lost its luster with a coating of dust where they scattered the remains.

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 4:3 nurse their young. Even worthless jackals by nature nurse their young, but under the severities of conquest, Israelite women were unable to nurse their babies (cf. v. 4). like the ostriches. Birds that are notable for ignoring their young (cf. Job 39:14–16).

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 4:6 the punishment of Sodom. Their sin was homosexuality. The fact that the suffering of Jerusalem was prolonged, while that of even Sodom was swift, marks it as the greater punishment (cf. 1 Pet. 4:17).

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 4:7–8 princes. Those who were the purest, most devout (cf. Num. 6), strong, healthy, and noble of the people became dirty, weak, and ignoble.

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 4:10 boiled . . . children. Cf. 2:20, and see note there.

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 4:15 Away! The people chased the false leaders away.

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 4:16 The Lordhimself. This was symbolic of divine anger. The Jews had to face up to God.

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 4:20 The breath of our nostrils. This was a term for God, the life-giver.

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 4:21–22 Edom . . . land of Uz. In effect God said, “Laugh all you want now. Your judgment will come” (cf. Jer. 25:15–29).

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 5:1 Remember, O Lord. Jeremiah prayed for mercy on his people. He summed up the nation’s wounds and woes (vv. 1–10), recalled woes of specific groups (vv. 11–14), showed why God judged (vv. 15–18), and interceded for the renewal of Israel (vv. 19–22; cf. Mic. 7:18–20).

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 5:6 Egypt . . . Assyria. The Jews submitted to unholy alliances, thus expressing trust in men for protection and goods (cf. Jer. 2:18, 36).

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 5:7 This is a cynical proverb from Jer. 31:29 and Ezek. 18:2.

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 5:8–18 A list of horrors that had befallen Judah.

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 5:16 The crown has fallen. Israel lost its line of kings wearing the crown. The Davidic monarchy was temporarily over and will not be resumed until Christ comes as King (Jer. 23:5–8; Ezek. 37:24–28; Rev. 19:1–21).

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 5:19 your throne endures to all generations. Here is the high point of this chapter. Jeremiah was consoled by the fact that God always sits on his sovereign throne ruling over the universe from heaven (Ps. 45:6; 93:2; 102:12; 103:19; Dan. 4:3, 34–35).

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 5:21 Restore us to yourself. God must himself initiate and enable any return to him (cf. Ps. 80:3, 7, 19; Jer. 24:7; 31:18; John 6:44, 65). Renew our days. The intercessions of Lam. 5:19–22 will yet be fulfilled in the New Covenant restoration of Israel (cf. Jer. 30–33, and see notes there).

LAMENTATIONS—NOTE ON 5:21–22 This plea was not made with anger. The humble closing prayer sought God, who can never reject his people forever, to be faithful in restoring them (cf. Jer. 31:35–37; 33:25–26). In fact, their godly sorrow over sin was the beginning of that restoration, which would be completed by turning to God in faith and obedience.

Introduction to Ezekiel

Title

The book has always been named for its author, Ezekiel (1:3; 24:24), who is nowhere else mentioned in Scripture. His name means “strengthened by God,” which, indeed, he was for the prophetic ministry to which God called him (3:8–9). Ezekiel uses visions, prophecies, parables, signs, and symbols to proclaim and dramatize the message of God to his exiled people.

Author and Date

If the "thirtieth year" of 1:1 refers to Ezekiel's age, he was 25 when taken captive and 30 when called into ministry. Thirty was the age when priests commenced their office, so it was a notable year for Ezekiel. His ministry began in 593/92 B.C. and extended at least 22 years until 571/70 B.C. (cf. 25:17). He was a contemporary of both Jeremiah (who was about 20 years older) and Daniel (who was the same age), whom he names in 14:14, 20; 28:3 as an already well-known prophet. Like Jeremiah (Jer. 1:1) and Zechariah (cf. Zech. 1:1 with Neh. 12:16), Ezekiel was both a prophet and a priest (Ezek. 1:3). Because of his priestly background, he was particularly interested in and familiar with the temple details; so God used him to write much about them (8:1–11:25; 40:1–47:12).

Ezekiel and his wife (who is mentioned in 24:15–27) were among 10,000 Jews taken captive to Babylon in 597 B.C. (2 Kings 24:11–18). They lived in Tel-abib (Ezek. 3:15) on the bank of the Chebar River, probably southeast of Babylon. Ezekiel writes of his wife's death in exile (Ezek. 24:18), but the book does not mention Ezekiel's death, which rabbinical tradition suggests occurred at the hands of an Israelite prince whose idolatry he rebuked around 560 B.C.

The author received his call to prophesy in 593 B.C. (1:2), in Babylon ("the land of the Chaldeans"), during the fifth year of King Jehoiachin's captivity, which began in 597 B.C. Frequently, Ezekiel dates his prophecies from 597 B.C. (8:1; 20:1; 24:1; 26:1; 29:1; 30:20; 31:1; 32:1, 17; 33:21; 40:1). He also dates the message in 40:1 as 573/72, the fourteenth year after 586 B.C., i.e., Jerusalem's final fall. The last dated utterance of Ezekiel was in 571/70 B.C. (29:17).

Prophecies in chs. 1–28 are in chronological order. In 29:1, the prophet regresses to a year earlier than in 26:1. But from 30:1 on (cf. 31:1; 32:1, 17), he is close to being strictly chronological.

Background and Setting

From the historical perspective, Israel's united kingdom lasted more than 110 years (c. 1043–931 B.C.), through the reigns of Saul, David, and Solomon. Then the divided kingdom, Israel (north) and Judah (south), extended from 931 B.C. to 722/21 B.C. Israel fell to Assyria in 722/21 B.C. leaving Judah, the surviving kingdom for 135 years, which fell to Babylon in 605–586 B.C.

In the more immediate setting, several features were strategic. Politically, Assyria's vaunted military might crumbled after 626 B.C., and the capital, Nineveh, was destroyed in 612 B.C. by the Babylonians and Medes (cf. Nahum). The neo-Babylonian empire had flexed its muscles since Nabopolassar took the throne in 625 B.C., and Egypt, under Pharaoh Neco II, was determined to conquer what she could. Babylon smashed Assyria in 612–605 B.C., and registered a decisive victory against Egypt in 605 B.C. at Carchemish, leaving, according to the Babylonian Chronicle, no survivors. Also in 605 B.C., Babylon, led by Nebuchadnezzar, began the conquest of Jerusalem and the deportation of captives, among them Daniel (Dan. 1:2). In December, 598 B.C., he again besieged Jerusalem, and on March 16, 597 B.C. took possession. This time, he took captive Jehoiachin and a group of 10,000, including Ezekiel (2 Kings 24:11–18). The final destruction of Jerusalem and the conquest of Judah, including the third deportation, came in 586 B.C.

Religiously, King Josiah (c. 640–609 B.C.) had instituted reforms in Judah (cf. 2 Chron. 34). Tragically, despite his effort, idolatry had so dulled the Judeans that their awakening was only "skin deep" overall. The Egyptian army killed Josiah as it crossed Palestine in 609 B.C., and the Jews plunged on in sin toward judgment under Jehoahaz (609 B.C.), Jehoiakim [Eliakim] (609–598 B.C.), Jehoiachin (598–597 B.C.), and Zedekiah (597–586 B.C.).

Domestically, Ezekiel and the 10,000 lived in exile in Babylon (2 Kings 24:14), more as colonists than captives, being permitted to farm tracts of land under somewhat favorable conditions (Jer. 29). Ezekiel even had his own house (Ezek. 3:24; 20:1).

Prophetically, false prophets deceived the exiles with assurances of a speedy return to Judah (13:3, 16; Jer. 29:1). From 593–585 B.C., Ezekiel warned that their beloved Jerusalem would be destroyed and their exile prolonged, so there was no hope of immediate return. In 585 B.C., an escapee from Jerusalem, who had evaded the Babylonians, reached Ezekiel with the first news that the city had fallen in 586 B.C., about six months earlier (Ezek. 33:21). That dashed the false hopes of any immediate deliverance for the exiles, so the remainder of Ezekiel's prophecies related to Israel's future restoration to its homeland and the final blessings of the messianic kingdom.

Historical and Theological Themes

The "glory of the Lord" is central to Ezekiel, appearing in 1:28; 3:12, 23; 10:4, 18; 11:23; 43:4–5; 44:4. The book includes graphic descriptions of the disobedience of Israel and Judah, despite God's kindness (ch. 23; cf. ch. 16). It shows God's desire for Israel to bear fruit which he can bless; however, selfish indulgence had left Judah ready for judgment, like a torched vine (ch. 15). References are plentiful to Israel's idolatry and its consequences, such as Pelatiah dropping dead (11:13), a symbolic illustration of overall disaster for the people.

Many picturesque scenes illustrate spiritual principles. Among these are Ezekiel eating a scroll (ch. 2); the faces on four angels representing aspects of creation over which God rules (1:10); a "barbershop" scene (5:1–4); graffiti on temple walls reminding readers of what God really wants in his dwelling place, namely holiness and not ugliness (8:10); and sprinkled hot coals depicting judgment (10:2, 7).

Chief among the theological themes are God's holiness and sovereignty. These are conveyed by frequent contrast of his bright glory against the despicable backdrop of Judah's sins (1:26–28; often in chs. 8–11; and 43:1–7). Closely related is God's purpose of glorious triumph so that all may "know that I am the Lord." This divine monogram, God's signature authenticating his acts, is mentioned more than 60 times, usually with a judgment (6:7; 7:4), but occasionally after the promised restoration (34:27; 36:11, 38; 39:28).

Another feature involves God's angels carrying out his program behind the scenes (1:5–25; 10:1–22). A further important theme is God's holding each individual accountable for pursuing righteousness (18:3–32).

Ezekiel also stresses sinfulness in Israel (2:3–7; 8:9–10) and other nations (throughout chs. 25–32). He deals with the necessity of God's wrath to deal with sin (7:1–8; 15:8); God's frustration of man's devices to escape from besieged Jerusalem (12:1–13; cf. Jer. 39:4–7); and God's grace pledged in the Abrahamic Covenant (Gen. 12:1–3) being fulfilled by restoring Abraham’s people to the land of the covenant (Ezek. 34; 36–48; cf. Gen. 12:7). God promises to preserve a remnant of Israelites through whom he will fulfill his restoration promises and keep his inviolate word.

Interpretive Challenges

Ezekiel uses extensive symbolic language, as did Isaiah and Jeremiah. This raises the question as to whether certain portions of Ezekiel's writings are to be taken literally or figuratively, e.g., being bound with ropes, 3:25; whether the prophet was taken bodily to Jerusalem, 8:1–3; how individual judgment can be worked out in ch. 18 when the wicked elude death in 14:22–23 and some of the godly die in an invasion, 21:3–4; how God would permit a faithful prophet's wife to die (24:15–27); when some of the judgments on other nations will occur (chs. 25–32); whether the temple in chs. 40–46 will be a literal one and in what form; and how promises of Israel's future relate to God's program with the church. These issues will be treated in the study notes.

Outline

The book can be largely divided into sections about condemnation/retribution and then consolation/restoration. A more detailed look divides the book into four sections. First, are prophecies on the ruin of Jerusalem (chs. 1–24). Second, are prophecies of retribution on nearby nations (chs. 25–32), with a glimpse at God's future restoration of Israel (28:25–26). Third, there is a transition chapter (ch. 33), which gives instruction concerning a last call for Israel to repent. Finally, the fourth division includes rich expectations involving God's future restoration of Israel (chs. 34–48).

I. Prophecies of Jerusalem's Ruin (1:1–24:27)
    A. Preparation and Commission of Ezekiel (1:1–3:27)
        1. Divine appearance to Ezekiel (1:1–28)
        2. Divine assignment to Ezekiel (2:1–3:27)
    B. Proclamation of Jerusalem's Condemnation (4:1–24:27)
        1. Signs of coming judgment (4:1–5:4)
        2. Messages concerning judgment (5:5–7:27)
        3. Visions concerning abomination in the city and temple (8:1–11:25)
        4. Explanations of judgment (12:1–24:27)
II. Prophecies of Retribution to the Nations (25:1–32:32)
    A. Ammon (25:1–7)
    B. Moab (25:8–11)
    C. Edom (25:12–14)
    D. Philistia (25:15–17)
    E. Tyre (26:1–28:19)
    F. Sidon (28:20–24)
    G. Excursus: The Restoration of Israel (28:25–26)
    H. Egypt (29:1–32:32)
III. Provision for Israel's Repentance (33:1–33)
IV. Prophecies of Israel's Restoration (34:1–48:35)

A. Regathering of Israel to the Land (34:1–37:28)
    1. Promise of a true Shepherd (34:1–31)
    2. Punishment of the nations (35:1–36:7)
    3. Purposes of restoration (36:8–38)
    4. Pictures of restoration—dry bones and two sticks (37:1–28)

B. Removal of Israel’s Enemies from the Land (38:1–39:29)
    1. Invasion of Gog to plunder Israel (38:1–16)
    2. Intervention of God to protect Israel (38:17–39:29)

C. Reinstatement of True Worship in Israel (40:1–46:24)
    1. New temple (40:1–43:12)
    2. New worship (43:13–46:24)

D. Redistribution of the Land in Israel (47:1–48:35)
    1. Position of the river (47:1–12)
    2. Portions for the tribes (47:13–48:35)

Ezekiel

Ezekiel in Babylon

EZEKIEL 1 †In the thirtieth year, in the fourth month, on the fifth day of the month, as I was among the exiles by the Chebar canal, the heavens were opened, and I saw visions of God. [1] [2]†On the fifth day of the month (it was the fifth year of the exile of King Jehoiachin), [3]†the word of the LORD came to Ezekiel the priest, the son of Buzi, in the land of the Chaldeans by the Chebar canal, and the hand of the LORD was upon him there.

The Glory of the LORD

[4]††As I looked, behold, a stormy wind came out of the north, and a great cloud, with brightness around it, and fire flashing forth continually, and in the midst of the fire, as it were gleaming metal. [2] [5]†And from the midst of it came the likeness of four living creatures. And this was their appearance: they had a human likeness, [6]†but each had four faces, and each of them had four wings. [7]†Their legs were straight, and the soles of their feet were like the sole of a calf's foot. And they sparkled like burnished bronze. [8]†Under their wings on their four sides they had human hands. And the four had their faces and their wings thus: [9]†their wings touched one another. Each one of them went straight forward, without turning as they went. [10]†As for the likeness of their faces, each had a human face. The four had the face of a lion on the right side, the four had the face of an ox on the left side, and the four had the face of an eagle. [11]Such were their faces. And their wings were spread out above. Each creature had two wings, each of which touched the wing of another, while two covered their bodies. [12]†And each went straight forward. Wherever the spirit would go, they went, without turning as they went. [13]†As for the likeness of the living creatures, their appearance was like burning coals of fire, like the appearance of torches moving to and fro among the living creatures. And the fire was bright, and out of the fire went forth lightning. [14]†And the living creatures darted to and fro, like the appearance of a flash of lightning.

[15]‡†Now as I looked at the living creatures, I saw a wheel on the earth beside the living creatures, one for each of the four of them. [3] [16]†As for the appearance of the wheels and their construction: their appearance was like the gleaming of beryl. And the four had the same likeness, their appearance and construction being as it were a wheel within a wheel. [17]†When they went, they went in any of their four directions [4] without turning as they went. [18]†And their rims were tall and awesome, and the rims of all four were full of eyes all around. [19]And when the living creatures went, the wheels went beside them; and when the living creatures rose from the earth, the wheels rose. [20]†Wherever the spirit wanted to go, they went, and the wheels rose along with them, for the spirit of the living creatures [5] was in the wheels. [21]When those went, these went; and when those stood, these stood; and when those rose from the earth, the wheels rose along with them, for the spirit of the living creatures was in the wheels.

[22]Over the heads of the living creatures there was the likeness of an expanse, shining like awe-inspiring crystal, spread out above their heads. [23]And under the expanse their wings were stretched out straight, one toward another. And each creature had two wings covering its body. [24]†And when they went, I heard the sound of their wings like the sound of many waters, like the sound of the Almighty, a sound of tumult like the sound of an army. When they stood still, they let down their wings. [25]†And there came a voice from above the expanse over their heads. When they stood still, they let down their wings.

[26]†And above the expanse over their heads there was the likeness of a throne, in appearance like sapphire; [6] and seated above the likeness of a throne was a likeness with a human appearance. [27]And upward from what had the appearance of his waist I saw as it were gleaming metal, like the appearance of fire enclosed all around. And downward from what had the appearance of his waist I saw as it were the appearance of fire, and there was brightness around him. [7] [28]†Like the appearance of the bow that is in the cloud on the day of rain, so was the appearance of the brightness all around.

Such was the appearance of the likeness of the glory of the LORD. And when I saw it, I fell on my face, and I heard the voice of one speaking.

Ezekiel's Call

EZEKIEL 2 †And he said to me, “Son of man, [1] stand on your feet, and I will speak with you.” [2]†And as he spoke to me, the Spirit entered into me and set me on my feet, and I heard him speaking to me. [3]And he said to me, “Son of man, I send you to the people of Israel, to nations of rebels, who have rebelled against me. They and their fathers have transgressed against me to this very day. [4]The descendants also are impudent and stubborn: I send you to them, and you shall say to them, ‘Thus says the Lord GOD.’ [5]†And whether they hear or refuse to hear (for they are a rebellious house) they will know that a prophet has been among them. [6]†And you, son of man, be not afraid of them, nor be afraid of their words, though briers and thorns are with you and you sit on scorpions. [2] Be not afraid of their words, nor be dismayed at their looks, for they are a rebellious house. [7]And you shall speak my words to them, whether they hear or refuse to hear, for they are a rebellious house.

[8]†“But you, son of man, hear what I say to you. Be not rebellious like that rebellious house; open your mouth and eat what I give you.” [9]And when I looked, behold, a hand was stretched out to me, and behold, a scroll of a book was in it. [10]†And he spread it before me. And it had writing on the front and on the back, and there were written on it words of lamentation and mourning and woe.

EZEKIEL 3 ‡And he said to me, “Son of man, eat whatever you find here. Eat this scroll, and go, speak to the house of Israel.” [2]So I opened my mouth, and he gave me this scroll to eat. [3]‡And he said to me, “Son of man, feed your belly with this scroll that I give you and fill your stomach with it.” Then I ate it, and it was in my mouth as sweet as honey.

[4]And he said to me, “Son of man, go to the house of Israel and speak with my words to them. [5]For you are not sent to a people of foreign speech and a hard language, but to the house of Israel— [6]not to many peoples of foreign speech and a hard language, whose words you cannot understand. Surely, if I sent you to such, they would listen to you. [7]‡But the house of Israel will not be willing to listen to you, for they are not willing to listen to me: because all the house of Israel have a hard forehead and a stubborn heart. [8]‡Behold, I have made your face as hard as their faces, and your forehead as hard as their foreheads. [9]‡Like emery harder than flint have I made your forehead. Fear them not, nor be dismayed at their looks, for they are a rebellious house.” [10]Moreover, he said to me, “Son of man, all my words that I shall speak to you receive in your heart, and hear with your ears. [11]And go to the exiles, to your people, and speak to them and say to them, ‘Thus says the Lord GOD,’ whether they hear or refuse to hear.”

[12]‡Then the Spirit [1] lifted me up, and I heard behind me the voice [2] of a great earthquake: “Blessed be the glory of the LORD from its place!” [13]It was the sound of the wings of the living creatures as they touched one another, and the sound of the wheels beside them, and the sound of a great earthquake. [14]‡The Spirit lifted me up and took me away, and I went in bitterness in the heat of my spirit, the hand of the LORD being strong upon me. [15]‡And I came to the exiles at Tel-abib, who were dwelling by the Chebar canal, and I sat where they were dwelling. [3] And I sat there overwhelmed among them seven days.

A Watchman for Israel

[16]And at the end of seven days, the word of the LORD came to me: [17]‡“Son of man, I have made you a watchman for the house of Israel. Whenever you hear a word from my mouth, you shall give them warning from me. [18]‡‡‡If I say to the wicked, ‘You shall surely die,’ and you give him no warning, nor speak to warn the wicked from his wicked way, in order to save his life, that wicked person shall die for [4] his iniquity, but his blood I will require at your hand. [19]But if you warn the wicked, and he does not turn from his wickedness, or from his wicked way, he shall die for his iniquity, but you will have delivered your soul. [20]†Again, if a righteous person turns from his righteousness and commits injustice, and I lay a stumbling block before him, he shall die. Because you have not warned him, he shall die for his sin, and his righteous deeds that he has done shall not be remembered, but his blood I will require at your hand. [21]†But if you warn the righteous person not to sin, and he does not sin, he shall surely live, because he took warning, and you will have delivered your soul.”

[22]And the hand of the LORD was upon me there. And he said to me, “Arise, go out into the valley, [5] and there I will speak with you.” [23]†So I arose and went out into the valley, and behold, the glory of the LORD stood there, like the glory that I had seen by the Chebar canal, and I fell on my face. [24]†But the Spirit entered into me and set me on my feet, and he spoke with me and said to me, “Go, shut yourself within your house. [25]†And you, O son of man, behold, cords will be placed upon you, and you shall be bound with them, so that you cannot go out among the people. [26]†And I will make your tongue cling to the roof of your mouth, so that you shall be mute and unable to reprove them, for they are a rebellious house. [27]But when I speak with you, I will open your mouth, and you shall say to them, ‘Thus says the Lord GOD.’ He who will hear, let him hear; and he who will refuse to hear, let him refuse, for they are a rebellious house.

The Siege of Jerusalem Symbolized

EZEKIEL 4 ‡‡“And you, son of man, take a brick and lay it before you, and engrave on it a city, even Jerusalem. [2]And put siegeworks against it, and build a siege wall against it, and cast up a mound against it. Set camps also against it, and plant battering rams against it all around. [3]And you, take an iron griddle, and place it as an iron wall between you and the city; and set your face toward it, and let it be in a state of siege, and press the siege against it. This is a sign for the house of Israel.

[4]‡†“Then lie on your left side, and place the punishment [1] of the house of Israel upon it. For the number of the days that you lie on it, you shall bear their punishment. [5]†For I assign to you a number of days, 390 days, equal to the number of the years of their punishment. So long shall you bear the punishment of the house of Israel. [6]†And when you have completed these, you shall lie down a second time, but on your right side, and bear the punishment of the house of Judah. Forty days I assign you, a day for each year. [7]†And you shall set your face toward the siege of Jerusalem, with your arm bared, and you shall prophesy against the city. [8]†And behold, I will place cords upon you, so that you cannot turn from one side to the other, till you have completed the days of your siege.

[9]‡“And you, take wheat and barley, beans and lentils, millet and emmer, [2] and put them into a single vessel and make your bread from them. During the number of days that you lie on your side, 390 days, you shall eat it. [10]And your food that you eat shall be by weight, twenty shekels [3] a day; from day to day [4] you shall eat it. [11]And water you shall drink by measure, the sixth part of a hin; [5] from day to day you shall drink. [12]And you shall eat it as a barley cake, baking it in their sight on human dung.” [13]And the LORD said, “Thus shall the people of Israel eat their bread unclean, among the nations where I will drive them.” [14]‡Then I said, “Ah, Lord GOD! Behold, I have never defiled myself. [6] From my youth up till now I have never eaten what died of itself or was torn by beasts, nor has tainted meat come into my mouth.” [15]Then he said to me, “See, I assign to you cow's dung instead of human dung, on which you may prepare your bread.” [16]‡Moreover, he said to me, “Son of man, behold, I will break the supply [7] of bread in Jerusalem. They shall eat bread by weight and with anxiety, and they shall drink water by measure and in dismay. [17]I will do this that they may lack bread and water, and look at one another in dismay, and rot away because of their punishment.

Jerusalem Will Be Destroyed

EZEKIEL 5 ‡“And you, O son of man, take a sharp sword. Use it as a barber's razor and pass it over your head and your beard. Then take balances for weighing and divide the hair. [2]A third part you shall burn in the fire in the midst of the city, when the days of the siege are completed. And a third part you shall take and strike with the sword all around the city. And a third part you shall scatter to the wind, and I will unsheathe the sword after them. [3]And you shall take from these a small number and bind them in the skirts of your robe. [4]And of these again you shall take some and cast them into the midst of the fire and burn them in the fire. From there a fire will come out into all the house of Israel.

[5]†“Thus says the Lord GOD: This is Jerusalem. I have set her in the center of the nations, with countries all around her. [6]And she has rebelled against my rules by doing wickedness more than the nations, and against my statutes more than the countries all around her; for they have rejected my rules and have not walked in my statutes. [7]†Therefore thus says the Lord GOD: Because you are more turbulent than the nations that are all around you, and have not walked in my statutes or obeyed my rules, and have not [1] even acted according to the rules of the nations that are all around you, [8]‡therefore thus says the Lord GOD: Behold, I, even I, am against you. And I will execute judgments [2] in your midst in the sight of the nations. [9]And because of all your abominations I will do with you what I have never yet done, and the like of which I will never do again. [10]Therefore fathers shall eat their sons in your midst, and sons shall eat their fathers. And I will execute judgments on you, and any of you who survive I will scatter to all the winds. [11]†Therefore, as I live, declares the Lord GOD, surely, because you have defiled my sanctuary with all your detestable things and with all your abominations, therefore I will withdraw. [3] My eye will not spare, and I will have no pity. [12]†A third part of you shall die of pestilence and be consumed with famine in your midst; a third part shall fall by the sword all around you; and a third part I will scatter to all the winds and will unsheathe the sword after them.

[13]‡“Thus shall my anger spend itself, and I will vent my fury upon them and satisfy myself. And they shall know that I am the LORD—that I have spoken in my jealousy—when I spend my fury upon them. [14]Moreover, I will make you a desolation and an object of reproach among the nations all around you and in the sight of all who pass by. [15]You shall be [4] a reproach and a taunt, a warning and a horror, to the nations all around you, when I execute judgments on you in anger and fury, and with furious rebukes—I am the LORD; I have spoken— [16]‡when I send against you [5] the deadly arrows of famine, arrows for destruction, which I will send to destroy you, and when I bring more and more famine upon you and break your supply [6] of bread. [17]‡I will send famine and wild beasts against you, and they will rob you of your children. Pestilence and blood shall pass through you, and I will bring the sword upon you. I am the LORD; I have spoken.”

Judgment Against Idolatry

EZEKIEL 6 The word of the LORD came to me: [2]“Son of man, set your face toward the mountains of Israel, and prophesy against them, [3]†and say, You mountains of Israel, hear the word of the Lord GOD! Thus says the Lord GOD to the mountains and the hills, to the ravines and the valleys: Behold, I, even I, will bring a sword upon you, and I will destroy your high places. [4]Your altars shall become desolate, and your incense altars shall be broken, and I will cast down your slain before your idols. [5]And I will lay the dead bodies of the people of Israel before their idols, and I will scatter your bones around your altars. [6]Wherever you dwell, the cities shall be waste and the high places ruined, so that your altars will be waste and ruined, [1] your idols broken and destroyed, your incense altars cut down, and your works wiped out. [7]†And the slain shall fall in your midst, and you shall know that I am the LORD.

[8]†“Yet I will leave some of you alive. When you have among the nations some who escape the sword, and when you are scattered through the countries, [9]then those of you who escape will remember me among the nations where they are carried captive, how I have been broken over their whoring heart that has departed from me and over their eyes that go whoring after their idols. And they will be loathsome in their own sight for the evils that they have committed, for all their abominations. [10]And they shall know that I am the LORD. I have not said in vain that I would do this evil to them.”

[11]Thus says the Lord GOD: “Clap your hands and stamp your foot and say, Alas, because of all the evil abominations of the house of Israel, for they shall fall by the sword, by famine, and by pestilence. [12]He who is far off shall die of pestilence, and he who is near shall fall by the sword, and he who is left and is preserved shall die of famine. Thus I will spend my fury upon them. [13]And you shall know that I am the LORD, when their slain lie among their idols around their altars, on every high hill, on all the mountaintops, under every green tree, and under every leafy oak, wherever they offered pleasing aroma to all their idols. [14]†And I will stretch out my hand against them and make the land desolate and waste, in all their dwelling places, from the wilderness to Riblah. [2] Then they will know that I am the LORD.”

The Day of the Wrath of the LORD

EZEKIEL 7 ‡The word of the LORD came to me: [2]"And you, O son of man, thus says the Lord GOD to the land of Israel: An end! The end has come upon the four corners of the land. [1] [3]Now the end is upon you, and I will send my anger upon you; I will judge you according to your ways, and I will punish you for all your abominations. [4]And my eye will not spare you, nor will I have pity, but I will punish you for your ways, while your abominations are in your midst. Then you will know that I am the LORD.

[5]"Thus says the Lord GOD: Disaster after disaster! [2] Behold, it comes. [6]An end has come; the end has come; it has awakened against you. Behold, it comes. [7]Your doom [3] has come to you, O inhabitant of the land. The time has come; the day is near, a day of tumult, and not of joyful shouting on the mountains. [8]Now I will soon pour out my wrath upon you, and spend my anger against you, and judge you according to your ways, and I will punish you for all your abominations. [9]And my eye will not spare, nor will I have pity. I will punish you according to your ways, while your abominations are in your midst. Then you will know that I am the LORD, who strikes.

[10]‡"Behold, the day! Behold, it comes! Your doom has come; the rod has blossomed; pride has budded. [11]Violence has grown up into a rod of wickedness. None of them shall remain, nor their abundance, nor their wealth; neither shall there be preeminence among them. [4] [12]‡The time has come; the day has arrived. Let not the buyer rejoice, nor the seller mourn, for wrath is upon all their multitude. [5] [13]‡For the seller shall not return to what he has sold, while they live. For the vision concerns all their multitude; it shall not turn back; and because of his iniquity, none can maintain his life. [6]

[14]"They have blown the trumpet and made everything ready, but none goes to battle, for my wrath is upon all their multitude. [15]The sword is without; pestilence and famine are within. He who is in the field dies by the sword, and him who is in the city famine and pestilence devour. [16]And if any survivors escape, they will be on the mountains, like doves of the valleys, all of them moaning, each one over his iniquity. [17]‡All hands are feeble, and all knees turn to water. [18]They put on sackcloth, and horror covers them. Shame is on all faces, and baldness on all their heads. [19]They cast their silver into the streets, and their gold is like an unclean thing. Their silver and gold are not able to deliver them in the day of the wrath of the LORD. They cannot satisfy their hunger or fill their stomachs with it. For it was the stumbling block of their iniquity. [20]His beautiful ornament they used for pride, and they made their abominable images and their detestable things of it. Therefore I make it an unclean thing to them. [21]And I will give it into the hands of foreigners for prey, and to the wicked of the earth for spoil, and they shall profane it. [22]‡I will turn my face from them, and they shall profane my treasured [7] place. Robbers shall enter and profane it.

[23]‡“Forge a chain! [8] For the land is full of bloody crimes and the city is full of violence. [24]‡I will bring the worst of the nations to take possession of their houses. I will put an end to the pride of the strong, and their holy places [9] shall be profaned. [25]When anguish comes, they will seek peace, but there shall be none. [26]Disaster comes upon disaster; rumor follows rumor. They seek a vision from the prophet, while the law [10] perishes from the priest and counsel from the elders. [27]‡The king mourns, the prince is wrapped in despair, and the hands of the people of the land are paralyzed by terror. According to their way I will do to them, and according to their judgments I will judge them, and they shall know that I am the LORD.”

Abominations in the Temple

EZEKIEL 8 ‡In the sixth year, in the sixth month, on the fifth day of the month, as I sat in my house, with the elders of Judah sitting before me, the hand of the Lord GOD fell upon me there. [2]‡Then I looked, and behold, a form that had the appearance of a man. [1] Below what appeared to be his waist was fire, and above his waist was something like the appearance of brightness, like gleaming metal. [2] [3]‡He put out the form of a hand and took me by a lock of my head, and the Spirit lifted me up between earth and heaven and brought me in visions of God to Jerusalem, to the entrance of the gateway of the inner court that faces north, where was the seat of the image of jealousy, which provokes to jealousy. [4]‡And behold, the glory of the God of Israel was there, like the vision that I saw in the valley.

[5]Then he said to me, “Son of man, lift up your eyes now toward the north.” So I lifted up my eyes toward the north, and behold, north of the altar gate, in the entrance, was this image of jealousy. [6]‡And he said to me, “Son of man, do you see what they are doing, the great abominations that the house of Israel are committing here, to drive me far from my sanctuary? But you will see still greater abominations.”

[7]‡And he brought me to the entrance of the court, and when I looked, behold, there was a hole in the wall. [8]‡Then he said to me, “Son of man, dig in the wall.” So I dug in the wall, and behold, there was an entrance. [9]And he said to me, “Go in, and see the vile abominations that they are committing here.” [10]‡So I went in and saw. And there, engraved on the wall all around, was every form of creeping things and loathsome beasts, and all the idols of the house of Israel. [11]‡And before them stood seventy men of the elders of the house of Israel, with Jaazaniah the son of Shaphan standing among them. Each had his censer in his hand, and the smoke of the cloud of incense went up. [12]Then he said to me, “Son of man, have you seen what the elders of the house of Israel are doing in the dark, each in his room of pictures? For they say, ‘The LORD does not see us, the LORD has forsaken the land.’” [13]He said also to me, “You will see still greater abominations that they commit.”

[14]†Then he brought me to the entrance of the north gate of the house of the LORD, and behold, there sat women weeping for Tammuz. [15]Then he said to me, “Have you seen this, O son of man? You will see still greater abominations than these.”

[16]†And he brought me into the inner court of the house of the LORD. And behold, at the entrance of the temple of the LORD, between the porch and the altar, were about twenty-five men, with their backs to the temple of the LORD, and their faces toward the east, worshiping the sun toward the east. [17]†Then he said to me, “Have you seen this, O son of man? Is it too light a thing for the house of Judah to commit the abominations that they commit here, that they should fill the land with violence and provoke me still further to anger? Behold, they put the branch to their [3] nose. [18]†Therefore I will act in wrath. My eye will not spare, nor will I have pity. And though they cry in my ears with a loud voice, I will not hear them.”

Idolaters Killed

EZEKIEL 9 †Then he cried in my ears with a loud voice, saying, “Bring near the executioners of the city, each with his destroying weapon in his hand.” [2]†And behold, six men came from the direction of the upper gate, which faces north, each with his weapon for slaughter in his hand, and with them was a man clothed in linen, with a writing case at his waist. And they went in and stood beside the bronze altar.

[3]†Now the glory of the God of Israel had gone up from the cherub on which it rested to the threshold of the house. And he called to the man clothed in linen, who had the writing case at his waist. [4]†And the LORD said to him, “Pass through the city, through Jerusalem, and put a mark on the foreheads of the men who sigh and groan over all the abominations that are committed in it.” [5]And to the others he said in my hearing, “Pass through the city after him, and strike. Your eye shall not spare, and you shall show no pity. [6]Kill old men outright, young men and maidens, little children and women, but touch no one on whom is the mark. And begin at my sanctuary.” So they began with the elders who were before the house. [7]Then he said to them, “Defile the house, and fill the courts with the slain. Go out.” So they went out and struck in the city. [8]†And while they were striking, and I was left alone, I fell upon my face, and cried, “Ah, Lord GOD! Will you destroy all the remnant of Israel in the outpouring of your wrath on Jerusalem?”

[9]Then he said to me, “The guilt of the house of Israel and Judah is exceedingly great. The land is full of blood, and the city full of injustice. For they say, ‘The LORD has forsaken the land, and the LORD does not see.’ [10]As for me, my eye will not spare, nor will I have pity; I will bring their deeds upon their heads.”

[11]And behold, the man clothed in linen, with the writing case at his waist, brought back word, saying, “I have done as you commanded me.”

The Glory of the LORD Leaves the Temple

EZEKIEL 10 ‡Then I looked, and behold, on the expanse that was over the heads of the cherubim there appeared above them something like a sapphire, [1] in appearance like a throne. [2]‡And he said to the man clothed in linen, “Go in among the whirling wheels underneath the cherubim. Fill your hands with burning coals from between the cherubim, and scatter them over the city.”

And he went in before my eyes. [3]‡Now the cherubim were standing on the south side of the house, when the man went in, and a cloud filled the inner court. [4]‡And the glory of the LORD went up from the cherub to the threshold of the house, and the house was filled with the cloud, and the court was filled with the brightness of the glory of the LORD. [5]And the sound of the wings of the cherubim was heard as far as the outer court, like the voice of God Almighty when he speaks.

[6]‡And when he commanded the man clothed in linen, “Take fire from between the whirling wheels, from between the cherubim,” he went in and stood beside a wheel. [7]‡And a cherub stretched out his hand from between the cherubim to the fire that was between the cherubim, and took some of it and put it into the hands of the man clothed in linen, who took it and went out. [8]The cherubim appeared to have the form of a human hand under their wings.

[9]‡And I looked, and behold, there were four wheels beside the cherubim, one beside each cherub, and the appearance of the wheels was like sparkling beryl. [10]And as for their appearance, the four had the same likeness, as if a wheel were within a wheel. [11]When they went, they went in any of their four directions [2] without turning as they went, but in whatever direction the front wheel [3] faced, the others followed without turning as they went. [12]And their whole body, their rims, and their spokes, their wings, [4] and the wheels were full of eyes all around—the wheels that the four of them had. [13]As for the wheels, they were called in my hearing “the whirling wheels.” [14]‡And every one had four faces: the first face was the face of the cherub, and the second face was a human face, and the third the face of a lion, and the fourth the face of an eagle.

[15]‡And the cherubim mounted up. These were the living creatures that I saw by the Chebar canal. [16]And when the cherubim went, the wheels went beside them. And when the cherubim lifted up their wings to mount up from the earth, the wheels did not turn from beside them. [17]When they stood still, these stood still, and when they mounted up, these mounted up with them, for the spirit of the living creatures [5] was in them.

[18]‡Then the glory of the LORD went out from the threshold of the house, and stood over the cherubim. [19]And the cherubim lifted up their wings and mounted up from the earth before my eyes as they went out, with the wheels beside them. And they stood at the entrance of the east gate of the house of the LORD, and the glory of the God of Israel was over them.

[20]These were the living creatures that I saw underneath the God of Israel by the Chebar canal; and I knew that they were cherubim. [21]Each had four faces, and each four wings, and underneath their wings the likeness of human hands. [22]And as for the likeness of their faces, they were the same faces whose appearance I had seen by the Chebar canal. Each one of them went straight forward.

Judgment on Wicked Counselors

EZEKIEL 11 †The Spirit lifted me up and brought me to the east gate of the house of the LORD, which faces east. And behold, at the entrance of the gateway there were twenty-five men. And I saw among them Jaazaniah the son of Azzur, and Pelatiah the son of Benaiah, princes of the people. [2]And he said to me, "Son of man, these are the men who devise iniquity and who give wicked counsel in this city; [3]†who say, 'The time is not near [1] to build houses. This city is the cauldron, and we are the meat.' [4]Therefore prophesy against them, prophesy, O son of man."

[5]And the Spirit of the LORD fell upon me, and he said to me, "Say, Thus says the LORD: So you think, O house of Israel. For I know the things that come into your mind. [6]†You have multiplied your slain in this city and have filled its streets with the slain. [7]†Therefore thus says the Lord GOD: Your slain whom you have laid in the midst of it, they are the meat, and this city is the cauldron, but you shall be brought out of the midst of it. [8]You have feared the sword, and I will bring the sword upon you, declares the Lord GOD. [9]And I will bring you out of the midst of it, and give you into the hands of foreigners, and execute judgments upon you. [10]You shall fall by the sword. I will judge you at the border of Israel, and you shall know that I am the LORD. [11]This city shall not be your cauldron, nor shall you be the meat in the midst of it. I will judge you at the border of Israel, [12]and you shall know that I am the LORD. For you have not walked in my statutes, nor obeyed my rules, but have acted according to the rules of the nations that are around you."

[13]†And it came to pass, while I was prophesying, that Pelatiah the son of Benaiah died. Then I fell down on my face and cried out with a loud voice and said, "Ah, Lord GOD! Will you make a full end of the remnant of Israel?"

Israel's New Heart and Spirit

[14]‡And the word of the LORD came to me: [15]‡“Son of man, your brothers, even your brothers, your kinsmen, [2] the whole house of Israel, all of them, are those of whom the inhabitants of Jerusalem have said, ‘Go far from the LORD; to us this land is given for a possession.’ [16]‡Therefore say, ‘Thus says the Lord GOD: Though I removed them far off among the nations, and though I scattered them among the countries, yet I have been a sanctuary to them for a while [3] in the countries where they have gone.’ [17]Therefore say, ‘Thus says the Lord GOD: I will gather you from the peoples and assemble you out of the countries where you have been scattered, and I will give you the land of Israel.’ [18]And when they come there, they will remove from it all its detestable things and all its abominations. [19]‡And I will give them one heart, and a new spirit I will put within them. I will remove the heart of stone from their flesh and give them a heart of flesh, [20]that they may walk in my statutes and keep my rules and obey them. And they shall be my people, and I will be their God. [21]But as for those whose heart goes after their detestable things and their abominations, I will [4] bring their deeds upon their own heads, declares the Lord GOD.”

[22]Then the cherubim lifted up their wings, with the wheels beside them, and the glory of the God of Israel was over them. [23]‡And the glory of the LORD went up from the midst of the city and stood on the mountain that is on the east side of the city. [24]‡And the Spirit lifted me up and brought me in the vision by the Spirit of God into Chaldea, to the exiles. Then the vision that I had seen went up from me. [25]And I told the exiles all the things that the LORD had shown me.

Judah's Captivity Symbolized

EZEKIEL 12 The word of the LORD came to me: [2]†“Son of man, you dwell in the midst of a rebellious house, who have eyes to see, but see not, who have ears to hear, but hear not, for they are a rebellious house. [3]†As for you, son of man, prepare for yourself an exile's baggage, and go into exile by day in their sight. You shall go like an exile from your place to another place in their sight. Perhaps they will understand, though [1] they are a rebellious house. [4]You shall bring out your baggage by day in their sight, as baggage for exile, and you shall go out yourself at evening in their sight, as those do who must go into exile. [5]†In their sight dig through the wall, and bring your baggage out through it. [6]†In their sight you shall lift the baggage upon your shoulder and carry it out at dusk. You shall cover your face that you may not see the land, for I have made you a sign for the house of Israel.”

[7]And I did as I was commanded. I brought out my baggage by day, as baggage for exile, and in the evening I dug through the wall with my own hands. I brought out my baggage at dusk, carrying it on my shoulder in their sight.

[8]In the morning the word of the LORD came to me: [9]“Son of man, has not the house of Israel, the rebellious house, said to you, ‘What are you doing?’ [10]‡Say to them, ‘Thus says the Lord GOD: This oracle concerns [2] the prince in Jerusalem and all the house of Israel who are in it.’ [3] [11]Say, ‘I am a sign for you: as I have done, so shall it be done to them. They shall go into exile, into captivity.’ [12]And the prince who is among them shall lift his baggage upon his shoulder at dusk, and shall go out. They shall dig through the wall to bring him out through it. He shall cover his face, that he may not see the land with his eyes. [13]And I will spread my net over him, and he shall be taken in my snare. And I will bring him to Babylon, the land of the Chaldeans, yet he shall not see it, and he shall die there. [14]‡And I will scatter toward every wind all who are around him, his helpers and all his troops, and I will unsheathe the sword after them. [15]And they shall know that I am the LORD, when I disperse them among the nations and scatter them among the countries. [16]But I will let a few of them escape from the sword, from famine and pestilence, that they may declare all their abominations among the nations where they go, and may know that I am the LORD.”

[17]And the word of the LORD came to me: [18]“Son of man, eat your bread with quaking, and drink water with trembling and with anxiety. [19]And say to the people of the land, Thus says the Lord GOD concerning the inhabitants of Jerusalem in the land of Israel: They shall eat their bread with anxiety, and drink water in dismay. In this way her land will be stripped of all it contains, on account of the violence of all those who dwell in it. [20]And the inhabited cities shall be laid waste, and the land shall become a desolation; and you shall know that I am the LORD.”

[21]And the word of the LORD came to me: [22]†“Son of man, what is this proverb that you [4] have about the land of Israel, saying, ‘The days grow long, and every vision comes to nothing’? [23]Tell them therefore, ‘Thus says the Lord GOD: I will put an end to this proverb, and they shall no more use it as a proverb in Israel.’ But say to them, The days are near, and the fulfillment [5] of every vision. [24]For there shall be no more any false vision or flattering divination within the house of Israel. [25]†For I am the LORD; I will speak the word that I will speak, and it will be performed. It will no longer be delayed, but in your days, O rebellious house, I will speak the word and perform it, declares the Lord GOD.”

[26]And the word of the LORD came to me: [27]“Son of man, behold, they of the house of Israel say, ‘The vision that he sees is for many days from now, and he prophesies of times far off.’ [28]Therefore say to them, Thus says the Lord GOD: None of my words will be delayed any longer, but the word that I speak will be performed, declares the Lord GOD.”

False Prophets Condemned

EZEKIEL 13 The word of the LORD came to me: [2]‡†“Son of man, prophesy against the prophets of Israel, who are prophesying, and say to those who prophesy from their own hearts: ‘Hear the word of the LORD!’ [3]Thus says the Lord GOD, Woe to the foolish prophets who follow their own spirit, and have seen nothing! [4]†Your prophets have been like jackals among ruins, O Israel. [5]†You have not gone up into the breaches, or built up a wall for the house of Israel, that it might stand in battle in the day of the LORD. [6]They have seen false visions and lying divinations. They say, ‘Declares the LORD,’ when the LORD has not sent them, and yet they expect him to fulfill their word. [7]Have you not seen a false vision and uttered a lying divination, whenever you have said, ‘Declares the LORD,’ although I have not spoken?”

[8]Therefore thus says the Lord GOD: “Because you have uttered falsehood and seen lying visions, therefore behold, I am against you, declares the Lord GOD. [9]†My hand will be against the prophets who see false visions and who give lying divinations. They shall not be in the council of my people, nor be enrolled in the register of the house of Israel, nor shall they enter the land of Israel. And you shall know that I am the Lord GOD. [10]‡Precisely because they have misled my people, saying, ‘Peace,’ when there is no peace, and because, when the people build a wall, these prophets smear it with whitewash, [1] [11]‡say to those who smear it with whitewash that it shall fall! There will be a deluge of rain, and you, O great hailstones, will fall, and a stormy wind break out. [12]And when the wall falls, will it not be said to you, ‘Where is the coating with which you smeared it?’ [13]Therefore thus says the Lord GOD: I will make a stormy wind break out in my wrath, and there shall be a deluge of rain in my anger, and great hailstones in wrath to make a full end. [14]And I will break down the wall that you have smeared with whitewash, and bring it down to the ground, so that its foundation will be laid bare. When it falls, you shall perish in the midst of it, and you shall know that I am the LORD. [15]Thus will I spend my wrath upon the wall and upon those who have smeared it with whitewash, and I will say to you, The wall is no more, nor those who smeared it, [16]the prophets of Israel who prophesied concerning Jerusalem and saw visions of peace for her, when there was no peace, declares the Lord GOD.

[17]†“And you, son of man, set your face against the daughters of your people, who prophesy out of their own minds. Prophesy against them [18]†and say, Thus says the Lord GOD: Woe to the women who sew magic bands upon all wrists, and make veils for the heads of persons of every stature, in the hunt for souls! Will you hunt down souls belonging to my people and keep your own souls alive? [19]You have profaned me among my people for handfuls of barley and for pieces of bread, putting to death souls who should not die and keeping alive souls who should not live, by your lying to my people, who listen to lies.

[20]“Therefore thus says the Lord GOD: Behold, I am against your magic bands with which you hunt the souls like birds, and I will tear them from your arms, and I will let the souls whom you hunt go free, the souls like birds. [21]Your veils also I will tear off and deliver my people out of your hand, and they shall be no more in your hand as prey, and you shall know that I am the LORD. [22]†Because you have disheartened the righteous falsely, although I have not grieved him, and you have encouraged the wicked, that he should not turn from his evil way to save his life, [23]†therefore you shall no more see false visions nor practice divination. I will deliver my people out of your hand. And you shall know that I am the LORD.”

Idolatrous Elders Condemned

EZEKIEL 14 ‡Then certain of the elders of Israel came to me and sat before me. [2]And the word of the LORD came to me: [3]“Son of man, these men have taken their idols into their hearts, and set the stumbling block of their iniquity before their faces. Should I indeed let myself be consulted by them? [4]†Therefore speak to them and say to them, Thus says the Lord GOD: Any one of the house of Israel who takes his idols into his heart and sets the stumbling block of his iniquity before his face, and yet comes to the prophet, I the LORD will answer him as he comes with the multitude of his idols, [5]that I may lay hold of the hearts of the house of Israel, who are all estranged from me through their idols.

[6]†“Therefore say to the house of Israel, Thus says the Lord GOD: Repent and turn away from your idols, and turn away your faces from all your abominations. [7]For any one of the house of Israel, or of the strangers who sojourn in Israel, who separates himself from me, taking his idols into his heart and putting the stumbling block of his iniquity before his face, and yet comes to a prophet to consult me through him, I the LORD will answer him myself. [8]†And I will set my face against that man; I will make him a sign and a byword and cut him off from the midst of my people, and you shall know that I am the LORD. [9]†And if the prophet is deceived and speaks a word, I, the LORD, have deceived that prophet, and I will stretch out my hand against him and will destroy him from the midst of my people Israel. [10]And they shall bear their punishment [1]—the punishment of the prophet and the punishment of the inquirer shall be alike— [11]that the house of Israel may no more go astray from me, nor defile themselves anymore with all their transgressions, but that they may be my people and I may be their God, declares the Lord GOD.”

Jerusalem Will Not Be Spared

[12]†And the word of the LORD came to me: [13]‡“Son of man, when a land sins against me by acting faithlessly, and I stretch out my hand against it and break its supply [2] of bread and send famine upon it, and cut off from it man and beast, [14]‡even if these three men, Noah, Daniel, and Job, were in it, they would deliver but their own lives by their righteousness, declares the Lord GOD.

[15]“If I cause wild beasts to pass through the land, and they ravage it, and it be made desolate, so that no one may pass through because of the beasts, [16]even if these three men were in it, as I live, declares the Lord GOD, they would deliver neither sons nor daughters. They alone would be delivered, but the land would be desolate.

[17]“Or if I bring a sword upon that land and say, Let a sword pass through the land, and I cut off from it man and beast, [18]though these three men were in it, as I live, declares the Lord GOD, they would deliver neither sons nor daughters, but they alone would be delivered.

[19]“Or if I send a pestilence into that land and pour out my wrath upon it with blood, to cut off from it man and beast, [20]even if Noah, Daniel, and Job were in it, as I live, declares the Lord GOD, they would deliver neither son nor daughter. They would deliver but their own lives by their righteousness.

[21]“For thus says the Lord GOD: How much more when I send upon Jerusalem my four disastrous acts of judgment, sword, famine, wild beasts, and pestilence, to cut off from it man and beast! [22]‡But behold, some survivors will be left in it, sons and daughters who will be brought out; behold, when they come out to you, and you see their ways and their deeds, you will be consoled for the disaster that I have brought upon Jerusalem, for all that I have brought upon it. [23]They will console you, when you see their ways and their deeds, and you shall know that I have not done without cause all that I have done in it, declares the Lord GOD.”

Jerusalem, a Useless Vine

EZEKIEL 15 ‡And the word of the LORD came to me: [2]“Son of man, how does the wood of the vine surpass any wood, the vine branch that is among the trees of the forest? [3]Is wood taken from it to make anything? Do people take a peg from it to hang any vessel on it? [4]‡Behold, it is given to the fire for fuel. When the fire has consumed both ends of it, and the middle of it is charred, is it useful for anything? [5]Behold, when it was whole, it was used for nothing. How much less, when the fire has consumed it and it is charred, can it ever be used for anything! [6]‡Therefore thus says the Lord GOD: Like the wood of the vine among the trees of the forest, which I have given to the fire for fuel, so have I given up the inhabitants of Jerusalem. [7]And I will set my face against them. Though they escape from the fire, the fire shall yet consume them, and you will know that I am the LORD, when I set my face against them. [8]And I will make the land desolate, because they have acted faithlessly, declares the Lord GOD.”

The LORD's Faithless Bride

EZEKIEL 16 ‡†Again the word of the LORD came to me: [2]“Son of man, make known to Jerusalem her abominations, [3]‡†and say, Thus says the Lord GOD to Jerusalem: Your origin and your birth are of the land of the Canaanites; your father was an Amorite and your mother a Hittite. [4]‡And as for your birth, on the day you were born your cord was not cut, nor were you washed with water to cleanse you, nor rubbed with salt, nor wrapped in swaddling cloths. [5]No eye pitied you, to do any of these things to you out of compassion for you, but you were cast out on the open field, for you were abhorred, on the day that you were born.

[6]†“And when I passed by you and saw you wallowing in your blood, I said to you in your blood, ‘Live!’ I said to you in your blood, ‘Live!’ [7]†I made you flourish like a plant of the field. And you grew up and became tall and arrived at full adornment. Your breasts were formed, and your hair had grown; yet you were naked and bare.

[8]‡†“When I passed by you again and saw you, behold, you were at the age for love, and I spread the corner of my garment over you and covered your nakedness; I made my vow to you and entered into a covenant with you, declares the Lord GOD, and you became mine. [9]‡Then I bathed you with water and washed off your blood from you and anointed you with oil. [10]I clothed you also with embroidered cloth and shod you with fine leather. I wrapped you in fine linen and covered you with silk. [1] [11]And I adorned you with ornaments and put bracelets on your wrists and a chain on your neck. [12]And I put a ring on your nose and earrings in your ears and a beautiful crown on your head. [13]Thus you were adorned with gold and silver, and your clothing was of fine linen and silk and embroidered cloth. You ate fine flour and honey and oil. You grew exceedingly beautiful and advanced to royalty. [14]†And your renown went forth among the nations because of your beauty, for it was perfect through the splendor that I had bestowed on you, declares the Lord GOD.

[15]‡‡“But you trusted in your beauty and played the whore [2] because of your renown and lavished your whorings [3] on any passerby; your beauty [4] became his. [16]You took some of your garments and made for yourself colorful shrines, and on them played the whore. The like has never been, nor ever shall be. [5] [17]You also took your beautiful jewels of my gold and of my silver, which I had given you, and made for yourself images of men, and with them played the whore. [18]And you took your embroidered garments to cover them, and set my oil and my incense before them. [19]Also my bread that I gave you—I fed you with fine flour and oil and honey—you set before them for a pleasing aroma; and so it was, declares the Lord GOD. [20]‡And you took your sons and your daughters, whom you had borne to me, and these you sacrificed to them to be devoured. Were your whorings so small a matter [21]that you slaughtered my children and delivered them up as an offering by fire to them? [22]And in all your abominations and your whorings you did not remember the days of your youth, when you were naked and bare, wallowing in your blood.

[23]‡“And after all your wickedness (woe, woe to you! declares the Lord GOD), [24]you built yourself a vaulted chamber and made yourself a lofty place in every square. [25]At the head of every street you built your lofty place and made your beauty an abomination, offering yourself [6] to any passerby and multiplying your whoring. [26]You also played the whore with the Egyptians, your lustful neighbors, multiplying your whoring, to provoke me to anger. [27]‡Behold, therefore, I stretched out my hand against you and diminished your allotted portion and delivered you to the greed of your enemies, the daughters of the Philistines, who were ashamed of your lewd behavior. [28]You played the whore also with the Assyrians, because you were not satisfied; yes, you played the whore with them, and still you were not satisfied. [29]‡You multiplied your whoring also with the trading land of Chaldea, and even with this you were not satisfied.

[30]“How sick is your heart, [7] declares the Lord GOD, because you did all these things, the deeds of a brazen prostitute, [31]‡building your vaulted chamber at the head of every street, and making your lofty place in every square. Yet you were not like a prostitute, because you scorned payment. [32]Adulterous wife, who receives strangers instead of her husband! [33]Men give gifts to all prostitutes, but you gave your gifts to all your lovers, bribing them to come to you from every side with your whorings. [34]So you were different from other women in your whorings. No one solicited you to play the whore, and you gave payment, while no payment was given to you; therefore you were different.

[35]‡“Therefore, O prostitute, hear the word of the LORD: [36]Thus says the Lord GOD, Because your lust was poured out and your nakedness uncovered in your whorings with your lovers, and with all your abominable idols, and because of the blood of your children that you gave to them, [37]therefore, behold, I will gather all your lovers with whom you took pleasure, all those you loved and all those you hated. I will gather them against you from every side and will uncover your nakedness to them, that they may see all your nakedness. [38]And I will judge you as women who commit adultery and shed blood are judged, and bring upon you the blood of wrath and jealousy. [39]And I will give you into their hands, and they shall throw down your vaulted chamber and break down your lofty places. They shall strip you of your clothes and take your beautiful jewels and leave you naked and bare. [40]They shall bring up a crowd against you, and they shall stone you and cut you to pieces with their swords. [41]And they shall burn your houses and execute judgments upon you in the sight of many women. I will make you stop playing the whore, and you shall also give payment no more. [42]‡So will I satisfy my wrath on you, and my jealousy shall depart from you. I will be calm and will no more be angry. [43]Because you have not remembered the days of your youth, but have enraged me with all these things, therefore, behold, I have returned your deeds upon your head, declares the Lord GOD. Have you not committed lewdness in addition to all your abominations?

[44]‡“Behold, everyone who uses proverbs will use this proverb about you: ‘Like mother, like daughter.’ [45]You are the daughter of your mother, who loathed her husband and her children; and you are the sister of your sisters, who loathed their husbands and their children. Your mother was a Hittite and your father an Amorite. [46]‡And your elder sister is Samaria, who lived with her daughters to the north of you; and your younger sister, who lived to the south of you, is Sodom with her daughters. [47]Not only did you walk in their ways and do according to their abominations; within a very little time you were more corrupt than they in all your ways. [48]As I live, declares the Lord GOD, your sister Sodom and her daughters have not done as you and your daughters have done. [49]Behold, this was the guilt of your sister Sodom: she and her daughters had pride, excess of food, and prosperous ease, but did not aid the poor and needy. [50]They were haughty and did an abomination before me. So I removed them, when I saw it. [51]Samaria has not committed half your sins. You have committed more abominations than they, and have made your sisters appear righteous by all the abominations that you have committed. [52]Bear your disgrace, you also, for you have intervened on behalf of your sisters. Because of your sins in which you acted more abominably than they, they are more in the right than you. So be ashamed, you also, and bear your disgrace, for you have made your sisters appear righteous.

[53]"I will restore their fortunes, both the fortunes of Sodom and her daughters, and the fortunes of Samaria and her daughters, and I will restore your own fortunes in their midst, [54]that you may bear your disgrace and be ashamed of all that you have done, becoming a consolation to them. [55]As for your sisters, Sodom and her daughters shall return to their former state, and Samaria and her daughters shall return to their former state, and you and your daughters shall return to your former state. [56]Was not your sister Sodom a byword in your mouth in the day of your pride, [57]before your wickedness was uncovered? Now you have become an object of reproach for the daughters of Syria [8] and all those around her, and for the daughters of the Philistines, those all around who despise you. [58]You bear the penalty of your lewdness and your abominations, declares the LORD.

The LORD's Everlasting Covenant

[59]"For thus says the Lord GOD: I will deal with you as you have done, you who have despised the oath in breaking the covenant, [60]‡yet I will remember my covenant with you in the days of your youth, and I will establish for you an everlasting covenant. [61]Then you will remember your ways and be ashamed when you take your sisters, both your elder and your younger, and I give them to you as daughters, but not on account of [9] the covenant with you. [62]I will establish my covenant with you, and you shall know that I am the LORD, [63]‡that you may remember and be confounded, and never open your mouth again because of your shame, when I atone for you for all that you have done, declares the Lord GOD."

Parable of Two Eagles and a Vine

EZEKIEL 17 ‡The word of the LORD came to me: [2]“Son of man, propound a riddle, and speak a parable to the house of Israel; [3]‡say, Thus says the Lord GOD: A great eagle with great wings and long pinions, rich in plumage of many colors, came to Lebanon and took the top of the cedar. [4]‡He broke off the topmost of its young twigs and carried it to a land of trade and set it in a city of merchants. [5]‡Then he took of the seed of the land and planted it in fertile soil. [1] He placed it beside abundant waters. He set it like a willow twig, [6]‡and it sprouted and became a low spreading vine, and its branches turned toward him, and its roots remained where it stood. So it became a vine and produced branches and put out boughs.

[7]‡“And there was another great eagle with great wings and much plumage, and behold, this vine bent its roots toward him and shot forth its branches toward him from the bed where it was planted, that he might water it. [8]It had been planted on good soil by abundant waters, that it might produce branches and bear fruit and become a noble vine.

[9]‡“Say, Thus says the Lord GOD: Will it thrive? Will he not pull up its roots and cut off its fruit, so that it withers, so that all its fresh sprouting leaves wither? It will not take a strong arm or many people to pull it from its roots. [10]Behold, it is planted; will it thrive? Will it not utterly wither when the east wind strikes it—wither away on the bed where it sprouted?”

[11]‡Then the word of the LORD came to me: [12]“Say now to the rebellious house, Do you not know what these things mean? Tell them, behold, the king of Babylon came to Jerusalem, and took her king and her princes and brought them to him to Babylon. [13]And he took one of the royal offspring [2] and made a covenant with him, putting him under oath (the chief men of the land he had taken away), [14]that the kingdom might be humble and not lift itself up, and keep his covenant that it might stand. [15]But he rebelled against him by sending his ambassadors to Egypt, that they might give him horses and a large army. Will he thrive? Can one escape who does such things? Can he break the covenant and yet escape?

[16]“As I live, declares the Lord GOD, surely in the place where the king dwells who made him king, whose oath he despised, and whose covenant with him he broke, in Babylon he shall die. [17]Pharaoh with his mighty army and great company will not help him in war, when mounds are cast up and siege walls built to cut off many lives. [18]He despised the oath in breaking the covenant, and behold, he gave his hand and did all these things; he shall not escape. [19]Therefore thus says the Lord GOD: As I live, surely it is my oath that he despised, and my covenant that he broke. I will return it upon his head. [20]I will spread my net over him, and he shall be taken in my snare, and I will bring him to Babylon and enter into judgment with him there for the treachery he has committed against me. [21]And all the pick [3] of his troops shall fall by the sword, and the survivors shall be scattered to every wind, and you shall know that I am the LORD; I have spoken.”

[22]‡Thus says the Lord GOD: “I myself will take a sprig from the lofty top of the cedar and will set it out. I will break off from the topmost of its young twigs a tender one, and I myself will plant it on a high and lofty mountain. [23]On the mountain height of Israel will I plant it, that it may bear branches and produce fruit and become a noble cedar. And under it will dwell every kind of bird; in the shade of its branches birds of every sort will nest. [24]†And all the trees of the field shall know that I am the LORD; I bring low the high tree, and make high the low tree, dry up the green tree, and make the dry tree flourish. I am the LORD; I have spoken, and I will do it.”

The Soul Who Sins Shall Die

EZEKIEL 18 ‡The word of the LORD came to me: [2]†“What do you [1] mean by repeating this proverb concerning the land of Israel, ‘The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge’? [3]†As I live, declares the Lord GOD, this proverb shall no more be used by you in Israel. [4]†Behold, all souls are mine; the soul of the father as well as the soul of the son is mine: the soul who sins shall die.

[5]‡†“If a man is righteous and does what is just and right— [6]if he does not eat upon the mountains or lift up his eyes to the idols of the house of Israel, does not defile his neighbor's wife or approach a woman in her time of menstrual impurity, [7]does not oppress anyone, but restores to the debtor his pledge, commits no robbery, gives his bread to the hungry and covers the naked with a garment, [8]†does not lend at interest or take any profit, [2] withholds his hand from injustice, executes true justice between man and man, [9]†walks in my statutes, and keeps my rules by acting faithfully—he is righteous; he shall surely live, declares the Lord GOD.

[10]‡“If he fathers a son who is violent, a shedder of blood, who does any of these things [11](though he himself did none of these things), who even eats upon the mountains, defiles his neighbor's wife, [12]oppresses the poor and needy, commits robbery, does not restore the pledge, lifts up his eyes to the idols, commits abomination, [13]lends at interest, and takes profit; shall he then live? He shall not live. He has done all these abominations; he shall surely die; his blood shall be upon himself.

[14]‡“Now suppose this man fathers a son who sees all the sins that his father has done; he sees, and does not do likewise: [15]he does not eat upon the mountains or lift up his eyes to the idols of the house of Israel, does not defile his neighbor's wife, [16]does not oppress anyone, exacts no pledge, commits no robbery, but gives his bread to the hungry and covers the naked with a garment, [17]withholds his hand from iniquity, [3] takes no interest or profit, obeys my rules, and walks in my statutes; he shall not die for his father's iniquity; he shall surely live. [18]As for his father, because he practiced extortion, robbed his brother, and did what is not good among his people, behold, he shall die for his iniquity.

[19]‡‡“Yet you say, ‘Why should not the son suffer for the iniquity of the father?’ When the son has done what is just and right, and has been careful to observe all my statutes, he shall surely live. [20]The soul who sins shall die. The son shall not suffer for the iniquity of the father, nor the father suffer for the iniquity of the son. The righteousness of the righteous shall be upon himself, and the wickedness of the wicked shall be upon himself.

[21]‡“But if a wicked person turns away from all his sins that he has committed and keeps all my statutes and does what is just and right, he shall surely live; he shall not die. [22]None of the transgressions that he has committed shall be remembered against him; for the righteousness that he has done he shall live. [23]‡Have I any pleasure in the death of the wicked, declares the Lord GOD, and not rather that he should turn from his way and live? [24]‡But when a righteous person turns away from his righteousness and does injustice and does the same abominations that the wicked person does, shall he live? None of the righteous deeds that he has done shall be remembered; for the treachery of which he is guilty and the sin he has committed, for them he shall die.

[25]‡“Yet you say, ‘The way of the Lord is not just.’ Hear now, O house of Israel: Is my way not just? Is it not your ways that are not just? [26]When a righteous person turns away from his righteousness and does injustice, he shall die for it; for the injustice that he has done he shall die. [27]Again, when a wicked person turns away from the wickedness he has committed and does what is just and right, he shall save his life. [28]Because he considered and turned away from all the transgressions that he had committed, he shall surely live; he shall not die. [29]Yet the house of Israel says, ‘The way of the Lord is not just.’ O house of Israel, are my ways not just? Is it not your ways that are not just?

[30]‡“Therefore I will judge you, O house of Israel, every one according to his ways, declares the Lord GOD. Repent and turn from all your transgressions, lest iniquity be your ruin. [4] [31]‡Cast away from you all the transgressions that you have committed, and make yourselves a new heart and a new spirit! Why will you die, O house of Israel? [32] †For I have no pleasure in the death of anyone, declares the Lord GOD; so turn, and live.”

A Lament for the Princes of Israel

EZEKIEL 19 ‡‡‡And you, take up a lamentation for the princes of Israel, [2]and say:

What was your mother? A lioness!
Among lions she crouched;
in the midst of young lions
she reared her cubs.
[3]‡And she brought up one of her cubs;
he became a young lion,
and he learned to catch prey;
he devoured men.
[4]The nations heard about him;
he was caught in their pit,
and they brought him with hooks
to the land of Egypt.
[5]‡When she saw that she waited in vain,
that her hope was lost,
she took another of her cubs
and made him a young lion.
[6]He prowled among the lions;
he became a young lion,
and he learned to catch prey;
he devoured men,
[7]and seized [1] their widows.
He laid waste their cities,
and the land was appalled and all who were in it
at the sound of his roaring.
[8]Then the nations set against him from provinces on every side;
they spread their net over him;
he was taken in their pit.
[9]With hooks they put him in a cage [2]
and brought him to the king of Babylon;
they brought him into custody,

that his voice should no more be heard on the mountains of Israel.
[10]‡Your mother was like a vine in a vineyard [3] planted by the water, fruitful and full of branches
by reason of abundant water.
[11]Its strong stems became rulers' scepters;
it towered aloft
among the thick boughs; [4]
it was seen in its height
with the mass of its branches.
[12]But the vine was plucked up in fury,
cast down to the ground;
the east wind dried up its fruit;
they were stripped off and withered.
As for its strong stem,
fire consumed it.
[13]Now it is planted in the wilderness,
in a dry and thirsty land.
[14]†And fire has gone out from the stem of its shoots,
has consumed its fruit,
so that there remains in it no strong stem,
no scepter for ruling.

This is a lamentation and has become a lamentation.

Israel's Continuing Rebellion

EZEKIEL 20 ‡In the seventh year, in the fifth month, on the tenth day of the month, certain of the elders of Israel came to inquire of the LORD, and sat before me. [2]And the word of the LORD came to me: [3]‡“Son of man, speak to the elders of Israel, and say to them, Thus says the Lord GOD, Is it to inquire of me that you come? As I live, declares the Lord GOD, I will not be inquired of by you. [4]Will you judge them, son of man, will you judge them? Let them know the abominations of their fathers, [5]‡and say to them, Thus says the Lord GOD: On the day when I chose Israel, I swore [1] to the offspring of the house of Jacob, making myself known to them in the land of Egypt; I swore to them, saying, I am the LORD your God. [6]On that day I swore to them that I would bring them out of the land of Egypt into a land that I had searched out for them, a land flowing with milk and honey, the most glorious of all lands. [7]And I said to them, Cast away the detestable things your eyes feast on, every one of you, and do not defile yourselves with the idols of Egypt; I am the LORD your God. [8]But they rebelled against me and were not willing to listen to me. None of them cast away the detestable things their eyes feasted on, nor did they forsake the idols of Egypt.

“Then I said I would pour out my wrath upon them and spend my anger against them in the midst of the land of Egypt. [9]But I acted for the sake of my name, that it should not be profaned in the sight of the nations among whom they lived, in whose sight I made myself known to them in bringing them out of the land of Egypt. [10]So I led them out of the land of Egypt and brought them into the wilderness. [11]I gave them my statutes and made known to them my rules, by which, if a person does them, he shall live. [12]Moreover, I gave them my Sabbaths, as a sign between me and them, that they might know that I am the LORD who sanctifies them. [13]But the house of Israel rebelled against me in the wilderness. They did not walk in my statutes but rejected my rules, by which, if a person does them, he shall live; and my Sabbaths they greatly profaned.

“Then I said I would pour out my wrath upon them in the wilderness, to make a full end of them. [14]But I acted for the sake of my name, that it should not be profaned in the sight of the nations, in whose sight I had brought them out. [15]Moreover, I swore to them in the wilderness that I would not bring them into the land that I had given them, a land flowing with milk and honey, the most glorious of all lands, [16]because they rejected my rules and did not walk in my statutes, and profaned my Sabbaths; for their heart went after their idols. [17]Nevertheless, my eye spared them, and I did not destroy them or make a full end of them in the wilderness.

[18]“And I said to their children in the wilderness, Do not walk in the statutes of your fathers, nor keep their rules, nor defile yourselves with their idols. [19]I am the LORD your God; walk in my statutes, and be careful to obey my rules, [20]and keep my Sabbaths holy that they may be a sign between me and you, that you may know that I am the LORD your God. [21]But the children rebelled against me. They did not walk in my statutes and were not careful to obey my rules, by which, if a person does them, he shall live; they profaned my Sabbaths.

“Then I said I would pour out my wrath upon them and spend my anger against them in the wilderness. [22]But I withheld my hand and acted for the sake of my name, that it should not be profaned in the sight of the nations, in whose sight I had brought them out. [23]Moreover, I swore to them in the wilderness that I would scatter them among the nations and disperse them through the countries, [24]because they had not obeyed my rules, but had rejected my statutes and profaned my Sabbaths, and their eyes were set on their fathers' idols. [25]‡Moreover, I gave them statutes that were not good and rules by which they could not have life, [26]and I defiled them through their very gifts in their offering up all their firstborn, that I might devastate them. I did it that they might know that I am the LORD.

[27]“Therefore, son of man, speak to the house of Israel and say to them, Thus says the Lord GOD: In this also your fathers blasphemed me, by dealing treacherously with me. [28]For when I had brought them into the land that I swore to give them, then wherever they saw any high hill or any leafy tree, there they offered their sacrifices and there they presented the provocation of their offering; there they sent up their pleasing aromas, and there they poured out their drink offerings. [29](I said to them, What is the high place to which you go? So its name is called Bamah [2] to this day.)

[30]“Therefore say to the house of Israel, Thus says the Lord GOD: Will you defile yourselves after the manner of your fathers and go whoring after their detestable things? [31]When you present your gifts and offer up your children in fire, [3] you defile yourselves with all your idols to this day. And shall I be inquired of by you, O house of Israel? As I live, declares the Lord GOD, I will not be inquired of by you.

[32]“What is in your mind shall never happen—the thought, ‘Let us be like the nations, like the tribes of the countries, and worship wood and stone.’

The LORD Will Restore Israel

[33]“As I live, declares the Lord GOD, surely with a mighty hand and an outstretched arm and with wrath poured out I will be king over you. [34]†I will bring you out from the peoples and gather you out of the countries where you are scattered, with a mighty hand and an outstretched arm, and with wrath poured out. [35]†And I will bring you into the wilderness of the peoples, and there I will enter into judgment with you face to face. [36]As I entered into judgment with your fathers in the wilderness of the land of Egypt, so I will enter into judgment with you, declares the Lord GOD. [37]†I will make you pass under the rod, and I will bring you into the bond of the covenant. [38]†I will purge out the rebels from among you, and those who transgress against me. I will bring them out of the land where they sojourn, but they shall not enter the land of Israel. Then you will know that I am the LORD.

[39]†“As for you, O house of Israel, thus says the Lord GOD: Go serve every one of you his idols, now and hereafter, if you will not listen to me; but my holy name you shall no more profane with your gifts and your idols.

[40]†“For on my holy mountain, the mountain height of Israel, declares the Lord GOD, there all the house of Israel, all of them, shall serve me in the land. There I will accept them, and there I will require your contributions and the choicest of your gifts, with all your sacred offerings. [41]As a pleasing aroma I will accept you, when I bring you out from the peoples and gather you out of the countries where you have been scattered. And I will manifest my holiness among you in the sight of the nations. [42]And you shall know that I am the LORD, when I bring you into the land of Israel, the country that I swore to give to your fathers. [43]And there you shall remember your ways and all your deeds with which you have defiled yourselves, and you shall loathe yourselves for all the evils that you have committed. [44]‡And you shall know that I am the LORD, when I deal with you for my name's sake, not according to your evil ways, nor according to your corrupt deeds, O house of Israel, declares the Lord GOD."

[45] [4] And the word of the LORD came to me: [46]‡"Son of man, set your face toward the southland; [5] preach against the south, and prophesy against the forest land in the Negeb. [47]Say to the forest of the Negeb, Hear the word of the LORD: Thus says the Lord GOD, Behold, I will kindle a fire in you, and it shall devour every green tree in you and every dry tree. The blazing flame shall not be quenched, and all faces from south to north shall be scorched by it. [48]All flesh shall see that I the LORD have kindled it; it shall not be quenched." [49]‡Then I said, "Ah, Lord GOD! They are saying of me, 'Is he not a maker of parables?'"

The LORD Has Drawn His Sword

EZEKIEL 21 ‡ [1] The word of the LORD came to me: [2]"Son of man, set your face toward Jerusalem and preach against the sanctuaries. [2] Prophesy against the land of Israel [3]‡and say to the land of Israel, Thus says the LORD: Behold, I am against you and will draw my sword from its sheath and will cut off from you both righteous and wicked. [4]Because I will cut off from you both righteous and wicked, therefore my sword shall be drawn from its sheath against all flesh from south to north. [5]And all flesh shall know that I am the LORD. I have drawn my sword from its sheath; it shall not be sheathed again.

[6]"As for you, son of man, groan; with breaking heart and bitter grief, groan before their eyes. [7]And when they say to you, 'Why do you groan?' you shall say, 'Because of the news that it is coming. Every heart will melt, and all hands will be feeble; every spirit will faint, and all knees will be weak as water. Behold, it is coming, and it will be fulfilled,'" declares the Lord GOD.

[8]‡And the word of the LORD came to me: [9]"Son of man, prophesy and say, Thus says the Lord, say:

"A sword, a sword is sharpened and also polished,
[10]‡sharpened for slaughter,
    polished to flash like lightning!

(Or shall we rejoice? You have despised the rod, my son, with everything of wood.) [3] [11]‡So the sword is given to be polished, that it may be grasped in the hand. It is sharpened and polished to be given into the hand of the slayer. [12]‡Cry out and wail, son of man, for it is against my people. It is against all the princes of Israel. They are delivered over to the sword with my people. Strike therefore upon your thigh. [13]For it will not be a testing—what could it do if you despise the rod?" [4] declares the Lord GOD.

[14]"As for you, son of man, prophesy. Clap your hands and let the sword come down twice, yes, three times, [5] the sword for those to be slain. It is the sword for the great slaughter, which surrounds them, [15]that their hearts may melt, and many stumble. [6] At all their gates I have given the glittering sword. Ah, it is made like lightning; it is taken up [7] for slaughter. [16]Cut sharply to the right; set yourself to the left, wherever your face is directed. [17]I also will clap my hands, and I will satisfy my fury; I the LORD have spoken."

[18]†The word of the LORD came to me again: [19]"As for you, son of man, mark two ways for the sword of the king of Babylon to come. Both of them shall come from the same land. And make a signpost; make it at the head of the way to a city. [20]Mark a way for the sword to come to Rabbah of the Ammonites and to Judah, into Jerusalem the fortified. [21]†For the king of Babylon stands at the parting of the way, at the head of the two ways, to use divination. He shakes the arrows; he consults the teraphim; [8] he looks at the liver. [22]†Into his right hand comes the divination for Jerusalem, to set battering rams, to open the mouth with murder, to lift up the voice with shouting, to set battering rams against the gates, to cast up mounds, to build siege towers. [23]†But to them it will seem like a false divination. They have sworn solemn oaths, but he brings their guilt to remembrance, that they may be taken.

[24]"Therefore thus says the Lord GOD: Because you have made your guilt to be remembered, in that your transgressions are uncovered, so that in all your deeds your sins appear—because you have come to remembrance, you shall be taken in hand. [25]†And you, O profane [9] wicked one, prince of Israel, whose day has come, the time of your final punishment, [26]†thus says the Lord GOD: Remove the turban and take off the crown. Things shall not remain as they are. Exalt that which is low, and bring low that which is exalted. [27]†A ruin, ruin, ruin I will make it. This also shall not be, until he comes, the one to whom judgment belongs, and I will give it to him.

[28]†"And you, son of man, prophesy, and say, Thus says the Lord GOD concerning the Ammonites and concerning their reproach; say, A sword, a sword is drawn for the slaughter. It is polished to consume and to flash like lightning— [29]while they see for you false visions, while they divine lies for you—to place you on the necks of the profane wicked, whose day has come, the time of their final punishment. [30]†Return it to its sheath. In the place where you were created, in the land of your origin, I will judge you.

[31]And I will pour out my indignation upon you; I will blow upon you with the fire of my wrath, and I will deliver you into the hands of brutish men, skillful to destroy. [32]†You shall be fuel for the fire. Your blood shall be in the midst of the land. You shall be no more remembered, for I the LORD have spoken.”

Israel's Shedding of Blood

EZEKIEL 22 And the word of the LORD came to me, saying, [2]‡“And you, son of man, will you judge, will you judge the bloody city? Then declare to her all her abominations. [3]You shall say, Thus says the Lord GOD: A city that sheds blood in her midst, so that her time may come, and that makes idols to defile herself! [4]‡You have become guilty by the blood that you have shed, and defiled by the idols that you have made, and you have brought your days near, the appointed time of [1] your years has come. Therefore I have made you a reproach to the nations, and a mockery to all the countries. [5]‡Those who are near and those who are far from you will mock you; your name is defiled; you are full of tumult.

[6]“Behold, the princes of Israel in you, every one according to his power, have been bent on shedding blood. [7]Father and mother are treated with contempt in you; the sojourner suffers extortion in your midst; the fatherless and the widow are wronged in you. [8]You have despised my holy things and profaned my Sabbaths. [9]‡There are men in you who slander to shed blood, and people in you who eat on the mountains; they commit lewdness in your midst. [10]In you men uncover their fathers' nakedness; in you they violate women who are unclean in their menstrual impurity. [11]One commits abomination with his neighbor's wife; another lewdly defiles his daughter-in-law; another in you violates his sister, his father's daughter. [12]In you they take bribes to shed blood; you take interest and profit [2] and make gain of your neighbors by extortion; but me you have forgotten, declares the Lord GOD.

[13]“Behold, I strike my hand at the dishonest gain that you have made, and at the blood that has been in your midst. [14]‡Can your courage endure, or can your hands be strong, in the days that I shall deal with you? I the LORD have spoken, and I will do it. [15]I will scatter you among the nations and disperse you through the countries, and I will consume your uncleanness out of you. [16]‡And you shall be profaned by your own doing in the sight of the nations, and you shall know that I am the LORD.”

[17]‡And the word of the LORD came to me: [18]“Son of man, the house of Israel has become dross to me; all of them are bronze and tin and iron and lead in the furnace; they are dross of silver. [19]Therefore thus says the Lord GOD: Because you have all become dross, therefore, behold, I will gather you into the midst of Jerusalem. [20]As one gathers silver and bronze and iron and lead and tin into a furnace, to blow the fire on it in order to melt it, so I will gather you in my anger and in my wrath, and I will put you in and melt you. [21]I will gather you and blow on you with the fire of my wrath, and you shall be melted in the midst of it. [22]As silver is melted in a furnace, so you shall be melted in the midst of it, and you shall know that I am the LORD; I have poured out my wrath upon you.”

[23]And the word of the LORD came to me: [24]“Son of man, say to her, You are a land that is not cleansed or rained upon in the day of indignation. [25]‡The conspiracy of her prophets in her midst is like a roaring lion tearing the prey; they have devoured human lives; they have taken treasure and precious things; they have made many widows in her midst. [26]Her priests have done violence to my law and have profaned my holy things. They have made no distinction between the holy and the common, neither have they taught the difference between the unclean and the clean, and they have disregarded my Sabbaths, so that I am profaned among them. [27]Her princes in her midst are like wolves tearing the prey, shedding blood, destroying lives to get dishonest gain. [28]And her prophets have smeared whitewash for them, seeing false visions and divining lies for them, saying, ‘Thus says the Lord GOD,’ when the LORD has not spoken. [29]The people of the land have practiced extortion and committed robbery. They have oppressed the poor and needy, and have extorted from the sojourner without justice. [30]†And I sought for a man among them who should build up the wall and stand in the breach before me for the land, that I should not destroy it, but I found none. [31]Therefore I have poured out my indignation upon them. I have consumed them with the fire of my wrath. I have returned their way upon their heads, declares the Lord GOD.”

Oholah and Oholibah

EZEKIEL 23 The word of the LORD came to me: [2]‡“Son of man, there were two women, the daughters of one mother. [3]They played the whore in Egypt; they played the whore in their youth; there their breasts were pressed and their virgin bosoms [1] handled. [4]Oholah was the name of the elder and Oholibah the name of her sister. They became mine, and they bore sons and daughters. As for their names, Oholah is Samaria, and Oholibah is Jerusalem.

[5]‡“Oholah played the whore while she was mine, and she lusted after her lovers the Assyrians, warriors [6]clothed in purple, governors and commanders, all of them desirable young men, horsemen riding on horses. [7]She bestowed her whoring upon them, the choicest men of Assyria all of them, and she defiled herself with all the idols of everyone after whom she lusted. [8]She did not give up her whoring that she had begun in Egypt; for in her youth men had lain with her and handled her virgin bosom and poured out their whoring lust upon her. [9]Therefore I delivered her into the hands of her lovers, into the hands of the Assyrians, after whom she lusted. [10]These uncovered her nakedness; they seized her sons and her daughters; and as for her, they killed her with the sword; and she became a byword among women, when judgment had been executed on her.

[11]‡“Her sister Oholibah saw this, and she became more corrupt than her sister [2] in her lust and in her whoring, which was worse than that of her sister. [12]†She lusted after the Assyrians, governors and commanders, warriors clothed in full armor, horsemen riding on horses, all of them desirable young men. [13]And I saw that she was defiled; they both took the same way. [14]‡But she carried her whoring further. She saw men portrayed on the wall, the images of the Chaldeans portrayed in vermilion, [15]wearing belts on their waists, with flowing turbans on their heads, all of them having the appearance of officers, a likeness of Babylonians whose native land was Chaldea. [16]When she saw them, she lusted after them and sent messengers to them in Chaldea. [17]†And the Babylonians came to her into the bed of love, and they defiled her with their whoring lust. And after she was defiled by them, she turned from them in disgust. [18]When she carried on her whoring so openly and flaunted her nakedness, I turned in disgust from her, as I had turned in disgust from her sister. [19]†Yet she increased her whoring, remembering the days of her youth, when she played the whore in the land of Egypt [20]and lusted after her paramours there, whose members were like those of donkeys, and whose issue was like that of horses. [21]Thus you longed for the lewdness of your youth, when the Egyptians handled your bosom and pressed [3] your young breasts.”

[22]‡Therefore, O Oholibah, thus says the Lord GOD: “Behold, I will stir up against you your lovers from whom you turned in disgust, and I will bring them against you from every side: [23]†the Babylonians and all the Chaldeans, Pekod and Shoa and Koa, and all the Assyrians with them, desirable young men, governors and commanders all of them, officers and men of renown, all of them riding on horses. [24]And they shall come against you from the north [4] with chariots and wagons and a host of peoples. They shall set themselves against you on every side with buckler, shield, and helmet; and I will commit the judgment to them, and they shall judge you according to their judgments. [25]†And I will direct my jealousy against you, that they may deal with you in fury. They shall cut off your nose and your ears, and your survivors shall fall by the sword. They shall seize your sons and your daughters, and your survivors shall be devoured by fire. [26]They shall also strip you of your clothes and take away your beautiful jewels. [27]Thus I will put an end to your lewdness and your whoring begun in the land of Egypt, so that you shall not lift up your eyes to them or remember Egypt anymore.

[28]“For thus says the Lord GOD: Behold, I will deliver you into the hands of those whom you hate, into the hands of those from whom you turned in disgust, [29]and they shall deal with you in hatred and take away all the fruit of your labor and leave you naked and bare, and the nakedness of your whoring shall be uncovered. Your lewdness and your whoring [30]have brought this upon you, because you played the whore with the nations and defiled yourself with their idols. [31]You have gone the way of your sister; therefore I will give her cup into your hand. [32]‡Thus says the Lord GOD:

“You shall drink your sister's cup that is deep and large;
you shall be laughed at and held in derision,

for it contains much;
[33]you will be filled with drunkenness and sorrow.
A cup of horror and desolation,
the cup of your sister Samaria; [34]you shall drink it and drain it out,
and gnaw its shards,
and tear your breasts;

for I have spoken, declares the Lord GOD. [35]Therefore thus says the Lord GOD: Because you have forgotten me and cast me behind your back, you yourself must bear the consequences of your lewdness and whoring."

[36]‡The LORD said to me: "Son of man, will you judge Oholah and Oholibah? Declare to them their abominations. [37]For they have committed adultery, and blood is on their hands. With their idols they have committed adultery, and they have even offered up [5] to them for food the children whom they had borne to me. [38]Moreover, this they have done to me: they have defiled my sanctuary on the same day and profaned my Sabbaths. [39]For when they had slaughtered their children in sacrifice to their idols, on the same day they came into my sanctuary to profane it. And behold, this is what they did in my house. [40]They even sent for men to come from afar, to whom a messenger was sent; and behold, they came. For them you bathed yourself, painted your eyes, and adorned yourself with ornaments. [41]You sat on a stately couch, with a table spread before it on which you had placed my incense and my oil. [42]The sound of a carefree multitude was with her; and with men of the common sort, drunkards [6] were brought from the wilderness; and they put bracelets on the hands of the women, and beautiful crowns on their heads.

[43]"Then I said of her who was worn out by adultery, Now they will continue to use her for a whore, even her! [7] [44]For they have gone in to her, as men go in to a prostitute. Thus they went in to Oholah and to Oholibah, lewd women! [45]‡But righteous men shall pass judgment on them with the sentence of adulteresses, and with the sentence of women who shed blood, because they are adulteresses, and blood is on their hands."

[46]For thus says the Lord GOD: "Bring up a vast host against them, and make them an object of terror and a plunder. [47]And the host shall stone them and cut them down with their swords. They shall kill their sons and their daughters, and burn up their houses. [48]Thus will I put an end to lewdness in the land, that all women may take warning and not commit lewdness as you have done. [49]And they shall return your lewdness upon you, and you shall bear the penalty for your sinful idolatry, and you shall know that I am the Lord GOD.”

The Siege of Jerusalem

EZEKIEL 24 ‡In the ninth year, in the tenth month, on the tenth day of the month, the word of the LORD came to me: [2]“Son of man, write down the name of this day, this very day. The king of Babylon has laid siege to Jerusalem this very day. [3]‡And utter a parable to the rebellious house and say to them, Thus says the Lord GOD:

> “Set on the pot, set it on;
> pour in water also;
> [4]put in it the pieces of meat,
> all the good pieces, the thigh and the shoulder;
> fill it with choice bones.
> [5]Take the choicest one of the flock;
> pile the logs [1] under it;
> boil it well;
> seethe also its bones in it.

[6]†“Therefore thus says the Lord GOD: Woe to the bloody city, to the pot whose corrosion is in it, and whose corrosion has not gone out of it! Take out of it piece after piece, without making any choice. [2] [7]†For the blood she has shed is in her midst; she put it on the bare rock; she did not pour it out on the ground to cover it with dust. [8]To rouse my wrath, to take vengeance, I have set on the bare rock the blood she has shed, that it may not be covered. [9]‡Therefore thus says the Lord GOD: Woe to the bloody city! I also will make the pile great. [10]Heap on the logs, kindle the fire, boil the meat well, mix in the spices, [3] and let the bones be burned up. [11]‡Then set it empty upon the coals, that it may become hot, and its copper may burn, that its uncleanness may be melted in it, its corrosion consumed. [12]She has wearied herself with toil; [4] its abundant corrosion does not go out of it. Into the fire with its corrosion! [13]On account of your unclean lewdness, because I would have cleansed you and you were not cleansed from your uncleanness, you shall not be cleansed anymore till I have satisfied my fury upon you. [14]I am the LORD. I have spoken; it shall come to pass; I will do it. I will not go back; I will not spare; I will not relent; according to your ways and your deeds you will be judged, declares the Lord GOD.”

Ezekiel's Wife Dies

[15]The word of the LORD came to me: [16]‡“Son of man, behold, I am about to take the delight of your eyes away from you at a stroke; yet you shall not mourn or weep, nor shall your tears run down. [17]Sigh, but not aloud; make no mourning for the dead. Bind on your turban, and put your shoes on your feet; do not cover your lips, nor eat the bread of men.” [18]So I spoke to the people in the morning, and at evening my wife died. And on the next morning I did as I was commanded.

[19]And the people said to me, “Will you not tell us what these things mean for us, that you are acting thus?” [20]Then I said to them, “The word of the LORD came to me: [21]‘Say to the house of Israel, Thus says the Lord GOD: Behold, I will profane my sanctuary, the pride of your power, the delight of your eyes, and the yearning of your soul, and your sons and your daughters whom you left behind shall fall by the sword. [22]And you shall do as I have done; you shall not cover your lips, nor eat the bread of men. [23]Your turbans shall be on your heads and your shoes on your feet; you shall not mourn or weep, but you shall rot away in your iniquities and groan to one another. [24]Thus shall Ezekiel be to you a sign; according to all that he has done you shall do. When this comes, then you will know that I am the Lord GOD.’

[25]†“As for you, son of man, surely on the day when I take from them their stronghold, their joy and glory, the delight of their eyes and their soul's desire, and also their sons and daughters, [26]‡on that day a fugitive will come to you to report to you the news. [27]On that day your mouth will be opened to the fugitive, and you shall speak and be no longer mute. So you will be a sign to them, and they will know that I am the LORD.”

Prophecy Against Ammon

EZEKIEL 25 †The word of the LORD came to me: [2]‡“Son of man, set your face toward the Ammonites and prophesy against them. [3]Say to the Ammonites, Hear the word of the Lord GOD: Thus says the Lord GOD, Because you said, ‘Aha!’ over my sanctuary when it was profaned, and over the land of Israel when it was made desolate, and over the house of Judah when they went into exile, [4]†therefore behold, I am handing you over to the people of the East for a possession, and they shall set their encampments among you and make their dwellings in your midst. They shall eat your fruit, and they shall drink your milk. [5]†I will make Rabbah a pasture for camels and Ammon [1] a fold for flocks. Then you will know that I am the LORD. [6]For thus says the Lord GOD: Because you have clapped your hands and stamped your feet and rejoiced with all the malice within your soul against the land of Israel, [7]†therefore, behold, I have stretched out my hand against you, and will hand you over as plunder to the nations. And I will cut you off from the peoples and will make you perish out of the countries; I will destroy you. Then you will know that I am the LORD.

Prophecy Against Moab and Seir

[8]‡†“Thus says the Lord GOD: Because Moab and Seir [2] said, ‘Behold, the house of Judah is like all the other nations,’ [9]therefore I will lay open the flank of Moab from the cities, from its cities on its frontier, the glory of the country, Beth-jeshimoth, Baal-meon, and Kiriathaim. [10]I will give it along with the Ammonites to the people of the East as a possession, that the Ammonites may be remembered no more among the nations, [11]and I will execute judgments upon Moab. Then they will know that I am the LORD.

Prophecy Against Edom

[12]†“Thus says the Lord GOD: Because Edom acted revengefully against the house of Judah and has grievously offended in taking vengeance on them, [13]‡†therefore thus says the Lord GOD, I will stretch out my hand against Edom and cut off from it man and beast. And I will make it desolate; from Teman even to Dedan they shall fall by the sword. [14]And I will lay my vengeance upon Edom by the hand of my people Israel, and they shall do in Edom according to my anger and according to my wrath, and they shall know my vengeance, declares the Lord GOD.

Prophecy Against Philistia

[15]‡“Thus says the Lord GOD: Because the Philistines acted revengefully and took vengeance with malice of soul to destroy in never-ending enmity, [16]‡therefore thus says the Lord GOD, Behold, I will stretch out my hand against the Philistines, and I will cut off the Cherethites and destroy the rest of the seacoast. [17]‡I will execute great vengeance on them with wrathful rebukes. Then they will know that I am the LORD, when I lay my vengeance upon them.”

Prophecy Against Tyre

EZEKIEL 26 †In the eleventh year, on the first day of the month, the word of the LORD came to me: [2]“Son of man, because Tyre said concerning Jerusalem, ‘Aha, the gate of the peoples is broken; it has swung open to me. I shall be replenished, now that she is laid waste,’ [3]‡therefore thus says the Lord GOD: Behold, I am against you, O Tyre, and will bring up many nations against you, as the sea brings up its waves. [4]They shall destroy the walls of Tyre and break down her towers, and I will scrape her soil from her and make her a bare rock. [5]‡She shall be in the midst of the sea a place for the spreading of nets, for I have spoken, declares the Lord GOD. And she shall become plunder for the nations, [6]and her daughters on the mainland shall be killed by the sword. Then they will know that I am the LORD.

[7]‡“For thus says the Lord GOD: Behold, I will bring against Tyre from the north Nebuchadnezzar [1] king of Babylon, king of kings, with horses and chariots, and with horsemen and a host of many soldiers. [8]He will kill with the sword your daughters on the mainland. He will set up a siege wall against you and throw up a mound against you, and raise a roof of shields against you. [9]He will direct the shock of his battering rams against your walls, and with his axes he will break down your towers. [10]His horses will be so many that their dust will cover you. Your walls will shake at the noise of the horsemen and wagons and chariots, when he enters your gates as men enter a city that has been breached. [11]With the hoofs of his horses he will trample all your streets. He will kill your people with the sword, and your mighty pillars will fall to the ground. [12]†They will plunder your riches and loot your merchandise. They will break down your walls and destroy your pleasant houses. Your stones and timber and soil they will cast into the midst of the waters. [13]†And I will stop the music of your songs, and the sound of your lyres shall be heard no more. [14]I will make you a bare rock. You shall be a place for the spreading of nets. You shall never be rebuilt, for I am the LORD; I have spoken, declares the Lord GOD.

[15]‡“Thus says the Lord GOD to Tyre: Will not the coastlands shake at the sound of your fall, when the wounded groan, when slaughter is made in your midst? [16]Then all the princes of the sea will step down from their thrones and remove their robes and strip off their embroidered garments. They will clothe themselves with trembling; they will sit on the ground and tremble every moment and be appalled at you. [17]And they will raise a lamentation over you and say to you,

“‘How you have perished,
you who were inhabited from the seas,
O city renowned,
who was mighty on the sea;
she and her inhabitants imposed their terror
on all her inhabitants!
[18]Now the coastlands tremble
on the day of your fall,
and the coastlands that are on the sea
are dismayed at your passing.’

[19]‡“For thus says the Lord GOD: When I make you a city laid waste, like the cities that are not inhabited, when I bring up the deep over you, and the great waters cover you, [20]then I will make you go down with those who go down to the pit, to the people of old, and I will make you to dwell in the world below, among ruins from of old, with those who go down to the pit, so that you will not be inhabited; but I will set beauty in the land of the living. [21]I will bring you to a dreadful end, and you shall be no more. Though you be sought for, you will never be found again, declares the Lord GOD.”

A Lament for Tyre

EZEKIEL 27 ‡The word of the LORD came to me: [2]“Now you, son of man, raise a lamentation over Tyre, [3]and say to Tyre, who dwells at the entrances to the sea, merchant of the peoples to many coastlands, thus says the Lord GOD:

“O Tyre, you have said,
‘I am perfect in beauty.’
[4]Your borders are in the heart of the seas;
your builders made perfect your beauty.
[5]‡They made all your planks
of fir trees from Senir;
they took a cedar from Lebanon
to make a mast for you.
[6]Of oaks of Bashan
they made your oars;
they made your deck of pines
from the coasts of Cyprus, inlaid with ivory.
[7]Of fine embroidered linen from Egypt was your sail,
serving as your banner;
blue and purple from the coasts of Elishah
was your awning.
[8]The inhabitants of Sidon and Arvad were your rowers;
your skilled men, O Tyre, were in you;
they were your pilots.
[9]The elders of Gebal and her skilled men were in you,
caulking your seams;
all the ships of the sea with their mariners were in you
to barter for your wares.

[10]‡“Persia and Lud and Put were in your army as your men of war. They hung the shield and helmet in you; they gave you splendor. [11]‡Men of Arvad and Helech were on your walls all around, and men of Gamad were in your towers. They hung their shields on your walls all around; they made perfect your beauty.

[12]‡“Tarshish did business with you because of your great wealth of every kind; silver, iron, tin, and lead they exchanged for your wares. [13]‡Javan, Tubal, and Meshech traded with you; they exchanged human beings and vessels of bronze for your merchandise. [14]‡From Beth-togarmah they exchanged horses, war horses, and mules for your wares. [15]‡The men of Dedan [1] traded with you. Many coastlands were your own special markets; they brought you in payment ivory tusks and ebony. [16]Syria did business with you because of your abundant goods; they exchanged for your wares emeralds, purple, embroidered work, fine linen, coral, and ruby. [17]‡Judah and the land of Israel traded with you; they exchanged for your merchandise wheat of Minnith, meal, [2] honey, oil, and balm. [18]‡Damascus did business with you for your abundant goods, because of your great wealth of every kind; wine of Helbon and wool of Sahar [19]‡and casks of wine [3] from Uzal they exchanged for your wares; wrought iron, cassia, and calamus were bartered for your merchandise. [20]Dedan traded with you in saddlecloths for riding. [21]‡Arabia and all the princes of Kedar were your favored dealers in lambs, rams, and goats; in these they did business with you. [22]‡The traders of Sheba and Raamah traded with you; they exchanged for your wares the best of all kinds of spices and all precious stones and gold. [23]‡Haran, Canneh, Eden, traders of Sheba, Asshur, and Chilmad traded with you. [24]In your market these traded with you in choice garments, in clothes of blue and embroidered work, and in carpets of colored material, bound with cords and made secure. [25]‡The ships of Tarshish traveled for you with your merchandise. So you were filled and heavily laden in the heart of the seas.

[26]‡“Your rowers have brought you out into the high seas.
The east wind has wrecked you
    in the heart of the seas.
[27]Your riches, your wares, your merchandise,
    your mariners and your pilots,
your caulkers, your dealers in merchandise,

and all your men of war who are in you,
with all your crew
that is in your midst, sink into the heart of the seas
on the day of your fall.
[28]‡At the sound of the cry of your pilots
the countryside shakes, [29]and down from their ships
come all who handle the oar.
The mariners and all the pilots of the sea stand on the land
[30]and shout aloud over you
and cry out bitterly.
They cast dust on their heads
and wallow in ashes;
[31]they make themselves bald for you and put sackcloth on their waist,
and they weep over you in bitterness of soul,
with bitter mourning.
[32]In their wailing they raise a lamentation for you and lament over you:
‘Who is like Tyre,
like one destroyed in the midst of the sea?
[33]When your wares came from the seas,
you satisfied many peoples;
with your abundant wealth and merchandise
you enriched the kings of the earth.
[34]Now you are wrecked by the seas,
in the depths of the waters;
your merchandise and all your crew in your midst
have sunk with you.
[35]All the inhabitants of the coastlands
are appalled at you,
and the hair of their kings bristles with horror;
their faces are convulsed.
[36]‡The merchants among the peoples hiss at you;
you have come to a dreadful end

and shall be no more forever.’”

Prophecy Against the Prince of Tyre

EZEKIEL 28 ‡The word of the LORD came to me: [2]‡“Son of man, say to the prince of Tyre, Thus says the Lord GOD:

“Because your heart is proud,
and you have said, ‘I am a god,
I sit in the seat of the gods,
in the heart of the seas,’
yet you are but a man, and no god, though you make your heart like the heart of a god—[3]‡you are indeed wiser than Daniel;
no secret is hidden from you;
[4]by your wisdom and your understanding you have made wealth for yourself, and have gathered gold and silver
into your treasuries;
[5]by your great wisdom in your trade
you have increased your wealth, and your heart has become proud in your wealth—
[6]‡therefore thus says the Lord GOD:
Because you make your heart
like the heart of a god,
[7]therefore, behold, I will bring foreigners upon you,
the most ruthless of the nations;
and they shall draw their swords against the beauty of your wisdom and defile your splendor.
[8]They shall thrust you down into the pit,
and you shall die the death of the slain
in the heart of the seas.
[9]Will you still say, ‘I am a god,’
in the presence of those who kill you,
though you are but a man, and no god,
in the hands of those who slay you?
[10]You shall die the death of the uncircumcised
by the hand of foreigners;

for I have spoken, declares the Lord GOD.”

A Lament over the King of Tyre

[11]‡Moreover, the word of the LORD came to me: [12]†“Son of man, raise a lamentation over the king of Tyre, and say to him, Thus says the Lord GOD:

“You were the signet of perfection, [1]
full of wisdom and perfect in beauty.
[13]†You were in Eden, the garden of God;
every precious stone was your covering,
sardius, topaz, and diamond,
beryl, onyx, and jasper,
sapphire, [2] emerald, and carbuncle;
and crafted in gold were your settings
and your engravings. [3]
On the day that you were created
they were prepared.
[14]†You were an anointed guardian cherub.
I placed you; [4] you were on the holy mountain of God;
in the midst of the stones of fire you walked.
[15]†You were blameless in your ways from the day you were created,
till unrighteousness was found in you.
[16]†In the abundance of your trade
you were filled with violence in your midst, and you sinned;
so I cast you as a profane thing from the mountain of God,
and I destroyed you, [5] O guardian cherub,
from the midst of the stones of fire.
[17]‡Your heart was proud because of your beauty;
you corrupted your wisdom for the sake of your splendor.
I cast you to the ground;
I exposed you before kings,
to feast their eyes on you.
[18]By the multitude of your iniquities, in the unrighteousness of your trade
you profaned your sanctuaries;

so I brought fire out from your midst;
it consumed you,
and I turned you to ashes on the earth
in the sight of all who saw you.
[19]All who know you among the peoples
are appalled at you;
you have come to a dreadful end
and shall be no more forever.”

Prophecy Against Sidon

[20]The word of the LORD came to me: [21]“Son of man, set your face toward Sidon, and prophesy against her [22]and say, Thus says the Lord GOD:

“Behold, I am against you, O Sidon, and I will manifest my glory in your midst.
And they shall know that I am the LORD
when I execute judgments in her and manifest my holiness in her; [23]for I will send pestilence into her,
and blood into her streets;
and the slain shall fall in her midst,
by the sword that is against her on every side.
Then they will know that I am the LORD.

[24]“And for the house of Israel there shall be no more a brier to prick or a thorn to hurt them among all their neighbors who have treated them with contempt. Then they will know that I am the Lord GOD.

Israel Gathered in Security

[25]“Thus says the Lord GOD: When I gather the house of Israel from the peoples among whom they are scattered, and manifest my holiness in them in the sight of the nations, then they shall dwell in their own land that I gave to my servant Jacob. [26]And they shall dwell securely in it, and they shall build houses and plant vineyards. They shall dwell securely, when I execute judgments upon all their neighbors who have treated them with contempt. Then they will know that I am the LORD their God.”

Prophecy Against Egypt

EZEKIEL 29 †In the tenth year, in the tenth month, on the twelfth day of the month, the word of the LORD came to me: [2]†“Son of man, set your face against Pharaoh king of Egypt, and prophesy against him and against all Egypt; [3]†speak, and say, Thus says the Lord GOD:

“Behold, I am against you,
    Pharaoh king of Egypt,
the great dragon that lies in the midst of his streams, that says, ‘My Nile is my own;
    I made it for myself.’
[4]†I will put hooks in your jaws, and make the fish of your streams stick to your scales;
and I will draw you up out of the midst of your streams,
    with all the fish of your streams
    that stick to your scales.
[5]And I will cast you out into the wilderness,
    you and all the fish of your streams;
you shall fall on the open field,
    and not be brought together or gathered.
To the beasts of the earth and to the birds of the heavens
    I give you as food.

[6]†Then all the inhabitants of Egypt shall know that I am the LORD.

“Because you [1] have been a staff of reed to the house of Israel, [7]when they grasped you with the hand, you broke and tore all their shoulders; and when they leaned on you, you broke and made all their loins to shake. [2] [8]Therefore thus says the Lord GOD: Behold, I will bring a sword upon you, and will cut off from you man and beast, [9]†and the land of Egypt shall be a desolation and a waste. Then they will know that I am the LORD.

“Because you [3] said, ‘The Nile is mine, and I made it,’ [10]†therefore, behold, I am against you and against your streams, and I will make the land of Egypt an utter waste and desolation, from Migdol to Syene, as far as the border of Cush. [11]‡No foot of man shall pass through it, and no foot of beast shall pass through it; it shall be uninhabited forty years. [12]And I will make the land of Egypt a desolation in the midst of desolated countries, and her cities shall be a desolation forty years among cities that are laid waste. I will scatter the Egyptians among the nations, and disperse them through the countries.

[13]‡“For thus says the Lord GOD: At the end of forty years I will gather the Egyptians from the peoples among whom they were scattered, [14]and I will restore the fortunes of Egypt and bring them back to the land of Pathros, the land of their origin, and there they shall be a lowly kingdom. [15]It shall be the most lowly of the kingdoms, and never again exalt itself above the nations. And I will make them so small that they will never again rule over the nations. [16]And it shall never again be the reliance of the house of Israel, recalling their iniquity, when they turn to them for aid. Then they will know that I am the Lord GOD.”

[17]†In the twenty-seventh year, in the first month, on the first day of the month, the word of the LORD came to me: [18]†“Son of man, Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon made his army labor hard against Tyre. Every head was made bald, and every shoulder was rubbed bare, yet neither he nor his army got anything from Tyre to pay for the labor that he had performed against her. [19]†Therefore thus says the Lord GOD: Behold, I will give the land of Egypt to Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon; and he shall carry off its wealth [4] and despoil it and plunder it; and it shall be the wages for his army. [20]I have given him the land of Egypt as his payment for which he labored, because they worked for me, declares the Lord GOD.

[21]†“On that day I will cause a horn to spring up for the house of Israel, and I will open your lips among them. Then they will know that I am the LORD.”

A Lament for Egypt

EZEKIEL 30 The word of the LORD came to me: [2]"Son of man, prophesy, and say, Thus says the Lord GOD:

"Wail, 'Alas for the day!'
    [3]†For the day is near,
    the day of the LORD is near;
it will be a day of clouds,
    a time of doom for [1] the nations.
[4]A sword shall come upon Egypt,
    and anguish shall be in Cush,
when the slain fall in Egypt,
    and her wealth [2] is carried away,
    and her foundations are torn down.

[5]†Cush, and Put, and Lud, and all Arabia, and Libya, [3] and the people of the land that is in league, [4] shall fall with them by the sword.

[6]†"Thus says the LORD:
Those who support Egypt shall fall,
    and her proud might shall come down;
from Migdol to Syene
    they shall fall within her by the sword,
declares the Lord GOD.
[7]And they shall be desolated in the midst of desolated countries, and their cities shall be in the midst of cities that are laid waste.
[8]†Then they will know that I am the LORD,
    when I have set fire to Egypt,
    and all her helpers are broken.

[9]†"On that day messengers shall go out from me in ships to terrify the unsuspecting people of Cush, and anguish shall come upon them on the day of Egypt's doom; [5] for, behold, it comes!

[10]†"Thus says the Lord GOD:

“I will put an end to the wealth of Egypt,
by the hand of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon.
[11]He and his people with him, the most ruthless of nations, shall be brought in to destroy the land,
and they shall draw their swords against Egypt
and fill the land with the slain.
[12]†And I will dry up the Nile and will sell the land into the hand of evildoers;
I will bring desolation upon the land and everything in it,
by the hand of foreigners;
I am the LORD; I have spoken.

[13]“Thus says the Lord GOD:

“I will destroy the idols
and put an end to the images in Memphis;
there shall no longer be a prince from the land of Egypt;
so I will put fear in the land of Egypt.
[14]†I will make Pathros a desolation and will set fire to Zoan
and will execute judgments on Thebes.
[15]†And I will pour out my wrath on Pelusium,
the stronghold of Egypt,
and cut off the multitude [6] of Thebes.
[16]And I will set fire to Egypt;
Pelusium shall be in great agony;
Thebes shall be breached,
and Memphis shall face enemies [7] by day.
[17]†The young men of On and of Pi-beseth shall fall by the sword, and the women [8] shall go into captivity.
[18]†At Tehaphnehes the day shall be dark,
when I break there the yoke bars of Egypt,
and her proud might shall come to an end in her;
she shall be covered by a cloud,
and her daughters shall go into captivity.
[19]Thus I will execute judgments on Egypt.
Then they will know that I am the LORD.”

Egypt Shall Fall to Babylon

[20]†In the eleventh year, in the first month, on the seventh day of the month, the word of the LORD came to me: [21]†“Son of man, I have broken the arm of Pharaoh king of Egypt, and behold, it has not been bound up, to heal it by binding it with a bandage, so that it may become strong to wield the sword. [22]†Therefore thus says the Lord GOD: Behold, I am against Pharaoh king of Egypt and will break his arms, both the strong arm and the one that was broken, and I will make the sword fall from his hand. [23]I will scatter the Egyptians among the nations and disperse them through the countries. [24]And I will strengthen the arms of the king of Babylon and put my sword in his hand, but I will break the arms of Pharaoh, and he will groan before him like a man mortally wounded. [25]I will strengthen the arms of the king of Babylon, but the arms of Pharaoh shall fall. Then they shall know that I am the LORD, when I put my sword into the hand of the king of Babylon and he stretches it out against the land of Egypt. [26]†And I will scatter the Egyptians among the nations and disperse them throughout the countries. Then they will know that I am the LORD.”

Pharaoh to Be Slain

EZEKIEL 31 †In the eleventh year, in the third month, on the first day of the month, the word of the LORD came to me: [2]‡“Son of man, say to Pharaoh king of Egypt and to his multitude:

“Whom are you like in your greatness?
[3]†Behold, Assyria was a cedar in Lebanon, with beautiful branches and forest shade,
and of towering height,
its top among the clouds. [1] [4]The waters nourished it;
the deep made it grow tall,
making its rivers flow around the place of its planting, sending forth its streams
to all the trees of the field.
[5]So it towered high above all the trees of the field;
its boughs grew large and its branches long
from abundant water in its shoots.
[6]All the birds of the heavens made their nests in its boughs;
under its branches all the beasts of the field gave birth to their young,
and under its shadow
lived all great nations.
[7]It was beautiful in its greatness,
in the length of its branches;
for its roots went down
to abundant waters.
[8]‡The cedars in the garden of God could not rival it,
nor the fir trees equal its boughs;
neither were the plane trees
like its branches;

no tree in the garden of God
    was its equal in beauty.
[9]I made it beautiful
    in the mass of its branches,
and all the trees of Eden envied it,
    that were in the garden of God.

[10]‡“Therefore thus says the Lord GOD: Because it [2] towered high and set its top among the clouds, and its heart was proud of its height, [11]I will give it into the hand of a mighty one of the nations. He shall surely deal with it as its wickedness deserves. I have cast it out. [12]Foreigners, the most ruthless of nations, have cut it down and left it. On the mountains and in all the valleys its branches have fallen, and its boughs have been broken in all the ravines of the land, and all the peoples of the earth have gone away from its shadow and left it. [13]On its fallen trunk dwell all the birds of the heavens, and on its branches are all the beasts of the field. [14]‡All this is in order that no trees by the waters may grow to towering height or set their tops among the clouds, and that no trees that drink water may reach up to them in height. For they are all given over to death, to the world below, among the children of man, [3] with those who go down to the pit.

[15]“Thus says the Lord GOD: On the day the cedar [4] went down to Sheol I caused mourning; I closed the deep over it, and restrained its rivers, and many waters were stopped. I clothed Lebanon in gloom for it, and all the trees of the field fainted because of it. [16]I made the nations quake at the sound of its fall, when I cast it down to Sheol with those who go down to the pit. And all the trees of Eden, the choice and best of Lebanon, all that drink water, were comforted in the world below. [17]They also went down to Sheol with it, to those who are slain by the sword; yes, those who were its arm, who lived under its shadow among the nations.

[18]‡“Whom are you thus like in glory and in greatness among the trees of Eden? You shall be brought down with the trees of Eden to the world below. You shall lie among the uncircumcised, with those who are slain by the sword.

“This is Pharaoh and all his multitude, declares the Lord GOD.”

A Lament over Pharaoh and Egypt

EZEKIEL 32 ‡In the twelfth year, in the twelfth month, on the first day of the month, the word of the LORD came to me: [2]‡“Son of man, raise a lamentation over Pharaoh king of Egypt and say to him:

“You consider yourself a lion of the nations,
but you are like a dragon in the seas;
you burst forth in your rivers,
trouble the waters with your feet,
and foul their rivers.
[3]‡Thus says the Lord GOD:
I will throw my net over you with a host of many peoples,
and they will haul you up in my dragnet.
[4]And I will cast you on the ground;
on the open field I will fling you,
and will cause all the birds of the heavens to settle on you,
and I will gorge the beasts of the whole earth with you.
[5]I will strew your flesh upon the mountains and fill the valleys with your carcass. [1] [6]I will drench the land even to the mountains with your flowing blood,
and the ravines will be full of you.
[7]‡When I blot you out, I will cover the heavens
and make their stars dark;
I will cover the sun with a cloud,
and the moon shall not give its light.
[8]All the bright lights of heaven will I make dark over you,
and put darkness on your land,
declares the Lord GOD.

[9]“I will trouble the hearts of many peoples, when I bring your destruction among the nations, into the countries that you have not known. [10]I will make many peoples appalled at you, and the hair of their kings shall bristle with horror because of you, when I brandish my sword before them. They shall tremble every moment, every one for his own life, on the day of your downfall.

[11]†“For thus says the Lord GOD: The sword of the king of Babylon shall come upon you. [12]I will cause your multitude to fall by the swords of mighty ones, all of them most ruthless of nations.

“They shall bring to ruin the pride of Egypt, and all its multitude [2] shall perish.
[13]†I will destroy all its beasts
from beside many waters;
and no foot of man shall trouble them anymore,
nor shall the hoofs of beasts trouble them.
[14]Then I will make their waters clear,
and cause their rivers to run like oil,
declares the Lord GOD.
[15]When I make the land of Egypt desolate, and when the land is desolate of all that fills it,
when I strike down all who dwell in it,
then they will know that I am the LORD.

[16]This is a lamentation that shall be chanted; the daughters of the nations shall chant it; over Egypt, and over all her multitude, shall they chant it, declares the Lord GOD.”

[17]†In the twelfth year, in the twelfth month, [3] on the fifteenth day of the month, the word of the LORD came to me: [18]†“Son of man, wail over the multitude of Egypt, and send them down, her and the daughters of majestic nations, to the world below, to those who have gone down to the pit:

[19]†‘Whom do you surpass in beauty?
Go down and be laid to rest with the uncircumcised.’

[20]They shall fall amid those who are slain by the sword. Egypt [4] is delivered to the sword; drag her away, and all her multitudes. [21]The mighty chiefs shall speak of them, with their helpers, out of the midst of Sheol: ‘They have come down, they lie still, the uncircumcised, slain by the sword.’

[22]†“Assyria is there, and all her company, its graves all around it, all of them slain, fallen by the sword, [23]whose graves are set in the uttermost parts of the pit; and her company is all around her grave, all of them slain, fallen by the sword, who spread terror in the land of the living.

[24]“Elam is there, and all her multitude around her grave; all of them slain, fallen by the sword, who went down uncircumcised into the world below, who spread their terror in the land of the living; and they bear their shame with those who go down to the pit. [25]They have made her a bed among the slain with all her multitude, her graves all around it, all of them uncircumcised, slain by the sword; for terror of them was spread in the land of the living, and they bear their shame with those who go down to the pit; they are placed among the slain.

[26]“Meshech-Tubal is there, and all her multitude, her graves all around it, all of them uncircumcised, slain by the sword; for they spread their terror in the land of the living. [27]And they do not lie with the mighty, the fallen from among the uncircumcised, who went down to Sheol with their weapons of war, whose swords were laid under their heads, and whose iniquities are upon their bones; for the terror of the mighty men was in the land of the living. [28]But as for you, you shall be broken and lie among the uncircumcised, with those who are slain by the sword.

[29]“Edom is there, her kings and all her princes, who for all their might are laid with those who are killed by the sword; they lie with the uncircumcised, with those who go down to the pit.

[30]“The princes of the north are there, all of them, and all the Sidonians, who have gone down in shame with the slain, for all the terror that they caused by their might; they lie uncircumcised with those who are slain by the sword, and bear their shame with those who go down to the pit.

[31]†“When Pharaoh sees them, he will be comforted for all his multitude, Pharaoh and all his army, slain by the sword, declares the Lord GOD. [32]For I spread terror in the land of the living; and he shall be laid to rest among the uncircumcised, with those who are slain by the sword, Pharaoh and all his multitude, declares the Lord GOD.”

Ezekiel Is Israel's Watchman

EZEKIEL 33 ‡The word of the LORD came to me: [2]‡‡“Son of man, speak to your people and say to them, If I bring the sword upon a land, and the people of the land take a man from among them, and make him their watchman, [3]and if he sees the sword coming upon the land and blows the trumpet and warns the people, [4]‡then if anyone who hears the sound of the trumpet does not take warning, and the sword comes and takes him away, his blood shall be upon his own head. [5]He heard the sound of the trumpet and did not take warning; his blood shall be upon himself. But if he had taken warning, he would have saved his life. [6]But if the watchman sees the sword coming and does not blow the trumpet, so that the people are not warned, and the sword comes and takes any one of them, that person is taken away in his iniquity, but his blood I will require at the watchman's hand.

[7]“So you, son of man, I have made a watchman for the house of Israel. Whenever you hear a word from my mouth, you shall give them warning from me. [8]‡If I say to the wicked, O wicked one, you shall surely die, and you do not speak to warn the wicked to turn from his way, that wicked person shall die in his iniquity, but his blood I will require at your hand. [9]But if you warn the wicked to turn from his way, and he does not turn from his way, that person shall die in his iniquity, but you will have delivered your soul.

Why Will You Die, Israel?

[10]‡“And you, son of man, say to the house of Israel, Thus have you said: ‘Surely our transgressions and our sins are upon us, and we rot away because of them. How then can we live?’ [11]Say to them, As I live, declares the Lord GOD, I have no pleasure in the death of the wicked, but that the wicked turn from his way and live; turn back, turn back from your evil ways, for why will you die, O house of Israel?

[12]‡“And you, son of man, say to your people, The righteousness of the righteous shall not deliver him when he transgresses, and as for the wickedness of the wicked, he shall not fall by it when he turns from his wickedness, and the righteous shall not be able to live by his righteousness [1] when he sins. [13]Though I say to the righteous that he shall surely live, yet if he trusts in his righteousness and does injustice, none of his righteous deeds shall be remembered, but in his injustice that he has done he shall die. [14]Again, though I say to the wicked, ‘You shall surely die,’ yet if he turns from his sin and does what is just and right, [15]if the wicked restores the pledge, gives back what he has taken by robbery, and walks in the statutes of life, not doing injustice, he shall surely live; he shall not die. [16]None of the sins that he has committed shall be remembered against him. He has done what is just and right; he shall surely live.

[17]‡“Yet your people say, ‘The way of the Lord is not just,’ when it is their own way that is not just. [18]When the righteous turns from his righteousness and does injustice, he shall die for it. [19]And when the wicked turns from his wickedness and does what is just and right, he shall live by this. [20]Yet you say, ‘The way of the Lord is not just.’ O house of Israel, I will judge each of you according to his ways.”

Jerusalem Struck Down

[21]‡In the twelfth year of our exile, in the tenth month, on the fifth day of the month, a fugitive from Jerusalem came to me and said, “The city has been struck down.” [22]‡Now the hand of the LORD had been upon me the evening before the fugitive came; and he had opened my mouth by the time the man came to me in the morning, so my mouth was opened, and I was no longer mute.

[23]‡The word of the LORD came to me: [24]“Son of man, the inhabitants of these waste places in the land of Israel keep saying, ‘Abraham was only one man, yet he got possession of the land; but we are many; the land is surely given us to possess.’ [25]Therefore say to them, Thus says the Lord GOD: You eat flesh with the blood and lift up your eyes to your idols and shed blood; shall you then possess the land? [26]You rely on the sword, you commit abominations, and each of you defiles his neighbor's wife; shall you then possess the land? [27]Say this to them, Thus says the Lord GOD: As I live, surely those who are in the waste places shall fall by the sword, and whoever is in the open field I will give to the beasts to be devoured, and those who are in strongholds and in caves shall die by pestilence. [28]And I will make the land a desolation and a waste, and her proud might shall come to an end, and the mountains of Israel shall be so desolate that none will pass through. [29]Then they will know that I am the LORD, when I have made the land a desolation and a waste because of all their abominations that they have committed.

[30]‡“As for you, son of man, your people who talk together about you by the walls and at the doors of the houses, say to one another, each to his brother, ‘Come, and hear what the word is that comes from the LORD.’ [31]And they come to you as people come, and they sit before you as my people, and they hear what you say but they will not do it; for with lustful talk in their mouths they act; their heart is set on their gain. [32]And behold, you are to them like one who sings lustful songs with a beautiful voice and plays [2] well on an instrument, for they hear what you say, but they will not do it. [33]When this comes—and come it will!—then they will know that a prophet has been among them.”

Prophecy Against the Shepherds of Israel

EZEKIEL 34 †The word of the LORD came to me: [2]†“Son of man, prophesy against the shepherds of Israel; prophesy, and say to them, even to the shepherds, Thus says the Lord GOD: Ah, shepherds of Israel who have been feeding yourselves! Should not shepherds feed the sheep? [3]You eat the fat, you clothe yourselves with the wool, you slaughter the fat ones, but you do not feed the sheep. [4]The weak you have not strengthened, the sick you have not healed, the injured you have not bound up, the strayed you have not brought back, the lost you have not sought, and with force and harshness you have ruled them. [5]†So they were scattered, because there was no shepherd, and they became food for all the wild beasts. [6]My sheep were scattered; they wandered over all the mountains and on every high hill. My sheep were scattered over all the face of the earth, with none to search or seek for them.

[7]“Therefore, you shepherds, hear the word of the LORD: [8]As I live, declares the Lord GOD, surely because my sheep have become a prey, and my sheep have become food for all the wild beasts, since there was no shepherd, and because my shepherds have not searched for my sheep, but the shepherds have fed themselves, and have not fed my sheep, [9]‡therefore, you shepherds, hear the word of the LORD: [10]Thus says the Lord GOD, Behold, I am against the shepherds, and I will require my sheep at their hand and put a stop to their feeding the sheep. No longer shall the shepherds feed themselves. I will rescue my sheep from their mouths, that they may not be food for them.

The Lord God Will Seek Them Out

[11]†“For thus says the Lord GOD: Behold, I, I myself will search for my sheep and will seek them out. [12]‡†As a shepherd seeks out his flock when he is among his sheep that have been scattered, so will I seek out my sheep, and I will rescue them from all places where they have been scattered on a day of clouds and thick darkness. [13]And I will bring them out from the peoples and gather them from the countries, and will bring them into their own land.

And I will feed them on the mountains of Israel, by the ravines, and in all the inhabited places of the country. [14]I will feed them with good pasture, and on the mountain heights of Israel shall be their grazing land. There they shall lie down in good grazing land, and on rich pasture they shall feed on the mountains of Israel. [15]‡I myself will be the shepherd of my sheep, and I myself will make them lie down, declares the Lord GOD. [16]I will seek the lost, and I will bring back the strayed, and I will bind up the injured, and I will strengthen the weak, and the fat and the strong I will destroy. [1] I will feed them in justice.

[17]‡“As for you, my flock, thus says the Lord GOD: Behold, I judge between sheep and sheep, between rams and male goats. [18]Is it not enough for you to feed on the good pasture, that you must tread down with your feet the rest of your pasture; and to drink of clear water, that you must muddy the rest of the water with your feet? [19]And must my sheep eat what you have trodden with your feet, and drink what you have muddied with your feet?

[20]“Therefore, thus says the Lord GOD to them: Behold, I, I myself will judge between the fat sheep and the lean sheep. [21]Because you push with side and shoulder, and thrust at all the weak with your horns, till you have scattered them abroad, [22]I will rescue [2] my flock; they shall no longer be a prey. And I will judge between sheep and sheep. [23]†And I will set up over them one shepherd, my servant David, and he shall feed them: he shall feed them and be their shepherd. [24]†And I, the LORD, will be their God, and my servant David shall be prince among them. I am the LORD; I have spoken.

The LORD's Covenant of Peace

[25]†“I will make with them a covenant of peace and banish wild beasts from the land, so that they may dwell securely in the wilderness and sleep in the woods. [26]†And I will make them and the places all around my hill a blessing, and I will send down the showers in their season; they shall be showers of blessing. [27]†And the trees of the field shall yield their fruit, and the earth shall yield its increase, and they shall be secure in their land. And they shall know that I am the LORD, when I break the bars of their yoke, and deliver them from the hand of those who enslaved them. [28]‡They shall no more be a prey to the nations, nor shall the beasts of the land devour them.

They shall dwell securely, and none shall make them afraid. [29]And I will provide for them renowned plantations so that they shall no more be consumed with hunger in the land, and no longer suffer the reproach of the nations. [30]†And they shall know that I am the LORD their God with them, and that they, the house of Israel, are my people, declares the Lord GOD. [31]And you are my sheep, human sheep of my pasture, and I am your God, declares the Lord GOD.”

Prophecy Against Mount Seir

EZEKIEL 35 The word of the LORD came to me: [2]†“Son of man, set your face against Mount Seir, and prophesy against it, [3]‡and say to it, Thus says the Lord GOD: Behold, I am against you, Mount Seir, and I will stretch out my hand against you, and I will make you a desolation and a waste. [4]I will lay your cities waste, and you shall become a desolation, and you shall know that I am the LORD. [5]†Because you cherished perpetual enmity and gave over the people of Israel to the power of the sword at the time of their calamity, at the time of their final punishment, [6]therefore, as I live, declares the Lord GOD, I will prepare you for blood, and blood shall pursue you; because you did not hate bloodshed, therefore blood shall pursue you. [7]I will make Mount Seir a waste and a desolation, and I will cut off from it all who come and go. [8]And I will fill its mountains with the slain. On your hills and in your valleys and in all your ravines those slain with the sword shall fall. [9]I will make you a perpetual desolation, and your cities shall not be inhabited. Then you will know that I am the LORD.

[10]†“Because you said, ‘These two nations and these two countries shall be mine, and we will take possession of them’—although the LORD was there — [11]‡therefore, as I live, declares the Lord GOD, I will deal with you according to the anger and envy that you showed because of your hatred against them. And I will make myself known among them, when I judge you. [12]And you shall know that I am the LORD.

“I have heard all the revilings that you uttered against the mountains of Israel, saying, ‘They are laid desolate; they are given us to devour.’ [13]†And you magnified yourselves against me with your mouth, and multiplied your words against me; I heard it. [14]Thus says the Lord GOD: While the whole earth rejoices, I will make you desolate. [15]†As you rejoiced over the inheritance of the house of Israel, because it was desolate, so I will deal with you; you shall be desolate, Mount Seir, and all Edom, all of it. Then they will know that I am the LORD.

Prophecy to the Mountains of Israel

EZEKIEL 36 †“And you, son of man, prophesy to the mountains of Israel, and say, O mountains of Israel, hear the word of the LORD. [2]‡†Thus says the Lord GOD: Because the enemy said of you, ‘Aha!’ and, ‘The ancient heights have become our possession,’ [3]therefore prophesy, and say, Thus says the Lord GOD: Precisely because they made you desolate and crushed you from all sides, so that you became the possession of the rest of the nations, and you became the talk and evil gossip of the people, [4]therefore, O mountains of Israel, hear the word of the Lord GOD: Thus says the Lord GOD to the mountains and the hills, the ravines and the valleys, the desolate wastes and the deserted cities, which have become a prey and derision to the rest of the nations all around, [5]therefore thus says the Lord GOD: Surely I have spoken in my hot jealousy against the rest of the nations and against all Edom, who gave my land to themselves as a possession with wholehearted joy and utter contempt, that they might make its pasturelands a prey. [6]Therefore prophesy concerning the land of Israel, and say to the mountains and hills, to the ravines and valleys, Thus says the Lord GOD: Behold, I have spoken in my jealous wrath, because you have suffered the reproach of the nations. [7]†Therefore thus says the Lord GOD: I swear that the nations that are all around you shall themselves suffer reproach.

[8]‡“But you, O mountains of Israel, shall shoot forth your branches and yield your fruit to my people Israel, for they will soon come home. [9]For behold, I am for you, and I will turn to you, and you shall be tilled and sown. [10]And I will multiply people on you, the whole house of Israel, all of it. The cities shall be inhabited and the waste places rebuilt. [11]And I will multiply on you man and beast, and they shall multiply and be fruitful. And I will cause you to be inhabited as in your former times, and will do more good to you than ever before. Then you will know that I am the LORD. [12]I will let people walk on you, even my people Israel. And they shall possess you, and you shall be their inheritance, and you shall no longer bereave them of children. [13]Thus says the Lord GOD: Because they say to you, ‘You devour people, and you bereave your nation of children,’ [14]therefore you shall no longer devour people and no longer bereave your nation of children, declares the Lord GOD. [15]And I will not let you hear anymore the reproach of the nations, and you shall no longer bear the disgrace of the peoples and no longer cause your nation to stumble, declares the Lord GOD.”

The LORD's Concern for His Holy Name

[16]‡The word of the LORD came to me: [17]“Son of man, when the house of Israel lived in their own land, they defiled it by their ways and their deeds. Their ways before me were like the uncleanness of a woman in her menstrual impurity. [18]So I poured out my wrath upon them for the blood that they had shed in the land, for the idols with which they had defiled it. [19]I scattered them among the nations, and they were dispersed through the countries. In accordance with their ways and their deeds I judged them. [20]†But when they came to the nations, wherever they came, they profaned my holy name, in that people said of them, ‘These are the people of the LORD, and yet they had to go out of his land.’ [21]‡But I had concern for my holy name, which the house of Israel had profaned among the nations to which they came.

I Will Put My Spirit Within You

[22]“Therefore say to the house of Israel, Thus says the Lord GOD: It is not for your sake, O house of Israel, that I am about to act, but for the sake of my holy name, which you have profaned among the nations to which you came. [23]And I will vindicate the holiness of my great name, which has been profaned among the nations, and which you have profaned among them. And the nations will know that I am the LORD, declares the Lord GOD, when through you I vindicate my holiness before their eyes. [24]†I will take you from the nations and gather you from all the countries and bring you into your own land. [25]‡‡I will sprinkle clean water on you, and you shall be clean from all your uncleannesses, and from all your idols I will cleanse you. [26]And I will give you a new heart, and a new spirit I will put within you. And I will remove the heart of stone from your flesh and give you a heart of flesh. [27]And I will put my Spirit within you, and cause you to walk in my statutes and be careful to obey my rules. [1] [28]You shall dwell in the land that I gave to your fathers, and you shall be my people, and I will be your God. [29]And I will deliver you from all your uncleannesses. And I will summon the grain and make it abundant and lay no famine upon you. [30]I will make the fruit of the tree and the increase of the field abundant, that you may never again suffer the disgrace of famine among the nations. [31]Then you will remember your evil ways, and your deeds that were not good, and you will loathe yourselves for your iniquities and your abominations. [32]†It is not for your sake that I will act, declares the Lord GOD; let that be known to you. Be ashamed and confounded for your ways, O house of Israel.

[33]“Thus says the Lord GOD: On the day that I cleanse you from all your iniquities, I will cause the cities to be inhabited, and the waste places shall be rebuilt. [34]And the land that was desolate shall be tilled, instead of being the desolation that it was in the sight of all who passed by. [35]†And they will say, ‘This land that was desolate has become like the garden of Eden, and the waste and desolate and ruined cities are now fortified and inhabited.’ [36]Then the nations that are left all around you shall know that I am the LORD; I have rebuilt the ruined places and replanted that which was desolate. I am the LORD; I have spoken, and I will do it.

[37]‡†“Thus says the Lord GOD: This also I will let the house of Israel ask me to do for them: to increase their people like a flock. [38]Like the flock for sacrifices, [2] like the flock at Jerusalem during her appointed feasts, so shall the waste cities be filled with flocks of people. Then they will know that I am the LORD.”
